not having been made a party to the suit brought by X upon the deed of 1876, and, therefore, not being bound by any of the proceedings taken therein or consequent thereto. It was contended that B's position as head of the family entitled her to deal with the property so as to bind all the members of the family, though using her name only, and it was suggested that, at the time of the mortgage of 1873, some of the daughters were minors. On behalf of the daughters it was contended (inter alia) that the decrees obtained by them against A and B in February 1884 were conclusive, by way of res judicata, against the plaintiff, who, as mortgagee from A and B, claimed under a title derived from them. Held that there being no evidence to show that the decrees of February and November 1884 were fraudulently and collusively obtained, the Court of first instance was right in exempting the shares of the daughters from the lien sought to be enforced by the plaintiff; and that, inasmuch as the deed of 1876 was prior in date to the plaintiff's deed of 1878, and there was no allegation of fraud or collusion in regard to it, the decree and sale in enforcement of the former deed would defeat the rights of the plaintiff under the latter. Khub Chund v. Kalian Das (I. L. R., 1 All. 240) and Ali Hasan v. Dhirja (I. L. R., 4 All. 518) referred to. Per Mahmood, J.—According to the Muhammadan Law, the surviving widow, though held in respect by the members of the family, would not be entitled to deal with the property so as to bind them, and the entry of her name in the revenue registers in the place of her deceased husband would probably be a mere mark of respect and sympathy. Her position in respect of her husband's estate is ordinarily nothing more or less than that of any other heir, and even where her children are minors, she cannot exercise any power of disposition with reference to their property, because although she may, under certain limitations, act as guardian of their persons till they reach the age of discretion, she cannot exercise control or act as their guardian in respect of their property without special appointment by the ruling authority, in default of other relations who are entitled to such guardianship. Even, therefore, if some of the daughters in the present case were minors at the time of the plaintiff's mortgage, their shares could not be affected thereby. They could only be so affected if circumstances existed which would furnish grounds for applying against them the rule of estoppel contained in s. 115 of the Evidence Act, or the doctrine of equity formulated in s. 41 of the Transfer of Property Act, but here no such circumstances existed. Also per Mahmood, J.—The decrees of February and November 1884 did not operate as res judicata against the plaintiff, inasmuch as a mortgagee cannot be bound by a decision relating to the mortgaged property in a suit instituted after his mortgage, and to which he was not a party. After a mortgage has been duly created, the mortgagor, in whom the equity of redemption is vested, no longer possesses any such estate as would entitle him to represent the rights and interest of the mortgagee in a subsequent litigation, so as to render the result of such litigation binding upon, and conclusive against, such mortgagee. The plaintiff in the present suit could not be treated as a party claiming under his mortgagors within the meaning of s. 13 of the Civil Procedure Code, and that section must be interpreted as if, after the words "under whom they or any of them claim," the words, "by a title or arising subsequently to the commencement of the former suit," had been inserted. Dooma Sahoo v. Joonarain Loll (12 W. R. 362) and Bonomalee Nag v. Koylash Chunder Dey (I. L. R., 4 Cal. 692) referred to; Outram v. Morewood (3 East. 346), Boykunt Nath Chatterjee v. Amceeronissa Khatoon (2 W. R. 191), Katama Natchiar v. Srimut Raja Moottoo Vijaya Raganadhia (9 Moore's I. A. 539), and Ram Coommar Sein v. Prosunno Coommar Sein (W. R., Jan. and July, 1861, p. 375) distinguished. The principles of the rule of res judicata, as part of the law of civil procedure properly so called, and those of the rule of estoppel, as part of the law of evidence, explained and distinguished.—Sita Ram v. Ameer Begam, I. L. R., 8 All. 324. [May 5, 1886.]

THE plaintiffs, as purchasers of a share of an estate, sued to recover their share of the rent of certain tenures held in that estate by the defendants. The defendants denied being in possession as alleged. Another co-sharer in the same estate had previously brought a suit against the same defendants for the rent of the same tenures, and in that suit the present plaintiffs and other co-sharers of the estate were made co-defendants, and the decision in that suit was that the present defendants were in possession, and were liable to pay to the then plaintiff his share of the rent. Held (Mitter, J., dissenting) that the decree in the former suit was not a res judicata, or even admissible as evidence in the present suit.—Surendra Nath Pal Chowdhry v. Brojo Nath Pal Chowdhry, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 352. [Aug. 14, 1886.]

A JUDGMENT-CREDITOR of the plaintiff, having obtained a decree against the plaintiff attached the house in dispute. The defendant intervened in 1878, and set up a previous purchase of the house by himself from the plaintiff. The attachment was removed. The judgment-creditor brought a suit against the defendant for declaration that the property belonged to the plaintiff, and, as such, was liable to be attached and sold in execution. At the hearing of this suit the judgment-creditor did not appear. The defendant appeared, and produced a sale-deed, which the Court found proved, and dismissed the judgment-creditor's suit. The plaintiff now brought the present suit against the defendant to recover possession of the house. The defendant contended (inter alia) that the dismissal of the former suit brought by the plaintiff's judgment-creditor operated as res judicata under s. 13 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882). Both the lower Courts disallowed the defendant's contention, holding that the suit was not barred. On appeal by the defendant to the High Court, held, confirming the lower Courts' decree, that the dismissal of the former suit did not operate as res judicata in the absence of any evidence to show that the judgment-creditor, in point of fact, represented the plaintiff so as to constitute him a party to the suit. It was contended for the defendant that the plaintiff, as the judgment-debtor, might, at any rate, be regarded as a party against whom the order in the execution-proceedings in 1878 was made, and that the present suit was, therefore, barred by limitation. Held that the plaintiff could not be regarded as a party to those proceedings. Whether a judgment-debtor is to be regarded as a party to an investigation under s. 278 of the Code, must depend upon the facts of each case. As the question of limitation was raised for the first time in second appeal, it could not be decided against the plaintiff.—Shivappa v. Dod Nagaya, I. L. R., 11 Bom. 114. [Sep. 14, 1886.]

In a suit by A, the indmādar, against B, the khot of a certain village, it was decided that A was the proprietor of the forest or waste lands attached to the village. Held that this decision did not operate as res judicata between A and B so as to estop B in a subsequent suit from setting up a proprietary title, as against A, to the cultivated lands in the village.—Moro Abaji v. Narayan Dhondbhat Pitre, I. L. R., 11 Bom. 355. [Sep. 30, 1886.]

A DECREE having been obtained against the karnavan and senior anandravan of a Malabar tarwad, whereby the tarwad was dispossessed of certain land, the junior members of the tarwad, who had not been impleaded in the suit sued to recover the land. Held that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover upon proof that the decree in the former suit was not substantially correct, and that they were not bound to prove malā fides on the part of their karnavan in defending the former suit as a condition precedent to recovery.—Sridevi v. Kelu Eradi, I. L. R., 10 Mad. 79. [Oct. 12, 1886.]

In a suit in which the plaintiffs claimed exclusive possession, and, in the alternative, joint possession of certain land, evidence was taken upon the issues raised; but the Court, without discussing the evidence, held that the alternative claims were "contradictory," and the plaintiffs' claim, therefore, "uncertain," and accordingly ordered "that the plaintiffs' claim, as brought, be dismissed with costs." The plaintiffs did not appeal from this decision, but subsequently brought a suit against the same defendants, claiming joint possession of the same property. Held that the suit was barred by s. 13 of the Civil Procedure Code, the Court in the former suit not having reserved to the plaintiffs the right to bring a fresh action. Ganesh Rai v. Kalka Prasad (I. L. R., 5 All. 595), Muhammad Salim v. Nabian Bibi (I. L. R., 8 All. 282), and Watson v. Collector of Rajshahye (18 Moore's I. A. 160), referred to by Tyrrell, J.—Kudrat v. Dinu, I. L. R., 9 All. 155. [Dec. 10, 1886.]

UPON an application made under Chapter IV. of the N. W. P. Land Revenue Act (XIX. of 1873) for partition of common land, in which the owners of six pattis were interested, into six equal parts, an objection was raised that the land should be divided into parts proportionate to the size of the different pattis. The Assistant Collector before whom the objection was made disallowed it with reference to the provisions of the wajib-ul-ars in which the custom of the village was recorded, and made the partition in the manner prayed. No appeal was preferred by the objectors to the District Judge. The Collector confirmed the partition, and after an appeal to the Commissioner, the Assistant Collector's decision was upheld. The objectors then brought a suit in the Civil Court for a declaration that the defendants were only entitled to a share of the common land proportionate to the area of their pattis. Held that the objection which was raised in the Revenue Court was one which raised a question of title or of proprietary right in respect of the common land within the meaning of s. 113 of the N. W. P. Land Revenue Act; that the decision of the Assistant Collector was a decision within the meaning of s. 114 of the Act; and that, consequently, the suit was barred by s. 13 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held also that the question was not affected by any mistakes in procedure that had been made in the Revenue Courts.—Amir Singh v. Naimati Prasad, I. L. R., 9 All. 388. [Feb. 3, 1887.]

When foreign judgment no bar to suit in British India. 14. No foreign judgment shall operate as bar to a suit in British India—

- (a) if it has not been given on the merits of the case :
- (b) if it appears on the face of the proceedings to be founded on an incorrect view of international law or of any law in force in British India :
- (c) if it is, in the opinion of the Court before which it is produced, contrary to natural justice :

- (e) if it sustains a claim founded on a breach of any law in force in British India.

An ex-parte judgment of a French Court against a native of British India, not residing in French territory, upon a cause of action which arose in British India, imposes no duty on the defendant to pay the amount decreed so as to bar a suit in British India.—Hinde and Co. v. Ponnath Brayan, I. L. R., 4 Mad. 339. [Dec. 8, 1889.]

THE judgment of a foreign Court, obtained on a decree of a Court in British India, is no bar to the execution of the original decree.—Fakuruddeen Mahomed Assan v. Official Trustee of Bengal, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 82. [Mar. 28, 1881.]

A SUIT upon a foreign judgment is not cognizable by a Court of Small Causes established under Act XI. of 1865.—Krishnan v. Pilo, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 191. [Feb. 16, 1883.]

K SUE D C, who resided in British India, upon a bond executed by C in favour of K within the territory of P, a Native State, and obtained a decree. Having obtained satisfaction in part, K sued C upon the judgment of the Court of P in a British Indian Court at T. Held, reversing the decrees of the Lower Courts, that the Court at P had jurisdiction, and that K could sue upon the judgment of that Court in the Court at T.—Kaliyugam v. Chokalinga, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 105. [Aug. 23, 1883.]

CHAPTER II.

OF THE PLACE OF SUING.

Ditto. Court in which suit to be instituted.

15. Every suit shall be instituted in the Court of the lowest grade competent to try it.

FOR the purpose of determining the question of jurisdiction the valuation of a suit should be computed according to the market-value of the subject-matter of the suit, and not according to the special rules applicable to valuation fixed in Act VII. of 1870.—Kalubin Bhiwaji v. Vishram Mawaji, I. L. R., 1 Bom. 543. [Feb. 14, 1877.]

A SUIT was brought for a dissolution of partnership between plaintiff and 1st defendant, and for an account as between them. It was alleged in the plaint that plaintiff and 1st defendant entered into partnership in 1864 to work a jungle in the North Arcot district which had been leased to plaintiff for three years. That 4th defendant was subsequently admitted a partner, and that the contract was carried on under the style of R T and Co. That in March 1867 4th defendant took up a contract in Madras, and another general partnership was established, of which plaintiff and 1st defendant were members; that the funds of the 1st firm became incorporated in the 2nd firm, which was styled K T and K, and that this firm undertook several contracts in Madras and Chingleput. Finally, that the cause of action was the refusal of 1st defendant to account, and accrued in North Arcot district, where all the defendants resided permanently. The District Judge dismissed the suit on the ground that, under s. 265 of the Indian Contract Act, he had no jurisdiction. Held, on appeal, that the District Court of North Arcot had jurisdiction, as the defendants were resident within the district. That the provision in the Contract Act is permissive, and does not prohibit a suit elsewhere than at the place where the partnership was carried on if a sufficient ground of jurisdiction exists.—Javali Ramasami v. Sathambakam Thervengadasami, I. L. R., 1 Mad. 340. [Nov. 5, 1877.]

WHERE a person has preferred a claim to property attached in execution of a decree on the ground that such property is not liable to such attachment, and an order is passed against him, and he sues to establish his right to such property, held that the value of the subject-matter in dispute in such suit, for the purposes of jurisdiction, will be the amount of such decree.—Gulzari Lal v. Jadaun Bai, I. L. R., 2 All. 790. [April 22, 1889.]

S. 6 of Act VIII. of 1859 (corresponding with s. 15 of Act X. of 1877), which provides that "every suit shall be instituted in the Court of the lowest grade competent to try it," does not affect the jurisdiction of a Subordinate Judge to try a suit wherein several causes of action are joined, the cumulative value of which is over Rs. 1,000; notwithstanding that, if separate suits had been brought on these several causes, such suits must have been instituted in the Court of the Munsif.—Masaoollah Khan v. Ram Lall Agurwallah, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 6. [May 7, 1880.]

A TESTATOR bequeathed the income of his "altamgha," "zamindari," and "thikadari" lands, situate in the districts of Delhi, Hissar, and Bulandshahr, to his five sons in equal shares, and to their issue; directing that one of the sharers should manage the estate, accounting yearly to the others, and receiving ten per cent. per annum. The lands described as "altamgha" were in the Bulandshahr district, within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Civil Court of Meerut; and on them an establishment was maintained at the expense of the estate. At Hansi, in Hissar, there was also a residence belonging to the estate, and another at Delhi. The will directed that the brothers might, if they liked, live together at Bilaspur, and build houses "with mutual consent in the altamgha and zamindari," also that certain memorials of the testator were to be retained by the manager at Bilaspur. At this place the manager used to stay occasionally, though travelling, for the most part, about the estate during the cold weather. No particular place for rendering the yearly accounts was fixed, either by contract or in practice; but they were rendered by the manager to the sharers at different times and in different places, including Delhi, Bilaspur, and Hansi; at which last place, it being the sadr station of Hissar, the older records of the estate were kept. When this suit was brought, the manager was actually residing at the hill-station of Mussoorie, in the Saharanpur district, for the hot weather; and in his answer he stated that the unsettled accounts were open to inspection by the sharers at Bilaspur. Held that a person might "dwell" within the meaning of Act VIII. of 1859, s. 5, at more places than one; and that, on the evidence, this manager so dwelt at Bilaspur as to make him subject to the jurisdiction of the Meerut Court in this suit. It was, accordingly, not necessary to consider whether he was or was not also subject to that Court's jurisdiction by reason of the cause of action having arisen within its local limits; nor was it necessary to consider whether he had or had not such a dwelling place at Hansi as would have rendered him subject to the jurisdiction of the Hissar (Panjáb) Courts. Other questions disposed of in the Court of first instance having remained undecided by the High Court, which dealt with the question of jurisdiction alone, were considered with reference to whether there had or had not been shown any good reason for reversing or varying the order of the original Court. Among these, the question whether the manager's commission was to be calculated on the gross rental of the estate, or on the income divisible among the sharers, was held to be settled by the indication of the latter mode of calculation in the will.—Sophia Orde v. Alexander Skinner, I. L. R., 3 All. 91. [June 11, 1880.]

THE valuation of suits, for the purpose of jurisdiction, is perfectly distinct from their valuation for the fiscal purpose of court-fees. Therefore Court-fees Acts, which are fiscal enactments, are not to be resorted to for construing enactments which fix the valuation of suits for the purpose of determining jurisdiction.—Dayachand Nemchand v. Hemchand Dharamchand, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 515. [June 23, 1880.]

Per Petheram, C.J., and Brodhurst, Mahmood, and Duthoit, JJ.—The object of ss. 19 and 20 of the Bengal Civil Courts Act, 1871, was to create in the District Judge, Subordinate Judge, and Munsif concurrent jurisdiction up to Rs. 1,000. Per Petheram, C.J.—S. 15 of the Civil Procedure Code is a proviso to those sections. The word "shall" in that section is imperative on the suitor. The word is used for the purposes of protecting the Courts. The suitor shall be obliged to bring his suit in the Court of the lowest grade competent to try it. The object of the Legislature is that the Court of the higher grade shall not be overcrowded with suits. Whenever an Act confers a benefit, the donee may exercise the same or not at his pleasure. The proviso is for the benefit of the Court of the higher grade, and it is not bound to take advantage of it. If it does not wish to try the suit, it may refuse to entertain it. If it wishes to retain the suit in its Court, it may do so; it is not bound to refuse to entertain it. Per Duthoit, J.—The words in s. 57 of the Civil Procedure Code "shall be" are an instruction which the Court is bound to follow; and they are, therefore, a restraint upon jurisdiction. The effect, therefore, of the concurrent jurisdiction of Subordinate Judges and Munsifs is not to allow to a Subordinate Judge discretion as to accepting or not accepting for trial by himself suits cognizable by the inferior tribunal. Brodhurst and Mahmood, JJ.—S. 15 of the Civil Procedure Code is a rule of procedure, not of jurisdiction; and whilst it lays down that a suit shall be instituted in the Court of the lowest grade, it does not oust the jurisdiction of the Courts of higher grades. Russick Chunder Mohunt v. Ram Lal Shaha (22 W. R. 801), Sircar v. Begum Bibi (25 W. R. 219), followed. Per Olfield, J.—S. 15 of the Civil Procedure Code is a provision entirely of procedure as distinct from jurisdiction, and its effect on s. 19 of the Bengal Civil Courts Act is that the jurisdiction of the District Judge and Subordinate Judge extends to all original suits cognizable by the Civil Court, subject in its exercise to a certain procedure, namely, that the suits be instituted in the Court of the lowest grade competent to try them. Held, therefore, by Petheram, C.J., and Oldfield, Brodhurst, and Mahmood, J.J., where a Subordinate Judge had tried a suit which a Munsif, a Court of a lower grade, might have tried, that the Subordinate Judge had not acted without jurisdiction. The plaint in such suit had been in the first instance presented to the Munsif who had returned it, to be presented to the Subordinate Judge. Per Duthoit, J.—The decree of the Subordinate Judge would not be liable to be reversed in appeal for want of jurisdiction, for the jurisdiction was there, though it ought not to have been exercised. This view of the matter was consistent with the received canon of construction, that unless the Legislature uses negative words, or words showing an intention to treat the observance of a rule of procedure as essential, the rule will ordinarily be treated as a direction only. Under the circumstances, therefore, the District Judge had, in appeal, correctly refused to entertain the plea of defect in jurisdiction. Per Mahmood, J.—The institution of a suit in a Court of higher grade than the Court which is competent to try it is not a question either as to the jurisdiction or affecting the merits of the case. It is a question of the kind provided for by s. 578 of the Civil Procedure Code, and the irregularity is not one which affects “the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court” within the meaning of the section. The plea of want of jurisdiction can be entertained for the first time at any stage of a suit, provided there is on the record sufficient material to substantiate it.—Nidhi Lal v. Mazhar Husain, I. L. R., 7 All. 230. [Dec. 13, 1884.]

ACT IX. of 1861 does not debar a District Munsif's Court from entertaining a suit by a Hindu father to recover possession of his minor son alleged to be illegally detained by the defendant.—Krishna v. Reade, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 31. [Mar. 19, 1885.]

On the hearing of a suit in the Court of first instance, the Court came to the conclusion that the value of the property in dispute placed the claim beyond the jurisdiction of the Court; the suit was therefore dismissed with costs. On appeal this decision was reversed with costs, on the ground that the plaint ought to have been returned to the plaintiff for presentation in the proper Court. The defendant appealed to the High Court. Held that the defendant ought to have been allowed costs in both Courts, and that he was entitled to an appeal on that ground.—Moshingan v. Mozari Sajad, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 271. [July 6, 1885.]

Suits to be instituted where subject-matter situate.

16. Subject to the pecuniary or other limitations prescribed by any law, suits

- (a) for the recovery of immoveable property,
 - (b) for the partition of immoveable property,
 - (c) for the foreclosure or redemption of a mortgage of immoveable property,
 - (d) for the determination of any other right to, or interest in, immoveable property,
 - (e) for compensation for wrong to immoveable property,
 - (f) for the recovery of moveable property actually under distraint or attachment,
- shall be instituted in the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property is situate :

Provided that suits to obtain relief respecting, or compensation for wrong to, immoveable property, held by or on behalf of the defendant, may, when the relief sought can be entirely obtained through his personal obedience, be instituted either in the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property is situate, or in the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction he actually and voluntarily resides, or carries on business, or personally works for gain.

Explanation.—In this section “property” means property situate in British India.

In a suit for foreclosure or sale of immoveable property, it appeared that the mortgagee had conveyed the mortgaged premises to trustees. The summons to one of the trustees was personally served upon his duly constituted agent, who was at the time of service in charge of the mortgaged premises. Held that the service was sufficient, the suit being one to obtain "relief respecting immoveable property" within the meaning of s. 16 of Act XIV. of 1882.—Michael v. Ameena Bibi, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 733. [May 7, 1888.]

In 1879 R gave J a bond containing a simple mortgage of immoveable property. Subsequently R and P jointly gave D a bond containing a simple mortgage of the same property. In 1881 D obtained a decree for the sale of the property under his mortgage, and it was put up for sale and purchased by the plaintiffs. In 1882 J obtained a decree in the Court of the Munsif of G (within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property was not situated) for enforcement of his mortgage-bond by sale of the property. The plaintiffs objected to the sale, and, their objection having been disallowed, brought a suit for cancellation of J's decree, so far as it ordered the sale. Held that J's decree could only be regarded as a simple money-decree, because, as shown by s. 16 of the Civil Procedure Code, the Munsif had no power under the law to direct enforcement of hypothecation against immoveable property situate beyond the local limits of his jurisdiction, and neither the proviso to s. 16 nor s. 20 of the Code met the circumstances. Held, therefore, that the plaintiffs were entitled in this suit to have it declared that J's decree was a simple money-decree only, on the basis of which no process in execution could issue in respect of the property in dispute to oust the plaintiff's possession from any part of it.—Gudri Lal v. Jagannath Ram, I. L. R., 8 All. 117. [Feb. 1, 1886.]

Suits to be instituted where defendants reside or cause of action arose.

17. Subject to the limitations aforesaid, all other suits shall be instituted in a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction—

Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

(a) the cause of action arises, or

(b) all the defendants, at the time of the commencement of the suit, actually and voluntarily reside, or carry on business, or personally work for gain; or

(c) any of the defendants, at the time of the commencement of the suit, actually and voluntarily resides, or carries on business, or personally works for gain: provided that either the leave of the Court is given, or the defendants who do not reside, or carry on business, or personally work for gain, as aforesaid, acquiesce in such institution.

Explanation I.—Where a person has a permanent dwelling at one place, and also a lodging at another place for temporary purpose only, he shall be deemed to reside at both places in respect of any cause of action arising at the place where he has such temporary lodging.

Explanation II.—A Corporation or Company shall be deemed to carry on business at its sole or principal office in British India, or, in respect of any cause of action arising at any place where it has also a subordinate office, at such place.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is a tradesman in Calcutta. B carries on business in Delhi. B, by his agent in Calcutta, buys goods of A, and requests A to deliver them to the East Indian Railway Company. A delivers the goods accordingly in Calcutta. A may sue B for the price of the goods either in Calcutta, where the cause of action has arisen, or in Delhi, where B carries on business.

(b.) A resides at Simla, B at Calcutta, and C at Delhi. A, B, and C being together at Benares, B and C make a joint promissory note payable on demand, and deliver it to A. A may sue B and C at Benares, where the cause of action arose. He may also sue them at Calcutta, where B resides, or at Delhi, where C resides; but in each of these cases, if the non-resident defendant objects, the suit cannot be maintained without the leave of the Court.

WHERE the cause of action occurs in the jurisdiction of a Court other than that in which the suit is brought, the plaintiff must, under the provision of s. 17, Act X. of 1877, show that the defendant, at the time of the commencement of the suit, actually and voluntarily resided or carried on business, or personally worked for gain, within the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit was brought.—Mudho Soodun Chowdhry v. Cochrane, 6 C. L. R. 417. [Feb. 3, 1880.]

C AND L entered into an agreement at a place in the Sâran district, in which the latter resided and carried on business, whereby C promised to sell and deliver to L at a place in the Sâran district certain goods, and L promised to pay for such goods on delivery "by approved draft on Calcutta or Cawnpore (where C carried on business), payable thirty days after the receipt of the goods, or by Government currency notes." C delivered the goods according to his promise, but L did not pay for the same, and C, therefore, sued L for the price of the goods, suing him at Cawnpore. Held that the "cause of action," within the meaning of s. 17 of the Civil Procedure Code, was L's breach of his promise to pay for the goods; that the parties intended that payment should be made at Cawnpore, and the cause of action, therefore, arose there; and that, therefore, the suit had been properly instituted there.—Llewellyn v. Chunni Lal, I. L. R., 4 All. 423. [May 16, 1882.]

WHERE a promissory note is executed in one district, and it is agreed that the amount of the note shall be paid in another, the Courts of the latter district have jurisdiction to entertain a suit on the note. The illustrations to s. 17 of the Code of Civil Procedure afford no safe guide as to what is meant in the Code by the term 'cause of action.' Gopi Krishna Goswami v. Nil Komul Banerjee (13 B. L. R. 451; 22 W. R. 79), Mahomed Abdul Kadar v. E. I. Ry. Co. (I. L. R., 1 Mad. 377), and Vaughan v. Weldon (L. R., 10 C. P. 48), approved.—Laljee Lal v. Hardey Narain, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 105. [June 1, 1882.]

THE expression "cause of action," as used in s. 17 of the Civil Procedure Code, does not mean whole cause of action, but includes material part of the cause of action. In a suit for compensation for breach of a contract, the making of the contract is a material part of the cause of action. Held, therefore, where a contract was made at C, and broken at A, that the Court at C had jurisdiction to try the suit for compensation for the breach of such contract. Llewellyn v. Chunni Lal (I. L. R., 4 All. 423) and Gopikrishna Goswami v. Nilkomul Banerjee (13 B. L. R. 451) followed. DeSouza v. Coles (3 Mad. II. C. R. 394) and Jumoonah Pershad v. Zaibunissa (5 C. L. R. 268) dissented from.—Bishunath v. Ilahi Bakhsh, I. L. R., 5 All. 277. [Jan. 23, 1883.]

ON the 29th May 1873 one T drew from the hands of a shroff a sum of money which had been deposited by him in the name and to the credit of a third person. On the death of such third person his heirs sued the shroff to recover the sum deposited, and on the 30th January 1878 obtained a decree, in satisfaction of which the shroff paid the decretal money into Court on the 15th January 1883. On the 5th February 1884 the shroff sued T, the heirs of the third party, and another person (who owned to having received some of the money from T), to recover the sum he had been compelled to pay under the decree of 1878. Held that the plaintiff's cause of action arose at the time when he actually paid down the money of the 15th January 1883, and that the suit therefore was not barred by limitation.—Torab Ali Khan v. Nilruttun Lal, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 155. [May 15, 1886.]

S. 65 of 21 & 22 Vic., c. 100, does not constitute the Secretary of State a body corporate, but simply lays down that that officer and department are to be sued as a body corporate. A suit, therefore, brought against the Secretary of State is not one against any person or any real body corporate, but is one brought against a nominal defendant, such nominal defendant being put upon the record merely to enable the plaintiff to obtain the remedy secured to him by s. 65. The words "cause of action" in s. 12 of the Letters Patent, 1865, mean all those things necessary to give a right of action; and in a suit for breach of contract, where leave has not been obtained to sue under that section, it must be established that the contract as well as the breach have taken place within the local limits of the Court. The work carried on by the Government of India in governing the country, in salt, opium, &c., although carried on by Government officers in charge of the several departments of Government, is not, properly speaking, business carried on by Government, but work carried on for the benefit of the Indian Exchequer. The words of s. 12, "carry on business or personally work for gain," are, however, inapplicable to the Secretary of State for India in Council.—Doya Narain Tewary v. Secretary of State for India in Council, I. L. R., 14 Cal. 256. [Sep. 8, 1886.]

No action will lie against a witness for making a false statement in the course of a judicial proceeding.—Chidambara v. Thirumani, I. L. R., 10 Mad. 87. [Nov. 12, 1886.]

18. In suits for compensation for wrong done to person or moveable property, if the wrong was done within the local limits of the jurisdiction of one Court, and the defendant resides, or carries on business, or personally works for gain, within the local limits of the jurisdiction of another Court, the plaintiff may, at his option, sue in either of the said Courts.

19. If the suit be to obtain relief respecting, or compensation for wrong to, immoveable property situate within the limits of a single district, but within the jurisdiction of different Courts, the suit may be instituted in the Court within whose jurisdiction any portion of the property is situate; provided that, in respect of the value of the subject-matter of the suit, the entire claim be cognizable by such Court.

If the immoveable property be situate within the limits of different districts, the suit may be instituted in any Court, otherwise competent to try it, within whose jurisdiction any portion of the property is situate.

Suits for immoveable property situate in different districts.

UNDER Act X. of 1877, s. 19, it is not necessary to obtain the leave of the Court under cl. 12 of the Charter to sue in respect of immoveable property situate partly within and partly without the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court. Nasir Singh v. Ram Lall Mookerjee, I. L. R., 3 Cal. 370. [Feb. 18, 1878.]

A, THE mortgagee, under a bond, of properties situated in districts B and C, sued in the B Court on his bond, and obtained a decree for the mortgage-money and interest, with a declaration that the decree should be satisfied by sale of all the mortgage property. A had not obtained the permission of the High Court under s. 12, Act VIII. of 1859, which was necessary to enable him to proceed against the property in the C district. Having attached and sold all properties comprised in his decree situate within the jurisdiction of the B Court, A, under a certificate issued by such Court, obtained an order from the C Court attaching lands included in his decree situate in that district. D intervened, on the ground that he had purchased the same property in execution of another decree of the C Court against the same judgment-debtor, and the property was released from attachment. A then sued D and the mortgagor to enforce his mortgage-lien against the property in the C district. Held that the B Court had jurisdiction to give A a decree for the amount of the mortgage-money and interest, though it had not power to enforce the decree against the property in the C district; that the only effect of the decree was to change the nature of the original debt, which was a bond-debt, into a judgment-debt for the mortgage-money and interest; and that though A could not enforce his lien against the property in the C district under the decree of the B Court, yet as that property had been sold to a third person, D, he was at liberty to sue D to establish his lien for the mortgage-debt and interest.—Bolakee Lall v. Thakoor Pertam Singh, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 928. [May 14, 1880.]

A SUIT was instituted on a mortgage of a single revenue-paying estate in the Court of the Subordinate Judge of the district of Backergunge, under the provisions of s. 19, Act X. of 1877, and a decree was obtained for the sale of the mortgaged property. On an application for execution of the decree to the Court which passed it, held that the Court was competent to order a sale of the whole of the mortgaged property, though only a portion of it was situated in the district of Backergunge. Kally Prasunno Bose v. Dinonath Mullik (11 B. L. R. 56; 19 W. R. 434) followed and cited.—Shurroop Chunder Goohe v. Amcerunnissa Khatoon, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 708. [Mar. 22, 1882.]

20. If a suit which may be instituted in more than one Court is instituted in a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the defendant or all the defendants does not or do not actually and voluntarily reside, or carry on business, or personally work for gain, the defendant or any defendant may, after giving notice in writing to the other parties of his intention to apply to the Court to stay proceedings, apply to the Court accordingly; and if the Court, after hearing such of the parties as desire to be heard, is satisfied that justice is more likely to be done by the suit being instituted in some other Court, it may stay proceedings either finally or till further order, and make such order as it thinks fit as to the costs already incurred by the parties or any of them.

In such case, if the plaintiff so requires, the Court shall return the plaint with an endorsement thereon of the order staying proceedings.

Every such application shall be made at the earliest possible opportunity, Application when to be made. and in all cases before the issues are settled; and any defendant not so applying shall be deemed to have acquiesced in the institution of the suit.

A, who was employed by B and Co. as their agent at Calicut, instituted a suit for the balance of an account against his principals in the Court of the Subordinate Judge there in July 1878. In December of the same year B and Co. instituted the present suit against A for an account and for damages caused by his alleged negligence. Held that as in both suits practically the same issues were triable, A was entitled as having been first to institute his suit to proceed in the Court in which he had chosen to bring his suit, and to have the other suit stayed, but without prejudice to the right of the plaintiffs in the latter suit to institute a cross-claim in the Calicut Court.—Meckjee Khetsee v. Kesowjee Devachund, 4 C. L. R. 282. [April 7, 1879.]

In 1879 R gave J a bond containing a simple mortgage of immoveable property. Subsequently R and P jointly gave D a bond containing a simple mortgage of the same property. In 1881 D obtained a decree for the sale of the property under his mortgage, and it was put up for sale and purchased by the plaintiffs. In 1882 J obtained a decree in the Court of the Munsif of G (within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property was not situated) for enforcement of his mortgage-bond by sale of the property. The plaintiffs objected to the sale, and, their objection having been disallowed, brought a suit for cancellation of J's decree, so far as it ordered the sale. Held that J's decree could only be regarded as a simple money-decree, because, as shown by s. 16 of the Civil Procedure Code, the Munsif had no power under the law to direct enforcement of hypothecation against immoveable property situate beyond the local limits of his jurisdiction, and neither the proviso to s. 16 nor s. 20 of the Code met the circumstances. Held, therefore, that the plaintiffs were entitled in this suit to have it declared that J's decree was a simple money-decree only, on the basis of which no process in execution could issue in respect of the property in dispute to oust the plaintiff's possession from any part of it.—Gudri Lal v. Jagannath Ram, 1. L. R., 8 All. 117. [Feb. 1, 1886.]

21. Where the Court, under section 20, stays proceedings, and the plaintiff re-institutes his suit in another Court, the Court shall not be chargeable with any court-fee; provided that the proper fee has been levied on the institution of the suit in the former Court, and that the plaint has been returned by such Court.

22. Where a suit may be instituted in more Courts than one, and such Courts are subordinate to the same Appellate Court, any defendant, after giving notice in writing to the other parties of his intention to apply to such Court to transfer the suit to another Court, may apply accordingly; and the Appellate Court, after hearing the Procedure where they are but are subordinate to the same High Court, any not so subordinate. defendant, after giving notice in writing to the other parties of his intention to apply to the High Court to transfer the suit to another Court having jurisdiction, may apply accordingly. If the suit is brought in any Court subordinate to a District Court, the application, together with the objections (if any) filed by the other parties, shall be submitted through the District Court to which such Court is subordinate. The High Court may, after considering the objections (if any) of the other parties, determine in which of the Courts having jurisdiction the suit shall proceed.

THE fact that portion of the property, the whole of which is sued for in the Court of the Munsif of A, is of less value than the remaining portion, which is within the jurisdiction of the Munsif of B, is no sufficient ground for an application under the Code of Civil Procedure, s. 23, for a transfer to the latter Court. A party applying under s. 23, Act X. of 1877, must first of all give notice to the other side. The application should then be received by the Munsif, and transmitted to the High Court through the District Court.—Mussamut Purrunjote v. Deon Panday, 2 C. L. R. 352. [May 2, 1878.]

S. 23 of Act XIV. of 1882 is only intended to provide for those cases where, on the ground of expense or convenience or some other good reason, the Court thinks that the place of trial ought to be changed. Parties desirous of obtaining the transfer of a case from one forum to another ought clearly to explain to the Court by petition and affidavit what is the nature of the claim and defence; they should further state what are the issues and the evidence required, and then satisfy the Court that, either on the ground of expense or convenience or otherwise, the place of trial ought to be changed.—Khatija Bibi v. Taruk Chunder Dutt, 1. L. R., 9 Cal. 980. [July 23, 1885.]

24. Where such Courts are subordinate to different High Courts, any Procedure where they are subordinate to different High Courts. defendant, may, after giving notice in writing to the other parties of his intention to apply to the High Court within whose jurisdiction the Court in which the suit is brought is situate, apply accordingly.

If the suit is brought in any Court subordinate to a District Court, the application, together with the objection (if any) filed by the other parties, shall be submitted through the District Court to which such Court is subordinate; and such High Court shall, after considering the objections (if any) of the other parties, determine in which of the several Courts having jurisdiction the suit shall proceed.

WHERE a person, being at the time a pauper, petitions, under the provisions of Act VIII. of 1859, for leave to sue as a pauper, but subsequently, pending an inquiry into his pauperism, obtains funds which enable him to pay the court-fees, and his petition is allowed upon such payment to be numbered and registered as a plaint, his suit shall be deemed to have been instituted from the date when he filed his pauper-petition, and limitation runs against him only up to that time. S. 13, Act VIII. of 1859, enacts that when a suit is brought for immoveable property situated within districts subject to different Sadr Courts, the Judge in whose Court the suit is brought shall apply to the Sadr Court to which he is subject for authority to proceed, and the Sadr Court to which the application is made, with the concurrence of the other Sadr Court within whose jurisdiction the property is partly situated, may give authority to proceed. But no power is expressly given in the section cited, or elsewhere in the Act, to direct the transfer of a suit brought in a Court subordinate to one Sadr Court to a Court subordinate to another Sadr Court. Query.—Whether Sadr Courts acting in concurrence have power to make such a transfer?—Skinner Stuart v. Orde William, 1. L. R., 2 All. 241. [Mar. 21, 1879.]

S. 24 of the Civil Procedure Code does not empower a High Court to transfer a suit instituted within its own jurisdiction to the jurisdiction of another High Court, but only to declare in which Court a suit shall proceed, and, if necessary, to stay all further proceedings within its own jurisdiction. The defendants in a suit instituted at Mainpuri, who resided and carried on business at Surat, applied under s. 24 of the Civil Procedure Code that the suit might be tried at Surat, on the ground that it would be tried with greater convenience to them at that place. Held that, there being no balance in favour of either justice or convenience on the side of the Surat Court, the suit should proceed at Mainpuri.—Tula Ram v. Hariwan Das, I. L. R., 5 All. 60. [July 21, 1882.]

25. The High Court or District Court may, on the application of any of the parties, after giving notice to the parties, and hearing such of them as desire to be heard, or of its own motion without giving such notice, withdraw any suit, whether pending in a Court of First Instance or in a Court of Appeal subordinate to such High Court or District Court, as the case may be, and try the suit itself, or transfer it for trial to any other such subordinate Court competent to try the same in respect of its nature, and the amount or value of its subject-matter.

For the purposes of this section, the Courts of Additional and Assistant Judges shall be deemed to be subordinate to the District Court.

The Court trying any suit withdrawn under this section from a Court of Small Causes shall, for the purposes of such suit, be deemed to be a Court of Small Causes.

THE High Court cannot make an order of transfer of a case under s. 25 of the Code of Civil Procedure, unless the Court from which the transfer is sought to be made has jurisdiction to try it.—Peary Lall Mozoomdar v. Komal Kishore Dassin, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 30 [June 10, 1880]; Govind Chunder Goswami v. Rugunmoney, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 60 [Mar. 18, 1880].

T, B, R, and W, the owners of a certain estate in equal shares, in 1863, entered into a partnership "for the cultivation of tea and other products" upon such estate. In 1864, H, E, and I, joined the firm. In 1870 H died; and in 1871 T purchased his share and those of E and I, and in 1873 of R. In 1875, T gave the Delhi and London Bank a mortgage on such estate as security for the repayment of money which he had borrowed from the Bank ostensibly for the purposes of the estate. The Bank obtained a decree against him personally for the money, in execution of which his rights and interests in the estate were put up for sale on the 20th June 1877, and were purchased by the Bank, which obtained possession of the estate in August 1877. In August 1879, B and W's executor sued T and the Bank, claiming a declaration that they were or had been partners with T in the estate; that if the partnership should be held to be subsisting, it might be dissolved, or that, if it had ceased to exist, the date of its termination might be fixed; and that in either event a liquidator might be appointed to take an account, and, after realizing assets, and discharging liabilities, might be ordered to pay them each one-third of such balance as remained. The suit was instituted in the Court of a District Judge. He transferred it to the Court of a Subordinate Judge. The High Court subsequently transferred it to its own file. Held that the suit was not one falling within the purview of s. 265 of the Contract Act; but, assuming that it was such a suit, and the Subordinate Judge had no jurisdiction, the High Court was nevertheless competent to transfer it. That the Bank, as T's representative by purchase, had been properly joined as a defendant in the suit. That the period of limitation applicable to the suit was that provided in No. 120, and not No. 106, Act XV. of 1877; but that in either case the suit was within time, as the partnership was dissolved, and consequently time began to run, not from the death of

H, or the purchases by T of his share, or those of E and I in 1871, or of E in 1873, but in August 1877, when the defendant Bank took possession of the partnership-property. That, as the effect of the purchases by T in 1871 and 1873 was to relieve the estates of H, E and I, and E of all part and future liabilities of the partnership, in respect of which B and W still continued as liable as T, and to which they would have to contribute to discharge, such purchases should be regarded and treated as made, on behalf of the partnership, and therefore, at the time of the execution of the mortgage of the estate B, W and T were interested in the estate to the extent of one-third each. That, although T was not authorized, either actually or impliedly, by B and W to mortgage the estate, and the mortgage therefore was not binding on them, yet as they allowed him to conduct the business of the estate, in such a manner as to make it appear that the control and management of it rested with him, and he was, for all ordinary business-purposes, their representative, B and W were bound, in any accounting that might take place, to repay the defendant Bank for such advances as were made to T for the necessary purposes of the estate, in the same proportion as they must discharge debts due to other creditors. That T was entitled to be reimbursed such moneys of his own as he had expended within the legitimate scope and for the proper purposes of the partnership as originally contemplated by the parties. Directions to the liquidator appointed how to proceed.—Harrison v. Delhi and London Bank, I. L. R., 4 All. 437. [April 20, 1882.]

A DISTRICT Court transferred for trial a suit instituted in a Court subordinate to it to another Court subordinate to it. The Court in which the suit was instituted was not the one in which the suit should have been instituted, and consequently the Court to which it was transferred made an order dismissing it, and directing the return of the plaint for presentation to the proper Court. Held that such order must be taken to have been passed under s. 57 of the Civil Procedure Code, and was therefore appealable under s. 588 (6); and that the defect of jurisdiction arising out of the institution of the suit in the wrong Court was not cured by the transfer of the suit.—Pachaoni Awasthi v. Ilahi Bakhsh, I. L. R., 4 All. 478. [May 30, 1882.]

A SUIT of the nature cognizable in a Court of Small Causes was instituted in the Court of a Subordinate Judge—the Judge of which, at the time of the institution of the suit, was personally invested with Small Cause Court jurisdiction. That Judge retired from office without trying the suit, and the District Judge directed his successor, who was not invested with Small Cause Court jurisdiction, to try it, and he did so. Held that it must be taken that the suit was transferred under s. 25 of the Civil Procedure Code to the Court of the Subordinate Judge; and that, therefore, regard being had to the provisions of that section, that the Court trying any suit withdrawn thereunder from a Court of Small Causes shall, for the purposes of such suit, be deemed a Court of Small Causes, no appeal would lie in the case to the District Judge.—Kauleshar Rai v. Dost Muhammad Khan, I. L. R., 5 All. 274. [Jan. 15, 1883.]

A SUIT for the infringement of certain inventions, instead of being instituted in the Court having, by virtue of s. 22 of Act XV. of 1859, jurisdiction to entertain it, was instituted in a Court subordinate to such Court not having such jurisdiction. The Court having jurisdiction to entertain such suit, at the joint request of the parties, transferred it for trial to itself under s. 25 of the Civil Procedure Code, and tried it. The plaintiff did not, as required by s. 34 of Act XV. of 1859, deliver with his plaint particulars of the breaches complained of in the suit. In this plaint, after describing his inventions, he alleged generally that the defendant had made and used them at a certain place without his license. Held that, inasmuch as the parties had assented to the transfer of the suit, and its transfer brought it into the right Court, the fact that the suit had been originally instituted in the wrong Court did not render the transfer illegal, and the Court having jurisdiction had properly tried the suit. Held also that, as required by s. 24 of Act XV. of 1859, the plaintiff should have delivered with his plaint particulars of the breaches complained of; that the general allegation as to infringement contained in the plaint did not amount to such particulars; and that, under these circumstances, the plaintiff came into Court with a case which could not be tried.—Petman v. Bull, I. L. R., 5 All. 871. [Feb. 23, 1883.]

AN order under s. 25 of the Civil Procedure Code, transferring a suit in which an appeal would lie from the decree made therein, is not subject to revision by the High Court under s. 622.—Farid Ahmad v. Dulari Bibi, I. L. R., 6 All. 233. [Feb. 19, 1884.]

AN officer who exercises executive and judicial functions, having himself dealt with a certain matter, and formed and expressed an opinion upon its merits in his executive capacity, and having further advised and directed litigation in support of this view, is, in consequence, disqualified from dealing as a Judge with this same question when it comes into Court, and has to be dealt with judicially.—Loburi Domini v. Assam Railway and Trading Co., I. L. R., 10 Cal. 915. [June 11, 1884.]

Per Petheram, C.J., and Brodhurst, Mahmood, and Duthoit, JJ.—The object of ss. 19 and 20 of the Bengal Civil Courts Act, 1871, was to create in the District Judge, Subordinate Judge, and Munsif concurrent jurisdiction up to Rs. 1,000. Per Petheram, C.J.—S. 15 of the Civil Procedure Code is a proviso to those sections. The word “shall” in that section is imperative on the suitor. The word is used for the purpose of protecting the Courts. The suitor shall be obliged to bring his suit in the Court of the lowest grade competent to try it. The object of the Legislature is that the Court of the higher grade shall not be overcrowded with suits. Whenever an Act confers a benefit, the donee may exercise the same or not at his pleasure. The proviso is for the benefit of the Court of the higher grade, and it is not bound to take advantage of it. If it does not wish to try the suit, it may refuse to entertain it. If it wishes to retain the suit in its Court, it may do so; it is not bound to refuse to entertain it. Per Duthoit, J.—The words in s. 57 of the Civil Procedure Code, “shall be,” are an instruction which the Court is bound to follow; and they are therefore a restraint upon jurisdiction. The effect, therefore, of the concurrent jurisdiction of Subordinate Judges and Munsifs is not to allow to a Subordinate Judge discretion as to accepting or not accepting for trial by himself suits cognizable by the inferior tribunal. Brodhurst and Mahmood, JJ.—S. 15 of the Civil Procedure Code is a rule of procedure, not of jurisdiction; and whilst it lays down that a suit shall be instituted in the Court of the lowest grade, it does not oust the jurisdiction of the Courts of higher grades. Russick Chunder Mohant v. Ram Lal Saha (22 W. R. 301), Sircar v. Begum Bibi (25 W. R. 219), followed. Per Oldfield, J.—S. 15 of the Civil Procedure Code is a provision entirely of procedure as distinct from jurisdiction, and its effect on s. 19 of the Bengal Civil Courts Act is that the jurisdiction of the District Judge and Subordinate Judge extends to all original suits cognizable by the Civil Court, subject in its exercise to a certain procedure, namely, that the suits be instituted in the Court of the lowest grade competent to try them. Held, therefore, by Petheram, C.J., and Oldfield, Brodhurst, and Mahmood, JJ., where a Subordinate Judge had tried a suit which a Munsif, a Court of a lower grade, might have tried, that the Subordinate Judge had not acted without jurisdiction. The plaintiff in such suit had been in the first instance presented to the Munsif, who had returned it to be presented to the Subordinate Judge. Per Duthoit, J.—The decree of the Subordinate Judge would not be liable to be reversed in appeal for want of jurisdiction, for the jurisdiction was there, though it ought not to have been exercised. This view of the matter was consistent with the received canon of construction, that unless the Legislature uses negative words, or words showing an intention to treat the observance of a rule of procedure as essential, the rule will ordinarily be treated as a direction only. Under the circumstances, therefore, the District Judge had, in appeal, correctly refused to entertain the plea of defect in jurisdiction. Per Mahmood, J.—The institution of a suit in a Court of higher grade than the Court which is competent to try it is not a question either as to the jurisdiction or affecting the merits of the case. It is a question of the kind provided for by s. 578 of the Civil Procedure Code, and the irregularity is not one which affects “the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court” within the meaning of the section. The plea of want of jurisdiction can be entertained for the first time at any stage of a suit, provided there is on the record sufficient material to substantiate it. —Nidhi Lal v. Mazhar Husain, I. L. R., 7 All. 230. [Dec. 13, 1884.]

An order for the transfer of a suit from one Court to another, under s. 25 of the Code of Civil Procedure, cannot be made unless the suit has been brought in a Court having jurisdiction. The judgment in Peary Lal Mozoomdar v. Komal Kishore Dassia (I. L. R., 6 Cal. 30) entirely approved. When a suit has been tried by a Court having no jurisdiction over the matter, the parties cannot, by their mutual consent, convert the proceedings into a judicial process, although, when the merits have been submitted to a Court, it may result that, having themselves constituted it their arbiter, the parties may be bound by its decision. On the other hand, in a suit tried by a competent Court, the parties having, without objection, joined issue, and gone to trial upon the merits, cannot subsequently dispute the jurisdiction on the ground of irregularities in the initial procedure, which, if objected to at the time, would have led to the dismissal of the suit. A suit, having been instituted in a Court not of competent jurisdiction, was transferred, with the consent of parties, to a Court which was competent; but the defence of jurisdiction was set up before the issues were fixed, and was afterwards insisted on throughout. Held that in the single fact that the defendant had personally concurred in the transfer, there had been no waiver of the right to maintain in this defence, and that the suit must be dismissed on the ground that it was not competently brought. A Court of appeal, having set aside the whole of the proceedings including the plaint, directed that a new plaint be presented in the proper Court. Held that this order, equivalent to directing the plaintiff to constitute a new suit, was wrong; and that, with only the alternative of having leave to withdraw the suit and bring a new one, his suit should have been dismissed.—Ledgard v. Bull, 1. L. R., 9 All. 191. [July 21, 1886.]

THERE is nothing in the Indian Companies Act (VI. of 1882), or the High Courts Act (24 and 25 Vic., c. 104), or the Letters Patent, which prevents the High Court from calling for the record of the proceedings in the winding up of a company under the Companies Act, and transferring those proceedings to its own file. Such a power is given to the High Court by s. 647 read with s. 25 of the Civil Procedure Code. Where, in the proceedings in the winding up of a company under Act VI. of 1882, an order was passed admitting the proof of a particular creditor of the company before any liquidator had been appointed, held that this was an irregularity which by itself would justify the High Court in sending for the record. Where the District Judge conducting the proceedings in the winding up of a company under Act VI. of 1882 had, after receiving notice of the admission by the High Court of a petition for transfer of those proceedings to its own file, drafted and placed upon the record an order which it might have been difficult for him to reconsider if the matter again came before him, and where the case appeared to be one in which serious questions of law were likely to arise which it would probably be difficult to discuss adequately in the District Court, in the absence of the authorities upon the subject and of any rules framed by the High Court for dealing with windings-up under the Act, and the case was of a kind which would probably come before the High Court in a variety of appeals from orders brought by one side or the other, held that, under these circumstances, the case was a proper one for the exercise of the High Court's jurisdiction by calling up the winding-up proceedings to its own file. A person who has been appointed liquidator of a company ought not, after such appointment, to continue to act as vakil of a creditor whose right to prove against the company is in dispute in the liquidation.—In the Matter of the West Hopetown Tea Company, Limited, 1. L. R., 9 All. 180. [Dec. 1, 1886.]

CHAPTER III.

OF PARTIES, AND THEIR APPEARANCES, APPLICATIONS, AND ACTS.

26. All persons may be joined as plaintiffs in whom the right to Persons who may be joined as plaintiffs. any relief claimed is alleged to exist, whether jointly, severally, or in the alternative, in respect of the same cause of action. And judgment may be given for such one or more of the plaintiffs as may be found to be entitled to relief, for such relief as he or they may be entitled to, without any amendment. Extending to Provincial S. Courts.

But the defendant, though unsuccessful, shall be entitled to his costs occasioned by so joining any person who is not found entitled to relief, unless the Court, in disposing of the costs of the suit, otherwise directs.

By the memorandum and Articles of Association of the new Dhurumsey Poonjaboy Spinning and Weaving Company, the plaintiffs' firm of M F and Co. were appointed agents of the Company for twenty-five years, and it was provided that they should have the general control and management of the Company. Cl. 99 of the Articles provided that the said firm, as such agents, should have full power and authority (inter alia) to appoint and to employ, in or for the purposes of the transaction and management of the affairs and business of the Company, such solicitors as they should think proper. An agreement, dated 26th August 1874, was also entered into between the Company and the partners in the firm of M F and Co., their executors, administrators, and assigns, for the time being constituting the partnership firm of M F and Co., whereby it was agreed that the said firm should be agents to the Company for twenty-five years to buy and sell, &c., and particularly to exercise all the powers contained in cl. 98 of the Articles of Association. Messrs. C and B were duly appointed solicitors to the Company, and acted as such for a considerable time. Merwánji Framji, one of the members of the said firm of M F and Co., died in the middle of March 1876. The plaintiffs complained that G, one of the shareholders in the Company, became desirous of ousting the plaintiffs from the position of agents of the Company, and of becoming the managing director of the Company: that, in July 1881, he procured his own election, and that of certain nominees of his, as directors of the Company; and, on the 8th August 1881, procured the passing of a resolution at a Board-meeting to the effect that as Messrs. C and B, the Company's solicitors, were also the solicitors of the agents, it was desirable, for the interests of the Company, that a change should be made, and that Messrs. H, C, and L, be appointed solicitors of the Company. (The plaintiffs alleged that the only object of passing the said resolution was to facilitate the design of G, of ousting the plaintiffs from their agency, and getting the management of the Company for himself; that Messrs. H, C, and L, had been for a long time the solicitors of G, and had been advising him in his designs upon the Company and upon the plaintiffs, and they contended that the resolution was a breach of the contract between the Company and the plaintiffs, and a violation of the Articles of Association of the Company. The plaintiffs sued G and two other directors of the Company, and the Company itself, and prayed for an injunction against the defendants to restrain them from committing any breach of the agreement of 26th August 1874, and in particular from carrying into effect the resolution appointing Messrs. H, C, and L as solicitors for the Company, and to restrain them from doing any thing inconsistent with the memorandum and Articles of Association. The defendants contended that the contract of the 26th August 1874 had been determined by the death of Merwánji Framji, and that the powers conferred on the agents by cl. 98 of the Articles were, subject to the general powers of management, vested in the directors by the Articles, and that the case was not one in which an injunction could be granted. Held that, having regard to the memorandum and Articles of Association, the contract was that the firm of M F and Co. for the time being should be the agents of the Company for twenty-five years, and that the right to sue on the contract by its nature survived to the plaintiffs after the death of Merwánji Framji. Held also that there being no provision either in the Articles of Association or the agreement of 26th August 1874, that the power thereby conferred on the agents should be subject to the control or assent of the directors, there was no right in the directors to interfere with the agents in the exercise of their powers otherwise than as representing the Company in virtue of their general powers of management. It being admitted that the conduct of the defendants would be supported by the Company in general meeting owing to their having a preponderance of votes, held that, inasmuch as the Court would not, by a decree for specific performance or by injunction, compel the Company to retain the plaintiffs in the confidential position of agents, it would not restrain the defendants or the Company from appointing a solicitor, which was only a violation of what was ancillary or incidental to the principal part of the contract, viz., the agreement that the plaintiffs should be the agents of the Company for twenty-five years; and, further, semble that on the merits of the case the Court would not interfere on behalf of the plaintiffs. Counsel on behalf of the plaintiffs sought to obtain the injunction on the ground that the resolution of the 8th August 1881, appointing Messrs. H, C, and L solicitors of the Company, was contrary to the memorandum of Association, and, therefore, ultra vires; and, in order that this point might be pressed against the defendants, it was proposed that the plaint should be amended by alleging a cause of action in two of the plaintiffs as shareholders, as well as a cause of action in all the plaintiffs as parties contracting with the Company. Held that, under the provisions of ss. 26 and 31 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), the amendment could not be allowed. The plaintiffs, as shareholders and contractors, had not the same cause of action, by which words were meant not only the act complained of, but also the right violated by that act. The rights of the plaintiffs as contractors, alleged to be violated by the resolution, were rights given to them by their agreement; but the rights of the plaintiffs as shareholders were rights secured to them by the Articles of Association. —Nusserwánji Merwánji Pánday v. Gordon, I. L. R., 6 Bom. 266. [Sep. 30, 1881.]

No member of an undivided Hindu family, except the manager of the family as such, is entitled to bring a suit to establish a right belonging to the family without making the other members of the family parties to the suit.—Arunáchala v. Vythialinga, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 27. [Sep. 4, 1882.]

S. 26 of the Code of Civil Procedure does not authorize the joinder of plaintiffs with antagonistic claims arising out of distinct causes of action. Where one of two widows of a deceased Hindu and her adopted son sued as co-plaintiffs, claiming in the alternative either to recover the whole family-estate for the latter, if the adoption was valid, or, if the adoption was invalid, one-half of the estate for the former, held that the suit was bad for misjoinder. Held also that when such misjoinder had been allowed, and the suit decided, and an appeal brought, the Court of Appeal should dispose of the suit in the mode in which the lower Court ought to have disposed of it by returning the plaint for amendment. Farzand Ali v. Yusuf Ali (I. L. R., 2 All. 669) dissented from.—Lingamál v. Venkatammál, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 239. [Dec. 22, 1882.]

CERTAIN properties were sold to A by private contract. Subsequently the properties were attached in execution of a decree against A's vendors, and sold in execution to various purchasers. A instituted a suit against his vendors, the decree-holders, and the purchasers, to set aside the execution-sale. Held that the suit was not defective by reason

SUIT by six plaintiffs praying for a declaration that certain proceedings of a District Temple Committee removing them from office as trustees of a temple were illegal. Defendants pleaded that the suit would not lie because of misjoinder, and also because further relief might have been sought. Held that, under s. 26 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the plaintiffs could not sue jointly, and that the plaint should be returned for amendment, one of the plaintiffs to be allowed to use it as his own. Held also that, unless there had been an actual ouster from office, a declaratory suit would lie.—Rámanúja v. Devanáyaka, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 361. [Feb. 24, 1885.]

THIRTEEN persons, who had been committed to jail under opio warrant and for the same offence, jointly sued the Superintendent of the Presidency Jail for their wrongful detention in jail after the term of imprisonment to which they had been sentenced had expired, claiming Rs. 2,600 as damages. The defendant applied to have the plaint taken off the file on the ground that the plaintiffs had improperly joined in one suit several distinct and separate causes of action belonging to them as separate individuals. Held that the plaint must be taken off the file.—Ali Serang v. Beadon, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 524. [April 16, 1885.]

UNLESS there is a special provision of the law, co-owners are not permitted to sue through some or one of their members, but all co-owners must join in a suit to recover their property. The defendant cannot be deprived of his right to insist on the other co-owners being joined on the record, by the fact that they approve of the suit being brought by the plaintiff alone.—Bálkrishna Moreshvar Kunte v. Municipality of Mahad, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 32. [May 4, 1885.]

27. Where a suit has been instituted in the name of the wrong person as plaintiff, or where it is doubtful whether it has been instituted in the name of the right plaintiff, the Court may, if satisfied that the suit has been so commenced through a bond fide mistake, and that it is necessary for the determination of the real matter in dispute so to do, order any other person or persons to be substituted or added as plaintiff or plaintiffs upon such terms as the Court think just.

28. All persons may be joined as defendants against whom the right to any relief is alleged to exist, whether jointly, severally, or in the alternative, in respect of the same matter.

Ditto.

And judgment may be given against such one or more of the defendants as may be found to be liable, according to their respective liabilities, without any amendment.

READING ss. 28, 29, and 32 of Act X. of 1877 together, that where an application is made under s. 32 for the addition of a person, whether as plaintiff or defendant, such person should, as a general rule, be added only where there are questions directly arising out of and incidental to the original causes of action, in which such person has an identity or community of interest with the original plaintiff or defendant.—Naraini Kuar v. Durjan Kuar; Naraini Kuar v. Piarey Lal, I. L. R., 2 All. 738. [Feb. 2, 1880.]

A STRANGER to a contract of which specific performance is sought cannot be a party to the suit. Where, therefore, the plaintiff sued as against one defendant for specific performance of a contract to sell land, and as against another for a declaration that he was not entitled to any charge upon the said lands, held that the latter defendant was improperly made a party to the suit.—Luckumsey Ookerda v. Fázulla Cassumbhoy, I. L. R., 5 Bom. 177. [Dec. 20, 1880.]

ing the claims of creditors who, like the plaintiff, had applied for the registration of their claims after such time, but, before the assets of the insolvent had been distributed. The deed of trust empowered the trustees to distribute the assets of the insolvent after a certain time among the creditors who had preferred their claims within that time, and declared that they should not be liable for such distribution to creditors who had not preferred their claims within that time; but it did not empower them to refuse to register claims made after that time, but before distribution of the assets. Held that the trustees had been properly joined as defendants in such suit; that their refusal to register the plaintiff's claim gave him a cause of action against them; and that, inasmuch as the plaintiff had applied for the registration of his claim before the distribution of the assets, the trustees had improperly refused to register it.—Ajudhia Nath v. Anant Das, I. L. R., 3 All. 709. [May 14, 1881.]

Per FIELD, J.—Where a person, sued for rent, sets up the title of a third party, and alleges that he holds under, and pays rent to, him, such third party ought not to be made a party to the suit so as to convert a simple suit for arrears of rent into one for the determination of the title to the property in respect of which the rent is claimed. Such a suit raises only two issues; viz.: (1) does the relation of landlord and tenant exist between the plaintiff and defendant? (2) are the alleged arrears of rent due and unpaid? and these are questions in which the plaintiff and defendant are alone concerned, and no third party claiming a title adverse to the plaintiff can properly be made a party to the trial of these issues. S. 28 of the Civil Procedure Code is not imperative, but allows a discretion to be exercised; and in such a suit it is better, both in the interests of Government and for the proper adjudication of the question of the title, that it should be tried by a competent Court in a suit directly framed and brought for that purpose.—Lodai Mollah v. Kally Dass Roy, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 238. [July 29, 1881.]

A, B, C, and D, were the proprietors of a 2a. 13g. share in mauza E, and also of a 2a. 13g. share in mauza F, both in the district of Bhāgalpur. On the 19th September 1872, A, B, C, and D, mortgaged their share in E and F, together with property in the district of Tīrhūt, to the plaintiff. On the 24th March 1873, A mortgaged his share in E and F to J. On the 13th November 1872, A and B mortgaged their shares in E to K. On the 25th March 1874, J obtained a decree on his mortgage, and the interests of A and B were purchased on the 5th January 1875 by L. On the 17th April 1874, M, to whom the first mortgage had been assigned, obtained a decree, and attached the property mortgaged. L objected that he had already purchased the interests of A, and on the objection being allowed, M instituted a suit against L for a declaration of priority, and obtained a decree on the 9th August 1876. In execution of this decree the property first mortgaged was sold on the 4th March 1878, and, after satisfying the mortgage, a surplus of Rs. 7,664 remained. After the institution of the first suit, and before L's purchase, the plaintiff instituted a suit upon his mortgage in the Tīrhūt Court without having obtained leave to include that portion of the mortgaged property situate in the Bhāgalpur district. On the 17th July 1874, a decree was made in this suit. On the 17th January 1877, K obtained a decree on his mortgage, and shares of A and B in E were sold, and purchased on the 3rd September 1877 by N. The plaintiff had his decree transferred for execution to the Bhāgalpur Court, and he attached the surplus sale-proceeds and a 1a. 9g. share in E. This attachment was withdrawn on the objection of L, who drew out the surplus sale-proceeds. The share purchased by N was also released from attachment. The plaintiff now sued L, N, and the mortgagees for a declaration that his decree of the 17th July 1874 affected the E property, to recover the surplus sale-proceeds from L and in case the decree should not be valid to the extent mentioned, for a decree declaring his prior lien on the property in E. It was contended for the defendants that the Tīrhūt Court had no jurisdiction in respect of the Bhāgalpur property; that the suit was bad for multifariousness; that certain persons, co-sharers with the plaintiff, should have been made parties; and that the cause of action had been split. Held that the Tīrhūt Court had no jurisdiction in respect of the Bhāgalpur property; that the suit was not bad by reason of multifariousness; and that it was not necessary to make the plaintiff's co-sharers parties, as he might be regarded as contracting on behalf of himself and the other members of the family as undisclosed principals. Held also that the cause of action had been split.—Bungsee Singh v. Soodiat Lall, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 739. [Aug. 5, 1881.]

THE plaintiffs brought a suit to recover certain sums of money from the defendants, due to them under certain contracts which they alleged had been entered into by themselves, and one A D, as agent of the defendants, and asked for an account. The defendants, in their written statement, contended that there was no privity of contract between themselves and the plaintiffs, and denied the alleged agency of A D. The plaintiffs, before the hearing, applied to the Court to have A D added as a party-defendant under ss. 28 and 32 of Act X. of 1877, asking to be allowed to amend their plaint so as to pray for relief in the alternative against the original defendants or the said A D, or both against the original defendants and the said A D. Held that, under s. 28, they were entitled to the order on the authority of the case of Child v. Stenning (L. R. 5 Ch. D. 695).—Buddree Doss v. Hoare, Miller, & Co., 1 L. R., 8 Cal. 170. [Dec. 15, 1881.]

DEFENDANT No. 1, the tenant of certain land at fixed rates, on the 12th November 1877, sold his interest in the land to the plaintiff. At the time of the sale the land was in the actual possession of defendant No. 2, defendant No. 1's sub-tenant, against whom, however, defendant No. 1 had obtained an order for ejectment on the 25th June preceding. On the 25th March 1878, defendant No. 1 applied a second time for the ejectment of defendant No. 2, and while this matter was pending the plaintiff endeavoured to obtain possession of the land, but was resisted by defendant No. 2. He thereupon instituted a charge of criminal trespass against the latter. This criminal proceeding was pending when, on the 14th September 1878, defendant No. 1 obtained a second order for defendant No. 2's ejectment. Under this order he obtained possession of the land, and also of the crop planted by defendant No. 2, which he sold to defendant No. 3 on the 22nd September 1878. On the 25th of the same month the plaintiff's charge of criminal trespass against defendant No. 2 was dismissed, on the ground that defendant No. 1 was in possession, and the plaintiff had never obtained possession under his purchase. Defendant No. 1 subsequently let the land to defendant No. 4. The plaintiff, alleging that three causes of action had accrued to him—viz. (i.) on the 12th November 1877, the date of the sale to him—(ii.) on the 30th March 1878, when defendant No. 1 applied a second time for the ejectment of defendant No. 2—and (iii.) on the 22nd September 1878, when defendant No. 1 took possession of the land—sued defendants Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4, claiming (i.) possession of the land as against them all; (ii.) mesne-profits by way of damages for the year 1285 Fasli (September 1877—September 1878), as against defendants Nos. 1 and 2; (iii.) mesne-profits by way of damages for 1286 Fasli (September 1878—September 1879), against defendants Nos. 1 and 3; and (iv.) mesne-profits by way of damages for 1287 Fasli (September 1879—September 1880), against defendants Nos. 1 and 4. Held by the Full Bench (Mahmood, J., dissenting) that the Court of first instance had properly rejected the plaint, the suit being open to the objection that different causes of action against different defendants separately had been joined, for which procedure no sanction was to be found in the Code of Civil Procedure.—Narsingh Das v. Mangal Dubey, 1 L. R., 5 All. 163. [Aug. 26, 1882.]

THE plaintiffs having obtained a decree for the possession of certain lands, and having received formal possession thereof, brought a suit against 86 persons holding distinct and separate tenures in those lands, on the allegations that, “on the plaintiffs attempting to measure the lands, and calling on the tenants to pay rent, ten of the defendants, described as prodhans or headmen, formed a combination, and gained over the other defendants with a view to injure the plaintiffs; that through their help and endeavour the remaining defendants failed to recognize the plaintiffs as landlords, and declined to pay any rent, or to allow them to measure the lands, driving away an amin who went to measure the lands on behalf of the plaintiffs, and thereby preventing the plaintiffs from exercising their proprietary rights; that the plaintiffs brought suits for rent against some of the defendants, and in those suits the defendants denied the plaintiffs' title as landlords, whereupon the plaintiffs, seeing the necessity of instituting a suit for declaring the defendants tenants of the land, withdrew the suits for rent.” They stated their cause of action to “be the defendants' act of not recognizing us as their landlords, and thereby preventing us exercising our proprietary rights in respect of the land in suit, and not allowing us to make a measurement of that land, and also withholding the payment of rent;” and prayed for a decree establishing their proprietary right, and declaring the defendants to be their tenants. Held that there was but one and the same cause of action against all the defendants, viz., a combination to keep the plaintiffs out of the enjoyment of the property they had purchased; and that the suit was not multifarious within s. 28 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held also that the declaratory decree prayed for could be made notwithstanding the plaintiffs might have asked for possession of the lands.—Loke Noth Surma v. Keshab Ram Doss, 1 L. R., 13 Cal. 147. [April 19, 1886.]

30. Where there are numerous parties having the same interest in one suit, one or more of such parties may, with the permission of the Court, sue or be sued, or may defend, in such suit, on behalf of all parties so interested. But the Court shall in such cases give, at the plaintiff's expense, notice of the institution of the suit to all such parties either by personal service or (if from the number of parties or any other cause such service is not reasonably practicable) by public advertisement, as the Court in each case may direct.

A DECREE against a karnavan of a Malabar tarwad, as such, is binding upon the members of that tarwad, though not parties to the suit, in the absence of fraud or collusion. A karnavan is not a mere trustee, nor do the rules of Courts of Equity as to the necessity of making cestui que trusts parties to suits against trustees by strangers apply to the case of a karnavan and the members of the tarwad. Expl. 5 of s. 13, Civil Procedure Code, is not limited to the case of a suit under s. 30. The members of a tarwad claim under a karnavan, suing as such, within the meaning of expl. 5 of s. 13. Status of karnavan discussed.—Varanakot Narayanan Namburi v. Varanakot Narayanan Namburi, I. L. R., 2 Mad. 328. [Sep. 30, 1880.]

If it is sought to make a decree in a suit binding on a Malabar tarwad, the procedure laid down in s. 30 should be followed if the members are numerous.—Elayachanidathil Kombi Achen v. Kenatumkora Lakshmi Amma, I. L. R., 5 Mad. 201. [Mar. 8, 1881.]

AN order under s. 14, Act XX. of 1863, should be mandatory, and not prohibitory. Where a sacred book was kept at a temple, and was an object of veneration to the members of the sect entitled to worship there, held that a suit would lie under s. 14 of Act XX. of 1863, by some of the persons interested in the temple, to restrain the superintendent from removing the book to another place, and that he should be directed to retain it as a portion of the furniture of the temple.—Dhurrum Singh v. Kissen Singh, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 767. [July 14, 1881.]

IN a suit by two of the worshippers at a certain mosque, instituted after having obtained the sanction of the Advocate-General under s. 539 of the Civil Procedure Code, against the mutawalli of the mosque, and two other persons to whom the mutawalli had mortgaged part of the endowed property to secure the repayment of a loan, it appeared that one of the mortgagees had sold some of the wuqf property in execution of a decree which he had obtained upon his mortgage, and the property had been purchased by the other mortgagee. The plaintiffs prayed that the property purchased might be declared to be wuqf; that the sale in execution might be declared to be invalid; that a mutawalli might be appointed by the Court; and that the costs of doing the acts of the wuqf might be defrayed from the profits of the property belonging to the endowment. Held that, so far as regarded that portion of the prayer which fell within the provisions of s. 539 of the Code, the plaintiffs were not entitled to sue, as they were not "persons having a direct interest in the trust" within the meaning of the section, and that the suit should have been instituted under s. 14 of Act XX. of 1863 after sanction obtained under s. 18. Held also that, though the plaintiffs might possibly have obtained leave to sue under s. 30 of the Code on behalf of themselves and the other persons attending the mosque, they, not having obtained such leave, were not entitled to institute the suit for the purpose of obtaining the relief asked for in the other prayers of the plaint. The words, "trustee, manager, or superintendent of a mosque," &c., mentioned in Act XX. of 1863, mean the trustee, manager, or superintendent of a mosque, &c., to which the provisions of the Act are applicable, not the trustee, &c., of any mosque. And such persons are those to whom the provisions of Reg. XIX. of 1810 were applicable. The mosques, &c., to which the provisions of that Regulation were applicable, were mosques for the support of which endowments had been granted in land by the Government of the country or by individuals, and the mosques, &c., to which the provisions of Act XX. of 1863 apply, are not any mosques, &c., but any mosque for the support of which endowments in land have been made by the Government or private individuals.—Jan. Ali v. Ram Nath Mundul, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 32. [Aug. 12, 1881.]

A SUBORDINATE Judge having permitted the junior widow of a Hindu to be made a party to the proceedings in execution of a decree obtained by the senior widow against a debtor of their deceased husband, the High Court declined to interfere under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Quære.—Whether s. 32 of the Code of Civil Procedure does not give a Court discretionary power to add parties after adjudication of the question raised in the suit?—Lingammál v. Venkatammál, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 227. [Jan. 5, 1883.]

A SUIT by one or more creditors on behalf of other creditors cannot be entertained without the leave of the Court being obtained for its institution. Such leave cannot be granted at the hearing.—Oriental Bank Corporation v. Gobind Lall Seal, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 604. [Feb. 20, 1883.]

A SHAREHOLDER of an undivided piece of land sued three of his co-sharers, &c., he alleged, had trespassed on the land by building thereon, for restoration of the land to its original condition. The Court of first instance tried and determined the suit as brought and framed. The lower Appellate Court dismissed the suit on the ground that, there being many co-sharers, the plaintiff could not alone sue, and, under s. 30 of the Civil Procedure Code, the suit was bad. Per Stuart, C.J.—That the lower Appellate Court was right in holding that s. 30 of the Civil Procedure Code applied to the case, but that it was not right in dismissing the suit, but should have remanded it for the procedure provided by that section. Also that the permission mentioned in s. 30 is express, and not constructive. Per Brodhurst, J.—That s. 30 was not applicable to the case, that section contemplating a case in which there are numerous parties, having the same interest in a suit, who are all before the Court, and all anxious to have the matter in dispute disposed of, but, in order to save trouble and expense, are desirous that one or more of them shall sue or defend on behalf of all in the same interest. Per Straight and Tyrrell, J.J.—That s. 30 was not applicable to the case, the first part of that section implying that the plaintiff therein contemplated wishes to sue on behalf of other persons similarly interested in suing, they also wishing the same.—Hira Lal v. Bhairon, I. L. R., 5 All. 602. [June 1, 1883.]

FOUR persons of the Chitpavan caste brought a suit in 1876, alleging that they and the members of their caste in common with certain other castes possessed the exclusive right of entry and worship in the sanctuary of a temple, and that the defendants, members of the Palshe caste, not being of the privileged castes, infringed that right in 1871 and thereafter by entering the sanctuary and performing worship therein. They prayed for a declaration of their right and an injunction restraining the defendants from interfering with it. Held that the plaintiffs could maintain the suit for the personal injury alleged to have been suffered by themselves by the pollution of their sanctuary, whether under the Civil Procedure Code of 1859 or that of 1877, s. 30 of the latter being merely regulative, not constitutive. Whether or not it could be contended that they and the defendants so represented their respective castes that the decree in this suit should bind all members of the two castes, would be open to argument in any future case; but it might well be consistent with general principles to hold that certain judicial proceedings taken by or against a select number as representing a large class might, if fairly and honestly conducted, bind or benefit the whole class.—Anandráv Bhikáji v. Shankar Dáji, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 323. [June 13, 1883.]

A LANDLORD having obtained a decree against the karnavan and senior anandravans of a Malabar tarwad, for the recovery of certain lands demised on perpetual lease to the tarwad, on the ground that the tenure was forfeited by the denial of the landlord's title by the karnavan, the junior members of the tarwad sued the parties to that decree to set aside the decree and also the forfeiture of the tenure, on the ground that the karnavan had acted improperly in denying the title of the landlord. It was found that the karnavan acted bona fide in denying his landlord's title and in defending the suit. Held that the plaintiffs could not succeed.—Gopalan v. Valia Tamburatti, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 87. [July 24, 1883.]

THE "Majlis Islamia" or "Muhammadian Association" of Meerut instituted a suit in its own name by its secretary. Held that, as such Association had not, per se, any status in law so to sue, the suit was not maintainable. Semble that, had such Association empowered one or more of its number to act for it in the matter of the suit in the manner provided by s. 30 of the Civil Procedure Code, the permission mentioned in that section might have been granted.—Muhammadian Association of Meerut v. Bakhshi Ram, I. L. R., 6 All. 284. [Mar. 25, 1884.]

THE plaintiff sued to recover possession as mutwali of certain parcels of land, alleging that they were dedicated as waqf, and that the profits were "applied to the feeding of wayfarers and travellers, to lighting the mosque and shrine in the evening, and to meeting the expenses of repeating prayers on the occasion of Id and Bakhríd, and that the said profits were never spent for personal purposes." The plaintiff based her right to sue upon the fact that her deceased husband had been mutwali, and she prayed that the property in suit might be declared wagf; and that certain alienations made by her step-son since her husband's death might be set aside. Held that the trust to which the suit related was one partly for charitable and partly for religious purposes. As far as it related to the former, it was governed by s. 539 of the Civil Procedure Code, and if viewed in the light of the latter, by Act XX. of 1863; and that the suit, not being properly framed in compliance with the provisions of either of those enactments, was not maintainable. Held, further, that even supposing the endowment alleged was neither a public charity within the meaning of s. 539 of the Civil Procedure Code, nor a religious endowment to which Act XX. of 1863 applied, the plaintiff was not entitled to sue alone, as it was clear upon the face of the plaint that she was not alone interested in the subject-matter of the suit, and therefore that she could only sue on behalf of all who were so interested, having first obtained the leave of the Court, and otherwise complied with the provisions of s. 30 of the Civil Procedure Code.—Lutfunissa Bibi v. Nazirun Bibi, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 33. [Aug. 29, 1884.]

A LEGATEE cannot sue on behalf of himself and other legatees without an order of the Court obtained under s. 30 of the Civil Procedure Code enabling him so to sue. Where a legatee, a minor, sued in that form by her next friend without such an order, the next friend was held liable for costs on his adducing no evidence to show that the suit was for the benefit of the minor.—Geereeballa Dabee v. Chunder Kant Mookerjee, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 213. [Mar. 10, 1885.]

THE rule of English Law that no action can be maintained by one person against another for obstruction to a highway without proof of special damage should be enforced in British India as a rule of "equity and good conscience." S. 30 of the Code of Civil Procedure was not intended to allow individuals to sue on behalf of the general public, but to enable some of a class having special interests to represent the rest of the class.—Adams v. Arumugam, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 168. [July 12, 1886.]

A DECREE having been obtained against the karnaman and senior anandran of a Malabar tarwad, whereby the tarwad was dispossessed of certain land, the junior members of the tarwad, who had not been impleaded in the suit, sued to recover the land. Held that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover upon proof that the decree in the former suit was not substantially correct, and that they were not bound to prove mala fides on the part of their karnaman in defending the former suit as a condition precedent to recovery.—Sridevi v. Kellu Eradi, I. L. R., 10 Mad. 79. [Oct. 12, 1886.]

IN 1849, the Board of Revenue, acting under Reg. XIX. of 1810, interfered in the management of the affairs of a temple. In a suit relating to the affairs of the temple instituted in 1878, it did not appear whether any transfer of property had been made under s. 4 of Act XX. of 1863, but it did appear that, in 1865, the Judge of Patna had appointed a manager of the temple. Held that the right of the Government officers to control the affairs of the temple had been sufficiently proved. S. 14 of Act XX. of 1863 is generally applicable to all religious endowments, and while it, in one sense, restrains the ordinary Courts from dealing with cases against trustees of religious endowments, it gives special facilities for suits in the principal Civil Courts of the district by any of the persons interested in these endowments. Quare.—Whether, considering the provisions of s. 30 of the Civil Procedure Code, the retention of s. 14 of Act XX. of 1863 is at all necessary?

31. No suit shall be defeated by reason of the misjoinder of parties, and the Court may, in every suit, deal with the matter in controversy so far as regards the rights of the parties actually before it.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to enable plaintiffs to join in respect of distinct causes of action.

IN a suit instituted against six different parties, plaintiff prayed for khás possession of a four-anna share in a certain lot, or, in the alternative, for a decree for arrears of rent against the defendants, or such of the defendants as should, on inquiry, appear to be respectively liable. It appeared that plaintiff had been kept out of possession by one only of the six defendants, and that, if he was entitled to a decree for arrears of rent, another of the defendants was liable for a portion only of such arrears. Held (with reference to Act X. of 1877, ss. 81 and 45) that the suit was not improperly framed; that there was no objection to the prayer for alternative relief; and that the suit should not have been dismissed for joinder of causes of action.—Janakinath Mookerjee v. Ramrunjun Chuckerbutty, I. L. R., 4 Cal. 949. [Jan. 17, 1879.]

Two of the sons of a joint Mitakshara family, consisting of the father,* three sons, and the widow and sons of a deceased son, and carrying on business in partnership, filed a suit on the 19th July 1880. upon a hatchitta, dated the 11th December 1876. No time was fixed for the payment of money, but the last payment made and entered by the defendant on the hatchitta was dated 30th July 1877. On the 26th July, when the case came on for hearing, it was objected by the defendant that all the persons who sought to sue were not joined as plaintiffs. Thereupon, on the application of the original plaintiffs, the father and the third son, who were described as the surviving partners of the deceased son, were added as plaintiffs, but not until the suit as against them was barred by limitation. Held that the Court had rightly exercised its discretion in adding the 3rd and 4th plaintiffs to the record, although the suit was barred under s. 22 of the Limitation Act as against them. Held also that the claim of the original plaintiffs was likewise as much as they could only enforce that claim in conjunction with the other plaintiffs whose rights were barred under s. 22 of the Limitation Act. In actions of contract it is the right of the defendant, if he takes the objection in proper time, to insist upon all persons with whom he has contracted being joined as plaintiffs, and if, after the objection has been raised, the plaintiff proceeds with the suit without taking proper steps to add the person or persons whose non-joinder has been objected to, and the Court finds that the objection was well-founded, the suit must be dismissed. Baydonath Bag v. Grish Chunder Roy (1. L. R., 3 Cal. 26) dissented from. Held, further, that the suit would have been in time if all the plaintiffs had joined in the first instance. Per Curiam.—The words “prescribed period” in s. 20 of the Limitation Act mean, not the period prescribed for the payment of the debt, but the prescribed period of limitation. Tarany Churn Nundee v. Shaikh Abdul Rahman (2 C. L. R. 346) doubted. There is no equity, but often much injustice, in allowing one joint contractor out of many to sue the defendant, notwithstanding an objection duly made by the latter, and the Court has no right to allow one co-contractor to recover under such circumstances, though he may, no doubt, adjust the same which he recovers with his co-contractors. As between the members of a joint family any one or more may be authorized by the rest to act as their agent or agents in any business-transaction; but when a joint family or any members of it carry on trade in partnership and contract with the outside public in the course of that trade, they have no greater privileges than any other traders; if they are really partners, they must be bound by the same rule for enforcing their contracts in Courts of law as the members of any other partnership.—Ramsbuk v. Ram Lal Koondoo, 8 C. L. R. 457. [Feb. 23, 1881.]

THE creditor of an insolvent, who had assigned all his property to trustees for the benefit of all his creditors generally, sued him for his debt, joining the trustees as defendants on the ground that they had refused to register his claim. The trustees had refused to register the claim on the ground that the plaintiff had not applied for its registration within the time notified by them, and that he would not consent to abide by the order which the High Court might make on an application by the trustees for its advice regarding the claims of creditors who, like the plaintiff, had applied for the registration of their claims after such time, but before the assets of the insolvent had been distributed. The deed of trust empowered the trustees to distribute the assets of the insolvent after a certain time among the creditors who had preferred their claims within that time, and declared that they should not be liable for such distribution to creditors who had not preferred their claims within that time; but it did not empower them to refuse to register claims made after that time, but before distribution of the assets. Held that the trustees had been properly joined as defendants in such suit; that their refusal to register the plaintiff's claim gave him a cause of action against them; and that, inasmuch as the plaintiff had applied for the registration of his claim before the distribution of the assets, the trustees had improperly refused to register it.—Ajudhia Nath v. Anant Das, 1. L. R., 3 All. 799. [May 11, 1881.]

remained. After the institution of the first suit, and before L's purchase, the plaintiff instituted a suit upon his mortgage in the Tírhút Court without having obtained leave to include that portion of the mortgaged property situate in the Bhágálpur district. On the 17th July 1874, a decree was made in this suit. On the 17th January 1877, K obtained a decree on his mortgage, and shares of A and B in E were sold, and purchased on the 3rd September 1877 by N. The plaintiff had his decree transferred for execution to the Bhágálpur Court, and he attached the surplus sale-proceeds and a 1a. 9g. share in E. This attachment was withdrawn on the objection of L, who drew out the surplus sale-proceeds. The share purchased by N was also released from attachment. The plaintiff now sued L, N, and the mortgagors for a declaration that his decree of the 17th July 1874 affected the E property, to recover the surplus sale-proceeds from L, and in case the decree should not be valid to the extent mentioned, for a decree declaring his prior lien on the property in E. It was contended for the defendants that the Tírhút Court had no jurisdiction in respect of the Bhágálpur property; that the suit was bad for multifariousness; that certain persons, co-sharers with the plaintiff, should have been made parties; and that the cause of action had been split. Held that the Tírhút Court had no jurisdiction in respect of the Bhágálpur property; that the suit was not bad by reason of multifariousness; and that it was not necessary to make the plaintiff's co-sharers parties, as he might be regarded as contracting on behalf of himself and the other members of the family as undisclosed principals. Held also that the cause of action had been split.—Bungsee Sing v. Soodist Lall, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 739. [Aug. 5, 1881.]

By the memorandum and Articles of Association of the new Dhurumsey Poonjabhoy Spinning and Weaving Company, the plaintiff's firm of M F and Co. were appointed agents of the Company for twenty-five years, and it was provided that they should have the general control and management of the Company. Cl. 98 of the Articles provided that the said firm, as such agent, should have full power and authority (inter alia) to appoint and to employ, in or for the purposes of the transaction and management of the affairs and business of the Company, such solicitors as they should think proper. An agreement, dated 26th August 1874, was also entered into between the Company and the partners in the firm of M F and Co., their executors, administrators, and assigns, for the time being constituting the partnership firm of M F and Co., whereby it was agreed that the said firm should be agents to the Company for twenty-five years to buy and sell, &c., and particularly to exercise all the powers contained in cl. 98 of the Articles of Association. Messrs. C and B were duly appointed solicitors to the Company, and acted as such for a considerable time. Merwánji Frámji, one of the members of the said firm of M F and Co., died in the middle of March 1876. The plaintiffs complained that G, one of the shareholders in the Company, became desirous of ousting the plaintiffs from the position of agents of the Company, and of becoming the managing director of the Company; that, in July 1881, he procured his own election, and that of certain nominees of his, as directors of the Company; and, on the 8th August 1881, procured the passing of a resolution at a Board-meeting to the effect that as Messrs. C and B, the Company's solicitors, were also the solicitors of the agents, it was desirable, for the interests of the Company, that a change should be made, and that Messrs. H, C, and L, be appointed solicitors of the Company. The plaintiffs alleged that the only object of passing the said resolution was to facilitate the design of G, of ousting the plaintiffs from their agency, and getting the management of the Company for himself; that Messrs. H, C, and L, had been for a long time the solicitors of G, and had been advising him in his designs upon the Company and upon the plaintiffs, and they contended that the resolution was a breach of the contract between the Company and the plaintiffs and a violation of the Articles of Association of the Company. The plaintiffs sued G and two other directors of the Company, and the Company itself, and prayed for an injunction against the defendants to restrain them from committing any breach of the agreement of 26th August 1874, and in particular from carrying into effect the resolution appointing Messrs. H, C, and L as solicitors for the Company, and to restrain them from doing any thing inconsistent with the memorandum and Articles of Association. The defendants contended that the contract of the 26th August 1874 had been determined by the death of Merwánji Frámji, and that the powers conferred on the agents by cl. 98 of the Articles were, subject to the general powers of management, vested in the directors by the Articles, and that the case was not one in which an injunction could be granted. Held that, having regard to the memorandum and Articles of Association, the contract was that the firm of M F and Co. for the time being should be the agents of the Company for twenty-five years, and that the right to sue on the contract by its nature survived to the plaintiffs after the death of Merwánji Frámji. Held also that there being no provision either in the Articles of Association or the agreement of 26th August 1874, that the power thereby conferred on the agents should be subject to the control or assent of the directors, there was no right in the directors to interfere with the agents in the exercise of their powers otherwise than as representing the Company in virtue of their general powers of management. It being admitted that the conduct of the defendants would be supported by the Company in general meeting, owing to their having a preponderance of votes, held that, inasmuch as the Court would not, by a decree for specific performance or by injunction, compel the Company to retain the plaintiffs in the confidential position of agents, it would not restrain the defendants or the Company from appointing a solicitor, which was only a violation of what was ancillary or incidental to the principal part of the contract, viz, the agreement that the plaintiffs should be the agents of the Company for twenty-five years; and further, semble, that on the merits of the case the Court would not interfere on behalf of the plaintiffs. Counsel on behalf of the plaintiffs sought to obtain the injunction on the ground that the resolution of the 8th August 1881, appointing Messrs. H, C, and L solicitors of the Company, was contrary to the memorandum of Association, and, therefore, ultra vires; and, in order that this point might be pressed against the defendants, it was proposed that the plaint should be amended by alleging a cause of action in two of the plaintiffs as shareholders, as well as a cause of action in all the plaintiffs as parties contracting with the Company. Held that, under the provisions of ss. 26 and 31 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), the amendment could not be allowed. The plaintiffs, as shareholders and contractors, had not the same cause of action, by which words were meant not only the act complained of, but also the right violated by that act. The rights of the plaintiffs as contractors, alleged to be violated by the resolution, were rights given to them by their agreement; but the rights of the plaintiffs as shareholders were rights secured to them by the Articles of Association.—Nusserwáñji Merwáñji Panday v. Gordon, I. L. R., 6 Bom. 236. [Sep. 30, 1881.]

32. The Court may, on or before the first hearing, upon the application of either party, and on such terms as the Court thinks just, order that the name of any party, whether as plaintiff or as defendant, improperly joined, be struck out; and the Court may at any time, either upon or without such application, and on such terms as the Court thinks just, order that any plaintiff be made a defendant, or that any defendant be made a plaintiff, and that the name of any person who ought to have been joined, whether as plaintiff or defendant, or whose presence before the Court may be necessary in order to enable the Court effectually and completely to adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved in the suit, be added,

No person shall be added as a plaintiff, or as the next friend of a plaintiff, without his own consent thereto.

Consent of person added as plaintiff or next friend.

Any person on whose behalf a suit is instituted or defended under s. 30 may apply to the Court to be made a party to such suit.

Parties to suits instituted or defended under section 30.

All parties whose names are so added as defendants shall be served with a summons in manner hereinafter mentioned, and (subject to the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, section 22) the proceedings as against them shall be deemed to have begun only on the service of such summons.

The Court may give the conduct of the suit to such plaintiff as it deems proper.

Conduct of suit.

PLAINTIFF sued defendant for damages for slander of plaintiff's sister. The Court, regarding the suit as defective for want of parties, made plaintiff's sister a co-plaintiff under s. 73 of Act VIII. of 1859. Held that the defect was one not to be remedied under that section, and that as there was no right of suit in the plaintiff, the suit should have been dismissed.—Subbaiyar v. Kristnaiyar, I. L. R., 1 Mad. 383. [April 8, 1878.]

In a suit by the purchaser of goods by sample against the vendors for damages, on the ground that the bulk did not correspond with the sample, the vendors applied, under Act X. of 1877, s. 32, to add the vendor to them on the same samples of the goods as a defendant, alleging that the question between the plaintiffs and themselves was the same as that between themselves and their vendor. Held, refusing the application, that the plaintiffs "ought not to have the vendor to the defendants made a party to the suit, and that his presence was not necessary in order to enable the Court effectually and completely to adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved in the suit."—Mahomed Badshah v. Nicol Fleming, 1. L. R., 4 Cal. 355. [July 1, 1878.]

B AND N, the mortgagees of a mehal, granted the mortgagors a lease of the mehal, the mortgagors agreeing to pay the mortgagees a certain rent half-yearly on account of the right they held in equal shares, and that, in default of payment of such rent, "the mortgagees" should be entitled to sue for payment. The mortgagors having made default in payment of the rent, and N refusing to join in a suit against the mortgagors to enforce payment, B sued them alone for a moiety of the rent due. The Revenue Court of first instance held, with reference to Act XVIII. of 1873, s. 106, that B could not sue separately. Held by the High Court that the order of the Revenue Court of first appeal, directing (inter alia) that the Court of first instance should re-try the suit after making N a defendant in the suit, was not illegal, notwithstanding that the provision of Act X. of 1877, s. 32, were not made applicable to the procedure of the Revenue Courts by Act XVIII. of 1873.—Shib Gopal v. Baldeo Sahai, 1. L. R., 2 All. 264. [April 15, 1879.]

A SUE D as only son and heir of his father B. C, the widow of B, having, with the concurrence of A, taken out letters of administration of B's estate, was, on the application of A at the hearing of the suit, made a co-plaintiff under s. 32 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held that C ought not to have been joined as a plaintiff in the suit, inasmuch as A was no right at all to sue. S. 32, as far as the addition of plaintiffs is concerned, only applies to those cases in which the original party who brought the suit has some title to sue. Per Pontifex, J. "The power given by s. 27 of the Code ought to be exercised before the first hearing of the case. Held also that s. 2 of Act XXVII. of 1860 prohibited A from suing alone, for although he was, no doubt, beneficially entitled to recover it, yet there was no vexatious or fraudulent withholding of the debt within the meaning of that section. Per Garth, C.J. "A debt cannot be said to be 'vexatiously withheld' within the meaning of that section simply because the debtor omits to pay it.—Chander Coomar Roy v. Gocool Chunder Bhattacharjee, 1. L. R., 6 Cal. 370. [Aug. 29, 1879.]

S SUE D N and R jointly and severally for certain moneys. The Court of first instance gave S a decree for such moneys against N, and dismissed the suit against R. N appealed from the decree of the Court of first instance, but S did not appeal from it. The Appellate Court, at the first hearing of N's appeal, made R a respondent, the period allowed by law for S to have preferred an appeal having then expired, and eventually reversed the decree of the Court of first instance, dismissing the suit as against N, and giving S a decree against R. Held that, although the Appellate Court was competent to make R a party to the appeal under ss. 32 and 582 of Act X. of 1877, yet it was not competent, with reference to s. 22 of Act XV. of 1877, to give S a decree against R, the former not having appealed from the decree of the Court of first instance within the time allowed by law.—Ranjit Sing v. Sheo Prasad Ram and another, 1. L. R., 2 All. 487. [Nov. 17, 1879.]

HELD, reading ss. 28, 29, and 32 of Act X. of 1877 together, that, where an application is made under s. 32 for the addition of a person, whether as plaintiff or defendant, such person should, as a general rule, be added only where there are questions directly arising out of and incidental to the original cause of action, in which such person has an identity of community of interest with the original plaintiff or defendant. Two suits against K for possession of the property of B, deceased, were instituted in the Court of the Subordinate Judge by parties claiming adversely to one another as heirs to B. The Subordinate Judge, on the applications of the plaintiffs in these suits, under s. 32 of Act X. of 1877, added the plaintiffs in the first suit as defendants in the second, and the plaintiffs in the second suit as defendants in the first. Held on appeal by the defendant K from the orders of the Subordinate Judge, applying the rule stated above, that such addition of parties, not being necessary to enable the Subordinate Judge "effectually and completely to adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved in the suit," were not proper. The principles on which s. 73 of Act VIII. of 1859 should be interpreted enunciated by Sir Barnes Peacock in Jaygobind Dass v. Gauri Pershad Shaha (7 W. R. 223), Raja Ram Tewari v. Lachman Pershad (8 W. R. 15), and Ahmad Hussain v. Khodeja (10 W. R. 316; 3 B. L. R., A. C. 28); and the remarks of Pontifex, J., in Muhammad Badshah v. Nicol Fleming (1. L. R., 4 Cal. 355), followed and applied.—Naraini Kuar v. Durjan Kuar; Naraini Kuar v. Piarey Lal, 1. L. R., 2 All. 738. [Feb. 2, 1880.]

IN a suit for the partition of joint family property, the mortgagees of the right, title, and interest of the plaintiff, applied under Act X. of 1877, s. 32, to be added as parties. Held that their presence was not necessary in order "to enable the Court effectually and completely to adjudicate and settle all the questions involved in the suit" within the meaning of s. 32. Held also that that section does not contemplate any application to the Court by the person proposed to be added.—Mohindrohhoosun Biswas v. Shosheehhoosun Biswas, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 882. [April 8, 1880.]

AN order refusing an application under Act X. of 1877, s. 32, by a person to be added as a defendant in a suit, is not applicable.—Karman Bibi v. Misri Lal, I. L. R., 2 All. 904. [May 27, 1880.]

A PERSON alleged to be a lunatic, though not found so under Act XXV. of 1858, may appear either by vakil or in person. Under s. 32 of the Code of Civil Procedure a no person can be added as a plaintiff unless he has previously consented thereto; and if a person objects to be added as a plaintiff, the proper course is to make him a defendant.—Uma Sundari Dasi v. Ramji Haldar, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 242. [Mar. 7, 1881.]

IN a suit for rent, where the defendant alleged that a person not on the record had a joint interest with the plaintiff in the property in respect of which the rent was due, held, where the plaintiff disputed this, and objected to such course being taken, that it was improper to add such person as co-plaintiff, and that, if added at all, it should be as defendant, in order that the issue between him and the plaintiff might be properly tried. Held also that in such a case an appeal lies under s. 591 of the Civil Procedure Code.—Googlee Sahoo v. Prem Lal Sahoo, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 148. [April 21, 1881.]

IN a suit for rent at enhanced rate brought by all the shareholders in the estate the rent of which it was sought to enhance, it appeared that the notice of enhancement issued under s. 14 of Act VIII. (B.C.) of 1869 had been issued at the instance of some only of the persons entitled to the rent. Held, by Garth, C.J., and Pontifex and Mitter, JJ. (Morris and McDonell, JJ., dissentientibus), that the suit would lie. Per Garth, C.J.—The right to enhance rent from time to time as occasion arises is one of those incidents of the contract which the landlords or any of them have a right to enforce. Where some of the co-sharers refused to join in a suit to enforce such right, the co-sharers desirous of bringing the suit may do so under s. 32 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), making the recusant co-sharers defendants. Per Morris and McDonell, JJ.—A suit cannot be brought by a co-sharer in actual separate receipt of a share of the rent for enhanced rent of his share, though notice be served in respect of the whole rent, and all the co-sharers be made parties to the suit. Nor will a suit for arrears of rent at enhanced rate, brought by all the shareholders, lie where the notice of enhancement under s. 14 of Act VIII. (B.C.) of 1869 has been issued at the instance of some only of the persons entitled to the rent. Per Garth, C.J.—Those persons who are entitled to sue as landlords have also the right under s. 14 of Act VIII. (B.C.) of 1869 to give the necessary previous notice. Per Morris, J.—The person to whom the rent is payable must, where more persons than one are entitled to receive the rent, signify all such persons.—Chuni Singh v. Hira Mahata, 9 C. L. R. 37. [June 17, 1881.]

THE words in para. 1 of s. 53 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act X. of 1877), "at or before the first hearing," are merely directory and not mandatory, and therefore a plaintiff may, subsequently to the "first hearing," amend his plaint, provided such amendment does not alter the original character of his suit. The plaintiffs (mortgagees) in a suit against their mortgagees sought only for production of the mortgage-deed or for an account, although the averments in the plaint warranted a prayer for redemption. Subsequently to the first hearing of the suit they applied to be allowed to amend the plaint by adding a prayer for redemption. Held that the provisions of s. 53 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) did not preclude the Court from permitting the amendment to be made. It is competent to a Court, at any time before passing a decree, to frame an additional issue embracing a matter not included in the plaint (provided it be not inconsistent with it), or in the written statement, but which may appear upon the allegations made on oath by the parties, or by any person present on their behalf, or made by the pleaders of such parties or persons. S. 34 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) limits the time within which a defendant may object for want of parties, but it does not so limit the right of the plaintiff to add parties. In some cases s. 34 would not prevent even a defendant from objecting to the want of a party after the first hearing, e.g., where after the first hearing and before decree a co-parcener or remainderman or reversioner is born, or where a woman who is a party is married to a man who is not a party to the suit. The objection did not exist at or before the first hearing, and therefore could not have been made or waived by the defendant; and if he made it at the earliest opportunity after it came into existence, he would have satisfied the spirit of s. 34.—Modhe (R. and N.) v. Dongre (S.), I. L. R., 5 Bom. 609. [Aug. 2, 1881.]

THE object of s. 32, which enables a Court to add parties whose presence before the Court may be necessary to enable the Court effectually and completely to adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved in the suit, is to enable the Court to try and determine, once for all, material questions common to the parties, and to third parties, and not merely questions between the parties to the suit.—Vydiānādāyyan v. Sitarāmāyyan, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 52. [Oct. 24, 1881.]

THE plaintiffs brought a suit to recover certain sums of money from the defendants, due to them under certain contracts which they alleged had been entered into by themselves and one A Das agent of the defendants, and asked for an account. The defendants, in their written statement, contended that there was no privity of contract between themselves and the plaintiffs, and denied the alleged agency of A D. The plaintiffs, before the hearing, applied to the Court to have A D added as a party-defendant under ss. 28 and 32 of Act X. of 1877, asking to be allowed to amend their plaint so as to pray for relief in the alternative against the original defendants or the said A D, or both against the original defendants and the said A D. Held that, under s. 28, they were entitled to the order on the authority of the case of Child v. Stenning (L. R., 5 Ch. D. 695).—Buddroo Doss v. Hoare, Miller, and Co., I. L. R., 8 Cal. 170. [Dec. 15, 1881.]

THE Secretary of State is not a necessary party to a suit to set aside a sale for arrears of revenue, but the Government have such interest as would, on their application, entitle them to be made a party. S. 424 of the Civil Procedure Code does not preclude a Court from adding the Secretary of State as a necessary party under s. 32 of the Code.—Bal Mokoond Lall v. Jirjadhun Roy, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 271. [June 23, 1882.]

DURING the hearing of a suit for recovery of immoveable property it appeared from the evidence and certain documents put in that the plaintiff had mortgaged his right, title, and interest to a third person, by whom the suit was practically being carried on. On an application by the defendant for the mortgagee to be added as a party-defendant under the provisions of s. 32 of the Civil Procedure Code, the Court directed a rule to issue, calling on him to show cause why he should not be added as a party-defendant or give security for costs. The rule was not applied for on petition or affidavit, and set out no grounds for the application at all. On an objection taken by the mortgagee at the hearing of the rule, held that the grounds should have been stated on affidavit or have appeared on the face of the rule, and that the mortgagee was entitled to know what he had to answer, and consequently, the rule being informal, it was discharged with costs.—Ramnarain Kallia v. Monce Bibee, and Ramnarain Kallia v. Gopal Doss Sing, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 735. [Feb. 22, 1883.]

THE plaintiff in a partnership-suit, to which there were twenty-one defendants, applied to the Court for leave to withdraw the suit, or that the suit might be dismissed. Ten of the defendants supported the plaintiff's application. Two of the defendants objected, and applied, under s. 32 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), that they might be made plaintiffs, and that the plaintiff might be made a defendant. The Court granted their application.—Edulji Muncherji Wáchá v. Vullebhoy Khánbhoy, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 167. [Mar. 1, 1883.]

Y SUEB his brothers for his share of the estate of their deceased father, the father and sons being divided. V having been transported for life, his sons applied to be made plaintiffs in the suit on the ground that they had a joint interest with their father in their grandfather's estate. Held that, under the circumstances, the application was properly granted.—Narakká v. Nārāyana, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 331. [Mar. 2, 1883.]

A SUEB V and S to establish his right to attach a certain house in execution of a decree obtained by him in a previous suit. In their written statement the defendants alleged that A had obtained the decree in question by fraud. Shortly before the present suit, V had mortgaged the house to H for Rs. 33,000. About three weeks after the suit had been filed, H advanced a further sum of Rs. 5,000 to V on the same security, and on the same day (12th December 1881) entered into an agreement with V, by which he agreed to buy the house for Rs. 45,000, the sale to be completed immediately after the decision of the present suit. The agreement provided that V should defend the suit: but, if the result of the suit should be to establish the plaintiff's right to seize the house in execution, then that H should be at liberty to cancel the contract of sale. Subsequently V wrote to H, declaring his intention of abandoning his defence. H thereupon applied to be made a defendant to the suit, in order to protect the house from the plaintiff. Held that H was entitled to be made a party under ss. 32 and 372 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882). Held also that the agreement of 12th December amounted to an absolute sale, by V to H, of the equity of redemption of the house in question, and that it was not champertous.—Ahmedbhoy Hubibbhoy v. Vulleebbhoy Cás-umbhay, I. L. R., 8 Bom. 323. [May 5, 1884.]

ALTHOUGH a Court is bound by s. 368 of the Code of Civil Procedure to place on the record the name of the person alleged by the appellant to be the legal representative of a deceased respondent, nevertheless, where a person, other than the person alleged by the appellant to be such representative, claims, on good prima facie grounds, to be the representative of the deceased respondent, and the interests of the person entitled to the estate of the deceased may be prejudiced, the Court should, under s. 32 of the Code of Civil Procedure, proceed to make such claimant also a party to the appeal.—Athiappa v. Ayanna, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 600. [Oct. 20, 1884.]

THERE is no power in the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882) to make a party to the suit a co-appellant. Ss. 32 and 582 of the Code give to an Appellate Court power only to strike out the name of a party, or to direct new parties to be added to the suit, whether as plaintiffs or defendants.—Vásudev Bálkrishna v. Sálubái, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 227. [Sep. 7, 1885.]

A COURT may, in the exercise of its discretion under s. 32 of the Civil Procedure Code, add a party to a suit upon his own application.—Rabbaba Khanum v. Noor Jehan Begum alias Darlim Shahiba, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 90. [Mar. 12, 1886.]

AN order rejecting an application under s. 32 of the Civil Procedure Code to be made a party to a suit is not appealable under cl. 2, s. 588.—Abirunnisa Khatoon v. Komurunnisa Khatoon, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 100. [April 13, 1886.]

A MITTA held by tenants in common was sold for arrears of revenue at a time when the owners of a moiety thereof were minors. In a suit brought by the mother of these minors on their behalf against the Collector to set aside the sale, the District Court held that Reg. X. of 1831, s. 2, absolutely debarred the Collector from selling the estate of the minors during their minority, and set aside the sale so far as their interests were concerned. Held, on appeal, that the minors not being sole proprietors, their estate was not one of which the Court of Wards could assume the management, and, therefore, s. 2 of Reg. X. of 1831 did not affect the sale. In the above-mentioned suit the plaintiffs impleaded also the other previous owners, of whom one was the purchaser at the sale. Two others, in their written statement, pleaded that the purchase had been made in fraud of their rights, and claimed to be still entitled to their shares in the mitta on the ground that the purchaser must be held to have purchased for their benefit (Indian Trusts Act, 1882, s. 90). They further claimed that, should the sale be set aside so far as the plaintiffs' interests were concerned, the sale of their interests also should be held to be null and void. Before the suit came on for hearing the District Judge, ex parte, ordered that these two defendants should be made plaintiffs in the suit under s. 32 of the Code of Civil Procedure. At the date when this order was made, the claim of these defendants, had they sued to set aside the sale in their own interest, was barred by limitation. Held that the order was illegal.—Krishna v. Mekamperuma, I. L. R., 10 Mad. 44. [April 15, 1886.]

a prayer for redemption. Subsequently to the first hearing of the suit they applied to be allowed to amend the plaint by adding a prayer for redemption. Held that the provisions of s. 53 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) did not preclude the Court from permitting the amendment to be made. NONE but barristers and attorneys have a legal right to practise in the Bombay Court of Small Causes. Neither ss. 2 and 36 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act No. XIV. of 1882), nor ss. 38 and 76 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (No. XV. of 1882), give the pleaders of the Bombay High Court that right. The provisions of s. 47 of Reg. II. of 1827, authorizing persons holding sanads from the High Court to practise in the Mofussil Courts, are still in force. Per Bayley, West, Pinhey, and Latham, JJ.—S. 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, does not give every pleader a title to appear and plead; it only enacts that pleader means every person entitled to appear and plead for another in Court, and includes an advocate, a rakil, and an attorney of a High Court. Consequently, if pleaders or rakils, who are the same class of practitioners, are not entitled by law to appear or plead for another in Court, the definition of 'pleader' gives them no new right or status. The words in s. 36 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882), "by a pleader duly appointed to act on his behalf," do not simply mean a person duly appointed by the party in the suit, but a pleader duly appointed according to law regarding pleaders in force in the particular Court.—In re Pleadors of the High Court; I. To satisfy the conditions of s. 76 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) as to service of summons on an agent, there must be a person residing without the local jurisdiction, but carrying on business or work within those limits by a manager or agent, and sued on account of such work—that is, business either actually itself carried on by the agent or manager, or forming part of the business in the sense of a connected course of transactions to the management of which he has been duly appointed. Ss. 76 and 37, cl. c, are to be construed together, and are intended to carry out the same scheme of relief, which rests upon the idea that where an agent has been put forward substantially to take the place of his principal within a particular jurisdiction, he should take the place of such principal (at the option of any person who has dealt with him) in any legal proceedings that may arise out of the business or work in which the agent has been virtually a local principal. The manager or agent contemplated by the Code is one who has an initiative and independent discretion, albeit subject possibly to principles and general orders prescribed for his guidance. A mere servant employed to carry out orders or to execute a particular commission, or a factor or common agent who is not identified with the firm for which he acts, is not such an agent. The firm of Ganesh Lal Soonder Lal carried on business at Agra. It had no place of business in Bombay, but it employed G as its agent in Bombay in certain dealings which it had with the plaintiff. The letters and telegrams of the firm to G were sent to the plaintiff's place of business, or addressed to G as an individual, not in the name of the firm. G did not himself initiate any business, or in any way stand between his employer's firm and the plaintiff. Held that G was not the defendant's manager or agent within the meaning of the Civil Procedure Code, s. 76, and that, in an action against the defendants, service of summons upon him was not due service. G in particular instances drew hundis on the firm of Ganesh Lal Soonder Lal, which that firm duly accepted and paid. Held that he might reasonably be deemed their agent or manager for this particular kind of business, if for no other ; and service on him might probably suffice in the case of a plaintiff suing on hundi-transactions as with the firm through him. Service unduly made under s. 76 does not become effectual by reason of the fact of such service being subsequently notified to the parties really interested as defendants. Seemle.—Service duly effected under s. 76 is effectual without reference to the circumstance of its being or not being communicated to the real defendants.—Goculdas Dwarkadas v. Ganeshlal Halasroy, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 416. [June 22, 1880.]

THE term 'non-resident' in s. 37, cl. a, of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act X. of 1877), covers every absence which may reasonably be supposed to have been within the contemplation of the Legislature in using that term ; thus, where a Márwádi had resided for forty years at Pen, and had also a place of business there, but who had gone to his native country to get his sisters married, and had been absent upwards of four months, it was held that he was 'non-resident' within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Pen Court, and that a person holding a general power-of-attorney from him was a recognized agent within the meaning of the section.—Rámchandra Sákharám v. Keshav Durgáji, I. L. R., 6 Bom. 100. [Dec. 12, 1881.]

A SUIT was brought by the Political Agent, Southern Marátha Country, as administrator of the estate of the Chief of Mudhol, who was described in the plaint as being nineteen years of age, to eject the defendants from certain lands, belonging to the Chief, situated in the Sátára District. The defendants raised a preliminary objection to the institution of the suit by the Political Agent, on the ground that he was neither a certificated guardian of the Chief under the Bombay Minors' Act (XX. of 1864), nor a recognized agent within the meaning of s. 37 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held that the appointment, by Government, of the Political Agent to manage the estate of the Chief of Mudhol during a certain period could not give him the position contemplated by the Bombay Minors' Act (XX. of 1864). With regard to property in British India, he had no authority to sue on behalf of the minor, without obtaining a certificate of administration under the Act. Held also that the Political Agent was not a "recognized agent" of the Chief of Mudhol within the meaning of s. 37, cl. c of the Code of Civil Procedure. Held also that the irregularity of the Political Agent's suing for the Chief, without authority, was one affecting the merits of the case, though not the jurisdiction of the Court. If the Political Agent was not properly representing the Chief, he had no merits, no right as against the defendants. The District Judge was, therefore, right in reversing the decrees of the first Court, s. 578 of the Code of Civil Procedure having no application to the present case.—*Venkatráv Ráje Ghorpáde v. CHAPTER IV.

OF THE FRAME OF THE SUIT.

42. Every suit shall, as far as practicable, be so framed as to afford ground for a final decision upon the subjects in dispute, and so to prevent further litigation concerning them.

Suit how to be framed.

IN disposing of a second appeal, the High Court is competent, under Act X. of 1877, s. 42, to consider the question whether the plaintiff has any cause of action or not although such question has not been raised by the defendant-appellant in the Court below or in his memorandum of second appeal, but is raised for the first time at the hearing of such appeal.—Lachman Prasad v. Bahadur Singh, I. L. R., 2 All. 884. [May 7, 1880.]

UNDER ss. 42 and 43 of the Civil Procedure Code, plaintiffs must bring their entire claim and every remedy enforceable in respect of that claim into Court at once; and, if they fail to do that in any suit, they cannot afterwards avail themselves of any remedy on which they have not chosen to insist in the first suit. Suits for enhanced rent, and suits for rent, are claims arising in respect of the same subject-matter, and a plaintiff cannot be allowed, after having unsuccessfully sued for rent at an enhanced rate, to sue for the original rent for previous years.—Kunnook Chunder Mookerjee v. Guru Dasa Biswas, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 919. [May 31, 1883.]

R PURCHASED two houses under the same sale-deed. Four years afterwards, he sued for possession of one of the houses, alleging that he had been dispossessed by the ancestor of the defendant. Subsequently he sued the same defendant for possession of the other, alleging that, at the time when he instituted the former suit, he had already been dispossessed of the house now in question, and by the same person. Held that although the plaintiff's title to both houses rested on the title acquired by him under one and the same sale-deed, yet the cause of action, viz., his ouster from the two houses on different occasions, gave rise to two separate causes of action, which he was not bound to join in the former suit, there being nothing in the Civil Procedure Code to compel him to do so. Jardine Skinner and Co. v. Ranees Shama Soonduree Debia (13 W. R. 196) and Ram Sunder Saha v. Delanney (20 W. R. 103) referred to.—Riazatullah Khan v. Nasir Khan, I. L. R., 6 All. 616. [July 8, 1884.]

43. Every suit shall include the whole of the claim which the plaintiff is entitled to make in respect of the cause of action; but a plaintiff may relinquish any portion of his claim in order to bring the suit within the jurisdiction of any Court.

If a plaintiff omit to sue in respect of, or intentionally relinquish, any portion of his claim, he shall not afterwards sue in respect of the portion so omitted or relinquished.

Relinquishment of part of claim.

Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

A person entitled to more than one remedy in respect of the same cause of action may sue for all or any of his remedies; but if he omits (except with the leave of the Court obtained before the first hearing) to sue for any of such remedies, he shall not afterwards sue for the remedy so omitted.

For the purpose of this section, an obligation and a collateral security for its performance shall be deemed to constitute but one cause of action.

Illustration.

A lets a house to B at a yearly rent of Rs. 1,200. The rent for the whole of the years 1881 and 1882 is due and unpaid. A sues B only for the rent due for 1882. A shall not afterwards sue B for the rent due for 1881.

S, as one of the heirs of his brother, sued the sons of M, the other heirs of M, for, amongst other things, a declaration of his right to share in the rights and interests of M as the mortgagee under a deed of mortgage, which he valued at the principal sum advanced under the mortgage, viz., Rs. 5,600, stating his cause of action to be the obstruction caused by the sons of M to his sharing in M's estate. He obtained a decree declaring his title to the share claimed. L, one of the sons of M, had fraudulently concealed from, and kept S in ignorance of, the fact that previously to the suit he had realised Rs. 8,624 under the mortgage. On this fact coming to S's knowledge, he sued the sons of M to recover his share of that sum. Held that the second suit was not barred by s. 7 of Act VIII. of 1859. Bulwant Singh v. Chittan Singh (H. C. R., N. W. P., 1871, p. 27) followed and observed on.—Lachman Singh v. Sanwal Singh, I. L. R., 1 All. 543. [Jan. 2, 1878.]

WHERE a plaintiff originally sued for a certain sum upon his khatta-books, and an objection was taken by the defendant that he ought to have sued upon a hatchitta, whereupon the plaintiff amended his plaint by suing for the amount admittedly due upon the hatchitta, in addition to the amount he claimed upon his khatta-books, held that, when the plaintiff amended his plaint by suing upon the hatchitta, his causes of action, which, when the suit was originally framed, were distinct, became united; that there was no relinquishment in the original suit within the terms of Act VIII. of 1859, s. 7 (corresponding with Act X. of 1877, s. 43); and that the plaint was rightly amended.—Ram Tarrun Koondoo v. Hossein Buksh, I. L. R., 3 Cal. 785. [April 5, 1878.]

HELD, where two suits were instituted simultaneously, and one of such suits had been determined, that, assuming that the claims in such suits arose out of the same cause of action, and should have been included in one suit, the provisions of s. 7 of Act VIII. of 1859 were no bar to the entertainment of the second suit.—Kaleshar Prasad v. Jagan Nath, I. L. R., 1 All. 650. [April 25, 1878.]

A, a Hindu widow, granted, without legal necessity, a mukarrari lease of certain mauzas, portion of her husband's estate, to B. During B's possession part of the lands comprised in the granted mauzas were taken up by Government, and the compensation-money was lodged in the collectorate. A having afterwards died, the next heirs of A's husband, on the 7th October 1871, sued B to recover possession of the mauzas, but, not being aware of the facts, did not, in that suit, claim the compensation-money lying in the collectorate. While this suit was still pending, B, in March 1872, drew the compensation-money out of the collectorate. The heirs, after obtaining a decree against B for possession of the mauzas, on the 13th September 1875, instituted a fresh suit against him to recover the compensation-money wrongfully drawn out by him from the collectorate. Held, first, that the suit was not barred by s. 7 of Act VIII. of 1859. Held also that it was not barred by limitation, although more than three years had elapsed since the money had been drawn out by B, art. 118 (and not art. 60) of sch. 2 of the Limitation Act (IX. of 1871) applying to the case. Held, further, that the claim of the heirs was a proper subject for a regular suit, and could not have been heard and determined in the course of the proceedings in execution of the decree which they had obtained against B for possession of the mauzas.—Nund Lal Bose v. Meer Aboo Mahomad, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 597. [July 14, 1879.]

D, BEING able to sue for the possession of certain property, omitted to do so, and sued in the first instance only for a declaration of her right to such property. The Court refusing to make any such declaration on the ground that she could sue for possession, D then sued for possession. Held that the second suit was not barred by s. 7 of Act VIII. of 1859. See also Tulsiram v. Gungaram (I. L. R., 1 All. 252).—Darbo v. Kesho Rai, I. L. R., 2 All. 356. [Aug. 13, 1879.]

THE obligee of a bond for the payment of money, hypothecating immoveable property as a collateral security for such payment, sued for the moneys due on the bond, but omitted to claim the enforcement of his lien, and obtained a decree only for the payment of the amount of the bond-debt. He subsequently sued to enforce his lien. Held that, under Act X. of 1877, s. 43, as amended by Act XII. of 1879, s. 7, he could not be permitted to sue to enforce his lien.—Gumani v. Ram Padarath Lal, I. L. R., 2 All. 838. [April 14, 1880.]

THE usufructuary mortgagee of certain land gave a lease of it to the mortgagor, the latter hypothecating the land as security for the payment of the rent. Arrears of rent accruing, the mortgagee sued the mortgagor for the same in the Revenue Court, and obtained a decree. Subsequently the mortgagee sued the mortgagor in the Civil Court to recover the amount of such decree by the sale of the land, claiming under the hypothecation. Held that the second suit was not barred by the provisions of s. 43 of Act X. of 1877.—Banda Hasan v. Abadi Begam, I. L. R., 4 All. 180. [May 6, 1880.]

A MORTGAGEE brought a suit against the mortgagor to have a declaration of his lien over the mortgaged properties, and obtained a decree. He afterwards brought another suit against certain attaching creditors of his mortgagor, to have a declaration of his lien over certain surplus moneys in the hands of the Collector, who, previous to the institution of the first suit, had sold certain of the mortgaged properties free of all incumbrances for arrears of Government revenue. Held that the second suit was not barred under Act VIII. of 1859, s. 7. Held also that the mortgage-decree declaring the lien over all the mortgaged properties covered the surplus sale-proceeds then in the hands of the Collector, because these moneys must, as between the mortgagee and attaching creditors of the mortgagor, be taken to represent the mortgaged properties. Heera Lall Chowdhry v. Jankee Nath Mookerjee (16 W. R. 222) followed. The doctrine of marshalling does not apply as between a mortgagee and attaching creditors of the mortgagor who hold mere money-decrees. The period of limitation prescribed by art. 15, sch. 2, Act IX., 1871, for a suit to set aside an order of a Civil Court, does not apply where the order simply amounts to a declaration that the Court considers it has no jurisdiction to act in the proceeding before it.—Kristodass Kundoo v. Ramkant Roy Chowdhry, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 142. [June 10, 1880.]

THE plaintiff held a mortgage of certain immoveable property given to him by the defendant to secure the repayment of a loan of money with interest. The plaintiff stated the fact of the mortgage, but prayed only for a money-decree. The mortgage contained a personal undertaking to repay. Plaintiff's counsel, directly upon the case being called on for hearing, and before the case had in any way been gone into, applied (under s. 43 of Act X. of 1877, Civil Procedure Code) for leave to reserve his remedies under the mortgage, taking then only a money-decree—an application which, it is provided by that section, must be made "before the first hearing." Held that the application was not too late. The said mortgage was dated 16th February 1870, and the plaintiff in this suit was filed on the 28th April 1881. The plaintiff maintained that he was not time-barred, as he had twelve years within which to bring the suit under art. 132 of sch. 2 of Act XV. of 1877. Held that the plaintiff was too late in bringing a suit for a money-decree on the promise to pay in the mortgage, inasmuch as the article referred to was meant to apply to suits brought to enforce against the property payment of "money charged upon immoveable property," and not, under any circumstances whatever, to a suit for a mere money-decree.—Pestonji Bezonji v. Abdool Rahiman Bin Shaik Budoo, I. L. R., 5 Bom. 463. [June 28, 1880.]

AT the close of the Bengali year 1283, which was on the 11th April 1877, the defendant owed to the plaintiff, his landlord, the rents of his holding for the years 1281, 1282, and 1283. The plaintiff, in the month of April 1878, before the close of the year 1284, instituted a suit for the rent for 1281 only, and obtained a decree. On the 10th April 1879, he instituted another suit for recovery of the rents for the years 1282, 1283, 1284. Held that the claim for the years 1282 and 1283 was barred under s. 43 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The cases of Raja Sutto Churn Ghosal v. Ohlay Nund Das (2 W. R., Act X., Rul. 31), Ram Soondar Sein v. Krishno Chunder Goopto (17 W. R. 380), and Kristo Kinker Puramanik v. Ramdhan Chattangia (24 W. R. 326), are overruled by s. 43 of Act X. of 1877.—Taruck Chunder Mookerjee v. Panchu Mohini Debya, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 791. [Feb. 17, 1881.]

THE plaintiffs sued the defendants for possession of the land upon which certain trees stood, and for such trees, stating that on the 19th June 1879 the defendants had interfered with their possession of such trees, and had wrongfully taken the fruit thereof. The plaintiffs subsequently sued the defendants for the value of the fruit upon such trees, alleging that on the 19th June 1879 the defendants had wrongfully taken such fruits. Held that, as the cause of action, i.e., the taking of such fruit, was in both suits identical, and the plaintiffs not having claimed the value of such fruit as mesne-profits in the first suit, the second suit was barred by the provisions of s. 43 of Act X. of 1877.—Debi Dial Singh v. Ajai Singh, I. L. R., 3 All. 543. [Mar. 7, 1881.]

ACCORDING to the terms of a mortgage, possession of the mortgaged property was to be delivered to the mortgagee, and he was to take the mesne-profits. The mortgagor refused to deliver possession of the property, and the mortgagee sued him to enforce specific performance of the contract to deliver possession, and obtained a decree. At the time this suit was brought, the mortgagee had been kept out of possession of the property for two years, during which time the mortgagor had taken the mesne-profits. The mortgagee subsequently sued the mortgagor to recover the mesne-profits of the mortgaged property for those two years. Held that, as the mortgagee might in the former suit, in addition to seeking the specific performance of the mortgage-contract, have asked for such mesne-profits by way of compensation for the breach of it, and as the claim for possession and mesne-profits was in respect of the same cause of action, viz., the breach of the contract to give possession, the second suit was barred by the provisions of s. 43 of Act X. of 1877.—Lalji Mal v. Hulasi, I. L. R., 3 All. 660. [Mar. 26, 1881.]

IN 1876 accounts were stated between B and D, and a balance of Rs. 800 was found to be due from D to B. D gave B an instrument whereby he agreed to pay the amount of such balance in four annual instalments of Rs. 200. B at the same time noted in his account-book that such balance was "payable in four instalments of Rs. 200 yearly."

In July 1879, B sued D upon such instrument for the balance of the first instalment. The Court trying this refused to receive such instrument in evidence on the ground that it was a promissory note, and as such was improperly stamped. Thereupon B applied for, and obtained, permission to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh one for the original debt. In October 1879, B again sued D, claiming the balance of the first and second instalments, basing his claim upon the note made by him in his account-book. He obtained a decree in this suit for the amount claimed by him. In 1880, B again sued D, claiming the amount of the third instalment, again basing his claim upon such note. Held by Spankie, J., that the suit last-mentioned was barred by the provisions of s. 43 of Act X. of 1877, inasmuch as B should, in the second suit brought by him against D, have claimed the balance of the money found due from D to him upon the accounts stated between them, instead of claiming the balance of the instalment due. Held by Oldfield, J., that such suit was not so barred, the cause of action therein and in the former suit being different. Held by the Court that the agreement by D to pay the balance found due from him to B on accounts stated between them in instalments of Rs. 200 annually could not be proved by the note made by B in his account-book, but could only be proved by the promissory note.—Benarsi Das v. Bhikhari Das, I. L. R., 3 All. 717. [April 4, 1881.]

A MORTGAGEE had two remedies in respect of the mortgagor's breach to pay the stipulated interest at the time fixed by the contract of mortgage, one being a suit on foreclosure-proceedings to convert the mortgage into a sale, and the other a suit to recover his money against his debtor by enforcement of his lien against the mortgaged property. He sued for the first remedy in respect of such breach, omitting the second. His suit was dismissed on the ground that he was not entitled to such remedy until the expiration of the mortgage-term. He afterwards sued for the second remedy. Held that inasmuch as the mortgagee was not, at the time of his suing for the first remedy, "a person entitled to more than one remedy," not being "entitled" to the first, but only to the second, his omission at that time to sue for the second remedy was not, under s. 43 of Act X. of 1877, a bar to his afterwards suing for it.—Piari v. Khiali Ram, I. L. R., 3 All. 857. [June 20, 1881.]

J had a right to share in a certain estate, as an heir to her father, and also as an heir to her brother. She transferred such right by sale to H. H sued S, who had acquired the whole estate by purchase at sales in execution of decrees against the other heirs of J's brother, for J's share as one of her brother's heirs in such estate, and obtained a decree. H then sued S for J's share as one of the father's heirs in such estate. Held that H was debarred from bringing the second suit by the provision of s. 43 of Act X. of 1877.—Shafkat-un-nissa v. Shib Sahai, I. L. R., 4 All. 171. [Dec. 20, 1881.]

A KARNAVAN of a Malabar tarwad, having a right at any time to demand restoration of the property of the tarwad in the hands of the anandravan, is not debarred by s. 13 or s. 43 from bringing a second suit to recover lands in the wrongful possession of an anandravan, either by the fact that in a former suit between the same parties the karnavan only laid claim to some of the lands sued for, or by the fact that the former suit was dismissed upon the joint petition of the parties, alleging a compromise and a surrender of the lands which, as a fact, were not surrendered, but wrongfully retained by the anandravan. An anandravan has no right to the value of improvements effected by him on tarwad property upon surrender to the karnavan when such improvements are not made with private funds.—Uramkumārath Kannan Nayar v. Uramkumārath Tenju Nayar, I. L. R., 5 Mad. 1. [Jan. 23, 1882.]

THE plaintiffs brought a suit to have themselves declared entitled to an account, and obtained such a declaratory decree without asking for, or obtaining, any consequential relief. The defendants took no steps to render an account, and the plaintiffs brought another suit against them "for the amount of such Company's papers and other debts that might be found due by the defendant on an adjustment of accounts." Held that the plaintiffs were not barred from bringing such suit, s. 15 of Act VIII. of 1859 being intended to modify the provisions of s. 7 of the same Act. Tulsi Ram v. Gunga Ram (I. L. R., 1 All. 252) followed and approved.—Kalidhun Chuttapadhya v. Shiba Nath Chuttapadhya, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 483. [Mar. 11, 1882.]

IF a person intentionally omit to sue for any portion of his claim, the provisions of s. 43 of Act X. of 1877, as well as the provisions of s. 7 of Act VIII. of 1859, bar the institution of a second suit for the portion so omitted. So that, where a family property consisted of lands as well as debts, and the plaintiff at first sued for a partition of debts only, and then compromised and withdrew the suit without the permission of the Court, it was held that his second suit to demand a partition of the whole property was not maintainable.—Ukhé v. Dagá, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 182. [Mar. 28, 1882.]

WHERE a previous suit for a declaration of title and confirmation of possession of certain land has been dismissed on the ground that the plaintiff was not in possession at the time of filing the suit, a subsequent suit on the same title for recovery of possession of the land is not barred under s. 43. Moonshee Buzloor Ruheem v. Shumsoonissa Begum (11 Moore's I. A. 551) discussed.—Jibunti Nath Khan v. Shib Nath Chuckerbutty, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 819. [Mar. 29, 1882.]

On the 27th Joist 1286 F. S. (2nd June 1879), the plaintiff brought a suit to recover damages for the breach of a contract on the part of the defendant, for not having made over possession to him of certain leasehold properties, the damages claimed being for the profits accrued due for the year 1283 F. S. (1875-6). In this suit he obtained a decree. On the 21st Joist 1287 F. S. (14th June 1880), the plaintiff brought another suit against the defendant to recover damages for the profits accrued for the years 1284, 1285 and 1286 F. S. (1876-7 to 1878-9). Held that the plaintiff should have included the damages for the years 1284 and 1285 (1876-7 and 1877-8) in his former suit, and that he was debarred by s. 43 of Act X. of 1877 from including in his second suit any portion of his claim for damages which had accrued due at the time of his first suit, and for which he had omitted to sue; but that he was entitled to recover damages for the year 1286 (1878-9). Taruck Chunder Mookerjee v. Panchu Mohini Dehya (I. L. R., 6 Cal. 791) followed.—Shoo Shunkur Sahoy v. Hriday Nairai, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 143. [April 14, 1882.]

UNDER s. 7, read with ss. 8, 9, and 10 of Act VIII. of 1859, a plaintiff suing for meane-profits of land is not precluded from afterwards maintaining a suit for possession of such land. Pratap Chandra Burua v. Ram Swarnamayi (4 B. L. R. 113) commented on.—Monohur Lall v. Gouri Sunkur, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 283. [July 17, 1882.]

On the 1st July 1878, there was a settlement of accounts between the plaintiff and defendants, and a debt was acknowledged due by the latter to the former; and, on the same day, the plaintiff and defendants entered into a trading partnership, which was carried on till August. On the 30th September the defendants extorted a release from the plaintiff, whereby the plaintiff's claims against them, arising out of the two transactions mentioned, and all other transactions between them, were released. On the 23rd November the plaintiff brought a suit against the defendants, and, in the plaint, after stating the fact of the settlement of 1st July 1878, the balance found due therein to the plaintiff, the extortion of the release, and the misappropriation of the sums due to the plaintiff by the defendants as the cause of action, prayed for cancellation of the release, and for recovery of the amount due to the plaintiff by the defendants under the settlement of 1st July 1878. Held, in a suit to wind up the partnership of July and August 1878, that the plaintiff was not bound by s. 43 of the Code of Civil Procedure to have included in his former suit his claim arising out of that partnership, and that the former suit, being in substance a suit upon the account stated on 1st July 1878, and not for damages for extorting the release, was no bar to the present suit.—Subbayya v. Venkatesappa, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 49. [Sep. 4, 1882.]

WHEN money is due on two or more bonds at the time of the institution of a suit, and the bonds appear to have been originally passed in respect of one claim, it is not incumbent upon the plaintiff to sue upon both bonds in one action. There is nothing in s. 43 of the Code of Civil Procedure which would justify the Court in going behind the bonds to consider the circumstances out of which they sprung, albeit those circumstances might themselves at the time have constituted a cause of action. There is no provision in the Mofussil Small Cause Courts Act (XI. of 1865), similar to s. 34 of the Presidency Small Cause Court Act (IX. of 1850), which forbids a plaintiff's dividing any cause of action for the sake of bringing two or more suits in the Small Cause Courts of the Presidency.—Umed Dholchand v. Pir Sahab Jivá Miyá, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 134. [Jan. 16, 1883.]

IN 1868 B made, it was alleged, a gift of a zamindari estate to K. In 1869 B died, and K's name was recorded in the revenue-registers in the place of B's name in respect of the estate. In 1870 K died, and her daughter S applied to have her name recorded in the revenue-registers in respect of the estate. M, the illegitimate son of B, objected, claiming to have his name recorded. His objection having been disallowed, and S's name having been recorded, M, in 1876, sued S for a declaration of his proprietary right to the estate, and, on the 29th June 1878, obtained such declaration. In January 1880, M sold a moiety of the estate, and, in December 1880, S sold the entire estate. In February 1881, M's transferees sued S and her transferee for possession of the moiety of the estate transferred to them by M. Held by the Full Bench (Stuart, C.J., dissenting) that such suit was not barred by the provisions of s. 7 of Act VIII. of 1859 by reason that M had omitted to claim in the suit of 1876 possession of the estate. Darbo v. Kesho Bai (I. L. R., 2 All. 356), and Kalidhun Chutturpadhya v. Shiba Nath Chutturpadhya (I. L. R., 3

Cal. 483), followed. Held also that the possession of S and her transferees could be considered adverse only from the date of the decree of the 29th June 1878, declaring M's proprietary title to the estate. Radha Gobind Roy v. Inglis (7 C. L. R. 364; 3 Suth. P. C. C. 809) referred to. Held by Stuart, C.J.—That such suit was barred by the provisions of s. 7 of Act VIII. of 1859 by reason of such omission. Darbo v. Kesho Rai (I. L. R., 2 All. 356) distinguished. The meaning of the term "relief" explained, and the distinction between it and the term "cause of action" pointed out.—Sarwati v. Kunj Behari Lal, I. L. R., 5 All. 345. [Feb. 22, 1883.]

HELD by the Full Bench (Stuart, C.J., dissenting) that the Courts of Revenue in the North-Western Provinces, in those matters of procedure upon which the Rent Act (XII. of 1881) of those Provinces is silent, are governed by the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code. The principle of decision in Nilmoni Singh Deo v. Taranath Mukerjee (I. L. R., 9 Cal. 295) followed. Held, therefore, that the procedure provided by ss. 43 and 373 of the Civil Procedure Code is applicable to suits tried under the N.-W. P. Rent Act, 1881.—Madho Prakash Singh v. Murli Manohar, I. L. R., 5 All. 406. [Mar. 17, 1883.]

In 1876, K sued M on a bond, dated 25th December 1869, for Rs. 5,000, by which certain land in the district of South Tanjore was hypothecated as security for the debt, and obtained a decree on the 6th of April 1876 for the sale of the lands, which he purchased on the 17th August 1876 for Rs. 6,000. K then discovered that part of the land hypothecated, situated within the jurisdiction of the Subordinate Court at Kumbakonam, had been acquired by a railway company under the Land Acquisition Act in 1874, and that the compensation, Rs. 560 (claimed by M's mother, who sold the land to the company), was lodged in the treasury of Kumbakonam in the name of M's mother. K having applied to the Subordinate Court for an order for payment out of this sum, the Court, by order dated 28th February 1880, directed that the question of title to the money should be decided by suit. K then sued M as the sole heir of his deceased mother in the District Munsif's Court of Tiruvadi (where M resided) for a declaration of right to, and to recover, the said sum of Rs. 460. The suit was filed on the 4th September 1880. On the 16th April 1880, M assigned his interest in the money sued for to V, who was made defendant in the suit on his own application, and pleaded (1) that the Court had no jurisdiction, as both the money and the land which it represented were, and he (V) resided, without the Munsif's Court's jurisdiction; (2) that the land having been acquired by the railway company in 1874, before the suit upon the bond was filed, this suit was barred by s. 43 of the Code of Civil Procedure; (3) that this suit was barred by limitation, inasmuch as more than three years had elapsed since the money was paid by the railway company. Held (1) that the suit was for money, and that V, not having applied to stay proceedings under s. 20 of the Code of Civil Procedure, must be held to have acquiesced in the jurisdiction of the Court; (2) that K not having known, at the date of his suit on the bond of the acquisition of the land by the railway company, this suit is not barred by s. 43 of the Code of Civil Procedure; (3) that the suit was not barred by limitation, as the compensation was awarded to M's mother either through fraud on her part or mistake on the part of the Collector, and K did not become aware of the fraud or mistake until within six years of the suit (arts. 95, 96, of sch. 2 of the Indian Limitation Act).—Viraragava v. Krishnasami, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 314. [April 6, 1883.]

WHERE there has been a suit between an agriculturist-mortgagor and his mortgagee for an account merely, a subsequent suit for possession on payment of the money declared to be due is barred under either s. 13 or s. 43 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Bháu Balaji v. Hari Nilkanthráv, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 377. [April 17, 1883.]

A BOND provided for the repayment of a loan with interest by a stated time. In default of payment by that time it was provided that the loan might be added to an existing mortgage for a term of years, and repaid at the end of the term, together with the mortgage-debt. After the expiration of the time fixed for the repayment of the loan, the obligee sued and obtained a decree for the interest which had accrued due at the date of the suit. He now sued for the further interest which had since become due. Held that the second suit was not barred by s. 43 of the Code of Civil Procedure, for that the first suit being for interest merely, and not for principal and interest, which were then both due, the plaintiff must be taken to have elected, under the bond, to add the principal sum to the previously existing mortgage-debt, in which case he forfeited nothing by suing merely for arrears of interest as they became due.—Shri Shailáji v. Baláji Lokanna, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 446. [July 11, 1883.]

PETITIONERS filed two suits in a Small Cause Court on the same day to recover rents due for two successive years under the same lease. The sum of the two claims exceeded the pecuniary limit of the Court's jurisdiction. The suit for the rent of the first year was dismissed under s. 43 of the Code of Civil Procedure, on the ground that the claim ought to have been included in the suit for the second year's rent. Held that, as petitioners had no intention of abandoning either claim, the proper course was to allow them to withdraw both suits, and file a fresh suit in a competent Court.—Alaju v. Abdoola, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 147. [Dec. 5, 1884.]

S. 7 of Act VIII. of 1859 required that every suit should include the whole of the claim arising out of the cause of action, meaning the whole of the claim arising out of the cause of action upon which the suit was brought, not that every suit should include every cause of action, or every claim, which the plaintiff had against the defendant. Accordingly, where a plaintiff had sued to obtain his share of an estate in land, in consequence of having been wrongfully dispossessed by the defendant, whom he afterwards in the present suit sued for his share of personal property, being entitled to both under a will, it was held that the subsequent suit was not barred by reason of the non-claim in the prior one. The claim in respect of the personally had not arisen out of the cause of action, which existed in consequence of the wrongful dispossession; the case was not like one of the conversion of several things; and the causes of action were distinct.—Munshilal Zloor Rahim v. Shansoonissa Begum (11 M. I. A. 553) referred to.—Pittapur Raja v. Suriya Rao, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 520. [Feb. 25, 1885.]

A RECORDED co-sharer of a mahál sued the lambardár for his share of the profits of the mahál for the year 1286 fasli. At the time of the institution of the suit the profits for 1287 and 1288 fasli also were due, but no claim was then made in respect of them. The suit was struck off on account of the non-appearance of the parties under s. 140 of Act XII. of 1881 (N. W. P. Rent Act), with leave to the plaintiff to bring a fresh suit. Subsequently, the plaintiff brought a suit against the same defendant for his share of the profits of the mahál for 1287 and 1288 fasli. Held that the suit was not barred by the provisions of s. 43 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held also that the Courts below had properly refused to deduct from the plaintiff's claim as "village-expenses," within the meaning of s. 93 (A) of the Rent Act, certain charges on account of the expenses of cultivation of air land held in partnership by the plaintiff and the defendant.—Mulchand v. Bhikari Das, I. L. R., 7 All. 624. [Mar. 6, 1885.]

A TESTATOR bequeathed all his property to his nephew, in which he included the share of his brother's widow in the ancestral property; but at the same time made a suitable provision for her maintenance and worship. The widow at first sued for and obtained the allowance allotted to her under the will, and afterwards brought a suit for a share in the ancestral property. Held that, although, having regard to the doctrine of election (Succession Act, s. 172), the widow was precluded from again bringing a suit for a share of the ancestral property, it could not be said that the suit was barred under the provisions of s. 43 of the Code of Civil Procedure, inasmuch as the two claims were distinct and indeed inconsistent, and did not arise out of the same cause of action.—Pramada Dasi v. Lakhi Narain Mitter, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 60. [June 12, 1885.]

A DECREE for damages in a suit instituted on 2nd June 1879 (27th Joist 1286 F.) on a breach of contract for not having given possession of land according to the terms of a zari-peshgi patta, awarded the profits of the land for 1283 F., which would have been received by the plaintiff had the contract been performed. The decree-holder then brought the present suit (14th June 1880 or 21st Joist 1287 F.) for damages for the breach of the same contract, claiming the profits accrued during 1284, 1285, and 1286 F. (1876-79). Held that the High Court had rightly decided that, in regard to Act X. of 1877, s. 43, the plaintiff could not recover so much of the profits as had already accrued at the date of the institution of the prior suit, inasmuch as the claim in respect of such profits might have been included therein, viz., the profits for the two years 1284 and 1285 F., which had expired when that suit was brought.—Madan Mohan Lal v. Lala Sheosanker Sahai, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 482. [July 1, 1885.]

THE plaintiff sued under the provisions of Act X. of 1859 to recover arrears of rent for the years 1287, 1288, and 1289 (1880-82), after having obtained a decree for the rent due for the year 1286 (1879) in a suit instituted after the rent for the year 1289 (1882) had become due. Held that the provisions of s. 43 of the Civil Procedure Code applied, and that the second suit was consequently barred. Madho Prakash Singh v. Murli Manohar (I. L. R., 5 All. 405) cited and approved; Taruck Chunder Mookerjee v. Panchu Mohiny Dehya (I. L. R., 6 Cal. 791) cited.—Adhirani Narain Kumari v. Raghu Mahapatro, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 60. [July 22, 1885.]

WHEN a suit for a declaration of title and confirmation of possession of certain land has been dismissed on the ground that the plaintiff was not in possession of the land at the time of instituting the suit, a subsequent suit on the same title to recover possession is not barred under s. 43 of the Civil Procedure Code. A cause of action consists of the circumstances and facts which are alleged by the plaintiff to exist, and which, if proved, will entitle him to the relief or to some part of the relief prayed for, and is to be sought for within the four corners of the plaint.—Jibunti Nath Khan v. Shib Nath Chuckerbutty (I. L. R., 8 Cal. 819) followed.—Nonoo Singh Monda v. Anand Singh Monda, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 291. [Aug. 14, 1885.]

Per GARTH, C.J.—A claim for the price of goods sold is a cause of action of a different nature from a claim for damages for non-acceptance of goods pursuant to a contract. Such claims, therefore, although arising under one and the same contract, may be sued upon separately, s. 43 of the Code of Civil Procedure notwithstanding. Per Wilson, J.—Where there is one contract for the purchase of goods, and the purchaser takes some of the goods, but breaks his contract in part by not paying for the goods he takes, and in part by not taking and paying for the remainder, and both breaches occur before any suit is brought, the claim of the person suing is one arising out of one cause of action; and the whole claim must be included in one suit. Anderson, Wright, and Co. v. Kalagariga Surjinaraian, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 339. [Sep. 5, 1885.]

N BEING mortgagee in possession of five-eighths of a pangu (share) of certain land—security for a debt of Rs. 400—hypothecated his rights to M in 1876. In 1878 K bought two-eighths of the said five-eighths from the mortgagor. In 1879, K sued N, claiming possession of his two-eighths on payment of Rs. 400, and obtained a decree and possession thereof. Pending this suit, N assigned his mortgage to M. M was aware of the suit, and K was aware of the assignment when he paid Rs. 400 into Court for N. In 1883, K bought the remaining three-eighths from the mortgagor, and sued N and M to recover possession thereof. M pleaded that the suit was barred by s. 13 of the Code of Civil Procedure, inasmuch as K might have recovered the five-eighths in the suit against N. Held that this plea was bad. M also pleaded that he had a valid mortgage over three-eighths. Held, by Muttusami Ayyar, J., that, if the assignment of the mortgage by N to M was a real transaction, this plea was good. Per Muttusami Ayyar, J.—The doctrine of lis pendens can only be relied on as a protection of the plaintiff's right to property actually sought to be recovered in the suit.—Brahmanayaki v. Krishna, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 92. [Sep. 25, 1885.]

UPON a settlement of accounts between the plaintiff and defendants, Rs. 3,985-6-9 was found due by the defendants, who agreed to pay the same. They gave to plaintiff an order on their agents to pay Rs. 2,500 from the profits of certain land, and promised to pay the balance within a month. Plaintiff filed two suits, one for Rs. 2,500, and the other for the balance of the debt. Defendants pleaded that both suits should be dismissed, as brought in contravention of the requirements of s. 43 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The Lower Courts held that there were two distinct causes of action, and decreed both claims. Held, on second appeal, that plaintiff had only one cause of action, and that the decree in one of the suits must be reversed.—Appasami v. Ramasami, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 279. [Mar. 8, 1886.]

IN 1874 the plaintiff leased certain immoveable property to the defendant, and the latter executed a deed by which he covenanted to pay the annual rent and fulfil other conditions of the lease, and gave security, in Rs. 3,000 by mortgage of landed property. In 1871 the plaintiff obtained decree in the Revenue Court for arrears of rent, and the decrees were partially satisfied and then became barred by limitation. In 1884 the plaintiff brought a suit to recover the balance due by enforcement of the mortgage security against the purchasers of the mortgaged property. Held that the plaintiff had two separate rights of action, one on the contract to pay rent, and the other on the mortgage security; that he could only enforce the first by a suit in the Revenue Court for arrears of rent, and the second by suit in the Civil Court; and consequently there could be no bar to the latter suit by reason of the suit instituted in the Revenue Court, with reference to s. 43 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held also that when the plaintiff obtained his decrees for rent the mortgage security did not merge in the judgment-debts, nor did he lose his remedy on it; that the two rights were distinct, and the right of action on the mortgage security was not lost because the execution of the decrees for rent was time-barred, the only effect of which was that the debt was not recoverable in execution, but the debt existed nevertheless so far as to enable the amount secured by mortgage to be recovered by suit in the Civil Court, so long as such suits were not barred by limitation. Emam Mumtaz-ood-deen Mahomed v. Rajvoomar Dass (15 B. L. R. 408), referred to. Held also that the amount which the plaintiff could recover by enforcement of the mortgage security was limited to Rs. 3,000.—Chunni Lal v. Banasput Singh, I. L. R., 9 All. 23. [Aug. 2, 1886.]

ON the 5th September 1874, R, a Hindu, and his sons, borrowed Rs. 5,000 from V, and mortgaged to him certain land, items 1, 2, and 3. On the 7th September 1874, V borrowed Rs. 5,000 from R, N, and mortgaged his rights in items 1 and 2 and land of his own to R N., In 1877 R N bought, at a sale in execution of a decree against R, the share of R in the said items 1 and 2 subject to the mortgage created by R on 5th September 1874, and to another mortgage created by R on 11th January 1875. In 1880, R N sued V and the sons of R for arrears of interest due under his mortgage-bond. This suit was withdrawn with liberty to bring a fresh suit for the principal and interest due under the bond. In 1885, R N sued the sons of R and V to recover principal and interest due under his mortgage-bond. V pleaded that, as R N had bought R's share in items 1 and 2 subject to the mortgages created by him, R N's rights as mortgagee were merged in his rights as purchaser. R's sons pleaded, inter alid, that the suit was barred by the provisions of ss. 43 and 373 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Held that the claim of R N was neither merged nor barred.—Venkata v. Ranga, I. L. R., 10 Mad. 160. [Jan. 11, 1887.]

such, shall be joined with claims by or against him personally, unless the last-mentioned claims are alleged to arise with reference to the estate in respect of which the plaintiff or defendant sues or is sued as executor, administrator, or heir, or are such as he was entitled to, or liable for, jointly, with the deceased person whom he represents.

THE plaintiff sued for specific performance of an agreement, in writing, which set forth (inter alid) that the defendants had agreed to sell, &c., under certain conditions as agreed upon. The defendants alleged that the written agreement did not contain the whole of the agreement between the parties, and offered parol evidence in support of their contention. Held (reversing the judgment of Wilson, J.) that the parol evidence was admissible to show what was meant by the clause "certain conditions as agreed upon." Per Pontifex, J. (Garth, C.J., dissenting).—The evidence was admissible under proviso 1, s. 92 of the Evidence Act (I. of 1872). Discussion as to the meaning of s. 3 of the Evidence Act and of ss. 17, 22, and 26 of the Specific Relief Act. Per Pontifox, J.—It is of the essence of specific performance that part only of an agreement should not be performed. Part of the purchase-money had been advanced by the plaintiffs to the defendants, for which the defendants had given their promissory notes; and the plaint contained a prayer that the defendants be ordered to pay over the amount of the notes. Held (affirming the decision of Wilson, J.) that there was no misjoinder of causes of action within the meaning of s. 44, rule a, of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act X. of 1877).—Cutts (G. M.) v. Brown (T. F.), I. L. R., 6 Cal. 328. [Aug. 11, 1880.]

In the mufassal of this presidency the transfer of the ownership of immoveable property to a vendee who has obtained a decree ordering the specific performance of the contract of sale to himself does not wait for the execution of a conveyance—even if the vendor is required, as he seldom is, to execute such a conveyance—but is affected by the passing of the decree itself, coupled with the payment of the purchase-money. A entered into an agreement with B for the purchase of moveable and immoveable property, and paid a deposit. Under such an agreement, by s. 85 of the Indian Contract Act, the ownership of the moveable property would not pass before the transfer of the immoveable property. B, instead of conveying to A the property agreed to be conveyed to him, conveyed it to C, and put him, C, in possession. A brought a suit against C and B, and obtained a decree, setting aside the conveyance to C, and ordering B specifically to perform his contract and execute a conveyance of the property to himself, A. This decree was confirmed on appeal. B refusing to execute the conveyance to A, the conveyance was executed by the Court under the provisions of s. 202 of Act VIII. of 1859. C still detaining possession of the moveable and immoveable property in question, A brought this suit against him to recover possession of the same. The suit was brought within three years of the final decree of the Court of Appeal in the former suit, ordering a conveyance of the property to be executed to A, but not within three years of the date of agreement to purchase, and it was contended that as to the moveable property the suit was time-barred. Held that the suit for the possession of the moveable property was not time-barred, as the right to possession of both moveable and immoveable property accrued to A, at the earliest, on the date of the final decree for specific performance of the agreement of sale, and it was from that time that the "detainer's possession" first became unlawful under art. 49, sub. 2 of Act XV. of 1877. An objection that the plaintiff has joined together causes of action which, by s. 44 of the Civil Procedure Code, may not be joined together without leave first obtained, is taken too late if it is taken for the first time in the Court of Appeal after the case has been already heard on its merits.—Dhondiba Krishnáji Pátel v. Rámolandra Bhagvata, I. L. R., 5 Bom. 554. [Mar. 2, 1881.]

S. 44 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1877, does not forbid the joinder of several causes of action entitling the plaintiff to the recovery of immoveable property, but a joinder with such causes of action of other causes of action of a different character except in the cases therein specified.—Chidambara Pillai v. Rámásámi Pillai, I. L. R., 5 Mad. 161. [April 4, 1882.]

A PLAINTIFF sued on the 26th February 1881 for specific performance of a contract entered into on the 1st March 1878 by defendant No. 1, and joined in that suit as a defendant a third person, who alleged that he was the owner of the property, the subject of the contract, seeking to obtain possession and other relief as against such third person, stating that he was a benamidár of defendant No. 1. Such third person contended in his written statement that the suit was multifarious, but the point was not decided in the lower Courts. On second appeal, such third person contended that the discretion given to the Court under s. 22 of the Specific Relief Act ought not to be exercised, as the plaintiff had slept on his rights for nearly three years; and also contended that the suit was multifarious, and that he ought not to have been made a party thereto. Held that although the principle of the objection, as to the delay of the plaintiff in bringing his suit, was an important one, and one which ought to be considered by the Courts in the exercise of their judicial discretion under s. 22 of the Specific Relief Act, yet the point not having been taken in the Courts below, and there being nothing on the record to lead the Court to presume that the ordinary rule applicable to suits of this nature had been disregarded in the Courts below, the objection ought not, under the circumstances, to be allowed to prevail in second appeal. Held also, per Mitter, J. (Pigot, J., dissenting), that as regards the objection to the suit for misjoinder, and under s. 44 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the Appeal Court was precluded by s. 578 of the Code from reversing the decree of the lower Court, as the error (if an error at all) could not affect the merits of the decision. Held also that the principle laid down in the cases of De Houghton v. Money (L. R., 2 Cal. App. 166), and Luckumsey Ookerda v. Fazulla Cassumabhoi (I. L. R., 5 Bom. 177), is only applicable where, from the plaintiff's case, it appears that a third party, not a party to the contract, has a distinct interest from that of the other parties to the contract, which interest is sought to be declared null and void. Mokund Lall v. Chotay Lall, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 1061. [Sep. 2, 1884.]

No appeal lies under any of the provisions of s. 588 of the Civil Procedure Code from an order under s. 44, rule a, rejecting an application for leave to join another cause of action with a suit for the recovery of immoveable property. In a plaint filed in the Court of a Subordinate Judge the plaintiff claimed to recover possession of a house, together with some grain which was stored in it. The plaintiff applied to the Subordinate Judge for leave under s. 44, rule a, of the Civil Procedure Code, to join the claim for grain with the claim for possession of the house. The Subordinate Judge refused leave, and returned the plaint, with directions that the plaintiff should institute two suits, for recovery of the house and the grain respectively, in the Court of the Munsif. Held that the Subordinate Judge's order was substantially an order rejecting the plaint, on the ground that the plaintiff had joined a cause of action with a suit for recovery of immoveable property; that, although this might have been a misapplication of s. 44, rule a, of the Code, its effect was to reject the plaint; that such an order was a decree with reference to the definition in s. 2, and was appealable as such to the District Judge; and that, therefore, a second appeal lay in the case to the High Court, and that Court was not competent to interfere in revision under s. 622.—Bandhan Singh v. Solhu, I. L. R., 8 All. 191. [Feb. 18, 1886.]

AN objection to the attachment and sale of certain immoveable property, raised by one who claimed to have purchased the same at a sale in execution of a prior decree, was disallowed on the ground that, under the prior decree, the rights of one only of the present judgment-debtors had been sold and purchased by the objector. In accordance with this order, two-thirds of the property under attachment were sold; and the objector thereupon brought a regular suit for a declaration of his right as a purchaser of the whole property in execution of the prior decree. To this suit he impleaded as defendants the decree-holder and the judgment-debtors. The suit was decreed, and in the result the decree-holder alone was compelled to pay the whole of the costs. Subsequently he brought a suit for contribution in respect of these costs, making defendants to the suit (1) B, one of his co-defendants in the previous suit, personally and as heir of A, who was another of those co-defendants; (2) N; and (3) S: these two being sued in the character of heirs of A. Held, with reference to a plea of misjoinder within the terms of rule 6 of s. 44 of the Civil Procedure Code, that even if there were misjoinder of parties, the first Court, having proceeded to trial of the suit, and not having rejected the plaint or returned it for amendment or amended it, should have disposed of it upon the merits, and found what A's share in the amount paid by the plaintiff was, and whether assets to that amount had come to the hands of the defendants as her heirs.—Kishna Ram v. Rakmini Sewak Singh, I. L. R., 9 All. 221. [Jan. 5, 1887.]

45. Subject to the rules contained in Chapter II. and in s. 44, the plaintiff may join several causes of action against the same defendant, or the same defendants jointly; and any plaintiffs having causes of action in which they are jointly interested against the same defendant, or the same defendants jointly, may unite such causes of action in the same suit. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

But if it appear to the Court that any such causes of action cannot be conveniently tried or disposed of together, the Court may, at any time before the first hearing, of its own motion, or on the application of any defendant, or at any subsequent stage of the suit, if the parties agree, order separate trials of any such causes of action to be had, or make such other order as may be necessary or expedient for the separate disposal thereof.

When causes of action are united, the jurisdiction of the Court as regards the suit shall depend on the amount or value of the aggregate subject-matters at the date of instituting the suit, whether or not an order has been made under the second paragraph of this section.

IN a suit instituted against six different parties, plaintiff prayed for his possession of a four-anna share in a certain lot, or, in the alternative, for a decree for arrears of rent against the defendants, or such of the defendants as should, on inquiry, appear to be respectively liable. It appeared that plaintiff had been kept out of possession by one only of the six defendants, and that, if he was entitled to a decree for arrears of rent, another of the defendants was liable for a portion only of such arrears. Held (with reference to Act X. of 1877, ss. 31 and 45) that the suit was not improperly framed; that there was no objection to the prayer for alternative relief; and that the suit should not have been dismissed for joinder of causes of action.—Janakinath Mookerjee v. Ramrunjun Cluckerbutty, I. L. R., 4 Cal. 949. [Jan. 17, 1879.]

A STRANGER to a contract of which specific performance is sought cannot be a party to the suit. Where, therefore, the plaintiff, sued as against one defendant for specific performance of a contract to sell land, and as against another for a declaration that he was not entitled to any charge upon the said lands, held that the latter defendant was improperly made a party to the suit.—Luckumsey Ookerda v. Fazulla Cassumbhoy, I. L. R., 5 Bom. 177. [Dec. 20, 1880.]

THE sons of R and of K and of S possessed proprietary rights in two maháls of a certain mauza. P possessed proprietary rights in one of those maháls. In April 1879, the sons of R sold their proprietary rights in both maháls to G. In August 1879, the sons of K sold their proprietary rights in both maháls to G. Later in the same month the sons of S sold their proprietary rights in both maháls to N. G sued N to enforce a right of pre-emption in respect of the sale to the latter, and obtained a decree. P then sued to enforce a right of pre-emption in respect of the three sales mentioned above, so far as they related to the mahál of which he was a co-sharer, joining as defendants G and N and the vendors to them. G alone objected in the Court of first instance to the frame of the suit. That Court overruled the objection, and gave P a decree. The lower Appellate Court reversed this decree on the ground of misjoinder. Held that in respect of G there was no misjoinder, but that in respect of the other defendant there was misjoinder of both causes of action and parties. Inasmuch as, however, G alone objected to the frame of the suit, and the defect did not affect the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court, the lower Appellate Court ought not, regard being had to s. 578 of Act X. of 1877, to have reversed the decree of the Court of first instance by reason of such defect.—Kalian Singh v. Gur Dayal, I. L. R., 4 All. 163. [Dec. 14, 1881.]

DEFENDANT No. 1, the tenant of certain land at fixed rates, on the 12th November 1877, sold his interest in the land to the plaintiff. At the time of the sale the land was in the actual possession of defendant No. 2, defendant No. 1's sub-tenant, against whom, however, defendant No. 1 had obtained an order for ejectment on the 25th June preceding. On the 25th March 1878, defendant No. 1 applied a second time for the ejectment of defendant No. 2, and while this matter was pending the plaintiff endeavoured to obtain possession of the land, but was resisted by defendant No. 2. He thereupon instituted a charge of criminal trespass against the latter. This criminal proceeding was pending when, on the 14th September 1878, defendant No. 1 obtained a second order for defendant No. 2's ejectment. Under this order he obtained possession of the land, and also of the crops planted by defendant No. 2, which he sold to defendant No. 3 on the 22nd September 1878. On the 25th of the same month the plaintiff's charge of criminal trespass against defendant No. 2 was dismissed, on the ground that defendant No. 1 was in possession, and the plaintiff had never obtained possession under his purchase. Defendant No. 1 subsequently let the land to defendant No. 4. The plaintiff, alleging that three causes of action had accrued to him—viz., on the 12th November 1877, the date of the sale to him; (2) on the 30th March 1878, when defendant No. 1 applied a second time for the ejectment of defendant No. 2;—and (3) on the 22nd September 1878, when defendant No. 1 took possession of the land—sued defendants Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4, claiming (1) possession of the land as against them all; (2) mesne-profits by way of damages for the year 1285 Fasli (September 1877—September 1878) as against defendants Nos. 1 and 2; (3) mesne-profits by way of damages for 1286 Fasli (September 1878—September 1879) against defendants Nos. 1 and 3; and (4) mesne-profits by way of damages for 1287 Fasli (September 1879—September 1880) against defendants Nos. 1 and 4. Held by the Full Bench (Mahmood, J., dissenting) that the Court of first instance had properly rejected the plaint, the suit being open to the objection that different causes of action against different defendants separately had been joined, for which procedure no sanction was to be found in the Code of Civil Procedure.—Narsingh Das v. Mangal Dubey, I. L. R., 5 All. 163. [Aug. 26, 1882.]

S. 26 of the Code of Civil Procedure does not authorise the joinder of plaintiffs with antagonistic claims arising out of distinct causes of action. Where one of two widows of a deceased Hindú and her adopted son sued as co-plaintiffs, claiming in the alternative either to recover the whole family-estate for the latter, if the adoption was valid, or, if the adoption was invalid, one-half of the estate for the former, held that the suit was bad for misjoinder. Held also that when such misjoinder had been allowed, and the suit decided, and an appeal brought, the Court of Appeal should dispose of the suit in the mode in which the lower Court ought to have disposed of it, by returning the plaint for amendment. Farzand Ali v. Yusuf Ali (I. L. R., 2 All. 669) dissented from.—Lingammál v. Venkatammál, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 239. [Dec. 22, 1882.]

THE plaintiffs sued for a declaration that the several alienations made by defendant No. 1 (a Hindú widow) to the other defendants were void, and that they (the plaintiffs) were entitled to the several properties after her death; also for an injunction, restraining her from making similar unlawful alienations in the future. Held that the suit as framed was not maintainable, inasmuch as it included within it several distinct causes of action, which, under s. 45 of Act X. of 1877, could not be joined together in the same suit. The course which should be adopted by a Court or Judge, where there has been such a misjoinder of causes of action, discussed.—Kachár Bhoj v. Báí Báthore, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 289. [Feb. 22, 1883.]

TWO co-sharers of a village, holding separate shares, sold their shares separately to the same person, upon which a third co-sharer of the village sued them and the vendor jointly to enforce his right of pre-emption in respect of the sales. Held that the frame of the suit was bad by reason of misjoinder of defendants and causes of action, and the suit had been properly dismissed on that ground.—Bhagwati Prasad Gir v. Bindeshri Gir, I. L. R., 6 All. 106. [Nov. 19, 1883.]

C SUE D P to recover possession of certain lands. The plaintiff and defendant were members of the same family, and at the hearing of the suit the appellants, who were also members of the family, applied to be made parties, alleging that the suit was collusive, and that they were in possession of some of the lands which the plaintiff sought to recover, and wished to defend their possession. The Subordinate Judge granted their application, and made them co-defendants in the suit. They filed written statements setting forth their right, and time was allowed in order that the plaintiff might put in a counter statement. Before the case came on again, the Subordinate Judge had been removed, and his successor was of opinion that the causes of action, as against the original defendant P and as against the new defendants (the appellants), were different, and ought to be the subject of different suits. He accordingly dismissed the appellants from the suit under s. 45 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), and ordered that they should bear their own costs. Held on appeal to the High Court that the order dismissing the appellants from the suit should be reversed, and that s. 45 did not apply. When the parties concerned, though in different relation, in a particular litigation, are all before the Court, and their cases have been stated, the Court, if it finds the several causes as being plaintiff and the several defendants cannot properly or conveniently be tried together, should deal with them separately as sub-suits under the title and number of the principal suit from which they spring. The dismissal of defendants added without objection, or the addition of whom has been submitted to, is not contemplated, and would tend to further needless expense. The power given by s. 45 does not extend to an order for the dismissal of defendants, and that a fresh suit should be brought against them. Such an order would not be one for the "separate disposal" of the several causes of action; it would be an order preventing the disposal of them in the suit before the Court. S. 45 is meant to apply to cases in which questions arise as to the joinder or severance of several causes of action against the same defendant. For non-joinder or misjoinder of parties provision is made in s. 32, and the plaintiff had not resisted the joinder of the appellants as defendants. The Subordinate Judge could only strike out the name of a party upon an application being made, and no such application had been made.—Khādar Sāheb v. Chotibibi, I. L. R., 8 Bom. 616. [July 28, 1884.]

WHERE a suit was brought by a Hindu for partition of family-property against his father, brothers, and fifteen others, to whom, it was alleged, the father had improperly alienated numerous parcels of the said property at different times, held that the better course was for the Court to have ordered, under s. 45 of the Code of Civil Procedure, separate trials to be held in respect of each alienation. In a suit brought by a Hindu to contest an alienation of family property made by his father, the onus of proving that the alienation is binding on the son lies upon those who claim the benefit of the alienation.—Subramanya v. Sadasiva, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 75. [Oct. 27, 1884.]

S SUED K for four bonds, alleging that the same had been satisfied. K had formerly sued S on two of these bonds. S had alleged in defence of that suit that those two bonds, as also the other two, had been satisfied. It was decided in that suit that not one of the bonds had been satisfied. Held by Petheram, C.J., and Oldfield, Brodhurst, and Duthoit, J.J., that the only issue in the former suit which had to be decided being whether the bonds on which that suit was brought, had been satisfied or not, the second suit was, under s. 13 of the Civil Procedure Code, res judicata only in respect of those bonds, and not in respect of the other two bonds. The Court which tried the former suit had not jurisdiction to try the subsequent suit. Per Muhmood, J.—This being so, if the word "suit" in s. 13 were taken literally, it might, with some plausibility, be contended that there was no res judicata in respect of any of the bonds. The word "suit," however, must be understood to mean such a matter as might have formed the subject of a separate suit independently of the special provisions of the Civil Procedure Code, such as s. 45, which enables the plaintiff to unite several causes of action in one and the same suit. Adopting this interpretation, it was clear that the two bonds which were the subject of the former suit could not be allowed to form the subject of litigation again. As to the other two bonds, which were not the subject-matter of the former suit, they did not, in the former suit, constitute a matter "directly and substantially in issue," within the meaning of s. 13; and even if they were "directly and substantially in issue," the decision in the former suit would not support the plea of res judicata, because the Court which tried that suit was not a Court of jurisdiction competent to try the subsequent suit in which the plea was raised.—Sheoraj Rai v. Kashi Nath, I. L. R., 7 All. 247. [Dec. 13, 1884.]

46. Any defendant, alleging that the plaintiff has united in the same suit several causes of action which cannot be conveniently disposed of in one suit, may, at any time before the first hearing, or, where issues are settled, before any evidence is recorded, apply to the Court for an order confining the suit to such of the causes of action as may be conveniently disposed of in one suit.

Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

47. If, on the hearing of such application, it appears to the Court that the causes of action are such as cannot all be Court, on hearing application, may exclude some causes, conveniently disposed of in one suit, the Court and order amendment. may order any of such causes of action to be excluded, and may direct the plaint to be amended accordingly, and may make such order as to costs as may be just.

Every amendment made under this section shall be attested by the signature of the Judge.

CHAPTER V.

OF THE INSTITUTION OF SUITS.

Ditto. Suits to be commenced by plaintiff. 48. Every suit shall be instituted by presenting a plaint to the Court or such officer as it appoints in this behalf.

Ditto. 49. The plaint must be distinctly written in the language of the Court; provided that, if such language is not English, the Language of plaint. plaint may (with the permission of the Court) be written in English; but in such case, if the defendant so require, a translation of the plaint into the language of the Court shall be filed in Court.

Ditto. Particulars to be contained in plaint. 50. The plaint must contain the following particulars:—

- (a) the name of the Court in which the suit is brought;
- (b) the name, description, and place of residence of the plaintiff;
- (c) the name, description, and place of residence of the defendant, so far as they can be ascertained;
- (d) a plain and concise statement of the circumstances constituting the cause of action, and where and when it arose;
- (e) a demand of the relief which the plaintiff claims; and
- (f) if the plaintiff has allowed a set-off or relinquished a portion of his claim, the amount so allowed or relinquished.

In money-suits. If the plaintiff seeks the recovery of money, the plaint must state the precise amount so far as the case admits.

In a suit for mesne-profits, and in a suit for the amount which will be found due to the plaintiff on taking unsettled accounts between him and the defendant, the plaint need only state approximately the amount sued for.

When the plaintiff sues in a representative character, the plaint should Where plaintiff sues as representative. shew, not only that he has an actual existing interest in the subject-matter, but that he has taken the steps necessary to enable him to institute a suit concerning it.

Illustrations.

- (a.) A sues as B's executor. The plaint must state that A has proved B's will.
- (b.) A sues as C's administrator. The plaint must state that A has taken out administration to C's estate.
- (c.) A sues as guardian of D, a Muhammadan minor. A is not D's guardian according to Muhammadan law and usage. The plaint must state that A has been specially appointed D's guardian.

The plaintiff must show that the defendant is, or claims to be, interested in Defendant's interest and the subject-matter, and that he is liable to be liability to be shown. called upon to answer the plaintiff's demand.

Illustration.

A dies, leaving B his executor, C his legatee, and D a debtor to A's estate. C sues D to compel him to pay his debt in satisfaction of C's legacy. The plaintiff must shew that B has causelessly refused to sue D, or that B and D have colluded for the purpose of defrauding C, or other such circumstances rendering D liable to C.

If the cause of action arose beyond the period ordinarily allowed by Grounds of exemption from any law for instituting the suit, the plaintiff must Limitation-law. shew the ground upon which exemption from such law is claimed.

It is not necessary to obtain the leave of the High Court under cl. 12 of the Letters Patent to sue to set aside a decree of that Court, made upon a compromise to which the plaintiff has been induced by the misrepresentation of the defendant to agree, even when it appears from the plaint that the defendants are outside the jurisdiction of the Court. To describe the plaintiff as residing in Chitpore Road in the town of Calcutta, is not a sufficient description, under s. 50 of the Civil Procedure Code, of his place of abode; nor is it sufficient under that section to describe the defendant as formerly of Calcutta, without alleging that the plaintiff has been unable to ascertain his place of residence more definitely. Where the plaint alleges matter which cannot be personally known to the person making the verification, and which is not stated to be an information and belief, a verification which does not distinguish how much is true to the knowledge of the person making it, and what is alleged to be true on information and belief, does not fulfil the requirements of s. 52.—Bibee Solomon v. Abdool Azeez, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 687. [Feb. 7, 1881.]

THERE is no law at present in force in the mufassal which obliges a person claiming under a will to obtain probate of the will, or otherwise establish his right as executor, administrator, or legatee before he can sue in respect to any property which he claims under the will. In any suit or proceeding instituted by him, it is for the Court in which the suit or proceeding is pending to determine, for the purposes of such suit or proceeding, whether the will is genuine and valid, and confers upon the plaintiff or applicant the right which he claims.—Bhagvānsang Bhārājī v. Becharāas Harjivāndā, I. L. R., 6 Bom. 73. [June 23, 1881.]

51. The plaint shall be signed by the plaintiff and his pleader (if any), Plaints to be signed and and shall be verified at the foot by the plaintiff, or verified. by some other person proved to the satisfaction of the Court to be acquainted with the facts of the case: Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

Provided that, if the plaintiff is, by reason of absence or for other good cause, unable to sign the plaint, it may be signed by any person duly authorized by him in this behalf.

A PLAINT, signed by a person holding a general power-of-attorney to sue on behalf of the plaintiff, is properly signed within the meaning of the proviso in Act X. of 1877, s. 51 (as amended by Act XII. of 1879).—Kastolino (H.) v. Rustomji Dadābhāi, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 468. [Mar. 8, 1880.]

In all cases, whether a plaint is verified by the plaintiff or by some other person, the party verifying should state shortly what paragraphs he verifies of his own knowledge, and what paragraphs he believes to be true from the information of others.—In re Upendro Lall Bose, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 675. [Sep. 3, 1880.]

52. The verification must be to the effect that the same is true to the knowledge of the person making it, except as to matters stated on information and belief, and that as to those matters he believes it to be true. Ditto.

Contents of verification.

Verification to be signed and attested.

The verification shall be signed by the person making it.

THE Court must be satisfied, under s. 52, that a person, other than a plaintiff verifying the plaint, is acquainted with the facts of the case; but in the case of a person holding a general power-of-attorney, or of any other recognised agent, the Court will not insist on any extreme stringency of proof. S. 52 does not require the verification of a plaint to be made in the presence of an officer of the Court; but having regard to the necessity of satisfying the Court that the person, other than the plaintiff, who verifies the plaint, is acquainted with the facts of the case, it is desirable that a verification by such a person should be made in the presence of the Court, unless the Court be satisfied that there is sufficient ground for dispensing with his attendance.—Kastolino (H.) v. Rustomji Dádábháí, 1. L. R., 4 Bom. 468. [Mar. 8, 1880.]

In all cases, whether a plaint is verified by the plaintiff or by some other person, the party verifying should state shortly what paragraphs he verifies of his own knowledge, and what paragraphs he believes to be true from the information of others.—In re Upendro Lal Bose, 1. L. R., 6 Cal. 675. [Sep. 3, 1880.]

It is not necessary to obtain the leave of the High Court under cl. 12 of the Letters Patent to sue to set aside a decree of that Court, made upon a compromise to which the plaintiff has been induced by the misrepresentation of the defendant to agree, even when it appears from the plaint that the defendants are outside the jurisdiction of the Court. To describe the plaintiff as residing in Chitpore Road in the town of Calcutta, is not a sufficient description, under s. 50 of the Civil Procedure Code, of his place of abode; nor is it sufficient under that section to describe the defendant as formerly of Calcutta, without alleging that the plaintiff has been unable to ascertain his place of residence more definitely. Where the plaint alleges matter which cannot be personally known to the person making the verification, and which is not stated to be on information and belief, a verification which does not distinguish how much is true to the knowledge of the person making it, and what is alleged to be true on information and belief, does not fulfil the requirements of s. 52.—Bilce Solomon v. Abdool Azeec, 1. L. R., 6 Cal. 687. [Feb. 7, 1881.]

Courts.

53. The plaint may, at the discretion of the Court, and at or before the first hearing, be rejected, returned for amendment within a time to be fixed by the Court, or amended then and there, upon such terms as to the payment of costs occasioned by the amendment as the Court thinks fit.

(a) if it does not state correctly and without prolixity the several particulars hereinafore required to be specified therein; or

(b) if it contains any particulars other than those so required; or

(c) if it is not signed and verified as hereinbefore required; or

(d) if it does not disclose a cause of action; or

(e) if it is not framed in accordance with section 42; or

(f) if it is wrongly framed by reason of non-joinder or misjoinder of parties, or because the plaintiff has joined causes of action which ought not to be joined in the same suit:

proviso.

Attestation of amendment.

When a plaint is amended, the amendment shall be attested by the signature of the Judge.

A PLAINT alleged that the plaintiffs had the exclusive right to the Adhyapaka miras of reciting certain religious texts, hymns, or chants in a certain pagoda and its dependencies; that the defendants had no right to recite them; that the plaintiffs and the Brahmins of the plaintiffs' Tenkalai sect had for a long time discharged all the duties appertaining to the said right, and enjoyed the incomes of the Adhyapakam, except those mentioned in Schedules B and C; that the defendants, holding the office of dharmakarts of the said pagoda, in combination with other persons in rivalry with the plaintiffs, recited the Vatakali invocations, chants, and other religious prayers, the exclusive right to recite which was incident to the plaintiffs' Adhyapaka miras, the exclusive right of the plaintiffs being injured; that the defendants having withheld the payment of some of the incomes of the Adhyapaka miras in the said pagoda and in all the Sanwidhis attached to it, the plaintiffs instituted a suit against them in the District Munsif's Court, and in March 1878 a decision was passed in favour of the plaintiffs; and that the defendants had withheld from the plaintiffs and others of the Tenkalai sect the amount of income mentioned in Sch. C for six years from the date of the said suit as well as the honors mentioned in Sch. A from April 1873. The plaint concluded with a prayer for a decree directing the defendants and others to abstain from reciting the said texts, hymns, or chants; for a declaration of the exclusive right of the plaintiffs; and for the recovery of the various items stated in the schedules. Sch. B referred to certain payments in kind. The High Court of Madras, under s. 32 of Act VIII. of 1859, rejected the plaint, on the ground that its subject-matter did not constitute a cause of action. Held that the plaint ought to have been admitted, since it disclosed a claim as of right to certain dues for services performed.—Tiru Krishnama Chariar v. Krishna Swami Tala Chariar, 3 Ind. Jur. 322.

S. 53 of the Civil Procedure Code, which provides that a plaint cannot be amended so as to convert a suit of one character into a suit of another and inconsistent character, does not prevent a plaintiff, who has been ousted after suit brought for declaration of title, from amending his plaint by adding a prayer for possession. If the congregation of a church as a body cease to follow the observances of a particular form of worship, and in preference for forty years follow those of a different form of worship, there would be no one left for whom and by whom the original form of worship can be continued, the objects of the original trust cease to exist, and the church-funds and property become impressed with a trust for the performance of the later form of worship. Where a defendant out of the jurisdiction of the Court was summoned to produce a letter, and did not comply with the summons, but appeared by pleader at the last moment at the hearing of the suit, and service of notice on the pleader to produce the letter would have been nugatory, secondary evidence of the letter was admitted under s. 66, proviso 6 of the Evidence Act.—Bishop Mellus v. Vicar Apostolic of Malabar, 1. L. R., 2 Mad. 295. [Mar. 26, 1879.]

WHERE, at the first hearing of a suit, the plaint is returned for amendment within a fixed time under the provisions of Act X. of 1877, s. 53, and it is amended accordingly, it cannot afterwards be again returned for amendment.—Badr-un-nisa v. Muhammad Jan, 1. L. R., 2 All. 671. Feb. 27, 1880.]

WHERE a plaintiff alleged that M, the deceased widow of S, a Hindu, while administering the estate of her deceased husband, borrowed money from plaintiff for purposes binding on the estate, and executed a promissory note to secure the payment of the same, and that the first and second defendants, as reversionary heirs of S, and the third defendant, were in possession of the estate of S, and refused to pay the debt incurred by M, held that the plaint was properly rejected as disclosing no cause of action against the defendants.—Ramasaini Mudaliar v. Sellattammal, 1. L. R., 4 Mad. 375. [Jan. 23, 1881.]

IN a suit for confirmation of possession and declaration of title in respect of land, where the plaint did not disclose any facts from which it could be said that the defendants denied the plaintiff's title, but from the proceedings in the original cause it was established that, before the suit was brought, there was a dispute existing between the parties as regards the title, and that a decree in favour of the plaintiffs had been passed by the original Court on the merits of the case, held that though the plaint might have been rejected in the first instance under s. 53 of the Civil Procedure Code on the ground that it did not disclose any cause of action, it was too late for an Appellate Court to reverse the decree solely on that ground, without being satisfied that no such cause of action was established on the evidence.—Shah Ahmed Sujad v. Tazee Rai, 1. L. R., 7 Cal. 343. [April 12, 1881.]

THE plaintiff in a suit applied for the amendment of the plaint. The defendant objected to the amendment, and a day was fixed by the Court for the "admission or rejection of the petition, and the determination of the defendant's objections thereto." The Court, after hearing the parties, made an order allowing the "petition of amendment," and rejecting the defendant's objections. The defendant appealed from such order to the High Court. Held that, inasmuch as orders amending plaints then and there are not made appealable by Act X. of 1877, and it was into this category, if into any at all, that such order must fall, such order was not appealable.—Rajindra Kishore Singh v. Radha Prasad Singh, 1. L. R., 3 All. 854. [June 15, 1881.]

suit against their mortgagees sought only for production of the mortgage-deed or for an account, although the averments in the plaint warranted a prayer for redemption. Subsequently to the first hearing of the suit they applied to be allowed to amend the plaint by adding a prayer for redemption. Held that the provisions of s. 53 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) did not preclude the Court from permitting the amendment to be made. It is competent to a Court, at any time before passing a decree, to frame an additional issue embracing a matter not included in the plaint (provided it be not inconsistent with it) or in the written statement, but which may appear upon the allegations made on oath by the parties or by any person present on their behalf, or made by the pleaders of such parties or persons. S. 34 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) limits the time within which a defendant may object for wants of parties, but it does not so limit the right of the plaintiff to add parties. In some cases s. 34 would not prevent even a defendant from objecting to the want of a party after the first hearing, e. g., where after the first hearing and before decree a co-parcener or remainderman or reversioner is born, or where a woman (who is a party) is married to a man who is not a party to the suit. The objection did not exist at or before the first hearing, and therefore could not have been made or waived by the defendant; and if he made it at the earliest opportunity after it came into existence, he would have satisfied the spirit of s. 34.—Modhe (R. and N.) v. Dongre (S.), I. L. R., 5 Bom. 609. [Aug. 2, 1881.] Dissented from in Damodar Das v. Gokal Chand, I. L. R., 7 All. 79, infra.

S. 26 of the Code of Civil Procedure does not authorize the joinder of plaintiffs with antagonistic claims arising out of distinct causes of action. Where one of two widows of a deceased Hindu and her adopted son sued as co-plaintiffs, claiming in the alternative either to transfer the whole family-estate for the latter, if the adoption was valid, or, if the adoption was invalid, one-half of the estate for the former, held that the suit was bad for misjoinder. Held also that when such misjoinder had been allowed, and the suit decided, and an appeal brought, the Court of Appeal should dispose of the suit in the mode in which the lower Court ought to have disposed of it, by returning the plaint for amendment. Farzand Ali v. Yusuf Ali (I. L. R., 2 All. 669) dissented from.—Lingammal v. Venkatammal, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 239. [Dec. 22, 1882.]

WHERE a plaintiff's claim as originally stated in his plaint was based on the allegation of the invalidity of a will, an application at the hearing of the case to amend the plaint by inserting a clause submitting that, even if the will were valid, it did not dispose of the whole of the testator's property, was refused—the Court holding, under s. 53 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), that the case made by the proposed amendment would be inconsistent with the case made in the plaint as originally framed:—Damodar Madhowji v. Purmanandas Jeewandas, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 155. [Jan. 29, 1883.]

WHERE, after a trial has begun, or even after it has concluded, it appears that the Court has not jurisdiction to hear the case, the plaint should be returned in order that it may be presented to the proper Court, and no additional court-fees are payable. The pre-existing state of the law as recognized by the tribunals is one of the chief means of interpreting laws of procedure.—Jagjivandas Javherdas Seth v. Magdum Ali (I. L. R., 7 Bom. 487) overruled.—Prabhakarbhat v. Vishwambhar Pandit, I. L. R., 8 Bom. 313. [Mar. 6, 1884.]

HELD (Oldfield, J., dissenting) that, under s. 53 of the Civil Procedure Code, a plaint can be rejected, returned for amendment, or amended by the Court of first instance only at or before the first hearing of the suit, and not after the first hearing thereof. Modhe v. Dongre (I. L. R., 5 Bom. 609) dissented from. Soorjmuti Koor's Case (I. L. R., 2 Cal. 272), Burjore v. Bhagana (I. L. R., 10 Cal. 557; I. R., 11 Ind. Ap. 7), and Fazul-un-nissa Begam v. Mulo (I. L. R., 6 All. 250), distinguished by Mahmood, J. Per Mahmood, J.—The plaint may, for causes other than those mentioned in s. 53, be amended by the Court after the first hearing.—Damodar Das v. Gokal Chand, I. L. R., 7 All. 79. [July 14, 1884.]

WHERE it is open to the plaintiff to ask for an account, against the defendant, of moneys received by him under a certificate of heirship, and for payment of moneys, not properly accounted for, he is precluded by s. 2 of the Specific Relief Act (I. of 1877) from asking for a mere declaratory decree. Plaint allowed by the High Court to be amended by insertion of a prayer for account.—Bai Anope v. Mulchand Girdhar, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 355. [Feb. 17, 1885.]

S. 442 of the Civil Procedure Code refers to a case where the plaint on the face of it appears to have been filed by a person who was a minor. Where, in a suit, the plaintiffs described themselves as adults, and, on the objection of the defendants, an issue was raised, and inquired into, on the question of age, held that the order passed under the circumstances, although it professed to have been made under s. 442 of the Procedure Code, must be treated as one rejecting the plaint or dismissing the suit on the ground that the suit was instituted by persons who were established on the evidence to be minors, and was appealable as a decree within the meaning of s. 2 of the Code. The words, "rejecting the plaint," in s. 2, are not limited to the cases provided for in ss. 53, 54. Held also that the defendant, not having taken an objection to the suit on the ground of the minority of the plaintiffs whilst it was pending in appeal to the High Court, were precluded from raising it on remand.—Beni Ram Bhutt v. Ram Lal Dhukri, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 189. [Mar. 30, 1886.]

A SUIT was brought by the manager of the M Bank against the executrix of B to recover a sum of money as due upon a bond executed by B in favour of the Bank. The plaintiff described the defendant as "Mrs. Sarah G. Barlow of Mussoorie," and stated that she was executrix of the deceased B. It began thus: "George Henry Webb, manager of the above-named plaintiff's business, states as follows," and proceeded to state that the deceased was, at the time of his death, "indebted to the plaintiff," and to set forth the cause of action in detail. It was signed and verified thus: "For the M Bank, Limited, G. H. Webb, Manager." The Court of first instance returned the plaint for amendment under s. 53 of the Civil Procedure Code: (1) because the defendant was not properly described; (2) because the plaint was set out as made by George Henry Webb as manager, and not as on the part of the Bank; and (3) because the suit should not have been brought in the form in which it was brought, but in the form referred to in s. 213 and No. 105 of sch. 4 of the Code. Held that the first of these grounds failed, because it was clear that the defendant was stated to be the executrix of the deceased, and the suit was brought against her in that capacity. Held that the second ground did not come within s. 53 of the Code, as it was clear that the circumstances set out in the plaint applied to the case of the plaintiff Bank, and the plaint sufficiently fulfilled the requirements of the Code that the facts which the plaintiff considers essential should be concisely and clearly set out, and that the verification should be made by some one acquainted with these facts. Held, with reference to the third ground, that the plaintiff was at liberty to bring a suit for money against any person administering to or representing an estate; and if such suit should be found, with reference to the facts in evidence, not maintainable, it should be dismissed; but there was no authority for returning a plaint for amendment, when it was found that the suit was not maintainable in the form in which it was brought, in order to amend it so as to convert the suit into one of a different character.—Mussoorie Bank, Ltd., v. Barlow, I. L. R., 9 All. 188. [Dec. 23, 1886.]

When plaint shall be rejected.

54. The plaint shall be rejected in the following cases:—

Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

(a) if the relief sought is undervalued, and the plaintiff, on being required by the Court to correct the valuation within a time to be fixed by the Court, fails to do so:

(b) if the relief sought is properly valued, but the plaint is written upon paper insufficiently stamped, and the plaintiff, on being required by the Court to supply the requisite stamp paper within a time to be fixed by the Court, fails to do so.

(c) if the suit appears from the statement in the plaint to be barred by any positive rule of law:

(d) if the plaint, having been returned for amendment within a time fixed by the Court, is not amended within such time.

THE law may lay down, for purposes of revenue, certain rules for the valuation of suits; but such valuation cannot be accepted as a criterion of the actual amount or value of the claim upon which the jurisdiction of a Court depends. The actual value of the estate to which the plaintiff claims to be entitled, and not the value which it may eventually represent to the plaintiff, is the value of the subject-matter.—Bai Mankor v. Bulakhi Chaku, I. L. R., 1 Bom. 538. [Dec. 10, 1874.]

WHERE, under Act VIII. of 1859, s. 336, a memorandum of appeal is returned for the purpose of being corrected, the Appellate Court should specify a time for such correction. Where an appellant presented an appeal within the period of limitation prescribed therefor, and the Appellate Court returned the memorandum of appeal for correction, the appeal, again presented some days after the period of limitation, was held presented within time, the date of its presentation being the date it was presented.—Jagan Nath v. Lal, I. L. R., 1 All. 260. [June 29, 1876.]

WHERE the Court of first instance, proceeding under s. 10 of the Court-fees Act, dismissed a suit after the first hearing, on non-payment of an additional fee required to be paid under that section, held that the Court had rightly dismissed the suit, under s. 10 of the Court Fees Act. S. 54, Act X. of 1877, though a later enactment, was inapplicable, that section applying only to the initial stages of a suit before a plaint had been registered; whereas s. 10 of the Court Fees Act was not susceptible of restriction to any particular stage of a suit.—Valiya Kāsava Vādhyar v. Suppannair, 4 Ind. Jur. 286; 1 L. R., 2 Mad. 308. [Feb. 9, 1880.]

AN appeal lies against an order rejecting a plaint on the ground of its being insufficiently stamped.—Ajoodhya Pershad v. Gunga Pershad, 1 L. R., 6 Cal. 249. [June 10, 1880.]

THE assessment of the court-fee in a suit by a subordinate tenure-holder to recover possession of a definite portion of an entire estate paying a permanently settled annual revenue to Government must be made under the first part of sub-division a, cl. 5 of s. 7 of the Court-fees Act. A plaint can only be rejected under s. 54 of Act X. of 1877 before it is registered.—Huhibul Hossein v. Mohamed Reza, 1 L. R., 8 Cal. 192. [Sep. 8, 1881.]

AN order rejecting a memorandum of appeal as barred by limitation is a “decree” within the meaning of s. 2 of the Civil Procedure Code; it is therefore appealable, and not open to revision by the High Court under s. 622 of the Code. Gajraj Singh v. Bhagwant Singh and Dianatullah (Weekly Notes, 1883, p. 255) and Reg. v. Wajid Ali Shah (1 L. R., 6 All. 478) distinguished.—Gulab Rai v. Mangli Lal, 1 L. R., 7 All. 42. [June 29, 1884.]

A JUDGE, after disposing of an appeal on the 1st March 1883, again took it up, and on the 21st March 1883 directed the appellant to pay additional court-fees on her memorandum of appeal. On the 2nd May 1883, the appellant paid the additional court-fees under protest, and a decree was then prepared, bearing date the 1st March 1883, but it referred to, and carried into effect, the subsequent order of the 21st March and the 2nd May. Per Mahmood, J., that as soon as the Judge had passed the decree of the 1st March 1883, he ceased to have any power over it, and was not competent to introduce new matters not dealt with by the judgment; that the order of the 21st March and the deposit of the 2nd May, whether right or wrong, were not proceedings to which effect could be given in the antecedent decree of the 1st March 1883; and that the decree was ultra vires to that extent, and was, therefore, liable to correction in second appeal under s. 584 of the Civil Procedure Code. The powers conferred by ss. 54 (a) and (c) and 55, read with s. 582 of the Civil Procedure Code, or by s. 12 of the Court-fees Act (VII. of 1870) read with cl. 2 of s. 10, are intended to be exercised before the disposal of the case, and not after it has been decided finally so far as the Court is concerned. The powers conferred by s. 26 of the Court-fees Act cannot be exercised by an order passed after the decision of the case to which the question of the payment of court-fees relates, and, even assuming that they can be so exercised, such an order, though it may be subject to such rules as to appeal or revision as the law may provide, cannot be given effect to by making insertions in an antecedent decree. Per Oldfield, J.—That the Court had power to make the order it did, inasmuch as the collection of court-fees was no part of a Judge's functions in the trial of a suit which could be said to have ceased with its determination; and the provisions of the Court-fees Act fixed no time within which the presiding Judge could exercise his power of ordering documents to be stamped, and sealed, on the other hand, to contemplate the exercise of that power at any time subsequent to the receipt, filing, or use of a document, and to make the validity of the document and the proceedings relative thereto dependent on the document being properly stamped.—Mahadei v. Ram Kishen Das, 1 L. R., 7 All. 528. [Jan. 15, 1885.]

THE decision of the Court of first instance, that a plaint is undervalued, is binding upon the Court of appeal, reference, or revision; but the Court of first instance is not justified in rejecting the plaint without giving to the plaintiff an opportunity of affixing the proper stamp. Where it is open to the plaintiff to ask for an account, against the defendant, of moneys received by him under a certificate of heirship, and for payment of moneys not properly accounted for, he is precluded by s. 2 of the Specific Relief Act (I. of 1877) from asking for a mere declaratory decree. Plaint allowed by the High Court to be amended by insertion of a prayer for account.—Bai Anope v. Mulchand Girdhar, 1 L. R., 9 Bom. 355. [Feb. 17, 1885.]

S. 442 of the Civil Procedure Code refers to a case where the plaint on the face of it appears to have been filed by a person who was a minor. Where, in a suit, the plaintiffs described themselves as adults, and on the objection of the defendants an issue was raised and inquired into on the question of age, held that the order passed under the circumstances;

although it professed to have been made under s. 442 of the Civil Procedure Code, must be treated as one rejecting the plaint or dismissing the suit on the ground that the suit was instituted by persons who were established on the evidence to be minors, and was appealable as a decree within the meaning of s. 2 of the Code. The words, "rejecting the plaint," in s. 2, are not limited to the cases provided for in ss. 53, 54. Held also that the defendant, not having taken an objection to the suit on the ground of the minority of the plaintiffs whilst it was pending in appeal to the High Court, were precluded from raising it on remand.—Beni Ram Bhutt v. Ram Lal Dhukri, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 139. [Mar. 30, 1886.]

55. When a plaint is rejected, the Judge shall record with his own hand an order to that effect with the reason for such order. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

56. The rejection of the plaint on any of the grounds hereinafore mentioned shall not, of its own force, preclude the plaintiff from presenting a fresh plaint in respect of the same cause of action. Ditto.

When rejection of plaint does not preclude presentation of fresh plaint.

A JUDGE, after disposing of an appeal on the 1st March 1883, again took it up, and, on the 21st March 1883, directed the appellant to pay additional court-fees on her memorandum of appeal. On the 2nd May 1883, the appellant paid the additional court-fees under protest, and a decree was then prepared, bearing date the 1st March 1883, but it referred to, and carried into effect, the subsequent order of the 21st March and the 2nd May. Per Mahmood, J., that as soon as the Judge had passed the decree of the 1st March 1883, he ceased to have any power over it, and was not competent to introduce new matters not dealt with by the judgment; that the order of the 21st March and the deposit of the 2nd May, whether right or wrong, were not proceedings to which effect could be given in the antecedent decree of the 1st March 1883; and that the decree was ultra vires to that extent, and was, therefore, liable to correction in second appeal under s. 584 of the Civil Procedure Code. The powers conferred by ss. 54 (a) and (c) and 55, read with s. 582 of the Civil Procedure Code, or by s. 12 of the Court-fees Act (VII. of 1870) read with cl. 2 of s. 10, are intended to be exercised before the disposal of the case, and not after it has been decided finally so far as the Court is concerned. The powers conferred by s. 28 of the Court-fees Act cannot be exercised by an order passed after the decision of the case to which the question of the payment of court-fees relates, and, even assuming that they can be so exercised, such an order, though it may be subject to such rules as to appeal or revision as the law may provide, cannot be given effect to by making insertions in an antecedent decree. Per Oldfield, J.—That the Court had power to make the order it did, inasmuch as the collection of court-fees was no part of a Judge's functions in the trial of a suit which could be said to have ceased with its determination; and the provisions of the Court-fees Act fixed no time within which the presiding Judge could exercise his power of ordering documents to be stamped, and seemed, on the other hand, to contemplate the exercise of that power at any time subsequent to the receipt, filing, or use of a document, and to make the validity of the document and the proceedings relative thereto dependent on the document being properly stamped.—Mahadei s. Ram Kishen Das, I. L. R., 7 All. 523. [Jan. 15, 1885.]

57. The plaint shall be returned to be presented to the proper Court in the following cases :— Ditto.

When plaint shall be returned to be presented to proper Court.

(a) if a suit has been instituted in a Court whose grade is lower or higher than that of the Court competent to try it, where such Court exists, or where no option as to the selection of the Court is allowed by law :

(b) if, in a suit relating to immoveable property, but not coming under the proviso to section 16, it appears that no part of such property is situate within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court to which the plaint is presented :

(c) if, in any other case, it appears that the cause of action did not arise, and that none of the defendants are dwelling, or carrying on business, or personally working for gain, within such local limits.

On returning a plaint, the Judge shall, with his own hand, endorse thereon the date of its presentation and return, the name of the party presenting it, and a brief statement of the reason for returning it.

A SUIT to redeem a usufructuary mortgage of certain lands was instituted in the Munsif's Court. After the suit had been admitted, and the parties called on to produce evidence, the Munsif ordered the plaint in the suit to be returned to the plaintiff for presentation in the proper Court on the ground that the suit should have been instituted in the Court of the Subordinate Judge, the value of the property in suit being beyond the jurisdiction of a Munsif. Held that, under Act VIII. of 1850, the Munsif's order was appealable to the lower Appellate Court, and under Act X. of 1877 the lower Appellate Court's order to the High Court.—Kalian Das v. Nawal Singh, I. L. R., 1 All. 620. [Mar. 7, 1878.]

The plaintiff in this suit claimed in a Civil Court (1) a declaration of his right to certain land; (2) that certain leases of such land, so far as their terms exceeded the term of settlement, should be cancelled; and (3) arrears of rent for such land. The Court held, as regards claim (1), that the plaint did not disclose a cause of action, as it was not alleged that the defendant had disputed the plaintiff's right; as regards claim (2), that, with reference to the terms of s. 29 of Act XVIII. of 1873, the plaintiff's cause of action had not yet arisen; and as regards claim (3), that it was cognizable in a Court of Revenue; and it directed that under s. 57 of Act X. of 1877 the plaint should be returned to the plaintiff to be presented to the Revenue Court. Held that under the circumstances the plaint should have been rejected, and not returned.—Nagar Mal v. Macpherson, I. L. R., 3 All. 766. [May 2, 1881.]

THE Court of first instance made an order returning the plaint in a suit to be presented to the proper Court, on the ground that it was not competent to try such suit. On appeal from such order the Appellate Court, holding that the Court of first instance was competent to try such suit, made an order "decreeing the appeal." It subsequently made an additional order directing that the case "should be returned for re-trial." On appeal to the High Court from such additional order, held that the appeal would not lie, as it was in reality one from an order passed in appeal from an order returning a plaint, which, under the last clause of s. 588 of Act X. of 1877, was final, and not an appeal from an order remanding a case under s. 562, the character of the original order of the Appellate Court not being altered by the passing of the additional order.—Kishna Ram v. Narsingh Sevek Singh, I. L. R., 3 All. 855. [June 20, 1881.]

AN allottee, under a private partition, sued to stay subsequent partition-proceedings brought under Reg. XIX. of 1814, and to have his possession confirmed. The defendants objected to the valuation of the suit, and to the suit being heard by the Civil Courts, no proceedings having first been instituted before the Revenue Authorities. Held that such a suit should be considered to be one for a declaratory decree, or for something in the nature of an injunction, and that, therefore, the plaint should not be stamped according to the value of the entire estate. That the question, whether the Collector would have brought the lands to partition, depended upon whether they were held "in common tenancy;" if they were not so held, the Collector would be only competent to make an assignment of the revenue in proportion to the several portions of the land held by the shareholders. That a private partition is no bar to proceedings in the Revenue Courts under s. 30 of Reg. XIX. of 1814. A Munsif dismissed a suit, on the ground that, if it had been properly valued, it would not have come within his jurisdiction. The District Judge affirmed the Munsif's judgment, and directed the plaint to be returned for presentation to the proper Court under s. 57 of the Civil Procedure Code. This was not done. Held that a second appeal would lie. Ajoodhia Lall v. Gurnani Lall (2 C. L. R. 134) approved. Ajoodhya Pershad v. Kristo Dyal (15 W. R. 165) dissented from.—Joy-mat Roy v. Lall Bahadur Singh, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 126. [Aug. 19, 1881.]

A Munsif, after hearing the evidence on both sides, found that the suit had been under-valued; but instead of returning the plaint under s. 57 of Act X. of 1877, he dismissed the suit. Held that the provisions of s. 57 were imperative, and might be put into force at any stage of the hearing; and that such dismissal of the suit was a matter which affected the merits of the case, and formed a proper subject for an appeal.—Bhadeshwar Chowdhry v. Gauri Kant Nath, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 834. [April 12, 1882.]

A DISTRICT Court transferred for trial a suit instituted in a Court subordinate to it to another Court subordinate to it. The Court in which the suit was instituted was not the one in which the suit should have been instituted, and consequently the Court to which it was transferred made an order dismissing it, and directing the return of the plaint for presentation to the proper Court. Held that such order must be taken to have been passed under s. 57 of the Civil Procedure Code, and was therefore appealable under s. 583 (6); and that the defect of jurisdiction arising out of the institution of the suit in the wrong Court was not cured by the transfer of the suit.—Pachraoni Awasthi v. Illahi Bakhsh, I. L. R., 4 All. 478. [May 30, 1882.]

THE right to join in one suit two causes of action against a defendant cannot be exercised, unless the Court to which the plaint is presented has jurisdiction over both causes of action. The defendants, who resided and carried on business at Bombay, acted as the agents of the plaintiff for the sale, purchase, and despatch of goods to Tellicherry, where the plaintiff resided. The plaintiff sued the defendants for money due on account of the transactions in Tellicherry. Held that no cause of action arose in Tellicherry. To the claim arising out of the agency-transactions the plaintiff joined a claim on account of a partnership-transaction, which claim was triable by the Court of the District Munsif at Tellicherry. The Subordinate Judge held that he had no jurisdiction to try the claim arising out of the agency-transactions, found that nothing was due to the plaintiff on account of the partnership-transaction, and dismissed the suit. Held that the plaint ought to have been returned to the plaintiff with the proper endorsement as required by s. 57 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882.—Jivaraja v. Purushotam, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 171. [Sep. 17, 1883.]

In a suit filed in a District Munsif's Court to recover certain land, the defendants alleged that the value of the land was understated by the plaintiff, and exceeded by far the pecuniary limit of the Court's jurisdiction. Upon inquiry the Munsif found this allegation to be true, and directed the plaint to be returned to the plaintiff for presentation in a superior Court. The plaint having been presented in the Subordinate Court, the Subordinate Judge, on the authority of Jagjivan Javerilals Seth v. Magdum Ali (I. L. R., 7 Bom 487), dismissed the suit. Held that the procedure adopted by the Munsif was correct.—Kandu v. Kondu, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 62. [Oct. 14, 1884.]

Per Petheram, C.J., and Brodhurst, Mahmood, and Duthoit, JJ.—The object of ss. 19 and 20 of the Bengal Civil Courts Act, 1871, was to create in the District Judge, Subordinate Judge, and Munsif concurrent jurisdiction up to Rs. 1,000. Per Petheram, C.J.—S. 15 of the Civil Procedure Code is a proviso to those sections. The word "shall" in that section is imperative on the suitor. The word is used for the purpose of protecting the Courts. The suitor shall be obliged to bring his suit in the Court of the lowest grade competent to try it. The object of the Legislature is that the Court of the higher grade shall not be overcrowded with suits. Whenever an Act confers a benefit, the donee may exercise the same or not at his pleasure. The proviso is for the benefit of the Court of the higher grade, and it is not bound to take advantage of it. If it does not wish to try the suit, it may refuse to entertain it. If it wishes to retain the suit in its Court, it may do so; it is not bound to refuse to entertain it. Per Duthoit, J.—The words in s. 57 of the Civil Procedure Code "shall be" are an instruction which the Court is bound to follow; and they are, therefore, a restraint upon jurisdiction. The effect, therefore, of the concurrent jurisdiction of Subordinate Judges and Munsifs is not to allow to a Subordinate Judge discretion as to accepting or not accepting for trial by himself suits cognizable by the inferior tribunal. Per Brodhurst and Mahmood, JJ.—S. 15 of the Civil Procedure Code is a rule of procedure, not of jurisdiction; and whilst it lays down that a suit shall be instituted in the Court of the lowest grade, it does not oust the jurisdiction of the Courts of higher grades. Russick Chunder Mohunt v. Ram Lal Shaha (22 W. R. 301), Sircar v. Begum Bibi (25 W. R. 219), followed. Per Oldfield, J.—S. 15 of the Civil Procedure Code is a provision entirely of procedure as distinct from jurisdiction, and its effect on s. 19 of the Bengal Civil Courts Act is that the jurisdiction of the District Judge and Subordinate Judge extends to all original suits cognizable by the Civil Court, subject in its exercise to a certain procedure, namely, that the suits be instituted in the Court of the lowest grade competent to try them. Held, therefore, by Petheram, C.J., and Oldfield, Brodhurst, and Mahmood, JJ., where a Subordinate Judge had tried a suit which a Munsif, a Court of a lower grade, might have tried, that the Subordinate Judge had not acted without jurisdiction. The plaint in such suit had been in the first instance presented to the Munsif, who had returned it to be presented to the Subordinate Judge. Per Duthoit, J.—The decrees of the Subordinate Judge would not be liable to be reversed in appeal for want of jurisdiction, for the jurisdiction was there, though it ought not to have been exercised. This view of the matter was consistent with the received canon of construction, that unless the Legislature uses negative words, or words showing an intention to treat the observance of a rule of procedure as essential, the rule will ordinarily be treated as a direction only. Under the circumstances, therefore, the District Judge had, in appeal, correctly refused to entertain the plea of defect in jurisdiction. Per Mahmood, J.—The institution of a suit in a Court of higher grade than the Court which is competent to try it is not a question either as to the jurisdiction or affecting the merits of the case. It is a question of the kind provided for by s. 578 of the Civil Procedure Code, and the irregularity is not one which affects "the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court" within the meaning of the section. The plea of want of jurisdiction can be entertained for the first time at any stage of a suit, provided there is on the record sufficient material to substantiate it.—Nidhi Lal v. Mazhar Husain, 1. L. R., 7 All. 230. [Dec. 13, 1884.]

58. The plaintiff shall endorse on the plaint, or annex thereto, a memorandum of the documents (if any) which he has produced along with it; and, if the plaint be admitted, shall present as many copies on plain paper of the plaint as there are defendants, unless the Court, by reason of the length of the plaint or the number of the defendants, or for any other sufficient reason, permits him to present a like number of concise statements of the nature of the claim made, or of the relief or remedy required, in the suit, in which case he shall present such statements.

If the plaintiff sues, or the defendant or any of the defendants is sued, in a representative capacity, such statements shall show in what capacity the plaintiff or defendant sues or is sued.

The plaintiff may, by leave of the Court, amend such statements so as to make them correspond with the plaint.

The chief ministerial officer of the Court shall sign such memorandum and copies or statements if, on examination, he finds them to be correct.

The Court shall also cause the particulars mentioned in section 50 to be entered in a book to be kept for the purpose, and called the Register of Civil Suits. Such entries shall be numbered in every year according to the order in which the plaint is admitted.

59. If a plaintiff sues upon a document in his possession or power, he shall produce it in Court when the plaint is presented, and shall, at the same time, deliver the document, or a copy thereof, to be filed with the plaint.

Production of document on which plaintiff sues. Delivery of document or copy.

If he rely on any other documents (whether in his possession or power or not) as evidence in support of his claim, he shall enter such documents in a list to be added or annexed to the plaint.

List of other documents.

IN compliance with an application for the sale of land to satisfy a decree the Civil Court put up certain land to auction in four lots. One lot was purchased by the plaintiff for Rs. 88, and each of the other three were bought by him for less than Rs. 100, the price for the whole amounting to Rs. 111-8-0, for which amount the Court granted a single certificate of sale, dated 10th February 1874. This certificate was never registered. The plaintiff applied to be put in possession; but the defendant resisting him, his application was rejected. On the 16th of November 1879, the plaintiff brought this suit to have his right declared to the piece bought for Rs. 88 and to recover its possession. Along with the plaint the plaintiff produced the unregistered certificate of sale of the 10th February 1874. On the application of the plaintiff, another certificate for the same property was issued by the Court to the plaintiff on the 31st of October 1877—that is, three years after the confirmation of sale. This was registered on the 20th of December 1877, and was produced by the plaintiff in the proceedings which gave rise to the present suit. It was obtained by the plaintiff on the 23rd of February 1880, and tendered in evidence, but was rejected under s. 63 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882). Held that although the four lots purchased by the plaintiff at the auction-sale were included in one certificate of sale, such certificate, although one instrument in form, should, for the purpose of registration, be regarded as four separate certificates of the four several lots. Held also that the registered certificate of sale, though issued three years after the confirmation of sale, was valid and admissible in evidence. Vithal Janardan v. Vithojirav Putlajirav (I. L. R., 6 Bom. 586) approved, and In re Khajá Pathanji (I. L. R., 5 Bom. 202) and Tukaram v. Sutvaji Khandoji (I. L. R., 5 Bom. 206) dissented from. Held also that the refusal to admit in evidence the registered certificate of sale under s. 63 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882) on the ground that it had not been produced with the plaint, as required by s. 59 of the Code, was improper, there having been no doubt of its ~~admission~~ at the date of suit.—Devidá Jagjivad v. Pirjádá Begam, I. L. R., 8 Bom. 377. [April 17, 1884.]

CERTAIN documents having been allowed by the District Munsif to be filed by the plaintiff during the trial of a suit, the District Judge, on appeal, held that he was bound to strike them off the file on the ground that they were not filed with the plaint nor entered in any list annexed to the plaint, and because the Munsif had not recorded any reason for admitting them. Held that, as the documents had been admitted in evidence by the Lower Court, the Appellate Court was bound to consider them.—Minakshi v. Vefu, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 373. [Mar. 9, 1885.]

Statement in case of documents not in his possession or power.

60. In the case of any such document not in his possession or power, he shall, if possible, state in whose possession or power it is. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

61. In case of any suit founded upon a negotiable instrument, if it be proved that the instrument is lost, and if an indemnity be given by the plaintiff, to the satisfaction of the Court, against the claims of any other person upon such instrument, the Court may make such decree as it would have made if the plaintiff had produced the instrument in Court when the plaint was presented, and had, at the same time, delivered a copy of the instrument to be filed with the plaint.

Ditto.

THE indorsee of a cheque sued the indorser, stating in their plaint that the cheque had been lost, and that the defendant refused to give them a duplicate of it, and claiming a duplicate of it or the refund of the money they had paid the defendant on the cheque. Held that the plaint disclosed a cause of action against the defendant. Held also that the plaint should be amended by joining the drawer of the cheque as a defendant in the suit.—Baldeo Prasad v. Grish Chaudar Bose, I. L. R., 2 All. 754. [Feb. 24, 1880.]

62. If the document on which the plaintiff sues be an entry in a shop-book or other book in his possession or power, the plaintiff shall produce the book at the time of filing the plaint, together with a copy of the entry on which he relies.

Ditto.

The Court, or such officer as it appoints in this behalf, shall forthwith mark the document for the purpose of identification; and, after examining and comparing the Original entry to be marked and returned.

copy with the original, and attesting the copy if found correct, shall return the book to the plaintiff, and cause the copy to be filed.

SUIT by six plaintiffs praying for a declaration that certain proceedings of a District Temple Committee removing them from office as trustees of a temple were illegal. Defendants pleaded that the suit would not lie because of misjoinder, and also because further relief might have been sought. Held that, under s. 26 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the plaintiffs could not sue jointly, and that the plaint should be returned for amendment, one of the plaintiffs to be allowed to use it as his own. Held also that, unless there had been an actual ouster from office, a declaratory suit would lie.—Rāmanuja v. Devanāyaka, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 361. [Feb. 24, 1885.]

courts.

63. A document which ought to be produced in Court by the plaintiff when the plaint is presented, or to be entered in the list to be added or annexed to the plaint, and which is not produced or entered accordingly, shall not, without the leave of the Court, be received in evidence on his behalf at the hearing of the suit.

Nothing in this section applies to documents produced for cross-examination of the defendant's witnesses, or in answer to any case set up by the defendant, or handed to a witness merely to refresh his memory.

~~Certain~~ documents having been allowed by the District Munsif to be filed by the plaintiff during the trial of a suit, the District Judge, on appeal, held that he was bound to strike them off the file on the ground that they were not filed with the plaint nor entered in any list annexed to the plaint, and because the Munsif had not recorded any reason for admitting them. Held that, as the documents had been admitted in evidence by the Lower Court, the Appellate Court was bound to consider them.—Minakshi v. Velu, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 373. [Mar. 9, 1885.]

CHAPTER VI.

OF THE ISSUE AND SERVICE OF SUMMONS.

Issue of Summons.

64. When the plaint has been registered, and the copies of concise statements required by section 58 have been filed, a summons may be issued to each defendant to appear and answer the claim on a day to be therein specified,

- (a) in person, or
- (b) by a pleader duly instructed and able to answer all material questions relating to the suit, or
- (c) by a pleader accompanied by some other person able to answer all such questions.

Every such summons shall be signed by the Judge or such officer as he appoints, and shall be sealed with the seal of the Court :

• Provided that no such summons shall be issued when the defendant has appeared at the presentation of the plaint, and admitted the plaintiff's claim.

THE first hearing of a suit was fixed for the 12th December 1883, on which day the defendant did not appear, and the case was adjourned to the 18th December, and, as the defendant did not then appear, a decree was passed in favour of the plaintiff. A vakalat-nama had been previously filed on the defendant's part, and he had also objected to an application filed by the plaintiff for attachment of the defendant's property before judgment. Held that these acts on the defendant's part did not constitute an "appearance" by him within the meaning of s. 100 of the Civil Procedure Code, which referred to an appearance in answer to a summons to appear and answer the claim on a day specified, issued under s. 64; that the decree was therefore ex parte within the meaning of ss. 100 and 108, and an appeal consequently lay to the High Court under s. 583, cl. 9, from an order rejecting an application to set the decree aside. Zain-ul-abdin Khan v. Ahmad Raza Khan (I. L. R., 2 All. 67; L. R., 5 Ind. Ap. 233) distinguished; Administrator-General of Bengal v. Dyaram Das (6 B. L. R. 688), Bhimacharya v. Fakirappa (4 Bom. H. C. R. 206), and Bibes Haloo v. Atwaro (7 W. R. 81), referred to. Per Mahmood, J.—That the Court on the 18th December seemed to have acted under s. 157 of the Civil Procedure Code, and, choosing the first of the alternative courses allowed by that section, acted under Chapter VII. of the Code, and passed an ex-parte decree under the provisions of s. 100 of that chapter.—Hira Dai v. Hira Lal, I. L. R., 7 All. 538. [Jan. 29, 1885.]

Copy or statement annexed to summons.

65. Every such summons shall be accompanied with one of the copies or concise statements mentioned in section 58. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

Court may order defendant or plaintiff to appear in person.

66. If the Court sees reason to require the personal appearance of the defendant, the summons shall order him to appear in person in Court on the day therein specified. Ditto

If the Court sees reason to require the personal appearance of the plaintiff on the same day, it may make an order for such appearance.

A PLAINTIFF, who had been ordered, under s. 66 of the Civil Procedure Code, to appear in person in Court upon a day specified, failed to appear, and under s. 107, read with s. 102, his suit was dismissed. He then applied to the Court under s. 103 for an order to set the dismissal aside, but his application was rejected. He thereupon preferred an appeal from the decree dismissing the suit under the provisions of s. 540. Held that the plaintiff was not entitled to appeal from the decree dismissing the suit, and that his only remedy was by way of an appeal under s. 588 (8) of the Code from the order rejecting the application to set the dismissal aside. Lal Singh v. Kunjan (I. L. R., 4 All. 387) referred to.—Krishna Ram v. Gobind Prasad, I. L. R., 8 All. 20. [June 14, 1885.]

No party to be ordered to appear in person unless resident

67. No party shall be ordered to appear in person unless he resides. Ditto

(a) within the local limits of the Court's ordinary original jurisdiction, or

(b) without such limits and at a place less than fifty, or, where there is within 50 or, where there is railway, 200 miles. railway-communication for five-sixths of the distance between the place where he resides and the place where the Court is situate, two hundred miles from the Court-house.

68. The Court shall determine, at the time of issuing the summons, whether it shall be for the settlement of issues only, or for the final disposal of the suit; and the summons shall contain a direction accordingly: Ditto

Summons to be either to settle issues or for final disposal.

Provided that, in every suit heard by Courts of Small Causes, the summons shall be for the final disposal of the suit.

69. The day for the appearance of the defendant shall be fixed by the Court with reference to its current business, the place of residence of the defendant, and the time necessary for the service of the summons; and the day shall be so fixed as to allow the defendant sufficient time to enable him to appear and answer on such day. Ditto

What shall be deemed 'sufficient time' must be determined with reference to the circumstances of the case.

70. The summons to appear and answer shall order the defendant to produce any document in his possession or power, containing evidence relating to the merits of the plaintiff's case, or upon which the defendant intends to rely in support of his case. Ditto

Summons to order defendant to produce documents required by plaintiff or relied on by defendant.

Provincial S.
C. Courts.

Service of summons.

a copy thereof signed by the Judge or such officer as he appoints in this behalf, and sealed with the seal of the Court.

Ditto Service on several defendants.

74. When there are more defendants than one, service of the summons shall be made on each defendant :

Provided that, if the defendants are partners, and the suit relates to a partnership transaction, or to an actionable wrong in respect of which relief is claimable from the firm, the service may be made, unless the Court directs otherwise, either (a) on one defendant for himself and for the other defendants, or (b) on any person having the management of the business of the partnership at the principal place, within the local limits of the Court's ordinary original civil jurisdiction, of such business.

Ditto 75. Whenever it may be practicable, the service shall be made on the does not reside within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court from which the summons issues, service on any manager or agent, who, at the time of service, personally carries on such business or work for such person within such limits, shall be deemed good service.

For the purpose of this section, the master of a ship is the agent of his owner or charterer.

SERVICE unduly made under s. 76 does not become effectual by reason of the fact of such service being subsequently notified to the parties really interested as defendants. Somble.—Service duly effected under s. 76 is effectual without reference to the circumstance of its being or not being communicated to the real defendants.—Goculdas Dwarkadas v. Ganeshlal Halasroy, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 416. [June 22, 1880.]

Sec. 76 AND 37, cl. c, are to be construed together, and are intended to carry out the same scheme of relief, which rests upon the idea that, where an agent has been put forward substantially to take the place of his principal within a particular jurisdiction, he should take the place of such principal (at the option of any person who has dealt with him) in any legal proceedings that may arise out of the business or work in which the agent has been virtually a local principal. The manager or agent contemplated by the Code is one who has an initiative and independent discretion, albeit subject possibly to principles and general orders prescribed for his guidance. A mere servant employed to carry out orders or to execute a particular commission, or a factor or common agent who is not identified with the firm for which he acts, is not such an agent.—Goculdas Dwarkadas v. Ganeshlal Halasroy, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 416. [June 22, 1880.]

THUS, a firm which carried on business at Agra, and had no place of business in Bombay, employed G as its agent in Bombay in certain dealings which it had with the plaintiff. The letters and telegrams of the firm to G were sent to the plaintiff's place of business, or addressed to G as an individual, and not in the name of the firm; nor did G himself initiate any business, or in any way stand between the firm and the plaintiff. Held that G was not the manager or agent of the firm, within the meaning of s. 76, upon whom summons could be served in an action against the firm.—Goculdas Dwarkadas v. Ganeshlal Halasroy, 1. L. R., 4 Bom. 416. [June 22, 1880.]

TO SATISFY the conditions of Act X. of 1877, s. 76, as to service of summons on an agent, there must be a person residing without the local jurisdiction, but carrying on business or work within those limits by a manager or agent, and sued on account of such work, i. e., business either actually itself carried on by the agent or manager, or forming part of the business in the sense of a connected course of transactions to the management of which he has been duly appointed.—Goculdas Dwarkadas v. Ganeshlal Halasroy, 1. L. R., 4 Bom. 416. [June 22, 1880.]

77. In a suit to obtain relief respecting, or compensation for wrong to, immoveable property, if the service cannot be made on the defendant in person, and the defendant have no agent empowered to accept the service, it may be made on any agent of the defendant in charge of the property. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

78. If in any suit the defendant cannot be found, and if he have no agent empowered to accept the service of the summons on his behalf, the service may be made on any adult male member of the family of the defendant who is residing with him. Ditto.

Explanation.—A servant is not a member of the family within the meaning of this section.

79. When the serving-officer delivers or tenders a copy of the summons to the defendant personally, or to an agent or other person on his behalf, he shall require the signature of the person to whom the copy is so delivered or tendered to an acknowledgment of service endorsed on the original summons. Ditto.

80. If the defendant or other person refuses to sign the acknowledgment, Ditto.

or if the serving-officer cannot find the defendant, and there is no agent empowered to accept the service of the summons on his behalf, nor any other person on whom the service can be made, the serving-officer shall affix a copy of the summons on the outer door of the house in which the defendant ordinarily resides, and then return the original to the Court from which it issued, with a return endorsed thereon or annexed thereto stating that he has so affixed the copy and the circumstances under which he did so.

WHERE the service of summons has been effected on a defendant by affixing a copy of the summons on the door of his dwelling-house, the Court must decide whether the summons has been duly served by such affixing or not, and if it decides in the negative a new summons must be issued, or substituted service directed. Before the Court can decide in favour of the sufficiency of this mode of service, it must be satisfied that the defendant is keeping out of the way for the purpose of avoiding service. Where a summons has been transmitted by one Court to another for service by the latter, the transmitting Court is not bound, in every case, to satisfy itself that the law as to service has been strictly followed. The presumption in favour of the proceedings of a Court of Justice is that everything has been duly performed, and if the return made by the Court serving the summons states that the summons has been duly effected, that presumption must prevail, unless the return discloses some patent irregularity or clear divergence from the law. As a rule, on a return from a competent Court, that summons has been duly effected, it may be presumed that either personal service has been effected, or substituted service under s. 82, or under ss. 80 and 82 combined, of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882). As proof of due service of summons, a return from the Court of Small Causes at K was relied upon in the High Court. The return was in the following words: "Read bailiff's endorsement on the back of the process, stating that the summons has been affixed to the defendant's house on the 22nd December 1884 at 9 A.M.; and proof of the same having been duly taken by me, it is ordered that the summons be returned." Held that there was no sufficient service. The return itself proved the insufficiency. There was no statement, under the hand of the Judge, that the summons had been duly effected, and it did not appear that anything had been done beyond fixing the summons on the defendant's door. That affixing was not sanctioned after inquiry by the local Court, as required by s. 82. All that appeared to have been done was the affixing prescribed by s. 80, which was insufficient until confirmed under s. 82.—Nusr Mahomed v. Kázbái, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 202. [Feb. 8, 1886.]

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

81. The serving-officer shall, in all cases in which the summons has been served under section 79, endorse or annex, or cause to be endorsed or annexed, on or to the original summons, a return stating the time when, and the manner in which, the summons was served.

Ditto.

82. When a summons is returned under section 80, the Court shall examine the serving-officer on oath touching his proceedings, and may make such further inquiry in the matter as it thinks fit; and shall either declare that the summons has been duly served, or order such service as it thinks fit.

Where the Court is satisfied that there is reason to believe that the defendant is keeping out of the way for the purpose of avoiding the service, or that, for any other reason, the summons cannot be served in the ordinary way, the Court shall order the summons to be served by affixing a copy thereof in some conspicuous place in the Court-house, and also upon some conspicuous part of the house (if any) in which the defendant is known to have last resided, or in such other manner as the Court thinks fit.

Substituted service. In cases of substituted service, it is not sufficient to show that the notice has been attached to the door, unless the condition which renders such a mode of service good, viz., that the person who ought to be served is keeping out of the way, has been first established to the satisfaction of the Court.—Ram Chunder Dutt v. Jughesh Chunder Dutt, (P. C.) 2 P. C. R. 836; 19 W. R. 363; 12 B. L. R. 220. [Mar. 25, 1873.] See also 22 W. R. 482; 24 W. R. 381.

WHERE substituted service of summons is ordered under Act X. of 1877, s. 82, a sufficient time ought, under s. 84, to be given for notice of the fact to reach the defendant, wherever he may be; and if an ex-parte decree be obtained by the plaintiff, the Court, on being satisfied that the time fixed was insufficient, will set aside the decree.—Mirza Ally Bebanee v. Syed Hyder Hoosein, I. L. R., 2 Bom. 449. [Feb. 19, 1878.]

WHERE the service of summons has been effected on a defendant by affixing a copy of the summons on the door of his dwelling-house, the Court must decide whether the summons has been duly served by such affixing or not, and if it decides in the negative, a new summons must be issued, or substituted service-directed. Before the Court can decide in favour of the sufficiency of this mode of service, it must be satisfied that the defendant is keeping out of the way for the purpose of avoiding service. Where a summons has been transmitted by one Court to another for service by the latter, the transmitting Court is not bound, in every case, to satisfy itself that the law as to service has been strictly followed. The presumption in favour of the proceedings of a Court of Justice is that everything has been duly performed, and if the return made by the Court serving the summons states that the summons has been duly effected, that presumption must prevail, unless the return discloses some patent irregularity or clear divergence from the law. As a rule, on a return from a competent Court, that summons has been duly effected, it may be presumed that either personal service has been effected, or substituted service under s. 82, or under ss. 80 and 82 combined, of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882). As proof of due service of summons, a return from the Court of Small Causes at K was relied upon in the High Court. The return was in the following words: "Head bailiff's endorsement on the back of the process, stating that the summons has been affixed to the defendant's house on the 22nd December 1884 at 9 A.M.; and proof of the same having been duly taken by me, it is ordered that the summons be returned." Held that there was no sufficient service. The return itself proved the insufficiency. There was no statement, under the hand of the Judge, that the summons had been duly effected, and it did not appear that anything had been done beyond fixing the summons on the defendant's door. That affixing was not sanctioned after inquiry by the local Court, as required by s. 82. All that appeared to have been done was the affixing prescribed by s. 80, which was insufficient until confirmed under s. 82.—Nasur Mahomed v. Kāzbāi, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 202. [Feb. 8, 1886.]

83. The service substituted by order of the Court shall be as effective as if it had been made on the defendant personally. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

When service substituted, time for appearance to be fixed.

84. Whenever service is substituted by order of the Court, the Court shall fix such time for the appearance of the defendant as the case may require.

Ditto.

WHERE substituted service of summons is ordered under Act X. of 1877, s. 82, a sufficient time ought, under s. 84, to be given for notice of the fact to reach the defendant wherever he may be; and if an ex-parte decree be obtained by the plaintiff, the Court, on being satisfied that the time fixed was insufficient, will set aside the decree.—Mirza Ally Bebanee v. Syed Hyder Hoosein, I. L. R., 2 Bom. 449. [Feb. 19, 1878.]

85. If the defendant resides within the jurisdiction of any Court other than the Court in which the suit is instituted, and has no agent resident within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the latter Court empowered to accept the service of the summons, such Court shall send the summons, either by one of its officers or by post, to any Court, not being a High Court, having jurisdiction at the place where the defendant resides, by which it can be conveniently served, and shall fix such time for the appearance of the defendant as the case may require.

Ditto.

The Court to which the summons is sent shall, upon receipt thereof, proceed as if it had been issued by such Court, and shall then return the summons to the Court from which it originally issued, together with the record (if any) made under this paragraph.

86. Whenever any process, issued by any Court established beyond the limits of the towns of Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Rangoon, is to be served within any such town, it shall be sent to the Court of Small Causes within whose jurisdiction the process is to be served; and such Court of Small Causes shall deal with such process in the same manner as if the process had been issued by itself, and shall then return the process to the Court from which it issued.

87. If the defendant be in jail, the summons shall be delivered to the officer in charge of the jail in which the defendant is confined, and such officer shall cause the summons to be served upon the defendant.

Ditto

The summons shall be returned to the Court from which it issued, with a statement of the service endorsed thereon, and signed by the officer in charge of the jail, and by the defendant.

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

88. If the jail in which the defendant is confined is not in the district in which the suit is instituted, the summons may be sent by post or otherwise to the officer in charge of such jail, and such officer shall cause the summons to be served upon the defendant, and shall return the summons to the Court from which it issued, with a statement of the service endorsed thereon, and signed as provided in section 87.

Ditto.

89. If the defendant resides out of British India, and has no agent in British India empowered to accept the service, the summons shall be addressed to the defendant at the place where he is residing, and forwarded to him by post if there be postal communication between such place and the place where the Court is situate.

Ditto.

90. If there be a British Resident or Agent of Government in or for the territory in which the defendant resides, the summons may be sent to such Resident or Agent, by post or otherwise, for the purpose of being served upon the defendant; and if the Resident or Agent returns the summons with an endorsement under his hand that the summons has been served upon the defendant in manner hereinbefore directed, such endorsement shall be conclusive evidence of the service.

Ditto.

91. The Court may, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, substitute for the summons a letter signed by the Judge or such officer as he appoints in this behalf, when the defendant is, in the opinion of the Court, of a rank which entitles him to such mark of consideration.

The letter shall contain all the particulars required to be stated in the summons, and, subject to the provisions contained in section 92, shall be treated in all respects as a summons.

Ditto.

92. When a letter is so substituted for a summons, it may be sent to the defendant by post or by a special messenger selected by the Court, or in any other manner which the Court thinks fit; unless the defendant has an agent empowered to accept service of summons, in which case the letter may be delivered or sent to such agent.

Service of Process.

Ditto.

93. Every process issued under this Code shall be served at the expense of the party on whose behalf it is issued, unless the Court otherwise directs.

Costs of service.

The court-fee leviable for such service shall be levied within a time to be fixed by the Court before the process is issued.

Ditto.

94. All notices and orders required by this Code to be given to or served on any person shall be in writing, and shall be served in the manner hereinbefore provided for the service of summons.

Postage.

Ditto.

95. Postage, where chargeable on any notice, summons, or letter issued under this Code, and forwarded by post, and the fee for registering the same, shall be paid within a time to be fixed by the Court before the communication is forwarded;

Provided that the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, may remit such postage, or fee, or both, or may prescribe a scale of court-fees to be levied in lieu thereof.

CHAPTER VII.

OF THE APPEARANCE OF THE PARTIES, AND CONSEQUENCE OF NON-APPEARANCE.

96. On the day fixed in the summons for the defendant to appear, and answer, the parties shall be in attendance at the Court-house in person or by their respective pleaders, and the suit shall then be heard, unless the hearing be adjourned to a future day fixed by the Court.

Parties to appear on day fixed in summons for defendant to appear and answer. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

97. If, on the day so fixed for the defendant to appear and answer, it be found that the summons has not been served upon him in consequence of the failure of the plaintiff to pay the court-fee leviable for such service, the Court may order that the suit be dismissed:

Dismissal of suit where summons not served in consequence of plaintiff's failure to pay fee for issuing. Ditto.

Provided that no such order shall be passed, although the summons has not been served upon the defendant, if, on the day fixed for him to appear and answer, he attends in person or by agent, when he is allowed to appear by agent.

Proviso.

AN order under s. 97 of the Civil Procedure Code, dismissing a suit, on its being found that the summons has not been served on the defendant, in consequence of the failure of the plaintiff to pay the court-fee leviable for such service, is not appealable.—Lucky Churn Chowdhry v. Budurrunnissa, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 627. [Aug. 15, 1882.]*

98. If, on the day fixed for the defendant to appear and answer, or on any other subsequent day to which the hearing of the suit is adjourned, neither party appears, the suit shall be dismissed, unless the Judge, for reasons to be recorded under his hand, otherwise directs.

If neither party appears, suit to be dismissed. Ditto.

A PETITION was made under s. 549 of the Civil Procedure Code, praying that an appellant might be required to give security for the costs of the appeal. The ground upon which the petition was based was that the appellant was not pecuniarily in a position to pay the costs of the appeal if it should be dismissed. An order was passed directing the appellant to show cause why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted. When the petition came on for hearing, no one appeared to support it or to show cause against it, and it was accordingly rejected. An application was subsequently made on behalf of the petitioner, praying that the case might be restored to the register, on the ground that counsel for the petitioner was absent on the occasion of the hearing for fifteen minutes only, and that, as no one on behalf of the appellant had appeared to show cause, the petition should have been granted, and the absence of petitioner's counsel was immaterial. Held that the matter was dealt with by s. 98 of the Civil Procedure Code, and that s. 647 of the Code, prescribing that the procedure laid down for suits should be followed as far as it could be made applicable in proceedings other than suits, made s. 99 the rule by which the Court was to be guided. Held also that although no general rule could be laid down that the absence of counsel, when a case has been called on, should be treated as by itself a sufficient reason for restoring to the register either a regular suit, or an appeal, or a miscellaneous application, but each case of the kind must be dealt with according to its own particular circumstances, in the present case, taking the circumstances into consideration, an absence of counsel for fifteen minutes was not enough to preclude the Court from restoring the petition to the register.—Lakhni Chand v. Gatto Bai, I. L. R., 7 All. 542. [Feb. 19, 1885.]

Provincial S.
C. Courts.

99. Whenever a suit is dismissed under section 97 or section 98, the plaintiff may (subject to the law of limitation) bring a fresh suit; or if, within the period of thirty days from the date of the order dismissing the suit, he satisfies the Court that there was a sufficient excuse for his not paying the court-fee required within the time allowed for the service of the summons, or for his non-appearance, as the case may be, the Court shall pass an order to set aside the dismissal, and appoint a day for proceeding with the suit.

WHERE the plaintiff in a suit failed to deposit the talabana required for the purpose of issuing summonses to certain persons whom it was proposed to make defendants in addition to the original defendants in such suit, and the Court on that ground irregularly dismissed such suit as against such original defendants by an order purporting to be made under s. 110 of Act VIII. of 1859 on a day previous to that fixed for the hearing of such suit, held that such order of dismissal did not preclude the plaintiff from instituting a fresh suit.—Gulab Dai v. Jiwan Ram, I. L. R., 2 All. 318. [May 26, 1879.]

A PETITION was made under s. 549 of the Civil Procedure Code, praying that an appellant might be required to give security for the costs of the appeal. The ground upon which the petition was based was that the appellant was not pecuniarily in a position to pay the costs of the appeal if it should be dismissed. An order was passed directing the appellant to show cause why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted. When the petition came on for hearing, no one appeared to support it, or to show cause against it, and it was accordingly rejected. An application was subsequently made on behalf of the petitioner, praying that the case might be restored to the register, on the ground that counsel for the petitioner was absent on the occasion of the hearing for fifteen minutes only, and that, as no one on behalf of the appellant had appeared to show cause, the petition should have been granted, and the absence of petitioner's counsel was immaterial. Held that the matter was dealt with by s. 98 of the Civil Procedure Code, and that s. 647 of the Code, prescribing that the procedure laid down for suits should be followed as far as it could be made applicable in proceedings other than suits, made s. 99 the rule by which the Court was to be guided. Held also that although no general rule could be laid down that the absence of counsel, when a case has been called on, should be treated as by itself a sufficient reason for restoring to the register either a regular suit, or an appeal, or a miscellaneous application, but each case of the kind must be dealt with according to its own particular circumstances, in the present case, taking the circumstances into consideration, an absence of counsel for fifteen minutes was not enough to preclude the Court from restoring the petition to the register.—Lakhmi Chand v. Gatto Bai, I. L. R., 7 All. 542 [Feb. 19, 1885.]

Ditto.

99A. If, after a summons has, whether before or after the first day of June 1882, been issued to the defendant, or to one of several defendants, and returned unserved, the plaintiff fails for a period of one year from such return to apply for the issue of a fresh summons, and to satisfy the Court that he has used his best endeavours to discover the residence of the defendant who has not been served, or that such defendant is avoiding service of process, the Court may dismiss the suit as against such defendant.

In such case the plaintiff may (subject to the law of limitation) bring a fresh suit.

Ditto.

Procedure if only plaintiff appears,

100. If the plaintiff appears, and the defendant does not appear, the procedure shall be as follows :

when summons duly served,

(a) if it is proved that the summons was duly served, the Court may proceed ex parte :

(b) if it is not proved that the summons was duly served, the Court shall direct a second summons to be issued and served on the defendant :

when summons not duly served,

(c) if it is proved that the summons was served on the defendant, but when summons served, but not in sufficient time to enable him to appear and answer on the day fixed, in the summons, the Court shall postpone the hearing of the suit to a future day to be fixed by the Court, and shall direct notice of such day to be given to the defendant.

If it is owing to the plaintiff's default that the summons was not served in sufficient time, the Court shall order him to pay the costs occasioned by such postponement.

WHEN the plaintiff in a suit appears at the hearing, and the defendant does not appear, the proper procedure to follow is that prescribed by s. 100 of Act X. of 1877, whether the defendant has been summoned only to appear and answer the claim, or has in addition been summoned to attend and give evidence. It is not necessary, before proceeding to hear and determine a suit ex parte under s. 100, that all the process prescribed by law for compelling the attendance of the defendant as a witness should be exhausted. It is sufficient that due service of the summons upon the defendant is proved. If such proof is not given, the courses to be adopted are one or other of those mentioned in clauses b and c of s. 100 according to the circumstances of the case. The plaints and records in a number of suits upon bonds instituted by the same plaintiff against different persons were destroyed by fire. The suits were re-instituted, and duplicate copies of the plaints were filed. The only evidence of the contents of the bonds, from which the plaints were prepared, consisted of a register kept by the plaintiff's gumasthas of the names of the executants of the bonds, the matter in respect of which the bonds had been given, the amounts due thereunder, and the names of the attesting witnesses. From this register the duplicate plaints had been prepared. Held that though the register was not secondary evidence of the contents of the bonds, yet it was a document which might be referred to by a witness for the purpose of refreshing his memory under s. 159 of the Evidence Act.—Taruck Nath Mullick v. Jeamat Nosya, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 353. [June 13, 1879.]

THE plaintiff sued, under s. 3, cl. w, of Act XVII. of 1877, for money due on a bond, dated the 8th September 1877. The defendant, though duly summoned, did not appear on the day fixed in the summons, which was for the final disposal of the suit. The Court, therefore, proceeded with it ex parte. The defendant, being subsequently summoned and examined as a witness under s. 7 of the Act, admitted the bond sued upon, but pleaded part-payment of the plaintiff's claim. He then applied to the Court that his witnesses should be summoned, and that their evidence be taken in support of his allegation. The Subordinate Judge was of opinion that he (defendant) was not entitled to offer the evidence. On his referring the case to the High Court, held that it was his duty to summon the witnesses named by the defendant.—Dulicand v. Dhondi, I. L. R., 5 Bom. 184. [Oct. 5, 1880.]

THE first hearing of a suit was fixed for the 12th December 1883, on which day the defendant did not appear, and the case was adjourned to the 18th December, and, as the defendant did not then appear, a decree was passed in favour of the plaintiff. A vakalat-nama had been previously filed on the defendant's part, and he had also objected to an application filed by the plaintiff for attachment of the defendant's property before judgment. Held that these acts on the defendant's part did not constitute an "appearance" by him within the meaning of s. 100 of the Civil Procedure Code, which referred to an appearance in answer to a summons to appear and answer the claim on a day specified, issued under s. 64; that the decree was therefore ex parte within the meaning of ss. 100 and 108, and an appeal consequently lay to the High Court under s. 583, cl. 9, from an order rejecting an application to set the decree aside. Zain-ul-abdin Khan v. Ahmad Raza Khan (I. L. R., 2 All. 67; I. L. R., 5 Ind. Ap. 233) distinguished. Administrator-General of Bengal v. Dyanam Das (6 B. L. R. 688), Bhimacharya v. Fakirappa (4 Bom. H. C. R. 206), and Bibee Haloo v. Atwaro (7 W. R. 81), referred to. Per Mahmood, J.—That the Court, on the 18th December, seemed to have acted under s. 157 of the Civil Procedure Code, and, choosing the first of the alternative courses allowed by that section, acted under Chapter VII. of the Code, and passed an ex-parte decree under the provisions of s. 100 of that chapter.—Hira Dai v. Hira Lal, I. L. R., 7 All. 538. [Jan. 29, 1885.]

A DEFENDANT against whom a decree has been passed ex parte, and who has not adopted the procedure provided by s. 108 of the Code of Civil Procedure, can appeal from such decree under the general provisions of s. 540. Lal Singh v. Kunjan (I. L. R., 4 All. 387) dissented from.—Karuppan v. Ayyathorai, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 445. [July 24, 1886.]

THE plaintiff in a suit described one of the defendants thus: "N C, guardian on behalf of her own minor son, S C." Upon the presentation of the plaint the Court directed the plaintiff to produce an affidavit to the effect that the mother of the minor defendant was his guardian, and, an affidavit having been made that the "minor defendant" was under the guardianship of the mother, ordered a suit to be registered, and summons to be issued on the defendants. N C then filed a written statement, alleging that she held the land in suit on behalf of the minor. Held that, having regard to the orders of the Court and the allegations made in the plaint and written statement, the suit was substantially brought against the minor, and the error of description in the plaint being one of mere form, could not, without proof of prejudice, invalidate a decree against him in the suit. Held also that the want of a formal order appointing a guardian ad litem was not fatal to the suit, when it appeared on the face of the proceedings that the Court had sanctioned the appointment. Held (O'Kinealy, J. dissenting) that the fact that an order appointing a guardian ad litem at the instance of the plaintiff was made ex parte was not necessarily fatal to the suit, unless it could be shown that the minor had in any manner been prejudiced thereby. Per Mitter, J. (Petheram, C.J., concurring) that, although the matter of the appointment of a guardian ad litem is left to the discretion of the Court, it is always desirable that the appointment at the instance of the plaintiff should not be made, unless the minor, or his friends and relatives in whose care he may be, failed to move the Court for that purpose within a reasonable time after receiving notice of the institution of the suit.—Suresh Chunder Wum Chowdhry v. Jugut Chunder Deb, I. L. R., 14 Cal. 204. [Aug. 14, 1886.]

101. If the Court has adjourned the hearing of the suit ex parte, and the defendant, at or before such hearing, appears and assigns good cause for his previous non-appearance, he may, upon such terms as the Court directs as to costs or otherwise, be heard in answer to the suit, as if he had appeared on the day fixed for his appearance.

THE plaintiff sued, under s. 3, cl. iv, of Act XVII. of 1877, for money due on a bond, dated the 8th September 1877. The defendant, though duly summoned, did not appear on the day fixed in the summons, which was for the final disposal of the suit. The Court, therefore, proceeded with it ex parte. The defendant, being subsequently summoned and examined as a witness under s. 7 of the Act, admitted the bond sued upon, but pleaded part-payment of the plaintiff's claim. He then applied to the Court that his witnesses should be summoned, and that their evidence be taken in support of his allegation. The Subordinate Judge was of opinion that he (defendant) was not entitled to offer the evidence. On his referring the case to the High Court, held that it was his duty to summon the witnesses named by the defendant.—Dulichand v. Dhondi, I. L. R., 5 Bom. 184. [Oct. 5, 1880.]

DEFENDANTS, who put in no appearance at the original hearing, and who have subsequently been refused leave to appear and defend, are at liberty, where an ex-parte decree has been passed against them, to appeal to a higher Court, without previously taking any steps to have the ex-parte decree set aside under s. 108 of Act X. of 1877.—Ashraffunnissa v. Lehareaux, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 272. [Jan. 23, 1882.]

THE first hearing of a suit was fixed for the 12th December 1883, on which day the defendant did not appear, and the case was adjourned to the 18th December, and, as the defendant did not then appear, a decree was passed in favour of the plaintiff. A vakalat-nama had been previously filed on the defendant's part, and he had also objected to an application filed by the plaintiff for attachment of the defendant's property before judgment. Held that these acts on the defendant's part did not constitute an "appearance" by him within the meaning of s. 100 of the Civil Procedure Code, which referred to an appearance in answer to a summons to appear and answer the claim on a day specified, issued under s. 64; that the decree was therefore ex parte within the meaning of ss. 100 and 108, and an appeal consequently lay to the High Court under s. 583, cl. 2, from an order rejecting an application to set the decree aside. Zain-ul-abdin Khan v. Ahmad Raza Khan (I. L. R., 2 All. 67; L. R., 5 Ind. Ap. 233) distinguished. Administrator-General of Bengal v. Dyaram Das (6 B. L. R. 688), Bhimacharya v. Fakirappa (4 Bom. H. C. R. 206), and Bibee Haloo v. Atwaro (7 W. B. 81), referred to. Per Mahmood, J.—That the Court, on the 18th December, seemed to have acted under s. 157 of the Civil Procedure Code, and, choosing the first of the alternative courses allowed by that section, acted under Chapter VII. of the Code, and passed an ex-parte decree under the provisions of s. 100 of that chapter.—Hira Dai v. Hira Lal, I. L. R., 7 All. 338. [Jan. 29, 1886.]

A DEFENDANT, against whom a decree has been passed ex parte, and who has not adopted the procedure provided by s. 108 of the Code of Civil Procedure, can appeal from such decree under the general provisions of s. 540. Ial Singh v. Kunjan (I. L. R., 4 All. 387) dissented from.—Karuppan v. Ayyathurai, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 445. [July 24, 1886.]

102. If the defendant appears, and the plaintiff does not appear, the Court shall dismiss the suit, unless the defendant admits the claim, or part thereof, in which case the Court shall pass a decree against the defendant upon such admission, and, where part only of the claim has been admitted, shall dismiss the suit so far as it relates to the remainder.

Extending to Provincial &
C. Courts.

In a suit, issues having been settled, the final hearing of the suit was adjourned to a fixed date for final disposal. On that date plaintiff did not appear, and the suit was dismissed. Held that, as this was not a case which had been adjourned in favour of either party to enable him to "produce his proofs, or cause the attendance of his witnesses," the order was not one which could properly be made.—Ryall v. Sherman, I. L. R., 1 Mad. 287. [Mar. 16, 1877.]

103. When a suit is wholly or partially dismissed under section 102, the plaintiff shall be precluded from bringing a fresh suit in respect of the same cause of action. But he may apply for an order to set the dismissal aside; and, if it be proved that he was prevented by any sufficient cause from appearing when the suit was called on for hearing, the Court shall set aside the dismissal upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit, and shall appoint a day for proceeding with the suit.

Ditto,

No order shall be made under this section unless the plaintiff has served the defendant with notice in writing of his application.

PER Garth, C.J.—The operation of s. 103 of the Code of Civil Procedure is confined to those cases only where a second suit is brought for the same object and cause of action as the suit which is dismissed.—Gobind Chunder Addya v. Afzul Rabbani, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 426. [Dec. 5, 1882.]

In 1879 the plaintiff purchased from one Bábáji (defendant No. 1) the land in question in the suit which was then in the possession of one Rámchandra (defendant No. 2) as mortgagee. Bábáji undertook to pay off the mortgage, but failed to do so. In 1881 the plaintiff brought a suit for redemption against Rámchandra (defendant No. 2), which was dismissed for non-appearance of the plaintiff under s. 102 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877). He subsequently filed the present suit against Bábáji and Rámchandra to recover possession of the land. The defendant pleaded that the suit was barred under the provisions of s. 103 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held that the cause of action in the two suits was different, and that the present suit was not barred.—Rámchandra Jiváji Tilve v. Khatal Mahomed Gori, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 28. [Mar. 12, 1885.]

A PLAINTIFF, who had been ordered, under s. 66 of the Civil Procedure Code, to appear in person in Court upon a day specified, failed to appear, and under s. 107, read with s. 102, his suit was dismissed. He then applied to the Court under s. 103 for an order to set the dismissal aside, but his application was rejected. He thereupon preferred an appeal from the decree dismissing the suit under the provisions of s. 540. Held that the plaintiff was not entitled to appeal from the decree dismissing the suit, and that his only remedy was by way of an appeal under s. 588 (8) of the Code from the order rejecting the application to set the dismissal aside. Ial Singh v. Kunjan (I. L. R., 4 All. 387) referred to.—Krishna Ram v. Gobind Prasad, I. L. R., 8 All. 20. [June 14, 1885.]

HELD by the Full Bench (Straight, Offg. C.J., and Tyrrell, J., expressing no opinion) that a respondent, in whose absence the appeal has been heard ex parte, and against whom judgment has been given, may prefer a second appeal from the decree under the provisions of s. 584 of the Civil Procedure Code, and his remedy is not limited to an application under s. 580 to the Court which passed the decree to re-hear the appeal. Ramjas v. Baijnath (I. L. R., 2 All. 567) approved. PER Oldfield, J.—There is a distinction between the case of a defendant in a Court of first instance and that of a respondent in an Appellate Court not appearing with reference to ss. 103 and 580 of the Code. Ial Singh v.

104. If, on the day fixed for the hearing of a suit against a defendant residing out of British India, who has no agent empowered to accept service of summons, or on any day to which the hearing has been adjourned, the defendant does not appear, the plaintiff may apply to the Court for permission to proceed with his suit, and the Court may direct that the plaintiff be at liberty to proceed with his suit in such manner and subject to such conditions as the Court thinks fit.

Ditto.

105. If there be more plaintiffs than one, and one or more of them appear, and the others do not appear, the Court may, at the instance of the plaintiff or plaintiffs appearing, permit the suit to proceed in the same way as if all the plaintiffs had appeared, and pass such order as it thinks fit.

Ditto.

106. If there be more defendants than one, and one or more of them appear, and the others do not appear, the suit shall proceed, and the Court shall, at the time of passing judgment, make such order as it thinks fit with respect to the defendants who do not appear.

Ditto.

107. If a plaintiff or defendant, who has been ordered to appear in person under the provisions of section 66 or section 436, does not appear in person, or shew sufficient cause to the satisfaction of the Court for failing so to appear, he shall be subject to all the provisions of the foregoing sections applicable to plaintiffs and defendants, respectively, who do not appear.

A PLAINTIFF, who had been ordered, under s. 66 of the Civil Procedure Code, to appear in person in Court upon a day specified, failed to appear, and under s. 107, read with s. 102, his suit was dismissed. He then applied to the Court under s. 103 for an order to set the dismissal aside, but his application was rejected. He thereupon preferred an appeal from the decree dismissing the suit under the provisions of s. 540. Held that the plaintiff was not entitled to appeal from the decree dismissing the suit, and that his only remedy was by way of an appeal under s. 588 (8) of the Code from the order rejecting the application to set the dismissal aside. Lal Singh v. Kunjan (I. L. R., 4 All. 387) referred to.—Krishna Ram v. Gobind Prasad, I. L. R., 8 All. 20. [June 14, 1885.]

• Of setting aside Decrees ex parte.

Ditto.

108. In any case in which a decree is passed ex parte against a defendant, he may apply to the Court by which the decree was made for an order to set it aside ; and if he satisfies the Court that the summons was not duly served, or that he was prevented by any sufficient cause from appearing when the suit was called on for hearing, the Court shall pass an order to set aside the decree upon such terms as to costs, payment into Court, or otherwise, as it thinks fit, and shall appoint a day for proceeding with the suit.

AN ex parte decree having been granted in a suit against A personally and as guardian of her infant sons, the infants subsequently applied under s. 119 of Act VIII. of 1859 to set aside the decree, on the ground that the summons had not been duly served. It was proved that the summons had been duly served upon A, and the application was dismissed. On appeal to the High Court, held that, although so far as the decrees made A personally liable, the Court had no power to interfere, yet as the infants were not responsible for their non-appearance, it might be said that they had been prevented by "sufficient cause from appearing," and that the decrees might be set aside under s. 119 of Act VIII. of 1859 (s. 108 of Act X. of 1877) as against them.—Kesho Pershad v. Hirday Narain, 6 C. L. R. 69. [1880.]

UNDER s. 540 of the Civil Procedure Code an appeal lies from decrees passed ex parte. If a defendant appears at the first hearing, and files a written statement, he should not be placed ex parte.—Anantharama Patter v. Madhava Paniker, 1 L. R., 3 Mad. 26. [Sep. 8, 1881.]

HELD by Stuart, C.J., and Straight and Tyrrell, JJ. (Oldfield and Brodhurst, JJ., dissenting), that a defendant against whom a decree has been passed ex parte, and who has not adopted the remedy provided by s. 108 of the Civil Procedure Code, cannot appeal from such decree under the general provisions of s. 540.—Lal Singh v. Kunjan, 1 L. R., 4 All. 387. [April 27, 1882.]

AN ex parte decree was obtained against a defendant, who applied to have it set aside under s. 108 of the Civil Procedure Code. The application was made more than thirty days from the date of attaching the defendant's property in execution of the decree, but within thirty days of the service of the sale-proclamation. Held that the application was barred by limitation under art. 161, sch. 2, Act XV. of 1877.—In the Matter of Bhaobunessury; Bhaobunessury v. Judobendra Narain Mullick, 1 L. R., 9 Cal. 869. [June 20, 1882.]

THE only proper mode of dealing with cases, whether a regular suit or a miscellaneous proceeding, when the parties do not appear, is to dismiss it. A case so dismissed can be restored on application under s. 108, which is, by s. 617, applicable as well to execution-proceedings as to suits and appeals.—Biswas Sonan Chunder Gossyam v. Binanda Chunder Dibingar Adhikar Gossyam, 1 L. R., 10 Cal. 416. [Feb. 14, 1884.]

A DEFENDANT failing to comply with an order to answer interrogatories, the Court, under s. 136 of the Civil Procedure Code, struck out his defence, and, proceeding ex parte, passed a decree against him. Held that the decree could not be treated in respect of the remedy by appeal, as an ex parte decree, and therefore, under the ruling in Lal Singh v. Kunjan (1 L. R., 4 All. 387), not appealable, but that an appeal would lie from the decree.—Chunni Lal v. Channan Lal, 1 L. R., 7 All. 159. [Nov. 1, 1884.]

THE first hearing of a suit was fixed for the 12th December 1883, on which day the defendant did not appear, and the case was adjourned to the 18th December, and, as the defendant did not then appear, a decree was passed in favour of the plaintiff. Avakalat-nama had been previously filed on the defendant's part, and he had also objected to an application filed by the plaintiff for attachment of the defendant's property before judgment. Held that these acts on the defendant's part did not constitute an "appearance" by him within the meaning of s. 100 of the Civil Procedure Code, which referred to an appearance in answer to a summons to appear and answer the claim on a day specified, issued under s. 64; that the decree was, therefore, ex parte within the meaning of ss. 100 and 108, and an appeal consequently lay to the High Court under s. 583, cl. 9, from an order rejecting an application to set the decree aside. Zain-ul-din Khan v. Ahmad Raza Khan (1 L. R., 2 All. 67 L. R., 5 Ind. App. 233) distinguished. Administrator-General of Bengal v. Dyaram Das (6 B. L. R. 688), Bhimacharya v. Fakirappa (1 Bom. H. C. R. 206), and Bibee Halgo v. Atwaro (7 W. R. 81), referred to. Per Mahmood, J.—That the Court, on the 18th December, seemed to have acted under s. 157 of the Civil Procedure Code, and, choosing the first of the alternative courses allowed by that section, acted under Chapter VII. of the Code, and passed an ex parte decree under the provision of s. 100 of that chapter.—Hira Dai v. Hira Lal, 1 L. R., 7 All. 638. [Jan. 20, 1885.]

A MUNST, before whom a suit was pending, fixed, by way of adjournment, a particular date for its disposal. Upon the date so fixed it was necessary to take evidence upon issues of fact which had previously been settled. The plaintiffs appeared on that day.

The defendants did not appear, but there was in Court a pleader who had been instructed by the two principal defendants at the outset, and who had filed his vakalatnāma. There was nothing to show that he had ever received any other instructions whatever, either as to the facts of the case or the conduct of the defence, or that the defendants had done anything beyond giving the pleader the instructions above referred to. Under these circumstances, the plaintiffs gave their evidence, and the Munsif decreed the claim. Held that, under the circumstances stated, the defendants' pleader must be taken not to have been in Court on the date fixed for the purpose of defending the suit on behalf of the defendants, inasmuch as, upon that part of the case, he had not been instructed; that it was therefore a fair inference that the defendants did not appear, and the case was disposed of under s. 157 of the Civil Procedure Code; and that, under these circumstances, the provisions of s. 108 were applicable, and the decree was an ex parte decision, which it was open to the Munsif to reconsider. Hira Dai v. Hira Lal (I. L. R., 7 All. 538) followed.—Ramtahal Ram v. Rameshar Ram, I. L. R., 8 All. 140. [Jan. 9, 1886.]

Held by the Full Bench (Straight. Offg. C.J., and Tyrrell, J., expressing no opinion), that a respondent, in whose absence the appeal has been heard ex parte, and against whom judgment has been given, may prefer a second appeal from the decree under the provisions of s. 584 of the Civil Procedure Code, and his remedy is not limited to an application under s. 560 to the Court which passed the decree to re-hear the appeal. *Ramjas v. OF WRITTEN STATEMENTS AND SET-OFF.

Ditto.

110. The parties may, at any time before or at the first hearing of the suit, tender written statements of their respective cases, and the Court shall receive such statements, and place them on the record.

Written statements.

This section contemplates that a defendant shall, in his written statement, set forth the case he intends to make at the trial.—Chová Kára v. Isabin Khalifa, I. L. R., 1 Bom. 209. [Aug. 31, 1875.]

In a suit for wrongful dismissal, in which the defendants pleaded justification by reason of the plaintiff's misconduct, held: (1) That the defendants at the hearing could not give evidence of a transaction involving instances of misconduct not set forth in their written statement. They should either have filed a supplemental written statement before the hearing, or have furnished the plaintiff with particulars of the misconduct in question, and intimated to him their intention of relying on the transaction as going to establish the general allegation of misconduct. (2.) That although the transaction in question could not be made the subject-matter of an auxiliary issue, the evidence of it, as such, could not be received, yet that questions relating to it might be put to the plaintiff in cross-examination for the purpose of affecting his credit. Supplemental written statements cannot be filed after the parties have entered upon their case at the hearing. Statements laid by clients before Counsel for the purpose of obtaining legal advice are privileged. A was employed by B, at intervals of a week or fortnight, to write up B's account-books, B furnishing him with the necessary information either orally or from loose memoranda. Held that the entries so made could not be given in evidence to contradict A, under s. 145 of the Indian Evidence Act, as previous statements made by him in writing. The statements were really made, not by A, but by B, under whose instructions A had written them. Held also that it is only such books as are entered up as transactions take place that can be considered as books regularly kept in the course of business with s. 34 of the Indian Evidence Act.—Munchershaw Bezouji v. New Dhurumsey Spinning, and Weaving Company, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 570. [Aug. 12, 1880.]

A WRITTEN statement of his case, tendered by a party to a suit at any time before or at the first hearing of the suit, is not liable to any court-fee, and may be written on plain paper (s. 110 of Act X. of 1877). A written statement called for by the Court after the first hearing is also exempt from stamp-duty (s. 19 of Act VII. of 1870).—Nagu v. Yeknath, I. E. R., 5 Bom. 400. [Mar. 22, 1881.]

III. If in a suit for the recovery of money the defendant claims to set-off Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

Particulars of set-off to be given in written statement. off against the plaintiff's demand any ascertained sum of money legally recoverable by him from the plaintiff, and if, in such claim of the defendant against the plaintiff, both parties fill the same character as they fill in the plaintiff's suit, the defendant may, at the first hearing of the suit, but not afterwards, unless permitted by the Court, tender a written statement containing the particulars of the debt sought to be set-off.

The Court shall thereupon inquire into the same, and if it finds that the case fulfils the requirements of the former part of this section, and that the amount claimed to be set-off does not exceed the pecuniary limits of its jurisdiction, the Court shall set-off the one debt against the other.

Such set-off shall have the same effect as a plaint in a cross-suit, so as to enable the Court to pronounce a final judgment in the same suit, both in the original and on the cross-claim; but it shall not affect the lien, upon the amount decreed, of any pleader in respect of the costs payable to him under the decree.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths Rs. 2,000 to B, and appoints C his executor and residuary legatee. B dies, and D takes out administration to B's effects. C pays Rs. 1,000 as surety for D. Then D sues C for the legacy. C cannot set-off the debt of Rs. 1,000 against the legacy, for neither C nor D fills the same character with respect to the legacy as they fill with respect to the payment of the Rs. 1,000.

(b.) A dies intestate and in debt to B. C takes out administration to A's effects, and B buys part of the effects from C. In a suit for the purchase-money by C against B, the latter cannot set-off the debt against the price, for C fills two different characters, one as the vendor to B, in which he sues B, and the other as representative to A.

(c.) A sues B on a bill of exchange. B alleges that A has wrongfully neglected to insure B's goods, and is liable to him in compensation, which he claims to set-off. The amount, not being ascertained, cannot be set-off.

(d.) A sues B on a bill of exchange for Rs. 500. B holds a judgment against A for Rs. 1,000. The two claims, being both definite pecuniary demands, may be set-off.

(e.) A sues B for compensation on account of a trespass. B holds a promissory note for Rs. 1,000 from A, and claims to set-off that amount against any sum that A may recover in the suit. B may do so, for as soon as A recovers, both sums are definite pecuniary demands.

(f.) A and B sue C for Rs. 1,000. C cannot set-off a debt due to him by A alone.

(g.) A sues B and C for Rs. 1,000. B cannot set-off a debt due to him alone by A.

(h.) A owes the partnership-firm of B and C Rs. 1,000. B dies, leaving C surviving. A sues C for a debt of Rs. 1,500 due in his separate character. C may set-off the debt of Rs. 1,000.

THE usufructuary mortgagee of certain lands sued the mortgagor for the money due under the mortgage.* The mortgagor alleged that the mortgagee had committed waste, and was liable to him for compensation, which he claimed to set-off. Held that, under Act X. of 1877, s. 111, the amount of such compensation could not be set-off.—Raghu Nath Das v. Ashraf Husain Khan, I. L. R., 2 All. 232. [Mar. 25, 1879.]

WHERE there is a debt due from an insolvent prior to his insolvency to another from whom there was a debt which was in dispute due to the insolvent, in a suit brought by the Official Assignee to recover the latter debt, the defendant is entitled, under s. 39 of the Insolvent Act, 11 and 12 Vic. cap. 21, to set-off the debt due from him to the insolvent, against sums which may be claimed from him.—Miller (A. B.) v. Beer (A.), 6 C. L. R. 294. [April 1, 1880.]

THE provisions of Act X. of 1877 do not give the right to set-off claims for unliquidated damages, but that Act does not take away any right of set-off, whether legal or equitable, which parties to a suit would have independently of its provisions. Where, in a suit for the price of goods sold and delivered, the defendant admitted that there was a sum of Rs. 1,159-12 due by him to the plaintiff, but sought to set-off the sum of Rs. 972 as damages sustained by him by reason of the non-delivery of some of the goods contracted for, held that as the claim of the defendant against the plaintiff was connected with the same transaction, and arose out of one and the same contract as that in respect of which the plaintiff's suit was brought, and as the amount of the defendant's claim was capable of being immediately ascertained, the defendant might set-off his claim.—Kishor-chand Champalal v. Madhoy K. Visram, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 107. [July 12, 1880.]

THE heirs to M, deceased, appointed A, one of the heirs, manager of M's estate with a view to the payment of the debts due by the deceased. A creditor of the deceased sued his heirs to recover his debt, and obtained a decree, in execution of which the share of Z, one of the heirs in M's landed estate, was sold. The sale-proceeds exceeded Z's share of such debt, and she sued the other heirs for contribution in respect of the difference. The defendants claimed a set-off in respect of Z's share of the liabilities of M's estate which had been satisfied by A as manager. Held that the set-off claimed could not be entertained in such suit.—Abdul Hasan v. Zohra Jan, I. L. R., 5 All. 299. Feb. 3, 1883.]

A SUIT was brought by P against the Elgin Mills Company for recovery of the price of wood supplied under two contracts, each of which contained a clause by which the plaintiff contracted to indemnify the defendants for loss arising by reason of failure on his part to supply the wood as contracted for. No wood was supplied after the 11th November 1879. The suit was brought on the 10th October 1882. In January 1883, the partners of the Elgin Mills Company were, on their own application, brought upon the record as defendants. Defendants claimed a set-off as damages for loss incurred by the plaintiff's failure to supply all the wood contracted for, such loss having arisen on the 25th October 1879, and subsequently. Held that art. 53, and not art. 52, sch. ii., of the Limitation Act, was applicable to the plaintiff's claim, the intention of the parties having been that the price of wood was not claimable as of right on the date of its being supplied, but rather when the contract was completed by the whole wood being supplied, or when the contract came to an end. Held that although, taking the word "ascertain" to mean "liquidated," the claim of the defendants for damages would not come within the meaning of a set-off under s. 111 of the Civil Procedure Code, that section was one regulating procedure, and was not intended to take away any right of set-off, whether legal or equitable, which parties would have had independently of its provisions; that the right of set-off would be found to exist not only in cases of mutual debts and credits, but also where the cross-demands arose out of one and the same transaction, or were so connected in their nature and circumstances as to make it inequitable that the plaintiff should recover and the defendant be driven to a cross-suit, and that as, in the present case, the claim sprang out of the same contract which the plaintiff ought to enforce, and could readily be determined in the same suit, it was equitable that it should be so determined.—Gauri Sahai v. Ram Sahai (N. W. P. H. C. Rep. 1875, p. 157), Kishnamany Pillay v. The Municipal Commissioner of Madras (4 Mad. H. C. Rep. 120), and Kishor

Chaud Champa Lal v. Madhowji Visram (I. L. R., 4 Bom. 407), followed. Held that the law of limitation applicable to the set-off was art. 83, sch. ii., of the Limitation Act; that limitation would run from the time when the plaintiff was actually damaged, and should be reckoned to the date of the institution of the suit, and not to that of claiming the set-off, which was after the defendant's names were brought on the record; and that the set-off was therefore in time. Walker v. Clements (15 Q. B. 1046) referred to. Per Oldfield, J.—That the excess of the set-off in favour of the defendants over and above the claim of the plaintiff might properly be decreed to them, and that the set-off should be allowed, if at all, to its full extent, and not merely to the extent of defeating the claim. Per Duthoit, J.—That although the set-off might properly be admitted as an equitable protection to the defendants against being cast in the plaintiff's suit, the defendants could not, failing the provisions of s. 111 of the Civil Procedure Code, be allowed to recover a sum of money from the plaintiff, they having paid no court-fees on that account. Held that s. 22 of the Limitation Act refers to cases where a new defendant is substituted or added, and that when the partners of the Elgin Mills Company were brought on the record as defendants in January 1883, there was no institution or addition of new defendants, the defendants having been comprised in the designation of Elgin Mills Company, and at most what was done was to correct a misdescription.—Pragi Lal v. Maxwell, I. L. R., 7 All. 284. [Jan. 15, 1885.]

THE provision of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), s. 111, does not take away from parties any right to set-off, whether legal or equitable, which they would have had independently of that Code. And such right exists not only in cases of material debts and credits, but also where cross-demands arise out of the same transaction, or are so connected in their nature and circumstances as to make it inequitable that the plaintiff should recover, and the defendant should be driven to a cross-suit. Where, therefore, a decree had been obtained against certain persons in respect of arrears of rent of an ijara held jointly by them, and one of them having been forced to pay the whole amount of decree sued the others for contribution, and when in such suit the defendants pleaded that, although the plaintiff had paid off the whole of the decree in question, he was not entitled to recover any portion from them, inasmuch as he was indebted to them for his share of the ijara rents, the whole of which had been paid by them to the zamindar in previous years, as well as in respect of rent due to them for the share on account of a portion of the land which he himself held in nij jote, and for which he had paid no rent, and that, on accounts being gone into, it would be found that their claim exceeded that of the plaintiff, held, following Clark v. Rithnavallu Chetti (2 Mad. H. C. 296), and Kishorechand Champalal v. Madhowji Visram (I. L. R., 4 Bom. 407), that notwithstanding the provisions of s. 111 of the Civil Procedure Code, the defendants' claim for the share of rents paid by them to the zamindar on account of the same ijara might properly be pleaded as a set-off, and be taken into account in determining the plaintiff's suit as arising out of the same transaction, but that their claim for rent for the portion of the lands held by the plaintiff in nij jote could not be treated in such manner, but must form the subject-matter of a separate suit.—Blagbat Panda v. Bamdeb Panda, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 557. [May 12, 1885.]

IN a suit by a landlord against his tenant for ejectment, the defences were: (1) no notice to quit had been served; and (2) the tenure was a permanent one. The suit was dismissed on the first ground; the Court holding at the same time that the tenure was not a permanent one. In a subsequent suit for ejectment from the same holding, brought by the same plaintiff against the same defendant, the defences were: (1) the tenure was permanent; and (2) the plaintiff was estopped by the conduct of his predecessor in title from asserting against the defendant that the tenure was not a permanent one. The lower Appellate Court found the question of estoppel in favour of the defendant, and dismissed the suit. On appeal to the High Court, held that the decision was right, and must be affirmed. Seemle, that where a former suit between the same parties in respect of the same subject-matter has been dismissed on a preliminary point, a finding in that suit on the merits in the plaintiff's favour will not bar the defendant from putting forward the same defence on the merits in a subsequent suit by the same plaintiff against the same defendant. Seemle, that the case of Niamut Khan v. Phadu Buldia (I. L. R., 6 Cal. 319) has been implicitly overruled by the case of Ran Bahadoor Singh v. Lucho Koer (I. L. R., 12 I. A. 28; I. L. R., 11 Cal. 301).—Nundo Lal Bhuttacharjee v. Bidhoo Mookhy Deboo, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 17. [Mar. 9, 1885.]

No written statement to be received after first hearing.

112. Except as provided in the last preceding section, no written statement shall be received after the first hearing of the suit: Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

Provided that the Court may, at any time, require a written statement or additional written statement from any of the parties, and fix a time for presenting the same.

Provisoos.

Provided also that a written statement, or an additional written statement, may, with the permission of the Court, be received at any time for the purpose of answering written statements so required and presented.

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

113. If any party from whom a written statement is so required fails to present the same within the time fixed by the Court, the Court may pass a decree against him, or make such order in relation to the suit as it thinks fit.

Procedure when party fails to present written statement called for by Court.

Ditto.

114. Written statements shall be as brief as the nature of the case admits, and shall not be argumentative, but shall be confined as much as possible to a simple narrative of the facts which the party by whom or on whose behalf the written statement is made believes to be material to the case, and which he either admits or believes he will be able to prove.

Frame of written statements.

Every such statement shall be divided into paragraphs numbered consecutively, and each paragraph containing, as nearly as may be, a separate allegation.

Ditto.

115. Written statements shall be signed and verified in the manner hereinbefore provided for signing and verifying plaints, and no written statement shall be received unless it be so signed and verified.

Written statements to be signed and verified.

Ditto.

116. If it appears to the Court that any written statement, whether called for by the Court or spontaneously tendered, is argumentative or prolix, or contains matter irrelevant to the suit, the Court may amend it then and there, or may, by an order to be endorsed thereon, reject the same, or return it to the party by whom it was made for amendment within a time to be fixed by the Court, imposing such terms as to costs or otherwise as the Court thinks fit.

Attestation of amendments.

When any amendment is made under this section, the Judge shall attest it by his signature.

When a statement has been rejected under this section, the party making it shall not present another written statement, unless it be expressly called for or allowed by the Court.

Effect of rejection.

CHAPTER IX.

OF THE EXAMINATION OF THE PARTIES BY THE COURT.

Ditto.

117. At the first hearing of the suit, the Court shall ascertain from the defendant or his pleader whether he admits or denies the allegations of fact made in the plaint, and shall ascertain from each party or his pleader whether he admits or denies such allegations of fact as are made in the written statement (if any) of the opposite party, and as are not, expressly or by necessary implication, admitted or denied by the party against whom they are made. The Court shall record such admissions and denials.

Ascertainment whether allegations in plaint and written statements admitted or denied.

118. At the first hearing of the suit, or at any subsequent hearing, any party appearing in person or present in Court, or any person able to answer any material questions relating to the suit by whom such party or his pleader is accompanied, may be examined orally by the Court; and the Court may, if it thinks fit, put, in the course of such examination, questions suggested by either party.

Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

Substance of examination to be written.

119. The substance of the examination shall be reduced to writing by the Judge, and shall form part of the record.

120. If the pleader of any party who appears by a pleader refuses or is unable to answer any material question relating to the suit which the Court is of opinion that the party whom he represents ought to answer, and is likely to be able to answer if interrogated in person, the Court may postpone the hearing of the suit to a future day, and direct that such party shall appear in person on such day.

Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

Consequence of refusal or inability of pleader to answer.

If such party fails, without lawful excuse, to appear in person on the day so appointed, the Court may pass a decree against him, or make such order in relation to the suit as it thinks fit.

CHAPTER X.

OF DISCOVERY, AND OF THE ADMISSION, INSPECTION, PRODUCTION, IMPOUNDING, AND RETURN OF DOCUMENTS.

121. Any party may, at any time, by the leave of the Court, deliver, through the Court, interrogatories in writing for the examination of the opposite party, or, where there are more opposite parties than one, any one or more of such parties, with a note at the foot thereof, stating which of such interrogatories each of such persons is required to answer :

Ditto.

Provided that no party shall deliver more than one set of interrogatories to the same person without the permission of the Court, and that no defendant shall deliver interrogatories for the examination of the plaintiff unless such defendant has previously tendered a written statement, and such statement has been received and placed on the record.

S. 121 of the Code of Civil Procedure contemplates (1) leave to interrogate, and (2) the service of the interrogatories through the Court. It is the duty of the Court under that section to determine whether the applicant should be allowed to interrogate the other side, but not to determine at that stage what question the party interrogated should be compelled to answer. Where an ex-parte order is made in chambers giving leave to interrogate, the party ordered to answer has a right to come into Court to have the order set aside if the case is one in which interrogatories should not have been allowed. When an order for the administration of interrogatories is properly made, a party objecting to the interrogatories administered may, at his peril, omit to answer the interrogatories to which he objects; but the more prudent course is to file his affidavit in answer, stating in it his objections to answer such questions as he objects to. Where interrogatories are scandalous, or in any way an abuse of the process of the Court, the Court may interfere at any stage. The power given to the Court by s. 38 should not be exercised except in extreme cases.—Sham Kishore Mundle v. Shoshiboosun Biswas, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 707. [Jan. 29, 1880.]

WHERE a guardian ad litem of a lunatic defendant was made a party defendant for purposes of discovery, held that the discovery was not intended to include the right to administer interrogatories to him.—Waghji Thackersey v. Khatso Rowji, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 167. [Feb. 13, 1886.]

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

122. Interrogatories delivered under section 121 shall be served on the pleader (if any) of the party interrogated, or in the manner hereinbefore provided for the service of summons, and the provisions of sections 79, 80, 81, and 82, shall, in the latter case, apply, so far as may be practicable.

Ditto.

123. The Court, in adjusting the costs of the suit, shall, at the instance of any party, inquire or cause inquiry to be made into the propriety of delivering such interrogatories; and if it thinks that such interrogatories have been delivered unreasonably, vexatiously, or at improper length, the costs occasioned by the said interrogatories and the answers thereto shall be borne by the party in fault.

Ditto.

124. If any party to a suit be a body corporate or a joint-stock company, whether incorporated or not, or any other body of persons empowered by law to sue or be sued, whether in its own name or in the name of any officer or other person, any opposite party may apply to the Court for an order allowing him to deliver interrogatories to any member or officer of such corporation, company, or body, and an order may be made accordingly.

Ditto.

125. Any party called upon to answer interrogatories, whether by himself or by any such member or officer, may refuse to answer any interrogatory on the ground that it is irrelevant, or is not put bond fide for the purposes of the suit, or that the matter inquired after is not sufficiently material at that stage of the suit, or on any other like ground.

Ditto.

126. Interrogatories shall be answered by affidavit to be filed in Court within ten days from the service thereof, or within such further time as the Judge may allow.

Ditto.

127. If any person interrogated omits or refuses to answer, or answers insufficiently, any interrogatory, the party interrogating may apply to the Court for an order requiring him to answer, or to answer further, as the case may be. And an order may be made requiring him to answer, or to answer further, either by affidavit or by vivâ voce examination, as the Judge may direct: Provided that the Judge shall not require an answer to any interrogatory which in his opinion need not have been answered under section 125.

Ditto.

128. Either party may, by a notice through the Court, within a reasonable time not less than ten days before the hearing, require the other party to admit (saving all just exceptions to the admissibility of such document in evidence) the genuineness of any document material to the suit.

The admission shall also be made in writing, signed by the other party or his pleader, and filed in Court.

If such notice be not given, no costs of proving such document shall be allowed, unless the Judge otherwise orders.

If such notice is not complied with within four days after its being served, and the Judge thinks it reasonable that the admission should have been made, the party refusing shall bear the expense of proving such document, whatever may be the result of the suit.

Ditto.

129. The Court may, at any time during the pendency therein of any suit, order any party to the suit to declare by affidavit all the documents which are or have been in his possession or power relating to any matter in question in the suit, and any party to the suit may, at any time before the first hearing, apply to the Court for a like order.

Power to order discovery of document.

Every affidavit made under this section shall specify which (if any)

Affidavit in answer to such order. of the documents therein mentioned the declarant objects to produce, together with the grounds of such objection.

In a suit brought by two Mahomedan parda-nashin ladies for recovery of immovable property by right of inheritance, an order was passed under s. 129 of the Civil Procedure Code, requiring the plaintiffs to declare by affidavit "all the papers connected with the points at issue in the case which were or had been in their possession or control." After some ineffectual proceedings, the plaintiffs were peremptorily ordered to file their affidavit on a certain date. On that date an affidavit was filed on their behalf by their brother and mukhtar, with a list of their documentary evidence; but the affidavit and list was considered defective upon several grounds, one of which was that it ought to have been made by the plaintiffs personally. Further time was then given to the plaintiffs to amend these defects, and ultimately they filed an affidavit purporting to be made by them personally, praying that the Court would have it verified in any manner thought proper, provided that their parda-nashini were not interfered with. The Court, under s. 136 of the Code, dismissed the suit for want of prosecution, in consequence of the orders under s. 129 not having been complied with, though ample opportunity had been given to the plaintiffs and no sufficient ground for non-compliance had been shown. Held, without going into the question of the sufficiency or non-sufficiency of the action of the plaintiffs with regard to the orders made under s. 129 of the Code, that, looking at the disabilities of the plaintiffs and the circumstances of their suit, the case was not one in which it was expedient to enforce the liability to which they might have exposed themselves under the peculiar provisions of s. 136.—Kalian Bibi v. Safdar Husain Khan, I. L. R., 8 All. 265. [April 2, 1886.]

130. The Court may, at any time during the pendency therein of any suit, order the production by any party thereof of documents during suit. of of such of the documents in his possession or power relating to any matter in question in such suit or proceeding as the Court thinks right; and the Court may deal with such documents when produced in such manner as appears just. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

UNDER s. 130 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), a Judge has no discretion to refuse to allow inspection of documents relating to matters in question in a suit, provided they are not privileged. Confidential communications between principal and agent relating to matters in a suit are not privileged. Held in a suit for an injunction to restrain the defendant from using certain trade-marks, that telegrams and letters between the plaintiff's firm in London and their managing agent in Bombay, relating to the subject-matter of the suit, were not privileged.—Bustros v. White (L. R., 1 Q. B. D. 423) and Anderson v. Bank of British Columbia (L. R., 2 Ch. D. 644) followed.—Wallace (L. A.) v. Jefferson (F. G.), I. L. R., 2 Eym. 453. [Feb. 15, 1878.]

UNDER s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure, interlocutory orders passed under s. 387 refusing applications for the issue of a commission to examine witnesses, or, under s. 130, directing the production of documents, cannot be revised.—In re Nizam of Hyderabad, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 256. [Feb. 22, 1886.]

131. Any party to a suit may, at any time before or at the hearing thereof, give notice through the Court to any other party to produce any specified document for the inspection of the party giving such notice or of his pleader, and to permit such party or pleader to take copies thereof. Ditto.

Notice to produce for inspection documents referred to in plaint, &c.

No party failing to comply with such notice shall afterwards be at liberty to put any such document in evidence on his behalf in such suit, unless he satisfies the Court that such document relates only to his own title, or that he had some other and sufficient cause for not complying with such notice.

Consequence of non-compliance with such notice.

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts,

132. The party to whom such notice is given shall, within ten days from the receipt thereof, deliver through the Court to the party giving the same a notice stating a time, within three days from such delivery, at which the documents, or such of them as he does not object to produce, may be inspected at his pleader's office or some other convenient place, and stating which (if any) of the documents he objects to produce, and on what grounds.

DEFENDANT was owner of certain cotton-ginning factories at and near A in the mufassal, and had also a place of business in Bombay. He entered into a contract in Bombay with the plaintiff to gin certain cotton of the plaintiff's at the said factories of the defendant in the mufassal. Plaintiff brought a suit for damages for the breach of this contract, and demanded inspection, in Bombay, of all the defendant's books relating to the business of the said ginning factories belonging to the defendant. The defendant was willing to give the inspection asked for, but contended that it should be had at A, where all the books in question were kept, and objected to bringing the books down to Bombay, as demanded by the plaintiff. Held that the contract, though made in Bombay, having been intended to be performed at a considerable distance from Bombay, at and near A, where the business of ginning was conducted, and where the books relating to the said business were kept, A was the proper place at which to give inspection. — Kavalás Bākar-chand v. Pestonji Nasservānji, 1. L. R., 5 Bom. 467. [July 9, 1881.]

Ditto,

133. If any party served with notice under section 131 omits to give Application for order of notice under section 132 of the time for inspection, inspection. or objects to give inspection, or names an inconvenient place for inspection, the party desiring it may apply to the Court for an order of inspection.

BEFORE the Court will make an order under s. 133 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the preliminary steps mentioned in s. 131 must be taken by the party applying for the order. — Mohendro Nath Dāwā v. Ishun Chunder Dāwā, 1. L. R., 10 Cal. 56. [June 1883.]

LETTERS written by one of the defendant's servants to another, for the purpose of obtaining information with a view to possible future litigation, are not privileged, even though they might, under the circumstances, be required for the use of the defendant's solicitor. In order that privilege may be claimed, it must be shown on the face of the affidavit that the documents were prepared or written merely for the use of the solicitor. — Bipro Doss Dey v. Secretary of State for India in Council, 1. L. R., 11 Cal. 655. [May 21, 1885.]

Ditto,

134. Except in the case of documents referred to in the plaint, written Application to be founded statement, or affidavit of the party against whom on affidavit. the application is made, or disclosed in his affidavit of documents, such application shall be founded upon an affidavit, shewing (a) of what documents inspection is sought, (b) that the party applying is entitled to inspect them, and (c) that they are in the possession or power of the party against whom the application is made.

Ditto,

135. If the party, from whom discovery of any kind or inspection is sought objects to the same or any part thereof, and if the Court is satisfied that the right to such discovery or inspection depends on the determination of any issue or question in dispute in the suit, or that, for any other reason, it is desirable that any such issue or question should be determined before deciding upon the right to the discovery or inspection, the Court may order that the issue or question be determined first, and reserve the question as to the discovery or inspection.

THE intention of s. 135 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) is to give the Court the power of raising and determining an issue for the exclusive purpose of deciding the right to discovery of evidence which is to be used at the trial, and therefore, from the nature of the case, before the hearing of the cause. It should be a rule of practice that when an order is made under s. 135 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) by the Judge in chambers, the suit should be set down for the trial of the particular issue as well as of the cause itself when it comes to a hearing before the same Judge.—Ahmedbhoy Hubibbhoy v. Vullebbhoy Casumbhoy, I. L. R., 6 Bom. 572. [Sep. 5, 1882.]

In a suit for specific performance of a contract to purchase an indigo-factory, the defendant denied that the agreement relied on was final, and alleged that the plaintiff had induced him to sign the agreement by means of representations regarding the nature, the extent, the value, and the net income of the property, all of which representations the defendant charged were false and fraudulent to the knowledge of the plaintiff. The plaintiff in his affidavit of documents set out a list of title-deeds evidencing his title to, and the books of accounts and other papers and documents relating to, the property agreed to be purchased, and these he claimed to withhold from the defendant's inspection, on the ground that they were not sufficiently material at that stage of the suit. Held that the documents were not protected.—Sutherland v. Singhee Churn Dutt, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 808. [June 16, 1884.]

136. If any party fails to comply with any order under this chapter, Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

Consequences of failure to answer interrogatories, or for discovery, production, or inspection, which has been duly served, he shall, if a plaintiff, be liable to have his suit dismissed for want of prosecution, and, if a defendant, to have his defence (if any) struck out, and to be placed in the same position as if he had not appeared and answered; and the party interrogating, or seeking discovery, production, or inspection, may apply to the Court for an order to that effect, and the Court may make such order accordingly.

Any party failing to comply with any order under this chapter, to answer interrogatories, or for discovery, production, or inspection, which has been served personally upon him, shall also be deemed guilty of an offence under section 188 of the Indian Penal Code.

THE powers given to the Court by Act X. of 1877, s. 136, should not be exercised except in extreme cases.—Sham Kishore Mundle v. Shoshiboosun Biswas, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 707. [Jan. 29, 1880.]

Under the authority conferred by the Charters of the Supreme Courts, and continued by their own Letters Patent, the High Courts in India possess the power of enforcing obedience to their orders by committal for contempt. As regards the High Courts in India, the remedies provided by s. 136 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) in cases of disobedience to an order of Court may be regarded as cumulative. They subject the offender to particular liabilities for his contumacy, but do not extinguish the Court's power of constraining him to obedience. An application may properly be made in Court to commit for contempt of an order made in chambers.—Hassanbhoy v. Cowasji Jehágir, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 1. [Mar. 10, 1881.]

THE High Courts in India possess the power of enforcing obedience to their orders by attachment for contempt. An order for attachment for contempt is not an order in exercise of the High Court's civil jurisdiction, and therefore does not come within the provision of s. 591 of the Civil Procedure Code. Contempts are in the nature of offences, and therefore, under s. 15 of the Letters Patent, 1865, an appeal lies from an order of committal for contempt. In dealing with an appeal from such an order, the Appellate Court will not go behind the order the disobedience to which constitutes the contempt.—Navisahoo v. Narotamdas, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 5. [Sep. 8, 1882.]

WHERE a defendant neglects to comply with an order for production and inspection, the Court will, although in the last resort, order his defence to be struck out.—Khajah Asanoolla Joo v. Khajah Abdool Aziz, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 923. [July 23, 1883.]

A DEFENDANT failing to comply with an order to answer interrogatories, the Courts under s. 136 of the Civil Procedure Code, struck out his defence, and proceeding ex parte, passed a decree against him. Held that the decree could not be treated, in respect of the remedy by appeal, as an ex parte decree, and therefore, under the ruling in Lal Singh v. Kunjun (I. L. R., 4 All. 387) not appealable, but that an appeal would lie from the decree.—Chunni Lal v. Chamman Lal, I. L. R., 7 All. 159. [Nov. 1, 1884.]

IN a suit brought by two Muhammadan parda-nashin ladies for recovery of immoveable property by right of inheritance, an order was passed under s. 129 of the Civil Procedure Code, requiring the plaintiffs to declare by affidavit "all the papers connected with the point at issue in the cause which were or had been in their possession or control." After some ineffectual proceedings, the plaintiffs were peremptorily ordered to file their affidavit on a certain date. On that date an affidavit was filed on their behalf by their brother and nephew, with a list of their documentary evidence; but the affidavit and list was considered defective upon several grounds, one of which was that it ought to have been made by the plaintiffs personally. Further time was then given to the plaintiffs to amend these defects, and ultimately they filed an affidavit purporting to be made by them personally, praying that the Court would have it verified in any manner thought proper, provided that their parda-nashini were not interfered with. The Court, under s. 136 of the Code, dismissed the suit for want of prosecution, in consequence of the orders under s. 129 not having been complied with, though ample opportunity had been given to the plaintiffs and no sufficient ground for non-compliance had been shown. Held, without going into the question of the sufficiency or non-sufficiency of the action of the plaintiffs with regard to the orders made under s. 129 of the Code, that, looking at the disabilities of the plaintiffs and the circumstances of their suit, the case was not one in which it was expedient to enforce the liability to which they might have exposed themselves under the peculiar provisions of s. 136.—Kalian Bibi v. Safdar Husain Khan, I. L. R., 8 All. 265. [April 2, 1886.]

C. Courts.

137. The Court may of its own accord, and may in its discretion upon the application of any of the parties to a suit, send for, either from its own records or from any other Court, the record of any other suit or proceeding, and inspect the same.

Every application made under this section shall (unless the Court otherwise directs) be supported by an affidavit of the applicant or his pleader, showing how the record is material to the suit in which the application is made, and that the applicant cannot, without unreasonable delay or expense, obtain a duly authenticated copy of the record, or of such portion thereof as the applicant requires, or that the production of the original is necessary for the purposes of justice.

Nothing contained in this section shall be deemed to enable the Court to use in evidence any document which, under the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, would be inadmissible in the suit.

WHERE a specific title has been alleged, but not proved, and the plaintiff endeavours to succeed in the first Court or second Court of Appeal upon title by twelve years' adverse possession, he must be prepared to show that this other title by twelve years' adverse possession was raised in the Court of first instance, with sufficient clearness to enable his adversary to understand that he claimed to succeed as well by twelve years' adverse possession as by the specific title alleged. In all cases in which parties apply for a summons to compel the attendance of witnesses, or a summons to produce documents, or apply to have a document sent for under s. 137 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the Court ought not to refuse such application, merely because, in its opinion, the witnesses cannot be present, or the documents cannot be produced, before the termination of the trial.—Krishna Churn Baisack v. Protap Chunder Surma, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 560. [July 4, 1881.]

Ditto.

138. The parties or their pleaders shall bring with them, and have in readiness at the first hearing of the suit, to be produced when called for by the Court, all the documentary evidence of every description in their possession or power, on which they intend to rely, and which has not already been filed in Court, and all documents which the Court at any time before such hearing has ordered to be produced.

CERTAIN documents having been allowed by the District Munsif to be filed by the plaintiff during the trial of a suit, the District Judge, on appeal, held that he was bound to strike them off the file on the ground that they were not filed with the plaint nor entered in any list annexed to the plaint, and because the Munsif had not recorded any reason for admitting them. Held that, as the documents had been admitted in evidence by the Lower Court, the Appellate Court was bound to consider them.—Minakshi v. Velu, I. L. R., 4 Mad. 373. [Mar. 9, 1885.]

138. shall be received at any subsequent stage of the proceedings, unless good cause be shown to the satisfaction of the Court for the non-production thereof. And the Judge receiving any such evidence shall record his reasons for so doing.

CERTAIN documents having been allowed by the District Munsif to be filed by the plaintiff during the trial of a suit, the District Judge, on appeal, held that he was bound to strike them off the file on the ground that they were not filed with the plaint nor entered in any list annexed to the plaint, and because the Munsif had not recorded any reason for admitting them. Held that, as the documents had been admitted in evidence by the Lower Court, the Appellate Court was bound to consider them.—Minakshi v. Velu, I. L. B., 8 Mad. 373. [Mar. 9, 1885.]

140. The Court shall receive the documents respectively produced by the parties at the first hearing, provided that the documents produced by each party be accompanied by an accurate list thereof prepared in such form as the High Court may, from time to time, direct.

Ditto.

The Court may, at any stage of the suit, reject any document which it considers irrelevant or otherwise inadmissible, recording the grounds of such rejection.

141. No document shall be placed on the record unless it has been proved or admitted in accordance with the law of evidence for the time being in force. Every document so proved or admitted shall be endorsed with the number and title of the suit, the name of the person producing it, and the date on which it was produced. The Judge shall then endorse with his own hand a statement that it was proved against, or admitted by (as the case may be), the person against whom it is used. The document shall then be filed as part of the record :

Ditto.

Provided that, if the document be an entry in a shop-book or other book, the party on whose behalf such book is produced may furnish a copy of the entry, which may be endorsed as aforesaid, and shall be filed as part of the record, and the Court shall mark the entry, and shall then return the book to the person producing it.

All documents produced at the first hearing, and not so proved or admitted, shall be returned to the parties respectively producing them.

142. When a document so proved or admitted is relied on as evidence by either party, but the Court considers it inadmissible, it shall be further endorsed with the addition of the word "rejected," and the endorsement shall be signed by the Judge.

and returned. The document shall then be returned to the party who produced it.

143. Notwithstanding anything contained in ss. 62, 141, and 142, the Court may order any document to be impounded. Court may, if it sees sufficient cause, direct any document or book produced before it in any suit to be impounded and kept in the custody of an officer of the Court, for such period and subject to such conditions as the Court thinks fit.

144. In suits in which an appeal is not allowed, when the suit has been disposed of, and in suits in which an appeal is allowed, when the time for preferring an appeal from the decree has elapsed, or, if an appeal has been preferred, then, after the appeal has been disposed of, any person, whether a party to the suit or not, desirous of receiving back any document produced by him in the suit, and placed on the record, shall, unless the document is impounded under s. 143, be entitled to receive back the same:

Provided that a document may be returned at any time before either of such events, if the person applying for such return delivers to the proper officer a certified copy of such document to be substituted for the original:

Certain documents not to be returned.

Provided also that no document shall be returned which, by force of the decree, has become void or useless.

On the return of a document which has been admitted in evidence, a receipt shall be given by the party receiving it, in a receipt-book to be kept for the purpose.

Receipt to be given for returned document.

Ditto.

Provisions as to documents applied to material objects.

145. The provisions herein contained as to documents shall, so far as may be, apply to all other material objects producible as evidence.

CHAPTER XI.

OF THE SETTLEMENT OF ISSUES.

Ditto.

Framing of issues.

146. Issues arise when a material proposition of fact or law is affirmed by the one party and denied by the other.

Material propositions are those propositions of law or fact which a plaintiff must allege in order to show a right to sue.

Each material proposition affirmed by one party and denied by the other must form the subject of a distinct issue.

Issues are of two kinds: (a) issues of fact; (b) issues of law.

At the first hearing of the suit, the Court shall, after reading the plaint and the written statements (if any), and after such examination of the parties as may appear necessary, ascertain upon what material propositions of fact or of law the parties are at variance, and shall thereupon proceed to frame and record the issues on which the right decision of the case appears to the Court to depend.

When issues both of law and of fact arise in the same suit, and the Court is of opinion that the case may be disposed of on the issues of law only, it shall try those issues first, and for that purpose may, if it thinks fit, postpone the settlement of the issues of fact until after the issues of law have been determined.

Nothing in this section requires the Court to frame and record issues when the defendant at the first hearing of the suit makes no defence.

Ditto.

Allegations from which issues may be framed.

147. The Court may frame the issue from all or any of the following materials—

(1) allegations made on oath by the parties, or by any persons present on their behalf, or made by the pleaders of such parties or persons;

- (b) allegations made in the plaint or in the written statements (if any) tendered in the suit, or in answer to interrogatories delivered in the suit ;
- (c) the contents of documents produced by either party.

A COURT, in framing issues, is not bound down to the language of the plaint and written statement ; but may frame them, not only from the pleadings, but also from the statements of the parties and their pleadings made before the Court.—Mahomed Mahmood v. Safar Ali, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 407. [Mar. 30. 1885.]

148. If the Court be of opinion that the issues cannot be correctly framed without the examination of some person, Court may examine witnesses or documents before not before the Court, or without the inspection of some document not produced in the suit, it may adjourn the framing of the issues to a future day, to be fixed by the Court, and may (subject to the rules contained in the Indian Evidence Act) compel the attendance of any person or the production of any document by the person in whose hands it may be, by summons or other process.

149. The Court may, at any time before passing a decree, amend the Power to amend, add, and issues or frame additional issues on such terms as strike out issues. it thinks fit, and all such amendments or additional issues as may be necessary for determining the controversy between the parties shall be so made or framed.

The Court may also, at any time before passing a decree, strike out any issues that appear to it to be wrongly framed or introduced.

A JUDGE is not bound to make any amendment in the issues of a case, except for the purpose of more effectually putting in issue and trying the real question or questions in controversy as disclosed by the pleadings on either side.—Rizjie Dehee v. Manohar Doss (2 Ind. Jur., N. S., 118), Wilkin v. Reed (15 C. B. 192), Lucas v. Tartleton (3 H. and N. 116), followed. Where no injustice would be done to either party, the Courts, in the exercise of their discretion, under special circumstances, may allow issues to be raised upon matter which does not strictly come within the proper scope of the pleadings. The power to allow such amendments is given by the first part of s. 149 of Act X. of 1877, corresponding with the first part of s. 141 of Act VIII. of 1859.—Nehro Roy v. Radha Pershad Singh, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 64. [Mar. 31. 1879.]

150. When the parties to a suit are agreed as to the question of fact or of law to be decided between them, they may state Questions of fact or law may by agreement be stated in form of issue. the same in the form of an issue, and enter into an agreement in writing—

(a) that upon the finding of the Court in the affirmative or the negative of such issue, a sum of money specified in the agreement, or to be ascertained by the Court, or in such manner as the Court may direct, shall be paid by one of the parties to the other of them, or that one of them be declared entitled to some right or subject to some liability specified in the agreement,

(b) that upon such finding some property specified in the agreement and in dispute in the suit shall be delivered by one of the parties to the other of them, or as that other may direct, or

(c) that upon such finding one or more of the parties shall do or abstain from doing some particular act, specified in the agreement, and relating to the matter in dispute.

Court, if satisfied that agreement was executed in good faith, may pronounce judgment.

151. If the Court be satisfied, after making such inquiry as it deems proper,

(a) that the agreement was duly executed by the parties,

(b) that they have a substantial interest in the decision of such question as aforesaid, and

(c) that the same is fit to be tried and decided, it may proceed to record and try the issue, and state its finding or opinion thereon in the same manner as if the issue had been framed by the Court ; and may, upon the finding or decision on such issue, pronounce judgment according to the terms of the agreement ; and upon the judgment so given, decree shall follow, and may be executed in the same way as if the judgment had been pronounced in a contested suit.

CHAPTER XII.

DISPOSAL OF THE SUIT AT THE FIRST HEARING.

152. If, at the first hearing of a suit, it appears that the parties are not at issue on any question of law or of fact, the Court may at once pronounce judgment.

153. Where there are more defendants than one, and any one of the defendants is not at issue with the plaintiff on any question of law or fact, the Court may at once pronounce judgment for or against such defendant, and the suit shall proceed only against the other defendants.

154. When the parties are at issue on some question of law or of fact, and issues have been framed by the Court as hereinbefore provided, if the Court be satisfied that no further argument or evidence than the parties can at once supply is required upon such of the issues as may be sufficient for the decision of the suit, and that no injustice will result from proceeding with the suit forthwith, the Court may proceed to determine such issues ; and, if the finding thereon is sufficient for the decision, may pronounce judgment accordingly, whether the summons has been issued for the settlement of issues only or for the final disposal of the suit :

Provided that, where the summons has been issued for the settlement of issues only, the parties or their pleaders are present, and none of them object.

If the finding is not sufficient for the decision, the Court shall postpone the further hearing of the suit, and shall fix a day for the production of such further evidence, or for such further argument, as the case requires.

Para. 1 only Extends to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

If either party fails to produce his evidence, Court may pronounce judgment, or adjourn suit.

155. If the summons has been issued for the final disposal of the suit, and either party fails, without sufficient cause, to produce the evidence on which he relies, the Court may at once pronounce judgment, or may, if it thinks fit, after framing and recording issues under section 146, adjourn the suit for the production of such evidence as may be necessary to its decision upon such issues.

CHAPTER XIII.

OF ADJOURNMENTS.

156. The Court may, if sufficient cause be shown, at any stage of the suit, grant time to the parties or to any of them, and may, from time to time, adjourn the hearing of the suit. Extending to Provincial & C. Courts.

In all such cases the Court shall fix a day for the further hearing of the suit, and may make such order as it thinks fit with respect to the costs occasioned by the adjournment:

Costs of adjournment.

Provided that, when the hearing of evidence has once begun, the hearing of the suit shall be continued from day to day until all the witnesses in attendance have been examined, unless the Court finds the adjournment of the hearing to be necessary for reasons to be recorded by the Judge with his own hand.

A COURT ought not to adjourn a case for the production of a document, much less (when it does so) to allow witnesses and several of the parties who were interested in the result, and who had been previously examined, to be recalled and to add to and vary the evidence which they had previously given, in order to prove a case which they had not set up.—Hurpurshad and others v. Sheo Dyal and others, (P. C.) 3 P. C. R. 304; 26 W. R. 65; L. R. 3 I. A. 259. [May 30, 1876.]

157. If, on any day to which the hearing of the suit is adjourned, the parties or any of them fail to appear, the Court may proceed to dispose of the suit in one of the modes directed in that behalf by Chapter VII., or make such other order as it thinks fit. Ditto.

THE first hearing of a suit was fixed for the 12th December 1883, on which day the defendant did not appear, and the case was adjourned to the 18th December, and, as the defendant did not then appear, a decree was passed in favour of the plaintiff. A vakalatnama had been previously filed on the defendant's part, and he had also objected to an application filed by the plaintiff for attachment of the defendant's property before judgment. Held that these acts on the defendant's part did not constitute an "appearance" by him within the meaning of s. 100 of the Civil Procedure Code, which referred to an appearance in answer to a summons to appear and answer the claim on a day specified, issued under s. 64; that the decree was therefore ex parte within the meaning of ss. 100 and 108, and an appeal consequently lay to the High Court under s. 583, cl. 9, from an order rejecting an application to set the decree aside. Zain-ul-ab-din Khan v. Ahmad Raza Khan (I. L. R., 2 All. 67; L. R., 5 Ind. Ap. 233) distinguished; Administrator-General of Bengal v. Dyaram Das (6 B. L. R. 683), Bhimacharya v. Fakirappa (4 Bom. H. C. R. 206), and Bibee Haloo v. Atwaro (7 W. R. 81), referred to. Per Mahmood, J.—That the Court on the 18th December seemed to have acted under s. 157 of the Civil Procedure Code, and, choosing the first of the alternative courses allowed by that section, acted under Chapter VII. of the Code, and passed an ex parte decree under the provisions of s. 100 of the chapter.—Hira Dai v. Hira Lal, I. L. R., 7 All. 538. [Jan. 29, 1885.]

A MUNSIF, before whom a suit was pending, fixed, by way of adjournment a particular date for its disposal. Upon the date so fixed it was necessary to take evidence upon issues of fact which had previously been settled. The plaintiffs appeared on that day. The defendants did not appear, but there was in Court a pleader who had been instructed by the two principal defendants at the outset, and who had filed his vakalatnama. There was nothing to show that he had ever received any other instructions whatever, either as to the facts of the case or the conduct of the defence, or that the defendants had done anything beyond giving the pleader the instructions above referred to. Under these circumstances, the plaintiffs gave their evidence, and the Munsif decreed the claim. Held that, under the circumstances stated, the defendants' pleader must be taken not to have been in Court on the date fixed for the purpose of defending the suit on behalf of the defendants, inasmuch as, upon that part of the case, he had not been instructed; that it was therefore a fair inference that the defendants did not appear, and the case was disposed of under

s. 157 of the Civil Procedure Code; and that, under these circumstances, the provisions of s. 108 were applicable, and the decree was an ex-parte decision which it was open to the Munsif to re-consider. Hira Dai v. Hira Lal (I. L. R., 7 All. 538) followed.—Kantahal Ram v. Rameshar Ram, I. L. R., 8 All. 140. [Jan. 9, 1886.]

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

158. If any party to a suit to whom time has been granted fails to produce his evidence, or to cause the attendance of his witnesses, or to perform any other act necessary to the further progress of the suit, for which time has been allowed, the Court may, notwithstanding such default, proceed to decide the suit forthwith.

THE Code of Civil Procedure does not authorize the dismissal of a suit on refusal or failure of a party to deposit the amount ordered by the Court as remuneration to a Commissioner appointed under s. 394 to examine accounts. The remuneration of a Commissioner appointed by the Court to examine accounts should, as a rule, be a definite amount, and not at a monthly allowance.—Ragava Chariar v. Védanta Chariar, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 259. [Aug. 22, 1881.]

WHERE a suit was adjourned on the application of the defendant, and on the day to which the case was adjourned the plaintiff was absent, and the suit was dismissed for default by an order purporting to be passed under s. 158 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, held that s. 158 was not applicable to the circumstances, and that the plaintiff was entitled to apply under s. 103 to have the dismissal set aside.—Rangaya v. Rangaya, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 41. [July 31, 1883.]

CHAPTER XIV.

OF THE SUMMONING AND ATTENDANCE OF WITNESSES.

Ditto.

159. The parties may, after the summons has been delivered for service on the defendant, whether it be for the settlement of issues only, or for the final disposal of the suit, obtain, on application to the Court or to such officer as it appoints in this behalf, before the day fixed for such settlement or disposal, as the case may be, summonses to persons whose attendance is required either to give evidence or to produce documents.

THE 20th of March 1877 having been fixed for the final hearing of a suit, the plaintiff on the 17th of March, and defendant on the 19th, filed their lists of witnesses to be summoned. Both lists were ordered merely to be put up with the record. When the suit came on for hearing, it was dismissed on the ground that, when the plaintiff filed his list, there was not sufficient time left to summon the witnesses. Held that the Judge was not justified in dismissing the suit on this ground, unless he found that it would have been absolutely impossible to secure the attendance of the witnesses, had the summonses been granted on the 17th instant. S. 149 of Act VIII. of 1859, and s. 160 of Act X. of 1877, discussed.—Rajendro Narain Neogi v. Raja Kumud Narain Bhup, 3 C. L. R. 569. [July 31, 1878.]

UNDER s. 159 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882), parties are entitled to summonses for their witnesses at any time before the final hearing; but if there has been delay and want of diligence in consequence of which witnesses, not having been served in good time, are not present, the Court may properly refuse to adjourn the hearing.—Kaji Ahmed v. Hâji Mahamad, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 304. [Feb. 19, 1884.]

Ditto.

160. The party applying for a summons shall, before the summons is granted, and within a period to be fixed by the Court, pay into Court such a sum of money as appears to the Court to be sufficient to defray the travelling and other expenses of the person summoned, in passing to and from the Court in which he is required to attend, and for one day's attendance.

If the Court be subordinate to a High Court, regard shall be had, in fixing the scale of such expenses, to the rules (if any) laid down by competent authority.

Scale of expenses.

161. The sum so paid into Court shall be tendered to the person summoned, at the time of serving the summons, if it can be served personally. Extending to Provincial & C. Courts.

Tender of expenses to witness.

Ditto.

162. If it appear to the Court or to such officer as it appoints in this behalf that the sum paid into Court is not sufficient to cover such expenses, the Court may, direct such further sum to be paid to the person summoned as appears to be necessary on that account, and, in case of default in payment, may order such sum to be levied by attachment and sale of the moveable property of the party obtaining the summons; or the Court may discharge the person summoned without requiring him to give evidence, or may both order such levy and discharge such person as aforesaid.

If it be necessary to detain the person summoned for a longer period than one day, the Court may, from time to time, order the party at whose instance he was summoned to pay into Court such sum as is sufficient to defray the expenses of his detention for such further period, and, in default of such deposit being made, may order such sum to be levied by attachment and sale of the moveable property of the party at whose instance he was summoned; or the Court may discharge the person summoned without requiring him to give evidence, or may both order such levy and discharge such person as aforesaid.

163. Every summons for the attendance of a person to give evidence or produce a document shall specify the time and place at which he is required to attend, and also whether his attendance is required for the purpose of giving evidence or to produce a document, or for both purposes; and any particular document which the person summoned is called on to produce shall be described in the summons with reasonable accuracy.

Ditto.

164. Any person may be summoned to produce a document, without being summoned to give evidence; and any person summoned merely to produce a document shall be deemed to have complied with the summons, if he cause such document to be produced instead of attending personally to produce the same.

Ditto.

165. Any person present in Court may be required by the Court to give evidence or to produce any document then and there in his actual possession or power.

Ditto.

166. Every summons to a person to give evidence or produce a document shall be served as nearly as may be in manner hereinbefore prescribed for the service of summons on the defendant; and the rules contained in Chapter VI. as to proof of service shall apply in the case of all summonses served under this section.

Ditto.

167. The service shall in all cases be made a sufficient time before the time specified in the summons for the attendance of the person summoned, to allow him a reasonable time for preparation and for travelling to the place at which his attendance is required.

Ditto.

Time for serving summons.

126 SUMMONING & ATTENDANCE OF WITNESSES. [Ss. 168-171.]

UNDER s. 159 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882), parties are entitled to summons for their witnesses at any time before the final hearing; but if there has been delay and want of diligence in consequence of which witnesses, not having been served in good time, are not present, the Court may properly refuse to adjourn the hearing.—Káji Ahmed v. Háji Mahamad, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 308. [Feb. 19, 1894.]

Extending to
Provincial S.
Courts.

168. If the serving-officer certify to the Court that the summons for Attachment of property of the attendance of a person, either to give evidence or to produce a document, cannot be served, the Court shall examine the serving-officer on oath touching the non-service; and upon being satisfied that such evidence or production is material, and that the person for whose attendance the summons has been issued is absconding or keeping out of the way for the purpose of avoiding the service of the summons, may issue a proclamation requiring him to attend to give evidence, or produce the document, at a time and place to be named therein; and a copy of such proclamation shall be affixed on the outer door of the house in which he ordinarily resides.

If he does not attend at the time and place named in such proclamation, the Court may, in its discretion, at the instance of the party on whose application the summons was issued, make an order for the attachment of the property of the person whose attendance is required, to such amount as the Court thinks fit, not exceeding the amount of the costs of attachment and of the fine which may be imposed under section 170 :

Provided that no Court of Small Causes shall make an order for the attachment of immoveable property.

Ditto.

169. If, on the attachment of his property, such person appears, and If witness appears, attachment may be withdrawn. satisfies the Court that he did not abscond or keep out of the way to avoid service of the summons, and that he had not notice of the proclamation in time to attend at the time and place named therein, the Court shall direct that the property be released from attachment, and shall make such order as to the costs of the attachment as it thinks fit.

Ditto.

170. If such person does not appear, or, appearing, fails to satisfy the Procedure if witness fails Court that he did not abscond or keep out of the way to avoid service of the summons, and that he had not notice of the proclamation in time to attend at the time and place named therein, the Court may impose upon him such fine, not exceeding five hundred rupees, as the Court thinks fit, having regard to his condition in life and all the circumstances of the case, and may order the property attached, or any part thereof, to be sold for the purpose of satisfying all costs incurred in consequence of such attachment, together with the amount of the said fine (if any) :

Provided that, if the person whose attendance is required pays into Court the costs and fine as aforesaid, the Court shall order the property to be released from attachment.

Ditto.

171. Subject to the rules of this Code as to attendance and appearance, and to the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, if the Court at any time thinks it necessary to examine any person other than a party to the suit, and not named as a witness by a party to the suit, the Court may, of its own motion, cause such person to be summoned as a witness to give evidence, or to produce any document in his possession, on a day to be appointed, and may examine him as a witness, or require him to produce such document.

Court may of its own accord summon as witnesses strangers to suit.

172. Subject as last aforesaid, whoever is summoned to appear and give evidence in a suit must attend at the time and place named in the summons for that purpose, and whoever is summoned to produce a document must either attend to produce it, or cause it to be produced, at such time and place.

173. No person so summoned and attending shall depart unless and until (a) he has been examined or has produced the document and the Court has risen, or (b) he has obtained the Court's leave to depart.

174. If any person on whom a summons to give evidence or produce a document has been served fails to comply with the summons, or if any person so summoned and attending departs in contravention of s. 173, the Court may order him to be arrested and brought before the Court :

Provided that no such order shall be made when the Court has reason to believe that the person so failing had a lawful excuse for such failure.

When any person so brought before the Court fails to satisfy it that he had a lawful excuse for not complying with the summons, the Court may sentence him to fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

Explanation.—Non-payment or non-tender of a sum sufficient to defray the expenses mentioned in s. 160 shall be deemed a lawful excuse within the meaning of this section.

If any person so apprehended and brought before the Court cannot, owing to the absence of the parties or any of them, give the evidence or produce the document which he has been summoned to give or produce, the Court may require him to give reasonable bail or other security for his appearance at such time and place as it thinks fit, and, on such bail or security being given, may release him

175. If any person so failing to comply with a summons absconds or keeps out of the way, so that he cannot be apprehended and brought before the Court, the provisions of sections 168, 169, and 170, shall, mutatis mutandis, apply.

176. No one shall be bound to attend in person to give evidence or to be examined in Court unless he resides—

(a) within the local limits of its ordinary original jurisdiction, or
(b) without such limits and at a place less than fifty or (where there is railway-communication for five-sixths of the distance between the place where he resides and the place where the Court is situated) two hundred miles distant from the Court-house.

177. If any party to a suit present in Court refuses, without lawful excuse, when required by the Court, to give evidence or to produce any document then and there in his actual possession or power, the Court may, in its discretion, either pass a decree against him, or make such order in relation to the suit as the Court thinks fit.

OF THE HEARING OF THE SUIT AND EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES.

Ditto.

179. On the day fixed for the hearing of the suit, or on any other day to which the hearing is adjourned, the party having the right to begin shall state his case and produce his evidence in support of the issues which he is bound to prove.

Statement and production of evidence by party having right to begin.

Explanation.—The plaintiff has a right to begin, unless where the defendant admits the facts alleged by the plaintiff, and contends that, either in point of law or on some additional facts alleged by the defendant, the plaintiff is not entitled to any part of the relief which he seeks, in which case the defendant has the right to begin.

Rules as to right to begin.

In a suit for partition of certain property and trading business, the defendants resisted the suit, admitted a nucleus of joint property, and claimed the right to begin on the ground that the onys was on them to prove that the whole property and the trading business were not joint. Held that, unless the defendants admitted all the allegations, or all the material allegations, the plaintiff was entitled to begin.—Aghore Nauth Neoghy v. Prem Chund Neoghy, 7 C. L. R. 274. Aug. 25, 1880.

It cannot be laid down as a general proposition controlling the provisions of s. 179 of the Code of Civil Procedure, that in a suit for mesne-profits against persons who have been in possession of the land in respect of which the mesne-profits are claimed, and who have been shown to have no title, that the burden of proof is upon the defendants. In a suit for mesne-profit against a number of defendants who have been in possession of distinct portions of a newly-formed chur, and are proved to have no title thereto, it is competent, having regard to the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code, to the Court to apportion the damages payable by the defendants severally in respect of the portions held by them respectively. After, where the defendants have jointly taken possession of a particular portion of such land. Per Curiam.—The reason for treating as joint tort-fessors all persons who have occupied portions of land ultimately found to belong to a neighbouring estate, and for applying the rule of contribution or apportionment between joint tort-fessors, is wanting in the case of a suit for mesne-profits against a number of defendants who have taken possession of distinct portions of lands forming part of a newly-formed chur to which they have no title, and it is fair and equitable that the defendants should be severally made liable for mesne-profits in respect of the parcels occupied by them respectively.—Krishna Mohun Basak v. Kunjo Behari Basak, 9 C. L. R. 1. [Feb. 10, 1881.]

Statement and production of evidence by other party.

180. The other party shall then state his case and produce his evidence (if any).

Reply by party beginning.

The party beginning is then entitled to reply.

Where there are several issues, the burden of proving some of which lies on the other party, the party beginning may, at his option, either produce his evidence on those issues, or reserve it by way of answer to the evidence produced by the other party. In the latter case, the party beginning may produce evidence on these issues after the other party has produced all his evidence, and the other party may then reply specially on the evidence so produced by the party beginning; but the party beginning will then be entitled to reply generally on the whole case.

181. The evidence of the witnesses in attendance shall be taken orally Extending to sonal direction and superintendence, of the Judge.

182. In cases in which an appeal is allowed, the evidence of each witness shall be taken down in writing in the language of the Court, by or in the presence and under the personal direction and superintendence of the Judge, not ordinarily in the form of question and answer, but in that of a narrative, and, when completed, shall be read over in the presence of the Judge and of the witness, and also in the presence of the parties or their pleaders, and the Judge shall, if necessary, correct the same, and shall sign it.

FAILURE to comply with the provisions of ss. 182 and 183 of Act X. of 1877 (Civil Procedure Code) in a judicial proceeding is an informality which renders the deposition of an accused inadmissible in evidence on a charge of giving false evidence based on such deposition; and under s. 91 of Act I. of 1872 (Indian Evidence Act), no other evidence of such deposition is admissible.—In the Matter of the Petition of Mayadeb Gossami; Empress v. Mayadeb Gossami, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 762. [Feb. 22, 1881.]

183. If the evidence is taken down under section 182 in a language different from that in which it was given, and the witness does not understand the language in which it is taken down, the evidence as taken down in writing shall be interpreted to him in the language in which it was given.

184. In cases in which the evidence is not taken down in writing by the Judge, he shall be bound, as the examination of each witness proceeds, to make a memorandum of the substance of what each witness deposes, and such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Judge with his own hand, and shall form part of the record.

185. Where English is not the language of the Court, but all the parties to the suit who appear in person, and the pleaders of such as appear by pleaders, do not object to have such evidence as is given in English taken down in English, the Judge may so take it down with his own hand.

186. The Court may, of its own motion, or on the application of any party or his pleader, take down, or cause to be taken down, any particular question and answer, or any objection to any question, if there appear any special reason for so doing.

187. If any question put to a witness be objected to by a party or his pleader, and the Court allows the same to be put, the Judge shall take down the question, the answer, the objection, and the name of the person making it, together with the decision of the Court thereon.

188. The Court may record such remarks as it thinks material respecting the demeanour of any witness while under examination.

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

189. In cases in which an appeal is not allowed, it shall not be necessary to take down the evidence of the witnesses in writing at length; but the Judge, as the examination of each witness proceeds, shall make a memorandum of the substance of what he deposes, and such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Judge with his own hand, and shall form part of the record.

Ditto.

190. If the Judge be rendered unable to make a memorandum as above required by this chapter, he shall cause the reason of such inability to be recorded, and shall cause the memorandum to be made in writing from his dictation in open Court.

Every memorandum so made shall form part of the record.

*Ditto.

191. Where the Judge taking down any evidence, or causing any memorandum to be made under this chapter, dies or is removed from the Court before the conclusion of the suit, his successor may, if he thinks fit, deal with such evidence or memorandum as if he himself had taken it down or caused it to be made.

A Subordinate Judge, having taken all the evidence in a suit before him, and having completed the hearings of the suit, except for the arguments of counsel on both sides, was removed, and the case came on for hearing before his successor. The new Subordinate Judge took up the case from the point at which it had been left by his predecessor, and proceeded to judgment and decree. Held that the only power given by the Civil Procedure Code in such cases is to allow the evidence taken at the first trial to be used as evidence at the second trial, and not to allow the two hearings to be linked together and virtually made one; that the Subordinate Judge should have fixed a day for the entire hearing of the suit before himself, and should first have heard the opening statement on behalf of the plaintiff, the evidence produced by both sides, and the arguments on behalf of both, and then finally decided the case which he had himself heard and tried; that he might, in accordance with the provisions of s. 191 of the Civil Procedure Code, have allowed the depositions which had been taken before his predecessor to be put in; and that, in neglecting to take this course, and in deciding the case upon materials which were never before him, his action was illegal, and the judgment and decree were nullities.—Jagram Das v. Narain Lal, I. L. R., 7 All. 557. [June 24, 1885.]

A SUBORDINATE Judge, having taken all the evidence in a suit before him, adjourned the case to a future date for disposal. Upon the date fixed a further adjournment was made. The Subordinate Judge, at this stage of the proceedings, was removed, and a new Subordinate Judge was appointed. Held that the trial, so far as it had gone before the first Subordinate Judge, was abortive, and, as a trial, became a nullity. Held also that the duty of the second Subordinate Judge, when the case was called on before him, was to fix a date for the entire hearing and trial of the case before himself; that he might, at the request of the pleaders, have fixed the same day upon which the case was called on, and proceeded to try it at once; and that the trial should then have proceeded in the ordinary way, except that the parties would be allowed, under s. 191 of the Civil Procedure Code, to prove their allegations in a different manner. Jagram Das v. Narain Lal (I. L. R., 7 All. 557) referred to.—Afzal-un-nissa Begum v. Al Ali, I. L. R., 8 All. 35. [Nov. 27, 1885.]

THE trial of a suit before a Subordinate Judge was completed except for argument and judgment, and a date was fixed for hearing argument. At this point a new Subordinate Judge was appointed, and he passed an order directing a further adjournment and fixing a particular date for disposal of the case. After some further adjournments, the Subordinate Judge delivered judgment, having heard argument on both sides upon the evidence taken by his predecessor. The District Judge having on appeal upheld the Subordinate Judge's decision, a second appeal was preferred to the High Court, and an objection was raised on the appellant's behalf that the proceedings taken before the Subordinate Judge were void, and he could not be said to have tried the case, inasmuch as no evidence was taken before him, and his judgment was based solely on evidence recorded by his predecessor. No objection of this kind was taken in either of the Courts below. Held by the Full Bench that, with reference to the grounds of appeal, and under the circumstances of the case, the officer who passed the decree in the Court of first instance had jurisdiction to deal with and determine the suit in the mode in which he did. Jag-ram Das v. Narain Lal (I. L. R., 7 All. 857) and Afzal-un-nissa Begam v. Al Ali (I. L. R., 8 All. 35) discussed. Per Straight, Offg. C.J., that, as no objection was raised before the Subordinate Judge to his taking up and dealing with the case in the mode in which he did, but the evidence was discussed and criticized on both sides, there had been a waiver on the part of the appellant in reference to the action of the Subordinate Judge of which he now sought to complain. Per Oldfield, J., that where a Judge takes up a trial begun by another, although the law permits him to deal with the evidence taken by his predecessor as if he himself had taken it down, he must deal with it judicially, and try the cause as though it had come before him in the first instance, and there must be a hearing of the entire case before himself; and in every case it has to be seen whether as a matter of fact, there has been a real trial and hearing of the entire case by the Judge, and if the evidence previously taken was not judicially dealt with, counsel heard upon it, and the entire case fully heard and tried, there has been no trial in the legal sense of the work, and the proceedings must be set aside. Jag-ram Das v. Narain Lal (I. L. R., 7 All. 857), and Afzal-un-nissa Begam v. Al Ali (I. L. R., 8 All. 35) followed. Per Mahmood, J., that, although it is true that "a trial must be one, and must be held before one Court only," the identity of the Court is not altered by a new Judge being appointed to preside in such Court; that when a trial goes on for more than one day, each day constitutes a separate hearing, and that such hearings cannot be treated as a trial heard on the original date; that the Civil Procedure Code does authorize a Judge to take up a case which has been partly heard before his predecessor, and to continue it from the point at which his predecessor left off; that where the Judge who has partly heard a case dies or is removed, the trial, so far as it has gone before him, is neither abortive nor becomes a nullity; that the new Judge is not required to fix a day for the entire hearing of the suit before himself, nor is there anything to prevent him from taking up a trial which has been partly heard by his predecessor, and to proceed with it as if it had been commenced before himself; that the Code does not recognise such procedure as amounting to separate trials; that the Judge who succeeds another, after a trial which partly proceeded before his predecessor, is not bound to fix a new day for commencing the trial de novo, nor should the trial proceed before the new Judge as if the day were the first on which the case had ever come on for hearing; that the evidence recorded by the preceding Judge, by the mere fact of being upon the record, is ipso facto evidence in the cause, and could, under s. 191 of the Code, be treated by the succeeding Judge "as if he himself had taken it down or caused it to be made;" that when the case comes on for hearing before the new Judge, there is no necessity for putting in the depositions of witnesses which, though taken by his predecessor, are already upon the record; that such depositions must be dealt with as materials of evidence before the new Judge, that a judgment and decree upon such evidence are neither illegal nor absolute nullities, there being no want of jurisdiction; that when such judgment and decree are passed, the Court of first appeal is prohibited by s. 564 of the Code to order a trial de novo, but is bound by s. 565 of the Code to decide the appeal upon the evidence on the record; that where further issues are directed to be tried, or additional evidence is to be taken, the Court of appeal is bound to act according to the provisions of ss. 566, 568, and 569 of the Code, but cannot order a new trial; that even when there has been an irregularity on the part of the first Court in receiving or rejecting evidence, the provisions of s. 578 of the Civil Procedure Code and s. 167 of the Evidence Act prohibit the reversal of a decree and the remand of a case for new trial, unless the irregularity affects the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court. Jag-ram Das v. Narain Lal (I. L. R., 7 All. 857) and Afzal-un-nissa Begam v. Al Ali (I. L. R., 8 All. 35) dissented from. Per Tyrrell, J., that, in reference to the Full Bench, the only matters which can legally be attended to are the cases referred, and it is not competent for the Full Bench to review or pronounce judicial opinions upon the Court's judgment in cases which have been finally decided and not made the subject of reference. Jag-ram Das v. Narain Lal (I. L. R., 7 All. 857) and Afzal-un-nissa Begam v. Al Ali (I. L. R., 8 All. 35) followed and explained.—Jady Rai v. Kanizak Husain, I. L. R., 8 All. 576. [Aug. 2, 1886.]

Where such evidence is not taken forthwith and in the presence of the parties, such notice as the Court thinks sufficient, of the day fixed for the examination, shall be given to the parties.

The evidence so taken shall be read over to the witness, and, if he admits it to be correct, shall be signed by him, and may then be read at any hearing of the suit.

193. The Court may, at any stage of the suit, recall any witness who has been examined, and who has not departed in accordance with section 173, and may (subject to the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872) put such questions to him as the Court thinks fit.

CHAPTER XVI.

OF AFFIDAVITS.

Ditto.

194. Any Court of first instance and any Appellate Court may, at any time, for sufficient reason, order that any particular fact or facts may be proved by affidavit, or that the affidavit of any witness may be read at the hearing, on such conditions as the Court thinks reasonable :

Provided that where it appears to the Court that either party bona fide desires the production of a witness for cross-examination, and that such witness can be produced, an order shall not be made authorizing the evidence of such witness to be given by affidavit.

Ditto.

195. Upon any application evidence may be given by affidavit, but the Court may, at the instance of either party, order the attendance, for cross-examination, of the declarant.

Such attendance shall be in Court, unless the declarant is exempted under this Code from personal appearance in Court, or the Court otherwise directs.

Ditto.

196. Affidavits shall be confined to such facts as the declarant is able of his own knowledge to prove, except on interlocutory applications, on which statements of his belief may be admitted, provided that reasonable grounds thereof be set forth.

The costs of every affidavit which shall unnecessarily set forth matters of hearsay or argumentative matter, or copies of or extracts from documents, shall (unless the Court otherwise directs) be paid by the party producing the same.

Ditto.

Oath of declarant by whom to be administered. 197. In the case of any affidavit under this Code—

(a) any Court or Magistrate, or

(b) any officer whom a High Court may appoint in this behalf, or

(c) any officer appointed by any other Court which the Local Government has generally or specially empowered in this behalf, may administer the oath of the declarant.

CHAPTER XVII.

OF JUDGMENT AND DECREE.

198. The Court, after the evidence has been duly taken, and the parties have been heard either in person or by their respective pleaders or recognized agents, shall pronounce judgment in open Court, either at once or on some future day, of which due notice shall be given to the parties or their pleaders.

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

Judgment when pronounced.
Powers to pronounce judgment written by Judge's predecessor.

199. A Judge may pronounce a judgment written by his predecessor, but not pronounced.

Ditto.

Language of judgment.

200. The judgment shall be written in the language of the Court, or in English, or in the Judge's mother-tongue.

Ditto.

201. Whenever the judgment is written in any language other than that of the Court, the judgment shall, if any of the parties so require, be translated into the language of the Court, and the translation shall also be signed by the Judge or such officer as he appoints in this behalf.

Ditto.

202. The judgment shall be dated and signed by the Judge in open Court at the time of pronouncing it, and shall not be altered or added to, save to correct verbal errors or to supply some accidental defect not affecting a material part of the case, or on review.

Ditto.

203. The judgments of the Courts of Small Causes need not contain more than the points for determination and the decision thereupon.

Ditto.

The judgments of all other Courts shall contain a concise statement of the case, the points for determination, the decision thereon, and the reasons for such decision.

204. In suits in which issues have been framed, the Court shall state its finding on decision, with the reasons thereof upon each separate issue, unless the finding upon any one or more of the issues be sufficient for the decision of the suit.

In order to see whether a question is res judicata within the meaning of s. 13, Civil Procedure Code, the former decree and the questions decided thereby must alone be considered. The words in s. 13, "has been heard and finally decided by such Court," do not apply to an opinion expressed in the judgment on other issues not material for the purpose of the decree, though properly determined under s. 204 by the Court of first instance. Niamut Khan Buldia v. Phadu Buldia (I. L. R., 6 Cal. 319) and Lachman Singh v. Mohan (I. L. R., 2 All 497) dissented from. Where a plaintiff improperly brings a defendant before a Court, and the suit is dismissed, the defendant should not be deprived of costs merely because the Court considers the defence a fabrication to meet the plaintiff's claim.—Devarakonda Narasamma v. Devarakonda Kanaya, I. L. R., 4 Mad. 134. [Sep. 5, 1881.]

In a suit for ejectment by a landlord against his tenant the following amongst other issues were raised, viz., whether the notice alleged was sufficient, and whether the defendant was entitled to a right of occupancy. The Court of first instance dismissed the suit, finding upon the admitted facts that the notice alleged was insufficient, but also decided the other issues raised, and held that the defendant was not entitled to a right of occupancy. Held that the finding upon the question of notice based upon the admitted facts being sufficient to dispose of the whole case, the Court erred in proceeding to determine any other issues raised in the suit.—Berhaudeo Narain Singh v. Mackenzie, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 1006. [Sep. 1, 1884.]

Extending to
Provincial S.

205. The decree shall bear date the day on which the judgment was pronounced; and, when the Judge has satisfied himself that the decree has been drawn up in accordance with the judgment, he shall sign the decree.

Date of decree.

WHERE a suitor is unable to obtain a copy of a decree from which he desires to appeal, by reason of the decree being unsigned, he is entitled under s. 12 of the Limitation Act to deduct the time between the delivery of the judgment and that of the signing of the decree in computing the time taken in presenting his appeal.—Bani Madhub Mitter v. Matungini Dassi; Kali Shunker Dass v. Gopal Chauder Dutt, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 104. [May 6, 1886.]

Ditto.

206. The decree must agree with the judgment: it shall contain the number of the suit, the names and descriptions of the parties, and particulars of the claim, as stated in the register, and shall specify clearly the relief granted or other determination of the suit.

Contents of decree.

The decree shall also state the amount of costs incurred in the suit, and by what parties, and in what proportions, such costs are to be paid.

If the decree is found to be at variance with the judgment, or if any clerical or arithmetical error be found in the decree, the Court shall, of its own motion, or on that of any of the parties, amend the decree so as to bring it into conformity with the judgment, or to correct such error: provided that reasonable notice has been given to the parties or their pleaders of the proposed amendment.

Power to amend decree.

THE plaintiff sued on a bond in which real property was hypothecated. In his claim the property hypothecated was detailed, and the property itself was impleaded as a defendant, and he obtained a decree in the following terms: "Decree for plaintiff in favour of his claim, and costs against defendant." Held that the decree was to be regarded as simply for money, and not for enforcement of lien.—Thamman Singh v. Ganga Ram, I. L. R., 2 All. 342. [July 8, 1879.]

WHERE the plaintiff by his claim sought for a decree for money and enforcement of lien on the property hypothecated in the bond on which the claim was based, and he obtained a decree for the "claim as brought," without any specification in it as to the relief he sought by charging the property hypothecated, held that such a decree was a decree for money only, and did not enforce the charge on the property. Muluk Faqueer Bakhsh v. Manohar Dass (H. C. R., N. W. P., 1870, p. 29) followed.—Harsukh v. Maghraj, I. L. R., 2 All. 345. [July 8, 1879.]

ANY order made upon an application for a review of judgment—except an order absolutely rejecting the application—becomes, if it in any way modifies or alters the original order (although the modification or alteration extends only to the rectification of a clerical mistake), the final order in the case; and the party aggrieved by the original decree is entitled, although the modification or alteration was made in his favour, to treat the order upon review of judgment as the final decree or order in the case; and if it was made by a Court, an appeal from which lies in the Court of a District Judge, he is entitled to prefer his appeal at any time within thirty days from its date. When an application for a review of judgment is made upon several grounds, one of which refers only to the question of adjudication of costs, and the Court to whom the application is made holds all the other grounds to be untenable, but is of opinion that there has been a clerical mistake in that part of its order or judgment which refers to costs, it may reject the application absolutely, and permit the applicant to apply, under s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code, for a rectification of the clerical mistake; but if it does not do so, but, on the application for a review of judgment, amends the clerical mistake in its original order, the decree drawn up in conformity to his order becomes the final decree, and an appeal will lie against it if brought within the time prescribed for bringing an appeal against any other similar decree.—Joykishen Mookerjee v. Ataoor Rohoman, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 22. [June 15, 1880.]

AN application to amend a decree which is found to be at variance with the judgment, in accordance with the provisions of s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code, is an application of the kind mentioned in art. 178 of sch. 2 of Act XV. of 1877, and, as such, subject to the limitation of three years.—Gaya Prasad v. Sikri Prasad, I. L. R., 4 All. 23. [July 8, 1881.]

THE plaintiff in a suit claimed possession of villages said in the plaint to be "detailed below." No details of the villages were given in the plaint itself, but a separate paper containing a list of villages was filed with the plaint. The plaintiff obtained a decree for possession of "all the villages claimed," but there was no indication in the decree what those villages were. Held that the Court executing the decree was not justified in reading the contents of the list of villages attached to the plaint into the decree, and awarding the decree-holder possession of the villages named in such list. S. A. No. 310 of 1882, decided 11th August 1882 (not reported), followed. Debi Charap v. Pirbhu Din Ram (I. L. R., 3 All. 388) referred to.—Muhammad Sulaiman v. Mahammad Yar, I. L. R., 6 All. 30. [Aug. 16, 1883.]

PER Oldfield, J.—When an original decree is amended under s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code, it, as amended, is the decree in the suit; and an appeal, therefore, lies from it under the provisions of s. 540, when the validity of the amendment can be questioned. The matter of amending a decree under s. 206 does not by itself constitute a "decree" within the meaning of s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code, but forms part of the proceedings in the suit in which the decree is made. Held, therefore, per Oldfield, J., that, where an original decree, which was appealable, was amended by the Court of first instance, under s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code, the High Court had no power to revise such amendment under s. 622 of the Code. PER Mahomed, J.—An order passed under s. 206 amending a decree is a separate adjudication, and is not merely a part of the original decree, and cannot alter its date, and such an order is not appealable under s. 588 of the Code. Such an order, therefore, can be revised by the High Court under s. 622.—Raghunath Das v. Raj Kumar, I. L. R., 7 All. 276. [Dec. 22, 1884.]

A DISTRICT Judge, by an order passed under s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code, altered a decree passed by his predecessor in the terms, "I dismiss the appeal," to read "I accept the appeal," on the ground that his predecessor had obviously meant to say that he accepted the appeal, and that the decree as it stood failed to give effect to the judgment. PER Oldfield, J.—That the order passed by the Judge under s. 206 could not be made the subject of revision by the High Court under s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code, because there was an appeal from the amended decree, which became the decree in the suit, and superseded the original decree. PER Mahomed, J.—That an order passed under s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code constituted an adjudication separate from that concluded by a decree under the Code passed after the parties had been heard and evidence taken, and that the order in the present case was therefore a separate adjudication, and was not appealable under s. 588. Also that, in saying that by "dismissed," his predecessor meant "decree," the Judge had altered the decree in a manner not warranted by the terms of s. 206, that he had, therefore, exercised his jurisdiction "illegally and with material irregularity," within the meaning of s. 622 of the Code, and that the Court was consequently competent to revise his order. Raghunath Das v. Raj Kumar (I. L. R., 7 All. 276) referred to.—Surta v. Ganga, I. L. R., 7 All. 411. [Jan. 1, 1885.]

THE judgment in an appeal adjudged interest to be paid for the period prior to the institution of the suit only. The decree contained an order for payment of interest from the date of the suit onwards. Held that no variance with the judgment, within the meaning of s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code, was involved in the additional order contained in the decree. — Kolai Ram v. Pali Ram, I. L. R., 7 All. 755. [May 9, 1885.]

WHEN a question of costs is purely in the discretion of the lower Court no appeal will lie, but when a matter of principle is involved an appeal will lie. Where A was sued upon the allegation that he had instigated his co-defendant B to refuse to deliver up a document, for the recovery of which the suit was brought, and where no relief was prayed as against A, but the lower Courts awarded a decree in favour of the plaintiff directing A to pay half the costs of suit, held that the question was one of principle, and that a second appeal lay to the High Court against the decree directing A to pay such costs.—Bunwari Lal v. Chowdhry Drup Nath Sing, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 179. [Aug. 5, 1885.]

• UNDER s. 206 of the Code of Civil Procedure a Court has power to amend its decree by bringing it into conformity with the judgment after the said decree has been confirmed on appeal.—Sundara v. Subhanga, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 354. [Mar. 12, 1886.]

THE Court in a suit upon a bond gave the plaintiff a decree, making a deduction from the amount claimed of a sum covered by a receipt produced by the defendant as evidence of part-payment, and admitted to be genuine by the plaintiff. The decree was for a total amount of Rs. 1,282. Subsequently, on application by the decree-holder, and without giving notice to the judgment-debtor, the Court which passed the decree, purporting to act under s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code, altered the decree, and made it for a sum of Rs. 1,460. The decree-holder took out execution, and the Judgment-debtor objected that the decree was for Rs. 1,282, and had been improperly altered. The Court executing the decree disallowed the objection, on the ground that it was not such as could be entertained in the execution-department. Held that the decree as it originally stood was in accordance with the judgment, and the Court had no power to alter it as it did, and the proceeding was further irregular, in that no notice was given to the opposite party as required by s. 206 of the Code. Held also that when a decree-holder executes his decree, a judgment-debtor is competent to object that the decree is not the decree of the Court fit to be executed, and therefore not capable of execution; and that the judgment-debtor in this case could raise the question whether the decree, which was altered behind his back, was a valid decree, and fit to be executed.—Abdul Hayai Khan v. Chunia Kuar, I. L. R., 8 All. 377. [May 21, 1886.]

An application to execute a decree, passed in April 1880, was made on the 19th February 1884, and rejected on the 26th March 1884, as being beyond time. This order was upheld on appeal in March 1885. While the appeal was pending, the decree-holder, in May 1884, applied to the Court of first instance to amend the decree under s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code, and in December 1884 the application was granted. In April 1885, an application was made for execution of the amended decree, the decree-holder contending that limitation should be calculated from the date of the amendment, and that art. 178 of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877) applied to the case. Held that No. 179 and not No. 178 was applicable; that the order rejecting the application of the 19th February 1884 became final on being upheld on appeal; that the amendment could not revive the decree or furnish a fresh starting-point of limitation; and that the application was therefore time-barred. Mungul Pershad v. Grija Kant Lahiri (I. L. R., 8 Cal. 51; L. R., 8 Ind. Ap. 123), and Ram Kirpal v. Rup Kuari (I. L. R., 6 All. 269; L. R., 11 Ind. Ap. 37), referred to. Observations by Mahmood, J., on the amendment of decrees and s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code.—Tarsi Ram v. Man Singh, I. L. R., 8 All. 492. [June 21, 1886.]

In execution of a decree for partition of immoveable property passed in 1872, a dispute arose as to the execution in reference to a portion of the property, and, in 1881, it was finally decided that the decree was defective in its description of the property, and therefore incapable of execution. In May 1885, on application by the decree-holder, the Court passed an order amending the decree, the amendment having reference to an arithmetical error. The judgment-debtor applied to the High Court for revision of this order, on the grounds that the amendment of the decree was barred by limitation, and that the decree itself being barred by limitation and finally pronounced to be incapable of execution, the Court had acted beyond its jurisdiction in amending it. Held that the application for revision must be rejected. Per Oldfield, J., that the High Court had no power to entertain the application under s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code, with reference to the decision of the Privy Council in Amir Hassan Khan v. Sheo Bakhsh Singh (I. L. R., 11 Cal. 6), and of the Full Bench in Badami Kuar v. Dinu Rai (I. L. R., 8 All. 111); and, further, that upon the facts stated, the Court ought not to interfere. Per Mahmood, J., that the Court was not precluded from entertaining the application for revision under s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code. Amir Hassan Khan v. Sheo Bakhsh Singh (I. L. R., 11 Cal. 6), Badami Kuar v. Dinu Rai (I. L. R., 8 All. 111), Raghunath Das v. Raj Kumar (I. L. R., 7 All. 276), Surtia v. Gunga (I. L. R., 7 All. 411), Magui Ram v. Jiwa Lal (I. L. R., 7 All. 336), Har Prasad v. Jafar Ali (I. L. R., 7 All. 345), referred to. Bhagwant Singh v. Jageshwar Singh (Weekly Notes, 1819, p. 57), and Abu Said Khan v. Hamid-un-nissa (Weekly Notes, 1886, p. 39), dissented from. The meaning of the term "jurisdiction" used in s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code must not be confined to the territorial or pecuniary limits of the power of a Court, or to the nature of the class to which the case belongs. It implies, in addition to questions of these kinds, the presence or absence of a positive authority or power conferred by the law upon tribunals in cases which satisfy the other conditions referred to. In framing the section, the Legislature gave to the High Court power to interfere with the action of subordinate tribunals in cases where there is no remedy, either by appeal or otherwise; and where those tribunals have either exceeded or wrongly declined to exercise the authority, the power, and the jurisdiction which the law confers upon them, or, under the pretence of exercising such authority, power, and jurisdiction, have acted against a positive prohibition of the law. Combe v. Edwards (L. R., 3 P. D. 103), and Crepps v. Durden (1 Smith's L. C., 8 ed. 711), referred to. Held also per Mahmood, J., that in the present case the Court below had jurisdiction to entertain the application under s. 206 of the Code; that it did so entertain it; and that, in making the amendment, its action could not be regarded as beyond the limits of its legal power and authority, so as to render it open to the objection of the exercise of jurisdiction "illegally or with material irregularity," within the meaning of s. 622. Lucas v. Stephen (9 W. R. 301), Oomanund Roy v. Maharajah Suttiah Chunder Roy

(9 W. R. 471), Zahoor Hossein v. Syedun (11 W. R. 142), and Goluck Chunder Mussant v. Ganga Narain Mussant (20 W. R. 111), referred to. Under a proper interpretation of the preamble and s. 4 of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877), the rule of limitation is confined to the litigants, and is inapplicable to acts which the Court may, or has to, perform ex officio. S. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code empowers a Court of its own motion to amend its decree, and the mere fact that one of the parties has made an application asking the Court to exercise that power will not render the action of the Court subject to the rule of limitation. Roberts v. Harrison (I. L. R., 7 Cal. 333), Vithal Janardan v. Rakmi (I. L. R., 6 Bom. 586), and Kylasa Goundan v. Ramasami Ayyar (I. L. R., 4 Mad. 172), referred to.—Dhan Singh v. Basant Singh, I. L. R., 8 All. 519. [July 1, 1886.]

APPLICATIONS to the Court under s. 206 of the Code of Civil Procedure are not governed by the Limitation Act. A Small Cause Court rejected an application made under s. 206 of the Code of Civil Procedure to bring a decree into conformity with the judgment, on the ground that a former application had been dismissed for default, and the petitioner was bound to apply within one month from the date of dismissal, and was now too late. On an application to the High Court under s. 622 of the Code to set aside this order, held that the High Court could not interfere.—Jivráji v. Pragji, I. L. R., 10 Mad. 51. [Sep. 24, 1886.]

An application, under s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), to correct errors in a decree, not being one within the purview of art. 178 of sch. 2 of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877), is not governed by any limitation, and can be made at any time such errors are discovered.—Shivápa v. Shivpangh Lingápa, I. L. R., 11 Bom. 284. [Oct. 8, 1886.]

CERTAIN plaintiffs were the holders of the following decree obtained on mortgage-bond: "It is ordered that the defendants shall pay to the plaintiffs the sum of Rs. 2,550 and costs Rs. 312, total Rs. 2,862, within two months from the date of the signing of the decree; interest will run on the said amount at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum up to realisation. If the defendants do not pay the amount within the time prescribed, they will lose their right of redeeming the property mortgaged, and possession thereof will be given to the plaintiffs." On the judgment-debtors making default, the decree-holders applied for execution, the Subordinate Judge directed execution to issue, but held that execution could not be had for costs under the terms of the decree; and this order was upheld by the District Judge on appeal. Held that the decree-holders were entitled to their costs of the suit from the judgment-debtors personally, or from properties belonging to the judgment-debtors other than those mortgaged.—Rutnessur Sefu v. Jusoda, I. L. R., 14 Cal. 185. [Dec. 6, 1886.]

ART. 178 of sch. 2 of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877) applies only to applications made to a Court to exercise powers which, without being moved by such application, it is not bound to exercise, and not to applications made to a Court to do acts which it has no discretion to refuse to do. It does not govern an application under s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code for amendment of a decree so as to bring it into conformity with the judgment, it being the bounden duty of a Court, of its own motion, to see that its decrees are in accordance with the judgments, and to correct them if necessary. Gaya Prasad v. Sikri Prasad (I. L. R., 4 All. 23) dissented from. In the Matter of the Petition of Kishan Singh (Weekly Notes, 1883, p. 232), Kylasa Goundan v. Ramasami Ayyar (I. L. R., 4 Mad. 172), and Vithal Janardan v. Vithojirav Pntlajirav (I. L. R., 6 Bom. 586), referred to.—Darbo v. Kesho Bai, I. L. R., 9 All. 364. [Jun. 31, 1887.]

209. interest adjudged on such principal sum for any period prior to the institution of the suit, with further interest at such rate as the Court deems reasonable on the aggregate sum so adjudged, from the date of the decree to the date of payment, or to such earlier date as the Court thinks fit.

THE contract rate of interest must be allowed up to the date of decree in accordance with Act XXVIII. of 1855, s. 2. The Civil Procedure Code, s. 209, does not expressly refer to suits in which interest has been contracted for, and does not repeal the former Act.—Bandaru Swami Naidu v. Atchayamma, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 125. [Mar. 23, 1881.]

A DECREE for money directed that its amount should be payable "according to the terms of the judgment-debtor's written statement." In his written statement the judgment-debtor had promised to pay interest on the judgment-debt if the same were not discharged by a certain day. Held, having regard to the decision of the Full Bench in Debi Charan v. Pirbhu Din (I. L. R., 3 All. 388), that the judgment-debtor having failed to discharge the judgment-debt by such day, he was bound by the terms of the decree to pay interest on its amount.—Ram Nandan Rai v. Lal Dhar Rai, I. L. R., 3 All. 775. [May 9, 1881.]

A DECREE directed accounts to be taken of what was due for principal and interest under a mortgage, such interest to be allowed "up to the time of payment hereinafter mentioned, or until six months from the date of the decree," whichever first should happen; and further directed the plaintiff to pay what interest was due for principal and interest up to the date of payment, and costs, with interest at 6 per cent. from the date of taxation until payment, within six months after the Registrar should make his report. The plaintiff tendered a sum sufficient to cover the principal and interest due, but insufficient to cover costs, at a time prior to the drawing up of the Registrar's report. Held that the payment of principal and interest "hereinafter mentioned" referred to a time after the Registrar had made his report, because the sum to be paid was a sum reported to be due by the Registrar, and that, therefore, a tender made before the Registrar's report was given was not a sufficient tender to stop interest from the date of the tender.—Administrator-General of Bengal v. Mirza Ahmed Begg, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 33. [July 12, 1882.]

A DECREE, of which the terms had been arranged by a solehnâma between the parties, for payment of money by instalments, with interest at six per cent., was construed to provide also for three contingencies, viz., non-payment at due date: (a) of the first instalment, two consecutive instalments being in arrear at the same time; (b) of instalments other than the first; (c) of the first instalment simply. Upon the occurrence of (a), or of (b), execution might issue for the whole decretal money with interest thereon at twelve per cent. Upon the occurrence of (c) execution might issue for that instalment, with interest at twelve per cent. from the date of the decree. The decree-holder having accepted payment of the first instalment on the footing of (c), held that he had not, by any admission or settlement, precluded himself from insisting on the above construction as to (b). Held also that these provisions for double interest were but a reasonable substitution of a higher rate of interest for a lower in a given state of circumstances, and were not in the nature of a penalty against which equitable relief might be claimed.—Bukishen Das v. Run Bahadur Singh, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 305. [July 11, 1883.]

210. In all decrees for the payment of money, the Court may, for any Decree may direct payment sufficient reason, order that the amount shall be by instalments. paid by instalments, with or without interest.

And, after the passing of any such decree, the Court may, on the application of the judgment-debtor, and with the consent of the decree-holder, order that the amount decreed be paid by instalments on such terms as to the payment of interest, the attachment of the property of the defendant, or the taking of security from him, or otherwise, as it thinks fit.

Save as provided in this section and section 206, no decree shall be altered at the request of parties.

THE word "debt" in ss. 20 and 21 applies only to a liability for which a suit may be brought, and does not include a liability for which judgment has been obtained. Therefore, where the last application for execution of a decree had been made on the 14th December 1872, and a notice under Act VIII. of 1859, s. 216, issued on the 19th January 1873, and on the 28th April 1873, the judgment-debtor filed a petition notifying part-payment, which petition was signed by the judgment-creditor, held, in an application for execution made on the 27th April 1876, that further execution was barred by limitation (Act IX. of 1871).—Kally Prosonno Hazra v. Heera Lal Mundle, I. L. R., 2 Cal. 468. [June 21, 1877.]

Quere.—Whether “a decree for the payment of money” means merely what is commonly known as a money-decree, or includes a decree in which a sale is ordered of immoveable property in pursuance of a contract specifically affecting such property, within the meaning of s. 194 of Act VIII. of 1859 and s. 210 of Act X. of 1877. Where the Court, on the ground that the defendant was “hard pressed,” directed the amount of a decree to be paid by instalments extending over ten years, and allowed only one-half of the usual rate of interest, held that there was no sufficient reason for directing payment of the amount of the decree by instalments, and that such Court had exercised its discretion injuriously to the plaintiff, by the length of the period over which the instalments were extended, and by allowing a rate of interest less than the ordinary rate.—Binda Prasad v. Madho Prasad, I. L. R., 2 All. 129. [Jan. 31, 1879.]

In exercise of the discretion given by s. 194 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act VIII. of 1859), the Court of first instance gave a decree to the plaintiff making the amount awarded payable by instalments, but gave no interest after the institution of the suit. The Appellate Court amended the decree by awarding the interest from the institution of the suit at six per cent. per annum, the rate originally contracted for being twenty-four per cent. per annum. Held, although the stipulated rate was properly awardable, the award of the lower rate was not illegal or beyond the competency of the Court below, with whose discretion the High Court will not interfere. A mortgagee is, as a general rule, entitled to the costs of enforcing his security; but where the Court, in consideration of his usurious bargain, declines to award them wholly or in part, the High Court will not interfere.—Corvalho (J.) v. Nur Bibi, I. L. R., 3 Bom. 202. [Feb. 17, 1879.] •

ACT X. of 1877, s. 210, is not applicable in a suit for the recovery of the amount of a bond-debt by the sale of the property hypothecated by such bond. In such a suit, therefore, the Court cannot direct that the amount of the decree shall be payable by instalments.—Hardeo Das v. Hukam Singh, I. L. R., 2 All. 320. [May 29, 1879.]

WHERE a bond is payable by instalments, and expressly stipulates for the payment of the whole debt on failure in the payment of any instalment, the law of limitation runs on the whole amount of the bond against the obligee from the day on which the obligor first makes default in the payment of any instalment, unless the obligee waive the default, and afterwards from the day on which any fresh default is made in respect of which there is no waiver. The obligee may waive the default under Act IX. of 1871 and XV. of 1877, sch. 2, art. 75, but the Courts may have no authority to compel him to waive it. Neither Act VIII. of 1859, s. 194, nor Act X. of 1877, s. 210, confers any authority on the Courts to relieve a contracting party from such an express stipulation in a bond payable by instalments as to the consequence of default in punctual payment of the instalments. A debt being presently due, an agreement to pay it by instalments, with a stipulation that, on default, the creditor may demand immediate payment of the whole balance due with interest, is not to be relieved against in equity. Such a stipulation is not in the nature of a penalty, inasmuch as its object is only to secure payment in a particular manner. The defendant executed to the plaintiff a bond payable by instalments, and expressly stipulating for the payment of the whole amount on failure to pay any instalment on the day fixed. He paid the first instalment, but made default in paying the second, which fell due on the 3rd August 1878. On the 20th August plaintiff sued to recover the whole balance due on the bond. Defendant admitted the bond, but pleaded tender of the amount of the second instalment soon after the due date, and prayed for payment by instalments without any interest. The first Court passed a decree in the plaintiff's favour for the amount claimed with costs, but ordered defendant to pay Rs. 100 and the costs at once, and the balance by yearly instalments of Rs. 100 each with interest at 6 per cent. till payment. The District Judge, in appeal, affirmed the decree, with a slight variation as to interest, which he directed the defendant to pay on overdue instalment only. Held by the High Court on second appeal that neither of the lower Courts has jurisdiction, without the consent of the parties, to substitute, for the contract made by them, terms which the Court preferred. Held also that plaintiff was entitled to sue on the day after that on which the default was made, viz., on the day after that fixed for the payment of the instalment, and that the Subordinate Judge had no power to rule the contrary.—Ragho Govind Paranjpe v. Dipchand, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 96. [Aug. 26, 1879.]

THERE is nothing in Act X. of 1877, s. 210, or elsewhere in that Act, authorizing a Court to direct that the amount of a decree should be paid within a fixed time from its date. Semle.—That s. 210 is not applicable in a suit for the recovery of the amount of a bond-debt by the sale of the nankar allowance hypothecated by such bond.—Bachchu v. Madad Ali, I. L. R., 2 All. 649. [Jan. 28, 1880.]

THE words "decree passed against an agriculturist" in s. 20 of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act (XVII. of 1879) mean a decree passed against an agriculturist personally, and do not include decree for the recovery of money by the sale of mortgaged property. The effect of that section must be taken to be an enlargement of the indulgence granted by s. 210 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), but only in those cases to which the latter section applies. By s. 210 of the Civil Procedure Code, the Court may, after the passing of a decree in money-suits, order the amount to be paid by instalments, provided the decree-holder consents. By s. 20 of Act XVII. of 1879 the Court may make the same order in similar suits, without the consent of the decree-holder. In the case of a debt secured by a mortgage, the agriculturist's remedy lies in a suit, not for an account, but for redemption; and the only decree which can be made in such a suit, in the absence of any special provision in the Act, is the ordinary decree for payment of the whole amount within six months, or, in default, for foreclosure. Hardeo Das v. Hukam Singh (I. L. R., 2 All. 320) referred to and approved.—Shankarāpa Dargo Patel v. Dānapa Virantāpa, I. L. R., 5 Bom. 604. [Mar. 25, 1881.]

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR, whose property was about to be sold, appeared before the officer appointed to conduct the sale, and applied for its postponement, producing a surety and a bond, in which such surety promised to pay the amount of the decree within one year, if the judgment-debtor did not do so. Such officer thereupon applied to the District Judge to postpone the sale, stating that such surety was willing to pay the amount of the decree by instalments within one year, and forwarding such bond. The District Judge ordered the sale to be postponed, and the papers to be sent to the Munsif who had made the decree and ordered the sale of the property. The Munsif made no order regarding the security, but merely made an order that the amount of the decree should be paid by instalments within one year. The judgment-debtor did not pay the amount of the decree within the time fixed, and the decree-holder therefore applied for execution of the decree against such surety. Held that, inasmuch as the decree-holder had not been a party to the proceedings of the sale-officer or of the District Judge, and as the parties had not appeared before the Munsif, and as such surety had not agreed to pay the amount of the decree by instalments, the provisions of s. 210 of Act X. of 1877 were not applicable, and such surety had not become a party to the decree as altered by the Munsif; that such surety had not made himself a party to the decree by promising to pay its amount within one year; and that therefore his liability was not one which could be enforced in execution of the decree under s. 253 of Act X. of 1877.—Chandan Kuar v. Tirkha Ram, I. L. R., 3 All. 809. [May 27, 1881.]

WHERE a decree was passed by consent in 1872 for payment to plaintiff through the Court of Rs. 300 by fifteen annual instalments on the 20th February in each year, and in default of payment of any instalment the whole amount became recoverable, and four years' instalments were paid out of Court, and default made on the 20th February 1877, and plaintiff applied to recover the instalment of 1877 by execution on the 17th November 1879 and the 1st March 1880, held that the application of November 1879 was not barred under cl. 4, art. 179, sch. 2 of the Limitation Act of 1877, inasmuch as, when the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, came into force (1st October 1877), the application was not barred under cl. 6, art. 167, sch. 2 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1871. Held also that the provision as to the whole amount becoming recoverable at once if default was made did not affect the admissibility of the application for execution, because that provision had not been enforced, and the obligation to pay by instalments was still subsisting.—Karakavasa Appayya v. Kāranam Papayya, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 256. [Aug. 11, 1881.]

A COLLECTOR, to whom a decree for sale of mortgaged property has been transferred for execution under s. 320 of the Civil Procedure Code, is limited to one of the three courses specified in s. 321, and may not depart from them; much less may he do what the Court itself could not do in such a case—allow payment of the debt to be made by instalments. A Collector, to whom a decree has been so transferred for execution, acts ministerially, and, when he delegates his functions to an assistant or a mamlatdar, incurs a risk of having to answer in damages to the person who is by any error or mistake deprived of the fruits of his judgment; and this risk attaches independently of malice or negligence. The Court that has made a decree or judicial order, which has been transmitted to the Collector for execution, is not deprived of the judicial powers with respect to it, which may still at any particular time be competent to such

Court, and which it would have had had the order been placed in the hands of its own ordinary officer, the nazir. In the exercise of such powers the Court has authority to recall its own record transmitted to the Collector.—Mahādāji Karaudikar v. Hari D. Chikne, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 332. [June 28, 1883.]

On the 26th of June 1878, a judgment-debtor applied under s. 210 of the Code of Civil Procedure for two years' time to pay the amount of the decree which was dated 12th March 1878. Notice having been given to the judgment-creditor, an ex-parte order was made allowing the judgment-debtor two years' time to pay, but the decree itself was not altered in accordance with this order. On the 9th of July 1882, the decree-holder applied for execution of the decree. Held that the application was not barred by limitation.—Tata v. Rāmāchandra, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 152. [Sep. 7, 1882.]

On the 23rd February 1878, an application was made for execution of a decree dated the 3rd December 1877, in which the decree-holder stated that the judgment-debtor had agreed to pay the balance then due on the 13th August 1878. The application was then struck off on the 26th June 1878. On the 30th June 1881, the decree-holder again applied for execution, and on the 11th July 1881, the judgment-debtor, with the consent of the decree-holder, applied for time to pay the balance due till the 8th September 1881, and that application was also struck off. On the 1st March 1883, the decree-holder again applied for execution. Held that the application was not barred by limitation upon the ground that the application by the judgment-debtor, made on the 11th July 1881, alleging that he had come to an arrangement with the decree-holder for the payment of the amount due by instalments, having resulted in its being registered and the proceedings struck off, amounted to a direction that the decretal amount be paid by instalments as stipulated in the petitions, and that this being so, there was a decree passed on that date under the provisions of the second paragraph of s. 210 of the Code of Civil Procedure, of which the decree-holder was entitled to have execution.—Jhoti Sahu v. Bhugun Gir, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 143. [Dec. 4, 1884.]

AN application to execute a decree, dated 30th August 1880, was made on 25th May 1881. While the application was pending, the judgment-debtor presented a petition to be allowed to pay the debt by instalments, and the decree-holder consenting to this, the Court made the following order: "According to the application of both parties it is ordered that the case be struck off, and the decree be returned." The details of the instalments mentioned in the petition were endorsed on the decree by one of the amlahs of the Court, but it did not appear when or by whose order this was done. In an application for execution in accordance with this arrangement made on 7th March 1885, held that the order was not one recognising or sanctioning the arrangement within the meaning of s. 210 of the Civil Procedure Code, inasmuch as the Court at the time it made the order had no power to make any order for instalments, any application for that purpose being then barred by art. 175 of Act XV. of 1887. The application for execution was, therefore, barred under art. 179 as not having been made within three years of 25th May 1881. Jhoti Sahu v. Bhugun Gir (I. L. R., 11 Cal. 143) dissented from.—Abdul Rahaman Soda-gur v. Dullaram Marwari, I. L. R., 14 Cal. 348. [July 22, 1886.]

211. When the suit is for the recovery of possession of immoveable

In suits for land, Court may decree payment of mesne-profits with interest.	property yielding rent or other profit, the Court may provide in the decree for the payment of rent or mesne-profits in respect of such property from the institution of the suit until the delivery of possession to the party in whose favour the decree is made, or until the expiration of three years from the date of the decree (whichever event first occurs), with interest thereupon at such rate as the Court thinks fit.

Explanation—'Mesne-profits' of property mean those profits which the person in wrongful possession of such property actually received, or might, with ordinary diligence, have received, therefrom, together with interest on such profits.

WHERE the parties to a suit for certain land and for the payment of mesne-profits in respect of the same were co-sharers in the estate comprising such land, and the defendants had themselves occupied and cultivated such land, Held that the most reasonable and fitting mode of assessing such mesne-profits was to ascertain what would be a fair rent for such land if it had been let to an ordinary tenant and had not been cultivated by the defendants. Both parties appealed from the decree of the Court of first instance, and both the appeals were dismissed by the lower Appellate Court. The plaintiff appealed to the High Court from the decree of the lower Appellate Court dismissing his appeal, whereupon the defendant took objections to the decree of the lower Appellate Court dismissing his appeal. Held that such objections could not be entertained.—Ganga Parsad v. Gajadhar Parsad, 1. L. R., 2 All. 651. [Jan. 29, 1880.]

212. When the suit is for the recovery of possession of immoveable

property and for mesne-profits which have accrued on the property during a period prior to the institution of the suit, and the amount of such profits is disputed, the Court may either determine the amount by the decree itself, or may pass a decree for the property, and direct an inquiry into the amount of mesne-profits, and dispose of the same on further orders.

IN the course of a suit for declaration of right to property, and for partition, a compromise was entered into, by which it was agreed that certain property already ascertained should be divided in certain proportions, and that certain other property, not yet ascertained, should, on being ascertained, be partitioned on the same basis. The Court merely recorded the compromise, and declared that the decree should be according to terms therein set out. Held that this decree could be only executed as to the property which had been ascertained as divisible, and that as to the other property the decree must be taken as declaratory only. The Court executing a decree is bound by the terms of the decree, and it is only in cases provided for by ss. 211 and 212 of Act X. of 1877, corresponding with ss. 196 and 197 of Act VIII. of 1859, that it is at liberty to determine the rights of the litigants in proceedings taken after decree.—Ram Lajit Ram v. Chooaram, 4 C. L. R. 97. [Mar. 24, 1879.]

213. When the suit is for an account of any property and for its due administration under the decree of the Court, the Court, before making the decree, shall order such accounts and inquiries to be taken and made, and give such other directions, as it thinks fit.

IN the administration by the Court of the property of any person who dies after this Code comes into force, if such property proves to be insufficient for the payment in full of his debts and liabilities, the same rules shall be observed as to the respective rights of secured and unsecured creditors and as to debts and liabilities proveable, and as to the valuation of annuities and future and contingent liabilities respectively, as may be in force for the time being with respect to the estates of persons adjudged insolvent ; and all persons who, in any such case, would be entitled to be paid out of such property, may come in under the decree for its administration, and by the same such claims against the same as they may respectively be entitled to virtue of this Code.*

* The words, "Applications under s. 205 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, shall be deemed to be within the meaning of this section," have been repealed by Act IV. of 1886, s. 2.

A suit for winding up an expired partnership can be brought in the District Court under s. 265 of the Contract Act (IX. of 1872) and s. 213 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882). But the jurisdiction of the ordinary Courts is not annulled by the special jurisdiction assigned to the District Court by s. 265 of the Contract Act. Any one having a cause of action arising out of partnership-transactions may sue the person liable in the ordinary Court. The jurisdiction of such Court, however, does not extend to the case of a winding up of an expired partnership. This jurisdiction is given to the District Court by s. 265 of the Contract Act, and when, along with a new mode of relief, particular jurisdiction is constituted to administer it, the Court specified, and no other, is to be understood as vested with authority. Hence, though administration for the purpose may apparently be sought in the subordinate Courts, it can be obtained, in the case of an expired partnership, only in the District Court or the High Court. But the jurisdiction of the subordinate Courts in other respects is not extinguished. An apparent cause of action gives a right to sue in them for such relief as they can afford, though not for the particular kind of relief contemplated in s. 265 of the Contract Act. Where, in a sua cause of action appears which in itself is cognizable by an inferior Court, such a Court is not justified in rejecting the suit, merely because it is one in which the District Court might have jurisdiction under s. 265 of the Contract Act. Where an application under s. 265 of the Contract Act is presented to the District Court, that Court should determine whether it is (1) a mere case of administration; or (2) of administration sought as a cloak for strictly litigious claim; or (3) of administration plus claims involving litigation of the ordinary means. In the second case it may properly decline a function that properly belongs to an ordinary Court. In the last case, it may either assume the administration of the estate of the firm, or decline to do so, according to circumstances subject to appeal, and, in the former case, it may either itself deal with all questions arising between the ex-partners, or if these be of such a kind as to form separable subjects of adjudication, it can direct the party in each case interested to proceed on the particular alleged cause of action in the Court having ordinary jurisdiction, and itself use the result as an element of its administration.—Adarji Dorabji v. Eraksháh Dhanji, I. L. R., 8 Bom. 272. [Jan. 28, 1884.]

214. When the suit is to enforce a right of pre-emption in respect of a Suit to enforce right of particular sale of property, and the Court finds for pre-emption. the plaintiff, if the amount of purchase-money has not been paid into Court, the decree shall specify a day on or before which it shall be so paid, and shall declare that, on payment of such purchase-money, together with the costs (if any) decreed against him, the plaintiff shall obtain possession of the property, but that, if such money and costs are not so paid, the suit shall stand dismissed with costs.

THE decree of the Court of first instance in a suit to enforce a right of pre-emption directed that the sum which that Court had ascertained to be the purchase-money should be deposited within one month from the date of the decree. Plaintiff appealed, contending that such sum was not the purchase-money. While the appeal was pending, the time fixed by the decree of the Court of first instance expired without any deposit having been made. The Appellate Court dismissed the appeal, fixing by its decree, of its own motion, a further time for the deposit. Held that the Appellate Court was competent to extend the time for making the deposit, and its action and order did not contravene the provision of Act X. of 1877, s. 214.—Parshadi Iall v. Ram Dial, I. L. R., 2 All. 744. [Feb. 13, 1880.]

M SUE D K and J to enforce a right of pre-emption in respect of property which he alleged K had sold to J. K denied that she had sold such property to J. J set up as a defence that M had waived his right of pre-emption. The Court of first instance dismissed the suit on the ground that the alleged sale had not taken place. J appealed, making M and K respondents. The lower Appellate Court dismissed the appeal, also holding that the alleged sale had not taken place. J then appealed to the High Court, making K the respondent. Held that neither the appeal from the original decree in the suit, nor the appeal from the appellate decree therein, was admissible. Held also that the finding as to the alleged sale was one between the plaintiff and defendants in the suit, and not between the defendant-vendor and the defendant-vendee who were litigating, and would not bar adjudication of the matter in issue between them in a suit brought by the latter for the establishment of the sale.—Jumna Singh v. Kamar-un-nisa, I. L. R., 3 All. 152. [Aug. 12, 1880.]

THE decree in a suit to enforce a right of pre-emption, dated the 12th December 1879, declared that the plaintiff should obtain possession of the property on payment of the purchase-money "within thirty days," but that, if such money was not so paid, the suit should stand dismissed. The period specified in the decree for the payment of the purchase-money, the day on which the decree was made not being computed, expired on the 11th January following. That day was a Sunday. The plaintiff paid the purchase-money into Court on the next day, the 12th January. Held that, inasmuch as the day on which the decree was made should not be taken into account in computing the period specified in the decree for the payment of the purchase-money, nor the last day of that period, that day being a Sunday, the plaintiff had complied with the condition imposed on him by the decree. Semble.—That, if the plaintiff had actually failed to deposit the purchase-money within thirty days as directed by the decree, his suit would have been liable to be dismissed, as he could not have claimed to have such period computed from the date the decree became final.—Dabi Din Rai v. Muhammad Ali, 1. L. R., 3 All. 850. [June 14, 1881.]

THE plaintiff in a suit to enforce a right of pre-emption obtained a decree to the effect mentioned in s. 214 of the Civil Procedure Code. On payment by him of the purchase-money into Court, the defendants objected, in the execution-department, to such payment on the ground that it had not been made within time. The Court which made the decree disallowed the objection. The defendants appealed from the order disallowing the objection. They had previously appealed from the decree. The Appellate Court heard both appeals together, and, holding that the purchase-money had not been paid into Court within time, reversed the decree, and allowed the objection. The plaintiff preferred a second appeal to the High Court from the Appellate Court's decree, which was admitted. He also preferred an appeal from the appellate order allowing the objection, but this appeal was rejected as being beyond time, and such order became final. Held that, inasmuch as the question whether the plaintiff had paid the purchase-money into Court within time was not one relating to the execution of the decree within the meaning of s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code, but was one which should be decided in the suit itself, and therefore the proceedings in the execution-department touching that question were ill-founded, such order was not a bar to the hearing of the second appeal preferred by the plaintiff.—Muhammad Ali v. Debi Din Rai, 1. L. R., 4 All. 420. [May 5, 1882.]

THE decree in a suit to enforce a right of pre-emption directed, in accordance with the provisions of s. 214 of the Civil Procedure Code, that the plaintiff should obtain possession of the property and recover costs of the suit from the defendants (vendor and vendee) on payment of the purchase-money within a fixed time, but that, on default of such payment, the suit should stand dismissed. The plaintiff deposited within time the purchase-money with the exception of a sum less than the amount of costs awarded to him. He subsequently applied for delivery of possession of the property in execution of the decree and for the recovery of the costs awarded to him, deducting from such costs the unpaid portion of the purchase-money. Held, applying, by analogy of ss. 221 and 247 of the Civil Procedure Code, the equitable doctrine of set-off, that the plaintiff was entitled, when depositing the purchase-money under the decree, to deduct therefrom the sum the decree awarded to him as costs, and that, therefore, the decree did not become null and void by reason that he had not deposited the full amount of the purchase-money within time. Degumburee Dabee v. Eshan Chunder Sein (9 W. R. 230), Jugo Mohun Buxsee v. Soorendro Nath Roy Chowdhry (3 W. R. 106), and Brijnath Dass v. Juggarnath Dass (1. L. R., 4 Cal. 742), referred to.—Ishtee v. Gopal Saran, 1. L. R., 6 All. 351 [May 19, 1884.]

215. When the suit is for the dissolution of a partnership, the Court, before making its decree, may pass an order fixing the day on which the partnership shall stand dissolved, and directing such accounts to be taken and other acts to be done as it thinks fit.

IN a suit for an account of partnership-transactions, the Subordinate Judge, in whose Court the suit was instituted, framed certain issues with the object of ascertaining who managed the business; with whom the partnership-property was; whether the defendants ought to account; what was the capital, and what the expenditure and profits of the firm; and, after taking evidence on those points, dismissed the suit. Held that the Subordinate Judge should have followed the course pointed out in forms 132 and 133 of sch. 4 of the Civil Procedure Code, and at the first hearing should have determined whether there had been a partnership; what were its conditions; was it dissolved, or ought it to be dissolved; and who were the parties interested, and in what shares; and, upon determining these questions, should have directed accounts to be taken; and, after the accounts had been taken, should have made a final decree. Held also that the suit should not have been instituted in the Court of the Subordinate Judge, and the case was transferred to the Court of the District Judge. The plaint in a partnership-suit ought to be framed on the lines of form 113 in sch. 4 of the Code, and the accounts should be taken as prayed in that form. Under ordinary circumstances, the costs of a partnership-suit should be paid out of the assets of the partnership, or, in default of assets, by the partners in proportion to their respective shares, unless any partner denies the fact of a partnership, or opposes obstacles to the taking of the accounts, and so renders a suit necessary, when he is usually made to pay the costs up to the hearing.—Ram Chunder Shaha v. Manick Chunder Banikya, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 428. [May 30, 1881.]

T, B, R, and W, the owners of a certain estate in equal shares, in 1863 entered into a partnership "for the cultivation of tea and other products" upon such estate. In 1864, H, E, and I, joined the firm. In 1870 H died; and in 1871 T purchased his share and those of E and I, and in 1873 of R. In 1875, T gave the Delhi and London Bank a mortgage on such estate as security for the repayment of money which he had borrowed from the Bank ostensibly for the purposes of the estate. The Bank obtained a decree against him personally for the money, in execution of which his rights and interests in the estate were put up for sale on the 20th June 1877, and were purchased by the Bank, which obtained possession of the estate in August 1877. In August 1879, B and W's executor sued T and the Bank, claiming a declaration that they were or had been partners with T in the estate; that if the partnership should be held to be subsisting, it might be dissolved, or that, if it had ceased to exist, the date of its termination might be fixed; and that, in either event, a liquidator might be appointed to take an account, and, after realizing assets and discharging liabilities, might be ordered to pay them each one-third of such balance as remained. The suit was instituted in the Court of a District Judge. He transferred it to the Court of a Subordinate Judge. The High Court subsequently transferred it to its own file. Held that the suit was not one falling within the purview of s. 265 of the Contract Act; but assuming that it was such a suit, and the Subordinate Judge had no jurisdiction, the High Court was nevertheless competent to transfer it. That the Bank, as T's representative by purchase, had been properly joined as a defendant in the suit. That the period of limitation applicable to the suit was that provided in art. 120, and not art. 106, Act XV. of 1877; but that in either case the suit was within time, as the partnership was dissolved, and consequently time began to run, not from the death of H, or the purchases by T of his share or those of E and I in 1871, or of R in 1873, but in August 1877, when the defendant Bank took possession of the partnership-property. That, as the effect of the purchases by T in 1871 and 1873 was to relieve the estates of H, E and I, and R, of all past and future liabilities of the partnership, in respect of which B and W still continued as liable as T, and to which they would have to contribute to discharge, such purchases should be regarded and treated as made on behalf of the partnership, and therefore, at the time of the execution of the mortgage of the estate, B, W, and T, were interested in the estate to the extent of one-third each. That, although T was not authorized, either actually or impliedly, by B and W to mortgage the estate, and the mortgage therefore was not binding on them, yet as they allowed him to conduct the business of the estate in such a manner as to make it appear that the control and management of it rested with him, and he was, for all ordinary business-purposes, their representative, B and W were bound, in any accounting that might take place, to recoup the defendant Bank for such advances as were made to T for the necessary purposes of the estate, in the same proportion as they must discharge debts due to other creditors. That T was entitled to be reimbursed such moneys of his own as he had expended within the legitimate scope and for the proper purposes of the partnership as originally contemplated by the parties. Directions to the liquidator appointed how to proceed.—Harrison v. Delhi and London Bank, I. L. R., 4 All. 437. [April 20, 1882.]

A SUIT for dissolution of a partnership, taking the accounts of the firm, and a declaration of the plaintiff's right to a certain share in the debts due to the firm, was, with reference to the value of the subject-matter of the suit, instituted in the Court of a Munsif. The matters in difference in the suit were eventually referred to arbitration under chap. xxxvii. of the Code of Civil Procedure, and an award was given declaring the plaintiff entitled to recover a certain sum from the defendant. Judgment and a decree were given in accordance with the award. Held that the award, notwithstanding the question whether the suit was cognizable in the Munsif's Court, was entertainable. Bhagirath v. Ram Ghulam (I. L. R., 4 All. 283) referred to. Held also that the suit was not an application of the nature mentioned in s. 256 of the Contract Act, 1872, but a suit of the nature mentioned in s. 215 of the Civil Procedure Code, and was, therefore, not cognizable in the District Court, but in the Court of the Munsif. Prosad Dass Mullick v. Russick Lal Mullick (I. L. R., 7 Cal. 157), and Ram Chunder Shaha v. Manick Chunder Banikya (I. L. R., 7 Cal. 428), dissented from.—Kalian Das v. Ganga Sahai, I. L. R., 5 All. 500. [April 1, 1883.]

C. Courts.

215A. When a suit is for an account of pecuniary transactions between a principal and agent, and in all other suits not hereinbefore provided for, where it is necessary, in order to ascertain the amount of money due to or from any party, that an account should be taken, the Court shall, before making its decree, pass an order directing such accounts to be taken as it thinks fit.

Ditto.

218. If the defendant has set-off the amount of a debt against the claim of the plaintiff, and such set-off has been allowed, the decree shall state what amount is due to the plaintiff and what amount (if any) is due to the defendant, and shall be for the recovery of any sum which appears to be due to either party.

The decree of the Court with respect to any sum awarded to the defendant shall have the same effect, and be subject to the same rules in respect of appeal or otherwise, as if such sum had been claimed by the defendant in a separate suit against the plaintiff.

APPLICATION for execution of a decree was made on the 10th November 1869, and on the 27th November 1869, notice issued under s. 216 of the Civil Procedure Code. Again on the 4th February 1873, application was made for execution, and notice was issued on the 19th February 1873, under s. 216. A subsequent application for execution was made on the 31st August 1874, and the order for notice to issue, under s. 216, was made on the same day. The question raised in appeal against the order to issue execution was whether the plaintiff's right to execution was barred, and had been so when the application, dated 31st August 1874, for execution, was made. Held on appeal by the High Court (Kernan and Kindersley, J.J.) that as the application for execution on the 4th February 1873, being more than three years after the date of issuing the last prior notice under s. 216, viz., 27th November 1869, was late, under art. 187, para. 5, Act IX. of 1871, execution was barred by limitation at and before the date of that application, and that this bar was not removed by the circumstance that the judgment-debtor had allowed the service of the notice on him in February 1873 to pass unchallenged. Raja Chilicany v. Rajavulu Naidu (5 Mad. H. C. R. 100) distinguished. Held also (following Chunder Coomar Roy v. Bhogobutty Prosonno Roy (I. L. R., 3 Cal. 235) that "applications to enforce a decree" in para. 4 of art. 167, Act IX. of 1871, mean "applications under s. 212 or otherwise by which proceedings in execution are commenced, and not applications of an incidental kind made during the pendency of such proceedings."—Prabhacara Row v. Potannath, I. L. R., 2 Mad. 1. [July 29, 1878.]

Certified copies of judgment and decree to be furnished.

217. Certified copies of the judgment and decree shall be furnished to the parties on application to the Court, and at their expense.

CHAPTER XVIII.

OF COSTS.

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

218. When disposing of any application under this Code, the Court may give to either party the costs of such application, or may reserve the consideration of such costs for any future stage of the proceedings.

Ditto.

219. The judgment shall direct by whom the costs of each party are to be paid, whether by himself or by any other party to the suit, and whether in whole or in what part or proportion.

If the Official Assignee defends a suit, he is liable, in the event of failure, to be ordered to pay the plaintiff's costs in the same way as any other defendant; and if the estate be insufficient to pay the costs, he will have to bear them personally. It is for him to protect himself by getting a guarantee of indemnity from the parties who set him in motion.—Bevis (James) v. Turner (C. A.), I. L. R., 7 Bom. 484. [Sep. 4, 1883.]

220. The Court shall have full power to give and apportion costs of every application and suit in any manner it thinks fit, and the fact that the Court has no jurisdiction to try the case is no bar to the exercise of such power :

Provided that, if the Court directs that the costs of any application or suit shall not follow the event, the Court shall state its reasons in writing.

Every order relating to costs made under this Code, and not forming part of a decree, may be executed as if it were a decree for money.

In February 1884, the High Court dismissed an application by a Muhammadan parda-nashin lady under s. 592 of the Civil Procedure Code for leave to appeal as a pauper from a decree passed in September 1882, on the ground that it was barred by limitation. On the 16th August 1884, an order was passed allowing an application which had been made for review of the said order to stand over pending the decision of a connected case which had been remanded for re-trial under s. 562 of the Code. On the 24th April 1885, the connected case having then been decided, the application for review was heard and dismissed. On the 18th June 1885, an order was passed ex parte by Petheram, C.J., allowing the applicant, under s. 5 of the Limitation Act (XV of 1877), to file an appeal on full stamp paper, and she thereupon, having borrowed money on onerous conditions to defray the necessary institution-fees, presented her appeal, which was admitted provisionally by a single Judge. Held by Tyrrell, J. (Mahmood, J., dissenting) that the appellant had made out a sufficient case for the exercise of the Court's discretion under s. 5 of the Limitation Act, and that the Court should proceed to the trial of her appeal. Held by Mahmood, J., that the ex-parte order of the 18th June 1885 was one which the Civil Procedure Code nowhere allowed and was ultra vires, and that the Bench before which the appeal came for hearing was competent to determine whether the order admitting the appeal should stand or be set aside. Dubey Sahai v. Ganeshi Lal (I. L. R., 1 All. 34) referred to. Held also by Mahmood, J. (Tyrrell, J., dissenting), that the circumstances were such as to require the Court to set aside the order admitting the appeal and to dismiss the appeal as barred by limitation, inasmuch as it was presented more than two years beyond time, and neither the facts that the main reason why it was presented so late was that the appellant was awaiting the result of the connected case, nor that the appellant was a pauper and a parda-nashin lady, nor the orders of the 16th August 1884, and the 18th June 1885, constituted "sufficient cause" for an extension of the limitation period within the meaning of s. 5 of the Limitation Act. Moshullah v. Ahmedullah (I. L. R., 13 Cal. 78) and Mangu Lal v. Kandhai Lal (I. L. R., 8 All. 475) referred to. Held further by Mahmood, J., that although, but for the erroneous order of the 18th June 1885, the appellant would neither have borrowed the money required to defray the institution-fees nor preferred the appeal, and this was a circumstance to be considered in the exercise of the discretionary power conferred by s. 220 of the Code, it could not be said that the error of a Court of Justice which leads a party to initiate proceedings against another is sufficient to exonerate the losing party from paying the costs incurred by the opposite party, and that the appeal should therefore be dismissed with costs.—Husaini Begam v. Collector of Muzaffarnagar, I. L. R., 9 All. 11. [July 13, 1886.]

221. The Court may direct that the costs payable to one party by another shall be set-off against a sum which is admitted or found to be due. Costs may be set-off against sum admitted or found to be due. is found in the suit to be due from the former to the latter.

The decree in a redemption-suit directed the plaintiff (the mortgagor) to pay the mortgage-money and interest to the defendant, and directed the defendant to pay the plaintiff the costs of the suit. Held that the plaintiff was entitled to set-off the amount of his taxed costs against the mortgage-money which he was liable to pay under the decree, notwithstanding any claim that the defendant's attorney might have against the defendant in respect of the defendant's costs of suit.—Brijnath Dass v. Juggernath Dass, I. L. R., 4 Cal. 742. [Mar. 25, 1879.]

222. The Court may give interest on costs at any rate not exceeding six per cent. per annum, and may direct that costs, Interest on costs.
Payment of costs out of. with or without interest, be paid out of, or charged subject-matter. upon, the subject-matter of the suit.

On the 21st August 1876, certain immoveable property belonging to M was put up for sale, and was purchased by R. On the 20th April 1877, such sale was set aside under s. 250 of Act VIII. of 1859, on the ground that the order attaching such property and the notifications of sale had not, as required by s. 222, been signed by the Court executing the decree, but by the munsarim of the Court. On the 27th June 1877, M conveyed such property to H, who purchased it bond fide, and for value, and satisfied the incumbrances existing thereon. On the 15th April 1878, R sued H and M to have the order setting aside such sale set aside, and to have such sale confirmed in his favour, on the ground that it had been improperly set aside under s. 250 of Act VIII. of 1859, the judgment-debtor not having been prejudiced by the irregularities in respect whereof such sale had been set aside. Held (by Oldfield, J.) that although such sale might have been improperly set aside, yet inasmuch as the order of attachment and the notifications of sale could have no legal effect, having been signed by the munsarim of the Court executing the decree, and not by the Court, as required by s. 222 of Act VIII. of 1859, and inasmuch as it would be inequitable, after the incumbrances on such property had been satisfied and the state of things changed, to allow R, after standing by for a year, and permitting dealings with the property, to come in and take advantage of the change of circumstances, and obtain a property become much more valuable at the price he originally offered, R ought not to obtain the relief which he sought. Held (by Straight, J.) that the fact that the Court executing the decree had not signed the order of attachment and the notifications of sale vitiated the proceedings in execution ab initio, and rendered the sale which R desired to have confirmed void, and R's suit therefore failed, and had properly been dismissed.—Ram Dial v. Mahtab Singh, I. L. R., 3 All. 701. [April 26, 1891.]

A SUCCESSFUL appellant in an appeal to the High Court applied, in execution of his decree, for a refund of a sum of money which he had paid to the respondent, by way of costs with interest thereon, in execution of the lower Court's decree. He further applied for interest on the refund claimed at the rate of Rs. 6 per cent. per annum. The respondent objected to paying interest on the refund. Held that the appellant was entitled to the interest claimed on the refund of costs. Forester v. Secretary of State for India in Council (I. L. R., 3 Cal. 161) referred to.—Ram Sahai v. Bank of Bengal, I. L. R., 8 All. 262. [April 28, 1886.]

CHAPTER XIX.

OF THE EXECUTION OF DECREES.

A.—Of the Court by which Decrees may be executed.

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

223. A decree may be executed either by the Court which passed it, Court by which decree may or by the Court to which it is sent for execution be executed. under the provisions hereinafter contained.

The Court which passed a decree may, on the application of the decree-holder, send it for execution to another Court—

(a) if the person against whom the decree is passed actually and voluntarily resides, or carries on business, or personally works for gain, within the local limits of the jurisdiction of such other Court, or

(b) if such person has not property within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court which passed the decree sufficient to satisfy such decree, and has property within the local limits of the jurisdiction of such other Court, or

(c) if the decree directs the sale of immoveable property situate outside the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court which passed it, or

(d) if the Court which passed the decree considers, for any other reason, which it shall record in writing, that the decree should be executed by such other Court.

The Court which passed a decree may, of its own motion, send it for execution to any Court subordinate thereto.

The Court to which a decree is sent under this section for execution shall certify to the Court which passed it the fact of such execution, or, where the former Court fails to execute the same, the circumstances attending such failure.

If the decree has been passed in a case cognizable by a Court of Small Causes, and the Court which passed it wishes it to be executed in Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, or Rangoon, such Court may send to the Court of Small Causes in Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, or Rangoon, as the case may be, the copies and certificate respectively mentioned in clauses (a), (b), and (c) of section 224; and such Court of Small Causes shall thereupon execute the decree as if it had been passed by itself.

If the Court to which a decree is to be sent for execution is situate within the same district as the Court which passed such decree, such Court shall send the same directly to the former Court. But, if the Court to which the decree is to be sent for execution is situate in a different district, the Court which passed it shall send it to the District Court of the district in which the decree is to be executed.

SMALL Cause Courts in the mufassal are not at liberty to execute decrees against moveable property beyond their local jurisdiction.—Munsuk Mosur das v. Shivaram Devi Singh, I. L. R., 2 Bom. 532. [Jan. 31, 1878.]

PER GARTH, C.J.—S. 649 of the Civil Procedure Code, as amended by Act XII. of 1879, which explains the meaning of the expression, the "Court which passed the decree," does not exclude the Court which originally passed the decree as being a Court in which an application for execution shall be made, but merely includes another Court. When, therefore, a Court which has passed a decree has ceased to have jurisdiction to execute it, the application for execution may be made either to that Court, although it has ceased to have jurisdiction to execute the decree, or to the Court which (if the suit wherein the decree was passed were instituted at the time of making application to execute it) would have jurisdiction to try the suit. Per Field, J.—A Court does not cease to be "the Court which passed the decree" merely by reason that the head-quarters of such Court are removed to another place, or merely because the local limits of the jurisdiction of such Court are altered. An application for the transfer of a decree under the provisions of s. 223 and the following section of Act X. of 1877 is a step in aid of the execution of the decree within the meaning of cl. 4, art. 179, sch. 2 of Act XV. of 1877.—Latchman Pundeh v. Maddan Mohun Shye, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 513. [Dec. 10, 1880.]

WHETHER a decree for rent, under Act X. of 1859, made in one district, can be transferred to another for execution, is a question which the High Court can decide in the exercise of its "superintendence over all Courts subject to its appellate jurisdiction," under 24 and 25 Vic., c. 104, s. 15. "Decrees for rent made by the Collector under s. 23 of Act X. of 1859 can be executed by a Civil Court to which they may be transferred under the sections of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to "the execution of a decree out of the jurisdiction of the Court by which it was passed."—Nilmuni Singh Deo v. Taranath Mukerjee, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 295. [May 18, 1882.]

THE holders of a decree, made in 1866, against K and certain other persons jointly, applied to recover mesne-profits in execution thereof. K paid the decree-holders the mesne-profits claimed, and then sued his co-judgment-debtors for contribution, and in 1878 obtained a decree against them. Subsequently the holders of the decree of 1866 again applied to recover mesne-profits in execution thereof, and in the proceedings which followed it was decided that mesne-profits were not recoverable under the decree. After this K's representatives applied for execution of the decree of 1878. The lower Courts refused to execute the decree on the ground that, as under the decree of 1866, on which the decree of 1878 was based, mesne-profits were not recoverable, it would not be equitable to allow a decree for contribution passed on a contrary supposition to be executed. Held that the lower Courts were not competent to go behind the decree of 1878, but must deal with it as it stood.—Ramphal Rai v. Ram Barn Rai, I. L. R., 5 All. 53. [July 17, 1882.]

THE plaintiff in a suit for money obtained a decree against all the defendants except P, and among them K. On appeal the Court of first appeal gave them a decree against P. In execution of this decree they attached, and were paid, as belonging to P, certain money deposited in the Government Treasury in K's name. On appeal by P the Court of second appeal reversed this decree, and restored the decree of the first Court dismissing the suit as regards P. P thereupon applied in execution of his decree for a refund of the money. The plaintiffs objected on the ground that the money belonged to K. Held that the Court executing P's decree was not competent to decide the question whether the money belonged to P or to K, such question not being one between P and them only, but involving and raising a question of title between him and K as to their conflicting claims, inter se, to the money.—Pusai v. Mahadeo Prasad, 1. L. R., 6 All. 12. [July 2, 1883.]

THE Courts of Subordinate Judges invested with the jurisdiction of a Judge of a Small Cause Court under s. 28 of Act XIV. of 1860 does not thereby become "Courts of Small Causes constituted under Act XI. of 1865." They merely exercise a similar jurisdiction. This makes their decisions final in the cases to which the jurisdiction extends, but it does not imply that the variations of procedure prescribed expressly for the Courts constituted under Act XI. of 1865 are applicable to Courts constituted under a different Act and subject to different conditions. The Court of a Subordinate Judge exercising Small Cause Court powers is, under s. 5 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882), one of the "other Courts exercising jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes," and, as such, its procedure is governed by the Civil Procedure Code without the variations provided by Act XI. of 1865. Under s. 223 (d) of the Civil Procedure Code the Court which has passed a decree in its Small Cause Court jurisdiction may, for any good reason to be recorded in writing, transfer its decree to the other branch of the same Court, as it might to a different Court, for execution, without requiring a certificate under s. 20 of Act XI. of 1865. For this purpose the two branches or sides of the Subordinate Judge's Court may be regarded as different Courts.—Bhagvân Dayâji v. Bâlu, 1. L. R., 8 Bom. 230. [Dec. 7, 1883.]

ALTHOUGH by the Madras Civil Courts' Act, 1871, the ordinary jurisdiction of Munsifs is limited in suits and applications of a civil nature to those in which the subject-matter does not exceed in value Rs. 2,500, s. 223 of the Code of Civil Procedure gives jurisdiction to a Munsif's Court to execute a decree in a suit beyond its jurisdiction which has been transferred to it for execution by a District Court.—Narasayya v. Venkatakrishnayya, 1. L. R., 7 Mad. 397. [Feb. 22, 1884.]

A MUPASSAL Court of Small Causes must adopt the machinery of s. 223 of the Civil Procedure Code in all cases where execution is sought against persons or property outside its local jurisdiction. Such a Court, therefore, cannot attach the salary of a public officer where the same is disbursed outside its local jurisdiction. Hossein Ally v. Ashotosh Gangooly (3 C. L. R. 30) followed.—Parbat Charan v. Panchanand, 1. L. R., 6 All. 213. [Feb. 20, 1884.]

THE Court of a Subordinate Judge and that of a District Munsif had jurisdiction over certain immoveable property. A small-cause decree of the former Court having been sent by the Subordinate Judge to the Court of the District Munsif for execution against the said property under the provisions of s. 20 of Act XI. of 1865 the application for execution was rejected by the Munsif on the ground that this procedure was illegal. Held that s. 20 of Act XI. of 1865 was not modified by s. 223 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and that the Munsif's Court was, therefore, bound to execute the decree.—Kahnarâma v. Ranga, 1. L. R., 8 Mad. 8. [Oct. 16, 1884.]

THE plaintiff, having obtained a money-decree against H and others in a suit in the Subordinate Judge's Court at Dhulia, applied for execution by attachment and sale of their immoveable property. That property was accordingly sold, but before the realization of the assets the defendant, who also had obtained a money-decree against the same judgment-debtors in the same Court in its small-cause jurisdiction, applied for the execution of his decree by attachment and sale of the immoveable property, which had already been attached at the instance of the plaintiff. The Court, under s. 235 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), rateably distributed the proceeds of the sale between the plaintiff and the defendant. The plaintiff now brought this suit in the small-cause jurisdiction of the Subordinate Judge's Court at Dhulia to recover from the defendant the amount paid to him, alleging that it had been illegally paid, as the procedure laid down in s. 223 of the Code had not been followed. Held that a Subordinate Judge invested with Small Cause Court powers has generally to follow the procedure prescribed in the Code of Civil Procedure. This governs his proceedings both in trial and execution, whether the suit is a small-cause or not. If the two jurisdictions assigned to the Subordinate Judge's Court and to the Subordinate Judge personally are locally co-extensive, there is no distinction of sides or branches. But where, as in some cases, the ordinary jurisdiction is wider locally than the small-cause jurisdiction, the Court is, in that part of its territory which lies outside the Small Cause Court jurisdiction, to be regarded as a separate Court, so far, that a decree in a small-cause should not generally be executed on property beyond the small-cause jurisdiction without a transfer, i. e. a dealing with the execution as in a suit tried in the usual way, for reasons to be recorded in writing. As all is done by the same Judge, a suggestion and an order recorded in the case are sufficient without a formal transmission to a distant Court.—Dharamdás Santidás v. Váman Govind, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 237. [Dec. 23, 1884.]

A DECREE was passed on the 20th February 1878 by the Munsif of M. In November 1878, it was, in accordance with the provisions of s. 223 of the Civil Procedure Code, transferred to the Munsif of J. On the 21st January 1879, an application for execution of the decree was made to the Munsif of J, who thereupon issued an order for the attachment of some immoveable property belonging to the judgment-debtor, and also for the attachment of three decrees standing in his Court in favour of the judgment-debtor against other persons. On the 18th March 1882, the decree-holder applied to the Munsif of J to execute one of these decrees in his behalf, and he further asked that whatever might be realized in such execution should go to the account of the decree which had been transferred, and which was being executed. Held that the application of the 18th March 1882 was perfectly legal, and such a proceeding as could keep alive the decree of the 20th February 1878, and that a subsequent application for execution, dated the 12th April 1883, was therefore not barred by limitation. An application to execute an attached decree is a "step in aid of execution" of the original decree within the meaning of art. 179, sch. 2, of the Limitation Act, inasmuch as its object is to obtain money in order to pay off the judgment-debtor.—Lachman v. Thondi Ram, I. L. R., 7 All. 382. [Feb. 25, 1885.]

On the 4th of March 1884, a decree-holder applied to the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Moorshedabad (where the decree was passed) for transfer of the decree to the District Court of Beerbhoom for execution. The transfer was made, and, on application by the decree-holder, the judgment-debtor's properties in Beerbhoom were attached. Thereupon the judgment-debtor objected to the attachment, and obtained an order under s. 239 of the Code of Civil Procedure, staying the execution-proceedings. The judgment-debtor then applied to the Court of the Subordinate Judge at Moorshedabad objecting to the execution of the decree on the ground that it was barred by limitation. The objection was overruled by the Subordinate Judge, and his decision was upheld on appeal to the District Judge. On second appeal to the High Court, held, that the Moorshedabad Court was competent to hear and determine the plea of limitation. Held also that the fact of the judgment-debtor's not raising the plea of limitation in the Beerbhoom Court did not, under the circumstances, preclude him from relying on it in his subsequent application to the Court at Moorshedabad.—Sriharay Mundál v. Murari Chowdhry, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 257. [July 2, 1886.]

Procedure when Court desires that its own decree shall be executed by another Court.

224. The Court sending a decree for execution under section 223 shall send,

Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

(a) a copy of the decree ;

(b) a certificate setting forth that satisfaction of the decree has not been obtained by execution within the jurisdiction of the Court by which it was passed, or, where the decree has been executed in part, the extent to which satisfaction has been obtained and what part of the decree remains unexecuted ; and

(c) a copy of any order for the execution of the decree, and if no such order has been made, a certificate to that effect.

THE jurisdiction of a Court to which a decree has been transferred for execution is strictly limited to carrying out such execution. Such Court has no power to issue a certificate under ss. 285 and 286 of Act VIII. of 1859, transferring the decree, already transferred to it, to another Court for execution. The Court to which a decree has been properly transferred for execution having struck the case off the file, a subsequent application for a further transfer of the case to another Court for execution should be made to the Court which originally passed the decree sought to be executed. Bagram v. Wise (1 B. L. R. 91) considered.—Shib Narain Shaha v. Bipin Behari Biswas, I. L. R., 3 Cal. 513. [Jan. 10, 1878.]

In a suit for partition a compromise was entered into by all the parties except S, and a decree obtained on the terms thereof. In execution S was dispossessed, and presented a petition to the Court, objecting that the decree was not binding on her. The petition was rejected. Held that the objection raised by S ought to have been investigated under s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and that S was entitled to appeal against the order rejecting the petition.—Sankaravadivammal v. Kumarasamy, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 478. [April 25, 1885.]

Extends to Provincial &
C. Courts.

225. The Court to which a decree is so sent shall cause such copies and certificate to be filed, without any further proof of the decree or order for execution, or of the copies thereof, or of the jurisdiction of the Court which passed it, unless the former Court, for any special reasons to be recorded under the hand of the Judge, requires such proof.

Ditto.

226. When such copies are so filed, the decree or order may, if the Court to which it is sent be the District Court, be executed by such Court or by any subordinate Court which it directs to execute the same.

Ditto.

227. If the Court to which the decree is sent for execution be a High Court, the decree shall be executed by such Court in the same manner as if it had been made by such Court in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction.

Ditto.

228. The Court executing a decree sent to it under this chapter shall have the same powers in executing such decree as if it have been passed by itself. All persons disobeying or obstructing the execution of the decree shall be punishable by such Court in the same manner as if it had passed the decree. And its orders in executing such decree shall be subject to the same rules in respect of appeal as if the decree had been passed by itself.

WHETHER a decree for rent, under Act X. of 1859, made in one district, can be transferred to another for execution, is a question which the High Court can decide in the exercise of its "superintendence over all Courts subject to its appellate jurisdiction," under 24 and 25 Vic., c. 104, s. 15. Decrees for rent made by the Collector under s. 23 of Act X. of 1859 can be executed by a Civil Court to which they may be transferred under the sections of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to "the execution of a decree out of the jurisdiction of the Court by which it was passed."—Nalmoni Singh Deo v. Taranath Mukerjee, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 295. [May 18, 1882.]

THE powers which the foreign Court has, under s. 228 of the Civil Procedure Code, are confined to the execution of the decree, and the Court cannot question the propriety or correctness of the order directing execution, nor can it, with reference to s. 230 of the Code, stay execution except temporarily. Held, therefore, where the drawers of a hundi, against whom the indorsee from the payee had obtained a decree on the hundi, objected in the Court to which the decree had been transmitted for execution that execution should not be allowed, because the payee had paid the amount of the hundi to the decree-holder, after the decree had been passed, and such Court refused to entertain the objection, that the order of the lower Appellate Court directing that the parties should be allowed to produce evidence in regard to the alleged payment, and that, should the Court of first instance find that the decree-holder had received satisfaction to the full amount of the decree, the judgment-debtors should be absolved from all liability under the decree, could not be maintained.—Ram Lal v. Radhey Lal, I. L. R., 7 All. 390. [Jan. 7, 1885.]

A DECREE was passed on the 20th February 1878 by the Munsif of M. In November 1878, it was, in accordance with the provisions of s. 228 of the Civil Procedure Code, transferred to the Munsif of J. On the 21st January 1879, an application for execution of the decree was made to the Munsif of J, who thereupon issued an order for the attachment of some immoveable property belonging to the judgment-debtor, and also for the attachment of three decrees standing in his Court in favour of the judgment-debtor against other persons. On the 18th March 1882, the decree-holder applied to the Munsif of J to execute one of these decrees in his behalf, and he further asked that whatever might be realized in such execution should go to the account of the decree which had been transferred and which was being executed. Held that the application of the 18th March 1882 was perfectly legal, and such a proceeding as could keep alive the decree of the 20th February 1878, and that a subsequent application for execution, dated the 12th April 1883, was therefore not barred by limitation. An application to execute an attached decree is a "step in aid of execution" of the original decree, within the meaning of art. 179, sch. 2, of the Limitation Act, inasmuch as its object is to obtain money in order to pay off the judgment-debtor.—Lachman v. Thoudi Ram, I. L. R., 7 All. 382. [Feb. 25, 1885.]

229. A decree of any Court established by the authority of the Governor-General in Council in the territories of any Foreign Prince or State, which cannot be executed within the jurisdiction of the Court by which it was made, may be executed in manner herein provided within the jurisdiction of any Court in British India.

Decrees of Courts established by Government of India in Native States.

Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

B.—Of Application for Execution.

230. When the holder of a decree desires to enforce it, he shall apply to the Court which passed the decree or to the officer (if any) appointed in this behalf, or if the decree has been sent under the provisions hereinbefore contained to another Court, then to such Court or to the proper officer thereof.

Ditto.

The Court may, in its discretion, refuse execution at the same time against the person and property of the judgment-debtor.

Where an application to execute a decree for the payment of money or delivery of other property has been made under this section and granted, no subsequent application to execute the same decree shall be granted after the expiration of twelve years from any of the following dates (namely):—

- (a) the date of the decree sought to be enforced or of the decree (if any) on appeal affirming the same, or
- (b) where the decree or any subsequent order directs any payment of money, or the delivery of any property, to be made at a certain date—the date of the default in making the payment or delivering the property in respect of which the applicant seeks to enforce the decree.

Nothing in this section shall prevent the Court from granting an application for execution of a decree after the expiration of the said term of twelve years, where the judgment-debtor has, by fraud or force, prevented the execution of the decree at some time within twelve years immediately before the date of the application.

Notwithstanding anything herein contained, proceeding may be taken to enforce any decree within three years after the passing of this Code, unless when the period prescribed for taking such proceedings by the law in force immediately before the passing of this Code shall have expired before the completion of the said three years.

An application, under Act VIII. of 1859, for execution of a decree, was rejected by the Judge on the ground that the judgment-creditor had withdrawn from the former application. This order was reversed on appeal, and the case was sent back for disposal on its merits. The Judge then held that Act X. of 1877, which had just come into force, applied, and, on the ground that the decree-holder had failed to get execution upon his former application, dismissed the petition. The Judge referred the case to the High Court upon the question whether he was, under the circumstances, at liberty to grant the application. Held that he was. The application should have been dealt with under the law which was in force at the time execution was sought. The effect of the provisions of Act X. of 1877, s. 230, considered.—Byraddi Subbareddi v. Dasappa Báu, I. L. R., 1 Mad. 403. [Oct. 2, 1878.]

THE words, "the last preceding application," in Act X. of 1877, s. 230, cl. 3, mean an application under that section, and not an application under Act VIII. of 1859.—Ram Kishou v. Sedhu, I. L. R., 2 All. 275. [April 21, 1879.]

THE concluding clause of the same section refers to the question of limitation, and not that of due diligence—Sohan Lal v. Karim Bakhsh, I. L. R., 2 All. 281. [April 22, 1879.]

THE transferee of a decree applied, while an application by the original holder of such decree to execute it was pending, to be allowed to execute it. The Court, in accordance with Act X. of 1877, s. 232, directed notice of the transferee's application to be given to the transferor and the judgment-debtor. The transferee failed to pay the court-fee leviable for the issue of such notice, and the Court dismissed his application. The transferee subsequently made a second application to be allowed to execute the decree. Held that such application could not be rejected, with reference to s. 230, on the ground that due diligence had not been used on the former application to procure complete satisfaction of the decree, because such application had not been granted, and, therefore, the question whether "on the last preceding application" due diligence was used to procure such satisfaction did not arise.—Sadik Ali Khan v. Muhammad Husain Khan, I. L. R., 2 All. 334. [June 4, 1879.]

No process can legally issue upon an application for the execution of a decree already barred by limitation, nor can an application made under such circumstances be a valid application, or one which, under the Act, would give the execution-creditor a fresh period of limitation. Unless it can be shown that such was the express intention of the Legislature, none of the provisions of the present Limitation Act (XV. of 1877) can be made applicable to any matter which, at the time when such Limitation Act came into force, had already become barred by the operation of the prior Limitation Act.—Shumbhooonath Shaha v. Guruchurn Lahiri, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 394. [April 29, 1880.]

ON the 1st June 1880, several decree-holders applied to the subordinate Civil Court of Patner for execution of their decrees. They had taken out execution several times previously—the date of their last preceding application being 1st June 1877. The Subordinate Judge was of opinion that the applications were barred under the last clause of s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877). On his referring the cases to the High Court, held that the applications were not barred, inasmuch as the previous applications for execution had not been made under s. 230 of Act X. of 1877, that Act not being then in force.—Anandráv Chimuji Avati v. Thakarchand, I. L. R., 5 Bom. 245. [Sep. 7, 1880.]

WHERE an application to execute a decree was made under s. 230 of the Code of Civil Procedure before the Amendment Act (XII. of 1879) came into force, but was not disposed of until after s. 230 was altered by that Act, held that the rule in Wright v. Hale (6 H. & N. 227) applied, and that the Act, as amended, was the law to be applied.—Pápa Sástriál v. Anuntaráma Sástriál, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 98. [Dec. 15, 1880.]

THE plaintiff obtained a decree in 1864. The first application for execution was made in September 1869 under s. 216 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act VIII. of 1859); and after notice to the defendant, as provided thereby, an order was made under that section for execution to issue. In September 1880, an application for execution was made under s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1877, which repealed Act VIII. of 1859. Held that the order after notice had the effect of reviving the decree within the meaning of art. 180, sch. 2, Act XV. of 1877, and therefore the decree was not barred by the law of limitation. An order for execution under the Code, made after notice to show cause, has, on the original side of the Court, the same effect as an award of execution in pursuance of a writ of sciri facias had under the procedure of the Supreme Court—i. e., it creates a revivor of the decree. The clause of s. 230 of Act X. of 1877, which prohibits a subsequent application for execution, only applies where the previous application has been made under that section, and not where such previous application has been made under Act VIII. of 1859.—Ashootosh Dutt v. Doorga Churn Chatterjee, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 504. [Dec. 20, 1880.]

UNDER the Civil Procedure Code (Act VIII. of 1859), an application to the Court to continue the attachment of immoveable property, but to stay the sale of it, held to be a proceeding to keep in force the decree.—Núkana v. Ramsámi, I. L. R., 2 Mad. 218. [Jan. 21, 1881.]

IN execution of a decree passed more than twelve years before the date of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), certain judgment-creditors applied for the attachment and sale of certain specified property belonging to their judgment-debtor, previous to the date on which the three years allowed for such execution under s. 230 would have expired. Subsequently, after the three years had elapsed, they filed a fresh application, praying that certain other property of their judgment-debtor might be attached and sold in lieu of that specified in their former application, and that the latter might be released. Held that execution of the decree was barred by limitation. Per Prinsep, J.—Under s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code, it was intended by the Legislature that a decree-holder, seeking to execute a decree passed more than twelve years before, should have one opportunity to execute that decree, and that, if he fails to satisfy it on that application, any further application becomes barred.—Sreenath Goocho v. Yusoof Khag, 1. L. R., 7 Cal. 575. [July 7, 1881.]

ON the 3rd June 1879, an application was made for execution of a decree passed in 1836, and upon that application certain property was attached. On the 23rd October following, the proceedings were struck off, an order, however, being made at the same time that the attachment should continue. On the 31st December 1880, the decree-holder applied that the property under attachment should be sold. The preceding application for execution previous to that of 3rd June 1879 was made on the 8th August 1877. It was objected that the proceedings upon the applications of the 31st December 1880, and 3rd June 1879, were barred under s. 230 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Held that these proceedings were not barred, inasmuch as the previous application had not been made under s. 230 of the Code. Anandray Chimuji Avati v. Thakurchand (1. L. R., 5 Bom. 245) followed. Held also that the application of 3rd December 1880 could not be treated as a fresh application for execution within the meaning of the 3rd paragraph of the section referred to.—Panaul Hug v. Kishen Mun Dabee, 9 C. L. R. 297. [July 8, 1881.]

AN application for execution of a decree, which was more than twelve years old, having been made on the 4th August 1880, under s. 230 of the Code of Civil Procedure, an order was made for the attachment of the moveable property of the judgment-debtor. No moveable property having been found, the Court was asked to attach his immoveable property, but, refusing to do so, struck off the proceedings. The application for execution having been renewed on the 13th September 1880, it was held that the former application for execution must be treated as having been granted within the meaning of s. 230 of the Code, and, consequently, that the further application was barred under that section, the decree being more than 12 years old.—Afrannessa Chowdhurani v. Sharafutullah, 9 C. L. R., 321. [Aug. 1, 1881.]

THE plaintiffs obtained a decree of the High Court of Bombay against the defendant on the 22nd February 1867. The defendant, after the passing of the decree against him, resided in Ahmedabad. In July, plaintiff assigned his decree to L, who in 1876 assigned it to M. From time to time M obtained orders for the execution of the said decree, but was always unable to proceed to execution. The last order for execution made by the High Court was on the 4th February 1879. In April 1879, the decree was transmitted to the Court at Ahmedabad for execution, and that Court, in September 1879, issued a warrant of arrest against the defendant, against the order for which the defendant appealed. The said order was confirmed by the High Court on 10th February 1880. In April 1881, the defendant was in Bombay, and M, the decree-holder, obtained a summons calling on defendant to show cause why the decree should not be executed against him. On 3rd May the summons was made absolute. The defendant appealed, and contended that the application for execution was barred by limitation under s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), which was to be read with cl. 180 of sch. 2 of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877). Held that the application was not barred. Cl. 180 of the second schedule of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877) was intended to be independent of s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code, and not to be in any way controlled by it. S. 230 does not apply to decrees made by the High Court.—Mayabhai Prembhai v. Tribhuvandas Jagjivandas, 1. L. R., 6 Bom. 258. [Aug. 6, 1881.]

THE date referred to in the last paragraph of s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) as the date of "the passing of" that Act held to be the 30th March 1877, the date when that Act received the assent of the Governor-General, and not the 1st October 1877, the date of the coming into force of that Act.—Damodardas Haridas v. Uttamchand Savichand, 1. L. R., 7 Bom. 214. [Aug. 15, 1881.]

UNDER s. 230 of Act X. of 1877, an application for execution is said to be 'granted,' when it is made regularly and formally. The expression 'granted' is equivalent to the expression 'admitted' as used in s. 245. Where, therefore, an application for execution under s. 230 of Act X. of 1877 is not 'granted,' a subsequent regular and formal application under the same section may be allowed if made within time.—Dewan Ali v. Soroshibala Dabee, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 297. [Nov. 2, 1881.]

THE parties to a decree presented a petition to the Court executing the decree, stating that it had been agreed between them that the amount of the decree should be paid by ten monthly instalments of Rs. 500 each. The Court made an order directing that such petition should be filed. Held that this order did not amount to one directing payment of money to be made at a certain date, which would give a fresh period of limitation under s. 230 (b) of the Civil Procedure Code.—Bal Chand v. Raghunath Das, I. L. R., 11 All. 155. [Dec. 10, 1881.]

PER Innes, J.—The right to execute decrees having been curtailed by s. 230 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1877, the provisions of the Limitation Act should be construed as far as possible so as to prevent the defeat of bona fide endeavours to secure the fruits of a decree once obtained.—Kunhi Mannan v. Seshagiri Bhakthan, I. L. R., 5 Mad. 141. [Mar. 6, 1882.]

WHERE an application to execute a decree of 1862 was made under s. 230 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1877, on the 14th of December 1877, and a notice was issued to the judgment-debtor under s. 218, but no further steps were taken, held that a subsequent application made within three years from that date was not affected by the twelve years' rule, as the last preceding application had not been granted within the meaning of s. 230.—Chengaya v. Appasami, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 172. [Aug. 4, 1882.]

AFTER a sale of land in execution of a decree, and before its confirmation, the judgment-debtor cannot object to the validity of the sale on the ground that the execution of the decree is barred by the provisions of s. 230 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1877.—Gangáthara v. Rathakáji, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 237. [Aug. 24, 1882.]

AN order under s. 230 of Act X. of 1877 by a Court executing a decree refusing an application to execute it at the same time against the person and property of the judgment-debtor, being a "decree" under s. 2 of the Act, an appeal lies against such order, and the Appellate Court is bound to consider whether the lower Court has properly exercised the discretion vested in it by s. 230 of that Act.—Chena Pemáji v. Ghelabháí Nárandás, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 301. [Jan. 29, 1883.]

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR, who, though able to pay his judgment-debt, dishonestly evades payment for more than twelve years by eluding service of warrants and making applications to the Court (which had the effect for the time of staying execution), is guilty of fraud within the meaning of s. 230 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Annámalai v. Rangasámi, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 355. [April 10, 1883.]

THE holder of a decree applied for execution under s. 230 of Act X. of 1877, and the application was granted. Within three years after the passing of Act XIV. of 1882, by which Act X. of 1877 was repealed, he applied, for the first time, under s. 230 of the former Act, for execution of the decree. At the time this application was made more than twelve years had elapsed from the date of the decree. Held by Straight, Brodhurst, and Tyrrell, JJ., that the application might be granted, it being the first made under s. 230 of Act XIV. of 1882, and the first made after the expiration of twelve years from the date of the decree, and not being barred by the last paragraph of s. 230 of that Act, read in conjunction with the third paragraph of s. 230 of Act X. of 1877, the "law in force" mentioned in the last paragraph of s. 230 of Act XIV. of 1882 referring to the law of limitation in force at the time the Act was passed, and not to the third paragraph of s. 230 of Act X. of 1877. Held by Stuart, C.J., and Oldfield, J., that the application should not be granted, the effect of the last paragraph of s. 230 of Act XIV. of 1882 being to bar any proceedings to enforce a decree under that Act which would have been barred under s. 230 of Act X. of 1877, if taken thereunder, on the ground that the period of twelve years had elapsed from the dates specified in that section.—Musharruf Begam v. Ghalib Ali, I. L. R., 6 All. 189. [Jan. 29, 1884.]

A DECREE was obtained on the 10th July 1858, and applications to execute it were made in June 1862 and January 1866. The last application prior to the coming into operation of the Civil Procedure Code of 1877 was on the 10th January 1876. This proceeding was struck off. The decree-holder, on the 13th June 1879, again applied for execution: the decree was transferred to S for execution, where, on objection that it was more than twelve years old, and therefore barred by s. 230 of Act X. of 1877, the execution-proceedings were again struck off on the 17th January 1880. This order was appealed against, and eventually, on the 25th April 1881, the application was re-admitted. In June 1881, an application was made to the S Court for transfer of the case for execution to D, which was granted, and the case transferred; but no steps having been taken by the decree-holder in the D Court, it was struck off by that Court on the 19th August 1881. On the 4th March 1882 (the judgment-debtor having died meanwhile) an application was made to the D Court to restore the proceedings for execution against his representative. Notices were issued, and the 2nd June was eventually fixed for the hearing. On that day no one was present on behalf of the decree-holder (whose pleader had died in the meantime), and the case was again struck off. On the 11th July 1882, application was made to restore the proceedings, notices were issued, and a day fixed for hearing; and after numerous adjournments the objections of the judgment-debtor were overruled on the 5th March 1883, and execution of the decree granted. On appeal the Judge found that the execution-proceedings had been continuous throughout, and that there had been no unreasonable delay in the prosecution of the execution-proceedings. Held that execution of the decree was not barred by s. 230 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The rights of the parties to execution-proceedings are not affected in any way by the case being "struck off" by the Court, there being no provision in the Civil Procedure Code for such a course. Baroda Soondari Dabia v. Fergusson (11 C. L. R. 17) followed. The only proper mode of dealing with a case, whether a regular suit or a miscellaneous proceeding, when the parties do not appear, is to dismiss it. A case so dismissed can be restored on application under s. 108, which is by s. 647 applicable as well to execution-proceedings as to suits and appeals.—Biswa Sonan Chunder Gossyamy v. Binanda Chunder Dibingar Adhikar Gossyamy, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 416. [Feb. 14, 1884.]

S. 230 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, does not affect the period of limitation prescribed by art 180 of sch. 2 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877.—Ganapathi v. Balasundara, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 540. [Mar. 14, 1884.]

WHERE an application was made under s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1877, as amended by Act XII. of 1879, for execution of a decree more than twelve years old, and the application was granted, held that a subsequent application for execution of the decree, under s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882, should have been refused, since the decree had been once allowed the benefit of the three years' grace under the last paragraph of s. 230 of the Code of 1877, and then became dead or unexecutable. Held that there is nothing in the Code of 1882 to justify the conclusion that it was intended to revive decrees which had become dead before it became law, and that here the decree-holder's right having already become dead before the enactment of the present Code, the passing of that Code could not bring that right into existence again. Musharraff Begam Ali v. Ghaliib Ali (I. L. R., 6 All. 189) distinguished.—Bhawani Das v. Daulat Ram, I. L. R., 6 All. 388. [May 22, 1884.]

A DECREE of a District Court dated 5th October 1863, declared the plaintiff to be a hereditary deputy *vatan*dār of a certain deshpande vatan vested in the ancestors of the defendant as hereditary *vatan*dārs, and that the plaintiff, as such deputy, was entitled to receive a certain sum annually out of the income of the vatan. The decree did not explicitly deal with the claim to future payments then set up by the plaintiff as hereditary deputy *vatan*dār. The plaintiff received moneys from time to time under the decree until 1875, but he neglected to have himself registered as a representative *vatan*dār under Bombay Act III. of 1874, s. 56. In 1875 he made a claim for certain arrears of the allowance which he alleged to be due under the decree, and he attached certain moneys out of the income of the defendant's vatan. The Collector issued a certificate under s. 10 of the Vatandārs' Act (III. of 1874) for the removal of the attachment, and the attachment was accordingly removed by the Subordinate Judge. The plaintiff appealed from the order of removal, but the Appellate Court confirmed that order. On second appeal to the High Court, it was held on 23rd June 1879 that the lower Courts were right in raising the attachment; that the Civil Courts had no jurisdiction to register the plaintiff as a representative *vatan*dār, and that the Collector was the proper authority to be referred to. Thereupon the plaintiff applied to the Collector to cancel the certificate which had removed the attachment, and to register him as a representative *vatan*dār. The Collector rejected the plaintiff's application on 31st March 1881. In 1881 the plaintiff presented a fresh darkhāst to attach the same vatan property in virtue of the said decree of 1863, but the application was rejected as res judicata by both the lower Courts. They held that the certificate of the Collector, which remained uncanceled, operated as a bar. On second appeal to the High Court, held, reversing the order of the lower Courts, that the decree was one capable of execution. Held, as regards the Collector's certificate, that under s. 10 of the Vatandārs' Act (Bombay) III. of 1874 the certificate was exhausted in operating on the execution which it stopped, and that the lower Court ought to have dealt with the case apart from that certificate.—Gopal Hanmant Deshka v. Kondo Kāshinath, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 328. [Dec. 16, 1884.]

A OBTAINED a decree against B in June 1879, and in execution thereof some time in 1879 attached certain moneys in Court which belonged to his judgment-debtor, and obtained an order for payment out to him. Before receiving payment A died, and the execution-proceedings were struck off on the 31st January 1880. On the 14th June 1880, and on the 22nd June 1881, the widow of A, who had taken out probate, applied to withdraw this money from Court, and on the 1st of April 1882 applied for a copy of the decree obtained by A, for the purposes of execution. At the time of these three applications the widow had not applied for substitution of her name on the record in the place of her deceased husband. On the 5th January 1884 the widow applied to have her name substituted on the record, and for execution. Held that the application was barred, as the previous applications were not, under the circumstances, steps in aid of execution.—Gunga Pershad Bhoomick v. Dabi Suhdarj Dabea, 1. L. R., 11 Cal. 227. [Jan. 29, 1885.]

In 1868 a decree was obtained for Rs. 1,100, which provided that the amount should be paid in instalments, the first instalment being Rs. 200, to be paid at the end of the first year, and that the other instalments should be Rs. 100 at the end of each subsequent year, and that in the event of failure to carry this out, and 2½ months after the falling due of the instalment, the whole amount should be exigible in a lump sum with interest at 8 annas per cent. per mensem. In 1877, the decree-holder applied for execution of the decree, asserting that Rs. 600 had been paid up to that time by five instalments, one of Rs. 200, and four of Rs. 100 each, and that default had been made in payment of the fifth instalment of Rs. 100, and he asked to recover the whole amount due on the decree. No order was passed on this application, and eventually the case was struck off. In 1880, the decree-holder again applied for execution of the decree, upon the same grounds as those upon which the previous application was based. Notice was issued and served, and a warrant issued for the arrest of the judgment-debtor, but eventually the case was struck off. In 1883, the decree-holder, on the same grounds, made another application for execution. It was contended by the judgment-debtor that execution was barred by s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code, inasmuch as no instalments had been paid, and even if they had been paid, they could not be recognized, not having been certified. Held that the proper time from which to reckon the limitation of twelve years was the fifth year from the date of the bond, the whole claim from the beginning and the order passed in 1880 having gone upon that basis; that the Court could not go behind that order; and that consequently the decree-holder was within time, and might take out execution.—Kanji Mal v. Kanbia Lal, 1. L. R., 7 All. 373. [Feb. 19, 1885.]

THE judgment-debtor, on seeing the Court's bailiff approach his house to attach his property, left the verandah, went inside the house, chained the door, and refused to open it when called on to do so by the bailiff. Held that the conduct of the judgment-debtor amounted to a prevention by fraud of the execution of the decree within the meaning of s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882).—Bhagn Jetha v. Malek Bawa-sahib, 1. L. R., 9 Bom. 318. [Feb. 23, 1885.]

WHERE a decree-holder died without taking out execution of his decree, and, two days after his death, his pleader made an application for execution on his behalf, this being the first application of the kind, held that, inasmuch as the authority of a pleader ceases at the moment of his client's death, the application was invalid, and was not such an application or step in aid of execution of the decree as could save a subsequent application for execution by the decree-holder's heirs from being barred by limitation.—Kallu v. Muhammad Abdul Ghani, 1. L. R., 7 All. 564. [Mar. 16, 1885.]

R, IN a suit against S and other persons, obtained a decree on the 24th December 1878, S being exempted from the decree, and being awarded costs against the plaintiff. In executing his decree, R, on the 16th June 1880, sought to set-off the costs awarded to S against the amount due to himself. On the 6th August 1880, S preferred objections to this course. On the 19th July 1883, S applied for execution of his decree for costs. Held that the application was barred by limitation, inasmuch as art. 179 (4) of the Limitation Act requires that the decree-holder should make a direct and independent application for execution on his own account, and it was not sufficient to satisfy the requirements of the law to offer objections under the circumstances under which they were offered in the present case.—Shib Lal v. Radha Kishen, 1. L. R., 7 All. 898. [July 18, 1885.]

ON 15th February 1872, the plaintiff obtained against the defendant a decree for possession upon his mortgage, and, in attempting to take possession, was obstructed by Naro, another mortgagee of the defendant, whereupon the plaintiff applied for removal of the obstruction, but his application was rejected, on the ground that Naro was in possession as mortgagee, and that the plaintiff was not entitled to possession until Naro's mortgage was redeemed. The plaintiff did not apply for execution any further. In 1884 the defendant paid off Naro's mortgage, and on 27th August 1885 the plaintiff presented an application for execution of his decree of 1872. On reference to the High Court, held that the execution of the decree was barred, no application for execution having been made since 1873. The previous application for execution not having been made under s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XV. of 1882), the general law of limitation, as laid down in art. 179 of Act XV. of 1877, governed the case.—Annaji Apaji v. Ramji Jivaji, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 348. [Feb. 4, 1886.]

UNDER s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code, after a decree is twelve years old, there is a prohibition against its being executed more than once, i.e., an application for execution should not be granted if a previous application has been allowed under the provisions of that section. The mere filing of a petition with the result that the application contained in it is subsequently struck off, is not "granting" an application within the meaning of s. 230 of the Code, and ss. 245, 248, and 249, show that there is a broad distinction between admitting an application for the purpose of issuing notice to the other side and hearing the objections that may be urged, and a decision of the Court as provided in s. 249. In 1865 a decree was passed for a sum of money payable by yearly instalments for a period of sixteen years. Down to March 1877 various amounts were paid on account of the decree. In that month an application was made for execution of the decree, the result being an arrangement for liquidation of the amount then due, which was confirmed by the Court. A second application for execution was made on the 9th March 1881, the decree then being more than twelve years old. All that was done with reference to this application was that notice to appear was issued to the judgment-debtor's representatives, and subsequently a petition was filed notifying that an arrangement had been effected, under which a certain sum had been paid by one of the said representatives in satisfaction of the claim against him, and that the other had agreed to pay the balance by yearly instalments. Upon this, the application for execution was struck off. On the 5th March 1883, another application for execution was made, notice to appear was issued, and after this notice a petition was put in intimating that an arrangement had been come to, and praying that execution might be postponed, whereupon the application was struck off. Again, on the 31st March 1884, the decree-holder applied once more for execution of the decree. Held that neither the previous application of the 9th March 1881, nor that of the 5th March 1883, could properly be said to have been "granted" within the meaning of s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code, and under these circumstances, the decree, though twelve years old and upwards, was not barred by that section, and the application for execution should be allowed.—Paraga Kuar v. Bhagwan Din, I. L. R., 8 All. 301. [May 5, 1886.]

THE holder of a decree, bearing date the 15th June 1872, applied for execution thereof on the 9th February 1885, the previous application being dated the 27th November 1883. Held that the application for execution was not barred by s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code. Musharrat Begam v. Ghalib Ali (I. L. R., 6 All. 189) followed. Goluck Chandru Mytee v. Harapriah Debi (I. L. R., 12 Cal. 559), Bhawani Das v. Daulat Ram (I. L. R., 6 All. 388), and Sreenath Gooloo v. Yussoof Khan (I. L. R., 7 All. 556), referred to. Tufail Ahmad v. Sadhu Saran Singh (Weekly Notes, 1885, p. 193), discussed and dissented from by Mahmood, J. Per Mahmood, J.—The rule of construction being that a limited meaning can only be given to general words in a statute where the statute itself justifies such limitation, the words "any decree" in the proviso to s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code must not be construed as confined to such decrees as would be barred on the date of the Code coming into force, inasmuch as no reason for so restricting the meaning of those words can be found in the Code or is suggested by the legislative policy upon which clauses such as the proviso in question are based. This policy is to prevent a sudden disturbance of existing rights in consequence of new legislation; but it is beyond its object and scope to revive rights or remedies which have already expired before the new Act comes into operation; and although the Legislature may revive such rights or remedies, it can only do so by express words to that effect.—Jokhu Ram v. Ram Din, I. L. R., 8 All. 419. [May 14, 1886.]

A DECREE, passed in April 1872, was kept alive by various applications for execution up to 1883. In February and December of that year two such applications were made, but the proceedings on both occasions terminated in the applications being struck off without any money being realized under the decree. In November 1884, the decree-holder again applied for execution, the application being the first made after the decree had become twelve years old, and being made within three years from the passing of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882. Held that the application must be entertained in accordance with the ruling of the Full Bench in Musharrat Begam v. Ghalib Ali (I. L. R., 6 All. 189). Tufail Ahmad v. Sadhu Saran Singh (Weekly Notes, 1885, p. 193) dissented from. Jokhu Ram v. Ram Din (I. L. R., 8 All. 419) referred to. Per Mahmood, J., that the previous execution-proceedings, initiated by the applications of February and December

1883, having terminated in those applications being struck off, it could not be said that the applications were 'granted' within the meaning of s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code. Paraga Kuar v. Bhagwan Din (I. L. R., 8 All. 301) referred to.—Ramadhar v. Ram Dayal, I. L. R., 8 All. 536. [July 1, 1886.]

IN s. 230 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, the words "law in force" include the Civil Procedure Code, 1877, as well as the Limitation Act then in force. Held, therefore, where an application for execution of a decree of 1872 had been made and granted in January 1882, and under s. 230 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1877, further execution became barred, before the date on which the Civil Procedure Code, 1882, came into force, that no application within three years from such date could be granted under s. 230 of that Code.—Kollu Shektati v. Manjaya, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 454. [July 30, 1886.]

231. If a decree has been passed jointly in favour of more persons than one, any one or more of such persons, or his or their representatives, may apply for the execution of the whole decree for the benefit of them all, or where any of them has died, for the benefit of the survivors and the representative in interest of the deceased.

If the Court sees sufficient cause for allowing the decree to be executed on an application so made, it shall pass such order as it deems necessary for protecting the interests of the persons who have not joined in the application.

A JOINT-DECREE was passed in favour of A and B, and A subsequently applied for execution alone, alleging that B would not join with him in the application. The judgment-debtor stated, and B admitted, that more than half of the decretal money had been paid to the latter (out of Court), but the Court disbelieved the statement, and ordered execution to issue for the full amount of the decree. Held that the Court should, under s. 207 of Act VIII. of 1859, have allowed execution for half the amount of the decree only.—Brojeswari Chowdhraee v. Tripoora Sounderec Debi, 3 C. L. R. 513. [June 20, 1878.]

THE representative of one of several decree-holders conveyed his interest in the decree to A. Some time afterwards A filed a petition in Court, stating that the decree had been satisfied out of Court, and the case was thereupon struck out as far as he was concerned. Subsequently the other decree-holders applied for execution of their share of the decree, but it was objected that the decree had already been satisfied by payment to A. Held that the other decree-holders were entitled to proceed with execution for the amount of their share, a joint decree-holder having no power to give a discharge out of Court to a judgment-debtor for more than his own share in the decree.—Musammatt Bibee Budhun v. Musammatt Hafezah and others, 4 C. L. R. 70. [Mar. 24, 1879.]

THE circumstance that the petition of one of several decree-holders in applying for execution requires amendment because of the list of property being incomplete, is no ground for declaring such application to be superseded by a later application made before the completion of the necessary amendment by another co-decree-holder for execution. Two executions of the same decree, so far as attachment of different properties of the judgment-debtor is concerned, may proceed simultaneously, though ordinarily the sales in execution should not take place simultaneously.—Sheikh Ahmed Chowdhry v. Shahzada Khatoon, 7 C. L. R. 537. [Sep. 10, 1880.]

ALTHOUGH the Civil Procedure Code does not allow one of several decree-holders to apply for the partial execution of a joint-decree, yet an application by one of such decree-holders for execution of the decree in respect of so much of the relief granted to all as he considers appertains to him individually may keep in force the decree as being an application according to law.—Ponnampilath Parapravan Kuthath Haji v. Ponnampilath Parapravan Bavotti Hiji, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 79. [Oct. 11, 1880.]

A DECREE passed jointly in favour of more persons than one can only be legally executed as a whole for the benefit of all the decree-holders, and not partially to the extent of the interest of each individual decree-holder. Held, therefore, where one of two persons in whose favour a decree for money had been passed jointly applied, on the 27th April 1880, for execution of a moiety of such decree, and the other of such persons made a similar application on the 30th April 1880, that such applications, not being in accordance with law, were not sufficient to keep the decree in force. Also that the illegality of such applications could not be cured by a subsequent amended application for the execution of the decree as a whole preferred after the period of limitation had expired.—Collector of Shabjahanpur v. Surjan Singh, I. L. R., 4 All. 72. [July 13, 1891.]

A JOINT-DECREE cannot be executed by one of the several joint holders in respect only of his share of the decree. Ram Antar v. Ajndhia Singh (I. L. R., 1 All. 231), The Collector of Shahjahanpur v. Surjan Singh (I. L. R., 4 All. 72), and Haro Sanker Sandyal v. Tara Chandra Bhattacharjee (3 B. L. R. 114), followed. When, by operation of law, one of several joint judgment debtors acquires the position of the decree-holder in respect of the whole judgment-debt, the effect is to extinguish the liability of the other judgment-debtors, and the decree cannot be executed against them. But when one of them so acquires only a partial interest in the decree, the effect is not to extinguish the entire judgment-debt, but so much only of it as such judgment-debtor has so acquired. Wise v. Abdool Ali (7 W. R. 136), Pogose v. Fukarooddeen Mahomed Ahsan (25 W. R. 343), Degumbures Dabee v. Soroop Chunder Hazra (9 W. R. 230), and Khoshallee v. Nund Lall (N. W. P. H. C. R. 1874, p. 1), referred to. Held, therefore, where one of several joint decree-holders applied for execution in respect of his own share only, and the joint judgment-debtors under the decree had inherited the right therein of one of the joint decree-holders, that the application was contrary to law; that so much of the judgment-debt as had devolved upon such persons had been extinguished; and that application should have been made for execution in respect of the entire unextinguished portion of the judgment-debt. Brojeswari Chowdharance v. Tripoora Soonderee Debi (3 C. L. R. 513) and Musammam Bibee Bndhun v. Musammam Hafezali (4 C. L. R. 70) followed.—Banarsi Das v. Maharani Kuar, I. L. R., 5 All. 27. [July 4, 1882.]

ON an application for execution for the full amount due under a decree by some of several joint decree-holders, the judgment-debtor objected to execution being granted for the full amount of the decree on the ground that he had already paid off a large portion of the money due under the decree to B, one of the joint decree-holders. The payment was made out of Court, but B who claimed to be entitled to a 12½-anna share in the decree, certified the payment in the manner prescribed by s. 255 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), and represented that his claim had been satisfied in full. The other joint decree-holders denied B's right to the 12½-anna share claimed by him, and refused to recognise the payment said to have been made to him. The lower Court disallowed the objection, and granted execution for the full amount of the decree. Held that, regard being had to the provisions of the General Clauses' Act (I. of 1868), the word "decree-holder" in s. 231 of Act XIV. of 1882 should be read in the plural, and looking at the provisions of s. 231 of the later Act the Court ought not to recognise payments made out of Court, unless made and certified for the benefit of all the joint decree-holders of any portion of the decree in excess of that to which the decree-holder so paid is undisputedly entitled. Held also that a judgment-debtor is entitled to credit for any sum paid bona fide to one of several joint decree-holders, and duly certified to the Court by the latter, and that the other joint decree-holders cannot execute the decree for more than their own share. Held further that in this case the lower Court was wrong in wholly ignoring the payment certified by the decree-holder B, and that it should have determined, first, whether the payment to B was a fraud on the other joint decree-holders; and, secondly, what amount the latter were entitled to have out of the whole decree, the latter being the main question between the applicants for execution and the judgment-debtor, and as such clearly within the scope of s. 214 of the Civil Procedure Code. Ranee Nyna Kooner v. Doolee Chund (22 W. R. 77), Brojeswari Chowdharance v. Tripoora Soonderee Debi (3 C. L. R. 513), and Mahana Chandra Roy v. Pyari Mohan Chowdry (2 B. L. R. Ap. 43).—Tarruck Chunder Bhattacharjee v. Divendro Nath Sanyal, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 331. [April 5, 1883.]

THE provisions of s. 231 of the Civil Procedure Code are not applicable to the case of joint decree-holders, the execution of whose decree is conditional on their joint performance of a particular act.—Farzand Ali v. Abdullah, I. L. R., 6 All. 69. [Aug. 21, 1883.]

232. If a decree be transferred by assignment in writing, or by operation of law, from the decree-holder to any other person, the transferee may apply for its execution to the Court which passed it; and, if that Court thinks fit, the decree may be executed in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as if the application were made by such decree-holder :

Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

Provided as follows :—

(a) where the decree has been transferred by assignment, notice in written of such application shall be given to the transferor and the judgment-debtor, and the decree shall not be executed until the Court has heard their objections (if any) to such execution :

(b) where a decree for money against several persons has been transferred to one of them, it shall not be executed against the others.

To enable the heir of a deceased person to apply, under s. 208 of Act VIII. of 1859, for the execution of a decree, held by such person, a certificate under Act XXVII. of 1860 is not indispensable.—Karam Ali v. Halima, I. L. R., 1 All. 686. [June 24, 1878.]

WHERE a decree was sent to a Court for execution, and was subsequently transferred by assignment, and the transferee applied for the execution of the decree to the Court to which the decree was sent for execution, Held that such application should be made, not to such Court, but to the Court which passed the decree.—Kadir Bakhsh v. Alahi Bakhsh, I. L. R., 2 All. 283. [April 23, 1879.]

THE transferee of a decree applied, while an application by the original holder of such decree to execute it was pending, to be allowed to execute it. The Court, in accordance with Act X. of 1877, s. 232, directed notice of the transferee's application to be given to the transferor and the judgment-debtor. The transferee failed to pay the court-fee leviable for the issue of such notice, and the Court dismissed his application. The transferee subsequently made a second application to be allowed to execute the decree. Held that such application could not be rejected, with reference to s. 230, on the ground that due diligence had not been used on the former application to procure complete satisfaction of the decree, because such application had not been granted, and therefore the question whether "on the last preceding application" due diligence was used to procure such satisfaction did not arise.—Sadik Ali Khan v. Muhammad Husain Khan, I. L. R., 2 All. 384. [June 4, 1879.]

THE transferee of a decree is not entitled to have execution as of right like the original decree-holder; if, however, the transfer be by assignment, and in writing, s. 232 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1892) enables the transferee to apply for, and the Court to proceed to, execution in the manner therein provided.—Javermal Hirachand v. Umaji, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 179. [Nov. 28, 1884.]

THE transferee of a decree for costs, associating with him the transferor, made an application under s. 232 of the Civil Procedure Code to be allowed to execute the decree. The application was opposed by the judgment-debtor, and was rejected, and the Court referred the transferee to a regular suit. After taking various proceedings ineffectually, he instituted a suit for the recovery of the sum to which he was entitled as costs under the decree transferred to him. Held that the plaintiff, as the holder of the decree by assignment, could only recover the amount under it by executing the decree, and not by a separate suit; but that he was entitled to have a decree declaring that the assignment to him of the decree-holder's rights under the decree was valid, and gave him a right to execute it, and that the Court's order under s. 232, which disallowed the execution, was an improper one, a suit for this relief being maintainable; for, there being no appeal from orders under s. 232, there would otherwise be no remedy, and that, looking at the point and the issues on which the parties were divided, and the fact that the Court which refused the plaintiff's application for execution referred him to a regular suit, this relief might properly be given in the present suit. Per Mahmood, J., that the suit was maintainable, inasmuch as the present plaintiff never having been accepted on the record as holder of the decree, the questions which were disposed of by the Court executing the decree, as between the plaintiff and the judgment-debtor, could not be regarded as questions within s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code.—Ram Bakhsh v. Panna Lal, I. L. R., 7 All. 457. [Mar. 5, 1885.]

CERTAIN property was mortgaged by A to B. Subsequently, this property was purchased by C at a sale held in execution of a decree obtained by a third person against A. B then brought a suit on his mortgage-bond against A and C, and obtained a decree for the sale of the mortgaged properties, and also a personal decree against A; B assigned his rights under this decree to C, who applied for execution under s. 232 of the Code. A objected to execution issuing, relying on proviso b to s. 232. Held that proviso b to s. 232 applies only to decrees for money personally due by two or more persons; and that the decree obtained by B against A and C not being a personal decree against C (he having been made a defendant only by reason that he had purchased the mortgaged property subject to the mortgage-debt), C, as assignee of B, was entitled to take out execution.—Lalla Bhagun Persad v. Holloway, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 393. [Mar. 6, 1885.]

A DECREE for damages and costs having been obtained against P and C, A, to whom P was indebted, and was about to assign property as security, in order to prevent P being adjudicated an insolvent, and with a view to execute the decree against C if possible, purchased the decree. A applied, under s. 232 of the Code of Civil Procedure, for leave to execute the decree. This application was rejected by Kernan, J., on the ground that the decree was certain to be executed against C, and not against P, under whose orders and for whose benefit C acted when he infringed the right of, and became liable in damages to, the plaintiff in the suit. Held, on appeal, that the benefit likely to be gained by P by this transaction was no sufficient ground for refusing leave to A to execute the decree.—Agra Bank v. Cripps, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 455. [April 27, 1885.]

THREE out of six decree-holders sold their share in the decree to A, who thereafter made an application to the Court under s. 232 of the Code of Civil Procedure. This application was dismissed on the ground that A's purchase was made benami for some of the judgment-debtors. In a subsequent suit brought by A and the persons who were said to be the real purchasers, it was contended that a separate suit was barred under the provisions of s. 244, cl. c, of the Code of Civil Procedure. Held that A was not a party to the suit in which the decree was passed, nor the representative of any such party, and that the suit was not barred.—Halodhar Shaha v. Harogobind Das Koiburto, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 105. [July 4, 1885.]

ON an application under s. 232 of the Civil Procedure Code by the purchaser of a decree to be allowed to execute it, two of the judgment-debtors objected that the purchase was benami for the other judgment-debtor, and that they had paid off the decree to the original decree-holder. The Munsif found both objections against them, and allowed the purchaser to execute the decree. Held that the question was one between the parties to the suit or their representatives relating to the execution, discharge, or satisfaction of the decree, and that the decision of that question was a decree under ss. 2 and 244 of the Code, and therefore appealable, and a second appeal lay therefrom to the High Court.—Afzal v. Ram Kumar Bhudra, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 610. [Mar. 5, 1886.]

A IN 1839 obtained a decree against B, a sardār, in the Court of the Agent for Sardars. The decree was executed in the Agent's Court until B's death in 1868. B's status as a sardār under the exclusive jurisdiction of the Agent did not descend to his sons, and the decree was transferred to the Court of the First-class Subordinate Judge at Ahmednagar for execution. Various objections were taken to the execution of the decree by that Court, but none on the ground that the Agent's decree could not be executed by a mere transfer to an ordinary Civil Court. The case went up twice to the High Court, under whose orders the execution was for several years continued in favour of A's representatives against the estate of B's sons. In 1885 one of A's representatives assigned his interest under the decree to C and D. Thereupon the transferees, C and D, applied to the First-class Subordinate Judge at Ahmednagar to have their names substituted in the place of the transferor in the execution-proceedings. The Subordinate Judge rejected this application, on the ground that he could not recognise the transfer of the decree either under s. 372 or s. 232 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882). He also found that execution had been going on for several years contrary to the ruling in Khusáldás v. Sakháram Rámchandra (12 Bom. H. R. 212), which laid down that the Agent's decree could not be executed by a mere transfer to an ordinary Court—the remedy in such cases being by a suit on the decree. On this ground, also, he refused to recognise the transfer of the decree. Held, reversing the order of the lower Court, that the assignment of the decree-holder's rights to execution in this case was one approved by the law as contained in s. 232 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882). The transferees of a decree gains by the transfer the rights of the transferor. Held, also, that though the execution-proceedings in this case had been for many years irregularly conducted by a mere transfer of the Agent's decree to an ordinary Civil Court, still as the Court which carried on the execution had jurisdiction to grant the same relief if a suit had been brought upon the decree, the irregularity, having been acquiesced in, did not vitiate the former proceedings in execution. Where jurisdiction over the subject-matter exists, requiring only to be invoked in the right way, the party who has invited or allowed the Court to exercise it in a wrong way cannot afterwards challenge the legality of the proceedings due to his own invitation or negligence. But if there is no jurisdiction over the subject-matter, the acquiescence of the parties concerned cannot create it. Where a decree is one of continuous operation, taking effect as each year furnishes proceeds for its satisfaction, it must be executed each year according to the law of procedure then in force.—Vishnu Sakháram Nagarkar v. Krishnarao Malhar, I. L. R., 11. Bom. 153. [July 29, 1886.]

THE words of § 28 of the Registration Act (III. of 1877), "some portion of the property" should not be read as meaning some substantial portion. Sheo Dayal Mal v. Hari Ram (I. L. R., 7 All. 590) dissented from. The holders of a decree for the sale of mortgaged property transferred the same to M by instruments which were registered at a place where a small portion only of the property was situate. Subsequently M transferred the decree to other persons, and the co-transferees applied, under s. 232 of the Civil Procedure Code, to have their names substituted for those of the original decree-holders. The judgment-debtor opposed the application on the grounds that M's name had not been substituted for the names of the original decree-holders who had transferred to him, and that the transfers to M were inoperative, as the instruments of transfer had not been registered at the place where the substantial portion of the mortgaged property was situate in accordance with s. 28 of the Registration Act (III. of 1877). It appeared that no notice had been issued to M, under s. 232 of the Civil Procedure Code, that he was dead, and that his legal representatives had not been cited as required by law. The application was allowed by the Courts below. Held that the matter involved questions arising between the parties to the decree or their representatives, within the meaning of s. 241 (c) of the Code, and that the order allowing the application was therefore a decree within the definition of s. 2, and was appealable as such. Held that, even assuming that the judgment-debtor had a locus standi to raise the objection that notice had not been issued to the applicant's transferor, he had no possible interest in the question, and could not be prejudiced by the passing of the order; that it was not necessary to cite the representatives of the transferor; and that the order not being one upon which execution of the decree could issue, but merely for a transfer of name, the objection that the transferor had not been cited under s. 232 was not a substantial one. Held that the objection in reference to s. 28 of the Registration Act could only properly be raised between the transferor and the transferee, and not by the judgment-debtor, and moreover had no force. Held that it could not be said that where a decree has been assigned by one assignor to another, the substitution of his name on the record in lieu of that of the original decree-holder was a condition precedent to the assignor's passing title under the assignment.—Gulzari Lal v. Daya Ram, 1 L. R., 9 All. 46. [Oct. 21, 1886.]

A HOLDER of a certificate of administration granted under s. 7 of Reg. VIII. of 1827 is a transferee by law of a decree obtained by the deceased within the meaning of s. 232 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1859), and is competent to apply for execution of such a decree.—Khauderav Rayajirav v. Ganesh Shastri, 1 L. R., 11 Bom. 368. [Jan. 27, 1887.]

Such representative shall be liable only to the extent of the property of the deceased which has come to his hands, and has not been duly disposed of; and for the purpose of ascertaining such liability, the Court executing the decree may, of its own motion, or on the application of the decree-holder, compel the said representative to produce such accounts as it thinks fit.

WHERE an application is made and granted under s. 210, Act VIII. of 1859, and property is attached which is claimed by the heir as his self-acquired property, the Court should proceed under s. 233 without requiring any fresh application to be made under that section.—Ram Chand Chuckerbutty v. Madhub Narain Roy, 1 C. L. R. 359. [Dec. 6, 1877.]

A RIGHT of second appeal, where it existed prior to Act X. of 1877, now exists in the case of any proceedings in execution which were commenced prior to, and were still pending on, the 1st of October 1877. An order was made under s. 210 of Act VIII. of 1859, making the legal representatives of a deceased judgment-debtor parties to a suit in execution of a decree obtained against the deceased in his lifetime. Subsequently the decree-holder discovered that certain property which he claimed to be the property of the deceased was in the possession of a third person, C; and he applied to have C's name put upon the record, and to be allowed to execute the decree against him. Held that the Court had no power to put C's name on the record.—Synd Nadir Hossain v. Biseen Chand Passarat, 3 C. L. R. 437. [June 24, 1878.]

A HINDU widow instituted a suit to recover possession of certain property belonging to her deceased husband, and that suit was dismissed with costs. The widow having died before execution for the costs was taken out, the decree-holder sought to take out execution against the next heirs of the late widow's deceased husband. Held that the fact that the widow did not in her suit seek to recover any interest personal to herself, but that she contracted the judgment-debt in the effort to recover a portion of her husband's estate, to which, in its entirety, the next heirs of her late husband had succeeded, was sufficient to make the whole estate liable, and would entitle the decree-holder to satisfy his decree against "the legal representatives" of the late widow's husband, under s. 234 of Act X. of 1877. In a decree against a Hindu widow, it should be stated whether the decree is a personal decree, or one against her as representing her deceased husband. — Ramkishore Chuckerbutty v. Kallykanto Chuckerbutty, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 479. [Dec. 3, 1880.]

As the entire interest in an impartible zamindari passes upon the death of the father to the son, there is nothing in the estate itself which can be attached as assets of a father under a decree against him, or which can be made available in execution of the decree against his son as his representative. Though a son is bound, under Hindu law, to pay his father's just debts from any property he may possess, yet, when he is made a party to a decree as representative of his deceased father for the purpose of executing it, his liability is limited to the amount of assets of the deceased which may have come to his hands and has not been duly disposed of. An appeal lies from an ex-parte order directing attachment in execution of a decree. — Sangili Virajandia Chinnathambiar v. Alwar Ayyangar, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 42. [April 30, 1881.]

In a suit by the trustees to remove the defendant from the management of certain temples, a decree for mesne-profits was passed against the defendant, who was the karnavan of a Malabar tarwad. Held that the tarwad property in the hands of the deceased defendant's successor was not assets of the deceased in the hands of his successor liable to satisfy the decree under s. 234. The share of a deceased father in an undivided Hindu family passes by survivorship to the sons, and is not assets in their hands to satisfy a decree against the father under s. 234. — Ravi Varan v. Koman, I. L. R., 5 Mad. 223. [Sep. 10, 1881.]

In an undivided Hindu family, although the interests of the sons in the ancestral estate are liable to satisfy the father's debts, the holder of a money-decree against the father who has not attached the ancestral estate before the death of the father cannot execute the decree against the ancestral property as assets in the hands of the representatives of the judgment-debtor under s. 234 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1877. Zamindar of Sivagiri v. Alwar Ayyangar (I. L. R., 3 Mad. 42) followed. — Karnataka Hanumantha v. Andukuri Hanumayya, I. L. R., 5 Mad. 232. [Mar. 7, 1882.]

A SUIT having been brought against the holder of an impartible zamindari upon a promissory note, a decree was passed by consent, whereby certain land was directed to be sold in the event of the debt not being paid in a certain way. After the death of the zamindar execution-proceedings were taken against his son to obtain a sale of the said land. Held that the decree could be executed against the son. — *Sivagiri Zamindar v. - (j) the mode in which the assistance of the Court is required, whether by the delivery of property specifically decreed, by the arrest and imprisonment of the person named in the application, or by the attachment of his property, or otherwise as the nature of the relief sought may require.

IN execution of a decree passed more than twelve years before the date of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), certain judgment-creditors applied for the attachment and sale of certain specified property belonging to their judgment-debtor, previous to the date on which the three years allowed for such execution, under s. 230, would have expired. Subsequently, after the three years had elapsed, they filed a fresh application, praying that certain other property of their judgment-debtor might be attached and sold in lieu of that specified in their former application, and that the latter might be released. Held that execution of the decree was barred by limitation. Per Prinsep, J.—Under s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code, it was intended by the Legislature that a decree-holder, seeking to execute a decree passed more than twelve years before, should have one opportunity to execute that decree, and that, if he fails to satisfy it on that application, any further application becomes barred.—Sreenath Goocho v. Yusoo Khan, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 556. [July 7, 1881.]

UPON an application under s. 235 of Act X. of 1877 (Civil Procedure Code) for the execution of a decree, which directed the judgment-debtor forthwith to pull down and remove such portion of a wall as had been erected by him upon the wall of the decree-holder, the mode in which the assistance of the Court was required to be given was stated in column j of such application to be by giving the decree-holder possession of his wall by pulling down the wall erected thereon. The Court directed an order to issue to the nazir to remove the judgment-debtor's wall from the top of the decree-holder's wall. Held that the decree-holder's application could not be granted in that form, and that he should have asked the assistance of the Court to be given in the way provided for by s. 260 of Act X. of 1877, by the imprisonment of the judgment-debtor or the attachment of his property or both. Held also that the Court was wrong in passing the order it had, but that it should have pointed out to the decree-holder the manner in which he should have asked the assistance of the Court to be given and the remedy to which he was entitled ; and that, upon such amended application being made, the proper course to pursue was to serve a notice on the judgment-debtor directing him to comply with the order contained in the decree within a time to be fixed by such notice ; and that, if he failed to comply with such order within the time so limited, the Court might then, at the instance of the decree-holder, make an order, either for the judgment-debtor's imprisonment, or for the attachment of his property, due regard being had to the provision of s. 260 in the latter case. Held, further, that the High Court, in special appeal, should not vary the order for execution which had been passed in such a way as to give the decree-holder that relief for which he did not ask.—Protap Chunder Doss v. Peary Chowdhurani, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 174. [Aug. 25, 1881.]

THE plaintiff, having obtained a decree against the defendant in the Court of Small Causes at Poona, applied, under s. 20 of Act XI. of 1865, to the Court of the Subordinate Judge at the same place for execution against the immoveable property of the defendant. Notice having been issued to the defendant under s. 248 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) calling upon him to show cause why execution should not issue against him, he appeared and applied to be allowed to pay the judgment-debt by instalments, alleging that he was an agriculturist, and pleading his inability to pay in a lump sum. The plaintiff denied that the defendant was an agriculturist. The Subordinate Judge raised an issue as to whether the defendant was an agriculturist, and having, after inquiry, found the issue in the affirmative, was of opinion that the decree should be considered a nullity, and should not be executed, inasmuch as the defendant being an agriculturist, the Court of Small Causes had no jurisdiction to pass it. On reference to the High Court, Held that the Subordinate Judge was not competent to question the validity of the Small Cause Court decree, his duty being confined to enforcing it, on the "presentation of a copy of it and certificate," as provided by s. 20 of Act XI. of 1865. Nor could he take any notice of the status of the defendant as an agriculturist. The only course open to the defendant was to apply to the Small Cause Court for a review of its judgment, for which purpose the Subordinate Judge might stay the execution of the decree as provided by s. 239 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882).—Kasturshot Javershet v. Rama Kanhoji, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 65. [July 6, 1885.]

THE rule of Civil Procedure contained in the last clause of s. 253 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882)—that uncertified adjustments of a decree are not to be recognized by "any Court"—does not affect the substantive criminal law. The words "any Court" in that clause have no application to a Criminal Court investigating a charge of fraudulently executing a decree under s. 210 of the Indian Penal Code (Act XLV. of 1860). Those words do not bar any criminal remedy which an injured judgment-debtor may have against a fraudulent decree-holder, whether by a prosecution under s. 193, 210, 406, or any other section of the Indian Penal Code. In s. 210 of the Indian Penal Code the word "satisfied" is to be understood in its ordinary meaning, and not as referring to decrees, the satisfaction of which has been certified to the Court. Under s. 235 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882), the decree-holder, or the party who applies for execution, is bound to state in his application any adjustment between the parties after decree, whether such adjustment has or has not been previously certified to the Court. Intentional omission to make such statement amounts to an offence under s. 193 of the Indian Penal Code (Act XLV. of 1860). S. 199 of the Penal Code (Act XLV. of 1860) does not apply to applications for execution containing false averments.—Queen-Empress v. Bápuji Dayáram, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 238. [Feb. 18, 1886.]

IN execution of a decree passed more than twelve years before the date of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), certain judgment-creditors applied for the attachment and sale of certain specified property belonging to their judgment-debtor, previous to the date on which the three years allowed for such execution under s. 230 would have expired. Subsequently, after the three years had elapsed, they filed a fresh application, praying that certain other property of their judgment-debtor might be attached and sold in lieu of that specified in their former application, and that the latter might be released. Held that execution of the decree was barred by limitation. Per Prinsep, J.—Under s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code, it was intended by the Legislature that a decree-holder, seeking to execute a decree passed more than twelve years before, should have one opportunity to execute that decree, and that, if he fails to satisfy it on that application, any further application becomes barred.—*Sreenath Gocho v. UNDER the Civil Procedure Code (Act VIII. of 1859) an application to the Court to continue the attachment of immoveable property, but to stay the sale of it, held to be a proceeding to keep in force the decree.—Núkauna v. Ramasámi, I. L. R., 2 Mad. 218. [Jan. 21, 1881.]

APPLICATION was made for the attachment, in execution of a decree, of a muafi holding belonging to the judgment-debtor. The numbers and areas given in such application as the numbers and areas of the lands comprised in such holding were the numbers and areas of certain revenue-paying lands, and were not the numbers and areas of any lands held as muafi by the judgment-debtor. The order of attachment described the property as described in the application for attachment. The judgment-debtor having alienated by sale a muafi holding belonging to him, the decree-holders sued to have such alienation set aside as void under the provisions of s. 276 of Act X. of 1877. Held that, having regard to the description given in the application for attachment and the order of attachment, it could not be said that the muafi holding alienated by the judgment-debtor was under attachment at the time of the alienation, and its alienation was therefore not void under s. 276 of Act X. of 1877. Held also that the material misdescription of the property in this case in the order of attachment protected the alienees, who were bona-fide purchasers, from having the alienation set aside as void under s. 276, as the attachment could not, under the circumstances, be held to have been "duly intimated and made known" as required by that section.—Gumani v. Hardwar Pande, I. L. R., 3 All. 698. [April 25, 1881.]

IN execution of a decree passed more than twelve years before the date of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), certain judgment-creditors applied for the attachment and sale of certain specified property belonging to their judgment-debtor, previous to the date on which the three years allowed for such execution, under s. 230, would have expired. Subsequently, after the three years had elapsed, they filed a fresh application, praying that certain other property of their judgment-debtor might be attached and sold in lieu of that specified in their former application, and that the latter might be released. Held that execution of the decree was barred by limitation. Per Prinsep, J.—Under s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code, it was intended by the Legislature that a decree-holder seeking to execute a decree passed more than twelve years before, should have one opportunity to execute that decree, and that, if he fails to satisfy it on that application, any further application becomes barred.—Sreenath Goohe v. Yusuf Khan I. L. R., 7 Cal. 556. [July 7, 1881.]

A DECREE-HOLDER, on the 8th July 1885, applied for execution of a decree dated the 10th July 1873, omitting to set out specifically in such application a description of the immoveable property sought to be attached. On the 24th July he applied for and obtained one month's time to file a list of these properties; and on the 7th August, after filing the list, applied for the attachment and sale of such properties. The judgment-debtor contended that execution was barred by limitation. Held that the omission to file on the 8th July the list describing specifically the properties sought to be attached was a mere defect of description which could be remedied under s. 245 of the Code of Civil Procedure by allowing an amendment to be made; and, further, that the two applications of the 8th and 24th July should be considered as one entire application dating from the date of the 8th July. Syud Mahomed v. Syud Abulloah (12 C. L. R. 279) followed.—Macgregor (J. C.) v. Tarini Churn Sircar, (I. L. R., 14 Cal. 124. [Aug. 11, 1886.]

238. If the property be land registered in the Collector's office, the application for attachment shall be accompanied by an authenticated extract from the register of such office, specifying the persons registered as proprietors of, or as possessing any transferable interest in, the land or its revenue, or as liable to pay revenue, for such land, and the shares of the registered proprietors.

C.—Of staying Execution.

239. The Court to which a decree has been sent for execution under this Chapter shall, upon sufficient cause being shown, stay the execution of such decree for a reasonable time, to enable the judgment-debtor to apply to the Court by which the decree was made, or to any Court having appellate jurisdiction in respect of the decree or the execution thereof, for an order to stay the execution, or for any other order relating to the decree or execution which might have been made by such Court of first instance or Appellate Court if execution had been issued thereby, or if application for execution had been made thereto; and in case the property or person of the judgment-debtor has been seized under an execution, the Court which issued the execution may order the restitution or discharge of such property or person pending the result of the application for such order.

WHERE a Court in one district transfers a decree for execution to a Court situate in another district, it is beyond the jurisdiction of the Court executing the decree to question the correctness or propriety of the order under which the decree was sent to such Court for execution. against the execution of a decree transferred for execution, the Court executing the decree should follow the procedure prescribed by s. 239 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Beerchunder Manikya v. Maymana Bibee, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 738. [Feb. 27, 1880.]

WHERE a decree passed by a Court governed by the Code of Civil Procedure is sent for execution to another Court in British territory likewise governed by the Code, it is not open to the latter to refuse to execute it on the ground that the former had no jurisdiction. In case of doubt, the Court where execution is sought may adjourn the execution-proceedings in order to enable the party interested to make an application to the Court passing the decree, and thence, if necessary, to the higher Courts of the same province in their turn.—Chogálál v. Major Trueman, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 481. [Aug. 13, 1883.]

It is not open to the Court to refuse to execute a decree against which no appeal has been preferred, and the time for appealing against which has expired.—Ishan Chander Roy v. Ashanoollah Khan, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 817. [June 10, 1884.]

THE powers which the foreign Court has, under s. 228 of the Civil Procedure Code, are confined to the execution of the decree, and the Court cannot question the propriety or correctness of the order directing execution, nor can it, with reference to s. 239 of the Code, stay execution except temporarily. Held, therefore, where the drawers of a hundi, against whom the indorsee from the payee had obtained a decree on the hundi, objected in the Court to which the decree had been transmitted for execution that execution should not be allowed, because the payee had paid the amount of the hundi to the decree-holder, after the decree had been passed, and such Court refused to entertain the objection, that the order of the lower Appellate Court directing that the parties should be allowed to produce evidence in regard to the alleged payment, and that, should the Court of first instance find that the decree-holder had received satisfaction to the full amount of the decree, the judgment-debtors should be absolved from all liability under the decree, could not be maintained.—Ram Lal v. Radhey Lal, I. L. R., 7 All. 330. [Jan. 7, 1886.]

THE plaintiff, having obtained a decree against the defendant in the Court of Small Causes at Poona, applied, under s. 20 of Act XI. of 1865, to the Court of the Subordinate Judge at the same place for execution against the immoveable property of the defendant. Notice having been issued to the defendant under s. 248 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) calling upon him to show cause why execution should not issue against him, he appeared and applied to be allowed to pay the judgment-debt by instalments, alleging that he was an agriculturist, and pleading his inability to pay in a lump sum. The plaintiff denied that the defendant was an agriculturist. The Subordinate Judge raised an issue as to whether the defendant was an agriculturist, and, having, after inquiry, found the issue in the affirmative, was of opinion that the decree should be considered a nullity, and should not be executed, inasmuch as the defendant being an agriculturist, the Court of Small Causes had no jurisdiction to pass it. On reference to the High Court, held that the Subordinate Judge was not competent to question the validity of the Small Cause Court decree, his duty being confined to enforcing it, on the "presentation of a copy of it and certificate," as provided by s. 20 of Act XI. of 1865. Nor could he take any notice of the status of the defendant as an agriculturist. The only course open to the defendant was to apply to the Small Cause Court for a review of its judgment, for which purpose the Subordinate Judge might stay the execution of the decree as provided by s. 239 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882).—Kasturshet Javershet v. Rámá Kánhoji, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 65. [July 6, 1885.]

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR, once arrested and imprisoned in execution of a decree, cannot, under the Civil Procedure Code, be again arrested under a fresh writ of attachment on the same decree.—Secretary of State for India in Council v. Judah, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 352. [April 1, 1886.]

ON the 4th of March 1884, a decree-holder applied to the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Moorsheadabad (where the decree was passed) for transfer of the decree to the District Court of Beerbhoom for execution. The transfer was made, and, on application by the decree-holder, the judgment-debtor's properties in Beerbhoom were attached. Thereupon the judgment-debtor objected to the attachment, and obtained an order under s. 239 of the Code of Civil Procedure, staying the execution-proceedings. The judgment-debtor then applied to the Court of the Subordinate Judge at Moorsheadabad objecting to the execution of the decree on the ground that it was barred by limitation. The objection was overruled by the Subordinate Judge, and his decision was upheld on appeal to the District Judge. On second appeal to the High Court, held that the Moorsheadabad Court was competent to hear and determine the plea of limitation. Held also that the fact of the judgment-debtor's not raising the plea of limitation in the Beerbhoom Court did not, under the circumstances, preclude him from relying on it in his subsequent application to the Court at Moorshedabad.—Sriharry Mundul v. Murari Chowdhry, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 257. [July 2, 1886.]

241. No discharge under section 239 of the property or person of a judgment-debtor shall prevent it or him from being retaken in execution of the decree sent for execution.

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR, once arrested and imprisoned in execution of a decree, cannot, under the Civil Procedure Code, be again arrested under a fresh writ of attachment on the same decree.—Secretary of State for India in Council v. Judah, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 652. [April 1, 1886.]

Ditto.

242. Any order of the Court by which the decree was passed, or of such Court of Appeal as aforesaid, in relation to the execution of such decree, shall be binding upon the Court to which the decree was sent for execution.

Ditto.

243. If a suit be pending in any Court against the holder of a decree of such Court, on the part of the person against whom the decree was passed, the Court may (if it think fit) stay execution on the decree, either absolutely or on such terms as it thinks fit, until the pending suit has been decided.

A DECREE-HOLDER having attached the property of his judgment-debtor in execution, the latter applied for a stay of execution until the decision of a pending suit brought by him against the judgment-creditor. The Court allowed the application, continuing the attachment on the property, and struck the execution-case off the file. The decree-holder appealed to the High Court. Held that no appeal lay.—Nihal Chand alias Chuttoo Lal v. Rameshri Dasse, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 214. [June 30, 1882.]

AN order under s. 243 of the Civil Procedure Code staying execution of a decree determines a question relating to the execution of the decree within the meaning of s. 244, and is, therefore, a decree within the meaning of s. 2. An appeal, therefore, lies from such order.—Steel v. Ichhamoyi Chowdhry, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 111. [Mar. 18, 1886.]

D.—Questions for Court executing Decree.

Ditto.

244. The following questions shall be determined by order of the Court executing a decree, and not by separate suit (namely)—

(a) questions regarding the amount of any mesne-profits as to which the decree has directed inquiry ;

(b) questions regarding the amount of any mesne-profits or interest which the decree has made payable in respect of the subject-matter of a suit, between the date of its institution and the execution of the decree, or the expiration of three years from the date of the decree ;

(c) any other questions arising between the parties to the suit in which the decree was passed, or their representatives, and relating to the execution, discharge, or satisfaction of the decree.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to bar a separate suit for mesne-profits accruing between the institution of the first suit and the execution of the decree therein, where such profits are not dealt with by such decree.

WHERE an application was made for the issue of execution of decree, and the District Munsif made an order refusing execution, the decree being one passed not in a regular suit, and governed by the one-year limitation, and the Subordinate Judge on appeal reversed the Munsif's order, applying the three years' limitation, held by the High Court that, as Act X. of 1877, s. 588, provided that orders passed in appeal from orders under s. 244 should be final, no second appeal lay, and that the High Court could not interfere under s. 622, as the Subordinate Judge has jurisdiction to hear the appeal.—Sugaprasad Ráu v. Vaisya Sannyasi Ráu, 1. L. R., 1 Mad. 401. [Sep. 16, 1878.]

MONEYS realized as due under a decree, if unduly realized, are recoverable by application to the Court executing the decree, and not by separate suit. The opinion of Stuart, C.J., in the Agra Savings Bank v. Sri Ram Mitter (1. L. R., 1 All. 388), differed from Haramohini Chaudharain v. Dhonmani Chaudharain (1 B. L. R., A. C., 193) and Ekaurt Singh v. Baij Nath Chattapadhyaya (4 B. L. R., A. C., 111) distinguished.—Partab Singh v. Beni Ram, 1. L. R., 2 All. 61. [Nov. 14, 1878.]

THERE is no appeal against an order made under Act X. of 1877, s. 244, determining questions between the parties to a suit as to the amount of mesne-profits recovered by the plaintiff subsequently to the decree, and as to the amount payable on account of the costs of execution of that decree.—Dalpatdhai Bhagubhai v. Amarsang Khemá Bhai, 1. L. R., 2 Bom. 553. [Mar. 20, 1878.] See also 1. L. R., 5 Cal. 50. [April 1, 1879.]

A DECREE-HOLDER, having assigned a share of her decree, applied several times jointly with such assignee for execution. On a subsequent application made by the original decree-holder alone, the Court, while granting the application, directed that the proceeds arising from such execution should only be paid over to the co-decree-holders jointly. Held that the question in dispute being one between co-decree-holders, and not between parties to the suit or their representatives, as contemplated by Act X. of 1877, s. 244, art. c, no appeal would lie from such order.—Cyamouee v. Radha Raman, 1. L. R., 5 Cal. 592. [Dec. 4, 1879.]

AN order refusing an application to execute a decree is not an adjudication within the rule of res judicata.—Hurrosoondary Dassee v. Juggobundhoo Dutt, 1. L. R., 6 Cal. 203. [June 28, 1880.]

THE power given by s. 329 of the Civil Procedure Code to make such order as the Court shall see fit must be construed with regard to the circumstances in respect of which the power is to be exercised. An order under s. 329 should be the result of the fact that the defendant in the suit, who is precluded by the decree from disputing plaintiff's right, unjustly instigates a third party, who has no real interest in the property, to prevent the plaintiff from getting the benefit of his execution. A Court has no power under this section to determine, as between the judgment-creditor and a third party obstructing the execution of the decree, important questions on the merits which are wholly unconnected with, and cannot be affected by, the fact that the obstruction is made at the instigation of the defendant.—Govinda Nair v. Kesava 1. L. R., 3 Mad. 81. [Oct. 27, 1880.]

By a decree in an administration-suit, A was appointed Receiver "to manage the estate." A died, and by a subsequent order B was appointed Receiver. One of the defendants in the suit applied to have B removed from the office of Receiver on the ground of his alleged mismanagement of the estate. The application was refused. Held that the order of refusal was appealable, whether the former Code or the present Code of Civil Procedure was deemed to be applicable, being an order made in respect of a question arising between the parties to a suit relating to the execution of the decree.—Mithibai v. Limiji Nowroji Banaji v. Harivallubhdas Chavandás v. Ardasar Framji Moos, 1. L. R., 5 Bom. 45. [Dec. 3. 1880.]

WHERE the plaintiff in a suit prays that a person may be substituted on the record as the heir of a defendant who has died, the Judge should raise an issue as to whether the person sought to be substituted is the heir of the deceased defendant. In 1872, A brought a suit on a mortgage against the mortgagor, a Hindu widow, who died pending the suit. A then applied that the suit should be revived against B as the representative of the defendant. B denied that he was such representative, but the Judge refused to go into the question, made B a party, and gave A a decree for the sale of the mortgaged property. B subsequently brought a suit to have it declared, inter alia, that the mortgage and decree only covered the widow's life-interest. Held that the suit was not barred either as res judicata or under the provisions of s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Kanai Lal Khan v. Sashi Bhuson Biswas, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 777. [Feb. 9, 1881.]

M, who held a decree against S for possession of certain immoveable property and costs, assigned such decree to S by way of sale, agreeing to deliver the same to him on payment of the balance of the purchase-money. He subsequently applied for execution of the decree against S, claiming the costs which it awarded. S thereupon paid the amount of such costs into Court, and, having obtained stay of execution, sued M for such decree, claiming by virtue of such assignment. The lower Court held that the suit was barred by the provisions of s. 244 of Act X. of 1877, and also, treating such assignment as an uncertified adjustment of such decree, that it was barred, by the terms of the last paragraph of s. 258 of that Act. Held that the suit was not barred by anything in either of those sections. The words "any Court" in the last paragraph of s. 258 refer to proceedings in execution and to the Court or Courts executing a decree.—Sita Ram v. Mahipal, I. L. R., 3 All. 533. [Feb. 21, 1881.]

S, alleging that a money-decree against him held by G had been adjusted out of Court by a payment in cash and the delivery of certain property, and that M had, notwithstanding such adjustment, applied for execution of such decree, and recovered the amount thereof, as the Court executing such decree had refused to determine whether it had been satisfied on the ground that such adjustment had not been certified, sued M for the money which he had paid him out of Court. Held that the suit was not barred by the provisions of s. 244 of Act X. of 1877 or of s. 258 of that Act. The last paragraph of s. 258 means that the Court executing the decree shall not recognize an uncertified payment or adjustment out of Court. It does not prohibit a suit for money paid to a decree-holder out of Court, and the payment of which, not being certified, could not be recognized, and which the decree-holder had not returned, but had misappropriated by taking out execution of the decree a second time, and securing the amount in full through the Court.—Shadi v. Ganga Sahai, I. L. R., 3 All. 538. [Feb. 28, 1881.]

ONE Khelut Chunder was entitled to a share in Pargana Alumpore. Before he obtained possession, Government revenue on the whole estate fell due. Khelut failed to pay his share, and his co-sharer, Kaminee, to save the estate, paid the whole sum due, and subsequently sued Khelut for the amount, eventually obtaining a decree. Subsequently this decree became vested in one Rutnessur, and the Pargana Alumpore came into the possession of Kaliprosono Ghose. Rutnessur obtained an order for execution against the property of Khelut, and, having transferred his decree to the High Court, proceeded to enforce the decree against Kristo Mohinee, the widow of Khelut, and her son, by attaching the family dwelling-house in Calcutta. The widow and son then brought this suit against Kaliprosono to have the share of Khelut in Alumpore ascertained, and praying for a decree calling upon Kaliprosono to pay the amount of the value of the share of Alumpore in satisfaction of Rutnessur's decree. Held that the suit could not be maintained so far as it attempted to make the decree a charge against Alumpore. Questions as to part-satisfaction of a decree cannot, according to cl. c, s. 244 of Act X. of 1877, be raised in a separate suit. That section alludes to parties to the decree or their representatives; but it is not on that account open to a plaintiff to evade the section by adding an unnecessary party to the suit. Held on appeal that the suit was rightly dismissed; that, as far as Rutnessur was concerned, it had already been decided that Rutnessur was entitled, if he so chose, to execute his decree against the Calcutta property; and that, therefore, that question was res judicata; and that, as regards the plaintiff's claim, that the part given by Kaliprosono to Hurry Churn should be treated as part-payment to Rutnessur, such a question could only be decided in execution-proceedings. That the mere existence of the agreement between Kaliprosono, Rutnessur, and Hurry Churn, did not entitle the plaintiff to join them as co-defendants in the suit. That, as far as Kaliprosono was concerned, the suit brought against him could only be treated as a suit to establish a charge or lien on land out of Calcutta, and therefore the Court had no jurisdiction to try it.—Kristo Mohinee Dowse v. Kaliprosono Ghose, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 402. [Mar. 7, 1881.]

AN order passed on appeal by a High Court determining a question mentioned in s. 244 of Act X. of 1877 is a final "decree" within the meaning of s. 595 of that Act. Held therefore, where such an order involved a claim or question relating to property of the value of upwards of ten thousand rupees, and reversed the decisions of the lower Courts, that notwithstanding the value of the subject-matter of the suit in which the decree was made in the Court of first instance was less than that amount, such order was appealable to Her Majesty in Council.—Ram Kirpal Shukul v. Rup Kuar, I. L. R., 3 All. 633. [Mar. 14, 1881.]

AN order under s. 243 of the Civil Procedure Code staying execution of a mortgage decree obtained against the representatives in title of the mortgagor, on the ground that, owing to disputes among such representatives as to their respective shares in the property left by the mortgagor, an administration-suit had been instituted and was pending, comes within cl. c of s. 244, inasmuch as the question raised thereby in a question arising between the parties to the suit in which the decree was passed and relating to the execution of the decree, and is therefore appealable. Where such an order was made, it was held, on appeal, that it was illegal, in so much that it prevented a secured creditor from availing himself of the benefit of his security by realizing the property specifically hypothecated by the mortgage.—Krishna Mohinnee Dasi v. Shyama Charan Nag, 9 C. L. R. 344. [Aug. 29, 1881.]

IN execution of a decree on a mortgage-bond executed by the father of the judgment-debtors, since deceased, which decree directed that the mortgage-lien should be enforced, first, by sale of the property specially mortgaged; and, secondly, if the debt remained unsatisfied, by the sale of the other property in the possession of the judgment-debtors—the judgment-creditors proceeded to have the mortgaged property sold. After the issue of the sale-notification, and three days prior to the date fixed for the sale, one of the judgment-debtors applied to have the sale stayed, on the ground that an administration-suit was pending with respect to the property of his father, the mortgagor, and also asked that a receiver might be appointed and arrangements made for the purpose of paying off the mortgage-debt and saving the property from being sold. On this application the Court passed an order staying the sale. Held that such order was appealable, being a question arising between the parties to the suit in which the decree was passed, and relating to the execution of that decree, and as such coming within the provision of cl. c, s. 244, Act X. of 1877 (Civil Procedure Code). Held also that the Court was wrong in passing such order, inasmuch as there were no reasonable grounds why a secured creditor should be debarred from enforcing his security pending the administration-suit.—Kristomohiny Dosses v. Bama Churn Nag Chowdry, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 733. [Aug. 29, 1881.]

A SUIT will not lie upon a decree the execution of which is barred by the provisions of the Limitation Act. A suit may be brought in the High Court of Bombay upon a judgment obtained in the Court of Small Causes of Bombay. The execution of the decrees in such suits is rigorously confined to immoveable estates. The ground of the interference of the High Court in such cases is that, practically, the judgment-creditor could not recover his debt except by process against the immoveable estate of the debtor. In such cases the plaint must contain an averment, and the plaintiff must establish to the satisfaction of the High Court, that there is not any sufficient moveable property of the defendant against which decree of the Court of Small Causes can be fully executed, and that he has immoveable property situated within the original jurisdiction of the High Court against which execution can be had. Moonshi Golam Arab v. Curraem Bux Shaikji (I. L. R., 6 Cal. 224) referred to.—Fakirapa v. Pandurangapa, I. L. R., 6 Bom. 7. [Sep. 13, 1881.]

WHERE a plaintiff, in bringing a suit for possession and for mesne-profits, approximately estimates the amount of such mesne-profits at a certain sum, and obtains a decree which leaves the amount due as mesne-profits to be ascertained in execution, he is not bound down to the amount claimed in his plaint, but if more is found due to him, he is entitled, on payment of further court-fees, to recover the larger amount so found due. Baboojan Jha v. Byjnath Dutt Jha (I. L. R., 6 Cal. 474) distinguished. A Court, in execution-proceedings, cannot look behind the decree when the decree does not limit the amount of wasilat to be awarded.—Jadoomony Dabee v. Hafez Mahomed Ali Khan, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 295. [Dec. 9, 1881.]

THE holder of a decree against a firm caused certain property to be attached in execution of the decree as the property of the firm. One of the partners in the firm objected to the attachment on the ground that such property was not the property of the firm, but was his private property. The Court disallowed the objection, whereupon such partner appealed from the order disallowing the objection. Held that such order was not one under s. 244 (c) of Act X. of 1877, but under s. 281, and was therefore not appealable.—Abdul Rahman v. Muhammad Yar, I. L. R., 4 All. 190. [Jan. 13, 1882.]

A SUIT for the recovery of money paid to a judgment-creditor out of Court in satisfaction of a decree, but not certified, is barred by s. 244 (c) of Act X. of 1877 and by the last paragraph of s. 258 as amended by Act XII. of 1879.—Patankar v. Devji, I. L. R., 6 Bom. 146. [Jan. 24, 1882.]

WHERE an order, requiring the decree-holder to give security within three days, is made under s. 546 by the Judge of the Court in which the decree was passed, and in which the execution is pending, such order is appealable as a decree under the provisions of ss. 2 and 244 (cl. c).—Luchmeput Singh v. Sitanath Doss, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 477. [Mar. 8, 1882.]

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR who claims to have a sale of his land set aside on the ground of fraud committed by the judgment-creditor, who procured a sale without advertisement, and purchased the property without leave of the Court, is debarred from bringing a suit to set aside the sale, inasmuch as the question is one arising between the parties to the suit, and relates to the execution of the decree within the meaning of s. 244.—Viraraghava Ayyangar v. Venkata Charyar, I. L. R., 5 Mad. 217. [May 4, 1882.]

AN order directing an account is not an order in the nature of a final decree, and is unappealable: such an order merely directs certain proceedings to be taken, in order that a final decree may thereafter be made.—Sreenath Roy v. Radhanath Mookerjee, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 773. [July 7, 1882.]

A SUBORDINATE Judge admitted a plaint in forma pauperis, but, holding that he had no jurisdiction to try the suit, returned the plaint to the plaintiff for its presentation in the proper Court, and ordered each party to pay his own costs. After the presentation of the plaint in another Court, and before the termination of the suit, the Collector applied to the Subordinate Judge for execution of the order as to costs by seeking to recover the amount of the stamp-duty from the plaintiff. The Subordinate Judge refused to execute the order, on the ground that the pauper-suit was still pending in another Court. His order was affirmed by the District Judge in appeal. On second appeal to the High Court, held that there was no appeal, and, therefore, no second appeal, under s. 244 (cl. c) of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), against the order of the Subordinate Judge refusing execution of the order as to costs, inasmuch as the question was not between the parties to the suit. Held further that, under s. 412 of Act X. of 1877, the Subordinate Judge had no jurisdiction to make the order for payment of court-fees by the plaintiff. The High Court accordingly, in the exercise of their extraordinary jurisdiction, annulled the Subordinate Judge's order about costs, and all the subsequent proceedings consequent upon that order.—Collector of Ratnagiri v. Janardan Vithal Kámt, I. L. R., 6 Bom. 590. [July 20, 1882.]

IN 1875 a decree was passed against N as representative of L, who died pending the suit, declaring N liable to the extent of the assets of L, which might have come to the hands of N. In 1879 the decree-holder applied for execution of the decree, and, without proof that any of the assets of L had come to the hands of N, obtained an order, and attached lands belonging to N. N objected to the attachment, but the Munsif, without investigation, rejected his claim, and directed N to bring a regular suit. The land was sold and purchased by A B. N, after an abortive attempt to obtain a review of the Munsif's order from his successor, brought a suit in 1880 against the decree-holder and A B to recover the land. Held that as N was a party to the former suit within the meaning of s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1877, the suit would not lie.—Arundadhi Ammyar v. Natesha Ayyar, I. L. R., 5 Mad. 391. [Aug. 14, 1882.]

CERTAIN persons, claiming by right of inheritance to C, sued B, N, A, K, and others for possession of certain immoveable property, and obtained a decree, dated in August 1876, for possession of the same. In the course of the litigation which ended in that decree, Z purchased certain immoveable property from B, N, A, and K. Z was subsequently dispossessed of such property in execution of the decree of August 1876. He thereupon sued the holders of that decree for possession of the same, alleging that his vendors had inherited the same from D, that it was not affected by that decree, and that he had been improperly dispossessed of it in execution of that decree. Held by the Court that, the plaintiff not being the representative of any of the parties to the suit in which that decree was passed, in the sense of s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code, but being, if his allegations were true, a purchaser from certain of the judgment-debtors of property not affected by that decree, the suit was not barred by the provisions of that section. Partab Singh v. Beni Ram (I. L. R., 2 All. 61) distinguished. Observations by Stuart, C.J., on his judgment in The Agra Savings Bank v. Sri Ram Mitter (I. L. R., 1 All. 388), and on the judgment of the Full Bench in Partab Singh v. Beni Ram (I. L. R., 2 All. 61) referring to the judgment.—Zauki Lal v. Jawahir Singh, I. L. R., 5 All. 111. [Aug. 25, 1882.]

ON appeal from an order allowing an application by the legal representative of a deceased decree-holder for execution, the Appellate Court, holding that the applicant must obtain a certificate under Act XXVII. of 1860 before he could take out execution of the decree, made an order directing that execution of the decree should be stayed until the applicant had obtained such certificate. Held that such order fell under s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code, and was therefore appealable. Also, following the principle enunciated in Lachun v. Ganga Prasad (I. L. R., 4 All. 485), that the possession of a certificate under Act XXVII. of 1860 was not "an imperative condition precedent to the institution" of execution-proceedings by the representative of a deceased decree-holder; but that, where the judgment-debtor objects to the title of the person claiming to execute the decree, the Court should consider whether the objection is vexatiously raised or is a bond fide one.—Hoti Lal v. Hardeo, I. L. R., 5 All. 212. [Aug. 29, 1882.]

A DECREE enforcing a first mortgage of certain property not being satisfied, the property was sold in execution of a decree of a later date enforcing a second mortgage of the property. Per Stuart, C.J.—That the decree enforcing the first mortgage could not be executed against the property, but the holder of such decree was bound to bring a fresh suit against the purchaser of the property to enforce his decree. Per Straight, Brodhurst, and Tyrrell, JJ.—That a fresh suit was the most convenient and expeditious remedy. Per Oldfield, J.—That the purchaser not being the "representative" of the judgment-debtor within the meaning of s. 244 (c) of the Civil Procedure Code, the holder of such decree must bring a fresh suit to enforce it.—Jagat Narain v. Jagat Rup, I. L. R., 5 All. 452. [Mar. 19, 1883.]

ON an application for execution for the full amount due under a decree by some of several joint decree-holders, the judgment-debtor objected to execution being granted for the full amount of the decree on the ground that he had already paid off a large portion of the money due under the decree to B, one of the joint decree-holders. The payment was made out of Court, but B, who claimed to be entitled to a 12½-anna share in the decree, certified the payment in the manner prescribed by s. 258 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), and represented that his claim had been satisfied in full. The other joint decree-holders denied B's right to the 12½-anna share claimed by him, and refused to recognise the payment said to have been made to him. The lower Court disallowed the objection, and granted execution for the full amount of the decree. Held that, regard being had to the provisions of the General Clauses Act (I. of 1868), the word "decree-holder" in s. 258 of Act XIV. of 1882 should be read in the plural, and looking at the provisions of s. 231 of the later Act, the Court ought not to recognise payments made out of Court, unless made and certified for the benefit of all the joint decree-holders of any portion of the decree in excess of that to which the decree-holder so paid is undisputedly entitled. Held also that a judgment-debtor is entitled to credit for any sum paid bond fide to one of several joint decree-holders, and duly certified to the Court by the latter, and that the other joint decree-holders cannot execute the decree for more than their own share. Held further that in this case the lower Court was wrong in wholly ignoring the payment certified by the decree-holder B, and that it should have determined, first, whether the payment to B was a fraud on the other joint decree-holders; and, secondly, what amount the latter were entitled to have out of the whole decree, the latter being the main question between the applicants for execution and the judgment-debtor, and as such clearly within the scope of s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code. See Rames Nynah Koor v. Doolie Chund (22 W. R. 77), Brojeswari Chowdhrao v.

Tripooora Soondere Debi (3 C. L. R. 513), and Mahima Chandra Roy v. Pyari Mohan Chowdhry (2 B. L. R. Ap. 48).—Tarruck Chander Bhuttacharjee v. Divendro Nath Sanyal, 9 Cal. 831. [April 15, 1883.]

In a suit to recover possession of land, the defendants resisted execution on the ground that they were cultivators, and that the decree only authorized the plaintiff to recover possession as proprietor. The objection was overruled, and the defendants were ejected. They then sued to set aside the order made in the execution-proceedings and to recover possession. Held that the suit was barred under s. 244 (cl. c) of the Civil Procedure Code.—Najhan v. Mahomed Taki Khan, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 872. [April 19, 1883.]

S MORTGAGED four parcels of land to M. M obtained a decree against S directing the sale of the lands mortgaged. S died, and K was brought in as his representative under s. 234 of the Code of Civil Procedure. M applied for execution against the lands mortgaged as assets of S. K objected to the sale of three parcels, on the ground that one parcel belonged to himself (K), and two to the family to which S belonged, and of which K was the manager. The District Munsif investigated these questions under s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and directed that execution should proceed against all four parcels. The District Court on appeal reversed the order of the Munsif on the ground that he had no power to decide these questions under s. 244, and that the proper course was for M to attach the properties and for K to make a claim. This course was adopted, and K's claim was rejected, and the four parcels were sold and bought by V. K thereupon brought a suit against M and V to cancel the sales to V. Held that, by virtue of s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the suit would not lie.—Kuriyali v. Mayan, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 255. [Nov. 20, 1883.]

A SUIT for money having been brought against the holder of an impartible zamindari, a decree was passed in 1867 by consent to the effect that the zamindar undertook to pay a certain sum by yearly instalments and hypothecated certain land as security. A memorandum of this decree was registered under s. 42 of Act XX. of 1866. The last instalment fell due in February 1870. The decree was kept alive against the zamindar up to his death in 1873. Upon the death of the zamindar proceedings in execution were taken against his son who succeeded to the zamindari, but were set aside on appeal. In January 1882, a suit was brought against the son to recover the amount of the last instalment due by his father under the decree of 1867. Held that the suit was neither barred by the provisions of s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure, nor by limitation.—Arunachala v. Zamindar of Sivagiri, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 328. [Dec. 27, 1883.]

THE words, "the following questions shall be determined by order to the Court executing the decree," of s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure, must be interpreted to mean the Court executing the decree at the time when the application is made, and that they do not include the Court which has executed the decree, and has, therefore, become functus officio.—Fakaruddin Mahomed Ahsan v. Official Trustee of Bengal, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 538. [Feb. 21, 1884.]

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR sued the decree-holder for recovery of possession of certain land which had been sold in execution of the decree, and to set aside the sale on the ground that the land was not liable, under s. 9 of the N. W. P. Rent Act, to sale in execution of decree. Held that the question at issue between the parties was clearly one relating to the executing and satisfaction of the decree, and that the suit was therefore barred by the provisions of s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code.—Janki Singh v. Ablakh Singh, I. L. R., 6 All. 393. [May 26, 1884.]

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR, alleging that his right as occupancy-tenant of certain land had been sold in execution of the decree, sued the decree-holder and the auction-purchaser to set aside the sale as illegal under s. 9 of the N. W. P. Rent Act. The Court of first instance decreed the claim, and ordered the defendant-decree-holder to refund the purchase-money. Held that, as between the defendant-decree-holder and the plaintiff, the question at issue was one arising between the parties to the suit in which the decree was passed, and relating to the execution, discharge, or satisfaction of the decree, and was therefore, under s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code, to be determined by the Court executing the decree, and not by separate suit. Janki Singh v. Ablakh Singh (I. L. R., 6 All. 393) followed. Held also that, apart from this consideration, it was beyond the lower Court's power to make an order directing the decree-holder to refund the purchase-money, that being a matter between two co-defendants which was not raised, and could not be decided, in the present suit.—Ram Gopal v. Khaiali Ram, I. L. R., 6 All. 448. [June 13, 1884.]

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR, upon the attachment of certain land in execution of decrees passed against him personally by the Revenue Court, instituted a suit for declaration and establishment of his right to such land, not as his own property, but as wakf, of which he was mutawalli or trustee. Held that, inasmuch as the plaintiff was not suing in his own right, but in his capacity as custodian, trustee, or manager of the wakf property, and he must, therefore, be taken to fill a character separate from that in which the decrees were passed against him by the Revenue Court, his suit was not barred by the provisions of s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code. Matho Prakash Singh v. Murli Manohar (I. L. R., 5 All. 406) and Shankar Dial v. Amir Haidar (I. L. R., 2 All. 752) referred to.—Nath Mal Das v. Tajammul Husain, I. L. R., 7 All. 36. [July 23, 1884.]

THE provisions of s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code govern equally the procedure of the Court which passed the decree when executing such decree, and the Court to which the decree is sent for execution. Cooke v. Hiseeba Beebee (N. W. P., H. C. R., 1874, p. 181), referred to. All orders staying execution of decrees, whether passed by the Court which passed the decree, or by the Court to which it is sent for execution, are "questions arising between the parties to the suit in which the decree was passed, and relating to the execution," thereof, within the meaning of s. 244 (c) of the Civil Procedure Code, and, as such, appealable, irrespective of the provisions of s. 588. Kristomohiny Dossee v. Bama Churn Nag Chowdry (I. L. R., 7 Cal. 733) and Luchmeeput Singh v. Seeta Nath Doss (I. L. R., 8 Cal. 477) followed. The widest meaning should be attached to cl. c of s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code, so as to enable the Court of first instance and the Court of Appeal to adjudicate upon all kinds of questions arising between the parties to a decree and relating to its execution. There is no provision in the law which empowers the Court passing a decree to set aside the proceedings under which the decree-holder has already been placed in possession in execution of his decree. The provisions of s. 243 of the Civil Procedure Code have no reference to a case in which execution has already been carried out, and the decree-holder placed in possession of the property decreed to him.—Ghazidin v. Fakir Bakhsh, I. L. R., 7 All. 73. [Aug. 7, 1884.]

THE consideration for a mortgage consisted partly of the amount of two decrees held by the mortgagee against the mortgagor. The mortgagee having sued to enforce the mortgage, the mortgagor pleaded failure of consideration as a bar to the enforcement of the mortgage. This plea was based on the allegation that the mortgagee had not certified the adjustment of the decrees as provided by s. 258 of the Civil Procedure Code, and they were still in force under the terms of that section. Per Duthoit, J., that the failure of the mortgagee to certify the adjustment of the decrees did not constitute a failure of consideration, because he did not covenant to certify such adjustment, and it was not, in fact, necessary for him to do so; because he could not seek execution of the decrees on the ground that, though unsatisfied, they were still in force under s. 258 of the Civil Procedure Code, without becoming liable to penalties; and because, if the mortgagor considered the entering up of the adjustment of the decrees to be imperative, he had his remedy by application to the Court in the terms of s. 258. Per Mahmood, J., that the adjustment of a decree out of Court, if never certified to the Court, is, under s. 258, ineffectual only so far as the execution of the decree is concerned; that there is nothing in the Contract Act to make such an adjustment invalid as the consideration for an agreement; that an agreement founded on such consideration may be enforced without defeating the objects of s. 258; and that consequently there was, in respect of the amount of the decrees, valid consideration for the mortgage. Gunamani Dasi v. Pran Kishori Dasi (5 B. L. R. 223; 13 W. R. 69), Meer Mahomed Kazem Jowharry v. Khetoo Bibee (20 W. R. 150), Guni Khan v. Koonjo Behary Sein (3 C. L. R. 414), Davlati v. Ganesh Shastri (I. L. R., 4 Bom. 293), Shadi v. Ganga Sahai (I. L. R., 3 All. 638), and Sita Ram v. Mahipal (I. L. R., 3 All. 533), followed. Patanekar v. Devji (I. L. R., 6 Bom. 146) and Pundrang Ramchandra Chowghule v. Narayan (I. L. R., 8 Bom. 300) dissented from.—Ramghulam v. Janki Rai, I. L. R., 7 All. 124. [Aug. 15, 1884.]

IN 1877 the plaintiffs sued the defendant for possession of certain properties, and obtained a decree. In execution of this decree, the plaintiff, on 12th of July 1879, obtained formal possession of the properties sued for. The defendant continued to remain in actual possession and occupation of a portion of the premises, and refused to give up possession of the same to the plaintiff, who served him with a two months' notice to quit in June 1881. The plaintiff did not evict the defendant in execution of the decree obtained by him against the defendant, but instituted a fresh suit for that purpose. Held that such a suit would lie. Seemle, that the delivery of formal possession in execution of a decree for possession gives a cause of action, against a defendant who remains in occupation of the premises, which may be enforced in a regular suit.—Shama Charan Chatterji v. Madhub Chundra Mookerji, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 93. [Sep. 12, 1884.]

THE plaintiff in a suit for possession of immoveable property obtained a decree for possession thereof, and in execution of the decree obtained possession of the property. This decree was subsequently reversed on appeal by the defendant. The decree of the Appellate Court was silent in respect of the mesne-profits which the plaintiff had received while in possession. The defendant instituted a suit to recover those profits. Held, per Petheram, C.J., and Oldfield, Brodhurst, and Duthoit, JJ., that the suit was not barred by s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code, the question raised by such suit, although it might have arisen out of the decree of the Appellate Court, not "relating to the execution, discharge, or satisfaction of the decree," within the meaning of that section (because, at the time, no such question had arisen or was in existence), and therefore not one in respect of which a separate suit is barred by that section. Partab Singh v. Beni Ram (I. L. R., 2 All. 61) distinguished by Oldfield, J. Per Mahmood J.—That the suit was not barred by s. 244, the mesne-profits sought to be recovered not having been realized in execution of the decree reversed on appeal. Per Duthoit, J.—The words in cl. c of s. 244, "any other questions arising," &c., should be read as "any other questions directly arising;" otherwise the most remote inquiries would be possible in the execution department.—Ram Ghulam v. Dwarka Rai, I. L. R., 7 All. 170. [Nov. 19, 1884.]

G OBTAINED a decree against R for possession of a house, and in execution thereof obtained possession. On appeal, the decree was set aside by the High Court, whose decree did not direct that the appellant should be restored to possession, and was silent as to mesne-profits. Held that, with reference to s. 583 of the Civil Procedure Code, R was entitled to recover possession of the property in execution of the High Court's decree, but that, with reference to the decision of the Full Bench of the Court in Ram Ghulam v. Dwarka Rai (I. L. R., 7 All. 107), he could not, in execution of that decree, recover mesne-profits.—Gannu Lal v. Ram Sahai, I. L. R., 7 All. 197. [Dec. 4, 1884.]

THE ancestors of B mortgaged their share in a certain mehal to A. Subsequently B became entitled to this share in the mehal, and A obtained a decree on his mortgage, in execution of which the right, title, and interest of B was sold and purchased by C. Subsequently to this latter decree and sale, B obtained a decree against D for possession of certain lands which were proved to belong to this mehal. E then obtained a decree against B, in execution of which the right, title and interest of B in this same mehal was sold and purchased by F; C and F transferred their rights under their respective purchases to E. E thereupon, as purchaser of the right, title, and interest of B from F, applied to execute the decree obtained by B against D. This application was rejected by the Subordinate Judge, but on appeal to the District Judge was allowed. B thereupon applied to the High Court to have this order set aside. Held that the order should be set aside, inasmuch as no appeal lay from the order of the Subordinate Judge, the order not being a decree within the meaning of ss. 2 and 244 (cls. a, b, and c) of the Civil Procedure Code.—Mohabir Singh v. Ram Baghowan Chowbey, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 160. [Dec. 12, 1884.]

A SUIT upon a bond specially registered under the provisions of s. 58 of Act XX. of 1866 for an amount less than Rs. 500 is cognizable by a Mofussil Court of Small Causes, and under s. 586 of the Code of Civil Procedure no second appeal lies to the High Court against an order passed on an application for execution of a decree made in such a suit. Quere.—Whether an appeal lies at all against such an order passed in proceedings taken in execution of such a decree.—Sri Bullov Bhattacharji v. Baburam Chattopadhyaya, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 169. [Jan. 23, 1885.]

No second appeal lies to the High Court against an order passed on an application for execution of a decree made in a suit under s. 53 of Act XX. of 1866.—Sri Bullov Bhattacharji v. Baburam Chattopadhyaya, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 169. [Jan. 23, 1885.]

IN execution of a decree certain property was sold in pursuance of an order under s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code, and purchased by a person not a party to the suit, who subsequently obtained possession of the property. That order was subsequently set aside. In a suit by the judgment-debtor to recover possession of the property from the auction-purchaser by setting aside the sale. Held that the order directing the sale had the force of a decree, and that the plaintiff was not entitled to the relief claimed.—Jan Ali v. Jan Ali Chowdry (10 W. R. 154) followed.—Murari Singh, J. I. L. R., 11 Cal. 362. [Feb. 17, 1885.]

WHERE certain property was attached in execution of a decree passed upon a bond against the legal representatives of the obligor, and the judgment-debtors objected to the attachment on the ground that the property was not part of the obligor's estate and liable to be taken in execution of the decree, but was property which they could claim in their own right, held that the matter in dispute was one between the parties to the suit in which the decree was passed, and relating to the execution, discharge, or satisfaction of the decree within the meaning of s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code, and was, therefore, to be determined in the execution department and not by regular suit. Chowdry Wahed Ali v. Musammat Jumae, (11 B. L. R. 155), Shankar Dial v. Amir Haidar (I. L. R., 2 All. 752), and Nath Mal Das v. Tajammul Husain (I. L. R., 7 All. 36), referred to. Per Mahmood, J.—That the turning point upon which the application of the rule contained in s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code barring adjudication in a regular suit depends, is whether the judgment-debtor in raising objections to execution of decree against any property, pleads what may analogically be called a jus tertii, or a right which, although he represents it, belongs to a title totally separate from that which he personally holds in such property. Kanal Lall Khan v. Sashi Bhuson Biswas (18 W. R. 102); dissented from.—Ram Ghulam v. Hazaru Kuar, I. L. R., 7 All. 547. [Feb. 24, 1885.]

THE transferee of a decree for costs, associating with him the transferor, made an application under s. 232 of the Civil Procedure Code to be allowed to execute the decree. The application was opposed by the judgment-debtor, and was rejected; and the Court referred the transferee to a regular suit. After taking various proceedings ineffectually, he instituted a suit for the recovery of the sum to which he was entitled as costs under the decree transferred to him. Held that the plaintiff, as the holder of the decree by assignment, could only recover the amount under it by executing the decree, and not by a separate suit; but that he was entitled to have a decree declaring that the assignment to him of the decree-holder's rights under the decree was valid, and gave him a right to execute it, and that the Court's order under s. 232 which disallowed the execution was an improper one, a suit for this relief being maintainable; for, there being no appeal from orders under s. 232, there would otherwise be no remedy, and that, looking at the plaintiff and the issues on which the parties were divided, and the fact that the Court which refused the plaintiff's application for execution referred him to a regular suit, this relief might properly be given in the present suit. Per Mahmood, J., that the suit was maintainable, inasmuch as the present plaintiff never having been accepted on the record as holder of the decree, the questions which were disposed of by the Court executing the decree, as between the plaintiff and the judgment-debtor, could not be regarded as questions with s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code.—Ram Bakhsh v. Panna Lal, I. L. R., 7 All. 457. [Mar. 5, 1885.]

CERTAIN property was mortgaged by A to B. Subsequently this property was purchased by C at a sale held in execution of a decree obtained by a third person against A. B then brought a suit on his mortgage-bond against A and C, and obtained a decree for the sale of the mortgaged properties, and also a personal decree against A. B assigned his rights under this decree to C, who applied for execution under s. 232 of the Code. A objected to execution issuing, relying on proviso b to s. 232. Held that proviso b to s. 232 applies only to decrees for money personally due by two or more persons; and that the decree obtained by B against A and C not being a personal decree against C (he having been made a defendant only by reason that he had purchased the mortgaged property subject to the mortgage-debt), C, as assignee of B, was entitled to take out execution.—Lalla Bhagun Pershad v. Holloway, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 393. [Mar. 6, 1885.]

THE words "subsisting decree," in the proviso to s. 316 the Code of Civil Procedure refer to a decree which is reversed and in full force, and not to a decree the execution of which is barred by limitation. Where a decree under which a sale takes place remains unreversed, and the sale under it has been confirmed, a sale certificate will operate as a valid transfer of the property sold, notwithstanding that the sale has actually taken place at a time when execution of the decree is barred by limitation.—Saroda Churn Chuckerbutty v. Mahomed Isuf Moah, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 376. [Mar. 10, 1885.]

AN objection by a judgment-debtor to a sale in execution of a decree on the ground that the property which was the subject of sale was not legally saleable, is not a matter which can be entertained by the Court under s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code, so as to afford a ground for setting aside the sale on account of material irregularity in publishing or conducting it. Ram Gopal v. Khiali Ram (I. L. R., 6 All. 448) and Janki Singh v. Ahluks Singh (I. L. R., 6 All. 393) distinguished. Per Mahmood, J.—The scope of s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code is limited to matters connected with the execution of the decree between the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor, and cover all the questions which may arise between the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor relating to the execution, &c., of the decree. Questions that may arise after the sale are not, strictly speaking, questions relating to the execution, discharge, or satisfaction of the decree, within the meaning of cl. 3, s. 244; but as soon as there has been a sale, the execution of the decree, so far as the decree-holder is concerned, is over, and the question whether the purchaser has purchased anything by the sale is not a question as to the execution of the decree-holder's decree. Also per Mahmood, J.—The expression, "conducting the sale," as used in s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code, does not include any proceedings unconnected with the actual carrying out of the sale, but refers to the action of the officer who makes the sale, and not to anything done antecedent to the order of sale.—Olpherts v. Mahabir Pershad (I. R., 10 Ind. Ap. 25) referred to.—Ramchhaibar Misr v. Bechu Bhagat, I. L. R., 7 All. 641. [Mar. 21, 1885.]

Held that persons other than the decree-holders, or the persons whose property was sold in execution of decree, were not competent to apply to the Court under s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code to set aside the sale. M., in whose name property had been purchased at an execution sale which was improperly set aside, brought a suit to have the order setting aside the sale reversed, and the sale confirmed in her favour, and for a declaration that the property was not liable to be sold in execution of a decree of the defendants against third persons, under which it had been attached and advertised for sale. Held that such a suit could only be maintained under s. 42 of the Specific Relief Act (I. of 1877), but that s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code indicated the intention of the Legislature that such questions should be determined in the execution department, and, reading together the provisions of ss. 244, 278, and 283 of the Code, the suit was premature, and therefore not maintainable.—Man Kuar v. Tara Singh, I. L. R., 7 All. 683. [Mar. 23, 1885.]

WHERE, certain property having been attached in execution of a decree, the representative of the judgment-debtor objected that the property had been acquired by himself and not inherited from the judgment-debtor, and was therefore not liable in execution, held that the question was one which must be decided in the execution department under s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code.—Ram Ghulam v. Hazaru Kuar (I. L. R., 7 All. 547) referred to.—Sita Ram v. Bhagwan Das, I. L. R., 7 All. 733. [Mar. 30, 1885.]

THE defendant obtained a decree against the plaintiff as representative of his (the plaintiff's) deceased uncle, and in execution he attached the property in dispute. The plaintiff objected to the attachment, but his objection was disallowed, and the property was sold. The plaintiff did not appeal against the order disallowing his objection, but filed the present suit to establish his right. Both the lower Courts allowed the plaintiff's claim. On appeal by the defendant to the High Court, held, reversing the decree of the Courts below, that the plaintiff's suit was not maintainable. The question raised in the present suit was one which ought to have been taken in the execution proceedings in the former suit under s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882); and having been, as a fact, raised and decided against the plaintiff, he could not bring a separate suit.—Nimbá Harishet v. Sitánám Párají, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 458. [April 6, 1885.]

A DECREE-HOLDER, having attached the property of his judgment-debtors in execution of the decree, obtained an order for sale of the attached property. Prior to sale, the judgment-debtors made an application to be declared insolvents, and obtained an order under Stat. 11 and 12 Vic., c. 21, s. 7, by which their property was vested in the Official Assignee. An application was then made by the Official Assignee to the Court in which the execution of the decree was pending, for the release of the property from attachment, and that the property might be made over to him. The Court dismissed the application. On appeal, the District Judge reversed the first Court's order. Held that the matter did not come before the Court of first instance under s. 49 of Stat. 11 and 12 Vic., c. 21, inasmuch as that section refers to cases where the insolvent's schedule has been filed, and to debts or demands admitted therein, and, in the present case, no schedule had been filed at the time of the Official Assignee's application; and the Court could, therefore, only entertain the application under the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code relating to the execution of decrees. Held that the Official Assignee could not be held to be a representative of the judgment-debtors within the meaning of s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code, and his application was not one relating to the execution, discharge, or satisfaction of the decree. Held that the Court of first instance had only jurisdiction in the matter under s. 278 of the Code, and disposed of it under that section, and that the District Judge had no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal.—Kashi Prasad v. Miller, I. L. R., 7 All. 752. [April 16, 1885.]

IN execution of a decree by R, S, another creditor, claimed a rateable share of the proceeds realized. His claim was rejected. Pending an application to the High Court under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure to set aside this order, the share claimed by S was detained in Court at his request. The High Court rejected the application of S, and R took out execution for the costs incurred therein and for interest on the sum detained in Court at the request of S. Held that the interest could not be awarded to R in execution of the decree for costs.—Sanjivi v. Rámasámi, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 494. [April 17, 1885.]

A DECREE obtained by a mortgagor, which declared that the mortgagee should deliver up possession on payment of the sum found due to him, and having been executed for three years, a purchaser of the equity of redemption sued the mortgagee to redeem. Held that this suit was not barred by the former decree, and that the plaintiff was entitled to redeem. Sámi v. Somasundram (I. L. R., 6 Mad. 119) approved. Gán Sávant Bál Sávant v. Nárayan Dhond Sávant (I. L. R., 7 Bom. 467) dissented from.—Karuthasámi v. Jaganátha, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 478. [April 27, 1885.]

IN 1879, D obtained a decree against S. S gave security for the satisfaction of the decree, whereupon D agreed not to take proceedings in execution. In breach of this agreement D in the same year applied for execution, and sold certain immoveable property belonging to S, of which K became the purchaser. K did not apply for possession until 1883, in which year he applied for and obtained possession of the property. S alleged that he then for the first time became aware of the sale, and that by the fraud of D & K he had been kept in ignorance of the execution-proceedings taken by D in breach of the above-mentioned agreement, and within thirty days after K obtained possession, he (S) applied for a reversal of the orders which had been passed in the aforesaid fraudulent proceedings. The Subordinate Judge held that the application was barred by art. 166 of sch. 2 of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877), and referred the applicant to a separate suit to set aside the sale. On application to the High Court, held that a separate suit would not lie, and that the relief sought by S could only be obtained, at all events as against D, by an application under s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882). Held also that art. 166 of sch. 2 of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877) did not apply. That article, as amended by s. 108 of Act XII. of 1879, only applies to applications made under s. 311 or s. 294 of the Civil Procedure Code seeking to set aside a sale on the ground of a material irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale, or on the ground that the decree-holder has purchased without the permission of the Court.—Sakharam Govind Kale v. Dámodar Akhárám Gujar, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 468. [April 29, 1885.]

THREE out of six decree-holders sold their share in the decree to A, who thereafter made an application to the Court under s. 232 of the Code of Civil Procedure. This application was dismissed on the ground that A's purchase was made benami for some of the judgment-debtors. In a subsequent suit brought by A and the persons who were said to be the real purchasers, it was contended that a separate suit was barred under the provisions of s. 244 (cl. c) of the Code of Civil Procedure. Held that A was not a party to the suit in which the decree was passed, nor the representative of any such party, and that the suit was not barred.—Halodhar Shaha v. Harogobind Das Koibarto, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 105. [July 4, 1885.]

B OBTAINED a decree on a settlement of accounts made with V as trustee of a mutt. V's title as trustee having subsequently been negatived by decree, and the title of S declared, B applied to execute his decree against the property of the mutt, and to have S substituted as party to the suit in place of V. The application was rejected by the Munsif, but on appeal the District Judge made S a party, and reserved for determination in execution proceedings the question whether the debt was contracted for the benefit of the mutt. Held that S was properly made a party, but that it was not open to him to raise this question in execution proceedings.—Sudindra v. Budan, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 80. [Sep. 4, 1885.]

THE word "representative" as used in cl. c, s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure, means any person who succeeds to the right of any of the parties to the suit after the decree is passed. A Hindu widow mortgaged certain properties, and afterwards by an ekrarnamah made them over to B, the next heir. The ekrarnamah contained a condition that B was to be liable for the widow's debts. Subsequently the mortgagee brought a suit against the widow on the mortgage, and joined B as a party, on the ground that he was in possession of the mortgaged properties. That suit resulted in a money-decree being passed on appeal by the High Court against the widow personally, the property in the hands of B being held not to be liable. The case was taken on appeal to the Privy Council, and pending the hearing of that appeal the widow died, and B was brought on the record as her legal representative. The decree of the High Court was ultimately confirmed by the Privy Council. In execution of the decree it was sought to make B liable to satisfy the amount out of the properties which he had obtained under the ekrarnamah, the mortgagee not having been aware of the conditions of the document before the decree of the High Court. Held that, so far as these properties were concerned, he was not the legal representative of the widow as he inherited them as heir-at-law of her husband, and that his title to them under the ekrarnamah was not that of a "representative" within the meaning of cl. c of s. 244. Held, further, that the question of B's liability under the ekrarnamah did not fall within the scope of the provisions of cl. c of s. 244 as being a question to be decided between the "parties" to the suit, as although B was a party to the suit, the only claim against him was that the property in his hands was liable, as having been previously hypothecated, and as the suit was dismissed so far as that claim was concerned, it was not a question relating to the execution of the decree.—Kameshwar Pershad v. Run Bahadur Singh, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 458. [Jan. 14, 1886.]

UNDER ss. 244 (ol. c) and 258 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) no compromise of a decree which has not been duly certified under the provisions of the last-mentioned section can be recognized by any Court, and a separate suit to enforce such compromise is not maintainable.—Hormasji Dorabji Vantā v. Burjorji Jamsetji Vaniā, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 155. * [Jan. 21, 1886.]

THE provisions of s. 244 (c) of the Civil Procedure Code prohibit not only a suit between parties and their representatives, but also a suit by a party or his representatives against a purchaser at a sale in execution of the decree, the object of which is to determine a question which properly arises between the parties or their representatives, and relates to the execution, discharge, or satisfaction of the decree. A judgment-debtor, whose occupancy-tenure had been sold in execution of a decree for money, sued the purchaser for recovery of the property, on the ground that the sale of occupancy-rights in execution of decree was illegal and void, being in contravention of the provisions of s. 9 of Act XII. of 1881 (N. W. P. Rent Act). Held by the Full Bench that the question involved in the suit was one of the nature referred to in s. 244 (c) of the Civil Procedure Code as determinable only by order of the Court executing the decree, and that the suit was, therefore, not maintainable. Narain v. Puran (Weekly Notes, 1883, p. 218) referred to.—Basti Ram v. Fattu, I. L. R., 8 All. 146. [Jan. 21, 1886.]

ON an application under s. 232 of the Civil Procedure Code by the purchaser of a decree to be allowed to execute it, two of the judgment-debtors objected that the purchase was benami for the other judgment-debtor, and that they had paid off the decree to the original decree-holder. The Munsif found both objections against them, and allowed the purchaser to execute the decree. Held that the question was one between the parties to the suit or their representatives relating to the execution, discharge, or satisfaction of the decree, and that the decision of that question was a decree under ss. 2 and 244 of the Code, and therefore appealable, and a second appeal lay therefrom to the High Court.—Afzal v. Ram Kumar Bhudra, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 610. [Mar. 5, 1886.]

G INSTITUTED a suit against H, C, and P, which was dismissed with costs, but an appeal was preferred. Pending the appeal, however, C took out execution of the decree for costs, and brought to sale a house belonging to G, of which H became the purchaser, paid the purchase-money, and got possession. Subsequently the decision dismissing the suit was reversed on appeal, and the defendants in that suit were ordered to pay a certain sum to G with costs. G then applied for restitution of her house which had been sold under the decree reversed, and eventually obtained an unconditional order for possession—H being left to any remedy open to him in respect of the purchase-money. G having obtained possession of the house, H brought a suit against her to recover the purchase-money. Held that, notwithstanding s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code, he was entitled in this suit to recover the purchase-money, as money received to his use, the consideration for it having failed. H was not, in his character as an auction-purchaser, a party to the execution-proceedings, and for the purpose of the suit was to be treated as a third person.—Hira Lal Chatterjee v. Gourmouey Debi, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 326. [July 26, 1886.]

THE decree-holder, under a decree for enforcement of liēn against the zamūdārī rights and interests of K, applied for execution by attachment and sale of certain shares, one of which was recorded in the khewat in the name of K, and two others in the name of B, his brother's widow. The shares having been attached, the judgment-debtor died, and J, his brother, and L, his son, were substituted as his representatives. In execution of the decree, only the share which had stood recorded in the name of the deceased judgment-debtor, and which was in possession of J and L as his representatives, was sold; and the decree-holder then applied for sale of the other shares which had been attached. To this B objected under s. 281 of the Civil Procedure Code, claiming to be the owner of the shares in question. Before the hearing of her objection she died, and L applied to have his name brought upon the record in her place for the purpose of supporting the objections. An order having been passed disallowing the objections which had been filed by B, L appealed to the High Court. A preliminary objection was taken on behalf of the decree-holder to the hearing of the appeal, on the ground that as the first Court's order related to L's claim, as the heir of B, to have the shares entered in her name released from attachment, it must be regarded as passed under s. 281 of the Civil Procedure Code, and as conclusive, subject to L's bringing a suit to establish his right. On the other side it was contended that L, being the representative of the deceased judgment-debtor, K, the first Court's order must be regarded as passed under s. 244 of the Code, and the appeal would, therefore, lie. Held that the preliminary objection must prevail, and the first Court's order must be regarded as passed under s. 281, and not under s. 244 of the Code, inasmuch as L's claim, which was rejected by it, was nothing more than to come in as B's representative for the purpose of supporting her objections; and it was in right of a third person, whose interest he asserted to have passed to him, that he prayed admission to the proceedings, and this character was wholly distinct from that he filled as the legal representative of his deceased father. Because L happened, for the purpose of the execution-proceedings, to be his father's legal representative, and be liable to satisfy the decree to the extent of any assets which might have come to his hands, it did not follow that any rights by him through a third person must be dealt with, and could only be dealt with, between him and the decree-holder in the execution-proceedings. Wahed Ali v. Jumara (1 B. L. R. 149), Ram Ghulam v. Hazaru Kuar (I. L. R., 7 All. 547), Sita Ram v. Bhagwan Das (I. L. R., 7 All. 733), Shaukar Dial v. Amir Haidar (I. L. R., 2 All. 752), Nath Mal Das v. Tajammul Husain (I. L. R., 7 All. 36), and Kanai Lal Khan v. Sashi Bhuson Biswas (I. L. R., 6 All. 777), referred to.—Bahori Lal v. Gauri Sahai, I. L. R., 8 All. 626. [Aug. 2, 1886.]

THE Court has power to award to a successful appellant interest upon an amount found on appeal to have been improperly levied in execution of a decree.—Ayyavayyar v. Shastaram Ayyar, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 506. [Aug. 20, 1886.]

R HAVING obtained a decree for money against K, the karnavan of the defendants, K died, and the defendants were made parties to the suit as representatives of K. Tarwad property was then attached by R, and the defendants having objected, the Court raised the attachment. It sued for a declaration that the property released was liable to be sold. Held that the suit was barred by s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Ravunni Menon v. Kunju Nayar, I. L. R., 10 Mad. 117. [Nov. 4, 1886.]

THE parties to a suit agreed upon a compromise the result of which was that the plaintiff obtained by the decree a greater quantity of land than he had originally claimed, and a decree was drawn up in accordance with the compromise. In the execution-proceedings, the defendant raised an objection that the plaintiff could not have execution for a greater quantity of land than he had claimed originally, and the Court executing the decree allowed the objection. No appeal from the Court's order was made, but the plaintiff brought a suit to recover possession of the larger amount of land mentioned in the compromise. Held that the order of the Court executing the decree was erroneous in law, and might properly be reconsidered upon an application for review; but that the present suit came within s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code, and, therefore, could not be maintained.—Mohibullah v. Imami, I. L. R., 9 All. 229. [Jan. 11, 1887.]

E.—Of the Mode of executing Decrees.

245. The Court, on receiving an application for the execution of a decree, shall ascertain whether such of the requirements of sections 235, 236, 237, and 238 as may be applicable to the case, have been complied with; Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

and if they have not been complied with, the Court may reject the application, or may allow it to be amended then and there, or within a time fixed by the Court. If the application be not so amended, it shall be rejected.

Every amendment made under this section shall be attested by the signature of the Judge.

When the application is admitted, the Court shall enter in the register of the suit a note of the application and the date on which it was made, and shall order execution of the decree according to the nature of the application :

Provided that, in the case of a decree for money, the value of the property attached shall, as nearly as may be, correspond with the amount for which the decree has been made.

On the 9th of April 1880, A applied for execution of a decree, which he had obtained against B. On the 20th of April 1880, the Judge of the Court, under the provisions of s. 245 of the Code of Civil Procedure, ordered the application to be amended within seven days. This order was disobeyed, but no order rejecting the application was asked for or passed. On the 11th of May 1880, the applicant prayed leave to make the amendment, which prayer was granted. Held that the order of the 11th of May 1880, granting leave to amend, was not ultra vires of the Judge, under the provisions of s. 245 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Kaminy Mohun Somoddar v. Gopal and another, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 479. [Mar. 8, 1882.]

A DECREE-HOLDER, on the 8th July 1885, applied for execution of a decree dated the 10th July 1873, omitting to set out specifically in such application a description of the immoveable property sought to be attached. On the 24th July he applied for and obtained one month's time to file a list of these properties; and on the 7th August, after filing the list, applied for the attachment and sale of such properties. The judgment-debtor contended that execution was barred by limitation. Held that the omission to file on the 8th July the list describing specifically the properties sought to be attached was a mere defect of description which could be remedied under s. 245 of the Code of Civil Procedure by allowing an amendment to be made; and, further, that the two applications of the 8th and 24th July should be considered as one entire application dating from the date of the 8th July. Syud Mahomed v. Syud Abedoolah (12 C. L. R. 279) followed.—Macgregor (J. C.) v. Tarini Churn Sircar, I. L. R., 14 Cal. 124. [Aug. 11, 1886.]

money be produced to the Court, execution shall be taken out only by the party who holds a decree for the larger sum, and for so much only as remains after deducting the smaller sum, and satisfaction for the smaller sum shall be entered on the decree for the larger sum as well as satisfaction on the decree for the smaller sum.

If the two sums be equal, satisfaction shall be entered upon both decrees. "

Explanation I.—The decrees contemplated by this section are decrees capable of execution at the same time and by the same Court.

Explanation II.—This section applies where either party is an assignee of one of the decrees, and as well in respect of judgment-debts due by the original assignor as in respect of judgment-debts due by the assignee himself.

Explanation III.—This section does not apply, unless the decree-holder in one of the suits in which the decrees have been made is the judgment-debtor in the other, and each party fills the same character in both suits; and the sums due under the decrees are definite.

(a.) A holds a decree against B for Rs. 1,000. B holds a decree against A for the payment of Rs. 1,000 in case A fails to deliver certain goods at a future day. B cannot treat his decree as a cross-decree under this section.

(b.) A and B, co-plaintiffs, obtain a decree for Rs. 1,000 against C, and C obtains a decree for Rs. 1,000 against B. C cannot treat his decree as a cross-decree under this section.

(c.) A obtains a decree against B for Rs. 1,000. C, who is a trustee for B, obtains a decree on behalf of B against A for Rs. 1,000. B cannot treat C's decree as a cross-decree under this section.

S AND two other persons hold a decree for costs against M which did not specify the separate interests of each in the decree, and M held a decree for money against S alone, which he wished to treat as a cross-decree under (Act X. of 1877), s. 246. Held that the decree held by S and the other persons was not a decree between the same parties as the parties to the decree held by M, and that his decree could not be treated as a cross-decree under that section.—Murli Dhar v. Parsotam Das, I. L. R., 2 All. 91. [Nov. 28, 1878.]

In April 1877, M sued S for money, and on the 10th May 1877, S sued M for money, both suits being instituted in the same Court. In the meantime, on the 9th May 1877, B applied for the attachment of the money claimed by M in his suit, and obtained an order prohibiting M from receiving, and S from paying, any sum which might be found in that suit to be due by S to M. On the 23rd June 1877, M obtained a decree in his suit against S, and S obtained a decree in his suit against M, S's decree being for the larger sum. On the same day, under the provisions of s. 209 of Act VIII. of 1859, satisfaction for the smaller sum was entered on both decrees, and execution taken out of S's decree for so much as remained due. At the same time S objected to B's attachment, but his objection was disallowed. Held, in a suit by S against B to have the order disallowing his objection set aside, and the property and legality of the set-off above-mentioned established, regard being had to the provisions of s. 209 of Act VIII. of 1859, that the attaching order of the 9th May could have no operative effect, and that, even if B had followed up that order, and attached M's decree against S, that step would not have put him in a better position, for the same section had been followed, and the decrees being essentially cross-decrees, that for the smaller sum became absorbed in the one for the larger, and attachment could not affect it.—Bujhwan Lall v. Sukhraj Rai, I. L. R., 2 All. 866. [April 30, 1880.]

S. 246 of the Civil Procedure Code is applicable to cross-decrees, and not to cross-claims under one decree. To make s. 247 of the Code applicable in the case of cross-claims under one decree, the parties entitled thereunder to recover from each other must hold the same character and possess identical rights of enforcing execution, and enforcement of the decree can only be refused, or satisfaction entered up, when this is the case. Held, therefore, where a decree for money of a Court of first instance directed that the money should be realisable from certain specific property of the defendant, and exempted his person and other property, and the lower Appellate Court modified this decree by extending it to the person of the defendant, and in second appeal the High Court set aside the lower Appellate Court's decree, and restored that of the first Court, directing that the costs of the defendant in the lower Appellate Court and in the High Court should be paid by the plaintiff, that, inasmuch as the plaintiff was only entitled to recover the judgment-debt due to him from the defendant from such specific property, whereas the defendant was entitled to recover the judgment-debt due to him from the plaintiff from his person and property, the provisions of s. 247 were not applicable.—Kalka Prasad v. Ram Din, I. L. R., 5 All. 272. [Jan. 17, 1883.]

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR may set-off against the amount of the decree against him the amount of a decree which he has obtained against the decree-holder and other persons.—Hury Doyal Guho v. Din Doyal Guho, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 479. [Jan. 29, 1883.]

AN order passed under s. 246 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1859, rejecting a claim after investigation, will, if not contested by suit by the claimant, estop him afterwards from pleading adverse possession at the date of the order in a suit brought to effect him by the decree-holder.—Veláiyuthan v. Lakshmana, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 506. [July 6, 1885.]

IF a Court ordering a sale in execution of a decree has jurisdiction, a purchaser of the property sold is not bound to inquire into the correctness of the order for execution, any more than into the correctness of the judgment upon which the execution issues. Notwithstanding anything in s. 246 of the Code of Civil Procedure, he is not bound to inquire whether the judgment-debtor holds a cross-decree of higher amount against the decree-holder any more than he is to inquire, in an ordinary case, whether the decree, under which execution has issued, has been satisfied or not. These are questions to be determined by the Court issuing execution. Where property, sold in execution of a valid decree, under the order of a competent Court, was purchased bona fide and for fair value, held that the mere existence of a cross-decree for a higher amount in favour of the judgment-debtor, without any question of fraud, would not support a suit by the latter against the purchaser to set aside the sale.—Rewa Mahton v. Ram Kishen Singh, I. L. R., 14 Cal. 18. [July 9, 1886.]

in consequence of more than one year having elapsed between the date of the decree and the application for execution, if the application be made within one year from the date of any decree passed on appeal from the decree sought to be executed, or of the last order against the party against whom execution is applied for, passed on any previous application for execution, or in consequence of the application being against the legal representative of the judgment-debtor, if upon a previous application for execution against the same person the Court has ordered execution to issue against him.

Explanation.—In this section the phrase “the Court” means the Court by which the decree was passed, unless the decree has been sent to another Court for execution, in which case it means such other Court.

WHEN a judgment-debtor has died after decree, but before application has been made to execute the decree, the Court, before directing the attachment and sale of any property to proceed, must issue a notice to the party against whom the execution is applied for, to show cause why the decree should not be executed against him, and its omission to do so will invalidate the entire subsequent proceedings. A judgment having been obtained by A against B, and B having died before application was made for execution, A applied for execution of his decree upon a tabular statement, in which the judgment-debtor was stated to be C, widow of B, and C was also described as the person against whom execution was sought. Upon this application, the property mentioned in the tabular statement was directed to be attached and sold, and it was accordingly sold in execution, and purchased by A. No notice under s. 248 of the Civil Procedure Code had been served upon C before issue of execution. Held that the application was improper ; that the order for attachment and sale should not have been made ; and that the Court which made it should have set the execution aside as soon as it became aware that no notice had issued previous to its issue. The fact of there being no section in the Code expressly authorising a Court to set aside its proceedings is immaterial, as every Court has an inherent right to see that its process is not abused or does not irregularly issue, and may set aside all irregular proceeding as a matter of course, provided that the interests of third parties are not affected. Semble.—Under s. 248, the fact that application to execute the decree had been made in the lifetime of B would make no difference, unless an order had been made and the property actually attached under it ; as whenever an application is made for execution against a legal representative of the judgment-debtor, the notice required by the section must be issued to him, unless the Court has already ordered execution to issue against him upon a previous application.—In the Matter of the Petition of Raméssuri Dasseé ; Raméssuri Dasseé v. Doorga Dass Chatterjee, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 103. [May 25, 1880.]

THE plaintiff obtained a decree in 1864. The first application for execution was made in September 1869, under s. 216 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act VIII. of 1859) ; and after notice to the defendant, as provided thereby, an order was made under that section for execution to issue. In September 1880, an application for execution was made under s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1877, which repealed Act VIII. of 1859. Held that the order after notice had the effect of reviving the decree within the meaning of art. 180, sch. 2, Act XV. of 1877, and therefore the decree was not barred by the law of limitation. An order for execution under the Code, made after notice to show cause, has, on the original side of the Court, the same effect as an award of execution in pursuance of a writ of scire facias had under the procedure of the Supreme Court—i. e., it creates revivor of the decree. The clause of s. 230 of Act X. of 1877, which prohibits a subsequent application for execution, only applies where the previous application has been made under that section, and not where such previous application has been made under Act VIII. of 1859.—Ashootosh Dutt v. Doorga Churn Chatterjee, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 504. [Dec. 20, 1880.]

THE omission to give the notice required by s. 248 of Act X. of 1877 to the judgment-debtor on application for the execution of the decree affects the regularity of the sale which subsequently takes place in execution of the decree, and the validity of the entire execution-proceedings. Ramesuri Dasseo v. Dorgadass Chatterjee (I. L. R., 6 Cal. 103) followed. Held, therefore, where execution of a decree was applied for against the legal representative of a deceased judgment-debtor, and the notice required by s. 248 of Act X. of 1877 was not given to such legal representative, and certain immoveable property belonging to the deceased judgment-debtor was sold, that such sale had been properly set aside by the Court executing the decree by reason of such omission. Quære.—Whether such omission was an irregularity in “publishing or conducting” the sale within the meaning of s. 311 of that Act.—Imam-un-nissa Bibi v. Liaquat Husain, I. L. R., 3 All. 424. [Jan. 10, 1881.]

ON the 4th March 1884, a decree-holder applied to the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Moorsshedabad (where the decree was passed) for transfer of the decree to the District Court of Beerbhoom for execution. The transfer was made, and, on application by the decree-holder, the judgment-debtor’s properties in Beerbhoom were attached. Thereupon the judgment-debtor objected to the attachment, and obtained an order under s. 239 of the Code of Civil Procedure, staying the execution-proceedings. The judgment-debtor then applied to the Court of the Subordinate Judge at Moorsshedabad objecting to the execution of the decree on the ground that it was barred by limitation. The objection was overruled by the Subordinate Judge; and his decision was upheld on appeal to the District Judge. On second appeal to the High Court, held that the Moorsshedabad Court was competent to hear and determine the plea of limitation. Held also that the fact of the judgment-debtor’s not raising the plea of limitation in the Beerbhoom Court did not, under the circumstances, preclude him from relying on it in his subsequent application to the Court at Moorsshedabad.—Sriharay Mundul v. Murari Chowdhry, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 257. [July 2, 1886.]

A, AND subsequently B, obtained decree against X, in execution of which the same land was attached, and B obtained an order for rateable distribution. Neither decree was satisfied. A then applied for attachment of other property, and the sale was fixed for 28th September. On 26th September B filed a petition for further attachment under ss. 250, 274, and also a petition for rateable distribution under s. 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The District Judge rejected the application for execution as being too late, and then the application under s. 295, because no application for execution was pending. Held, on appeal, that the petition for execution was wrongly rejected, but that the High Court could not, under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure, revise the order rejecting the application under s. 295 for rateable distribution.—Venkataraman v. Mahalingayyan, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 508. [Aug. 4, 1886.]

If he offers any objection to the enforcement of the decree, the Court shall consider such objection, and pass such order as it thinks fit.

Decree against representative of deceased for money to be paid out of deceased's property.

252. If the decree be against a party as the legal representative of a deceased person, and the decree be for money to be paid out of the property of the deceased, it may be executed by the attachment and sale of any such property :—

If no such property remains in the possession of the judgment-debtor, and he fails to satisfy the Court that he has duly applied such property of the deceased as is proved to have come into his possession, the decree may be executed against the judgment-debtor to the extent of the property not duly applied by him, in the same manner as if the decree had been against him personally.

A, a Muhammadan, died possessed of immoveable property, and leaving a widow, a daughter, and a sister, B, his heiresses according to Muhammadan law. B was entitled to one-sixth share of an undivided moiety of a certain portion of the property which was situated in Calcutta. After A's death, the L. Bank sued his daughter and her husband and two of her husband's brothers in a Mufassal Court to realise certain mortgage-securities executed by A to the Bank, and obtained a decree by consent. Neither the widow, nor B, who was then absent from the country, were parties to this suit. The Bank, in execution of their decree, caused certain property of A, including the undivided moiety of the Calcutta property, to be sold by the Sheriff of Calcutta. The defendant became the purchaser at this sale, and obtained possession of the property. The certificate of sale stated that what was sold was "the right, title, and interest of A, deceased, the ancestor, and of the defendants (naming them), the representatives, in a moiety of a piece of land situate," &c. B afterwards sold and assigned her share in (among other properties) the above-mentioned undivided moiety of the Calcutta property to the plaintiff, who now sued the purchaser at the execution-sale to recover the subject of his purchaser. Held by Garth, C.J., and Kemp and Jackson, JJ. (Markby and Ainslie JJ., dissenting), that the decree and the execution founded upon it did not affect the share of B in the estate of A, and consequently that the property in question did not pass to the defendant under the sale made by the Sheriff. Per Garth, C.J.—A decree by consent against one heir of a deceased debtor cannot, under the Muhammadan law, legally bind the other heirs. Per Markby, J.—Under the Muhammadan law, the estate of an intestate descends entire, together with all the debts due from and owing to the deceased. The creditor of an intestate Muhammadan must enforce his claim against the estate in a suit properly framed for the purpose. Such a suit is properly framed if all the persons in possession of that particular portion of the estate which it is intended to charge are made parties to it. The right of a Muhammadan heir claiming the property of his deceased ancestor who died indebted is a right of representation only, and, except as representative, he has no right to the property whatsoever. A person may be a representative within the meaning of s. 203 of Act VIII. of 1859 (corresponding with s. 252 of Act X. of 1877), so as to make the decree effectual for the purpose therein stated, although that person is not the heir.—Assanatham Nessa Bibee v. Roy Lutcheemput Singh, I. L. R., 4 Cal. 112. [May 13, 1878.]

A PLAINTIFF is entitled to sue the legal representative of his deceased debtor and to obtain a decree against him, without proving that assets have come into his hands. It is sufficient if there are assets of which he may become possessed. The decree should mention that it is against the defendant in that character, and should be executed as directed by s. 252 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882). *Ráyáppá Chetti v. 253. Whenever a person has, before the passing of a decree in an original suit, become liable as surety for the performance of the same or of any part thereof, the decree may be executed against him to the extent to which he has rendered himself liable, in the same manner as a decree may be executed against a defendant:

Provided that such notice in writing as the Court in each case thinks sufficient has been given to the surety.

IN consideration of the plaintiffs being allowed to proceed with the execution of a decree which they had obtained in the High Court, A became surety upon a bond for the payment of what might be due to the defendants by such plaintiffs in the event of their decrees being reversed or modified by the Privy Council, to which an appeal was then pending. Held that the summary procedure under s. 204 of Act VIII. of 1859 might be enforced against A as such surety. Compare Act X. of 1877, s. 253.—Chunder Kant Mookerjee v. Ram Coomar Coondoo, 3 C. L. R. 505. [Dec. 19, 1878.]

AN appeal was preferred to the Privy Council from a final decree passed upon appeal by the High Court, and B and certain other persons on behalf of the appellant gave security for the costs of the respondent. The Privy Council dismissed the appeal, and ordered the appellant to pay the costs of the respondent. The respondent applied to the Court of first instance for the execution of that order against B and the other persons as sureties. Held that under Act X. of 1877, ss. 610 and 253, such order could be executed against the sureties.—Bans Bahadur Singh v. Mughla Bogam, I. L. R., 2 All. 604. [Jan. 3, 1880.]

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR, whose property was about to be sold, appeared before the officer appointed to conduct the sale, and applied for its postponement, producing a surety and a bond, in which such surety promised to pay the amount of the decree within one year, if the judgment-debtor did not do so. Such officer thereupon applied to the District Judge to postpone the sale, stating that such surety was willing to pay the amount of the decree by instalments within one year, and forwarding such bond. The District Judge ordered the sale to be postponed, and the papers to be sent to the Munsif who had made the decree and ordered the sale of the property. The Munsif made no order regarding the security, but merely made an order that the amount of the decree should be paid by instalments within one year. The judgment-debtor did not pay the amount of the decree within the time fixed, and the decree-holder therefore applied for execution of the decree against such surety. Held that, inasmuch as the decree-holder had not been a party to the proceedings of the sale-officer or of the District Judge, and as the parties had not appeared before the Munsif, and as such surety had not agreed to pay the amount of the decree by instalments, the provisions of s. 210 of Act X. of 1877 were not applicable, and such surety had not become a party to the decree as altered by the Munsif; that such surety had not made himself a party to the decree by promising to pay its amount within one year; and that therefore his liability was not one which could be enforced in execution of the decree under s. 253 of Act X. of 1877.—Chandan Kuar v. Tirkha Ram, I. L. R., 3 All. 809. [May 17, 1881.]

IN 1874 the execution of the decree of an Appellate Court was stayed pending an application for review of judgment, upon the judgment-debtor giving security for the execution of the decree, and a surety was accepted on his behalf. Held that the judgment-creditor could not proceed summarily against the surety under the provisions of s. 253 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882.—Balaji v. Ranasami, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 284. [Oct. 19, 1883.]

A PLAINTIFF, having preferred an appeal to Her Majesty in Council, was called upon to furnish security. Thereupon A, on behalf of appellant, executed a security-bond for the costs of the respondent. The appeal was dismissed with costs by Her Majesty in Council. On an application (by the respondent in the appeal) for execution to issue against the estate of A, the surety (who had died in the meantime), held that the liability of the surety under the security-bond could not be enforced in execution of the decree of Her Majesty in Council. Bans Bahadur Singh v. Mughla Begum (I. L. R., 3 Mad. 107) dissented from.—Badha Pershad Singh v. Phuljuri Koer, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 402. [July 3, 1885.]

S. 253 of the Civil Procedure Code contemplates a suit pending at the time security is given for performance of the decree, and does not apply to a case where the litigation in the Courts of first instance and of first appeal has ended, and no second appeal has been instituted in the High Court when security is given. The holder of a decree affirmed on appeal by the District Court took out execution to recover costs awarded. Costs were deposited by the judgment-debtor and paid to the decree-holder, and a surety gave a bond by which he undertook to refund the amount to the judgment-debtor in the event of the latter succeeding in appeal to the High Court and of the decree-holder failing to repay him. The judgment-debtor subsequently filed an appeal to the High Court and was successful, and he then applied in the execution-department to recover the amount from the surety. Held that the Court executing the High Court's decree had no jurisdiction to execute it against the surety.—*Hardeo Das v. A SUIT on a bond in which immoveable property was hypothecated was adjusted by the defendant agreeing to pay the amount claimed and costs, with interest, by instalments within a fixed time, and that, in the event of default, the plaintiff should be at liberty to bring such property to sale. The Court made a decree ordering the defendant to pay the plaintiff the amount claimed and costs, with interest, "in accordance with" such agreement. Held (Turner, J., and Oldfield, J., dissenting) that such decree was a mere money-decree, and not one which gave the plaintiff a lien on such property.—Janki Prasad v. Baldeo Narain, I. L. R., 3 All. 216. [June 30, 1876.]

Agreement to give time to debt shall be void, unless it is made for consideration and with the sanction of the Court which passed the decree, and such Court deems the consideration to be under the circumstances reasonable.

Every agreement for the satisfaction of a judgment-debt, which provides Agreement for satisfaction for the payment, directly or indirectly, of any sum of judgment-debt. in excess of the sum due or to accrue due under the decree, shall be void, unless it is made with the like sanction.

Any sum paid in contravention of the provisions of this section shall be applied to the satisfaction of the judgment-debt; and the surplus (if any) shall be recoverable by the judgment-debtor.

ON the 27th August 1878, the holder of a decree for money and the judgment-debtor agreed that the amount of the decree should be payable by instalments, and that, if default were made in payment of any one instalment, the whole decree should be executed. The Court executing the decree sanctioned this agreement. On the 28th November 1881, default having been made, the decree-holder applied for recovery of the whole amount of the decree. Held that the application was not one to which art. 179, sch. 2 of the Limitation Act, 1877, was applicable, but art. 178, and the period of limitation began to run from the date of default. The principle recognized in Raghubans' Gir v. Sheosaran Gir (I. L. R., 5 All. 243) and Kalyanbhai Dipchand v. Ghunashamlal Jadunathji (I. L. R., 5 Bom. 29) applied.—Sham Karan v. Piari, I. L. R., 5 All. 596. [May 18, 1881.]

THE provisions of s. 257A of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1877, apply only as between parties to the decree.—Yella v. Munisami, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 101. [Nov. 10, 1882.]

THE decree-holder and judgment-debtor of a decree filed a petition, "sulehnama," in the Court executing the decree, praying that the Court would sanction an arrangement providing for the payment of the decree by instalments, and enhancing the rate of interest made payable by the decree. The Court sanctioned the arrangement. Held that the "sulehnama" was within s. 257A of the Civil Procedure Code, and the decree might be executed in accordance with its provisions.—Sita Ram v. Dasrath Das, I. L. R., 5 All. 492. [Mar. 6, 1883.]

G, THE father of the plaintiff, obtained two decrees—one against the defendant A and his father, and the other against A's father alone—and in satisfaction of these decrees obtained a bond without the sanction of the Court, and brought a suit to recover the sum due under the said bond. Held that the bond was void under the second clause of s. 257A of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882).—Ganesh Shivram v. Abdullabeg, I. L. R., 8 Bom. 538. • [June 19, 1884.]

THE parties to a decree for money, dated the 14th July 1871, entered into a compromise, whereby, in lieu of a portion of the decretal money, the decree-holder was placed in possession of certain property, and the remainder of the decretal money was to be paid by fixed annual instalments, and in case of default in the payment of any instalment, it was agreed that the entire amount should become immediately realizable by execution of the decree. On the 11th December 1882, the decree-holder, alleging default in payment of the instalments, applied for execution of the compromise. Held that such an agreement could not be treated as an instalment-decree, and, as such, capable of execution. Debi Rai v. Gokal Prasad (I. L. R., 5 All. 585) followed.—Ramlakhon Rai v. Bakhtaar Rai, I. L. R., 6 All. 623. [July 11, 1884.]

AN agreement entered into to pay interest not awarded by a decree in addition to the sum decreed without the sanction of the Court which passed the decree is void under section 257A of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882), so far as it operates in satisfaction of the judgment-debt. When the void part of an agreement can be properly separated from the rest, the latter does not become invalid; but where the parties themselves treat debts—void as well as valid—as a lump sum, the Court will regard the contract as an integral one, and wholly void, upon which neither the principal nor the sureties can be sued.—Davalatsingh v. Pandu, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 176. [Nov. 28, 1884.]

THE provisions of s. 257A of Act XIV. of 1882 are intended to prevent binding agreements between judgment-debtors and judgment-creditors for extending the time for enforcing decrees by execution, without consideration, and without the sanction of the Court; and are not intended to prevent the parties from entering into a fresh contract for the payment of the judgment-debt by instalments or otherwise.—Jhavar Mahomed v. Modan Sonahar, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 671. [June 23, 1885.]

ON the 22nd March 1886, the applicant presented an application to a Subordinate Judge, praying that the adjustment of certain decrees, dated the 28th March 1867, and 11th July 1871, might be certified, and a sanction granted to a sankhat, dated 18th March 1880, passed to him by the defendant in satisfaction of the said decrees and on substitution of two bonds dated February 1879. The Subordinate Judge, being of opinion that the application could not be granted, inasmuch as the execution of the decrees was then barred by limitation, referred the case to the High Court under s. 617 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882). Held that the question could not be referred under s. 617 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) as the order applied for to the Subordinate Judge was appealable under s. 2 of the Code. The question raised by the application related to the satisfaction of the decree within the meaning of s. 244 of the Code.—Rangji v. Harjivan, I. L. R., 11 Bom. 57. [July 22, 1886.]

258. If any money payable under a decree is paid out of Court, or the decree is otherwise adjusted in whole or in part to the satisfaction of the decree holder, or if any payment is made in pursuance of an agreement of the nature mentioned in section 257A, the decree-holder shall certify such payment or adjustment to the Court whose duty it is to execute the decree.

The judgment debtor also may inform the Court of such payment or adjustment, and apply to the Court to issue a notice to the decree-holder to show cause, on a day to be fixed by the Court, why such payment or adjustment should not be recorded as certified; and if, after due service of such notice, the decree-holder fails to appear on the day fixed, or, having appeared, fails to show cause why the payment or adjustment should not be recorded as certified, the Court shall record the same accordingly.

No such payment or adjustment shall be recognized by any Court unless it has been certified as aforesaid.

N, HAVING obtained a decree in a suit against K, requested him to discharge certain sums due on outstanding bonds which N had given to third parties, promising to credit the sums so paid to the amount due under the aforesaid decree. K paid as requested, but N took out execution in full of the decree, and the Court refused to recognize the payments made by K out of Court. In a suit by K for the money paid as aforesaid, held that the payments not having been made directly in adjustment of a decree, the suit was not barred.—Kunhi Moidin Kutti v. Ramenunni, I. L. R., 1 Mad. 203. [Feb. 15, 1876.]

A DECREE-HOLDER, who, although he has settled with his judgment-debtor out of Court, yet nevertheless sues out execution against him, will be liable to an action for damages at the hands of the judgment-debtor. S. 244 or s. 258 of Act X. of 1877 have made no change in the law in this respect.—Guni Khan v. Koonjo Behary Sein, 3 C. L. R. 414. [Aug. 14, 1878.]

WHERE a judgment-debtor has, out of the Court, partly satisfied his decree-holder subsequent to the transmission of the decree for execution to another Court, but before actual execution has been applied for, he is entitled, on execution in full being demanded, to an order from the Court to which the decree is transferred for execution, calling upon the decree-holder to certify the fact of such part-payment.—Rajendronath Roy Bahadur v. Chunnoomul and Kalee Churn Lahoree, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 448. [Dec. 10, 1879.]

THE provisions of s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act VIII. of 1859) only prevent the Court executing the decree from recognizing a payment made out of Court, and do not bar a suit for the refund of such payment. G held a decree against D, who satisfied it out of Court, and obtained a receipt from G to the effect that it was satisfied. Notwithstanding this, G executed the decree, and recovered the amount of it through the Court, although D pleaded satisfaction in the execution-proceedings, and produced the receipt. In a suit brought by D against G for refund of the money received by G out of Court, the defendant contended that the suit was not maintainable. Held that it was maintainable according to the law as it stood before the passing of Act XII. of 1879. Gunamani v.

Paran Kishore (5 B. L. R. 223) and Gulawad v. Rahimtulla (4 Bom. H. C. R. 76) followed. Quere.—Whether such a suit is maintainable under s. 36 of Act XII. of 1879, which has been substituted for s. 258 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877). Held also that the statement contained in the receipt passed by G to D, to the effect that the decree had been satisfied, was sufficient to shift the burden of proof to the defendant to show that it was an incorrect statement.—Davalátá v. Ganesh Shástrí, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 295. [Feb. 3, 1880.]

M, who held a decree against S for possession of certain immoveable property and costs, assigned such decree to S by way of sale, agreeing to deliver the same to him on payment of the balance of the purchase-money. He subsequently applied for execution of decree against S, claiming the costs which it awarded. S thereupon paid the amount of such costs into Court, and, having obtained stay of execution, sued M for such decree, claiming by virtue of such assignment. The lower Court held that the suit was barred by the provisions of s. 244 of Act X. of 1877, and also, treating such assignment as an uncertified adjustment of such decree, that it was barred by the terms of the last paragraph of s. 258 of that Act. Held, that the suit was not barred by anything in either of those sections. The words "any Court" in the last paragraph of s. 258 refer to proceedings in execution and to the Court or Courts executing a decree.—Sita Ram v. Mahiphal, I. L. R., 3 All. 533. [Feb. 21, 1881.]

S, ALLEGING that a money-decree against him, held by G, had been adjusted out of Court by a payment in cash and delivery of certain property, and that M had, notwithstanding such adjustment, applied for execution of such decree, and recovered the amount thereof, as the Court executing such decree had refused to determine whether it had been satisfied on the ground that such adjustment had not been certified, sued M for the money which he had paid him out of Court. Held that the suit was not barred by the provisions of s. 244 of Act X. of 1877, or s. 258 of that Act. The last paragraph of s. 258 means that the Court executing the decree shall not recognize an uncertified payment or adjustment out of Court. It does not prohibit a suit for money paid to a decree-holder out of Court, and the payment of which, not being certified, could not be recognized, and which the decree-holder had not returned, but had misappropriated, by taking out execution of the decree a second time, and securing the amount in full through the Court.—Shádi Ganga Sahai, I. L. R., 3 All. 538. [Feb. 28, 1881.]

AN adjustment of a decree not certified to the Court by either party within the time limited by law cannot be recognized as a bar to execution.—Chedumbara Pillai v. Ratna Ammal, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 113. [Mar. 1, 1881.]

IN 1878, a decree-holder, having received certain grain from the judgment-debtor in satisfaction of the decree, failed to certify satisfaction of the decree to the Court in accordance with the provisions of s. 258 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1877, and executed the decree nevertheless. In a suit for damages against the decree-holder it was held that the judgment-debtor's remedy for the wrong suffered was not taken away by the provisions of ss. 244 and 258 of the Code.—Vírarághava Reddi v. Subbakká, I. L. R., 5 Mad. 397. [May 11, 1881.]

WHERE a decree-holder, declared to be entitled to possession of certain lands, subsequent to decree executed a pattá in favour of his judgment-debtor, who was then in possession, and afterwards took out execution under his decree, held (on an objection by the judgment-debtor that, under these circumstances, he was entitled to possession) that satisfaction of the decree not having been entered up, such objection could not be dealt with under s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held also that s. 258 of the Civil Procedure Code deals with the adjustment of any decree, and not merely with the adjustment of a money-decree.—Baba Mohamed v. Webb, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 786. [July 19, 1881.]

A SUIT for the recovery of money paid to a judgment-creditor out of Court in satisfaction of a decree, but not certified, is barred by s. 244 (c) of Act X. of 1877, and by the last paragraph of s. 258 as amended by Act XII. of 1879.—Pátankar v. Devji, I. L. R., 6 Bom. 146. [Jan. 24, 1882.]

CERTAIN immoveable property having been attached in execution of a decree for money, dated in 1879, directing the sale of such property, T, who had purchased such property in 1880, objected to the attachment. His objection having been disallowed, he sued to establish his right to the property and for the removal of the attachment. He claimed on the ground, amongst others, that the decree of 1879 had been wholly adjusted. The alleged adjustment had not been certified under s. 258 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held that the provisions of that section did not debar the Courts trying the suit from determining as between T and the decree-holder whether the decree of 1879 had been adjusted or not. Sita Ram v. Mahipal (I. L. R., 3 All. 533) and Shadi v. Ganga Sahai (I. L. R., 3 All. 535) followed.—Tegh Singh v. Amin Chand, I. L. R., 5 All. 269. [Jan. 12, 1883.]

ON an application for execution for the full amount due under a decree by some of several joint decree-holders, the judgment-debtor objected to execution being granted for the full amount of the decree on the ground that he had already paid off a large portion of the money due under the decree to B, one of the joint decree-holders. The payment was made out of Court, but B, who claimed to be entitled to a 12½-anna share in the decree, certified the payment in the manner prescribed by s. 258 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), and represented that his claim had been satisfied in full. The other joint decree-holders denied B's right to the 12½-anna share claimed by him, and refused to recognize the payment said to have been made to him. The lower Court disallowed the objection, and granted execution for the full amount of the decree. Held that, regard being had to the provisions of the General Clauses Act (I. of 1868), the word "decree-holder" in s. 258 of Act XIV. of 1882 should be read in the plural, and looking at the provisions of s. 231 of the later Act, the Court ought not to recognize payments made out of Court, unless made and certified for the benefit of all the joint decree-holders of any portion of the decree in excess of that to which the decree-holder so paid is undisputedly entitled. Held also that a judgment-debtor is entitled to credit for any sum paid bond fide to one of several joint decree-holders, and duly certified to the Court by the latter, and that the other joint decree-holders cannot execute the decree for more than their own share. Held further that in this case the lower Court was wrong in wholly ignoring the payment certified by the decree-holder B, and that it should have determined, first, whether the payment to B was a fraud on the other joint decree-holders; and, secondly, what amount the latter were entitled to have out of the whole decree, the latter being the main question between the applicants for execution and the judgment-debtor, and, as such, clearly within the scope of s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code. See Ranee Nyna Koor v. Doolee Chund (22 W. R. 77), Brojeswari Chowdhranee v. Tripoora Soonderee Debi (3 C. L. R. 513), and Mahima Chandra Roy v. Pvari Mohan Chowdhry (2 B. L. R., Ap. 43).—Tarruck Chunder Bhuttacharjee v. Divendro Nath Sanyal, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 831. [April 5, 1883.]

THE holder of a money-decree agreed to accept, in satisfaction of the amount thereof, a part-payment in cash, and a lease of certain lands for five years, rent-free. The judgment-debtor made the payment, and gave the lease agreed on. Afterwards the decree-holder executed the decree against the judgment-debtor, and then the judgment-debtor brought the present suit for a declaration that the money-decree was satisfied, and for damages against the decree-holder. Held that such a suit would lie. Gunamani Dasi v. Prankishori Dasi (5 B. L. R. 223), Viraraghava Reddi v. Subbaka (I. L. R., 5 Mad. 397), Chembrakandi Musutti v. Themdyal Puthulath Shekharan Nayar (I. L. R., 6 Mad. 41), Sita Ram v. Mahipal (I. L. R., 3 All. 533), Shadi v. Gunga Sahai (I. L. R., 3 All. 538), and Ishan Chunder Bundopadhyay v. Indro Narain Gossami (I. L. R., 9 Cal. 788), followed; Patankar v. Devji (I. L. R., 6 Bom. 146) not followed.—Poromanand Khasnabish v. Khepoo Paramanick, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 354. [Jan. 30, 1884.]

THE plaintiff held a decree against the defendant, and in execution of it attached the defendant's property. A compromise was then made, by which the defendant executed to the plaintiff the bond sued upon, in satisfaction of the judgment-debt. The compromise, however, was not certified to the Court. Held that the bond was without consideration. The adjustment of the decree, not having been certified to the Court, was not binding on the plaintiff, and therefore constituted no valid consideration.—Pándurang Rámchandra v. Náráyan, I. L. R., 8 Bom. 300. [Feb. 7, 1884.]

THE provision in s. 258 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, which forbids any Court to recognize a payment under, or an adjustment of, a decree, unless certified to the Court executing the decree, does not debar a suit for damages for a breach of a contract to certify.—Mallamma v. Venkappa, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 277. [Dec. 20, 1884.]

A DECREE passed against the defendant in a suit, dated the 13th March 1877, directed "that the plaintiff should recover the decree-money by instalments agreeably to the terms of the deed of compromise, and he, in case of default, should recover in a lump sum." The compromise mentioned in the decree provided that the amount in dispute should be paid in ten instalments, from 1284 to 1294 fasli the first to be paid on the 27th May 1877 (1284 fasli), and the remaining nine instalments on Jaith Paramashi of each succeeding fasli year. On the 1st September 1883, the decree-holders applied for execution of the decree, alleging that the first four instalments had been paid, but not any of the succeeding instalments; and they claimed to recover, under the terms of the decree, the fifth and all the remaining instalments in a lump sum. The judgment-debtors contended that the application was barred by limitation, as they had not paid a single instalment, and more than three years had elapsed from the date of the first default; and that, even if the first four instalments had been paid, such payments could not be recognized by the Court, as they had not been certified. Held, reversing the decision of the lower Appellate Court, that if the four annual instalments had not been paid under the decree, the execution of the decree was barred by limitation. Held also that recognition of such instalment was not barred by the terms of s. 258 of the Civil Procedure Code. Sham Lal v. Kanahia Lal (I. L. R., 4 All. 316) and Fakir Chand Bose v. Madan Mohan Ghose (4 B. L. R. 130) followed.—Zahur Khan v. Bukhtawar, I. L. R., 7 All. 327. [Jan. 7, 1885.]

In determining under s. 258 of Act XIV. of 1882 whether or no the cause shown by the decree-holder is sufficient, it is incumbent upon the Court to investigate and decide any questions of fact upon which the parties may not be agreed. In such an investigation the evidence may be given either orally or by affidavit. The term "to show cause" does not mean merely to allege causes, nor even to make out that there is room for argument, but both to allege cause and to prove it to the satisfaction of the Court.—Bung Lal v. Hem Narain Gir, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 166. [Jan. 7, 1885.]

In the course of proceedings in execution of a decree, dated the 14th June 1878, the parties, on the 11th January 1881, entered into an agreement, which was registered, and filed in the Court executing the decree. The deed recited that the decree was under execution, and that a mortgage-bond, dated the 1st December 1873, in favour of the judgment-debtor by a third party, had been attached and advertized for sale, and that the decree-holder and judgment-debtor had arranged the following method of satisfying the decree: that the judgment-debtor should make over the said bond to the decree-holder, in order that he might bring a suit thereon at his own expense against the obligor, and realize the amount secured by the bond, and out of the amount realized satisfy the decree under execution, with costs and future interest, together with all costs of the suit to be brought against the obligor, and together with a sum due by the judgment-debtor to the decree-holder under a note of hand for Rs. 250 with interest; and other details which need not be stated. On the same day that deed was executed, the decree-holder filed a petition in the Court, to the effect that under the agreement an arrangement had been made for payment of the judgment-debt, by which the judgment-debtor made over to him the bond advertized for sale, in order that the petitioner should file a suit under it at his own cost against the obligor, and realize the debt due under the decree in execution with interest and costs; and he prayed that the sale to be held that day might be postponed, and the application for execution struck off for the present, and the previous attachment maintained, and stating that, after realization of the amount entered in the bond advertized for sale, an application for execution would be duly filed. On this the order was that the execution-case be struck off the file, and the attachment maintained. On the 24th December 1883, the decree-holder applied for execution of the decree, alleging that the judgment-debtor had failed to make over the bond to him according to the agreement. The judgment-debtor objected that the decree was no longer capable of execution, having been superseded by the agreement of the 11th January 1881, and that the application was barred by limitation, the previous application being dated the 9th November 1880. Held that the application was within time, inasmuch as the acknowledgment in the deed of the 11th January 1881 came within the terms of s. 19 of the Limitation Act, so as to originate a fresh period of limitation in respect of the execution of the decree. Ghan-sham v. Mukha (I. L. R., 3 All. 320), Janki Prasad v. Ghulam Ali (I. L. R., 5 All. 201), and Ramhit Rai v. Satgur Rai (I. L. R., 3 All. 247), followed. Per Oldfield, J.—That the agreement of the 11th January 1881 did not contemplate, and had not the effect of cancelling the decree and substituting for it a new contract, inasmuch as the deed contained nothing to the effect that the decree was superseded; and all it did was to provide means by which the decree, together with another small sum due by the judgment-debtor to the decree-holder, might be satisfied without having recourse to the sale of the bond attached, and the effect would be that, on realization, satisfaction would be certified in whole or in part to the Court executing the decree. Further, if the agreement was to be regarded as within the meaning of an adjustment of the decree under s. 258 of the Civil Procedure Code, it could only be recognized by the Court when certified by the decree-holder or judgment-debtor: and, in this case, the only certification which was made was by the decree-holder by his petition of 11th January 1881, which was in respect of a temporary arrangement under which the decree remained in force. Per Mahmood, J.—That the agreement of the 11th January 1881 was intended by the parties as a performance of the obligation created by the decree by substituting a fresh obligation founded upon contract, but that the deed could not be regarded as such an adjustment of the decree as satisfied the requirements of s. 258 of the Civil Procedure Code, because the creditor, whilst admitting the creation of a separate contract, took care to say that the decree was to be kept alive, and the attachment thereunder was to subsist; and that therefore the certification of the adjustment was inadequate, and could not be recognized in executing the decree.—Fateh Muhammad v. Gopal Das, I. L. R., 7 All. 424. [Feb. 2, 1885.]

THE provisions of s. 257A of Act XIV. of 1882 are intended to prevent binding agreements between judgment-debtors and judgment-creditors for extending the time for enforcing decrees by execution, without consideration, and without the sanction of the Court; and are not intended to prevent the parties from entering into a fresh contract for the payment of the judgment-debt by instalments or otherwise.—Jhabar Mahomed v. Modan Sonahar, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 671. [June 23, 1885.]

S. 258 of the Code of Civil Procedure, which provides that no payment or adjustment of a decree not certified to the Court, as in the said section provided, shall be recognized by any Court, does not debar a Criminal Court from recognizing such payment where the decree-holder is charged with fraudulently executing a satisfied decree.—Queen-Empress v. Pillala, J. L. R., 9 Mad. 101. [Oct. 6, 1885.]

UNDER ss. 244 (cl. c) and 258 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) no compromise of a decree which has not been duly certified under the provisions of the last mentioned section can be recognized by any Court, and a separate suit to enforce such compromise is not maintainable.—Hormasji Dorabji Vaniá v. Burjoji Jamsetji Vaniá, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 155. [Jan. 21, 1886.]

THE rule of Civil Procedure contained in the last clause of s. 258 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882)—that uncertified adjustments of a decree are not to be recognized by “any Court”—does not affect the substantive criminal law. The words “any Court” in that clause have no application to a Criminal Court investigating a charge of fraudulently executing a decree under s. 210 of the Indian Penal Code (Act XLV. of 1860). Those words do not bar any criminal remedy which an injured judgment-debtor may have against a fraudulent decree-holder, whether by a prosecution under ss. 193, 210, 406, or any other section of the Indian Penal Code. In s. 210 of the Indian Penal Code the word “satisfied” is to be understood in its ordinary meaning, and not as referring to decrees, the satisfaction of which has been certified to the Court. Under s. 235 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882) the decree-holder, or the party who applies for execution, is bound to state in his application any adjustment between the parties after decree, whether such adjustment has or has not been previously certified to the Court. Intentional omission to make such statement amounts to an offence under s. 193 of the Indian Penal Code (Act XLV. of 1860). S. 199 of the Penal Code (Act XLV. of 1860) does not apply to applications for execution containing false averments.—Queen-Empress v. Bápui Dayáram, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 288. [Feb. 18, 1886.]

Held, following T. D. Bandyopadhyaya v. B. L. Mukhopadaya (I. L. R., 12 Cal. 608) (Tyrrell, J., doubting), that an application made by a decree-holder, the object of which is that the receipt of certain sums of money paid out of Court may be certified, is a “step in aid of execution,” such as will keep the decree alive, within the meaning of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877), sch. 2, No. 179 (4). Gunsham v. Mukh (I. L. R., 3 All. 320) referred to.—Muhammad Husain Khan v. Rām Sarup, I. L. R., 9 All. 9. [July 12, 1886.]

On the 22nd March 1886, the applicant presented an application to a Subordinate Judge, praying that the adjustment of certain decrees, dated the 28th March 1867, and 11th July 1871, might be certified, and a sanction granted to a sankhat, dated 18th March 1880, passed to him by the defendant in satisfaction of the said decrees and in substitution of two bonds dated February 1870. The Subordinate Judge, being of opinion that the application could not be granted, inasmuch as the execution of the decrees was then barred by limitation, referred the case to the High Court under s. 617 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882). Held that the question could not be referred under s. 617 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), as the order applied for to the Subordinate Judge was appealable under s. 2 of the Code. The question raised by the application related to the satisfaction of the decree within the meaning of s. 244 of the Code.—Rangji v. Harjivan, I. L. R., 11 Bom. 57. [July 22, 1886.]

UNDER s. 258 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) no Court can recognize an uncertified adjustment of a decree for any juridical purpose whatever. A suit will not lie to enforce an uncertified agreement of adjustment of a decree against a judgment-debtor, the consideration for which is, that it shall operate in satisfaction of the decree; as there is, in that case, no consideration which the Court can recognize, and, therefore, no valid consideration for the judgment-debtor's agreement. The plaintiff was the assignee of a decree obtained by one Hájí Oomár Khamesá against the defendants on the 5th May 1883. By that decree, Hájí Oomár Khamesá was declared entitled to recover Rs. 9,961-5-8, with interest at nine per cent. from the defendants; and payment was ordered to be made to him of the said sum by weekly instalments of Rs. 200. In order to secure the payment of the said instalments, the defendants were required to execute a mortgage to Hájí Oomár Khamesá of certain property, with power to him to sell the same, and to execute the decree for the whole amount, in case of default, for six months. Haji Oomár Khamesá assigned the decree to the plaintiff in the present suit, and, subsequent to the assignment (viz. on the 21st July 1888), the defendants executed to the plaintiff the mortgage on which the present suit was brought. The mortgage-deed, after reciting the above facts, stated that the defendants had agreed to satisfy the amount of the decree, and it contained a covenant, by the defendants, that they would pay Rs. 9,961-5-6, with interest at six per cent., by monthly instalments of Rs. 400 from the 21st August 1888. The mortgage, therefore, differed from the decree, both with regard to the instalments and the rate of interest. The plaintiff sued to recover the sum of Rs. 4,207, being the amount of instalments due to him under the said mortgage. Held that the suit would not lie, as the mortgage was an adjustment of the decree, and had not been certified to the Court, as required by s. 258 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882).—Haji Abdul Rahiman v. Khoja Kháki Aruth, I. L. R., 11 Bom. 6. [Aug. 13, 1886.]

259. If the decree be for any specific moveable, or for any share in a specific moveable, or for the recovery of a wife, it may be enforced by the seizure, if practicable, of the moveable or share, and by the delivery thereof to the party to whom it has been adjudged, or to such person as he appoints to receive delivery on his behalf, or by the imprisonment of the judgment-debtor, or by attaching his property, or by both imprisonment and attachment if necessary.

Extending to Provincial S. Courts (except so far as relates to recovery of wives).

When any attachment under this section has remained in force for six months, if the judgment-debtor has not obeyed the decree, and the decree-holder has applied to have the attached property sold, such property may be sold, and out of the proceeds the Court may award to the decree-holder, in cases where any amount has been fixed under section 208, such amount, and, in other cases, such compensation, as it thinks fit, and shall pay the balance (if any) to the judgment-debtor on his application.

If the judgment-debtor has obeyed the decree and paid all costs of executing the same which he is bound to pay, or if, at the end of six months from the date of the attachment, no application to have the property sold has been made, or, if made, has been refused, the attachment shall cease to exist.

A, who had been directed by a decree to refrain from preventing her daughter returning to her husband, after the date of the decree permitted her daughter, who was of age, to reside in her house. Held that such conduct on the part of A was no such evidence of interference with her daughter's return as would justify the execution of the decree against her, under the provisions of s. 200 of Act VIII. of 1859 (corresponding with ss. 259 and 260, Act XIV. of 1882).—Ajnasi Kuar v. Suraj Parshad, I. L. R., I All. 501. [Nov. 14, 1877.]

260. When the party against whom a decree for the specific performance of a contract, or for restitution of conjugal rights, or for the performance of, or abstinence from, any other particular act, has been made, has had an opportunity of obeying the decree or injunction, and has wilfully failed to obey it, the decree may be enforced by his imprisonment, or by the attachment of his property, or by both.

When any attachment under this section has remained in force for one year, if the judgment-debtor has not obeyed the decree, and the decree-holder has applied to have the attached property sold, the property may be sold; and out of the proceeds the Court may award to the decree-holder such compensation as it thinks fit, and may pay the balance (if any) to the judgment-debtor on his application.

If the judgment-debtor has obeyed the decree, and paid all costs of executing the same, which he is bound to pay, or if, at the end of one year from the date of the attachment, no application to have the property sold has been made and granted, the attachment shall cease to exist.

By a decree relating to certain joint property belonging to the plaintiff and defendant, but which had previously been held in the sole name of the defendant, it was directed that the plaintiff and defendant should jointly manage the property, and that the names of both should appear in all papers connected with such property. The plaintiff subsequently applied to have his name registered in the collectorate, but was opposed by the defendant, who, it appeared, also allowed the amlahs of the estate to continue to use his sole name. Held that the Court had, under the circumstances, jurisdiction under s. 260 of the Civil Procedure Code to attach the defendant's property until he had obeyed the decree by having the joint names of himself and the plaintiff inserted in all documents belonging to the estate.—Gouri Prosad Moitra v. Bhola Nath Sanyal, 8 C. L. R. 487, [Mar. 39, 1881.]

UPON an application under s. 235 of Act X. of 1877 (Civil Procedure Code) for the execution of a decree which directed the judgment-debtor forthwith to pull down and remove such portion of a wall as had been erected by him upon the wall of the decree-holder, the mode in which the assistance of the Court was required to be given was stated in column j of such application to be by giving the decree-holder possession of his wall by pulling down the wall erected thereon. The Court directed an order to issue to the Nazir to remove the judgment-debtor's wall from the top of the decree-holder's wall. Held that the decree-holder's application could not be granted in that form, and that he should have asked the assistance of the Court to be given in the way provided for by s. 260 of Act X. of 1877, by the imprisonment of the judgment-debtor, or the attachment of his property, or both. Held also that the Court was wrong in passing the order it had, but that it should have pointed out to the decree-holder the manner in which he should have asked the assistance of the Court to be given, and the remedy to which he was entitled; and that, upon such amended application being made, the proper course to pursue was to serve a notice on the judgment-debtor, directing him to comply with the order contained in the decree within a time to be fixed by such notice; and that, if he failed to comply with such order within the time so limited, the Court might then, at the instance of the decree-holder, make an order, either for the judgment-debtor's imprisonment, or for the attachment of his property, due regard being had to the provision of s. 260 in the latter case. Held further that the High Court, in special appeal, should not vary the order for execution which had been passed, in such a way as to give the decree-holder that relief for which he did not ask.—Protab Chunder Doss v. Peary Chowdhrair, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 174. [Aug. 25, 1881.]

261. If the decree be for the execution of a conveyance, or for the endorsement of a negotiable instrument, and the judgment-debtor neglects or refuses to comply with the decree, the decree-holder may prepare the draft of a conveyance or endorsement in accordance with the terms of the decree, and deliver the same to the Court.

Decree for execution of conveyances, or endorsement of negotiable instruments.

The Court shall thereupon cause the draft to be served on the judgment-debtor in manner hereinbefore provided for serving a summons, together with a notice in writing stating that his objections (if any) thereto shall be made within such time (mentioning it) as the Court fixes in this behalf.

The decree-holder may also tender a duplicate of the draft to the Court for execution, upon the proper stamp-paper if a stamp is required by law.

On proof of such service, the Court, or such officer as it appoints in this behalf, shall execute the duplicate so tendered, or may, if necessary, alter the same, so as to bring it into accordance with the terms of the decree, and execute the duplicate so altered.

Provided that, if any party object to the draft so served as aforesaid, his objections shall, within the time so fixed, be stated in writing, and argued before the Court; and the Court shall thereupon pass such order as it thinks fit, and execute, or alter and execute, the duplicate in accordance therewith.

A CONCILIATION-AGREEMENT, dated 2nd October 1880, between the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor, stipulating that the former should allow a remission of 10 rupees, and the latter should execute a document for the remaining sum of Rs. 90, to be paid in 1882, was filed in Court on the 20th November 1880. In 1883 the decree-holder presented two applications for satisfaction of the agreed debt of Rs. 90 by attachment of the debtor's property; which applications were granted, but were not proceeded with through some default of the decree-holder. On the 4th June 1885, the decree-holder made the present application, praying that under ss. 261 and 262 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) an order directing the judgment-debtor to execute a bond in terms of the conciliation-agreement might be made, or that the Court might execute one on his behalf. On reference by the Subordinate Judge under s. 617 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) to the High Court, held that the applications in 1883 for attachment of the debtor's property were not "in accordance with law," being forbidden by the Dekkhan Relief Act (XVII. of 1879, s. 22), and that the present application under s. 261 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) was, therefore, too late under cl. 4, art. 179 of sch. 2 of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877).—Chatur Khushál Chand v. Mahádu Bhagáji, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 91. [Aug. 13, 1885.]

262. The execution of a conveyance, or the endorsement of a negotiable instrument, by the Court under the last preceding section, may be in the following form: "C D, Judge of the Court of _____ (or as the case may be), for A B in a suit by E F against A B," or in such other form as the High Court may, from time to time, prescribe, and shall have the same effect as the execution of the conveyance or endorsement of the instrument of the party ordered to execute or endorse the same.

263. If the decree be for the delivery of any immoveable property, possession thereof shall be delivered over to the party to whom it has been adjudged, or to such person as he appoints to receive delivery on his behalf, and, if need be, by removing any person bound by the decree who refuses to vacate the property.

In 1877 the plaintiffs sued the defendant for possession of certain properties, and obtained a decree. In execution of this decree, the plaintiff, on 12th of July 1879, obtained formal possession of the properties sued for. The defendant continued to remain in actual possession and occupation of a portion of the premises, and refused to give up possession of the same to the plaintiff, who served him with a two months' notice to quit in June 1881. The plaintiff did not evict the defendant in execution of the decree obtained by him against the defendant, but instituted a fresh suit for that purpose. Held that such a suit would lie. Seemle, that the delivery of formal possession in execution of a decree for possession gives a cause of action against a defendant who remains in occupation of the premises, which may be enforced in a regular suit.—Shama Charan Chatterji v. Madhub Chundra Mookerji, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 93. [Sep. 12 1884.]

264. If the decree be for the delivery of any immoveable property in the occupancy of a tenant or other person entitled to occupy the same, and not bound by the decree to relinquish such occupancy, the Court shall order delivery to be made by affixing a copy of the warrant in some conspicuous place on the property, and proclaiming to the occupant by beat of drum, or in such other mode as is customary, at some convenient place, the substance of the decree in regard to the property:

Provided that, if the occupant can be found, a notice in writing containing such substance shall be served upon him, and in such case no proclamation need be made.

DELIVERY of possession by going through the process prescribed by s. 224 of Act VIII. of 1859 is the only way in which the decree of the Court awarding possession to the plaintiff can be enforced; and as, in contemplation of law, both parties must be considered as being present at the time when the delivery is made, such delivery must, as against the defendant, be deemed equivalent to actual possession. As against third parties such symbolical possession is of no avail, because they are not parties to the proceedings. But if the defendant subsequently dispossesses the plaintiff by receiving the rent and profits, the plaintiff will have twelve years from such dispossession to bring another suit.—Juggobundhu Mukerjee v. Ram Chunder Bysack, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 584. [Feb. 2, 1880.]

In 1877 the plaintiffs sued the defendant for possession of certain properties and obtained a decree; in execution of this decree the plaintiff, on 12th of July 1879, obtained formal possession of the properties sued for. The defendant continued to remain in actual possession and occupation of a portion of the premises, and refused to give up possession of the same to the plaintiff, who served him with a two month's notice to quit in June 1881. The plaintiff did not evict the defendant in execution of the decree obtained by him against the defendant, but instituted a fresh suit for that purpose. Held, that such a suit would lie. Seemle, that the delivery of formal possession in execution of a decree for possession gives a cause of action, against a defendant who remains in occupation of the premises, which may be enforced in a regular suit.—Shama Charan Chatterji v. Madhub Chundra Mookerji, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 93. [Sep. 12, 1884.]

265. If the decree be for the partition or for the separate possession of a share of an undivided estate paying revenue to Government, the partition of the estate or the separation of the share shall be made by the Collector and according to the law (if any) for the time being in force for the partition, or the separate possession of shares, or such estates.

A SUIT will not lie for partition of portion only of a joint estate. Accordingly, when the plaintiff sued for partition of a portion of a joint estate and for khas possession of the share which might on the partition be allotted to him, alleging that he had been deprived of possession of that portion by his co-sharers in collusion with others, it was held the suit would not lie. Although under s. 265, (Act X. of 1877), a decree may be made for partition of revenue-paying land, yet that decree must be carried into execution solely by the Collector.—Ramjoy Ghose v. Ram Runjun Chuckerbutty, 8 C. L. R. 367. [Mar. 11, 1881.]

WHERE one of several co-sharers, owners of a piece of land defined by metes and bounds, and forming part of a revenue-paying estate, brings a suit for partition, in which he does not seek to have his joint liability for the whole of the Government revenue annulled, such suit is cognizable by the Civil Courts, which have jurisdiction to determine the plaintiff's right to have his share divided and to make a decree accordingly.—Chundernath Nundi v. Hur Narain Deb, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 153. [April 13, 1881.]

S. 265 does not apply to property held on raiyatwari tenure, but to permanently settled estates.—Muttu v. Kudalalaga, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 97. [Oct. 2, 1882.]

In 1851 an estate was brought under butwara under the provisions of Reg. XIX. of 1814. At such butwara, a portion of the estate, being covered with water, and unfit for cultivation, was not divided, but left joint amongst all the co-sharers, the land-revenue payable on account of the whole estate being apportioned amongst the several estates into which the portion divided was split up. Subsequently, on the portion remaining joint becoming dry and fit for cultivation, an application was made by one of the co-sharers to the Collector to partition the same under the provisions of Beng. Act VIII. of 1876, but that officer refused to do so, on the ground that the land "did not bear an assessed revenue, and was not shown in the towji." In a suit brought under the above circumstances to compel the Collector to make the partition, and in the alternative to have it made by the Civil Court, held that though the reason given by the Collector for refusing was an erroneous one, he was not bound to make the partition under the provisions of Beng. Act VIII. of 1876, as the land in suit was not liable for the payment of one and the same demand of land-revenue, and was therefore not a joint undivided estate within the terms of s. 4, cl. 9 of that Act. Held also that the word "estate," as used in s. 265 of the Civil Procedure Code, must not be construed in the same limited and defective sense in which it is used in Act VIII. of 1876, but must be taken to be there used in its ordinary signification, and that consequently the plaintiff was entitled to a decree for partition under the provisions of that section. Chundernath Nandi v. Hur Narain Deb (I. L. R., 7 Cal. 153) approved.—Secretary of State v. Nundun Lall, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 435. [Jan. 18, 1884.]

In 1862 it was held by the Sadr Court that s. 225 of Act VIII. of 1859 did not apply to raiyatwari estates. This ruling having always been acted on in the Madras Presidency, held by the Full Bench that a different construction should not, under these circumstances, be placed on s. 265 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882. Muttu v. Kudalalaga (I. L. R., 6 Mad. 97) confirmed.—Muttuchidambara v. Karuppa, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 362. [Jan. 28, 1884.]

M OBTAINED against R a decree for possession of "a one-fourth share of the two fallow lands, Nos. 490 and 541, measuring 7 bighas and 2 bighas 16 biswas respectively, after removal of the trees planted thereon." The Court, in executing the decree, placed the decree-holder in joint possession of the two plots, to the extent of the one-fourth share decreed to him, but declined to remove the trees until the said share had been specifically ascertained and partitioned by the Collector, in reference to s. 265 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held that the decree could not be understood to entitle the plaintiff to remove the trees from a larger area than that to which he was entitled under that decree; and that, so long as that area remained joint and unascertained, the plaintiff could not execute the decree in the manner sought. Held also that the decree in the present case could not be called a "decree for the partition or for the separate possession of a share of an undivided estate paying revenue to Government," within the meaning of s. 265 of the Civil Procedure Code, so as to require the intervention of the Collector for the purpose of executing the decree; and that the Court of first instance, in order to meet the exigencies of the decree, should have separated the one-fourth to which the plaintiff was declared entitled, and, in executing the decree, should have ordered that the trees standing on the one-fourth area should be uprooted.—Ram Dayal v. Megu Lal, I. L. R., 6 All. 452. [June 17, 1884.]

V MORTGAGED to the plaintiff his house and certain undivided land in which H and others, Hindu co-parceners, had a share. R bought the interest of H in the land at a Court-sale, and let to H and V, who, failing to pay rent, were sued by R, who got a decree for possession. This decree was transferred for execution to the Collector, who sold the land, and rateably distributed the proceeds, except to V, who declined to take the amount tendered as his share. The plaintiff sued V and the purchasers under R's decree to recover his mortgage-debt by a sale of the property mortgaged to him. Held that R's decree, not being for partition of the family-property, or for the separate possession of a share, was not one contemplated by s. 265 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The proceedings of the Collector were without jurisdiction, and the plaintiff was entitled to ignore them, and assert his claim under the mortgage. That the defendants being in actual possession, albeit through a sale under a void decree—could not be ousted in the present suit, and were entitled to say that the plaintiff had not proved his title to sell the specific lands mortgaged.—Narayan v. Vithu, I. L. R., 8 Bom. 539. [June 24, 1884.]

F.—Of Attachment of Property.

266. The following property is liable to attachment and sale in execution of a decree (namely), lands, houses or other buildings, goods, money, bank-notes, cheques, bills of exchange, hundis, promissory-notes, Government-securities, bonds, or other securities for money, debts, shares in the capital or joint-stock of any railway, banking, or other public Company or Corporation, and, except as hereinafter mentioned, all other saleable property, moveable or immoveable, belonging to the judgment-debtor, or over which, or the profits of which, he has a disposing power, which he may exercise, for his own benefit, and whether the same be held in the name of the judgment-debtor or by another person in trust for him or on his behalf :

Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts (except so far as relates to immoveable property).

Provided that the following particulars shall not be liable to such attachment or sale (namely)—

- (a) the necessary wearing apparel of the judgment-debtor, his wife, and children ;
- (b) tools of artificers, and, where the judgment-debtor is an agriculturist, his implements of husbandry and such cattle as may, in the opinion of the Court, be necessary to enable him to earn his livelihood as such ;
- (c) the materials of houses and other buildings belonging to and occupied by agriculturists ;
- (d) books of account ;
- (e) mere rights to sue for damages ;
- (f) any right of personal service ;
- (g) stipends and gratuities allowed to military and civil pensioners of Government, and political pensions ;

- (h) the salary of a public officer or of any servant of a Railway Company, when such salary does not exceed twenty rupees per mensem, and one moiety of the salary of any such officer or servant when his salary exceeds that amount ;
- (i) the pay and allowances of persons to whom the Native Articles of War apply ;
- (j) the wages of labourers and domestic servants ;
- (k) an expectancy of succession by survivorship or other merely contingent or possible right or interest ;
- (l) a right to future maintenance.

Explanation.—The particulars mentioned in clauses (g), (h), (i), and (j), are exempt from attachment or sale, whether before or after they are actually payable ;

Provided also that nothing in this section shall be deemed

- (a) to exempt the materials of houses and other buildings from attachment or sale in execution of decrees for rent, or
- (b) to affect the Army Act, 1881, or any similar law for the time being in force,

ACT X. of 1877, s. 266, proviso c, does not prohibit the sale (in execution of decree) of property specifically mortgaged, albeit the property be materials of a house belonging to or occupied by an agriculturist.—Bhagvandas v. Maithibhai, I. L. R., 4 Bom 25. [Sep. 4, 1879.]

On 28th September 1887 (i. e., three days before Act X. of 1877 came into operation), an application was made for the enforcement of a money-decree by attachment (inter alia) of the political pension enjoyed by the defendants. Under Act VIII. of 1859, s. 216, a notice was issued on the same day to the defendants, calling upon them to show cause why the decree should not be executed. The defendants accordingly appeared on the day fixed (at which date Act X. of 1877 had come into force), and contended that, under s. 266, cl. g, of that Act, the pension was no longer attachable. Held that all proceedings commenced and pending when Act X. of 1877 became law were, under Act I. of 1868, s. 6, to be governed by the law theretofore in force ; the general rule of construction contained in that section not being affected or varied by Act X. of 1877, ss. 1 and 3 ; and that a bond fide application for enforcement of a decree in a particular way, coupled with an order of the Court in furtherance of that object, as much constitutes a proceeding in execution commenced and pending as the actual issue of a warrant of attachment.—Vidyaram v. Chandra Sheikhararam, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 163. [Nov. 19, 1879.]

HELD that ss. 266 and 295 must be read together, and that an ordinary judgment-creditor is not entitled, under s. 295, to a rateable proportion of the assets realized by the sale of such house or building under a decree obtained by another creditor for rent due to him in respect of the said house or building.—Maniklal Venilal v. Lakhá and Mansing, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 429. [Feb. 17, 1880.]

IN case of pensions not exempted from attachment under s. 266 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), it is only arrears in respect thereof actually accrued due that are attachable in execution of a decree. Syud Tuffuzul Hussain Khan v. Rughunath Pershad (14 Moore's I. A. 30 ; 7 B. L. R. 186) cited and followed.—Bhojyub Chunder Roy v. Madhub Chunder Sein, 6 C. L. R. 19. [Feb. 26, 1880.]

THE right or interest which the vendor of immoveable property has in the purchase-money, where it has been agreed that the same shall be paid on the execution of the conveyance, is not, so long as the conveyance has not been executed, a debt, but a merely possible right or interest, and as such, under s. 266 of Act X. of 1877, is not liable to attachment and sale in the execution of a decree. The person who purchases such a right or interest at a sale in the execution of a decree takes nothing by his purchase.—Ahmad-ud-din Khan v. Majlis Rai, I. L. R., 3 All. 12. [June 7, 1830.]

PERSONS who agree to spin cotton belonging to a spinning and weaving company, and to receive a certain amount of money for a certain quantity of cotton spun by them, are labourers within the meaning of s. 266 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act X. of 1877), and therefore their remuneration is wages, which, under cl. j of the section, cannot be attached in execution of a decree.—Jehand Khusai v. Aba and Baiká, I. L. R., 5 Bom. 132. [July 26, 1880.]

DEBTS due to a British subject by the Gáikwár Government, or by a subject of that Government or of a State in the Province of Káthiáwár, are not debts which, under s. 266 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act X. of 1877), are liable to attachment in execution of a decree. Claims over which no Court in British India has jurisdiction are not debts liable to be attached under s. 266 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877). The mere circumstance that the garnishee is, at the time of the application for attachment, beyond the limits of British India, would not of itself render the debts not liable to be attached.—Ghamshámh v. Bhánsáli, I. L. R., 5 Bom. 249. [Jan. 27, 1881.]

BEFORE property of a judgment-debtor can be exempted from execution as falling under the head of the property described in s. 266 of the Code of Civil Procedure, it is necessary that the Court should first express its opinion that such property is necessary to enable the execution-debtor to earn his livelihood, and the Court which must decide this point is the Court which issues the execution. S. 14 (a), part 2, Chap. 5 of the general rules and Circular Orders of the High Court, commented on.—Bakhr Mahomed v. Doorga Churn Shaha, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 29. [July 19, 1882.]

UNDER cl. h of s. 266 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, a moiety of the salary of a public officer drawing half pay (exceeding Rs. 20 per mensem) on sick leave is liable to attachment.—Beard v. Egerton, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 179. [Jan. 17, 1883.]

WHERE the decree of the Civil Court expressly declares that a person's right in a critti shall be sold, it is not competent in execution-proceedings to question the command, on the ground of the critti being protected from sale under s. 266 of the Code of Civil Procedure, or from its being by the nature of it unsaleable to the public at large.—Sadashiv Lalit v. Jayantibai, I. L. R., 8 Bom. 185. [Jan. 30, 1883.]

A DEBT secured by mortgage of immoveable property cannot be sold in execution of a decree under the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code applicable to moveable property.—Srinath Dutt v. Gopal Chunder Mittra, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 511. [Mar. 14, 1883.]

THE right to sue for mesne-profits is a "right to sue for damages" within the meaning of s. 266, cl. e, of the Code of Civil Procedure, and, therefore, cannot be sold in execution of decree. Where, therefore, the plaintiff purchased the right to sue for mesne-profits at a sale in execution of a decree, held that a suit by him to enforce the right was not maintainable.—Shyam Chand Koondoo v. Land Mortgage Bank of India, Limited, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 695. [June 19, 1883.]

THE expression, "materials of houses and other buildings belonging to, and occupied by, agriculturists," used in s. 266, cl. e, of the Code of Civil Procedure, is intended to exempt from attachment and sale the house dwelt in by an agriculturist as such, and the farm-buildings appended to such dwelling. The exemption does not extend to other houses not in the physical occupation of an agriculturist owner as a dwelling appropriate or convenient for his calling. The exemption extends, after the death of an agriculturist debtor, to his representative who occupies the house in good faith as an agriculturist, and who does not take it up merely with the view of defrauding his creditor.—Ráddhakisan Hakumji v. Balvanti Rámji, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 530. [Sep. 6, 1883.]

THE bar in s. 266 of the Civil Procedure Code to the attachment of gratuities allowed by Government to its ex-servants, military and civil, is not limited to such gratuities as are allowed to "pensioners," but applies to a gratuity granted in consideration of past services.—Bawan Dás v. Mul Chand, I. L. R., 6 All. 173. [Jan. 22, 1884.]

A HERITABLE right to receive a certain monthly allowance originally assigned in lieu of a share of landed property is not a mere right to maintenance or anything else exempted by the proviso to s. 266 of the Civil Procedure Code, and is saleable in execution of a decree.—Salamat Hossein v. Luckhi Ram, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 521. [Mar. 5, 1884.]

K, a servant in the employment of the East India Railway Company, was recommended by the Traffic Manager, a bonus in consideration of long and good services. This recommendation was sanctioned, and the amount of the bonus was received by the District Paymaster. Before payment to K, the money was attached in execution of a decree obtained against him by J. Held that inasmuch as the bestowal of the money was a gift of moveable property of date subsequent to the 1st July 1882, and was not evidenced by a registered instrument, it could only be effected by actual delivery; that as there had been no such delivery as completed the transfer (s. 123 of the Transfer of Property Act, and s. 90 of the Contract Act), the money was not at K's disposal, and he could not have enforced payment; and that the money was therefore not liable to attachment in execution of a decree against him.—Janki Das v. East Indian Railway Company, I. L. R., 6 All. 634. [July 16, 1884.]

THE mangalsutra, a neck-ornament which is worn by a Hindu married woman during the life-time of her husband, and never removed, is a part of her necessary wearing apparel, and is exempted from execution under s. 266 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882).—Appanna v. Tangamma, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 106. [Sep. 18, 1884.]

THE doors and window-shutters of a pucca building cannot be separately attached in execution of decrees forming as they do part of an immovable property, and having no separate existence.—Peru Bepari v. Ronuo Maifurash, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 164. [Jun. 28, 1885.]

THE sale of arms by the Názir of the Court, in execution of a decree, is a sale by a public servant in discharge of his duty, and is, therefore, excluded by s. 1, cl. 2, from the operation of the Indian Arms Act (XI. of 1878). It is expedient for the Court ordering such sale to give notice of the sale and of the purchaser's name and address, as contemplated by s. 6 of that Act, to the "Magistrate of the District or to the police-officer in charge of the nearest police-station."—Wálá Hiráji v. Hirá Patel, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 518. [June 18, 1885.]

S. 151 of the Army Act, 1881, not being affected by the provisions of s. 266 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the attachment by a Civil Court of a moiety of the monthly salary of a debtor subject to military law, not exceeding Rs. 20, is legal.—Vírarágava v. Rámudu, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 170. [Nov. 17, 1885.]

THE provisions of s. 244 (c) of the Civil Procedure Code prohibit not only a suit between parties and their representatives, but also a suit by a party or his representatives against a purchaser at a sale in execution of the decree, the object of which is to determine a question which properly arises between the parties or their representatives, and relates to the execution, discharge, or satisfaction of the decree. A judgment-debtor, whose occupancy-tenure had been sold in execution of a decree for money, sued the purchaser for recovery of the property, on the ground that the sale of occupancy-rights in execution of decree was illegal and void, being in contravention of the provisions of s. 9 of Act XII. of 1881 (N. W. P. Rent Act). Held by the Full Bench that the question involved in the suit was as determinable only by order of the Court executing the decree, and that the suit was therefore not maintainable. Narain v. Puran (Weekly Notes, 1883, p. 218) referred to.—Basti Ram v. Fattu, I. L. R., 8 All. 146. [Jan. 21, 1886.]

THE nature of an upádhiḥkpaná vritti on the river Godávari at Násik was stated to be as follows: "The vritti is an hereditary priestly office by virtue of which certain religious ceremonies are performed on the river Godávari on behalf of pilgrims who pay fees to the holders of such priestly offices for performance of such religious ceremonies at or about the time of their performance. By law and usage, a certain relationship grows up between certain pilgrims or worshippers and a particular priest, and when such relationship exists, such pilgrims or worshippers are called yajmáns, or clients of the priest, whose right to offer and perform the religious ceremonies in question for such yajmáns becomes exclusive against rival priests, so far that, under the Hindu law as applied and followed in this Presidency, if any such yajmáns accept the religious services of another priest, they must compensate the priest, whose yajmáns they are, by giving to him a reasonable fee. Held that such a vritti is a "right of personal service" within the meaning of cl. 2 of s. 266 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882), and, therefore, protected from attachment.—Ganesh Rámchandra Dáte v. Shankar Rámchandra, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 395 [Feb. 3, 1886.]

By a deed of assignment the usufruct of certain land was given to a Hindu widow for her maintenance, the deed expressly stipulating that the same was not to be in any way alienated. A judgment-creditor of the widow caused the land to be attached in execution of a money-decree. The widow contended that the land was protected from attachment under s. 266 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882). Both the lower Courts disallowed the widow's contention. On appeal to the High Court, held, reversing the orders of the lower Courts, that, having regard to the proviso against alienation contained in the deed of assignment, the usufructuary interest in the land assigned to the widow was one over which she had no power of disposal, and, consequently, could not be attached and sold in execution of a money-decree against her.—Díwálí v. Apáji Ganesh, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 342. [Feb. 16, 1886.]

WHERE, in a joint Hindu family, the father disposes of family property, the son's interest is bound, unless the son can show, in proceedings taken for that purpose, that the disposal of the property by his father was made under circumstances which deprived his father of his disposing power. So also where family-property is sold under proceedings taken against the father alone, the son's interest is bound, unless the son can show that the sale was on account of an obligation to which he was not subject. The father is, in fact, the representative of the family both in transactions and in suits, subject only to the right of the sons to prevent an entire dissipation of the estate by particular instances of wrong-doing on the father's part. — Jagabhai Lalubhai v. Vijbhukandas Jagjivandas, I. L. R., 11 Bom. 37. [June 30, 1886.]

UNDER the Transfer of Property Act, property includes an actionable claim. There was sold in execution of a decree the judgment-debtor's right to get by division a quantity of land which had been reserved by him for his own use in a deed of gift, but which, at the time of the execution-sale, was in the possession of the donee of the estate, the land never having been appropriated by measurement as provided in the deed. In a suit brought by the auction-purchaser (decree-holder) for the area of the land reserved by measurement and division, held that the claim of the judgment-debtor to the land was a transferable claim, and therefore capable of being attached and sold in execution under s. 266 of the Civil Procedure Code. — Rudra Perkash Misser v. Krishna Mohun Ghatak, I. L. R., 14 Cal. 241. [Nov. 26, 1886.]

267. The Court may, of its own motion, or on the application of the decree-holder, summon any person whom it thinks necessary, and examine him in respect to any property liable to be seized in satisfaction of the decree, and may require the person summoned to produce any document in his possession or power relating to such property, and, before issuing the summons of its own motion, shall declare the person on whose behalf the summons is so issued.

Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

268. In the case of (a) a debt not secured by a negotiable instrument, (b) a share in the capital of any public Company or Corporation, (c) other moveable property not in the possession of the judgment-debtor, except property deposited in, or in the custody of, any Court, the attachment shall be made by a written order prohibiting,

Ditto.

Attachment of debt, share, and other property not in possession of judgment-debtor.

(a) in the case of the debt, the creditor from recovering the debt and the debtor from making payment thereof until the further order of the Court ;

(b) in the case of the share, the person in whose name the share may be standing, from transferring the same or receiving any dividend thereon ;

(c) in the case of the other moveable property except as aforesaid, the person in possession of the same from giving it over to the judgment-debtor.

A copy of such order shall be fixed up in some conspicuous part of the Court-house, and another copy of the same shall be sent, in the case of the debt, to the debtor ; in the case of the share, to the proper officer of the Company or Corporation ; and in the case of the other moveable property (except as aforesaid), to the person in possession of the same.

A debtor prohibited under clause (a) of this section may pay the amount of his debt into Court, and such payment shall discharge him as effectually as payment to the party entitled to receive the same.

In the case of the salary of a public officer or the servant of a Railway Company, the attachment shall be made by a written order, requiring the officer whose duty it is to disburse the salary to withhold, every month, such portion as the Court may direct, until the further orders of the Court.

A copy of every such order shall be fixed up in a conspicuous part of the Court-house, and shall be served on the officer so required.

Every such officer may, from time to time, pay into Court any portion so withheld, and such payment shall discharge the Government or the Railway Company, as the case may be, as effectually as payment to the judgment-debtor.

A EXECUTED a promissory note in favour of B. C obtained a money-decree against B, and in execution of such decree the Court proceeded to attach the note by an order issued to A under s. 268 of the Civil Procedure Code, and subsequently to sell B's title and interest in the note by auction. D, assignee of the purchaser at the sale, sued A for recovery of the amount of the note. Held that there had been no valid attachment of the note, actual seizure and delivery under ss. 270 and 299 having been omitted; and that, consequently, nothing had passed to D by the execution-sale.—Batcharya v. Latchmidvana, 4 Ind. Jur. 166.

UNDER the provisions of s. 268 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act X. of 1887), bonds cannot be sold till the end of the six months from the date of attachment. A Court of Small Causes cannot appoint a receiver. Bonds, therefore, on which recovery will be time-barréd before the date on which a sale can legally be made, cannot be made available for satisfaction of the judgment-creditor's debt.—Nursingdás Raghunáthdás v. Tulsirám Bin Doulatram, 1. L. R., 2 Bom. 558. [Mar. 26, 1878.]

EXCEPT in the manner allowed by s. 20, Act XI. of 1865, the Judge of the Small Cause Court cannot now send a decree of his own Court for execution by another Court, nor can he issue an order under s. 268 (Act X. of 1877) out of his own jurisdiction.—Mounshee Hossain Aly v. Ashotosh Gangooly, 3 C. L. R. 30. [July 5, 1878.]

A DECREE-HOLDER, by a prohibitory order issued under s. 268 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), attached a debt due to his judgment-debtor. The person served with the order applied, under s. 278, to have the attachment removed. Held that the application could not be entertained under s. 278, that section having no application to the case; but that, before issuing a proclamation of sale, in execution of a decree, of the debt so attached, it is the duty of the Court, under s. 287, to ascertain all the Court considers it material for the intending purchaser to know in order to judge of the nature and value of the property proclaimed for sale. If the property, of which sale is sought, is a debt, and the Court receives notice from the alleged debtor that no debt exists, the Court should satisfy itself as to the existence, or otherwise, of the debt, and, if it comes to the conclusion that no debt exists, should abstain from proceeding to sale.—Harilál Amthábhái v. Abhesang Meru, 1. L. R., 4 Bom. 323. [Jan. 6, 1880.]

THE right or interest which the vendor of immoveable property has in the purchase-money where, it has been agreed that the same shall be paid on the execution of the conveyance, is not, so long as the conveyance has not been executed, a debt, but a merely possible right or interest, and as such, under s. 266 of Act X. of 1877, is not liable to attachment and sale in the execution of a decree. The person who purchases such a right or interest at a sale in the execution of a decree takes nothing by his purchase.—Ahmad-din Khan v. Majlis Rai, 1. L. R., 3 All. 12. [July 7, 1880.]

WHERE money deposited with a railway company by one of its servants as a guarantee for the due performance of his duties was attached by a judgment-creditor of such servant under s. 268 of the Code of Civil Procedure, held that the creditor was not entitled to have his decree satisfied out of the deposit, but was entitled to a stop order under cl. c of s. 268, and also to payment of the interest (if any) due by the company on such deposit to the servant.—Karuthán v. Subramany, 1. L. R., 9 Mad. 203. [Jan. 9, 1886.]

IN execution of a decree obtained by them against J and M. the plaintiffs attached a decree obtained by J and M against D, and on the allegation that J and M, in order to avoid the consequence of this attachment, executed a benami conveyance of their interest under the attached decree to B and P, and afterwards with the same object took in adjustment and satisfaction of that decree two bonds in favour of R and I respectively, by which immoveable property was pledged as collateral security, the plaintiffs attached these two bonds by prohibitory order, under s. 268 of the Civil Procedure Code, and purchased them at the sale in execution of their decree. In a suit on the bonds against D as the principal defendant with J, M, B, P, R, and I joined as parties, held that the plaintiffs were entitled to enforce the lien created by the bonds against the immoveable property specified in them, notwithstanding that no attachment had been made in accordance with the provisions of s. 274 of the Code; a debt secured by a mortgage-lien on immoveable property not being "immoveable property" within the meaning of that section.—Debendra Kumar Mandel v. Rup Lal Dass, 1. L. R., 12 Cal. 546. [Feb. 5, 1886.]

THE interest of the obligee in a bond hypothecating certain land as security for a debt having been attached under s. 274 of the Code of Civil Procedure and sold, a suit was brought by the purchaser upon the said bond. It was objected that the suit was not maintainable because the bond had not been also attached as a debt under s. 268. Held that the fact of the bond not having been attached as a debt under s. 268 did not affect the right of the purchaser to realize the amount due under it.—Sámi v. Krishnasámi, 1. L. R., 10 Mad. 169. [Dec. 16, 1886.]

269. If the property be moveable property in the possession of the judgment-debtor, other than the property mentioned in the first proviso to section 266, the attachment shall be made by actual seizure, and the attaching officer shall keep the property in his own custody or in the custody of one of his subordinates, and shall be responsible for the due custody thereof : Extending to Provincial S. O. Courts.

Provided that, when the property seized is subject to speedy and natural decay, or when the expense of keeping it in custody will exceed its value, the proper officer may sell it at once.

The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules for the maintenance and custody, while under attachment, of live-stock and other moveable property, and the officer attaching property under this section shall, notwithstanding the provisions of the former part of this section, act in accordance with such rules.

270. If the property be a negotiable instrument not deposited in a Court, nor in the custody of a public officer, the attachment shall be made by actual seizure, and the instrument shall be brought into Court, and held subject to the further orders of the Court. Ditto.

271. No person executing any process under this Code, directing or authorizing seizure of moveable property, shall enter any dwelling-house after sunset and before sunrise, or shall break open any outer door of a dwelling-house. But, when any such person has duly gained access to any dwelling-house, he may unfasten and open the door of any room in which he has reason to believe any such property to be : Ditto.

Provided that, if the room be in the actual occupancy of a woman who, according to the customs of the country, does not appear in public, the person executing the process shall give notice to her that she is at liberty to withdraw ; and, after allowing a reasonable time for such woman to withdraw, and giving her every reasonable facility for withdrawing, he may enter such room for the purpose of seizing the property, using at the same time every precaution, consistent with these provisions, to prevent its clandestine removal.

A BAILIFF or nazir has authority to break open the door of a shop in order to execute a writ of attachment, the previously existing law on the subject not being altered by Act X. of 1877, s. 271.—Dāmodar Parsotam v. Ishvai Jetha, I. L. R., 3 Bom. 89. [Dec. 17, 1878.]

It is not necessary that a special order of Court should be made, empowering an officer authorized to arrest a parda-nāshin lady to enter the zanānā of the house in which she resides. Under s. 336 of the Civil Procedure Code, if the officer is able to enter the house, he may break into any room in the house, including the zanānā, in order to effect the arrest.—Kadumbinee Dossee (S. M.) v. Koylashkaminee Dossee (S. M.), I. L. R., 7 Cal. 19. [Mar. 21, 1881.]

272. If the property be deposited in, or be in the custody of, any Court or public officer, the attachment shall be made by a notice to such Court or officer, requesting that such property, and any interest or dividend becoming payable thereon, may be held subject to the further orders of the Court from which the notice issues : Ditto.

Provided that, if such property is deposited in, or is in the custody of, a Court, any question of title or priority arising between the decree-holder and any other person, not being the judgment-debtor, claiming to be interested in such property by virtue of any assignment, attachment, or otherwise, shall be determined by such Court.

Proviso.
A AND B were entitled to receive annually and for ever a specified amount by way of malikana right from the Collector as compensation for their extinguished rights in lakhi-raj lands. In execution of a decree, C, on 13th September, purported to attach, under s. 237 of Act VIII. of 1869, A's share in such specified amount. Subsequent to this attachment, namely, on 23rd September 1873, A and B mortgaged their rights to the plaintiff. In a suit brought by him against A, B, and C, held that attachment under s. 237 was not applicable to a right to receive money for ever; that such an attachment is only good so far as it relates to any specific amount, which may be set forth in the request to the officer in whose hands the moneys are, as being then payable or likely to become payable; and that the attachment in question was therefore invalid. Scmble.—The attaching creditor should have proceeded under s. 235 or s. 236. In either of such cases the defendant, the person to whom the money was payable, would be entitled to notice that he was not at liberty to alienate his rights.—Nilkunt Dey v. Hurro Soandree Dossee I. L. R., 3 Cal. 414. [Jan. 16, 1878.]

THE Court has no discretion to refuse an application, for attachment of property in Court, made under s. 272 of the Civil Procedure Code.—Noorjahan Begum v. Mashlity Khanum, 8 C. L. R. 17. [Dec. 22, 1880.]

In execution of a decree of a Munsif's Court, the plaintiff attached certain money, the proceeds of decrees which her judgment-debtor had obtained against third parties, then lying in a Small Cause Court to her credit, and subsequently obtained an order from the Munsif directing the same to be paid to her in satisfaction of her decree, which order was duly communicated to the Small Cause Court Judge. Subsequently, the defendant, who held another decree against the same judgment-debtor, attached the same sale-proceeds. The Small Cause Court Judge then proceeded, under s. 272 of the Civil Procedure Code, to inquire whether the plaintiff was entitled to any priority over the second attaching creditor, and, having decided that question in the negative, divided the sale-proceeds rateably between them. In a suit brought by the plaintiff, under the above circumstances, to recover from the portion of the sale-proceeds so paid to him, held that s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code had no application, inasmuch as the plaintiff had not applied to the Small Cause Court Judge to execute her decree, and it had never been transferred to the Court for execution; and that the provision in s. 272 is merely intended to mean that any question of title or priority to be determined by the Court in which or in whose custody the property is, and not by the Court which made the order of attachment. Held also that, previous to the order by the Munsif directing the payment to be made to the plaintiff, the Small Cause Court Judge would have had jurisdiction to deal with the question he had tried; but as that order was made prior to the attachment by the defendant, the judgment-debtor had no interest in the money which could be so attached, the effect of that order being to vest the property in the money in the plaintiff, and to take it out of the disposal of the Small Cause Court Judge, and consequently the order for distribution was wrong, and the plaintiff was entitled to the decree she sought. Quære.—Whether an order made by a Court under s. 272 was intended by the Legislature to be a final order?—Gopee Nath Acharje v. Achcha Bibee, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 553. [July 5, 1881.]

Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts, so far as relates to decrees for moveable property.

273. If the property be a decree for money passed by the Court which Attachment of decree for money. passed the decree sought to be executed, the attachment shall be made by an order of the Court directing the proceeds of the former decree to be applied in satisfaction of the latter decree.

If the property be a decree for money passed by any other Court, the attachment shall be made by a notice in writing to such Court under the hand of the Judge of the Court which passed the decree sought to be executed, requesting the former Court to stay the execution of its decree until such notice is cancelled by the Court from which it was sent. The Court receiving such notice shall stay execution accordingly, unless and until

(a) the Court which passed the decree sought to be executed cancels the notice, or

(b) the holder of the decree sought to be executed applies to the Court receiving such notice to execute its own decree.

On receiving such application, the Court shall proceed to execute the decree, and apply the proceeds in satisfaction of the decree sought to be executed.

In the case of all other decrees the attachment shall be made by a notice in writing, under the hand of the Judge of the Court which passed the decree sought to be executed, the holder of the decree sought to be attached, prohibiting him from transferring or charging the same in any way; and, when such decree has been passed by any other Court, also by sending to such Court a like notice in writing to abstain from executing the decree sought to be attached until such notice is cancelled by the Court from which it was sent. Every Court receiving such notice shall give effect to the same until it is so cancelled.

The holder of any decree attached under this section shall be bound to give the Court executing the same such information and aid as may reasonably be required.

HELD that Act X. of 1877 does not contemplate the sale of a decree for money as the result of its attachment in the execution of a decree, and the attachment of a decree for money in the mode ordained in s. 273 cannot lead to its sale. Held also that the last clause but one of s. 273 applies to other than money-decrees. Where two decrees for money, although they were not passed by the same Court, were being executed by the same Court, Held that the provisions of the first clause of s. 273 of Act X. of 1877 were applicable on principal.—Sultan Kuar v. Gulzari Lal, I. L. R., 2 All. 290. [April 17, 1879.]

A DECREE for money obtained by a judgment-debtor is not a debt, which, by virtue of s. 266 of the Code of Civil Procedure, can be attached and sold. Where a decree-holder desires to render a decree obtained by his judgment-debtor available for the satisfaction of his own decree, the procedure laid down by s. 273 of the Code of Civil Procedure must be followed.—Tiruvengadā v. Vythilinga, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 418. [Jan. 29, 1883.]

A DECREE was passed on the 20th February 1878 by the Munsif of M. In November 1878, it was, in accordance with the provisions of s. 223 of the Civil Procedure Code, transferred to the Munsif of J. On the 21st January 1878, an application for execution of the decree was made to the Munsif of J, who thereupon issued an order for the attachment of some immoveable property belonging to the judgment-debtor, and also for the attachment of three decrees standing in his Court in favour of the judgment-debtor against other persons. On the 18th March 1882, the decree-holder applied to the Munsif of J to execute one of these decrees in his behalf, and he further asked that whatever might be realized in such execution should go to the account of the decrees which had been transferred and which was being executed. Held that the application of the 18th March 1882 was perfectly legal, and such a proceeding as could keep alive the decrees of the 20th February 1878, and that a subsequent application for execution, dated the 12th April 1883, was therefore not barred by limitation. An application to execute an attached decree is a "step in aid of execution" of the original decree, within the meaning of art. 179, s. 2 of the Limitation Act, inasmuch as its object is to obtain money in order to pay off the judgment-debtor.—Lachman v. Thondi Ram, I. L. R., 7 All. 382. [Feb. 28, 1885.]

S. 273 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) having expressly provided a mode for the attachment of decrees, the procedure laid down in s. 274 relating to immoveable property has no application to the attachment of a decree for redemption. Under s. 316 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), the title of a purchaser at a Court-sale becomes complete upon his payment of the purchase-money and confirmation of the sale by the Court. When the sale is admitted, production of a certificate is not necessary to prove that fact.—Naigar Timpā v. Bhaskar Parmaya, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 444. [Mar. 11, 1886.]

274. If the property be immoveable, the attachment shall be made by an order prohibiting the judgment-debtor from transferring or charging the property in any way, and all persons from receiving the same from him by purchase, gift, or otherwise,

The order shall be proclaimed at some place on or adjacent to such property by beat of drum or other customary mode, and a copy of the order shall be fixed up in a conspicuous part of the property and of the Court-house.

When the property is land paying revenue to Government, a copy of the order shall also be fixed up in the office of the Collector of the District in which the land is situate.

A SUIT on a mortgage foreclosed under Reg. XVII. of 1806, s. 8, comprising property attached before the date of the mortgage under s. 81 and the following sections of Act VIII. of 1859, was brought against the purchaser of the attached property, which had been sold under the decree obtained by the attaching creditor. The defence was, that the mortgage, falling within the provisions of s. 210 of the Act, was void as against the attaching creditor and those claiming under him. For the mortgagee it was contended that the attachment could not prevail, it not having been proved affirmatively that the requirements of s. 239, relating to the intimation of the attachment, had been complied with. Held that this objection to the validity of the attachment could not be raised for the first time in this appeal, even if it was not rather for the mortgagee, seeking to deprive the attaching creditor of his possession, to prove the non-observance of the formalities in question. Semble.—A re-attachment of property after decree does not imply an abandonment of an attachment obtained before decree.—Ramkrishna Das Surrowji v. Surfounissa Begum, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 129. [Feb. 28, 1880.]

The defendant obtained a decree against D, father of the plaintiffs, for satisfaction of his debt by the sale of a moiety of a village mortgaged to him by D. In execution of it he attached the mortgaged property, the attachment being made, under Act X. of 1877, s. 274, by an order prohibiting D from transferring or charging the property in any way, and all persons from receiving it from him by purchase, gift, or otherwise. The plaintiffs thereupon applied for the removal of the attachment, but their application was rejected. They then sued for a declaration of their right to two-thirds of the property. The District Judge, who tried the suit, rejected it on the ground that it was barred by Act I. of 1877, s. 42, because the plaintiffs might have sought further relief than a mere declaration of title, and omitted to do so. He was of opinion that the attachment constituted a dispossession, and that the plaintiffs might have asked to be replaced in possession, or, at any rate, for the removal of the attachment. Held by the High Court on appeal that the plaint was not open to objection on the ground that it only asked for a declaratory decree, without any consequential relief; that the prohibitory order to D did not constitute a dispossession of D, and still less of the plaintiffs; and that they could not have properly asked for removal of the attachment by a cancellation of the prohibitory order to D so long as they admitted that D had an interest in the attached property; and also that the plaintiffs could not have properly asked for any consequential relief in their suit, but that, when they instituted it, they were entitled, and, indeed, bound to ask for a declaration of their right, if only to prevent a purchaser at the sale, under the defendant's decree against D, from afterwards alleging that he had purchased without notice of the plaintiff's claim.—Naráyanráv Dámodar Dábhálkar v. Bákrishná Mahádev Gadre, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 529. [June 23, 1880.]

THE proclamation of sale required, by s. 274 of the Civil Procedure Code, to be made at some place adjacent to the property to be sold, and the fixing up of a copy of the order in a conspicuous part of the property, are acts which must precede the posting of the notices in the Court-house as required by s. 290. Where the sale-proceeds of a portion of several parcels of property are sufficient to satisfy the decree of a judgment-creditor who has attached the property, another judgment-creditor, although he has not attached the property, is still entitled to have the remainder of the property sold to satisfy his decree under the provisions of s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code. Three mauzas were attached in execution of decrees obtained by A and B. Prior to the sale, C, who had also obtained a decree against the owner of the land, applied for leave to execute his decree, in order that he might participate in the sale-proceeds under s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code. Upon the day fixed for the sale, the Deputy Commissioner was unable, through illness, to attend; and he postponed the sale for three days. Two of the mauzas were sold, and realized more than enough to satisfy the decrees of A and B. The third was then sold in satisfaction of C's decree. Upon an application by the judgment-debtor to set aside the sale on the ground of irregularity, it appeared that notice of the sale had been posted in the Court-house more than thirty days before the date fixed for the sale, but had only been published on the properties to be sold five days before that date; that notice of the existence of a mortgage on the properties, but no further particulars, was given, and the mortgagee was allowed to purchase; and the Deputy Commissioner had accepted the reports of the Nazir and Court-peon as to the proclamation of sale, and had refused to allow the judgment-debtor to give evidence of its insufficiency. Held that the proclamation of sale on the property having taken place only five days prior to the date of sale, and the particulars of the mortgage not having been given, there had been such material irregularities in the publication as to entitle the judgment-debtor to give evidence of them and the other allegations made by him, in order to show that he had suffered material injury by reason of such irregularities. Held also that the Deputy Commissioner was not entitled to proceed upon the reports of the Nazir and Court-peon, but was bound to hear the evidence tendered by the judgment-debtor, though he was justified, under s. 291, in postponing the sale as he had done. Held, further, that the third judgment-creditor, who had not attached the property, was still entitled to have the sale proceeded with, and his decree satisfied under the provision of s. 295.—Mohunt Megh Lall Pooree v. Shib Pershad Madi, 1. L. R., 7 Cal. 34. [Mar. 18, 1881.]

APPLICATION was made for the attachment, in execution of a decree, of a muafi holding belonging to the judgment-debtor. The numbers and areas given in such application as the numbers and areas of the lands comprised in such holding were the numbers and areas of certain revenue-paying lands, and were not the numbers and areas of any lands held as muafi by the judgment-debtor. The order of attachment described the property as described in the application for attachment. The judgment-debtor having alienated by sale a muafi holding belonging to him, the decree-holders sued to have such alienation set aside as void under the provisions of s. 276 of Act X. of 1877. Held that, having regard to the description given in the application for attachment and the order of attachment, it could not be said that the muafi holding alienated by the judgment-debtor was under attachment at the time of the alienation, and its alienation was therefore not void under s. 276 of Act X. of 1877. Held also that the material misdescription of the property in this case in the order of attachment protected the alienees, who were bona fide purchasers, from having the alienation set aside as void under s. 276, as the attachment could not, under the circumstances, be held to have been "duly intimated and made known," as required by that section.—Gumani v. Hardwar Pandey, 1. L. R., 3 All. 698. [April 25, 1881.]

HELD that the fact of a sale of immoveable property in execution of a decree having taken place before thirty days from the proclamation of sale being made on the property had expired was not a material irregularity in the publication of the sale. Mohunt Megh Lall Pooree v. Shib Pershad Madi (1. L. R., 7 Cal. 34) dissented from:—Rahchander Bahadur v. Kanta Prasad 1. L. R., 4 All. 300. [Feb. 27, 1882.]

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR, whose property had been attached in execution of a money-decree, sold the property, and out of the price paid into Court the amount of the decree, and prayed that the attachment might be removed. While the attachment was subsisting, and prior to the sale, the holders of other money-decrees against the same judgment-debtor preferred applications, purporting to be made under s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code, and praying that the proceeds of the sale of the property might be rateably divided between themselves and the attaching creditors. The Court refused to remove the attachment until these creditors had been paid. It was found that the sale by the judgment-debtor was a bona fide transaction, entered into for valuable consideration. Held that, inasmuch as no order for attachment of the property was passed in favour of the decree-holders in manner provided by s. 274 of the Civil Procedure Code, their claims were not entitled to the protection conferred by s. 276 against private alienations of property under attachment; that these claims were not enforceable under the attachment which was made; that the sale by the judgment-debtor was valid; and that execution of the decrees could not take place. Per Mahmood, J.—That s. 276 of the Civil Procedure Code, being a restriction of private rights of alienation, should be strictly construed; that before property can be subjected to such restriction, there must be a perfected attachment; that the orders passed under s. 295 did not amount to such attachment; and that, even assuming them to amount to such attachment, they not having been duly intimated and notified could not make the prohibition of s. 276 applicable to the case. Mahadeo Dubey v. Bhola Nath Dicit (1. L. R., 5 All. 86), Anand Lall Dass v. Jullodhur Shaw (14 Moore's I. A. 543), Rameswar Singh v. Ramanu Ghose (4 B. L. R., A. C., 24), Indro Chunder Baboo v. Dunlop (10 W. R. 264), Gobind Singh v. Zalim Singh (1. L. R., 6 All. 33), and Gumani v. Hardwar Pandey (1. L. R., 3 All. 698), referred to. Also per Mahmood, J.—While s. 295 of the Code gives a special right to judgment-creditors as distinguished from simple creditors, it is an essential condition precedent to the exercise of that right that there should be a sale in execution, and that its result should appear in assets realized by the sale, and therefore, until the sale takes place, no such right can be enforced. Bishen Chunder Surma Chowdhry v. Mun Mohinee Dabee (8 W. R. 501) referred to.—Ganga Din v. Khushali, 1. L. R., 7 All. 702. [Feb. 28, 1885.]

IN execution of a money-decree, an order was issued under s. 274 of the Civil Procedure Code for the attachment of property which was the joint ancestral estate of the judgment-debtor and his father. A copy of this order was not fixed up in the office of the Collector of the district in which the land was situate, as required by s. 274. The sale was ordered and a day fixed for sale, but in consequence of postponements made at the judgment-debtor's request, no sale took place. In the meantime the judgment-debtor died, and the decree-holder applied for execution against the father as representative of the judgment-debtor, whose interest had survived to him. Held that the decree-holder had, by the proceedings taken in execution during the son's lifetime, obtained rights over his interest which could not be defeated by his death before sale. Suraj Bansi Koer v. Sheo Persad Singh (I. L. R., 5 Cal. 148; L. R., 6 Ind. Ap. 108) followed. Held also that, though the defect in the manner in which the attachment was made might render the attachment ineffectual for the purpose of voiding alienations made, the attachment was effectual against the judgment-debtor, and the defect did not afford a ground for declaring the execution-proceedings ineffectual.—Rai Balkishen v. Rai Sita Ram, I. L. R., 7 All. 731. [Mar. 30, 1885.]

OMISSION to have a drum beaten as required by ss. 274 and 289 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) held to be a material irregularity so as to render a sale held in execution of a decree liable to be set aside.—Triambak Rāvji v. Nānā, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 504. [Jan. 25, 1886.]

IN execution of a decree obtained by them against J and M, the plaintiffs attached a decree obtained by J and M against D, and on the allegation that J and M, in order to avoid the consequence of this attachment, executed a benami conveyance of their interest under the attached decree to B and P, and afterwards with the same object took in adjustment and satisfaction of that decree two bonds in favour of R and I respectively, by which immoveable property was pledged as collateral security, the plaintiffs attached these two bonds by prohibitory order, under s. 268 of the Civil Procedure Code, and purchased them at the sale in execution of their decree. In a suit on the bonds against D as the principal defendant with J, M, B, P, R, and I joined as parties, held that the plaintiffs were entitled to enforce the lien created by the bonds against the immoveable property specified in them, notwithstanding that no attachment had been made in accordance with the provisions of s. 274 of the Code; a debt secured by a mortgage lien on immoveable property not being "immoveable property" within the meaning of that section.—Debendra Kumar Mandal v. Rup Lal Dass, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 546. [Feb. 5, 1886.]

S. 273 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) having expressly provided a mode for the attachment of decrees, the procedure laid down in s. 274 relating to immoveable property has no application to the attachment of a decree for redemption. Under s. 316 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), the title of a purchaser at a Court-sale becomes complete upon his payment of the purchase-money and confirmation of the sale by the Court. When the sale is admitted, production of a certificate is not necessary to prove that fact.—Naigar Timápá v. Bháskar Parmaya, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 444. [Mar. 11, 1886.]

THE interest of the obligee in a bond hypothecating certain land as security for a debt having been attached under s. 274 of the Code of Civil Procedure and sold, a suit was brought by the purchaser upon the said bond. It was objected that the suit was not maintainable because the bond had not been also attached as a debt under s. 268. Held that the fact of the bond not having been attached as a debt under s. 268 did not affect the right of the purchaser to realize the amount due under it.—Sāmi v. Krishnasāmi, I. L. R., 10 Mad. 169. [Dec. 16, 1886.]

resulting from the attachment of any property, be paid into Court, or if satisfaction of the decree be otherwise made through the Court, or if the decree is set aside or reversed, and order shall be issued, on the application of any person interested in the property, for the withdrawal of the attachment.

276. When an attachment has been made by actual seizure or by Private alienation of property after attachment to be void.

written order duly intimated and made known in manner aforesaid, any private alienation of the property attached, whether by sale, gift, mortgage, or otherwise, and any payment of the debt or dividend, or a delivery of the share, to the judgment-debtor during the continuance of the attachment, shall be void as against all claims enforceable under the attachment.

WHERE certain immoveable property having been attached, the execution-case was subsequently struck off the file, and the judgment-debtor applied again for attachment of the same property, held, looking to the particular circumstances of the case, that a private alienation of the property, after the date of such application, but before attachment, was not void under the provisions of s. 240 of Act VIII. of 1859. The principle of the High Court's decision in Ahmed Hossain Khan v. Muhammed Azeem Khan (H. C. R., N. W. P., 1869, p. 51) followed.—Zaib-un-nissa v. Jaiaram Gir, I. L. R., 1 All. 616. [Mar. 4, 1878.]

CERTAIN land was attached in the execution of a decree in the manner required by s. 235 of Act VIII. of 1859, but a copy of the order of attachment was not, as required by s. 239 of that Act, fixed up in a conspicuous part, or in any part at all, of the Court-house of the Court executing the decree; nor was it sent to, or fixed up in, the office of the Collector of the district in which the land was situated. Subsequently to the attachment of the land, the judgment-debtor privately alienated it by sale. Held that as the attachment had not been made known as prescribed by law, the provisions of s. 240 of Act VIII. of 1859 did not apply, and the sale was not null and void. Indarchander v. Agra and Masterman's Bank (10 W. R. 264; 1 B. L. R., S. N., 20) followed.—Nur Ahmad v. Altaf Ali, I. L. R., 2 All. 58. [Nov. 13, 1878.]

THE title obtained by the purchaser on a private sale of property in satisfaction of a decree differs from that acquired upon a sale in execution. Under a private sale, the purchaser derives title through the vendor, and cannot acquire a title better than his. Under an execution-sale, the purchaser, notwithstanding that he acquires merely the right, title, and interest of the judgment-debtor, acquires that title, by operation of law, adversely to the judgment-debtor, and freed from all alienations and incumbrances effected by him, after the attachment of the property sold. In 1858, the respondent obtained a decree against B. In 1863, in satisfaction thereof, he caused to be attached a decree for mesne-profits made in favour of B against the appellants in 1860. In May 1865, the respondent obtained an order for the sale thereof; but instead of proceeding to execution-sale, he purchased, in 1866, the whole of the mesne-profits due under the decree of 1860 by private sale from B. Meanwhile, in September 1865, an order of Court had been made, between B and the appellants, on their consent (but without the respondent being a party to it), whereby the decree for mesne-profits was set off, pro tanto, against a prior decree for a larger amount, which the appellants had obtained against B. Held that the sale of 1866, having been a private one, and not in process of execution, the respondent only obtained such title as B had in the decree of 1860—viz., a title subject to the effect of the order of September 1865.—Dinendronath Sannial v. Ram Kumar Ghose, Tarbehander Bhattacharjia v. Baikantnath Sannial, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 107. [Jan. 26, 1880.]

A SUIT on a mortgage foreclosed under Reg. XVII. of 1806, s. 8, comprising property attached before the date of the mortgage under s. 81 and the following sections of Act VIII. of 1859, was brought against the purchaser of the attached property, which had been sold under the decree obtained by the attaching creditor. The defence was, that the mortgage, falling within the provisions of s. 240 of the Act, was void as against the attaching creditor and those claiming under him. For the mortgagee it was contended that the attachment could not prevail, it not having been proved affirmatively that the requirements of s. 239, relating to the intimation of the attachment, had been complied with. Held that this objection to the validity of the attachment could not be raised for the first time on this appeal, even if it was not rather for the mortgagee, seeking to deprive the attaching creditor of his possession, to prove the non-observance of the formalities in question. Semble.—A re-attachment of property after decree does not imply an abandonment of an attachment obtained before decree.—Ramkrishna Das Surrowji v. Sufunnissa Begum, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 129. [Feb. 28, 1880.]

AN attaching creditor has not, as such, any right to redeem a mortgage subsisting prior to his attachment.—Soobhul Chunder Paul v. Nitye Churn Bysack, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 663. [Aug. 21, 1880.]

A RENEWAL of mortgage already existing on the property prior to attachment, which does not enhance the charge, is not an alienation within the meaning of s. 276 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Mahadevappa v. Srinivasa Rau, I. L. R., 4 Mad. 417. [Jan. 23, 1881.]

APPLICATION was made for the attachment in execution of a decree of a muafi holding belonging to the judgment-debtor. The numbers and areas given in such application as the numbers and areas of the lands comprised in such holding were the numbers and areas of certain revenue-paying lands, and were not the numbers and areas of any lands held as muafi by the judgment-debtor. The order of attachment described the property as described in the application for attachment. The judgment-debtor having alienated by sale a muafi holding belonging to him, the decree-holders sued to have such alienation set aside as void under the provisions of s. 276 of Act X. of 1877. Held that, having regard to the application for attachment and the order of attachment, it could not be said that the muafi holding alienated by the judgment-debtor was under attachment at the time of the alienation, and its alienation was therefore not void under s. 276 of Act X. of 1877. Held also that the material misdescription of the property in this case in the order of attachment protected the alienees, who were bond fide purchasers, from having the alienation set aside as void under s. 276, as the attachment could not, under the circumstances, be held to have been "duly intimated and made known," as required by that section.—Gumani v. Hadwar Pandey, I. L. R., 3 All. 698. [April 25, 1881.]

By agreement between L and Q, the parties to a suit, the matters in difference between them were referred to arbitration. An award was made directing that L should transfer certain property to Q by way of sale. Between the day the award was made and the day a decree was made in accordance with the award such property was attached in execution of a decree against L. After the attachment L, in compliance with the decree made in accordance with the award, executed a conveyance of such property to Q. Held by the Full Bench (affirming the decision of Straight, J., and reversing that of Spankie, J.) that such conveyance was not a "private alienation" in the sense of s. 276 of Act X. of 1877, and was therefore not void under that section as against a claim enforceable under such attachment.—Qurban Ali v. Ashraf Ali, I. L. R., 4 All. 219. [Jan. 18, 1882.]

A PRIVATE alienation of property under attachment is void under s. 276 of the Civil Procedure Code, "as against all claims enforceable under the attachment" only. Held, therefore, where property attached in execution of a decree was alienated, and was, after such alienation, again attached, the first attachment having expired, and was brought to sale in pursuance of the second attachment, and the purchaser sued for possession of the property, claiming on the ground that the alienation of the property was void under the provisions of s. 276, that as no claim was enforced or was enforceable under the first attachment, under which the property was alienated, but the purchaser was claiming under the second attachment, such alienation could not be assailed under the provisions of s. 276.—Gobind Singh v. Zalim Singh, I. L. R., 6 All. 33. [July 19, 1883.]

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR, whose property had been attached in execution of a money-decree, sold the property, and out of the price paid into Court the amount of the decree, and prayed that the attachment might be removed. While the attachment was subsisting, and prior to the sale, the holders of other money-decrees against the same judgment-debtor preferred applications, purporting to be made under s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code, and praying that the proceeds of the sale of the property might be rateably divided between themselves and the attaching creditors. The Court refused to remove the attachment until these creditors had been paid. It was found that the sale by the judgment-debtor was a bond fide transaction, entered into for valuable consideration. Held that, inasmuch as no order for attachment of the property was passed in favour of the decree-holders in manner provided by s. 274 of the Civil Procedure Code, their claims were not entitled to the protection conferred by s. 276 against private alienations of property under attachment; that these claims were not enforceable under the attachment which was made; that the sale by the judgment-debtor was valid; and that execution of the decrees could not take place. Per Mahmood, J.—That s. 276 of the Civil Procedure Code, being a restriction of private rights of alienation, should be strictly construed; that before property can be subjected to such restriction, there must be a perfected attachment; that the orders passed under s. 295 did not amount to such attachment; and that, even assuming them to amount to such attachment, they not having been duly intimated and notified could not make the prohibition of s. 276 applicable to the case. Mahadeo, Dubey v. Bhola Nath Dicit (I. L. R., 6 All. 86), Anand Lall Dass v. Jullodhur Shaw (14 Moore's I. A. 543), Rameswar Singh v. Ramtanu Ghose (4 B. L. R., A. C., 24), Indro Chunder Baboo v. Dunlop (10 W. R. 204), Gobind Singh v. Zalim Singh (I. L. R., 6 All. 33), and Gumani v. Hadwar Pandey (I. L. R., 3 All. 698), referred to. Also per Mahmood, J.—While s. 295 of the Code gives a special right to judgment-creditors as distinguished from simple creditors, it is an essential condition precedent to the exercise of that right that there should be a sale in execution, and that its result should appear in assets realized by the sale, and therefore, until the sale takes place, no such right can be enforced. *Bishen Chunder Surma Chowdhry v. WHERE a vesting order has been made under 11 & 12 Vict., c. 21, s. 7, after attachment and before decree, the title of the Official Assignee takes effect and prevents the attaching creditor from obtaining satisfaction of his decree by a sale. Shib Kristo Shaha Chowdhry v. Miller (1. L. R., 10 Cal. 150) and Gamble v. Bholagiri (2 Bom. H. C. R. 150) followed.—Sadayappa v. Ponnama, 1. L. R., 8 Mad. 554, [May 2, 1885.]

THE interest of a tenant in certain land having been attached by his creditor in execution of a decree for money, the landlord attached the same land for arrears of rent, brought it to sale, and purchased it under the provisions of the Rent Recovery Act. The creditor subsequently purchased the interest of the tenant, which was sold in execution of his decree. In a suit by the landlord to have the sale to the creditor declared invalid, held that the landlord's purchase was subject to the creditor's attachment.—Subramanya v. Rajaram, 1. L. R., 8 Mad. 573. [July 30, 1885.]

277. If the property attached is coin or currency-notes, the Court may, at any time during the continuance of the attachment, direct that such coin or notes, or a part thereof sufficient to satisfy the decree, be paid over to the party entitled under the decree to receive the same. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

Court may direct coin or currency-notes attached to be paid to party entitled.

278. If any claim be preferred to, or any objection be made to the attachment of, any property attached in execution of a decree, on the ground that such property is not liable to such attachment, the Court shall proceed to investigate the claim or objection with the like power as regards the examination of the claimant or objector, and in all other respects, as if he was a party to the suit :

Ditto.

Provided that no such investigation shall be made where the Court considers that the claim or objection was designedly or unnecessarily delayed.

If the property to which the claim or objection applies has been advertised for sale, the Court ordering the sale may postpone it pending the investigation of the claim or objection.

Postponement of sale.

A DECREE-HOLDER, by a prohibitory order issued under Act X. of 1877, s. 268, attached a debt due to his judgment-debtor. This person, served with the order, applied under s. 278 to have the attachment removed. Held that the application could not be entertained under s. 278, that section having no application to the case; but that, before issuing a proclamation of sale, in execution of a decree, of the debt so attached, it is the duty of the Court, under s. 287, to ascertain all that the Court considers it material for the intending purchaser to know in order to judge of the nature and value of the property proclaimed for sale. If the property, of which sale is sought, is a debt, and the Court receives notice from the alleged debtor that no debt exists, the Court should satisfy itself as to the existence, or otherwise, of the debt, and, if it comes to the conclusion that no debt exists, should abstain from proceeding to sale.—Harilal Amthabhai v. Abhesang Meru, 1. L. R., 4 Bom. 323. [Jan. 6, 1880.]

AN objection was made to the attachment of certain property in the execution of a decree by the judgment-debtor, on the ground that such property was in his possession, not as his own property, but on account of an endowment. This objection was one of the nature to be dealt with under Act X. of 1877, s. 278 and the following sections. The Court executing the decree made an order against the decree-holder releasing the property from attachment. Held that such order was not appealable, the fact that the objection was made by the judgment-debtor notwithstanding, and the decree-holder's proper remedy was to institute a suit under Act X. of 1877, s. 283.—Shankar Dial v. Amir Haidar, 1. L. R., 2 All. 752. [Feb. 24, 1880.]

attempted to execute her rent-decree by attaching and selling the hypothecated property, and an objection by A was disallowed. Held that no appeal lay from the order disallowing the objection, as A could not be considered to be a 'representative' of the taluqdars within the meaning of s. 244 (cl. c) of the Civil Procedure Code, and was, therefore, debarred from appealing under ss. 276 and 283.—Rashbehary Mookhopadhyaya v. Maharani Surnomoyee, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 403. [May 13, 1881.]

UNDER ss. 289 and 274 of the Civil Procedure Code, it is necessary that a copy of the sale-proclamation should be affixed to some conspicuous place on the property attached; and the omission to do so is a material irregularity within the meaning of s. 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure. If it is proved that the price obtained for property sold at an execution-sale is greatly inadequate, and if it be also proved that there has been a material irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale, the Court will presume that the irregularity was the cause of the inadequacy of price, until proof is given to the contrary.—Kalytara Chowdharin v. Ramcoomar Goopta, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 466. [May 25, 1881.]

WHERE a person whose property has been attached in execution of a decree against another person, and whose claim under s. 246 of Act VIII. of 1859 has been rejected, brings a suit under the provisions of s. 247 of Act VIII. of 1859, it is no objection to that suit that, previously to the filing thereof, the decree (in execution of which the property had been attached) was satisfied by the judgment-debtor, and the property released from attachment.—Sreeputty Mirdha v. Kartick Singha, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 10. [May 5, 1882.]

THE consideration for a mortgage consisted partly of the amount of two decrees held by the mortgagee against the mortgagor. The mortgagee having sued to enforce the mortgage, the mortgagor pleaded failure of consideration as a bar to the enforcement of the mortgage. This plea was based on the allegation that the mortgagee had not certified the adjustment of the decrees as provided by s. 258 of the Civil Procedure Code, and they were still in force under the terms of that section. Per Duthoit, J., that the failure of the mortgagee to certify the adjustment of the decrees did not constitute a failure of consideration, because he did not covenant to certify such adjustment, and it was not, in fact, necessary for him to do so; because he could not seek execution of the decrees on the ground that, though unsatisfied, they were still in force under s. 258 of the Civil Procedure Code, without becoming liable to penalties; and because, if the mortgagor considered the entering up of the adjustment of the decrees to be imperative, he had his remedy by application to the Court in the terms of s. 258. Per Mahmood, J., that the adjustment of a decree out of Court, if never certified to the Court, is, under s. 258, ineffectual only so far as the execution of the decree is concerned; that there is nothing in the Contract Act to make such an adjustment invalid as the consideration for an agreement; that an agreement founded on such consideration may be enforced without defeating the objects of s. 258; and that consequently there was, in respect of the amount of the decrees, valid consideration for the mortgage. Gunamani Dasi v. Pran Kishori Dasi (5 B. L. R. 223; 13 W. R. 69), Meer Mahouled Kazem Jowharry v. Khetoo Bibee (20 W. R. 150), Guni Khan v. Koonjo Bahary Sein (3 C. L. R. 414), Daylata v. Ganesh Shashtri (I. A AND B attached, in execution of their decree, property of C and his two brothers, their judgment-debtors. Subsequently D obtained a decree against C alone, and, on the 11th January 1884, applied for attachment of the one-third share of C in the property attached by A and B, which belonged to C and his two brothers jointly. No order was on that date passed on the application. On the 14th January 1884, E purchased from C his one-third share in the attached properties, and the purchase-money was, by arrangement between the brothers, applied in satisfying the debt due to A and B. On the 28th January 1884, an order was passed on the application of the 11th January 1884, granting the attachment asked for by D. And on the 23rd April 1884, E preferred his claim to the one-third share purchased by him, and which had been since the purchase attached by D. The claim was disallowed on the ground that E had no title to the property, he having purchased whilst the property was under attachment. Held on appeal that the Judge should have, in accordance with s. 280 of the Code of Civil Procedure, confined himself to determining whether or no the property was in the possession of E on his own account at the time that D attached the property.—Koylash Chunder Sen v. Koylash Chunder Chakrabarti, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 1057. [Aug. 26, 1884.]

HELD that an objection made by one whose property was attached and sold in execution of a decree for the payment of money for the performance of which he had become a surety, that he was no party to the decree, and his property was not liable to be attached and sold, and therefore the sale was invalid, was not an objection entertainable under s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code, and was consequently no ground for setting aside the sale under that section, especially as it was preferred for the first time in appeal, and, moreover, might have been taken under s. 278 at the time of attachment, when the objector would have had his remedy as therein provided.—Hub Lal v. Kanhia Lal, I. L. R., 7 All. 365. [Feb. 4, 1885.]

Held that persons other than the decree-holders or the persons whose property was sold in execution of decree were not competent to apply to the Court under s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code to set aside the sale. M, in whose name property had been purchased at an execution-sale which was improperly set aside, brought a suit to have the order setting aside the sale reversed, and the sale confirmed in her favour, and for a declaration that the property was not liable to be sold in execution of a decree of the defendants against third persons, under which it had been attached and advertized for sale, held that such a suit could only be maintained under s. 42 of the Specific Relief Act (1 of 1877), but that s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code indicated the intention of the Legislature that such questions should be determined in the execution department, and, reading together the provisions of ss. 244, 278, and 283 of the Code, the suit was premature, and therefore not maintainable.—Man Kuar v. Tara Singh, I. L. R., 7 All. 583. [Mar. 24, 1885.]

SUITS under s. 283 of the Code, although they are brought for the purpose of establishing rights which have been negatived in execution-proceedings, are neither described in the Code nor are dealt with in practice, as appeals from the orders of lower Courts; they are substantive suits to all intents and purposes, and must be tried like any other suits subject to the ordinary rules of procedure and evidence. There is nothing in the provisions of ss. 278 to 283 of the Code limiting in a suit under s. 283 a plaintiff's right to compensation for his loss, or the defendant's responsibility for his wrongful act; and if the existence of the summary procedure (in ss. 278 to 282) leads to delay, and that delay to further loss, the consequences must fall upon the defendant.—Kishori Mohun Rai v. Hursook Dass, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 696. [Mar. 13, 1886.]

A JUDGMENT-CREDITOR of the plaintiff having obtained a decree against the plaintiff, attached the house in dispute. The defendant intervened in 1878, and set up a previous purchase of the house by himself from the plaintiff. The attachment was removed. The judgment-creditor brought a suit against the defendant for declaration that the property belonged to the plaintiff, and, as such, was liable to be attached and sold in execution. At the hearing of this suit the judgment-creditor did not appear. The defendant appeared, and produced a sale-deed, which the Court found proved, and dismissed the judgment-creditor's suit. The plaintiff now brought the present suit against the defendant to recover possession of the house. The defendant contended (inter alia) that the dismissal of the former suit, brought by the plaintiff's judgment-creditor, operated as res judicata under s. 13 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882). Both the lower Courts disallowed the defendant's contention, holding that the suit was not barred. On appeal by the defendant to the High Court, held, confirming the lower Court's decree, that the dismissal of the former suit did not operate as res judicata in the absence of any evidence to show that the judgment-creditor, in point of fact, represented the plaintiff so as to constitute him a party to the suit. It was contended for the defendant that the plaintiff, as the judgment-debtor, might, at any rate, be regarded as a party against whom the order in the execution-proceedings in 1878 was made, and that the present suit was, therefore, barred by limitation. Held that the plaintiff could not be regarded as a party to those proceedings. Whether a judgment-debtor is to be regarded as a party to an investigation under s. 278 of the Code, must depend upon the facts of each case. As the question of limitation was raised for the first time in second appeal, it could not be decided against the plaintiff.—Shivapa v. Dod Nágaya, I. L. R., 11 Bom. 114. [Sep. 14, 1886.]

WHERE property has been made the subject of attachment under Chap. XIX. of the Civil Procedure Code, the right of an objector to assert his claim to be the true owner of the property under s. 278, and the jurisdiction of the Court to entertain the objection, are not ousted by the mere circumstances that the judgment-debtor has been declared an insolvent, and his property vested in a Receiver under Chap. XX. It is the judgment-debtor's property only, not that of the objector, that is thus vested.—Paras Ram v. Karam Singh, I. L. R., 9 All. 232. [Jan. 11, 1887.]

279. The claimant or objector must adduce evidence to show that at the date of the attachment he had some interest in, or was possessed of the property attached.

AN order striking off an objection to the attachment of property attached in execution of decree for default of prosecution is not "conclusive" as regards the right which the objector claimed to the property within the meaning of s. 283 of Act X. of 1877. Held, therefore, where a person objected to the attachment of certain moveable property attached in execution of a decree, claiming it as his own, and his objection was struck off for default of prosecution, that such person might sue for damages for the wrongful attachment of such property without suing to establish the right which he claimed thereto.—Kallu Mal v. Brown, I. L. R., 3 All. 504. [Jan. 31, 1881.]

280. If, upon the said investigation, the Court is satisfied that, for the Release of property from REASON stated in the claim or objection, such property was not, when attached, in the possession of the judgment-debtor or of some person in trust for him, or in the occupancy of a tenant or other person paying rent to him, or that, being in possession of the judgment-debtor at such time, it was so in his possession, not on his own account or as his own property, but on account of or in trust for some other person, or partly on his own account and partly on account of some other person, the Court shall pass an order for releasing the property, wholly or to such extent, as it thinks fit, from attachment.

IN a suit upon a mortgage upon a house, one of the defendants alleged in his written statement that he had purchased the house at an auction-sale in execution of a decree against his co-defendants, but that he had since sold and conveyed the same to A, who had been put into and had held possession from the time of the sale to her, and further that the mortgage was collusive. A was not made a party to the suit. The plaintiff obtained a decree, and proceeded to execute it by attachment and sale of the house. A thereupon objected that the house was not liable to be attached and sold in execution of a decree in a suit to which she was not a party, and alleged that it had been purchased and held by her prior to the suit, and that the mortgage-bond was fraudulent collusive. The Munsif dismissed her petition, on the ground that she was bound by the decree, her vendor having been made a party to the suit. Held that the Munsif was bound to have investigated her claim according to the provisions of ss. 278-280 of Act X. of 1877.—Musammatt Jameela v. Luchmun Panday, 4 C. L. R., 74. [Mar. 12, 1879.]

S. 283 of the Civil Procedure Code enables a party, against whom an order has been made in execution-proceedings, to bring a suit to establish his rights, whatever they may be; but it says nothing as to the nature of the suit, or the Court in which it is to be brought. Whether the party is to sue in the Civil Court, or in the Small Cause Court, depends entirely upon the nature of the claim and the right which is sought to be enforced. Where goods have been illegally seized and sold in execution, a suit by the owner thereof against the purchaser for the goods or their value will lie in a Small Cause Court, if the value of the goods is within the amount limited by law for the jurisdiction of such Court; but if the plaintiff makes the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor parties to the suit, and requires a declaration of his right to the property, such a suit will not lie in the Small

Cause Court. A suit for a declaration of right by a person against whom an order has been passed under s. 280 of the Civil Procedure Code will not lie in the Small Cause Court.—Shiboo Narain Singh v. Mudden Ally, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 608. [June 23, 1881.]

An objection to the attachment of property attached in execution of a decree was allowed, the decree-holder being ordered to pay the costs of the objection. The decree-holder thereupon brought a suit to contest the order allowing the objection. He did not seek in this suit relief in respect of the costs. He obtained a decree setting aside the order allowing the objection. He then applied to the Court which had made the order to order a refund of the amount of the costs which had been paid to the objector. Held that the application being regarded as one with regard to a portion of an order made under s. 280 of the Civil Procedure Code, the Court was functus in the matter, and could not make or enforce such an order as was sought for; and that its order disallowing the application was not appealable, as it was not one made under s. 244, and if taken to be one passed with reference to s. 280, an appeal was barred by s. 283.—In the Matter of the Petition of Raghu Nath Das v. Badri Prasad, I. L. R., 6 All. 21. [July 4, 1883.]

S. 283 of the Civil Procedure Code enables a party, against whom an order has been made in execution-proceedings, to bring a suit to establish his rights, whatever they may be; but it says nothing as to the nature of the suit, or the Court in which it is to be brought. Whether the party is to sue in the Civil Court, or in the Small Cause Court, depends entirely upon the nature of the claim and the right which is sought to be enforced. Where goods have been illegally seized and sold in execution, a suit by the owner thereof against the purchaser for the goods or their value will lie in a Small Cause Court, if the value of the goods is within the amount limited by law for the jurisdiction of such Court; but if the plaintiff makes the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor parties to the suit, and requires a declaration of his right to the property, such a suit will not lie in the Small Cause Court. A suit for a declaration of right by a person against whom an order has been passed under s. 280 of the Civil Procedure Code will not lie in the Small Cause Court.—Shiboo Narain Singh v. Mudden Ally, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 608. [June 23, 1881.]

THE holder of a decree against a firm caused certain property to be attached in execution of the decree as the property of the firm. One of the partners in the firm objected to the attachment, on the ground that such property was not the property of the firm, but was his private property. The Court disallowed the objection, whereupon such partner appealed from the order disallowing the objection. Held that such order was not one under s. 244 (c) of Act X. of 1877, but under s. 281, and was therefore not appealable.—Abdul Rahman v. Muhammad Yar, I. L. R., 4 All. 190. [Jan. 3, 1882.]

THE heirs of the deceased obligor of a bond were sued thereon on the ground that they were in possession of the property of the deceased, and a decree was made in this suit for the recovery of the amount claimed "from the property of the deceased." In execution of this decree the plaintiff caused certain property to be attached as belonging to the deceased. The defendants objected to the attachment on the ground that the property belonged to them. The Court executing the decree proceeded to investigate this objection, and, finding that the property did not belong to the defendants, but to the deceased, disallowed it. Held that the proceedings upon such objection were taken under s. 281 of the Civil Procedure Code, and the order disallowing it was therefore not appealable.—Awadh Kuari v. Raktu Tiwari, I. L. R., 6 All. 109. [Nov. 20, 1883.]

IN certain execution-proceedings land was attached, but before the sale the judgment-debtors, with the permission of the Court, sold the land to the plaintiffs. Previous to this sale, certain persons had come forward in the execution-proceedings, and had claimed the land as having been sold to them by the father of the judgment-debtors; this claim was disallowed in November 1873. In 1881 the plaintiffs, alleging that they had been dispossessed by certain persons, amongst whom were the claimants in the execution-proceedings, brought a suit to recover possession of this land against these persons. This suit was decided against the plaintiffs in the lower Appellate Court, on the ground that they had failed to prove that they had been in possession of the land 12 years before suit. On appeal to the High Court the plaintiffs, appellants, contended that the claim of the defendants in the execution-proceedings having been rejected, and they not having brought a regular suit within one year from the order of rejection to establish their right to possession, the defendants were prevented by that order from contending that the plaintiffs had not been in possession at the time of that order. Held that the order did not operate as an estoppel against the defendants; and even if it could so operate, it would not do so until the time had run out, within which they could have brought a suit to establish their right to possession, and that such time had not expired.—Gend Lall Tewari v. Denonath Ram Tewari, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 673. [June 11, 1885.]

THE order contemplated by s. 281 of the Code of Civil Procedure is an order made after investigation into the facts of the case, and it is only when the order is made after such investigation that the limitation of one year is applicable to a subsequent suit under s. 283 of the Civil Procedure Code.—*Chandra Bhusan Gangopadhyaya v. 283. The party against whom an order under section 280, 281, or 282, is passed, may institute a suit to establish the right to attached property, which he claims to the property in dispute, but, subject to the result of such suit (if any), the order shall be conclusive.

A OBTAINED a money-decree against B, and attached certain lands in execution. C subsequently claimed possession of the property, which the Court thereupon released under s. 246, Act VIII. of 1859, leaving the plaintiff to establish his right by a regular suit brought within the prescribed period. A did not bring a suit within such period, but having, in the meantime, obtained a second decree against B on a different cause of action, attached the lands a second time. The property was again released on C's application, and A now sued to have his right declared to attach the lands in execution of the second decree. The lower Courts dismissed the suit, holding that A could not raise in the second suit a question which he had the opportunity of raising, but did not, in the first suit. On appeal, held that the suit was maintainable, the principle of res judicata not applying. Held also that an order under s. 246 was invalid, where the question of possession, under that section, had not previously been investigated. Whether a correct conclusion had been arrived at in such investigation, was immaterial so far as concerned the validity of the order.—Paidāvenkamma v. Aiyangari Kenkatra Maiya, 4 Ind. Jur. 397.

PLAINTIFF, in May 1877, attached certain immoveable property of defendants, against whom he held an ordinary money-decree, and obtained an order for its sale in satisfaction of the decree. In July 1877, defendant's infant sons presented a petition to the lower Court, praying to have two-thirds of the property, to which they were entitled, released. The petition did not allege that such infants were in possession, and, on the 18th July, was rejected by the lower Court, on the ground that possession of the property attached was in the defendant. The property was sold; and plaintiff, who was the purchaser at the public sale, was put in possession, by order of the Court, on the 22nd October 1877. On the 8th November 1877, the defendant's minor sons presented a second petition to the same Court, purporting to be under s. 332, Act X. of 1877, upon which the Court, recording the evidence of the mother, that there had been joint possession, decided that the purchaser was not entitled to dispossess the infants, and cancelled the former delivery of possession. On appeal, the lower Appellate Court decided that the Munsif's order of the 18th July was final, and set aside that of the 21st November as ultra vires. Defendant's sons appealed, contending (1) that the Munsif's order of the 18th July 1877, having been passed without any investigation, was not an order under s. 246, Act VIII. of 1859, and therefore not final; (2) that the petition filed on the 8th November should be treated as an application under s. 376, Act VIII. of 1859, for review of judgment made in the order of 18th July; and (3) that the Munsif's order of the 21st November was one which he had power to make in review of his order for execution passed on the 22nd October 1877. Held (1) that the Munsif's order of the 18th July must be considered to have been under s. 246, Act VIII. of 1859, and final on the question of possession, except in respect of a regular suit; (2) that the application of the 8th November, treated as an application for review of judgment under s. 376, Act VIII. of 1859, was not admissible, if not having been made within the limited period (s. 377); (3) that the Munsif had no jurisdiction to review his order for execution of the 22nd October on the application of the infants, inasmuch as that order was not an order against them; and, under s. 623, they could not apply for a review of it, it not being open to them except by a regular suit (s. 283) to re-agitate the question of possession decided against them by the order of 18th July.—Ruthna Mudali v. Kakarla Ramayachetti, 3 Ind. Jur. 264.

A SUIT brought by a defeated claimant, under Act X. of 1877, s. 283, to establish his right to, and to recover possession of, certain moveable property attached in execution of a decree of a Small Cause Court, is within the jurisdiction of, and must therefore, under Act XI. of 1865, s. 12, be instituted in, a Small Cause Court.—Gordhan Pema v. Kasandás Balmukundás, I. L. R., 3 Bom. 179. [Jan. 21, 1879.]

AN objection was made to the attachment of certain property in the execution of a decree by the judgment-debtor, on the ground that such property was in his possession, not as his own property, but on account of an endowment. This objection was one of the nature to be dealt with under Act X. of 1877, s. 278 and the following sections. The Court executing the decree made an order against the decree-holder releasing the property from attachment. Held that such order was not appealable, the fact that objection was made by the judgment-debtor notwithstanding, and the decree-holder's proper remedy was to institute a suit under Act X. of 1877, s. 283.—Shankar Dial v. Amir Haidar, I. L. R., 2 All. 752. [Feb. 24, 1880.]

IN a suit under Act X. of 1877, s. 283, for a declaration of the proprietary right to certain immoveable property attached in the execution of a decree, the plaintiff asked that the property might be "protected from sale." Held that consequential relief was claimed in the suit, and court-fees were therefore leviable under Act VII. of 1870, s. 7, cl. 4 (c), and not under sch. 2, art. 17 (3).—Ram Prasad v. Sukh Dai, I. L. R., 2 All. 720. [Feb. 28, 1880.]

SUITS brought to set aside or to restore an attachment upon a house, in pursuance of the permission given in s. 246 of the Civil Procedure Code, may be regarded either "as suits to obtain a declaratory decree or order where consequential relief is prayed," so as to fall within s. 7, cl. 4, art. c, of the Court Fees Act (VII. of 1870), or as suits to obtain or set aside a summary decision or order, in which case the stamp-duty payable would be that prescribed by art. 17, cl. 1, sch. 2 of the Court Fees Act. The Court Fees Act being a fiscal enactment, it's the duty of the Courts to treat such suits as belonging to the latter class (it being the more favourable to the suitor), and to impose fees accordingly. Decisions under s. 246 of Act VIII. of 1859, as to the removal or retention of attachments, are "summary decisions or orders" within the meaning of art. 17, cl. 1 sch. 2 of the Court Fees Act (VII. of 1870). The words "summary decision or order" in this clause of the Court Fees Act mean decision or order not made in a regular suit or appeal. The construction which has been given to these words, or nearly similar words, in the Limitation Acts (e.g., Act IX. of 1871, sch. 2, art. 15, and Act XV. of 1877, sch. 2, art. 13), affords no guide to their construction in the Court Fees Act. When Acts are in pari materia, they may be treated as forming a Code, and may be read together; but when this is not so, the construction which has been put upon one cannot be relied upon as a guide to the construction of another. The valuation of suits, for the purpose of jurisdiction, is perfectly distinct from their valuation for the fiscal purpose of court-fees. Therefore, Court Fees Acts, which are fiscal enactments, are not to be resorted to for construing enactments which fix the valuation of suits for the purpose of determining jurisdiction. Motichand Jaichand v. Dada Bhai Pestonji (11 Bom. H. C. R. 186, 188, 189) explained: Rāvloji Tamaji v. Dholapa Raghu (I. L. R., 4 Bom. 123) dissented from by Westropp, C.J. A stamp of Rs. 10 is sufficient for the plaint or memorandum of appeal in a suit brought under s. 246 of Act VIII. of 1859 to restore an attachment upon a house which has been removed at the instance of an intervenient, under that section. A person whose property was attached was not compelled to resort, in the first instance, to an application under s. 246 of the late Civil Procedure Code (Act VIII. of 1859). There was nothing to prevent him from commencing his litigation by a regular suit, if such were his pleasure. Cl. 8 of s. 7 of the Court Fees Act (VII. of 1870) would apply to such a suit. The language of that section is not limited to suits to set aside any special kind of attachments on land. It is large enough to include suits brought, in pursuance of the permission given by s. 246 of Act VIII. of 1859, to set aside attachments on lands as well as other suits for that purpose brought independently of that section. The term 'land' in cl. 8, s. 7, of the Court Fees Act, does not include a house. Quære.—Whether that clause includes all suits to set aside attachments upon land, or all such suits, except where the result of setting aside the attachment would be to alter or set aside a summary decision or order of any Civil Court not established by Letters Patent or of any Revenue Court? In order to enforce a decree which establishes a mortgage, and directs a sale of the mortgaged premises in satisfaction of the mortgage, it is not necessary to issue an attachment. If the decree contains, as it ought to contain, a direction for sale of the mortgaged premises, the proceeding under such a decree by attachment is unnecessary as well as expensive and dilatory. The direction for sale in the decree is in itself sufficient authority for the sale. That direction is founded on the specific lien or charge on the mortgaged premises created by the contract of mortgage, and not on the execution-clauses in the Code of Civil Procedure. —Dyachand Nemchand v. Hemchand Dharamchand, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 515. [June 23, 1880.]

AN order striking off an objection to the attachment of property attached in execution of a decree for default of prosecution is not "conclusive" as regards the right which the objector claimed to the property within the meaning of s. 283 of Act X. of 1877. Held therefore, where a person objected to the attachment of certain immoveable property attached in execution of a decree, claiming it as his own, and his objection was struck off for default of prosecution, that such person might sue for damages for the wrongful attachment of such property without suing to establish the rights which he claimed thereto.—Kallu Mal v. Brown, I. L. R., 3 All. 504. [Jan. 31, 1881.]

THE holders of a taluq hypothecated certain other property belonging to them as security for the rent. A decree for rent was obtained against them. Prior to attachment, the taluqdars assigned their interest in eight annas of the hypothecated property to A, and made a mourosi lease of the remaining eight annas to him. The decree-holder then obtained an order for summary sale for the rent due for 1876-77. She then attempted to sell the property hypothecated to her. An objection by A was allowed. A regular suit was then instituted by the decree-holder against A, and it was declared that she was, after selling the taluq, entitled to sell the hypothecated property. The decree-holder again attempted to execute her rent-decree by attaching and selling the hypothecated property, and an objection by A was disallowed. Held that no appeal lay from the order disallowing the objection, as A could not be considered to be a 'representative' of the taluqdars within the meaning of s. 244, cl. c. of the Civil Procedure Code, and was, therefore, debarred from appealing under ss. 278 and 283.—Rashbehary Mookhopadhyaya v. Maharani Surnomoyee, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 403. [May 13, 1881.]

S. 283 of the Civil Procedure Code enables a party, against whom an order has been made in execution-proceedings, to bring a suit to establish his rights, whatever they may be; but says nothing as to the nature of the suit, or the Court in which it is to be brought. Whether the party is to sue in the Civil Court or in the Small Cause Court, depends entirely upon the nature of the claim and the right which is sought to be enforced. A person whose goods are illegally sold under an execution does not lose his right to them, although he may have claimed them unsuccessfully in the execution-proceedings. He may follow them into the hands of the purchaser or of any other persons, and sue for them or their value without reference to anything which has taken place in the execution-proceedings, except that, under art. 11, sch. 2, Act XV. of 1877, he must bring his suit within one year from the time when the adverse order in the execution-proceedings was made. Where goods have been illegally seized and sold in execution, a suit by the owner thereof against the purchaser, for the goods or their value, will lie in a Small Cause Court, if the value of the goods is within the amount limited by law for the jurisdiction of such Court; but if the plaintiff makes the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor parties to the suit, and requires a declaration of his right to the property, such a suit will not lie in the Small Cause Court. A suit for a declaration of right by a person against whom an order has been passed under s. 280 of the Civil Procedure Code will not lie in the Small Cause Court. Ram Dhun Biswas v. Kefal Biswas (10 W. R. 141), Moozdeen Gazeer v. Dinobundhoo Goesamee (13 W. R. 99), and Womesh Chunder Bose v. Muddun Mohan Sircar (2 W. R. 44), discussed and explained.—Shiboo Narain Singh v. Muddun Ally, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 606. [June 23, 1881.]

S. 283 does not constitute an exception to the procedure laid down by s. 545. Where property has been released from attachment under s. 280, and subsequently declared liable to attachment by a decree against which an appeal is pending, a sale of such property before the final result of the appeal is not illegal by virtue of the provisions of s. 283.—Fathula v. Muniyappa, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 98. [Oct. 13, 1882.]

THE L Bank advanced money to C, a Hindu governed by the Mitakshara school of law upon mortgage of ancestral property. S, who was stated to be C's only son, joined in the mortgage. Subsequently the Bank obtained a decree against C and S for the amount due on the mortgage. On attempting to sell the mortgaged property other sons of C objected. This objection was allowed, and the mortgagees referred to a regular suit. They then sued all the sons of C to establish their lien on the mortgaged property. Held that the suit was maintainable under s. 283 of the Civil Procedure Code. Nuthoo Lall Chowdhry v. Shoukee Lall (10 B. L. R. 200) and Mussamut Dhase v. Hurry Prosad distinguished.—Sitanath Koer v. Land Mortgage Bank of India, I. L. R., 9 All. 588. [April 9, 1883.]

A PERSON who had claimed moveable property attached in execution of a decree as his own, and whose claim had been investigated and disallowed under ss. 278 to 281 of the Civil Procedure Code, sued, the property being under attachment, the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor in a Court of Small Causes for the property or its value. Held that the suit could not properly be regarded as a suit "for personal property or for the value of such property," within the meaning of s. 6 of Act XI. of 1865, but must be regarded as a suit to establish the plaintiff's right, in the sense of s. 283 of the Civil Procedure Code, inasmuch as the plaintiff could not recover the property without clearing out of his way the order of attachment, which he could only do by establishing his right in the sense of s. 283, and therefore the suit was not one cognizable in a Court of Small Causes. Janaki Ammal v. Vithenaden (5 Mad. H. C. R. 191), Kundeme Naine Booshe Naidoo v. Ravoo Lutcheemapaty Naidoo (8 Mad. H. C. R. 33), Gordhan Pema v. Kasandas Balmukundas (I. L. R. 1871, p. 155), dissented from.—Godha v. Naik Ram, I. L. R., 7 All. 152. [Aug. 7, 1883.]

THE consideration for a mortgage consisted partly of the amount of two decrees held by the mortgagee against the mortgagor. The mortgagee having sued to enforce the mortgage, the mortgagor pleaded failure of consideration as a bar to the enforcement of the mortgage. This plea was based on the allegation that the mortgagee had not certified the adjustment of the decrees as provided by s. 258 of the Civil Procedure Code, and they were still in force under the terms of that section. Per Duthoit, J., that the failure of the mortgagee to certify the adjustment of the decrees did not constitute a failure of consideration, because he did not covenant to certify such adjustment, and it was not, in fact, necessary for him to do so; because he could not seek execution of the decrees on the ground that, though unsatisfied, they were still in force under s. 258 of the Civil Procedure Code, without becoming liable to penalties; and because, if the mortgagor considered the entering up of the adjustment of the decrees to be imperative, he had his remedy by application to the Court in the terms of s. 258. Per Mahmood, J., that the adjustment of a decree out of Court, if never certified to the Court, is, under s. 258, ineffectual only so far as the execution of the decree is concerned; that there is nothing in the Contract Act to make such an adjustment invalid as the consideration for an agreement; that an agreement founded on such consideration may be enforced without defeating the objects of s. 258; and that consequently there was, in respect of the amount of the decrees, valid consideration for the mortgage. Gumanani Dasi v. Pran Kishori Dasi (5 B. L. R. 223; 13 W. R. 69), Meer Mahomed Kazem Jowharry v. Khetoo Bibee (20 W. R. 150), Guni Khan v. Koonjo Behary Sein (3 C. L. R. 414), Davlat v. Ganesh Shashtri (I. L. R., 6 Bom. 146) and Pundrang Ramchandra Chowdhule v. Narayan (I. L. R., 8 Bom. 300), dissented from.—Ramghulam v. Janki Rai, I. L. R., 7 All. 124. [Aug. 15, 1884.]

WHEN a party prefers a claim or makes any objection to the attachment of any property in execution of a decree, but fails to establish it, and brings a suit under s. 283 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882) to establish his right to the property attached, his plaint is to be treated as falling under art. 17, cl. 1, of sch. 2 of the Court Fees Act (VII. of 1870), and is chargeable with only a ten-rupee stamp, notwithstanding that the plaintiff may pray in such a suit to be awarded possession.—Dhondo Sakharam Kulkarni v. Govind Babaji Kulkarni, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 20. [Aug. 19, 1884.]

Held that persons other than the decree-holders, or the persons whose property was sold in execution of decree, were not competent to apply to the Court under s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code to set aside the sale. M., in whose name property had been purchased at an execution sale which was improperly set aside, brought a suit to have the order setting aside the sale reversed, and the sale confirmed in her favour, and for a declaration that the property was not liable to be sold in execution of a decree of the defendants against third persons, under which it had been attached and advertised for sale. Held that such a suit could only be maintained under s. 42 of the Specific Relief Act (I. of 1877), but that s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code indicated the intention of the Legislature that such questions should be determined in the execution department, and, reading together the provisions of ss. 244, 278, and 283 of the Code, the suit was premature, and therefore not maintainable.—Man Kuar v. Tara Singh, I. L. R., 7 All. 583. [Mar. 23, 1885.]

In certain execution-proceedings land was attached, but before the sale the judgment-debtors, with the permission of the Court, sold the land to the plaintiffs. Previous to this sale, certain persons had come forward in the execution-proceedings, and had claimed the land as having been sold to them by the father of the judgment-debtors; this claim was disallowed in November 1876. In 1881 the plaintiffs, alleging that they had been dispossessed by certain persons, amongst whom were the claimants in the execution-proceedings, brought a suit to recover possession of this land against these persons. This suit was decided against the plaintiffs in the lower Appellate Court, on the ground that they had failed to prove that they had been in possession of the land 12 years before suit. On appeal to the High Court the plaintiffs, appellants, contended that the claim of the defendants in the execution-proceedings having been rejected, and they not having brought a regular suit within one year from the order of rejection to establish their right to possession, the defendants were prevented by that order from contending that the plaintiffs had not been in possession at the time of that order. Held that the order did not operate as an estoppel against the defendants; and even if it could so operate, it would not do so until the time had run out, within which they could have brought a suit to establish their right to possession, and that such time had not expired.—Gend Lal Tewary v. Denonath Ram Tewari, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 673. [June 11, 1885.]

A OBTAINED a money-decree against B, and, in execution, attached property in the possession of C, who claimed to have purchased it for value from B previously to the date of the decree. The attachment was removed on the motion of C. A then brought a suit against C, under s. 283 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882), to have it declared that the property was liable to attachment and sale under the decree. C contended that the decree sought to be executed was a collusive one. Held that C could not be allowed to impeach the decree between A and B.—Gulibai v. Jagannath Galvanhar, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 659. [July 6, 1885.]

CERTAIN moveable property having been attached, in execution of a Small Cause decree passed by the Court of a Subordinate Judge, a claim thereto was preferred by M, and rejected. M then brought a suit in the District Munsif's Court for a declaration that the property was his, and was not liable to be sold in execution. The suit was dismissed on the ground that it was cognizable by a Court of Small Cause. Held that M was not bound to sue for recovery of the property, and that the suit was not cognizable by a Small Cause Court constituted under Act XI. of 1865.—Mahomed Koya v. Kasmi, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 206. [Nov. 2, 1885.]

SUITS under s. 283 of the Code, although they are brought for the purpose of establishing rights which have been negatived in execution-proceedings, are neither described in the Code, nor are dealt with in practice, as appeals from the orders of lower Courts; they are substantive suits to all intents and purposes, and must be tried like any other suits subject to the ordinary rules of procedure and evidence. There is nothing in the provisions of ss. 278 to 283 of the Code limiting in a suit under s. 283 a plaintiff's right to compensation for his loss, or the defendant's responsibility for his wrongful act; and if the existence of the summary procedure (in ss. 278 to 282) leads to delay, and that delay to further loss, the consequences must fall upon the defendant.—Kishori Mohun Bai v. Hurrook Dass, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 696. [Mar. 13, 1886.]

A JUDGMENT-CREDITOR of the plaintiff, having obtained a decree against the plaintiff, attached the house in dispute. The defendant intervened in 1878, and set up a previous purchase of the house by himself from the plaintiff. The attachment was removed. The judgment-creditor brought a suit against the defendant for declaration that the property belonged to the plaintiff, and, as such, was liable to be attached and sold in execution. At the hearing of this suit the judgment-creditor did not appear. The defendant appeared, and produced a sale-deed, which the Court found proved, and dismissed the judgment-creditor's suit. The plaintiff now brought the present suit against the defendant to recover possession of the house. The defendant contended (inter alia) that the dismissal of the former suit, brought by the plaintiff's judgment-creditor, operated as res judicata under s. 13 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882). Both the lower Courts disallowed the defendant's contention, holding that the suit was not barred. On appeal by the defendant to the High Court, held, confirming the lower Courts' decree, that the dismissal of the former suit did not operate as res judicata in the absence of any evidence to show that the judgment-creditor, in point of fact, represented the plaintiff so as to constitute him a party to the suit. It was contended for the defendant that the plaintiff, as the judgment-debtor, might, at any rate, be regarded as a party, against whom the order in the execution-proceedings in 1878 was made, and that the present suit was, therefore, barred by limitation. Held that the plaintiff could not be regarded as a party to those proceedings. Whether a judgment-debtor is to be regarded as a party to an investigation under s. 278 of the Code, must depend upon the facts of each case. As the question of limitation was raised for the first time in second appeal, it could not be decided against the plaintiff.—Shivápa v. Dod Nágaya, I. L. R., 11 Bom. 114. [Sep. 14, 1886.]

to satisfy the decree, shall be sold, and that the proceeds of such sale, or a sufficient portion thereof, shall be paid to the party entitled under the decree to receive the same.

ALTHOUGH there is no express provision in the Code laying down that a decree-holder may take out of Court the proceeds of an execution-sale before the date on which the sale is confirmed, yet s. 315 of the Code implies that this may be done. The Court, however, under special circumstances, may refuse to pay over to the decree-holder the purchase-money until the sale is confirmed, but in such case it should provide for due payment of interest on the money detained. Held that, under the special circumstances of this case, the decree-holder was not entitled to receive interest from his judgment-debtor from the date of the sale to the date on which the sale was confirmed.—Jogendra Nath Sircar v. Gobind Chunder Addi, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 252. [July 14, 1885.]

WHEN a property is sold in execution of a decree, it cannot be sold again at the instance of another decree-holder, who may have attached it before the attachment effected by the decree-holder under whose decree it is actually sold; and when a judicial sale takes place, all previous attachments effected upon the property sold fall to the ground.—Kashy Nath Roy Chowdhry v. Surbanand Shaha, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 317. [Sep. 2, 1885.]

285. Where property not in the custody of any Court has been attached in execution of decrees of more Courts than one, the Court which shall receive or realize such property, and shall determine any claim thereto, and any objection to the attachment thereof, shall be the Court of highest grade, or where there is no difference in grade between such Courts, the Court under whose decree the property was first attached.

CERTAIN immoveable property was attached in execution of a decree made by a Subordinate Judge, and also in execution of a decree made by a Munsif. These decrees were held by the same person, and the judgment-debtor was the same person. Such property was sold in execution of both decrees. On the application of the judgment-debtor, who brought into Court the amount due on the decree made by the Subordinate Judge, and with the consent of the decree-holder and the auction-purchaser, the Subordinate Judge made an illegal order setting aside such sale. Subsequently, on the application of the decree-holder and the auction-purchaser, the Munsif made an order confirming such sale.

Per Spankie, J.—That the Subordinate Judge had not any jurisdiction under s. 285 of the Civil Procedure Code to deal with such sale as regards the decree made by the Munsif, and the Munsif was not precluded by that section from confirming such sale as regards the decree made by him by reason that the Subordinate Judge, a Court of a higher grade, had made an order setting it aside. Per Oldfield, J.—That having regard to the provisions of that section, it was doubtful whether the Munsif was competent to confirm such sale; but, inasmuch as the Subordinate Judge only intended to set it aside as regards the decree made by him, and his order was illegal, and the Munsif's order had done substantial justice, there was no reason to interfere.—Chunni Lal v. Debi Prasad, I. L. R., 3 All. 856. [Dec. 20, 1880.]

A, who had obtained a decree in the Court of the Second Munsif of B in September 1877, attached certain property within the jurisdiction which had been assigned to the Munsif by the District Judge under s. 18 of Act VI. of 1871. In the previous month, C, who had obtained a decree in the Court of the Additional Munsif of B (to whom jurisdiction had similarly been assigned), had attached the same property. The sale in execution of A's decree took place first, and A became the purchaser. A then objected in the Court of the Additional Munsif that the property could not again be sold; but his objection was overruled, and two days subsequently the property was again put up for sale in execution of C's decree, and he became the purchaser. A brought various suits against the tenants for arrears of rent, in which C intervened. Held that the jurisdictions of the Munsifs were confined to the particular limits assigned to them, and that, as the property was situate within the limits assigned to the second Munsif, the Additional Munsif had no jurisdiction to attach or sell it, and that the attachment by C was made improperly and without jurisdiction. Quere.—Whether s. 285 of the Civil Procedure Code applies to immoveable property?—Obhoy Churn Coondoo v. Golam Ali, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 410. [May 12, 1881.]

WHERE property attached in execution of a decree of a Munsif's Court is, or becomes, subject to an attachment issued from a Subordinate Judge's Court, the holder of the decree in the Munsif's Court, in order to share rateably in the assets under s. 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure, must apply to the District Court to transfer his application to the subordinate Court. Gopemath Acharje v. Achha Bibee (I. L. R., 7 Cal. 553) and Jetha Madnavji v. Najerali Abhramji (I. L. R., 4 Bom. 472) approved.—Muttalagiri v. Muttayyar, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 357. [April 26, 1883.]

WHERE certain immoveable property which had been attached in execution of two decrees, one made by a Munsif, and the other by the District Court to which such Munsif was subordinate, was sold under the order of the Munsif, held (following In the Matter of the Petition of Badri Prasad v. Badri Prasad v. Saran Lal (I. L. R., 4 All. 359) that the sale was bad by reason of the Munsif's want of jurisdiction to order it.—Aghore Nath v. Shama Sundari, I. L. R., 5 All. 615. [June 25, 1883.]

The provisions of s. 285 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, apply to immoveable property. Where a house, while under an attachment issued by a Subordinate Judge's Court in execution of a decree, was sold in execution of another decree against the same judgment-debtor by the District Munsif's Court, and was then sold by the Subordinate Judge's Court, held that the sale by the District Munsif's Court was invalid by reason of the provisions of s. 285 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882.—Muttukaruppan v. Mutturamalinga, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 47. [Aug. 11, 1883.]

THE first mortgagee of certain immoveable property obtained a decree for the sale of the property, caused the property to be attached, and then ceased to prosecute the execution-proceedings. The second mortgagee then obtained a decree for the sale of the property, caused it to be attached and put up for sale, and purchased it himself. The first mortgagee then applied for the sale of the property, and the property was put up for sale, and was purchased by him. After the order for this sale was made, and before it took place, the judgment-debtor died, and the sale took place without his legal representatives being made parties to the execution-proceedings. The Courts which executed these decrees were of two different grades, the Court which executed the first mortgagee's decree being of the lower grade. In a suit by the first mortgagee against the second mortgagee for possession of the property, held that the sale to the first mortgagee was not invalid, with reference to the provisions of s. 285 of the Civil Procedure Code, because it had not been ordered and held by the Court of the higher grade, inasmuch as when such sale was ordered by the Court of the lower grade, the property was not under attachment in execution of the decree of the Court of the higher grade, that decree having been executed by the sale of the property, and therefore the provisions of that section were not applicable. Badri Prasad v. Saran Lal (I. L. R., 4 All. 359) distinguished. Per Oldfield, J., that there was nothing in the provisions of s. 285 or s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code to support the contention that the first mortgagee, after allowing the property to be sold, was debarred from enforcing execution of his decree against it, and was only entitled to look to the assets realized at the sale for the satisfaction of his decree. Per Oldfield, J.; that the sale to the first mortgagee was not void because the judgment-debtor had died before it took place, and it took place without his legal representatives being made parties to the execution-proceedings, inasmuch as the provisions of s. 368 of the Civil Procedure Code were not applicable to the case of the death of a judgment-debtor, and there was nothing in s. 234, even if that section is applicable to a case where the judgment-debtor dies while execution is proceeding and after sale of his property has been ordered, to imply that the sale is absolutely void, if no legal representative has been brought on the record. Dulari v. Mohun Singh (I. L. R., 3 All. 759) and Gulabdas v. Lakshman Narhar (I. L. R., 3 Bom. 221)* referred to. Per Straight, J., that there was no legal obligation on the first mortgagee to resort to the procedure of s. 234 of the Civil Procedure Code, since the sale to the second mortgagee had passed to him the rights and interests of the judgment-debtor, and the legal representatives of the judgment-debtor had none of his property in their hands, and there is no provision in the Code of Civil Procedure which required the first mortgagee to make the second mortgagee a party to the proceedings in execution of the former's decree, and the latter could not have successfully objected to the sale in execution of that decree, and therefore that sale was not void by the death of the judgment-debtor antecedent to its taking place.—Stowell (C. W.) v. Ajudhia Nath, I. L. R., 6 All. 255. [Mar. 17, 1884.]

At an execution-sale held by an inferior Court at the instance of the decree-holder (the Court itself, the decree-holder, and the auction-purchaser being unaware of any objection to the exercise of a jurisdiction which the Court would ordinarily be competent to exercise), A purchased certain property, and this sale was confirmed. It appeared subsequently that this same property had, two years previously to the sale, been attached by a superior Court. On a sale of this property being ordered by the superior Court, A objected on the ground that he had already purchased the property. His objection was overruled, and a sale was held by the superior Court, at which A again became the purchaser. A then brought a suit against the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor in the inferior Court to recover as damages the sum paid by him at the sale. The suit was dismissed. Held that, although the superior Court had been wrong in insisting on the second sale, and in not requiring the amount received by the inferior Court to have been deposited in the superior Court, and then rateably distributed amongst the creditors of the judgment-debtors, yet the sale by the inferior Court was a good and valid sale; and A's suit was therefore rightly dismissed. Obhoy Churn Coondoo v. Golam Ali (I. L. R., 7 Cal. 410) adopted.—Bykant Nath Shaha v. Rajendro Narain Rai, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 333. [Sep. 10, 1885.]

G.—Of Sale and Delivery of Property.

(a) General Rules.

286. Sales in execution of decrees shall be conducted by an officer of Sales by whom conducted, the Court or by any other person whom the Court may appoint, and, except as provided in section 296, shall be made by public auction in manner hereinafter mentioned.

Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

A CIVIL Court, having power to issue execution on a decree, is competent, notwithstanding the absence of special provision in the Code, to refuse to confirm a sale in favour of a purchaser, who has, by the exercise of fraud and collusion with the execution-creditor, succeeded in being declared such purchaser at a depreciated value, although such sale may be without any material irregularity within the meaning of the Code. An order confirming a Court-sale is not appealable under the Code.—Subbu Rau v. Strinivasa Rau, 4 Ind. Jur. 505.

WHERE a judgment-debtor died after his land had been attached, and the creditor brought the land to sale without making the representatives of the deceased parties to the proceedings, held that the sale was illegal, and must be set aside.—Ramasami Ayyangar v. Bagirathi Annal, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 180. [Jan. 19, 1883.]

287. When any property is ordered to be sold by public auction in ex-

Ditto.

Proclamation of sales by execution of a decree, the Court shall cause a proclamation of the intended sale to be made in the language of such Court. Such proclamation shall state the time and place of sale, and shall specify as fairly and accurately as possible—

(a) the property to be sold ;

(b) the revenue assessed upon the estate or part of the estate, when the property to be sold is an interest in an estate or a part of an estate paying revenue to Government ;

(c) any incumbrance to which the property is liable ;

(d) the amount for the recovery of which the sale is ordered ; and

(e) every other thing which the Court considers material for the purchaser to know in order to judge of the nature and value of the property.

For the purpose of ascertaining the matters so to be specified, the Court may summon any person whom it thinks necessary, and examine him in respect to any such matters, and require him to produce any document in his possession or power relating thereto.

The High Court shall, as soon as may be after this Code comes into force, make rules for the guidance of the Courts in exercise of their duties under this section.

The High Court may, from time to time, alter any rules so made. All such rules shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law. As regards his own Court and the Court of Small Causes at Rangoon, the Recorder of Rangoon shall be deemed to be a "High Court" within the meaning of this paragraph.

Nothing in this section shall apply to cases in which the execution of the decree has been transferred to the Collector.

WHERE a sale in execution of a decree is postponed, whether indefinitely or to a fixed date, it is necessary, in the absence of an express arrangement between all the parties, that a fresh proclamation should be made giving notice of the day to which the sale has been postponed. It may be presumed, when the notice is wanting, that there has been an absence of bidders, from which alone substantial injury must probably have arisen to the judgment-debtor. Shib Prakash Singh v. Sardar Doyal Singh (I. L. R., 3 Cal. 544) and Okhoy Chunder Dutt v. Erskine (3 W. R., Mis. 11) followed.—Gopee Nath Dohay v. Roy Luchmeeput Singh Bahadur, I. L. R., 3 Cal. 512. [Dec. 21, 1877.]

WHEN on an execution-sale there is a discrepancy between the conditions in the notification of what is to be sold and the certificate of what has been sold, the conditions in the notification are to be taken as of superior authority in dealing with the conflicting claims of innocent third parties, whose rights are affected by the variation. In execution of a decree for arrears of rent, an application was made for a sale of the tenure for the arrears of which the decree had been obtained. A notification was issued, purporting to be a sale-proclamation, under Act VIII. of 1859, s. 249, and in pursuance of that notification the sale of the right, title, and interest of the judgment-debtor took place. Held that the tenure did not pass by that sale, notwithstanding that the sale-certificate stated it was the tenure itself which had been sold.—Uma Churn Sen v. Gobind Chunder Mozumdar, 1 C. L. R. 460. [Jan. 18, 1878.]

A DECREE-HOLDER, by a prohibitory order issued under Act X. of 1877, s. 268, attached a debt due to his judgment-debtor. This person, served with the order, applied, under s. 278, to have the attachment removed. Held that the application could not be entertained under s. 278, that section having no application to the case ; but that, before issuing a proclamation of sale, in execution of a decree, of the debt so attached, it is the duty of the Court, under s. 287, to ascertain all that the Court considers it material for the intending purchaser to know in order to judge of the nature and value of the property claimed for sale. If the property of which sale is sought is a debt, and the Court receives notice from the alleged debtor that no debt exists, the Court should satisfy itself as to the existence, or otherwise, of the debt, and, if it comes to the conclusion that no debt exists, should abstain from proceeding to sale.—Harilal Amthabhai v. Abhesang Meru, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 323. [Jan. 6, 1880.]

CERTAIN immoveable property was put up for sale, under the provisions of Act X. of 1877, in execution of a decree for money, and was purchased by C, with notice that L held a decree enforcing a lien on such property. Subsequently L applied for the sale of such property in execution of his decree, and such property was put up for sale in execution of that decree, and was purchased by S. S. sued, by virtue of such purchase, to recover possession of such property from C. Held that, inasmuch as under Act X. of 1877 what is sold in execution of a decree purports to be the specific property, and as C had purchased the property in suit with notice of the existing lien on it, and subject to its re-sale in execution of the decree in execution of which S had purchased it, what actually was sold in execution of that decree to S was such property, and S was entitled to possession of such property under such sale. Sales under Act VIII. of 1859 and Act X. of 1877 distinguished.—Sheo Ratan Lal v. Chotey Lal, I. L. R., 3 Atl. 547. [Mar. 26, 1881.]

UPON an application to set aside a sale in execution of a decree on the ground of material irregularities in publishing and conducting it, it appeared that the sale-notification had not been fixed up in the Collector's office as required by s. 289 of Act X. of 1877; that no affidavit as to search having been made in the Registry Office with regard to incumbrances as required by s. 287 of the Act had been filed; and that the sale took place on, and not after, the thirtieth day from the publication of the notice; but it also appeared that the applicant had himself been present at the sale and had purchased the property, and it was not shown that any substantial injury had resulted from the irregularities. Held that there was no ground for setting aside the sale.—Bandy Ali v. Madhub Chaudhary, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 932. [April 24, 1882.]

A CREDITOR obtained two decrees against his debtor, one being a mortgage-decree to enforce his lien on certain property, and in other a simple money-decree. In execution of the second decree the property over which the judgment-creditor had a lien was sold, and was purchased by a third person. Subsequently, execution of the first decree, at the instance of the judgment-creditor, this same property was advertised for sale, but on the auction-purchaser objecting, the judgment-creditor brought a suit against him to enforce his lien on the property in the hands of the auction-purchaser. Held that it lay on the plaintiff, in order to entitle him to recover in the suit, to show that the defendants purchased with notice of the lien. Held further that the fact that for some purpose at some time or other the judgment-creditor informed the Court of the mortgage is not evidence of notice on the auction-purchaser.—Nursing Narain Singh v. Roghobur Singh, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 609. [April 24, 1884.]

IN the execution of a decree ordering the sale of immoveable property it is not competent for the Court to refuse to sell it, because a stranger to the suit in which such decree was obtained, who is in possession of such property, impeaches the decree as having been obtained by fraud; the course open to him, if he wishes stay of execution, being to file a suit and obtain an injunction for that purpose.—Purshottam v. Purshottam, I. L. R., 8 Bom. 532. [June 19, 1884.]

THE proclamation of sale required by s. 274 of the Civil Procedure Code to be made at some place adjacent to the property to be sold, and the fixing up of a copy of the order in a conspicuous part of the property, are acts which must precede the posting of the notices in the Court-house as required by s. 290. Where the sale-proceeds of a portion of several parcels of property are sufficient to satisfy the decree of a judgment-creditor who has attached the property, another judgment-creditor, although he has not attached the property, is still entitled to have the remainder of the property sold to satisfy his decree under the provisions of s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code. Three mauzas were attached in execution of decrees obtained by A and B. Prior to the sale, C, who had also obtained a decree against the owner of the land, applied for leave to execute his decree, in order that he might participate in the sale-proceeds under s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code. Upon the day fixed for the sale, the Deputy Commissioner was unable, through illness, to attend; and he postponed the sale for three days. Two of the mauzas were sold, and realized more than enough to satisfy the decrees of A and B. The third was then sold in satisfaction of C's decree. Upon an application by the judgment-debtor to set aside the sale on the ground of irregularity, it appeared that notice of the sale had been posted in the Court-house more than thirty days before the date fixed for the sale, but had only been published on the properties to be sold five days before the date; that notice of the existence of a mortgage on the properties, but no further particulars, was given, and the mortgagee was allowed to purchase, and that the Deputy Commissioner had accepted the reports of the Nazir and Court-peon as to the proclamation of sale, and had refused to allow the judgment-debtor to give evidence of its insufficiency. Held that the proclamation of sale on the property having taken place only five days prior to the date of sale, and the particulars of the mortgage not having been given, there had been such material irregularities in the publication as to entitle the judgment-debtor to give evidence of them and the other allegations made by him, in order to show that he had suffered material injury by reason of such irregularities. Held also that the Deputy Commissioner was not entitled to proceed upon the reports of the Nazir and Court-peon, but was bound to hear the evidence tendered by the judgment-debtor, though he was justified, under s. 201, in postponing the sale as he had done. Held, further, that the third judgment-creditor, who had not attached the property, was still entitled to have the sale proceeded with, and his decree satisfied under the provisions of s. 295.—Mohunt Megh Lall Pooree v. Shib Pershad Madi, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 24. [Mar. 18, 1888.]

288. No Judge or other public officer shall be answerable for any error, misstatement, or omission in any proclamation under section 287, unless the same has been committed or made dishonestly.

Disto.

289. The proclamation shall be made, in manner prescribed by section 274, on the spot where the property is attached, and a copy thereof shall then be fixed up in the Court-house and, in the case of land paying revenue to Government, also in the Collector's office.

If the Court so direct, such proclamation shall also be published in the local official Gazette and in some local newspaper, and the costs of such publication shall be deemed to be costs of the sale.

THE proclamation of sale required by s. 274 of the Civil Procedure Code to be made at some place adjacent to the property to be sold, and the fixing up of a copy of the order in a conspicuous part of the property, are acts which must precede the posting of the notices in the Court-house as required by s. 290. Where the sale-proceeds of a portion of several parcels of property are sufficient to satisfy the decree of a judgment-creditor who has attached the property, another judgment-creditor, although he has not attached the property, is still entitled to have the remainder of the property sold to satisfy his decree under the provisions of s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code. Three manzars were attached in execution of decrees obtained by A and B. Prior to the sale, C, who had also obtained a decree against the owner of the land, applied for leave to execute his decree, in order that he might participate in the sale-proceeds under s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code. Upon the day fixed for the sale, the Deputy Commissioner was unable, through illness, to attend; and he postponed the sale for three days. Two of the manzars were sold, and realized more than enough to satisfy the decrees of A and B. The third was then sold in satisfaction of C's decree. Upon an application by the judgment-debtor to set aside the sale on the ground of irregularity, it appeared that notice of the sale had been posted in the Court-house more than thirty days before the date fixed for the sale, but had only been published on the properties to be sold five days before that date; that notice of the existence of a mortgage on the properties, but no further particulars, was given, and the mortgagee was allowed to purchase; and that the Deputy Commissioner had accepted the reports of the Nazir and the Court-peon as to the proclamation of sale, and had refused to allow the judgment-debtor to give evidence of its insufficiency. Held that the proclamation of sale on the property having taken place only five days prior to the date of sale, and the particulars of the mortgage not having been given, there had been such material irregularities in the publication as to entitle the judgment-debtor to give evidence of them and the other allegations made by him, in order to show that he had suffered material injury by reason of such irregularities. Held also that the Deputy Commissioner was not entitled to proceed upon the reports of the Nazir and Court-peon, but was bound to hear the evidence tendered by the judgment-debtor, though he was justified, under s. 291, in postponing the sale as he had done. Held, further, that the third judgment-creditor, who had not attached the property, was still entitled to have the sale proceeded with, and his decree satisfied under the provisions of s. 295.—Mohunt Megh Lall Pooree v. Shib Pershad Madi, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 34. [Mar. 18, 1881.]

HELD that the fact of a sale of immovable property in execution of a decree having taken place before thirty days from the proclamation of sale being made on the property had expired was not a material irregularity in the publication of the sale. Mohunt Megh Lall Pooree v. Shib Pershad Madi (I. L. R., 7 Cal. 34) dissented from.—Rahchandar Bahadur v. Kamta Prasad, I. L. R., 4 All. 300. [Feb. 27, 1882.]

UPON an application to set aside a sale in execution of a decree on the ground of material irregularities in publishing and conducting it, it appeared that the sale-notification had not been fixed up in the Collector's office as required by s. 289 of Act X. of 1877, that no affidavit as to search having been made in the Registry Office with regard to incumbrances as required by s. 287 of the Act had been filed; and that the sale took place on, and not after, the thirtieth day from the publication of the notice; but it also appeared that the applicant had himself been present at the sale and had purchased the property, and it was not shown that any substantial injury had resulted from the irregularities. Held that there was no ground for setting aside the sale.—Bandy Ali v. Madhub Chunder Nag and others, 1. L. R., 8 Cal. 932. [April 24, 1882.]

THE words "on the spot where the property is attached" in s. 289 of the Civil Procedure Code refer to each property attached, and not to a group of separate properties attached under one proceeding or order in one execution-case, and therefore when distinct properties are proclaimed for sale in one execution the omission to affix a copy of the proclamation in each of such properties amounts to an irregularity in the publication of the sale. Held also that where there is no evidence to connect the two elements of irregularity and injury under s. 289, it must appear, before a Court can set aside an execution sale, that the injury complained of is the reasonable and natural consequence of the irregularity, and attributable to it alone.—Tripura Sundari v. Durga Churn Pal, 1. L. R., 11 Cal. 74. [Sep. 13, 1884.]

place until after the expiration of at least thirty days in the case of immoveable property, and of at least fifteen days in the case of moveable property, calculated from the date on which the copy of the proclamation has been fixed up in the Court-house of the Judge ordering the sale.

AN application made on the day of sale by the judgment-debtor, that a part only of his property may be sold instead of the entirety, cannot be considered such a "consent" as, by virtue of s. 290 of Act X. of 1877, would do away with the necessity of a proclamation for sale being issued thirty days before the day fixed for sale. Where successive postponements of the day of sale have been made, but the last of these is made by the Court on its own motion, without any application for postponement of sale being made on the part of the judgment-debtor (although such postponement might be for his benefit), a strict compliance with the rule that thirty days must elapse between the proclamation and the actual day of sale is requisite. Ray Gauri Nath Sahay v. Shah Fukeer Chand (18 W. R. 347) distinguished. Where a decree for sale of certain property was obtained under Act VIII. of 1859, and the property was sold, but an order was passed after the new Code of Procedure (Act X. of 1877) had come into force setting aside such sale. Held that an appeal would lie from such an order under Act X. of 1877. Runjit Singh v. Meherban Koer (1. L. R., 3 Cal. 662) followed.—Hurbans Sahai v. Bhairo Pershad Singh, 1. L. R., 5 Cal. 259. [Feb. 19, 1879.]

CERTAIN immoveable property was, on the 15th February 1879, notified for sale under a decree of a Civil Court on 15th March following, so that only 29, instead of 30, days elapsed between the day of the sale and the notification. The sale having taken place, the execution-debtor applied to the Deputy Commissioner to set it aside upon the ground that the sale was illegal, the requirements of Act X. of 1877, s. 290, being essential to its validity. Upon that ground the sale was set aside as illegal by the Deputy Commissioner. On appeal, the Judicial Commissioner reversed this decision, on the ground that the fact of the sale having taken place 29 instead of 30 days after the notification was merely an irregularity, and that, as the execution-debtor had not shown that he had suffered any damage from the irregularity, the sale ought to be confirmed. An application was then made to a Division Bench of the High Court to set aside the order of the Judicial Commissioner confirming the sale, upon the ground that it was manifestly erroneous; and the Division Bench referred the question to a Full Bench. Whether assuming the requirements of s. 290 to be essential to the validity of a sale, the High Court had any power either under 24 & 25 Vic., c. 105, s. 15, or Act X. of 1877, s. 622, as amended, to set aside the Judicial

Commissioner's order? Held by the Full Bench, without answering the question referred, that, assuming the requirements of s. 290 to be essential, the High Court had a right, under its summary powers, to set aside the sale itself, notwithstanding (and apart from the question whether it would set aside) the order of the Judicial Commissioner.—In re Bhakraj Koori, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 478. [April 5, 1880.]

If, when property has been attached in execution of a decree, and prior to sale, an application is made for execution of another decree so that the second decree-holder may participate under s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code in the assets realized, portion of the property attached be sold in the first instance, then, as both decrees are entitled to participate rateably, if the amount realized is not sufficient to satisfy both decrees, although sufficient to pay off the former, a further sale may be held. As to reports of the Nazir and the peons of the Court, see Obhoy Churn Seck v. Erskine (3 W. R. Misc. 11), Sreenath Thakoor v. Watson (4 W. R. Misc. 41), Shibkoondan Lal v. Noor Ali (10 W. R. 3). Under s. 290 it seems intended that the copy of the proclamation should not be "fixed up in the Court-house" until the proclamation itself has been made under s. 274 of the Civil Procedure Code. When properties put up for sale in execution of a decree are subject to any incumbrance, the proclamation ought to specify the amount of the debt outstanding. An omission to specify such amount affords strong prima facie ground, where a mortgagee in possession is himself the purchaser, for believing that an inadequate price has been obtained.—Megh Lal Pooree Mohunt v. Mohammed Dutt Jha, 8 C. L. R. 369. [Mar. 13, 1881.]

HELD that the fact of a sale of immoveable property in execution of a decree having taken place before thirty days from the proclamation of sale being made on the property had expired was not a material irregularity in the publication of the sale. Mohunt Megh Lal Pooree v. Shib Pershad Madi (1. L. R., 7 Cal. 31) dissented from.—Rahchandrar Bahadur v. Kamta Prasad, I. L. R., 4 All. 300. [Feb. 27, 1882.]

AN infringement of the rule contained in s. 290 of the Civil Procedure Code is an irregularity vitiating a sale in execution of decree, and is something more than a material irregularity in publishing a sale to which s. 311 refers.—Bakhshi Nand Kishore v. Malak Chand, I. L. R., 7 All. 289. [Jan. 23, 1885.]

such sale may, in his discretion, adjourn the sale, recording his reasons for such adjournment: Provided that when the sale is made in, or within the precincts of, the Court-house, no such adjournment shall be made without the leave of the Court. Whenever a sale is adjourned under this section for a longer period than seven days, a fresh proclamation under section 289 shall be made, unless the judgment-debtor consents to waive it. Every such sale shall be stopped if, before the lot is knocked down, the debt and cost (including the costs of the sale) are tendered to such officer, or proof is given to his satisfaction that the amount of such debt and costs has been paid into the Court that ordered the sale.

Stoppage of sale on tender of debt and costs, or on proof of payment.

THE proclamation of sale required by s. 274 of the Civil Procedure Code to be made at some place adjacent to the property to be sold, and the fixing up of a copy of the order in a conspicuous part of the property, are acts which must precede the posting of the notices in the Court-house as required by s. 290. Three mauzas were attached in execution of decrees obtained by A and B. Prior to the sale, C, who had also obtained a decree against the owner of the land, applied for leave to execute his decree in order that he might participate in the sale-proceeds under s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code. Upon the day fixed for the sale, the Deputy Commissioner was unable, through illness, to attend; and he postponed the sale for three days. Two of the mauzas were sold, and realized more than enough to satisfy the decrees of A and B. The third was then sold in satisfaction of C's decree. Upon an application by the judgment-debtor to set aside the sale on the ground of irregularity, it appeared that notice of the sale had been posted in the Court-house more than thirty days before the date fixed for the sale, but had only been published on the properties to be sold five days before the date; that notice of the existence of a mortgage on the properties, but no further particulars, was given, and the mortgagee was allowed to purchase; and that the Deputy Commissioner had accepted the reports of the Nazir and Court-peon as to the proclamation of sale, and had refused to allow the judgment-debtor to give evidence of its insufficiency. Held that the proclamation of sale on the property having taken place only five days prior to the date of sale, and the particulars of the mortgage not having been given, there had been such material irregularities in the publication as to entitle the judgment-debtor to give evidence of them and the other allegations made by him, in order to show that he had suffered material injury by reason of such irregularities. Held also that the Deputy Commissioner was not entitled to proceed upon the reports of the Nazir and Court-peon, but was bound to hear the evidence tendered by the judgment-debtor, though he was justified under s. 291 in postponing the sale as he had done. Held, further, that the third judgment-creditor, who had not attended the property, was still entitled to have the sale proceeded with, and his decree satisfied under the provisions of s. 295.—*Mohunt Mogh Lall Pooreo v. WHERE property has been sold under a decree, and the purchaser at the execution-sale has made default in paying the purchase-money, the remedy of the judgment-creditor is not limited by s. 254 of Act VIII. of 1859 to a suit against the defaulting purchaser. He is entitled to recover the balance of his debt from his judgment-debtor, who may, perhaps, have his remedy against the defaulting purchaser. Jooobraji Singh v. Gaur Buksh Lal (7 Cal. W. R., Civ. WHERE portion of the property of a judgment-debtor has been sold in execution for a sum sufficient to satisfy the decree, the Court is not justified, on default being made by the purchaser, in directing the sale of any further portion of the debtor's property, it being open either to the judgment-creditor or the judgment-debtor to apply that the balance due upon the decree after re-sale of the portion already sold should be realized from the defaulter.—*Joy Chunder Biswas v. A PURCHASER of property at a Court-sale who fails to pay the deposit (25 per cent. on the purchase-money) directed to be paid by s. 306 of the Civil Procedure Code is a defaulting purchaser within the meaning of s. 293 of that Code, and liable, as such, to make good any deficiency of price which may happen on a re-sale, and all expenses attending the same. A sale in which a decree-holder himself, or some other person for him, without the permission of the Court first obtained, becomes the purchaser, is not, ipso facto, void; it is a good sale unless and until set aside by the Court under the provisions of s. 294 of the Civil Procedure Code.—*Javverbái v. THE provisions of s. 293, Act X. of 1877 (Civil Procedure Code), for making a defaulting purchaser at a sale liable for any deficiency on a re-sale, extend to all sales, whether of moveable or immoveable property, and also to re-sales held under ss. 297, 306, and 308.—Ramdhani Sabai v. Rajrani Koorer, 1. L. R., 7 Cal. 337. [April 22, 1881.]

At a sale in execution of a decree the property was knocked down to a bidder at Rs. 260. The bidder was unable to make a deposit, and the property was immediately put up for sale and re-sold for Rs. 50. Held that the judgment-debtor had sustained such substantial injury as would justify the Court in setting aside the sale, notwithstanding that the judgment-debtor might, under s. 293 of the Civil Procedure Code, have sued to recover the difference between the original bid and the price at which the property was sold.—*Beepen Chunder Shickdar v. Decree-holder not to bid for or buy property without permission.

294. No holder of a decree in execution of which property is sold shall, without the express permission of the Court, bid for or purchase the property.

When a decree-holder purchases with such permission, the purchase-money and the amount due on the decree may, if he so desires, be set-off against one another, and the Court executing the decree shall enter up satisfaction of the decree in whole or in part accordingly.

If decree-holder purchase, amount of decree may be taken as payment.

When a decree-holder purchases, by himself or through another person, without such permission, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on the application of the judgment-debtor or any other person interested in the sale, by order set aside the sale; and the costs of such application and order, and any deficiency of price which may happen on the re-sale, and all expenses attending it, shall be paid by the decree-holder.

THE holder of a decree, in execution of which property is sold, is absolutely bound under Act X. of 1877, s. 294, to have express permission from the Court before he can purchase the property; and whether this objection is taken and pressed or otherwise, a sale to him is invalid, unless he has got explicit permission. The use, at a sale, of language by an intending bidder in disparagement of the property for the purpose of influencing bystanders, and deterring them from bidding for the property, is a "material irregularity," sufficient to render the sale invalid, under s. 311 of the same Act.—Rukhinee Bullubh v. Brojonath Sircar, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 308. [April 1, 1879.]

A PURCHASE by the son of a decree-holder, undivided in interest from his father, is a purchase by the decree-holder within the meaning of s. 294 of Act X. of 1877 as it stood previously to its amendment by Act XII. of 1879, and is absolutely void, if the purchase were made with funds which were the joint property of the father and son. In the absence of evidence to the contrary, the legal presumption would be that the funds were joint property.—Narayan Deshpande v. Anaji Deshpande, I. L. R., 5 Bom. 130. [July 12, 1880.]

THE holder of a decree for unascertained mesne-profits, who has applied to the Court to ascertain the amount thereof, and to attach immoveable property under s. 255 of the Code of Civil Procedure, comes within the purview of s. 295, and is entitled to share rateably with the attaching creditor in the assets realized. S. 294 must be read with s. 295, and to give effect to both sections the receipt to be given by the decree-holder, who has obtained leave to bid from the Court, and has purchased the property sold, can only be accepted for so much of the judgment-debt as the assets applicable to its discharge may suffice to satisfy.—Viraragava Ayyangar v. Varada Ayyangar, I. L. R., 5 Mad. 123. [Feb. 16, 1882.]

WHERE there are competing decree-holders, who have applied for execution of their decrees, s. 294 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) must be taken as subject to the provisions of s. 295, so that the decree-holder who has been permitted under the former section to purchase the property in execution of his own decree must share the proceeds of the sale rateably with such competing decree-holders, and will not be allowed to set-off the purchase-money against the amount due to him on his decree.—Shrinivas v. Radhabai, I. L. R., 6 Bom. 570. [Mar. 30, 1882.]

A OBTAINED a money-decree against B and others jointly for Rs. 112, and, in consideration of a payment of Rs. 25 made by B, agreed to release B from all liability under the decree. This payment was not certified to the Court, and A afterwards, in execution of the decree, had certain immoveable property belonging to B put up for sale, and this property he purchased himself. Held that a suit would lie by B to set aside the sale and to recover the property from A.—Ishan Chunder Bandopadhyaya v. Indronarain Gossami, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 788. [Feb. 26, 1883.]

A MORTGAGEE having obtained a decree, declaring his lien on certain property, put up for sale, in execution of this decree, the mortgaged property. The decree-holder asked for, but was refused, leave to bid at the sale, but, notwithstanding such refusal, purchased the property in the name of a third person. Possession under the sale was opposed, and the decree-holder as purchaser brought a suit for possession of the property. The defendants contended that inasmuch as the plaintiff (decree-holder) had been refused leave to bid at the sale, his purchase could not be enforced. Held that the plaintiff had been guilty of an abuse of the process of the Court in bidding at the sale and buying the property benami, and that the sale, therefore, ought not to be enforced.—Mahomed Gaze Chowdhry v. Ram Loll Sen, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 757. [May 16, 1884.]

IN 1879, D obtained a decree against S. S gave security for the satisfaction of the decree, whereupon D agreed not to take proceedings in execution. In breach of this agreement D in the same year applied for execution, and sold certain immoveable property, belonging to S, of which K became the purchaser. K did not apply for possession until 1883, in which year he applied for and obtained possession of the property. S alleged that he then for the first time became aware of the sale, and that by the fraud of D and K he had been kept in ignorance of the execution-proceedings taken by D in breach of the above-mentioned agreement, and within thirty days after K obtained possession, he (S) applied for a reversal of the orders which had been passed in the aforesaid fraudulent proceedings. The Subordinate Judge held that the application was barred by art. 166 of sch. 2 of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877), and referred the applicant to a separate suit to set aside the sale. On application to the High Court, held that a separate suit would not lie, and that the relief sought by S could only be obtained, at all events as against D, by an application under s. 214 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882). Held also that art. 166 of sch. 2 of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877) did not apply. That article, as amended by s. 108 of Act XII. of 1879, only applies to applications made under s. 311 or s. 294 of the Civil Procedure Code seeking to set aside a sale on the ground of a material irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale, or on the ground that the decree-holder has purchased without the permission of the Court.—Sakharām Govind Kale v. Dāmodar Akhārām Gujar, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 468. [April 29, 1885.]

UNDER the terms of s. 294 of the Civil Procedure Code, it is discretionary with the Court to set aside an execution-sale at which the decree-holder has bid and purchased without first obtaining permission from the Court so to do; and in dealing with such a case, the Courts, although considering the matter as an irregularity in the conduct of the sale, will not interfere with the sale, unless it can be shown that the judgment debtor has suffered some substantial injury arising from such irregularity.—Mathura Das v. Nathuni Lall Mata, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 731. [June 3, 1885.]

IN execution of a decree against M the plaintiff attached and advertized for sale certain property in mauza A. At that time there were pending proceedings in execution of two other decrees obtained against M by the first and second defendants respectively. These two decrees were obtained on a bond executed by M, by which an eight-anna share of mauza A was hypothecated as collateral security; and in execution of those decrees the defendants brought to sale, and themselves purchased, not an eight-anna share only, but the whole of mauza A, and were allowed by the Court to set-off the purchase-money against the amounts due to them under their decrees. At the same time the plaintiff's execution-case was struck off on 30th June 1880. In a suit brought by the plaintiff under s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code for his share of the sale-proceeds of mauza A, in which the plaintiff alleged fraud on the part of the defendants in selling the whole mauza under their decrees, of which he only became aware in July 1882, from which time he dated his cause of action, the defendants denied the fraud, and contended that the suit should have been brought within a year of the order of the 30th June 1880; that a set-off having been allowed to the defendants, the plaintiff was not entitled to any rateable distribution; and that, if any rateable distribution were allowed, they were entitled to have an allowance made in respect of a mortgage which the plaintiff held in a two annas share of mauza A, which they had paid off subsequently to the transactions now in question. Held that the existence of the order of the 30th June 1880 was not inconsistent with the plaintiff's right, and the suit was therefore not barred as not having been brought within one year of that order. Held also that the fact of the set-off being allowed in exercise of the power given in s. 294 of the Code, instead of actual payment into Court, did not alter the substantial nature of the transaction, so as to render the purchase-money less applicable to the satisfaction of the debts of other attaching creditors. Held, further, that the defendants were not entitled to deduct the sum paid by them to clear off the plaintiff's mortgage, from the amount of the purchase-money, before the Court could determine the amount rateably distributable among the parties concerned. Quare—Whether they were even entitled to reckon the amount so paid as one of the claims in respect of which, with others, a rateable distribution should be made?—Taponidi Hordasund Bharati v. Mathura Lal Bhagat, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 499. [Dec. 22, 1885.]

No appeal lies from an order passed under s. 294 of the Civil Procedure Code refusing permission to a decree-holder to bid at a sale in execution of his decree.—Jodanath Munda v. Brojo Mohun Ghose, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 174. [May 20, 1886.]

295. Whenever assets are realized by sale otherwise in execution of a decree, and more persons than one have, prior to the realization, applied to the Court by which such assets are held for execution of decrees for money against the same judgment-debtor, and have not obtained satisfaction thereof, the assets, after deducting the costs of the realization, shall be divided rateably among all such persons :

(a) when any property is sold subject to a mortgage or charge, the mortgagee or incumbrancer shall not as such be entitled to share in any surplus arising from such sale :

(b) when any property is liable to be sold in execution of a decree in subject to a mortgage or charge, the Court may, with the assent of the mortgagee or incumbrancer, order that the property be sold free from the mortgage or charge, giving to the mortgagee or incumbrancer the same right against the proceeds of the sale as he had against the property sold ;

(c) when immoveable property is sold in execution of a decree ordering its sale for the discharge of an incumbrance thereon, the proceeds of sale shall be applied—first, in defraying the expenses of the sale ;

secondly, in discharging the interest and principal-money due on the incumbrance ;

thirdly, in discharging the interest and principal-moneys due on subsequent incumbrances (if any) ; and fourthly, rateably among the holders of decrees for money against the judgment-debtor, who have, prior to the sale of the said property, applied to the Court which made the decree ordering such sale for execution of such decrees, and have not obtained satisfaction thereof.

If all or any of such assets be paid to a person not entitled to receive the same, any person so entitled may sue such person to compel him to refund the assets.

Nothing in this section affects any right of the Government.

THE fact that a money-decree has been obtained on a bond by which property has been mortgaged does not destroy the lien on that property. It is open to a plaintiff to establish his right on the bond, as well as on the decree. The purport of ss. 270 and 271 of Act VII. of 1859 (with which s. 295 of Act X. of 1877 corresponds) is not to alter or limit the rights of parties arising out of a contract, but simply to determine questions between rival decree-holders standing on the same footing, and in respect of whom there is no rule for otherwise determining the mode in which proceeds of property sold in execution shall be distributed.—Hasoon Arra Begum v. Jawdoon-nissa Satooda Khandan, I. L. R., 4 Cal. 29. [April 5, 1878.]

A JUDGMENT-CREDITOR in execution of his decree attached certain property belonging to his judgment-debtor while Act VIII. of 1859 was in force. This property was ultimately sold on the 9th January 1879, i.e., after Act X. of 1877 came into operation. Two days before the sale, another judgment-creditor applied to have his decree satisfied out of the same property by a rateable distribution of the proceeds which might be realized.

Held that the prior attaching creditor, by his attachment under Act VIII. of 1859, acquired, under s. 270 of that Act, a right to have his decree first satisfied in full, and that he was not deprived of this right by the change in the law introduced by Act X. of 1877, s. 295.—Narándás v. Bâi Manchha, I. L. R., 3 Bom. 217. [April 8, 1879.]

HELD that ss. 266 and 295 must be read together, and that an ordinary judgment-creditor is not entitled, under s. 295, to a rateable proportion of the assets realized by the sale of such house or building, under a decree obtained by another creditor for rent due to him in respect of the said house or building.—Mániklál Venilál v. Lakha and Mánasing, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 429. [Feb. 17, 1880.]

ONE Mániklál obtained a decree against L and M for rent due from them, and, in execution thereof, applied for the attachment and sale of two houses, with their compound and the grounds underneath them (in respect of which property the said rent had fallen due), belonging respectively, one to each of his judgment-debtors. The properties were, accordingly, sold on 23rd July 1879, and the sale-proceeds handed over to Mániklál. In the meantime, on the 18th February 1879, D, a judgment-creditor of M under a money-decree, applied for the attachment and sale of the same immoveable property (excepting the houses) of his judgment-debtor, which had been previously attached under Mániklál's decree for rent. On the realization of the sale-proceeds, D applied, under Act X. of 1877, s. 295, for a rateable proportion of the assets realized by the sale of M's property in execution of Mániklál's decree. Held that D was not entitled to such rateable proportion of the assets.—Mániklál Venilál v. Lakha and Mánasing, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 429. [Feb. 17, 1880.]

CERTAIN moveable property was attached in execution of decrees of the Small Cause Court at Ahmedábád. After the attachment, but before the sale of the attached property, other creditors of the same judgment-debtor obtained decrees against him in the Court of the Subordinate Judge at the same place, and applied to it for the attachment of the same property in execution of their decrees. The Subordinate Judge, accordingly, attached it by prohibitory orders issued to the Judge of the Small Cause Court. After the sale, the holders of the decrees obtained in the Subordinate Judge's Courts claimed a rateable share in the assets realized by the Small Cause Court, under Act X. of 1877, s. 295. Held that they were not entitled to any share in the assets until after satisfaction of the decrees of the Small Cause Court.—Jetha Mádhavji v. Nájerali Abhráhimji, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 472. [Mar. 23, 1880.]

AN attaching creditor has not, as such, any right to redeem a mortgage subsisting prior to his attachment.—Soobhul Chudor Paul v. Nitye Churn Bysack, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 663. [Aug. 21, 1880.]

THE salary of a kárkún, who was employed in the Second-class Subordinate Judge's Court of Anklesvar, was attached, in execution of a decree of the First-class Subordinate Judge's Court of Surat, by an order issued by the Surat Court, directing the Anklesvar Court to stop and remit, every month, a moiety of the said kárkún's salary to itself (the Surat Court) until satisfaction of the decree. While the decree of the Surat Court was thus in course of execution, another judgment-creditor of the kárkún, who had obtained a decree in the Anklesvar Court, applied to it for a rateable distribution of the moiety between himself and the Surat decree-holder, under s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code, Act X. of 1877. Held that the application was not sustainable, inasmuch as the decree of the Surat Court was being executed by itself, and not by the Anklesvar Court, to which the order of the attachment was sent as the head of a department, or as "the officer whose duty it was to disburse the salary," and not as the Court executing the decree of another Court. Jetha Mádhavji v. Nájerali Abrahimji (I. L. R., 4 Bom. 472) followed.—Krishna-shankar v. Chandrashankar, I. L. R., 5 Bom. 198. [Nov. 23, 1880.]

THE proclamation of sale required by s. 274 of the Civil Procedure Code to be made at some place adjacent to the property to be sold, and the fixing up of a copy of the order in a conspicuous part of the property, are acts which must precede the posting of the notices in the Court-house as required by s. 290. Where the sale-proceeds of a portion of several parcels of property are sufficient to satisfy the decree of a judgment-creditor who has attached the property, another judgment-creditor, although he has not attached the property, is still entitled to have the remainder of the property sold to satisfy his decree under the provisions of s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code. Three mauzas were attached in execution of decrees obtained by A and B. Prior to the sale, C, who had also obtained a decree against the owner of the land, applied for to execute his decree, in order that he might participate in the sale-proceeds under s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code. Upon the day fixed for the sale, the Deputy Commissioner was unable, through illness, to attend; and he postponed the sale for three days. Two of the mauzas were sold, and realized more than enough to satisfy the decrees of A and B. The third was then sold in satisfaction of C's decree. Upon an application by the judgment-debtor to set aside the sale on the ground of irregularity, it appeared that notice of the sale had been posted in the Court-house more than thirty days before the date fixed for the sale, but had only been published on the properties to be sold five days before that date; that notice of the existence of a mortgage on the properties, but no further particulars, was given, and the mortgagee was allowed to purchase; and that the Deputy Commissioner had accepted the reports of the Nazir and Court-peon as to the proclamation of sale, and had refused to allow the judgment-debtor to give evidence of its insufficiency. Held that the proclamation of sale on the property having taken place only five days prior to the date of sale, and the particulars of the mortgage not having been given, there had been such material irregularities in the publication as to entitle the judgment-debtor to give evidence of them and the other allegations made by him in order to show that he had suffered material injury by reason of such irregularities. Held also that the Deputy Commissioner was not entitled to proceed upon the reports of the Nazir and Court-peon, but was bound to hear the evidence tendered by the judgment-debtor, though he was justified, under s. 291, in postponing the sale as he has done. Held, further, that the third judgment-creditor, who had not attached the property, was still entitled to have the sale proceeded with, and his decree satisfied under the provisions of s. 295.—Mount Megh Lall Pooree v. Shit Pershad Madi, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 34. [Mar. 18, 1881.]

APPLICATION was made for execution of a decree for money against R, and also for execution of a decree against R and another person jointly and severally. Certain immoveable property belonging to R was sold in execution of the first decree, the assets which were realized by such sale being sufficient to satisfy the amounts of both decrees. Such property was then sold a second time in execution of the second decree. Held, under these circumstances, that the second sale should be set aside, not being allowed with reference to the provisions of s. 295 of Act X. of 1877.—Rati Ram v. Chiranjil Lal, I. L. R., 3 All. 579. [Mar. 26, 1881.]

THE Judge of a Court of Small Causes sitting in the exercise of his powers as such, and in the exercise of his powers as a Subordinate Judge, is not one and the same Court, but two different Courts. Held, therefore, that the holder of a decree made by the Judge of a Small Cause Court in the capacity of Subordinate Judge, who had applied to such Judge acting in that capacity for execution of his decree, was not thereby entitled to share rateably, under s. 225 of Act X. of 1877, in assets subsequently realized by sale in execution of a decree made by such Judge in the capacity of Judge of such Small Cause Court.—Himalaya Bank v. Hurst, I. L. R., 3 All. 710. [April 22, 1881.]

IN execution of a decree of a Munsif's Court, the plaintiff attached certain moneys, the proceeds of decrees which her judgment-debtor had obtained against third parties, then lying in a Small Cause Court to her credit, and subsequently obtained an order from the Munsif directing the same to be paid to her in satisfaction of her decree, which order was duly communicated to the Small Cause Court Judge. Subsequently, the defendant, who held another decree against the same judgment-debtor, attached the same sale-proceeds. The Small Cause Court Judge then proceeded, under s. 272 of the Civil Procedure Code, to enquire whether the plaintiff was entitled to any priority over the second attaching creditor, and, having decided that question in the negative, divided the sale-proceeds rateably between them. In a suit brought by the plaintiff, under the above circumstances, to recover from the defendant the portion of the sale-proceeds so paid to him, held that s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code had no application, inasmuch as the plaintiff had not applied to the Small Cause Court Judge to execute her decree, and it had never been transferred to the Court for execution; and that the proviso in s. 272 is merely intended to mean that any question of title or priority is to be determined by the Court in which or in whose custody the property is, and not by the Court which made the order of attachment. Held also that, previous to the order by the Munsif directing the payment to be made to the plaintiff, the Small Cause Court Judge would have had jurisdiction to deal with the question he had tried; but as that order was made prior to the attachment by the defendant, the judgment-debtor had no interest in the money which could be so attached, the effect of that order being to vest the property in the money in the plaintiff, and to take it out of the disposal of the Small Cause Court Judge, and consequently the order for distribution was wrong, and the plaintiff was entitled to the decree she sought. Quere.—Whether an order made by a Court under s. 272 was intended by the Legislature to be a final order?—Gopee Nath Acharje v. Acheha Bibee, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 553. [July 5, 1881.]

MONEYS paid into Court by sale or otherwise in execution of a decree are assets from the moment of their payment into Court, and are available, under s. 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act X. of 1877), for rateable distribution only amongst decree-holders who have applied for execution prior to that time.—Vishvanath Mahesh Var v. Virchand Panschand, I. L. R., 6 Bom. 16. [Oct. 3, 1881.]

AN application for execution must not only have been made before the assets came into the hands of the Court, but must also be on the file, and undisposed of, to entitle a decree-holder under s. 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure to share rateably in the assets realized by another decree-holder in execution of his decree against the same judgment-debtor. Where a rateable distribution was ordered among decree-holders whose applications had been struck off the file prior to realization of assets, held that it was open to the party injured to apply to the High Court under s. 622 to reverse the order.—Tiruchittambala Chetti v. Seshayyangar, I. L. R., 4 Mad. 383. [Nov. 25, 1881.]

MONEY paid by a judgment-debtor under arrest, in satisfaction of the decree against him, are not assets realized by sale or otherwise; under s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877). S. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) must be read as if the words "from the property of the judgment-debtor" were inserted after the word "realized."—Purshotamdass Tribhovandas v. Mahanant Surajbharathi Haribharathi, and Trikamlal Mancharam v. Mahanant Surajbharathi, I. L. R., 6 Bom. 588. [Jan. 2, 1882.]

WHERE property attached in execution of a decree of a Munsif's Court is, or becomes, subject to an attachment issued from a subordinate Judge's Court, the holder of the decree in the Munsif's Court, in order to share rateably in the assets under s. 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure, must apply to the District Court to transfer his application to the Subordinate Court.—Goneenath Acharje v. Achcha Bibee (I. L. R., 7 Cal. 553) and Jetha Madhavji v. Najerali Abhrashimji (I. L. R., 4 Bom. 472) approved.—Muttalagiri v. Muttayyar, 6 Mad. 357. [April 26, 1883.]

ON the 22nd March 1878, the first mortgagee of certain property obtained a decree enforcing his mortgage. On the 25th March 1878, the second mortgagee obtained a decree enforcing his mortgage. Both decrees were made by the same Court. On the 20th June 1878, the property was put up for sale in execution of the second mortgagee's decree. The first mortgagee subsequently brought a suit for a re-sale of the property in satisfaction of his decree. Held that this was the only course open to him, and he could not have enforced satisfaction of his decree in accordance with the provisions of s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code, inasmuch as the provisions of the first and second provisions to that section refer only to sales in execution of simple money-decrees, whereas the property in question had been sold in execution of a decree ordering its sale, and the provisions of the third proviso relate to subsequent and not prior incumbrances.—Jagat Narain Rai v. Dhundhey Rai, I. L. R., 5 All 566. [May 25, 1883.]

WHERE property belonging to A has been attached under a decree, and other decree-holders than the attaching creditor have applied before realization of assets to participate in the sale-proceeds, and amongst them a creditor who has obtained a decree against A and B, such latter creditor is entitled, under s. 295, to share in the proceeds of the sale of A's property.—Sumbhoo Nath Podder v. Luckynath Dey, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 920. [June 5, 1883.]

WHERE two mortgagees, in execution of their several decrees, attached the same property, of which a moiety, without further specification, was respectively mortgaged to each of them, and subsequent to the attachments the property was sold in execution of one of the decrees, held that, notwithstanding the whole interest of the mortgagor was intended to be sold, the purchaser took one of the moieties subject to the lien of the unsatisfied mortgagee, and that omission or neglect on the part of the Court executing the decree to give specific direction as provided by cl. b of s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code did not prejudice the rights of the unsatisfied mortgagee or discharge his encumbrance.—Janoky Bullabh Son v. Johiruddin Mahomed Abu Ali Soher Chowdhry, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 567. [Feb. 26, 1884.]

THE words "decree-holders," or "persons holding decrees for money against the same judgment-debtor" in s. 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure, signify bona fide decree-holders. A Court is bound, in cases falling within this section, to satisfy itself whether the claimants are bona fide decree-holders within the meaning of the section, and where it is unable to satisfy itself as to the bona fides of the claim, the Court should exclude such claimant from the distribution of assets.—In re Sunder Dass, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 42. [Sep. 8, 1884.]

CERTAIN moveable property was at first attached in execution of a money-decree passed by a Subordinate Judge in his Small Cause jurisdiction, of which a part was afterwards sold. In execution of a money-decree passed by the same Subordinate Judge in his ordinary jurisdiction the remaining property was attached and sold. Prior to the date of this sale the applicant applied for execution of a money-decree passed in his favour by the same Subordinate Judge in his Small Cause jurisdiction, and prayed for rateable distribution of the proceeds along with other decree-holders. Held that the application must be allowed. Although a Subordinate Judge, invested under Act XIV. of 1869, s. 28, with Small Cause powers, acquires the jurisdiction of two Courts, he does not become the Judge of two Courts, but remains the Judge of a Subordinate Court.—Malhari v. Naro Krishna, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 174. [Nov. 28, 1884.]

THE plaintiff, having obtained a money-decree against H and others in a suit in the Subordinate Judge's Court at Dhulia, applied for execution by attachment and sale of their immoveable property. That property was accordingly sold, but before the realization of the assets the defendant, who also had obtained a money-decree against the same judgment-debtors in the same Court in its Small Cause jurisdiction, applied for the execution of his decree by attachment and sale of the immoveable property, which had already been attached at the instance of the plaintiff. The Court, under s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), rateably distributed the proceeds of the sale between the plaintiff and the defendant. The plaintiff now brought this suit in the Small Cause jurisdiction of the Subordinate Judge's Court at Dhulia to recover from the defendant the amount paid to him, alleging that it had been illegally paid, as the procedure laid down in s. 223 of the Code had not been followed. Held that a Subordinate Judge invested with Small Cause Court powers has generally to follow the procedure prescribed in the Code of Civil Procedure. This governs his proceedings both in trial and execution, whether the suit is a Small Cause or not. If the two jurisdictions assigned to the Subordinate Judge's Court and to the Subordinate Judge personally are locally co-extensive, there is no distinction of sides or branches. But where, as in some cases, the ordinary jurisdiction is wider locally than the Small Cause jurisdiction, the Court is, in that part of its territory which lies outside the Small Cause Court jurisdiction, to be regarded as a separate Court, so far, that a decree in a Small Cause should not generally be executed on property beyond the Small Cause jurisdiction without a transfer, i. e. a dealing with the execution as in a suit tried in the usual way, for reasons to be recorded in writing. As all is done by the same Judge, a suggestion and an order recorded in the case are sufficient without a formal transmission as to a distant Court.—Dharamdas Santidas v. Vaman Govind, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 237. [Dec. 23, 1884.]

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR, whose property had been attached in execution of a money-decree, sold the property, and out of the price paid into Court the amount of the decree, and prayed that the attachment might be removed. While the attachment was subsisting, and prior to the sale, the holders of other money-decrees against the same judgment-debtor preferred applications, purporting to be made under s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code, and praying that the proceeds of the sale of the property might be rateably divided between themselves and the attaching creditors. The Court refused to remove the attachment until these creditors had been paid. It was found that the sale by the judgment-debtor was a bona fide transaction, entered into for valuable consideration. Held that, inasmuch as no order for attachment of the property was passed in favour of the decree-holders in manner provided by s. 274 of the Civil Procedure Code, their claims were not entitled to the protection conferred by s. 276 against private alienations of property under attachment; that these claims were not enforceable under the attachment which was made; that the sale by the judgment-debtor was valid; and that execution of the decrees could not take place. Per Mahmood, J.—That s. 276 of the Civil Procedure Code, being a restriction of private rights of alienation, should be strictly construed; that before property can be subjected to such restriction, there must be a perfected attachment; that the orders passed under s. 295 did not amount to such attachment; and that, even assuming them to amount to such attachment, they not having been duly intimated and notified could not make the prohibition of s. 276 applicable to the case. Mahadeo Dubey v. Bhola Nath Dichit (I. L. R., 5 All. 86), Anand Lal Dass v. Jullodhur Shaw (14 Moore's I. A. 543), Rameswar Singh v. Ramtanu Ghose (4 B. L. R., A. C., 24), Indro Chunder Baboo v. Dunlop (10 W. R. 264), Gobind Singh v. Zalim Singh (I. L. R., 6 All. 33), and Gumani v. Hardwar Pandey (I. L. R., 3 All. 698), referred to. Also per Mahmood, J.—While s. 295 of the Code gives a special right to judgment-creditors as distinguished from simple creditors, it is an essential condition precedent to the exercise of that right that there should be a sale in execution, and that its result should appear in assets realized by the sale, and therefore, until the sale takes place, no such right can be enforced. Bishen Chunder Surma Chowdhry v. Mun Mohinee Dabee (8 W. R. 501) referred to.—Ganga Din v. Khushali, I. L. R., 7 All. 702. [Feb. 23, 1885.]

S AND L held mortgage-bonds executed in their favour by the same person. S's bond was dated the 16th June 1882, and was registered, the registration being compulsory. L's bond was of prior date, the 30th December 1880, and was not registered, the registration being optional. Both instituted suits on their bonds against the obligor, and obtained decrees for sale of the property, the decrees being passed on the same day. The property was attached in execution of both decrees on the 14th August 1882. The sale-proceeds were divided by the Court executing the decrees equally between the parties by an order dated the 1st May 1883, notwithstanding that S claimed the whole on the ground that he was an incumbrancer under a decree passed on a registered instrument, and therefore entitled to priority. S, being dissatisfied with this order, brought a suit to recover from L the moiety of the sale-proceeds paid to him. Held that the suit being one to compel the defendant to refund assets of an execution-sale which he was not entitled to receive, and to set aside the order of the Court executing the decree, which directed the payment of the assets to him, was expressly allowed to be brought under the provisions of the penultimate paragraph of s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code, and could not be regarded as a suit of the nature cognizable in a Court of Small Causes. Held also that the registered bond of the plaintiff took effect as regards the property comprised in it against the defendant's unregistered bond under s. 50 of the Registration Act (III. of 1877), which gave priority to the incumbrance created by the former bond over the incumbrance created by the latter, and this priority was not affected by the subsequent decrees obtained on the bonds, which only gave effect to the respective rights under the bond. The meaning of s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code is that when immoveable property is sold in execution of decrees ordering its sale for the discharge of incumbrances, the sale-proceeds are to be applied in satisfaction of incumbrances according to their priority.—Shahi Ram v. Shib Lal, I. L. R., 7 All. 378. [Feb. 24, 1885.]

THE cause of action given by the last para. but one of s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code does not arise until the money has been actually paid over to the person who is alleged not to be entitled to receive the same, and a suit brought by a person claiming to be entitled to be paid a share of sale-proceeds under that section, and to recover the same from another to whom such sale-proceeds have been ordered to be paid, if brought before they have been actually paid to such other person, is premature, and should be dismissed. Every decree, by virtue of which money is payable, is, to that extent, a "decree for money" within the meaning of that term as used in s. 295, even though other relief may be granted by the decree; and the holder of such decree is entitled to claim rateable distribution of sale-proceeds with holders of decrees for money only under that section. There is nothing in s. 295 which takes away the right from a mortgagee who has obtained a decree upon his mortgage to proceed against the property of his mortgagor other than that subject to his mortgage. Thus, the holder of a mortgage decree, which directs that the amount be realized from the mortgaged property, and from the mortgagor personally, is entitled to claim rateable distribution under that section, and is not, in the first instance, bound to proceed against his mortgage-security, and exhaust that. A mortgagee who has obtained a decree on his mortgage is not restricted to proceedings in the first instance against his mortgage-security before proceeding against other property of his mortgagor, but when he sells any portion of the property, the subject of his mortgage, and purchases it himself, he is bound, before he can proceed further against the mortgagor, or claim rateable distribution under s. 295, to prove that there is still a balance due to him, and that the property sold and purchased by him realized a fair amount, the mere fact of the property having been sold at auction not being alone sufficient to prove its value, and this ought to be enquired into most carefully by the Court to which an application is made to further execute the decree, or to share rateably under s. 295.—Hart v. Tara Prasanna Mukherji, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 718. [June 12, 1885.]

ALTHOUGH there is no express provision in the Code laying down that a decree-holder may take out of Court the proceeds of an execution-sale before the date on which the sale is confirmed, yet s. 315 of the Code implies that this may be done. The Court, however, under special circumstances, may refuse to pay over to the decree-holder the purchase-money until the sale is confirmed, but in such case it should provide for due payment of interest on the money detained. Held that under the special circumstances of this case the decree-holder was not entitled to receive interest from his judgment-debtor from the date of the sale to the date on which the sale was confirmed.—Jogendra Nath Sircar v. Gobind Chunder Addi, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 252. [July 11, 1885.]

CERTAIN land was mortgaged to A with possession to secure the repayment of a loan of Rs. 2,000 and interest. It was stipulated in the deed that the interest on the debt

should be paid out of the profits, and the balance paid to the mortgagors. By an agreement subsequently made, it was arranged that the mortgagors should remain in possession and pay rent to A. A obtained a decree for Rs. 2,000 and arrears of rent and costs, and for the sale of the land in satisfaction of the amount decreed. The land was sold for Rs. 2,865 in March 1881. In May 1881 B, a puisne mortgagee, applied to the Court for payment to him of Rs. 500 of this sum, alleging that A was entitled only to Rs. 2,000 and Rs. 280 costs, but not to arrears of rent, in preference to his claim as second mortgagee. The claim of B was rejected on the 27th May 1881, and the whole amount paid out to A. In February 1882 B (who had filed a suit on the 23rd March 1881) obtained a decree upon his mortgage. On the 23rd May 1884, B sued to recover Rs. 510 paid to A on account of rent on the 27th May 1881. The lower Courts dismissed the suit on the grounds (1) that A was entitled to treat the arrears of rent as interest; (2) that the suit was barred by limitation. Held, on second appeal, that B was entitled to recover the sum claimed.—Sivarama v. Subramanya, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 57. [Aug. 10, 1885.]

WHERE a judgment-creditor has obtained a decree against two judgment-debtors, A and B, and in execution of that decree has attached and caused to be sold joint property belonging to such judgment-debtors, another judgment-creditor holding a decree against A alone, who has also applied for execution, is not entitled to claim, under the provisions of s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code, to share rateably in the sale-proceeds, the decree not being against the same judgment-debtor, and a Court having no power in execution-proceedings to ascertain the respective shares of joint judgment-debtors. In Shumbhoo Nath Poddar v. Luckynath Dey (I. L. R., 9 Cal. 920), it was not intended to lay down that a person who has obtained a decree for money against a single judgment-debtor is entitled to come in and share rateably with a person who has obtained a decree against the same judgment-debtor and other persons.—Deboki Nundun Sen v. Hart, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 294. [Aug. 24, 1885.]

WHEN a property is sold in execution of a decree, it cannot be sold again at the instance of another decree-holder, who may have attached it before the attachment effected by the decree-holder under whose decree it is actually sold; and when a judicial sale takes place, all previous attachments effected upon the property sold fall to the ground.—Kashy Nath Roy Chowdhry v. Sarbanand Shaha, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 317. [Sep. 2, 1885.]

AT an execution-sale held by an inferior Court at the instance of the decree-holder (the Court itself, the decree-holder, and the auction-purchaser being unaware of any objection to the exercise of a jurisdiction which the Court would ordinarily be competent to exercise), A purchased certain property, and this sale was confirmed. It appeared subsequently that this same property had, two years previous to the sale, been attached by a superior Court. On a sale of this property being advertized by the superior Court, A objected on the ground that he had already purchased it. This objection was overruled, and a sale was held by the superior Court, at which A again became the purchaser. A then brought a suit against the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor in the inferior Court to recover as damages the sum paid by him at the sale. The suit was dismissed. Held that, although the superior Court had been wrong in insisting on the second sale, and in not requiring the amount received by the inferior Court to have been deposited in the superior Court, and then rateably distributed amongst the creditors of the judgment-debtors, yet the sale by the inferior Court was a good and valid sale; and A's suit was therefore rightly dismissed. Obhoy Churn Coondoo v. Golam Ali (I. L. R., 7 Cal. 410) adopted.—Bykant Nath Shaha v. Rajendro Narain Rai, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 333. [Sep. 10, 1885.]

A SUIT under s. 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure to compel refund of assets paid in execution of a decree to a person not entitled thereto is cognizable by a Court of Small Causes constituted under Act XI. of 1865. Shahi Ram v. Shib Lal (I. L. R., 7 All. 378) dissented from.—Harihara v. Subramanya, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 250. [Dec. 9, 1885.]

G AND C held decrees against B, and took out execution of them; and the judgment-debtor's property was attached, but no sale took place. The judgment-debtor paid into Court the sum of Rs. 1,200 on account of G's decree. Held that G was entitled to the sum of Rs. 1,200 paid into Court by the judgment-debtor, and it could not be regarded as assets realized by sale or otherwise in execution of a decree, so as to be rateably divisible between the decree-holders under s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code, inasmuch as it could not be said that there was a realization from the property of the judgment-debtor.—Gopal Dai v. Chunni Lal, I. L. R., 8 All. 67. [Dec. 14, 1885.]

These two decrees were obtained on a bond executed by M, by which an eight-anna share of mauza A was hypothecated as collateral security; and in execution of those decrees the defendants brought to sale, and themselves purchased, not an eight-anna share only, but the whole of mauza A, and were allowed by the Court to set-off the purchase-money against the amounts due to them under their decrees. At the same time the plaintiff's execution-case was struck off on 30th June 1880. In a suit brought by the plaintiff under s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code for his share of the sale-proceeds of mauza A, in which the plaintiff alleged fraud on the part of the defendants in selling the whole mauza under their decrees, of which he only became aware in July 1882, from which time he dated his cause of action, the defendants denied the fraud, and contended that the suit should have been brought within a year of the order of the 30th June 1880; that a set-off having been allowed to the defendants, the plaintiff was not entitled to any rateable distribution; and that, if any rateable distribution were allowed, they were entitled to have an allowance made in respect of a mortgage which the plaintiff held in a two-anna share of mauza A, which they had paid off subsequently to the transactions now in question. Held that the existence of the order of the 30th June 1880 was not inconsistent with the plaintiff's right, and the suit was therefore not barred as not having been brought within one year of that order. Held also that the fact of the set-off being allowed in exercise of the power given in s. 294 of the Code, instead of actual payment into Court, did not alter the substantial nature of the transaction, so as to render the purchase-money less applicable to the satisfaction of the debts of other attaching creditors. Held, further, that the defendants were not entitled to deduct the sum paid by them to clear off the plaintiff's mortgage, from the amount of the purchase-money, before the Court could determine the amount rateably distributable among the parties concerned. Quare—Whether they were even entitled to reckon the amount so paid as one of the claims in respect of which, with others, a rateable distribution should be made?—Taponidi Hordanund Bharati v. Mathura Lal Bhagat, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 499. [Dec. 22, 1885.]

In execution of a decree against six persons the plaintiffs had certain property brought to sale, the proceeds of which were brought into Court. The defendants, who held five separate decrees against some of the persons against whom the plaintiffs' decree was obtained, applied to have the amount in Court rateably distributed; and in accordance with an order of the Court, dated 13th September 1880, this was done, the proceeds being distributed in proportion to the amounts of the decrees. In a suit brought on 24th August 1883 against the defendants, on the allegation that the plaintiffs were entitled to the whole of the proceeds, or in the alternative for distribution on a different principle, held that the suit was one to set aside the order, and not having been brought within one year from the date of the order, was barred by limitation under art. 13, sch. 2 of Act XV. of 1877. Ram Kishan v. Bhawani Das (I. L. R., 1 All. 333) distinguished. Held also that there was no misjoinder of causes of action by reason of all the defendants being included in one suit.—Gour Prosad Kundu v. Ram Ratan Sircar, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 159. [April 19, 1886.]

THE words of s. 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure, "assets realized by sale or otherwise in execution of a decree," provide only for a case where, by the process of the Court in execution of a decree, property has become available for distribution amongst judgment-creditors. The words "by sale or otherwise" should be construed as meaning by sale or by other process of execution provided for by the Civil Procedure Code.—Sew Bux Bogle v. Shib Chunder Sen, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 225. [July 30, 1886.]

A, AND subsequently B, obtained decree against X, in execution of which the same land was attached, and B obtained an order for rateable distribution. Neither decree was satisfied. A then applied for attachment of other property, and the sale was fixed for 28th September. On 26th September B filed a petition for further attachment under ss. 250, 274, and also a petition for rateable distribution under s. 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The District Judge rejected the application for execution as being too late, and then the application under s. 295, because no application for execution was pending. Held, on appeal, that the petition for execution was wrongly rejected, but that the High Court could not, under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure, revise the order rejecting the application under s. 295 for rateable distribution.—Venkataraman v. Mahalingayyan, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 508. [Aug. 4, 1886.]

WHERE one decree-holder had attached certain land, and another decree-holder against the same debtor had entitled himself to rateable distribution of the assets under s. 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure, held that the latter was entitled to apply, under s. 311 of the Code, to set aside the sale on the ground of material irregularity.—Lakshmi v. Kuttunni, I. L. R., 10 Mad. 57. [Sep. 24, 29, 1886.]

(b) Rules as to Moveable Property.

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

296. If the property to be sold be a negotiable instrument or a share in any public Company or Corporation, the Court may, instead of directing the sale to be made by public auction, authorize the sale of such instrument or share through a broker at the market-rate of the day.

297. In the case of other moveable property, the price of each lot shall be paid for at the time of sale, or as soon after as the officer holding the sale directs, and, in default of payment, the property shall forthwith be again put up and sold.

On payment of the purchase-money, the officer holding the sale shall grant a receipt for the same, and the sale shall become absolute.

THE provisions of s. 293, Act X. of 1877 (Civil Procedure Code), for making a defaulting purchaser at a sale liable for any deficiency on a re-sale, extend to all sales, whether of moveable or immovable property, and also to re-sales held under ss. 297, 306, and 308.—Ramdhani Sahai v. Rajrani Kooer, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 337. [April 22, 1881.]

298. No irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale of moveable property shall vitiate the sale; but any person sustaining any injury by reason of such irregularity at the hand of any other person may institute a suit against him for compensation, or (if such other be the purchaser) for the recovery of the specific property, and for compensation in default of such recovery.

299. When the property sold is a negotiable instrument or other moveable property of which actual seizure has been made, the property shall be delivered to the purchaser.

300. When the property sold is any moveable property to which the judgment-debtor is entitled subject to the possession of some other person, the delivery thereof to the purchaser shall be made by giving notice to the person in possession, prohibiting him from delivering possession of the property to any person except the purchaser.

301. When the property sold is a debt not secured by a negotiable instrument, or is a share in any public Company, the delivery thereof shall be made by a written order of the Court prohibiting the creditor from receiving the debt or any interest thereon, and the debtor from making payment thereof to any person except the purchaser, or prohibiting the person in whose name the share may be standing from making any transfer of the share to any person except the purchaser, or receiving payment of any dividend or interest thereon, and the manager, secretary, or other proper officer of the Company from permitting any such transfer or making any such payment to any person except the purchaser.

302. If the endorsement or conveyance of the party in whose name a negotiable instrument or a share in any public Company is standing is required to transfer such instrument or share, the Judge may endorse the instrument or the certificate of the share, or may execute such other document as may be necessary.

The endorsement or execution shall be in the following form or to the like effect:—"A B, by C D, Judge of the Court of (or as the case may be); in a suit by E F against A B."

Until the transfer of such instrument or share, the Court may, by order, appoint some person to receive any interest or dividend due thereon, and to sign a receipt for the same; and any endorsement made, or document executed, or receipt signed, as aforesaid, shall be as valid and effectual for all purposes as if the same had been made or executed or signed by the party himself.

303. In the case of any moveable property not hereinbefore provided for, the Court may make an order vesting such property in the purchaser or as he may direct; and such property shall vest accordingly. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

Vesting order in case of other property.

(c) Rules as to Immoveable Property.

What Courts may order sales of land.

304. Sales of immoveable property in execution of a decree may be ordered by any Court other than a Court of Small Causes.

A SHIKMI ghatwali tenure, held under the superior ghatwal, is not liable to be sold in execution, nor are its proceeds liable to attachment for satisfaction of the debt due from its holder.—Bally Dobey v. Gansai Deo, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 388. [July 31. 1882.]

305. When an order for the sale of immoveable property has been made, if the judgment-debtor can satisfy the Court that there is reason to believe that the amount of the decree may be raised by mortgage or lease or private sale of such property, or some part thereof, or of any other immoveable property of the judgment-debtor, the Court may, on his application, postpone the sale of property comprised in the order for sale, for such period as it thinks proper, to enable him to raise the amount.

In such case the Court shall grant a certificate to the judgment-debtor, authorizing him, within a period to be mentioned therein, and notwithstanding anything contained in section 276, to make the proposed mortgage, lease, or sale: provided that all moneys payable under such mortgage, lease, or sale, shall be paid into Court, and not to the judgment-debtor.

Provided also that no mortgage, lease, or sale under this section, shall become absolute until it has been confirmed by the Court.

THE sale of immoveable property to the highest bidder for a price which subsequently appears to be too low is not a material irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale. A decree-holder or a judgment-debtor cannot apply to set aside a sale on the ground of the price realized being too low.—Lakshmi v. Krishnabhat, I. L. R., 8 Bom. 424. [April 24, 1884.]

306. On every sale of immoveable property under this chapter, the person declared to be the purchaser shall pay, immediately after such declaration, a deposit of twenty-five per centum on the amount of his purchase-money to the officer conducting the sale, and, in default of such deposit, the property shall forthwith be put up again and sold.

THE requirement of s. 306 of the Civil Procedure Code applying to all cases of sale of immoveable property under chap. 19, a decree-holder buying with permission given under s. 294, and desiring to set-off his purchase-money against the amount of the decree, is not exempt from the necessity of making at the time of sale a deposit of 25 per cent. on the amount of such purchase-money; and such deposit must be made in cash. The option so to set-off the purchase-money cannot be exercised by the purchaser until the confirmation and payment of expenses of the sale. Where, however, all parties interested in the amount to be deposited have waived their right to have that amount deposited in cash, the sale ought not to be set aside on the ground that a cash deposit has not been made.—Gopal Singh v. Roy Bunwaree Lal Sahoo, 5 C. L. R. 181. [Sep. 6, 1879.]

A CO-SHAREE in undivided immoveable property, of which a share is sold in execution of a decree, does not, under Act X. of 1877, s. 310, acquire the right of pre-emption as against a stranger to whom such share has been knocked down, by merely asserting such right at the time of sale, and fulfilling the conditions of sale required by ss. 306 and 307 of that Act. He must bid at the sale, and as high as the stranger, before he can acquire a right of pre-emption under that section.—Tej Singh v. Gobind Singh, 1. L. R., 2 All. 850. [April 2, 1880.]

THE provisions of s. 293, Act X. of 1877 (Civil Procedure Code), for making a defaulting purchaser at a sale liable for any deficiency on a re-sale, extend to all sales, whether of moveable or immoveable property, and also to re-sales held under ss. 297, 306, and 308.—Ramdhani Sahai v. Rajrani Kooer, 1. L. R., 7 Cal. 337. [April 22, 1881.]

THE person declared to be the purchaser of property put up for sale in execution of a decree did not, as required by s. 306 of the Civil Procedure Code, pay a deposit of twenty-five per centum on the amount of his purchase immediately after such declaration, but on a date subsequent to the date on which the property was put up for sale. Held that there was no sale at all of the property.—Intizam Ali Khan v. Narain Singh, 1. L. R., 5 All. 316. [Jan. 31, 1883.]

307. The full amount of purchase-money shall be paid by the purchaser before the Court closes on the fifteenth day after the sale of the property, exclusive of such day, or if the fifteenth day be a Sunday or other holiday, then on the first office-day after the fifteenth day.

A CO-SHAREE in undivided immoveable property, of which a share is sold in execution of a decree, does not, under Act X. of 1877, s. 310, acquire the right of pre-emption as against a stranger to whom such share has been knocked down, by merely asserting such right at the time of sale, and fulfilling the conditions of sale required by ss. 306 and 307 of that Act. He must bid at the sale, and as high as the stranger, before he can acquire a right of pre-emption under that section.—Tej Singh v. Gobind Singh, 1. L. R., 2 All. 850. [April 2, 1880.]

308. In default of payment within the period mentioned in the last preceding section, the deposit, after defraying the expenses of the sale, shall be forfeited to Government, and the property shall be re-sold, and the defaulting purchaser shall forfeit all claim to the property, or to any part of the sum for which it may subsequently be sold.

THE provisions of s. 293, Act X. of 1877 (Civil Procedure Code), for making a defaulting purchaser at a sale liable for any deficiency on a re-sale, extend to all sales, whether of moveable or immoveable property, and also to re-sales held under ss. 297, 306, and 308.—Ramdhani Sahai v. Rajrani Kooer, 1. L. R., 7 Cal. 337. [April 22, 1881.]

UNDER the rules of the High Court, dated 21st June 1882, a payment into the Government treasury is equivalent to a payment into Court for the purposes of s. 308 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882.—Srinivasa v. Malayacha, 1. L. R., 7 Mad. 211. [Oct. 22, 1883.]

309. Every re-sale of immoveable property, in default of payment of the purchase-money within the period allowed for immoveable property, such payment, shall be made after the issue of a fresh notification in the manner and for the period hereinbefore prescribed for the sale.

THE provisions of s. 293, Act X. of 1877 (Civil Procedure Code), for making a defaulting purchaser at a sale liable for any deficiency on a re-sale, extend to all sales, whether of moveable or immoveable property, and also to re-sales held under ss. 297, 306, and 308.—Ramdhani Sahai v. Rajrani Kooer, 1. L. R., 7 Cal. 337. [April 22, 1881.]

310. When the property sold in execution of a decree is a share of undivided immovable property, and two or more persons, of whom one is a co-sharer, respectively advance the same sum at any bidding at such sale, such bidding shall be deemed to be the bidding of the co-sharer.

Co-sharer of share of undivided estate sold in execution to have preference in bidding.

A CO-SHARER in undivided immovable property, of which a share is sold in execution of a decree, does not, under Act X. of 1877, s. 310, acquire the right of pre-emption as against a stranger to whom such share has been knocked down, by merely asserting such right at the time of sale, and fulfilling the conditions of sale required by ss. 306 & 307 of that Act. He must bid at the sale, and as high as the stranger, before he can acquire a right of pre-emption under that section.—Tej Singh v. Gobind Singh, I. L. R., 2 All. 850. [April 2, 1880.]

THE provisions of s. 310 of Act X. of 1877 are not applicable in a case where the property sold is not a share of undivided immovable property, but the rights and interests of a mortgagee in such a share.—Jairam Das v. Beni Prasad, I. L. R., 3 All. 15. [July 9, 1880.]

A SHARE of undivided immovable property was put up for sale in execution of a decree, and was knocked down to M. Before it was knocked down to him, A, the decree-holder, who had obtained permission to bid for and purchase such share, and who was a co-sharer of such share, bid the same sum as that for which it was knocked down to M, claiming the right of pre-emption. The Court executing such decree subsequently made an order confirming the sale of such share in favour of A. M appealed, impugning the propriety of the confirmation of the sale in favour of A. Held that such appeal would not lie.—Munir-ud-din Khan v. Abdul Rahim Khan, I. L. R., 3 All. 674. [Mar. 29, 1881.]

THE requirements of s. 310 of Act X. of 1877 are not satisfied by the co-sharer preferring his claim to the right of pre-emption before the property is knocked down, and offering to pay a sum equal to that bid by the highest bidder. That section contemplates a distinct bid by the co-sharer in the ordinary manner of offering bids. Tej Singh v. Gobind Singh (I. L. R., 2 All. 850) followed.—Hira v. Unas Ali Khan, I. L. R., 3 All. 827. [May 30, 1881.]

A PERSON claiming to be a co-sharer in certain undivided immovable property, a share of which had been sold in execution of a decree, objected to the confirmation of the sale in favour of the person recorded as the auction-purchaser, and prayed that it might be confirmed in his favour, with reference to the provisions of s. 310 of the Civil Procedure Code. The Court disallowed the objection, and confirmed the sale in favour of the auction-purchaser. The objector thereupon applied to the High Court for a revision of the order of the lower Court under s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held that, having been allowed to object to the confirmation of the sale, and treated as a party to the proceeding held therein, it was competent for him to make such application, notwithstanding that he was not one of the persons mentioned in s. 311 of the Code; that there being no appeal in the case, so far as he was concerned, the High Court was competent to entertain the application under s. 622 of the Code; but that, as he was not one of the persons who was competent to avail himself of the provisions of s. 311, he had no locus standi to justify his application to the High Court, and the application for revision must therefore be dismissed.—Bisheshar Kuar v. Hari Singh, I. L. R., 5 All. 42. [July 18, 1882.]

311. The decree-holder, or any person whose immovable property has been sold under this chapter, may apply to the Court to set aside the sale on the ground of a material irregularity in publishing or conducting it ;

Application to set aside sale of land on ground of irregularity.

but no sale shall be set aside on the ground of irregularity unless the applicant proves to the satisfaction of the Court that he has sustained substantial injury by reason of such irregularity.

THE property of a judgment-debtor was proclaimed and advertised for sale in execution of a decree on a certain day. The proclamation set out particulars of the property, but subsequent to such proclamation a portion of the property was released to a third party. Notwithstanding this fact, no fresh proclamation was made, and the sale took place on the day originally fixed. Held that the omission to issue a fresh proclamation was a material irregularity, inasmuch as the judgment-debtor was entitled to have a proclamation issued accurately describing the property to be sold, and that such proclamation should be published thirty days before the sale. See also Gopeenath Dobey v. Roy Luchmeput Singh Bahadur (I. L. R., 3 Cal. 542).—Shib Prokash Singh v. Sardar Doyal Singh, I. L. R., 3 Cal. 544. [Mar. 20, 1878.]

THE holder of a decree, in execution of which property is sold, is absolutely bound under Act X. of 1877, s. 294, to have express permission from the Court before he can purchase the property; and whether this objection is taken and pressed or otherwise, a sale to him is invalid, unless he has got explicit permission. The use, at a sale, of language by an intending bidder in disparagement of the property for the purpose of influencing bystanders, and deterring them from bidding for the property, is a "material irregularity," sufficient to render the sale invalid, under s. 311 of the same Act.—Rukhinee Bulbuh v. Brđjonath Sircar, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 308. [April 1, 1879.]

ALTHOUGH the auction-purchaser may not apply under Act X. of 1877, s. 311, to have a sale set aside, he may be a party to the proceedings after an application has been made under that section, and then, if an order is made against him, he can appeal from such order under s. 588.—Kapthi Ram v. Bankey Lal, I. L. R., 2 All. 396. [June 11, 1879.]

WHERE, after a judgment-debtor has applied, under Act X. of 1877, s. 311, to have a sale set aside, the auction-purchaser is made a party to the proceedings, and the sale is set aside, the auction-purchaser can appeal against the order setting aside the sale.—Gopal Singh v. Dular Kuar, I. L. R., 2 All. 352. [Aug. 11, 1879.]

ON the day fixed for the sale of certain immoveable property in the execution of a decree the Court made an order postponing the sale, but the sale had been effected before such order reached the officer conducting it. The Court, on application having been made to set aside the sale, passed an order confirming it. Subsequently, an application by the decree-holder for a review of this order having been granted, the Court passed an order setting the sale aside as illegal. Held that the sanction to the sale originally given having been withdrawn, the sale could not legally be held, and the sale which was effected, the order of postponement notwithstanding, was unlawful and invalid, and in reviewing its first order, and in setting aside the sale as illegal, the Court executing the decree had not acted ultra vires, and its action was not otherwise illegal (H. C. R., N. W. P., 1874, p. 354).—Mian Jan v. Man Singh, I. L. R., 2 All. 686. [Feb. 5, 1880.]

WHEN a judgment-debtor has died after decree, but before application has been made to execute the decree, the Court, before directing the attachment and sale of any property to proceed, must issue a notice to the party against whom the execution is applied for to show cause why the decree should not be executed against him, and its omission to do so will invalidate the entire subsequent proceedings.—In the Matter of the Petition of Ramessuri Dass; Ramessuri Dass v. Doorgadass Chatterjee, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 103. [May 25, 1880.]

THE provisions of s. 13 of Act XV. of 1877 are not applicable to proceedings in the execution of a decree.—Ahsan Khan v. Ganga Ram, I. L. R., 3 All. 185. [Aug. 17, 1880.]

AN application under s. 311 of Act X. of 1877 to set aside a sale in execution of a decree having been made by the judgment-debtor, the Court executing the decree (Subordinate Judge) disallowed the objections, and passed an order confirming such sale. The judgment-debtor subsequently applied to the Subordinate Judge for a review of judgment. The Subordinate Judge, without recording his reasons for granting such application, irregularly proceeded at once to pass an order setting aside such sale, without cancelling the previous order confirming it. The auction-purchaser appealed to the District Judge. That officer, treating the appeal as one from an order granting an application for review of judgment, entertained it, and set aside the Subordinate Judge's second order. Held that the District Judge was not justified in entertaining such appeal, such order not being one granting an application for review, but one setting aside a sale, and as such not appealable. Before a review of judgment is granted, an order granting the application for review, and the reason for granting the same, should be recorded.—Bhairon Din Singh v. Ram Sahai, I. L. R., 3 All. 316. [Nov. 9, 1880.]

THE sale of immoveable property by an amin on a close holiday is not illegal, nor is it an irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale.—Bisram Mahton v. Sahib-un-nissa, I. L. R., 3 All. 333. [Nov. 22, 1880.]

CERTAIN immoveable property was attached in execution of a decree made by a Subordinate Judge, and also in execution of a decree made by a Munsif. These decrees were held by the same person, and the judgment-debtor was the same person. Such property was sold in execution of both decrees. On the application of the judgment-debtor, who brought into Court the amount due on the decree made by the Subordinate Judge, and with the consent of the decree-holder and the auction-purchaser, the Subordinate Judge made an illegal order setting aside such sale. Subsequently, on the application of the decree-holder and the auction-purchaser, the Munsif made an order confirming such sale. Per Spankie, J.—That the Subordinate Judge had not any jurisdiction under s. 285 of the Civil Procedure Code to deal with such sale as regards the decree made by the Munsif, and the Munsif was not precluded by that section from confirming such sale as regards the decree made by him by reason that the Subordinate Judge, a Court of a higher grade, had made an order setting it aside. Per Oldfield, J.—That, having regard to the provisions of that section, it was doubtful whether the Munsif was competent to confirm such sale; but inasmuch as the Subordinate Judge only intended to set it aside as regards the decree made by him, and his order was illegal, and the Munsif's order had done substantial justice, there was no reason to interfere.—Chunni Lal v. Debi Prasad, I. L. R., 3 All. 356. [Dec. 20, 1880.]

THE omission to give the notice required by s. 248 of Act X. of 1877 to the judgment-debtor, on application for execution of the decree, affects the regularity of the sale which subsequently takes place in execution of the decree, and the validity of the entire execution-proceedings. Ramesuri Dass v. Doorgadass Chatterjee (I. L. R., 6 Cal. 103) followed. Held, therefore, where execution of a decree was applied for against the legal representative of a deceased judgment-debtor, and the notice required by s. 248 of Act X. of 1877 was not given to such legal representative, and certain immoveable property belonging to the deceased judgment-debtor was sold, that such sale had been properly set aside by the Court executing the decree by reason of such omission. Quere.—Whether such omission was an irregularity in “publishing or conducting” the sale within the meaning of s. 311 of the Act?—Imam-un-nissa Bibi v. Luakat Hussain, I. L. R., 3 All. 424. [Jan. 10, 1881.]

THE procedure to be followed upon the sale of an under-tenure is that prescribed by the Civil Procedure Code. S. 311 does not apply only to sales made under chap. 19 of the Code, and the sale of an under-tenure may be set aside upon any of the grounds mentioned in that section.—Azizoonnessa Khattoon v. Gora Chand Dass, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 163. [Mar. 18, 1881.]

THE omission to specify in the proclamation the amount of Government revenue payable in respect of the property sold in execution of a decree is an irregularity contemplated by s. 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and where it appeared that an inadequate price was obtained in a case where such an omission was made, the High Court set aside the sale, although the irregularity had not been made a ground of objection in the lower Court. See Sree Gridhari Singh v. Hardeo Narain Singh (I. L. R., 3 Ind. Ap. 230).—Mohabir Pershad Singh v. Olpherts (R.), 9 C. L. R. 134. [April 22, 1881.]

ON the 21st August 1876, certain immoveable property belonging to M was put up for sale, and was purchased by R. On the 20th April 1877, such sale was set aside under s. 256 of Act VIII. of 1859, on the ground that the order attaching such property and the notifications of sale had not, as required by s. 222, been signed by the Court executing the decree, but by the munsarim of the Court. On the 27th June 1877, M conveyed such property to H, who purchased it bona fide, and for value, and satisfied the incumbrances existing thereon. On the 15th April 1878, R sued H and M to have the order setting aside such sale set aside, and to have such sale confirmed in his favour, on the ground that it had been improperly set aside under s. 256 of Act VIII. of 1859, the judgment-debtor not having been prejudiced by the irregularities in respect whereof such sale had been set aside. Held (by Oldfield, J.) that although such sale might have been improperly set aside, yet inasmuch as the order of attachment and the notifications of sale could have no legal effect, having been signed by the munsarim of the Court executing the decree, and not by the Court, as required by s. 222 of Act VIII. of 1859, and inasmuch as it would be inequitable, after the incumbrances on such property had been satisfied and the state of things changed, to allow R, after standing by for a year and permitting dealings with the property, to come in and take advantage of the change of circumstances, and obtain a property, become much more valuable, at the price he originally offered, R ought not to obtain the relief which he sought. Held (by Straight, J.) that the fact that the Court executing the decree had not signed the order of attachment and the notifications of sale vitiated the proceedings in execution ab initio, and rendered the sale which R desired to have confirmed void, and R's suit therefore failed, and had properly been dismissed.—Ram Dial v. Mahtab Singh, I. L. R., 3 All. 701. [April 23, 1881.]

WHEN liberty is given to a decree-holder to bid at the sale of the judgment-debtor's property, he is bound to exercise the most scrupulous fairness in purchasing that property, and if he or his agent dissuades others from purchasing at the sale, that of itself is a sufficient ground why the purchase should be set aside. Where a decree-holder was joint in family with the manager of an infant defendant, and the defendant's property was to be sold in execution of the decree, held that the decree-holder ought not to be granted leave to purchase at the sale, because any purchase made by him would be for the benefit of the family of which the manager of the infant defendant was one of the members; and it would, in fact, be a purchase by an agent of the property of his principal.—Woopendro Nath Sircar v. Brojendronath Mundul, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 346. [May 6, 1881.]

UNDER ss. 289 and 274 of the Civil Procedure Code, it is necessary that a copy of the sale-proclamation should be affixed to some conspicuous place on the property attached; and the omission to do so is a material irregularity within the meaning of s. 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure. If it is proved that the price obtained for property sold at an execution-sale is greatly inadequate, and if it be also proved that there has been a material irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale, the Court will presume that the irregularity was the cause of the inadequacy of price, until proof is given to the contrary.—Kalytara Chowdhrair v. Ramcoomar Goopta, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 466. [May 25, 1881.]

ON an application under s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) to set aside a sale, it appeared that there had been a material irregularity in publishing the sale; but no witnesses were called to prove that substantial injury had been caused thereby. It also appeared that seventeen days after the applicant had applied for proclamations to be issued to his witnesses, he deposited the requisite fees; and that, subsequently, there was a delay of seven days in the office in issuing such proclamations, which were ultimately issued only three days prior to the day fixed for the hearing. On the applicant alleging that, in consequence of such delay, he had not been allowed a fair opportunity to produce his witnesses, held that the Court cannot presume that substantial injury has been caused from the mere fact of there having been a material irregularity in publishing a sale; but when both a material irregularity and substantial injury have been proved, the Court may reasonably presume that the substantial injury is due to such irregularity. Held also that the applicant, having been guilty of laches himself, could not be allowed to set up the delay in the office as a ground for the non-production of his witnesses.—Bonomali Mozumdar v. Woornesh Chunder Bundopadhyia, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 730. [July 28, 1881.]

THE mere fact that the amount of rent payable in respect of a tenure brought to sale in execution of a decree is not stated in the sale-proclamation is not a material irregularity within the meaning of s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), though if the amount of rent payable were stated to be more than it actually was, that might constitute such an irregularity as tending to lessen the price at which purchasers might be willing to buy. Where decrees for arrears of rent had been obtained by fractional shareholders in a tenure, and in execution thereof a moiety of the tenure had been sold, it appeared that the other moiety had been sold at the same time in execution of a mortgage-decree against some of the judgment-debtors in the rent-suits, on an objection being taken to the confirmation of such sale on the ground that the whole tenure should have been sold in execution of the rent-decrees, held that all that the decree-holders were entitled to have sold was the right, title, and interest of their judgment-debtors, and that they were in the position of ordinary creditors having no lien on the tenure; and that, consequently, the mortgagor being entitled to enforce his lien against the moiety covered by his mortgage, the sale of the remaining moiety in satisfaction of the rent-decrees was a good sale, and could not be set aside.—Mohendro Coomar Dutt v. Heera Mohun Coondoo, and Ishanewary v. Gopal Das Dutt, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 723. [Aug. 4, 1881.]

THE words, "any person whose immoveable property has been sold," in s. 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure, do not include a person who has purchased the same property at a prior execution-sale, such prior sale not having been confirmed.—In the Matter of the Petition of Bhagabuti Churn Bhuttacharjee Chowdhry v. Bisheshwar Sen and others, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 367. [Feb. 9, 1882.]

HELD that the fact of a sale of immoveable property in execution of a decree having taken place before thirty days from the proclamation of sale being made on the property had expired was not a material irregularity in the publication of the sale. Mohunt Megh Lal Poorce v. Shib Pershad Madi (I. L. R., 7 Cal. 34) dissented from.—Rahohandar Bahadur v. Kamta Prasad, I. L. R., 4 All. 300. [Feb. 27, 1882.]

be confirmed in his favour, with reference to the provisions of s. 310 of the Civil Procedure Code. The Court disallowed the objection, and confirmed the sale in favour of the auction-purchaser. The objector thereupon applied to the High Court for revision of the order of the lower Court under s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held that, having been allowed to object to the confirmation of the sale, and treated as a party to the proceeding held therein, it was competent for him to make such application, notwithstanding that he was not one of the persons mentioned in s. 311 of the Code; that there being no appeal in the case, so far as he was concerned, the High Court was competent to entertain the application under s. 622 of the Code; but that, as he was not one of the persons who was competent to avail himself of the provisions of s. 311, he had no locus standi to justify his application to the lower Court, and the application for revision must therefore be dismissed.—Bisheshar Kuar v. Hari Singh, I. L. R., 5 All. 42. [Jul. 18, 1882.]

AN objection to the validity of a sale of revenue-paying land, on the ground that the revenue assessed upon it had not been stated in the proclamation of the intended sale in accordance with s. 287 of Act X. of 1877, was taken, for the first time, in the Court of appeal; an application to set aside the sale, on the ground that it had taken place without proclamation made, having been rejected by the Court of first instance, which found that proclamation had been made. Held that the objection was taken too late, although, if properly taken in the Court of first instance, it would have been good to the extent that not stating the amount of the revenue was an irregularity; substantial damage, resulting from it, remaining to be proved, as required by s. 311 of Act X. of 1877. Held also that inadequacy of price having been alleged as substantial damage, without having been proved to be the effect of the non-statement of the revenue, the applicant had not (as required by s. 311) proved, to the satisfaction of the Court, that he had sustained substantial damage by reason of such irregularity.—Macnaghten v. Mahabir Pershad Singh, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 656. [Nov. 24, 1882.]

UNDER Act XII. of 1879, Form 149 of Sch. IV. of the Code of Civil Procedure provided that sixty days should elapse between a sale in execution of a decree and its confirmation. A sale having been confirmed before the expiry of sixty days, held that the sale was not rendered inoperative, and that its effect was not postponed by reason of the provision in Form No. 149. Where a suit was brought to recover money from the defendant, who was the karnavan of a Malabar tarwad, and it was not alleged in the plaint that the defendant was sued as karnavan, or that the debt was binding on the tarwad, held that a sale of tarwad property in execution of the decree was not binding on the members of the tarwad, and therefore that art. 12 of sch. 2 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, did not apply to a suit brought by other members of the tarwad to recover the land sold in execution of the decree.—Haji v. Atharman, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 512. [July 8, 1883.]

THE words "on the spot where the property is attached" in s. 289 of the Civil Procedure Code refer to each property attached, and not to a group of separate properties attached under one proceeding or order in one execution-case; and therefore, when distinct properties are proclaimed for sale in one execution, the omission to affix a copy of the proclamation in each of such properties amounts to an irregularity in the publication of the sale. Held also that where there is no evidence to connect the two elements of irregularity and injury under s. 311, it must appear, before a Court can set aside an execution-sale, that the injury complained of is the reasonable and natural consequence of the irregularity, and attributable to it alone.—Tripura Sundari v. Durga Churn Pal, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 74. [Sep. 13, 1884.]

Per Petheram, C.J., and Oldfield, Brodhurst, and Duthoit, JJ.—An order passed under the first clause of s. 312 of the Civil Procedure Code, after an objection made under the provisions of s. 311 has been disallowed, is appealable under art. 16 of s. 588. Per Mahmood, J.—An application made under s. 311 can be disposed of only under s. 312, and if the Court rejects the objection to the sale, the order must be regarded as an order "refusing to set aside a sale of immoveable property" under the 1st para. of s. 312, and, therefore, appealable as falling under the purview of art. 16 of s. 588. Lalman v. Russu Lal (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 117), and Rajan Kuar v. Lalta Prasad (Weekly Notes, 1883, p. 178), dissented from by Mahmood, J.—Tota Ram v. Khub Chand, I. L. R., 7 All. 253. [Dec. 13, 1884.]

AN infringement of the rule contained in s. 290 of the Civil Procedure Code is an irregularity vitiating a sale in execution of a decree, and is something more than a material irregularity in publishing a sale to which s. 311 refers.—Bakhshi Nand Kishore v. Malak Chand, I. L. R., 7 All. 280. [Jan. 23, 1885.]

IF in an application for execution the Court erroneously holds that the application is not barred, and orders a sale, the order, though erroneous and liable to be set aside in the way prescribed by the procedure law, is not a nullity, but remains in full force until set aside, and a sale held in pursuance of such order is, until set aside, a valid sale; a suit to set aside such a sale is governed by art. 12, cl. 2 of sch. 2 of Act XV. of 1877." The word "disallowed" in s. 312 of the Civil Procedure Code has no reference to an order passed on an appeal, but refers to the disallowance of the objection by the Court before which the proceedings under s. 311 are taken. On the 15th June 1878, a judgment-debtor filed a petition objecting to execution of a decree against him proceeding on the ground that the decree was barred. On the 18th November 1878, that objection was overruled, and certain of his property sold. Against the order overruling his objection the judgment-debtor appealed, and ultimately on the 13th January 1880 the order was set aside by the High Court, and the decree was held to have been barred. Pending these proceedings, the judgment-debtor also, on the 17th December 1878, applied, under the provision of s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), to set aside the sale on the ground of material irregularity, but that application was ultimately rejected on the 17th May 1879, and the sale was confirmed on the 21st May 1879. On the 2nd April 1880, the judgment-debtor applied to set aside the sale, on the ground that the decree in execution of which it had taken place had been held to be barred, and though an order setting aside the sale was made by the original Court, it was subsequently set aside by the High Court on the 13th April 1881, as having been made without jurisdiction. The judgment-debtor now brought a suit on the 4th January 1882 upon the same grounds to set aside the sale and recover possession. Held that the suit was barred.—Mahomed Hossein v. Puraudur Mahto, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 287. [Jan. 26, 1885.]

HELD that an objection made by one whose property was attached and sold in execution of a decree for the payment of money for the performance of which he had become a surety, that he was no party to the decree, and his property was not liable to be attached and sold, and therefore the sale was invalid, was not an objection entertainable under s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code, and was consequently no ground for setting aside the sale under that section, especially as it was preferred for the first time in appeal, and, moreover, might have been taken under s. 278 at the time of attachment, when the objector would have had his remedy as therein provided.—Hub Lal v. Kanhia Lal, I. L. R., 7 All. 365. [Feb. 4, 1885.]

AN objection by a judgment-debtor to a sale in execution of a decree on the ground that the property which was the subject of sale was not legally saleable, is not a matter which can be entertained by the Court under s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code, so as to afford a ground for setting aside the sale on account of material irregularity in publishing or conducting it. Ram Gopal v. Khiali Ram (I. L. R., 6 All. 448) and Janki Singh v. Ablakh Singh (I. L. R., 6 All. 393) distinguished. Per Mahmood, J.—The scope of s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code is limited to matters connected with the execution of the decree between the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor, and covers all the questions which may arise between the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor relating to the execution, &c., of the decree. Questions that may arise after the sale are not, strictly speaking, questions relating to the execution, discharge, or satisfaction of the decree, within the meaning of cl. 3, s. 244; but as soon as there has been a sale, the execution of the decree, so far as the decree-holder is concerned, is over, and the question whether the purchaser has purchased anything by the sale is not a question as to the execution of the decree-holder's decree. Also per Mahmood, J.—The expression, "conducting the sale," as used in s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code, does not include any proceedings unconnected with the actual carrying out of the sale; but refers to the action of the officer who makes the sale, and not to anything done antecedent to the order of sale.—Olpherts v. Mahabir Pershad (L. R., 10 Ind. App. 25) referred to.—Ramchhaibar Misr v. Bechu Bhagat, I. L. R., 7 All. 641. [Mar. 21, 1885.]

HELD that persons other than the decree-holders or the persons whose property was sold in execution of decree were not competent to apply to the Court under s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code to set aside the sale. M, in whose name property had been purchased at an execution-sale which was improperly set aside, brought a suit to have the order setting aside the sale reversed, and the sale confirmed in her favour, and for a declaration that the property was not liable to be sold in execution of a decree of the defendants against third persons, under which it had been attached and advertized for sale. Held that such a suit could only be maintained under s. 42 of the Specific Relief Act (I. of 1877), but that s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code indicated the intention of the Legislature that such questions should be determined in the execution department, and, reading together the provisions of ss. 244, 278, and 283 of the Code, the suit was premature, and therefore not maintainable.—Man Kuar v. Tara Singh, I. L. R., 7 All. 583. [Mar. 23, 1885.]

A SUBORDINATE Judge made an order for the sale, in execution of a decree, of certain immovable property, which was "ancestral," within the meaning of the notification by the Local Government, No. 671, dated the 30th August 1880, under which execution of such decree should have been transferred to the Collector ; and such property was sold accordingly. Held that the order for the sale of such property having been made without jurisdiction, the sale was void, and should be set aside.—Sukhdeo Raj v. Sheo Ghulam, I. L. R., 4 All. 382. [April 5, 1885.]

In 1879, D obtained a decree against S. S gave security for the satisfaction of the decree, whereupon D agreed not to take proceedings in execution. In breach of this agreement D in the same year applied for execution, and sold certain immoveable property belonging to S, of which K became the purchaser. K did not apply for possession until 1883, in which year he applied for and obtained possession of the property. S alleged that he then for the first time became aware of the sale, and that by the fraud of D and K he had been kept in ignorance of the execution-proceedings taken by D in breach of the above-mentioned agreement, and within thirty days after K obtained possession, he (S) applied for a reversal of the orders which had been passed in the aforesaid fraudulent proceedings. The Subordinate Judge held that the application was barred by art. 166 of sch. 2 of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877), and referred the applicant to a separate suit to set aside the sale. On application to the High Court, held that a separate suit would not lie, and that the relief sought by S could only be obtained, at all events as against D, by an application under s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882). Held also that art. 166 of sch. 2 of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877) did not apply. That article as amended by s. 108 of Act XII. of 1879 only applies to applications made under s. 311 or s. 294 of the Civil Procedure Code seeking to set aside a sale on the ground of a material irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale, or on the ground that the decree-holder has purchased without the permission of the Court.—Sakharām Govind Kale v. Dāmōdar Akhārām Gujar, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 468. [April 29, 1885.]

WHERE an application is made to set aside a sale in execution of a decree on the ground of irregularity, it is not to be presumed from the proved existence of irregularity and injury that the latter occurred by reason of the former, in the absence of evidence to show that the injury is the result of the irregularity. Macnaghten v. Mahabir Pershad Singh (I. L. R., 9 Cal. 656) and Lala Mobaruk Lal v. Secretary of State for India in Council (I. L. R., 11 Cal. 200) discussed.—Satish Ghunder Rai Chowdhuri v. Thomas, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 658. [May 22, 1885.]

UNDER the terms of s. 294 of the Civil Procedure Code, it is discretionary with the Court to set aside an execution-sale at which the decree-holder has bid and purchased without first obtaining permission from the Court so to do ; and in dealing with such a case, the Courts, although considering the matter as an irregularity in the conduct of the sale, will not interfere with the sale, unless it can be shown that the judgment-debtor has suffered some substantial injury arising from such irregularity.—Mathura Das v. Nathuni Lal Masta, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 731. [June 3, 1885.]

IN a sale of immoveable property in execution of a decree, the proclamation of sale notified that the decree-holder held two charges on the property, aggregating about Rs. 1,000. There was, in fact, one charge only, amounting to about Rs. 800. Held that the error in the proclamation of sale amounted to such an irregularity in publishing the sale and putting up the property to the biddings of the public as must have materially marred the fairness of the auction and affected the price, and that the sale must therefore be set aside, on the ground of material irregularity in publishing and conducting it.—Kanji Mal v. Bibi Sailo, I. L. R., 8 All. 116. [Feb. 1, 1886.]

THE mortgagees of a certain tenure obtained, on 11th September 1884, under s. 86 of the Transfer of Property Act, a decree for foreclosure, which declared that, on failure to pay the amount found due, the mortgagor's right of redemption should be barred on 11th March 1885 ; this time was subsequently extended on the application of the mortgagor to 30th April 1885. On the 6th April 1885, in execution of a decree for arrears of rent obtained by the superior holder of the tenure against the mortgagor, the tenure was sold free from incumbrances. The mortgagees applied under s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code to have the sale set aside for material irregularity. Held that under s. 86 of the Transfer of Property Act, the mortgagees had such an interest in the property as brought them within the words of s. 311, "person whose property has been sold," and entitled them to make the application.—Rakhal Chunder Bose v. Dwarka Nath Misser, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 346. [June 22, 1886.]

WHERE one decree-holder had attached certain land, and another decree-holder against the same debtor had entitled himself to rateable distribution of the assets under s. 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure, held that the latter was entitled to apply, under s. 311 of the Code, to set aside the sale on the ground of material irregularity.—Lakshmi v. Kuttanni, 1 L. R., 10 Mad. 57. [Sep. 29, 1886.]

THE words, "any person whose immovable property has been sold," in s. 311, are sufficiently wide to include a person who is neither the decree-holder nor the judgment-debtor nor the auction purchaser, but who alleges that the property sold in execution is his.—Abdul Huq Mozoomdar v. Mohini Mohun Shaha, 1 L. R., 14 Cal. 240. [Dec. 2, 1886.]

ALTHOUGH s. 312 of the Civil Procedure Code contemplates that objections to a sale under s. 311 shall be filed before an order for confirmation is passed, if the precipitate action of the Court has led to the confirmation of a sale before the time allowed for filing objections to the sale has expired, whether or not that Court could entertain such objections after confirming the sale, the High Court on appeal is bound to interfere and to see that objections which by law the appellant is empowered to make are heard and determined before a sale of his property is confirmed or becomes absolute. An application under s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code, on behalf of a judgment-debtor who was a minor, was rejected on the ground that the applicant did not legally represent the minor, and the Court thereupon confirmed the sale. A second application to the same effect was then filed on behalf of the minor by his guardian, and was rejected on the ground that the Court had already confirmed the sale, and was precluded from entertaining objections after such confirmation, prior to which no proper application of objection had been filed. From this order the judgment-debtor appealed. Held that the appeal must be considered to be one from an order under the first paragraph of s. 312 of the Civil Procedure Code, confirming the sale after disallowing the appellant's objection, and that it would, therefore, lie. Held that, assuming the first application on the minor's behalf to have been rightly rejected, the second was made by a duly authorized guardian, and, with regard to s. 7 of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1887), was not barred by limitation; and the judgment-debtor had, therefore, a right to make it, and the Court should have entertained and dealt with it before proceeding to confirm the sale or grant a sale-certificate. The order disallowing the application and the order confirming the sale were set aside, and the case remanded for disposal of the appellant's objections. Phoolbas Koonwur v. Jogeshur Sahoy (1 L. R., 1 Cal. 226) referred to.—Baldeo Singh v. Kishan Lal, 1 L. R., 9 All. 411. [Feb. 11, 1887.]

312. If no such application as is mentioned in the last preceding section be made, or if such application be made and the objection be disallowed, the Court shall pass an order confirming the sale as regards the parties to the suit and the purchaser.

If such application be made, and if the objection be allowed, the Court shall pass an order setting aside the sale.

No suit to set aside, on the ground of such irregularity, an order passed under this section shall be brought by the party against whom such order has been made.

On the 16th June 1877, certain property was sold in execution of a decree, and on the 29th June 1877, the judgment-debtor, the owner of the property, applied to the Court to set aside the sale, and the sale was set aside by the Subordinate Judge on the 24th January 1878. The decree-holder, who was the purchaser of the property, appealed to the Court of the District Judge, who reversed the order of the Subordinate Judge. Held that the Judge had no jurisdiction to do so, as the proceedings must be taken to be governed by Act VIII. of 1859 and not by Act X. of 1877. Ranjit Singh v. Meharban Koer (2 C. L. R. 391) cited and followed.—Burkat Hossein v. Majidonnissa, 3 C. L. R. 208. [July 7, 1878.]

AN Appellate Court has a discretionary power to substitute or order a new appellant or respondent after the period of limitation prescribed for an appeal. The right, title, and interest of G in certain immovable property was attached and notified for sale in the execution of a money-decree held by T. It was also attached and notified for sale in the execution of a money-decree held by S and R. The same date was fixed for both sales. The officer conducting sales first sold the property in execution of T's decree, and T purchased the property. He then sold the property in execution of the decree held by S and R, and K purchased the property. The Court executing the decrees confirmed the sale to

T, granting him a sale-certificate, and disallowing K's objection to the confirmation. It also confirmed the sale to K, ordering the purchase-money to be paid to S and R, and disallowing K's objection to the confirmation; but it refused to grant K a sale-certificate, on the ground that, as the sale to T had been confirmed, and a sale-certificate granted to him, it could not give K possession of the property. In a suit by K against S and R to recover his purchase-money, held (distinguishing the suit from the cases in which it had been held that, when the right, title, and interest of a judgment-debtor in a particular property is sold, there is no warranty that he has any right, title, or interest, and therefore the auction-purchaser cannot recover his purchase-money if it turns out that the judgment-debtor had no interest in the property) that the rule of caveat emptor did not apply, and the suit was maintainable. The provisions of s. 257 of Act VIII. of 1859 apply to applications made under s. 256 of that Act, and to those only. Held, therefore, that inasmuch as K objected to the confirmation of the sale to him on the ground that the Court was not competent to confirm a sale which had by its previous order been nullified, and not on any of the grounds mentioned in s. 256 of Act VIII. of 1859, K was not precluded by the terms of s. 257 of that Act from maintaining his suit. Where the Court executing two decrees made separate orders directing the sale on the same date of certain immoveable property in execution of such decrees, the officer conducting sales was not bound to sell such property once for all in execution of both decrees, and his selling such property separately was, therefore, not an irregularity in the conduct of the sales.—Court of Wards on behalf of the Raja of Kautit v. Gaya Prashad, I. L. R., 2 All. 107. [Jan. 28, 1879.]

PROCEEDINGS to execute a decree commenced when the former Code of Civil Procedure (Act VIII. of 1859) was in force; but property belonging to the judgment-debtor was sold in pursuance of those proceedings on the 14th November 1877, after the new Code (Act X. of 1877) came into operation. Subsequently, at the instance of the applicant, the Court made an order, setting aside the sale on the ground of irregularity. Held that this order was governed by the former Code, and was consequently not subject to appeal.—Chinto Jhosi v. Krishaji Narayan, I. L. R., 3 Bom. 214. [April 3, 1879.]

CERTAIN immoveable property was put up for sale in the execution of B's decree, and was purchased by him. Subsequently, on the same day, such property was put up for sale in the execution of S's decree, and was purchased by him. B objected to the confirmation of the sale to S on the ground that S's decree had been satisfied previously to such sale, and the Court executing the decrees made an order setting aside such sale on that ground. S thereupon sued B to have such order set aside, and to have such sale confirmed, and to obtain possession of such property. Held that, inasmuch as such order had not been made under s. 257 of Act VIII. of 1859, but had been made at the instance of a purchaser under another decree, and B's decree, as a matter of fact, had not been satisfied, S's suit to have such order set aside was maintainable.—Sangam Ram v. Sheobart Bhagath, I. L. R., 3 All. 112. [Aug. 2, 1880.]

THE COURT executing a decree having made an order setting aside a sale under Act VIII. of 1859 of immoveable property in the execution of the decree, the purchaser at such sale sued the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor to have such order set aside, and to have such sale confirmed in his favour. Held (Oldfield, J., dissenting) that the suit was maintainable, the provision of s. 257 precluding an appeal from an order setting aside a sale, and not a suit to contest the validity of such an order; and that the order setting aside the sale in this case being ultra vires, the auction-purchaser was entitled to the relief he claimed.—Diwan Singh v. Bharath Singh, I. L. R., 3 All. 206. [Aug. 23, 1880.]

HELD (Oldfield, J., dissenting) that a suit by the purchaser at a sale of immoveable property in execution of a decree, which has been set aside under ss. 311 and 312 of Act X. of 1877, to have such sale confirmed, on the ground that there was no irregularity in the publication or conduct thereof, is not barred by the last clause of s. 312 or by the last clause of s. 588, but is maintainable.—Azim-ud-din v. Baldeo, I. L. R., 3 All. 554. [Mar. 9, 1881.]

Per Petheram, C.J., and Oldfield, Brodhurst, and Duthoit, J.J.—An order passed under the first clause of s. 312 of the Civil Procedure Code, after an objection made under the provisions of s. 311 has been disallowed, is appealable under art. 16 of s. 588. Per Mahmood, J.—An application made under s. 311 can be disposed of only under s. 312, and if the Court rejects the objection to the sale, the order must be regarded as an order "refusing to set aside a sale of immoveable property" under the 1st para. of s. 312, and therefore appealable as falling under the purview of art. 16 of s. 588. Lalman v. Russu Lal (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 117), and Rajan Kuar v. Lalta Prasad (Weekly Notes, 1883, p. 178), dissented from by Mahmood, J.—Tota Ram v. Khub Chand, I. L. R., 7 All. 253. [Dec. 13, 1884.]

It in an application for execution the Court erroneously holds that the application is not barred, and orders a sale, the order, though erroneous and liable to be set aside in the way prescribed by the procedure law, is not a nullity, but remains in full force until set aside, and a sale held in pursuance of such order is, until set aside, a valid sale; a suit to set aside such a sale is governed by art. 12, cl. a, of sch. 2 of Act XV. of 1877. The word "disallowed" in s. 312 of the Civil Procedure Code has no reference to an order passed on an appeal, but refers to the disallowance of the objection by the Court before which the proceedings under s. 311 are taken. On the 15th June 1878, a judgment-debtor filed a petition objecting to execution of a decree against him proceeding on the ground that the decree was barred. On the 18th November 1878, that objection was overruled, and certain of his property sold. Against the order overruling his objection the judgment-debtor appealed, and ultimately, on the 13th January 1880, the order was set aside by the High Court, and the decree was held to have been barred. Pending these proceedings the judgment-debtor also, on the 17th December 1878, applied, under the provision of s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), to set aside the sale on the ground of material irregularity, but that application was ultimately rejected on the 17th May 1879, and the sale was confirmed on the 21st May 1879. On the 2nd April 1880, the judgment-debtor applied to set aside the sale, on the ground that the decree in execution of which it had taken place had been held to be barred, and though an order setting aside the sale was made by the original Court, it was subsequently set aside by the High Court on the 13th April 1881, as having been made without jurisdiction. The judgment-debtor now brought a suit on the 4th January 1882 upon the same grounds to set aside the sale and recover possession. Held that the suit was barred.—Mahomed Hossein v. Purundur Mahto, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 287. [Jan. 26, 1885.]

HELD that an objection made by one whose property was attached and sold in execution of a decree for the payment of money for the performance of which he had become a surety, that he was no party to the decree, and his property was not liable to be attached and sold, and therefore the sale was invalid, was not an objection entertainable under s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code, and was consequently no ground for setting aside the sale under that section, especially as it was preferred for the first time in appeal, and, moreover, might have been taken under s. 278 at the time of attachment, when the objector would have had his remedy as therein provided.—Hub Lal v. Kanhia Lal, I. L. R., 7 All. 365. [Feb. 4, 1885.]

AN objection by a judgment-debtor to a sale in execution of a decree on the ground that the property which was the subject of sale was not legally saleable is not a matter which can be entertained by the Court under s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code, so as to afford a ground for setting aside the sale on account of material irregularity in publishing or conducting it. Ram Gopal v. Khiali Ram (I. L. R., 6 All. 448) and Janki Singh v. Adakh Singh (I. L. R., 6 All. 393) distinguished. Per Mahmood, J.—The scope of s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code is limited to matters connected with the execution of the decree between the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor, and covers all the questions which may arise between the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor relating to the execution, &c., of the decree. Questions that may arise after the sale are not, strictly speaking, questions relating to the execution, discharge, or satisfaction of the decree, within the meaning of cl. 3, s. 244; but as soon as there has been a sale, the execution of the decree, so far as the decree-holder is concerned, is over, and the question whether the purchaser has purchased anything by the sale is not a question as to the execution of the decree-holder's decree. Also Per Mahmood, J.—The expression "conducting the sale," as used in s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code, does not include any proceedings unconnected with the actual carrying out of the sale, but refers to the action of the officer who makes the sale, and not to anything done antecedent to the order of sale.—C'pherts v. Mahabir Pershad (L. R., 10 Ind. Ap. 25) referred to.—Ragchhaibar Misr v. Bechu Bhagat, I. L. R., 7 All. 641. [Mar. 12, 1885.]

IN a sale of immoveable property in execution of a decree, the proclamation of sale notified that the decree-holder held two charges on the property, aggregating about Rs. 1,000. There was, in fact, one charge only, amounting to about Rs. 800. Held that the error in the proclamation of sale amounted to such an irregularity in publishing the sale and putting up the property to the biddings of the public as must have materially marred the fairness of the auction and affected the price, and that the sale must therefore be set aside, on the ground of material irregularity in publishing and conducting it.—Kanji Mal v. Bibi Sailo, I. L. R., 8 All. 116. [Feb. 1, 1886.]

was sold in execution of both decrees. On the application of the judgment-debtor, who brought into Court the amount due on the decree made by the Subordinate Judge, and with the consent of the decree-holder and the auction-purchaser, the Subordinate Judge made an illegal order setting aside such sale. Subsequently, on the application of the decree-holder and the auction-purchaser, the Munsif made an order confirming such sale. Per Spankie, J.—That the Subordinate Judge had not any jurisdiction under s. 285 of the Civil Procedure Code to deal with such sale as regards the decree made by the Munsif, and the Munsif was not precluded by that section from confirming such sale as regards the decree made by him by reason that the Subordinate Judge, a Court of a higher grade, had made an order setting it aside. Per Oldfield, J.—That, having regard to the provisions of that section, it was doubtful whether the Munsif was competent to confirm such sale; but inasmuch as the Subordinate Judge only intended to set it aside as regards the decree made by him, and his order was illegal, and the Munsif's order had done substantial justice, there was no reason to interfere.—Chunni Lal v. Debi Prasad, I. L. R., 3 All. 356. [Dec. 20, 1886.]

ALTHOUGH s. 312 of the Civil Procedure Code contemplates that objections to a sale under s. 311 shall be filed before an order for confirmation is passed, if the precipitate action of the Court has led to the confirmation of a sale before the time allowed for filing objections to the sale has expired, whether or not that Court could entertain such objections after confirming the sale, the High Court on appeal is bound to interfere and to see that objections which by law the appellant is empowered to make are heard and determined before a sale of his property is confirmed or becomes absolute. An application under s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code, on behalf of a judgment-debtor who was a minor, was rejected on the ground that the applicant did not legally represent the minor, and the Court thereupon confirmed the sale. A second application to the same effect was then filed on behalf of the minor by his guardian, and was rejected on the ground that the Court had already confirmed the sale, and was precluded from entertaining objections after such confirmation, prior to which no proper application of objection had been filed. From this order the judgment-debtor appealed. Held that the appeal must be considered to be one from an order under the first paragraph of s. 312 of the Civil Procedure Code, confirming the sale after disallowing the appellant's objection, and that it would, therefore, lie. Held that, assuming the first application on the minor's behalf to have been rightly rejected, the second was made by a duly authorized guardian, and, with regard to s. 7 of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877), was not barred by limitation; and the judgment-debtor had, therefore, a right to make it, and the Court should have entertained and dealt with it before proceeding to confirm the sale or grant a sale-certificate. The order disallowing the application and the order confirming the sale were set aside, and the case remanded for disposal of the appellant's objections. Phoolbas Koonwar v. Jogeshur Sahoy (I. L. R., 1 Cal. 226) referred to.—Baldeo Singh v. Kishan Lal, I. L. R., 9 All. 411. [Feb. 11, 1887.]

313. The purchaser at any such sale may apply to the Court to set aside the sale, on the ground that the person whose property purported to be sold had no saleable interest therein, and the Court may make such order as it thinks fit: Provided that no order to set aside a sale shall be made, unless the judgment-debtor and the decree-holder have had opportunity of being heard against such order.

In execution of a decree obtained on the 5th August 1876, the property of the judgment-debtor was attached on the 17th August 1877. The sale of the attached property was postponed pending a suit instituted under the direction of the Court by a claimant to the attached property. This suit having been dismissed on the 13th September 1878, the decree-holder, on the 25th September, applied for a sale of the property, and the 16th December was fixed for the sale. Meanwhile, on the 13th December 1877, a decree had been obtained by another party against the judgment-debtor, and in execution of this decree the same property was attached on the 13th September 1878, and under this attachment a sale took place on the 15th November following. On the 16th December, as fixed, the property was again sold under the first attachment. The auction-purchaser at that sale, on the 6th January 1879, applied, under s. 313 of the Civil Procedure Code, to set aside the sale on the ground that the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest. Held (reversing the decision of the lower Court) on the authority of the following cases—Gogaram v. Kartick Chander Singh (9 W. R. 614), Lala Joogul Lal v. Bhuka Chowdhary (9 W. R. 244), and Kartick Chander Singh v. Gogaram (2 W. R., Misc., 48)—which the Court felt bound to follow, while it doubted their correctness, that the sale must be set aside.—Chutika Panda v. Goburdhone Dass, 6 C. L. R. 85. [Feb. 13, 1880.]

A PERSON who purchases immoveable property at a sale in execution of a decree, knowing that the judgment-debtor has no saleable interest therein, is not entitled to the benefit of the provisions of s. 313 of Act X. of 1877, which were designed for the protection of persons who innocently and ignorantly purchase valueless property.—Mahibir Prasad v. Dhuman Das, F. L. R., 3 All. 527. [Feb. 14, 1881.]

IN execution of a rent-decree, dated 26th May 1869, certain immoveable property was sold in execution, and purchased by the appellant on the 21st February 1880, no mention having been made of any incumbrances. On the 9th May 1879, a decree was obtained upon a mortgage executed by the original judgment-debtor, and in execution of that decree the property which had already been sold was attached, and, on the 11th March, again sold in execution of the second decree, it being alleged that the property was covered by the mortgage which was prior in date to the former decree. The appellant thereupon applied that the sale of the 21st March should be set aside under s. 313 of the Civil Procedure Code, and his purchase-money directed to be returned to him. Held that if, as a fact, the property sold was covered by the mortgage, there was, under the circumstances, no such saleable interest in the judgment-debtor at the time of the sale on the 21st February 1880 as would prevent the operation of s. 313 of the Civil Procedure Code, inasmuch as under that sale the purchaser would be unable to get the particular property purchased by him; and that the sale must be set aside.—Naharmul Marwari v. Sadut Ali, 8 C. L. R. 468. [April 6, 1881.]

WHERE, in execution of a decree passed against a person who had previously been adjudicated an insolvent, portions of his property (then vested in the Official Assignee) are attached and sold, the purchaser is entitled to have the sale set aside under s. 313 of the Code of Civil Procedure, notwithstanding that the Official Assignee acquiesces in the sale, and is content to receive the sale-proceeds.—Dinobundhoo Pal v. Shoshee Mohun Pal, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 217. [June 14, 1882.]

S. 313 of the Civil Procedure Code only applies to cases in which the judgment-debtor has no saleable interest in the property sold. It does not apply to cases where the judgment-debtor has no saleable interest in a portion only of the property.—In the Matter of the Petition of Ram Coomarr Dey; Ram Coomarr Dey v. Shushee Bhooshun Ghose, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 626. [Feb. 7, 1883.]

THE fact that property sold in execution of a decree is subject to a mortgage upon which a decree has been obtained—which fact is not disclosed prior to the proclamation of sale—is not sufficient to enable an auction-purchaser to set aside the sale on the ground that the judgment-debtor had “no saleable interest” in the property, within the meaning of s. 313 of the Civil Procedure Code. Naharmul Marwari v. Sadut Ali (8 C. L. R. 468) distinguished.—Protab Chunder Chuckerbutty v. Panioty, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 506. [Feb. 20, 1883.]

IN the event of the death of the judgment-debtor, notice must issue to his representative before the sale of immoveable property can be set aside under s. 313 of the Code of Civil Procedure, albeit that the section makes no express provision for the appearance of the representative.—Bálá Kádar v. Gulám Mohidin, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 424. [July 19, 1883.]

A MISREPRESENTATION or concealment in the sale-notification, which induces a purchaser to buy a property for much more than it is really worth—although that misrepresentation of concealment may be fraudulent—is no ground for setting aside a sale under s. 313 of the Civil Procedure Code. The meaning of s. 313 is, that when a purchaser under an execution-sale buys a property which turns out to have no existence at all, or to be of no saleable value whatever, the Court may then set aside the sale under s. 313.—Durga Sundari Devi v. Govinda Chandra Addy, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 368. [Dec. 14, 1883.]

UNDER s. 313 of the Code of Civil Procedure a purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree may resist the confirmation of the sale and prevent its conclusion, while under s. 315 he may apply, after the confirmation of the sale, for a refund of the purchase-money on the ground that nothing passed by the sale. To entitle a purchaser, under para. 2 of s. 315 of the Code of Civil Procedure, to a refund of purchase-money, it is not necessary that a Court should have decided in other proceedings that the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest in the property which purported to be sold, or that the purchaser should have obtained actual possession and have been deprived thereof.—Sivaramá v. Rámá, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 99. [Nov. 20, 1884.]

Per Petheram, O.J., and Oldfield, Brodhurst, and Duthoit, JJ.—An order passed under the first clause of s. 312 of the Civil Procedure Code, after an objection made under the provisions of s. 311 has been disallowed, is appealable under art. 16 of s. 588. Per Mahmood, J.—An application made under s. 311 can be disposed of only under s. 312, and if the Court rejects the objection to the sale, the order must be regarded as an order “refusing to set aside a sale of immoveable property” under the 1st para. of s. 312, and therefore appealable as falling under the purview of art. 16 of s. 588. Lalman v. Russu Lal (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 117) and Rajan Kuar v. Lalta Prasad (Weekly Notes, 1883, p. 178) dissented from by Mahmood, J.—Tota Ram v. Khuh Chand, I. L. R., 7 All. 253. [Dec. 13, 1884.]

HELD that an application under s. 313 of the Civil Procedure Code by the purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree, which had been transferred for execution to the Collector, in accordance with the rules prescribed by the Local Government, was entertainable by the Civil Courts, and the Collector had no jurisdiction, under the Code or under Notification No. 671 of 1880, to entertain it. Madho Prasad v. Harna Kuar (I. L. R., 5 All. 314) referred to.—Nathu Mal v. Lachmi Narain, I. L. R., 9 All. 43. [Oct. 2, 1886.]

THE fact that property sold in execution of a decree is incumbered, even when the incumbrance covers the probable value of the property, is not sufficient to sustain a plea that the person whose property is sold had no saleable interest therein. S. 313 of the Civil Procedure Code contemplates that either the judgment-debtor had no interest at all, or that the interest was not one he could sell; and the fact that the property may fetch little or nothing if sold does not affect the question. Naharinal v. Sadat Ali (8 C. L. R. 468) distinguished. Protap Chunder Chuckerbutty v. Panioty (I. L. R., 9 Cal. 506) referred to. Sant Lal v. Ramji Das, I. L. R., 9 All. 167. [Dec. 15, 1886.]

314. No sale of immoveable property in execution of a decree shall become absolute until it has been confirmed by the Court.

Confirmation of sale.

UNDER s. 314 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882) the Civil Court cannot, upon or without application, refuse to confirm a sale on the ground that the price bid is too low.—Lakshmi v. Krishnabhat, I. L. R., 8 Bom. 424. [April 24, 1884.]

Per Petheram, C.J., and Oldfield, Brodhurst, and Duthoit, J.J.—An order passed under the first clause of s. 312 of the Civil Procedure Code, after an objection made under the provisions of s. 311 has been disallowed, is appealable under art. 16 of s. 588. Per Mahmood, J.—An application made under s. 311 can be disposed of only under s. 312, and if the Court rejects the objection to the sale, the order must be regarded as an order “refusing to set aside a sale of immoveable property” under the 1st para. of s. 312, and therefore appealable as falling under the purview of art. 16 of s. 588. Lalman v. Russu Lal (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 117) and Rajan Kuar v. Lalta Prasad (Weekly Notes, 1883, p. 178) dissented from by Mahmood, J.—Tota Ram v. Khuh Chand, I. L. R., 7 All. 253. [Dec. 13, 1884.]

If sale set aside, price to be returned to purchaser.

315. When a sale of immoveable property is set aside under section 312 or 313, or when it is found that the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest in the property which purported to be sold, and the purchaser is, for that reason, deprived of it, the purchaser shall be entitled to receive back his purchase-money (with or without interest as the Court may direct) from any person to whom the purchase-money has been paid.

The repayment of the said purchase-money and of the interest (if any) allowed by the Court may be enforced against such person under the rules provided by this Code for the execution of a decree for money.

WHERE immoveable property was sold in the execution of a decree under the provisions of Act VIII. of 1859, and the auction-purchaser, having been subsequently deprived of such property on the ground that the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest in it, applied under Act X. of 1877, s. 315, to the Court executing such decree for the return of the purchase-money, held that the Court could entertain the application. In the Matter of the Petition of Mulo (I. L. R., 2 All. 299) dissented from in a subsequent case, where it was held that Act X. of 1877, s. 315, cannot have retrospective effect so as to apply to a sale which had taken place before the Act came into operation.—Ilira Lal v. Karim-un-nisa, I. L. R., 2 All. 780. [Mar. 23, 1880.]

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR, whose property had been sold in execution of the decree under Act VIII. of 1859, appealed from the order disallowing his application to set aside the sale, after Act X. of 1877 (Civil Procedure Code) came into force. The Appellate Court set aside the sale. The purchaser sued the decree-holder for interest on the purchase-money and the expenses of the sale, the purchase-money having been returned to him, under the order of the Court exempting the decree, without interest and less such expenses. Held by the Full Bench that the provisions of Act X. of 1877, and not of Act VIII. of 1859, were applicable to the determination of the matter in dispute in the suit. Held by the Divisional Bench (Straight and Tyrrell, JJ.) that, with reference to the ruling of the Full Bench, the suit was maintainable. Held also by the Divisional Bench that, under the circumstances of the case, the plaintiff ought not to be granted the relief sought.—Baghubar Dayal v. Bank of Upper India, Limited, I. L. R., 5 All. 364. [Feb. 8, 1883.]

PER Straight, Oldfield, and Tyrrell, JJ.—That the words in s. 315 of the Civil Procedure Code, “no saleable interest,” mean “nothing to sell,” and are not intended to confine the cases in which a purchaser at an execution-sale shall be entitled to receive back his purchase-money to those in which the judgment-debtor, though having an interest, such interest is, by prohibition of law or for some other reason, unsaleable. Held by the Full Bench that a purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree can maintain a suit against the decree-holder for recovery of his purchase-money when it is found that the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest in the property sold, and he is not limited to the special procedure in the execution department mentioned in s. 315.—Munna Singh v. Gajadhar Singh, I. L. R., 5 All. 577. [May 7, 1883.]

UNDER s. 313 of the Code of Civil Procedure a purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree may resist the confirmation of the sale and prevent its conclusion, while under s. 315 he may apply, after the confirmation of the sale, for refund of the purchase-money on the ground that nothing passed by the sale. To entitle a purchaser, under para. 2 of s. 315 of the Code of Civil Procedure, to a refund of purchase-money, it is not necessary that a Court should have decided in other proceedings that the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest in the property which purported to be sold, or that the purchaser should have obtained actual possession and have been deprived thereof.—Sivaramá v. Rámá, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 99. [Nov. 20, 1884.]

UPON an application for refund of purchase-money under s. 315 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the Munsif, being of opinion that the purchaser had, in collusion with the judgment-debtor, run up the price of the land at auction far beyond its value with a view to prevent other property attached from being sold to satisfy the decree, rejected the application, except as to a sum of Rs. 50, which represented the alleged value of the judgment-debtor's interest in the land brought to sale by the decree-holder. Held that, as the judgment-debtor was found to have no interest in the land, the purchaser was entitled to a refund of the money paid to the decree-holder.—Kunhi Moidin v. Tarayil Moidin, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 101. [Nov. 20, 1884.]

WHERE an order was passed under s. 315 of the Code of Civil Procedure directing refund to a purchaser in execution of a decree in a suit in which a second appeal lay to the High Court, held that, under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the High Court could set aside the order because, the judgment-debtor having been found to have a saleable interest, the Lower Court had no power to order a refund.—Kuphamed v. Chathu, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 437. [April 16, 1886.]

316. When a sale of immoveable property has become absolute in Certificate to purchaser of manner aforesaid, the Court shall grant a certificate stating the property sold and the name of the person who at the time of sale is declared to be the purchaser. Such certificate shall bear the date of the confirmation of the sale; and, so far as regards the parties to the suit and persons claiming through or under them, the title to the property sold shall vest in the purchaser from the date of such certificate, and not before: Provided that the decree under which the sale took place was still subsisting at that date.

THE applicant purchased certain land at a Court-sale on the 17th February 1876. The sale was confirmed on the 20th March of the same year. The purchaser did not apply for a certificate of sale until the 10th March 1880. Held that the application was barred by the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877), sch. 2, art. 178. Held also that the purchaser's right to a certificate of sale accrued to him under ss. 256, 257, and 259 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act VIII. of 1859) on the 20th March 1875, when the sale was confirmed.—In re Khájá Patthanji, I. L. R., 5 Bom. 202. [Sep. 7, 1880.]

CERTAIN immoveable property was put up for sale, under the provisions of Act X. of 1877, in execution of a decree for money, and was purchased by C, with notice that L held a decree enforcing a lien on such property. Subsequently L applied for the sale of such property in execution of his decree, and such property was put up for sale in execution of that decree, and was purchased by S. S sued by virtue of such purchase, to recover possession of such property from C. Held that, inasmuch as under Act X. of 1877 what is sold in execution of a decree purports to be the specific property, and as C had purchased the property in suit with notice of the existing lien on it, and subject to its re-sale in execution of the decree in execution of which S had purchased it, what actually was sold in execution of that decree to S was such property, and S was entitled to possession of such property under such sale. Sales under Act VIII. of 1859 and Act X. of 1877 distinguished.—Sheo Ratan Lal v. Chotey Lal, I. L. R., 3 All. 647. [Mar. 26, 1881.]

A PERSON purchased certain property at a sale in execution of a decree in November 1878; his purchase was confirmed, and he obtained a certificate of sale on the 23rd May 1879, from which date he remained in possession. The judgment-debtor applied to have the sale set aside for irregularity, but his application was dismissed both at the hearing and on the appeal. He had applied, before the sale took place, to stay the sale, on the ground that the right to apply for execution was barred. This application was dismissed, but was allowed on appeal. It did not appear that the auction-purchaser was a party to the proceeding, or that he was cognizant of the application. Two years from the date of the sale, and one and-a-half year from its confirmation, the judgment-debtor, on a summary application, obtained an order setting aside the sale, and putting the auction-purchaser out of possession. Held that the order was erroneous, the Subordinate Judge having no power, after the sale had been confirmed, to set aside the sale by a summary order; and that, under art. 165, sch. 2 of Act XV. of 1877, the application for such an order was barred. The words, "subsisting decree," in s. 316 of Act X. of 1877, as amended by Act XII. of 1879, mean a decree unreversed and in full force, and not merely one upon which execution cannot be issued.—In the Matter of the Petition of Mahomed Hossein v. Kokil Singh, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 91. [April 13, 1881.]

UNDER Act VIII. of 1859, s. 295, and Act XX. of 1866, ss. 17 and 42, it was necessary to register the certificate of sale itself, and not merely the memorandum of the certificate of sale.—Srinivasa Sastri v. Séshayyengar, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 37. [April 29, 1881.]

CL. 178, sch. 2 of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877), is not applicable to applications for certificates of sale. Re Khaja Patthanjee (I. L. R., 5 Bom. 202) dissented from. The provisions of the Indian Limitation Act (XV. of 1877) do not apply to applications to a Court to do what it has no discretion to refuse, nor to applications for the exercise of functions of a ministerial character. Kylasa Goundan v. Ramasami Ayyan (I. L. R., 4 Mad. 172) followed.—Vithal Jamargan v. Vithojirav, I. L. R., 6 Bom. 586. [July 12, 1882.]

A PURCHASER of immoveable property at a Court-sale under the Civil Procedure Code (Act VIII. of 1859), who has been put into possession by the Court, has thereupon a complete title against all persons bound by the decree, notwithstanding that he has no certificate of sale, or one only which has not been registered. Rajkishan Mookerjee v. Radha Madhab (21 W. R. 349) followed. Quære—How far the above ruling will be affected by the language of s. 316 of Act XIV. of 1882?—Shivaram Narayan v. Ravji Sakharam, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 254. [Oct. 11, 1882.]

THE position of a purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree of the High Court after he has obtained a certificate from the Registrar under rule 415 of the Rules of Court is that of a person clothed with a right to a conveyance in virtue of a contract; he does not hold, save as regards the parties to the contract of sale, the position of an owner. When the sale is confirmed, the purchaser is entitled to a conveyance, and until he obtains a conveyance the property in the estate purchased does not, having regard to rule 431, pass to him so as to give him rights as against parties not bound by the decree under which the sale took place. All that passes to him, as against the defendant in that suit, is an equitable estate and a right to a conveyance of the property. And, therefore, as the estate in the property purchased has not passed, the purchaser is not entitled to maintain a suit for partition. In such a suit he could not, on partition, give a good conveyance to the parties interested in the estate, nor would he be entitled to a declaration of his share in the property.—Johur Mull Khoorba v. Tarankisto Deb, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 252. [May 23, 1883.]

HELD that a sale-certificate granted under s. 316 of the Civil Procedure Code is not a document the registration of which is compulsory under the Registration Act, 1877, s. 17 (b).—Masarat-un-nissu v. Adit Ram, I. L. R., 5 All. 568. [May 31, 1883.]

A CREDITOR obtained a decree against his debtor, and applied for and obtained an order for execution. This application was unsuccessfully opposed by the judgment-debtor on the ground that execution was barred by limitation. Certain properties of the judgment-debtor were attached and sold in execution of this decree, the judgment-creditor himself becoming the purchaser. In due course, the sale was confirmed, and a certificate granted to the purchaser. Subsequently to this, the order granting execution came up before the High Court on appeal, and that Court decided that execution was barred. The person who had been the judgment-debtor then brought a regular suit against the purchaser to recover the properties sold in execution. Held that he was entitled to have the sale set aside by regular suit. Jan Ali v. Jan Ali Chowdhry (1 B. L. R., A. C., 56; 10 W. R. 154) distinguished.—Minu Kumari Bibee v. Jagat Sattani Bibee, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 220. [Sep. 6, 1883.]

WHERE land subject to an unregistered mortgage, the registration of which was optional, was attached and sold in execution of a money-decree obtained against the mortgagor, and the purchaser registered his certificate of sale and obtained possession of the land, held that no question of priority under s. 60 of the Registration Act could arise, inasmuch as the purchaser acquired only the right, title, and interest of the mortgagor subject to the mortgage.—Rámárj v. Arunáchala, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 248. [Nov. 12, 1883.]

WHERE the interest of one of several joint tenants in a family dwelling-house and in certain lands let out on service-tenure is sold in execution, the purchaser is entitled to joint possession of the dwelling-house with the other shareholders, and also to a right to share in the service-rents. Kówar Bijoi Kesal Roy v. Samasundari (B. L. R. Sup. Vol. 173; 2 W. R. Misc. 30) commented on.—Rajunikanth Biswas v. Ram Nath Neogy, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 244. [Nov. 23, 1883.]

THE provisions of s. 244 (c) of the Civil Procedure Code prohibit not only a suit between parties and their representatives, but also a suit by a party or his representatives against a purchaser at a sale in execution of the decree, the object of which is to determine a question which properly arises between the parties or their representatives, and relates to the execution, discharge, or satisfaction of the decree. A judgment-debtor, whose occupancy-tenure had been sold in execution of a decree for money, sued the purchaser for recovery of the property, on the ground that the sale of occupancy-rights in execution of decree was illegal and void, being in contravention of the provisions of s. 9 of Act XII. of 1881 (N. W. P. Rent Act). Held by the Full Bench that the question involved in the suit was one of the nature referred to in s. 244 (c) of the Civil Procedure Code as determinable only by order of the Court executing the decree, and that the suit was, therefore, not maintainable. Narain v. Puran (Weekly Notes, 1883, p. 218) referred to.—Basti Ram v. Fattu, I. L. R., 8 All. 146. [Jan. 21, 1886.]

S. 273 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) having expressly provided a mode for the attachment of decrees, the procedure laid down in s. 274 relating to immoveable property has no application to the attachment of a decree for redemption. Under s. 316 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) the title of a purchaser at a Court-sale becomes complete upon his payment of the purchase-money and confirmation of the sale by the Court. When the sale is admitted, production of a certificate is not necessary to prove that fact.—Nuigar Timápa v. Bháskar Parmáya, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 444. [Mar. 11, 1886.]

AT a Court-sale held on the 15th November 1871 in execution of a decree, the plaintiff's deceased husband purchased a house, but neglected to register his sale-certificate. In attempting to recover possession, he was obstructed by the defendant, who claimed the property as her own. Summary proceedings under s. 269 of Act VIII. of 1859 were thereupon instituted against the defendant, and the defendant's claim was upheld by an order passed on the 7th November 1872. In the meantime the plaintiff's husband having died, plaintiff filed, on the 31st March 1873, a regular suit to establish her title. On the 8th July 1873, she obtained a second certificate, and registered it. The Court of first instance awarded her claim, but on appeal by the defendant the lower Appellate Court reversed that decree, on the ground that, at the institution of the suit, plaintiff had not a registered certificate of sale. That decree was confirmed on the 17th November 1879, on second appeal, by the High Court. On the 30th April 1880, plaintiff brought this suit on the strength of her registered certificate. The Court of first instance allowed her claim. The defendant appealed, and the lower Appellate Court held her suit not maintainable. On appeal by plaintiff to the High Court, held, confirming the decree of the lower Appellate Court, that plaintiff's suit was barred. The Subordinate Judge having, by his order of the 7th November 1872, passed in the summary proceedings, disposed of the case on the ground that the property belonged to the defendant, the plaintiff was under an obligation to displace that order by a suit instituted within one year from its date.—Bai Janná v. Bai Ichhá, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 604. [April 20, 1886.]

317. No suit shall be maintained against the certified purchaser on the ground that the purchase was made on behalf of the purchaser buying benámi. any other person, or on behalf of some one through whom such other person claims.

Nothing in this section shall bar a suit to obtain a declaration that the name of the certified purchaser was inserted in the certificate fraudulently or without the consent of the real purchaser.

In a suit to obtain possession of certain property purchased at an execution-sale, the plaintiff who alleged that the purchase had been made for his benefit, and that the certified purchaser was his benámídar, made the certified purchaser, who admitted his allegation, a defendant along with the person in possession. Held that the case came within the rule laid down in Buhuna Koowar v. Lalla Bahoorie Lall (14 Moore's I. A. 98; 10 B. L. R. 159), and that the suit was not barred by s. 317 of the Civil Procedure Code.—Arjun Mullick v. Sheikh Farutulla, 9 C. L. R. 295. [July 18, 1881.]

THE provisions of s. 317 of the Code of Civil Procedure are no bar to a suit for partition brought by a Hindu son against his father and a certified purchaser of family-property, who has bought benámi for the father with the family-funds at a sale in execution of a decree against the father.—Natésa v. Venkatarámáyyan, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 135. [Nov. 2, 1882.]

A SUEE K, the purchaser of certain immoveable property sold in execution of a decree under Act VIII. of 1859, for a declaration that K had purchased such property on her behalf. The suit was instituted after Act VIII. of 1859 was repealed, and Act X. of 1877 came into force. When the suit was instituted, K did not hold a sale-certificate. After it was instituted, he applied for and obtained a sale-certificate under s. 317 of Act X. of 1877. Held that, when the suit was instituted, it was maintainable, as, the defendant not being a certified purchaser under s. 260 of Act VIII. of 1859, that section did not apply; and that, when the defendant obtained a certificate under s. 317 of Act X. of 1877, he became a certified purchaser, and the suit would only be maintainable if the plaintiff made out a case falling within the provisions of the last part of s. 317.—Aldwell v. Ilahi Bakhsh, I. L. R., 5 All. 478. [Feb. 5, 1883.]

IN a suit by A against B and C to recover land, A alleged that B bought the land at a Court-sale on his behalf. B did not contest the suit. C, who did not claim under B, pleaded that A could not recover by reason of the provisions of s. 317 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Held that s. 317 only enabled the certified purchaser and those claiming under him to avoid arrangements made with him in the nature of a trust, and was no bar to the suit.—Ramakrishnappa v. Adinaráyana, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 511. [July 6, 1885.]

CERTAIN property belonging to a judgment-debtor was brought to sale and purchased by a person in the benámi name of her daughter, then an infant; and the sale-certificate was made out in the name of the latter. Subsequently the mother mortgaged the property, and the mortgagee brought a suit, obtained a decree, and had the property sold, and purchased it himself. Upon his being resisted by the daughter in attempts to get his name registered as proprietor, he instituted a suit against both mother and daughter to establish his rights to the property. The daughter thereupon objected that the suit would not lie by reason of the provisions of s. 317 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held that the provisions of that section, which were intended to prevent fraud, were inapplicable to the facts of the case, and that the suit was maintainable.—Kanizak Sukina v. Monohur Das, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 204. [Aug. 18, 1885.]

318. When the property sold is in the occupancy of the judgment-debtor

Delivery of immoveable property in occupancy of judgment-debtor or of some person on his behalf, or of some person claiming under a title created by the judgment-debtor subsequently to the attachment of such property, and a certificate in respect thereof has been granted under section 316, the Court shall, on application by the purchaser, order delivery to be made by putting the purchaser or any person whom he may appoint to receive delivery on his behalf in possession of the property, and, if need be, by removing any person who refuses to vacate the same.

of sale was not issued till the 23rd January 1878. A applied for possession on the 2nd April 1879. Held that the right to apply for possession contemplated in Act VIII. of 1859, ss. 263 and 264 (corresponding with Act X. of 1877, ss. 318 and 319), accrued on the date the certificate of sale was issued, and not on that on which the sale was confirmed, and that, therefore, the period of limitation under Act XV. of 1877, sch. 2, art. 178, against the purchaser, counted from the former date.—Basápa v. Márya, I. L. R., 3 Bom. 433. [July 14, 1879.]

CL. 178, sch. 2 of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877), is not applicable to applications for certificates of sale. Re Khaja Patthanjee (I. L. R., 5 Bom. 202) dissented from. The provisions of the Indian Limitation Act (XV. of 1877) do not apply to applications to a Court to do what it has no discretion to refuse, nor to applications for the exercise of functions of a ministerial character. Kylasa Goundan v. Ramasami Ayyan (I. L. R., 4 Mad. 172) followed.—Vithal Janardan v. Vithojiráv, I. L. R., 6 Bom. 586. [July 12, 1882.]

S ATTACHED certain land and a house in execution of a decree against R. M put in a claim, under s. 278 of the Code of Civil Procedure, alleging that he was in possession as purchaser from R. The claim was rejected. No suit was brought by M to contest this order. S purchased the said land and house in execution, and obtained a sale-certificate. In 1884 S sued M to recover possession of the land and house, alleging that in execution-proceedings in 1882 he had been put into possession of the land, but not of the house, which was found locked up by the Court amin, and that M prevented him from enjoying both the land and house. M pleaded that S had never been put into possession, and again set up his title as purchaser from R. and possession under such title. The Munsif found that S had been put into formal or constructive possession of the land, but not of the house, and decreed the claim. On appeal the District Judge held that S was bound to proceed according to the provisions of s. 335 of the Code of Civil Procedure to recover possession, and could not bring a separate suit. Held that, whether there had been legal delivery or not, the suit was not barred.—Sevu v. Muttasámi, I. L. R., 10 Mad. 53. [Sep. 11, 1886.]

319. When the property sold is in the occupancy of a tenant or other

Delivery of immoveable property in occupancy of person entitled to occupy the same, and a certificate in respect thereof has been granted under section 316, the Court shall order delivery thereof to be made by affixing a copy of the certificate of sale in some conspicuous place on the property, and proclaiming to the occupant, by beat of drum, or in such other mode as may be customary at some convenient place, that the interest of the judgment-debtor has been transferred to the purchaser.

A OBTAINED a money-decree against B on the 25th January 1872, in execution of which property belonging to B was sold on the 9th September 1874, A himself becoming the purchaser. The sale was confirmed on the 9th October 1874, but the certificate of sale was not issued till the 23rd January 1878. A applied for possession on the 2nd April 1879. Held that the right to apply for possession contemplated in Act VIII. of 1859, ss. 263 and 264 (corresponding with Act X. of 1877, ss. 318 and 319), accrued on the date the certificate of sale was issued, and not on that on which the sale was confirmed, and that, therefore, the period of limitation under Act XV. of 1877, sch. 2, art. 178, against the purchaser, counted from the former date.—Basápa v. Márya, I. L. R., 3 Bom. 433. [July 14, 1879.]

CL. 178, sch. 2 of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877), is not applicable to applications for certificates of sale. Re Khaja Patthanjee (I. L. R., 5 Bom. 202) dissented from. The provisions of the Indian Limitation Act (XV. of 1877) do not apply to applications to a Court to do what it has no discretion to refuse, nor to applications for the exercise of functions of a ministerial character. Kylasa Goundan v. Ramasami Ayyan (I. L. R., 4 Mad. 172) followed.—Vithal Janardan v. Vithojiráv, I. L. R., 6 Bom. 586. [July 12, 1882.]

320. The Local Government may, with the sanction of the Governor-

General in Council, declare, by notification in the official Gazette, that in any local area the execution of decrees in cases in which a Court has ordered any immoveable property to be sold, or the execution of any particular kind of such decrees, or the execution of decrees ordering the sale of any particular kind of, or interest in, immoveable property, shall be transferred to the Collector, and rescind or modify any such declaration.

Power to prescribe rules for transferring to Collector execution of certain decrees.

The Local Government may also, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, from time to time prescribe rules for the transmission of the decree from the Court to the Collector, and for regulating the procedure of the Collector and his subordinates in executing the same, and for re-transmitting the decree from the Collector to the Court.

HELD that a decree for the sale of ancestral land, or of an interest in such land, in enforcement of an hypothecation or such land, is a "decree for money" within the meaning of the rules prescribed by the Local Government under s. 320 of Act X. of 1877.—Birch v. Rati Ram, I. L. R., 4 All. 115. [Aug. 26, 1881.]

HELD that effect cannot be given to the rules prescribed by the Local Government under s. 320 of Act X. of 1877, unless an order for sale has been made on or after the 1st October 1880.—Hafiz-un-nissa v. Mahadeo Prasad, I. L. R., 4 All. 116. [Aug. 29, 1881.]

A SUBORDINATE Judge made an order for the sale, in execution of a decree, of certain immoveable property, which was "ancestral," within the meaning of the notification by the Local Government, No. 671, dated the 30th August 1880, under which execution of such decree should have been transferred to the Collector; and such property was sold accordingly. Held that the order for the sale of such property having been made without jurisdiction, the sale was void, and should be set aside.—Sukhdeo Rai v. Sheo Ghulam, I. L. R., 4 All. 382. [April 5, 1882.]

ORDERS passed by a Collector in the exercise of the powers conferred on him under s. 320 and the following sections of the Civil Procedure Code, relating to the execution of a decree of a Civil Court, after transfer of the decree to him under s. 320, are not appealable to the High Court. Held, therefore, that the order of a Collector, disallowing an application by the judgment-debtor that the amount of the decree might be satisfied by the temporary transfer of his immoveable property, and ordering the sale of such property, and the order of a Collector confirming a sale, were not appealable to the High Court.—Madho Prasad v. Hansa Kuar, I. L. R., 5 All. 314. [Feb. 24, 1883.]

A COLLECTOR, to whom a decree for sale of mortgaged property has been transferred for execution under s. 320 of the Civil Procedure Code, is limited to one of the three courses specified in s. 321, and may not depart from them; much less may he do what the Court itself could not do in such a case—allow payment of the debt to be made by instalments. A Collector, to whom a decree has been so transferred for execution, acts ministerially, and, when he delegates his functions to an assistant or a mānatdār, incurs a risk of having to answer in damages to the person who is, by any error or mistake, deprived of the fruits of his judgment; and this risk attaches independently of malice or negligence. The Court that has made a decree or judicial order, which has been transmitted to the Collector for execution, is not deprived of the judicial powers with respect to it which may still, at any particular time, be competent to such Court, and which it would have had, had the order been placed in the hands of its own ordinary officer, the wāzir. In the exercise of such powers the Court has authority to recall its own record transmitted to the Collector.—Mahādājī Karandikar v. Hari D. Chikne, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 332. [June 28, 1883.]

A DECREE passed by a Subordinate Judge upon a bond, in which certain immoveable property was mortgaged, was, in accordance with the rules made by the Local Government under s. 320 of the Civil Procedure Code, transferred to the Collector for execution. A sale in execution took place, and the Collector gave the purchaser a certificate of the sale. Upon this certificate the purchaser applied to the Subordinate Judge to give him possession of a larger amount of property than that specified in the certificate, and, upon the refusal of the Court to do so, applied to the Collector to amend the certificate. The amendment having been made as desired, the purchaser again applied to the Subordinate Judge for possession of the amount claimed by him, and the Subordinate Judge again rejected the application, holding that only the lesser amount had been sold in execution of the decree. Held that, with reference to the second paragraph of rule 19 of the Rules framed by the Local Government under s. 320 of the Civil Procedure Code, regarding the transmission, execution, and retransmission of decrees, and published in the N. W. P. and Oudh Gazette of the 4th September 1880, the matter of delivery to the purchaser was within the jurisdiction of the Subordinate Judge, notwithstanding the terms of s. 320, and notwithstanding the ruling of the Full Bench in Madho Prasad v. Hansa

Kaur (I. L. R., 5 All. 314). Held also that, inasmuch as the Subordinate Judge had jurisdiction to decide the question, and inasmuch as, even if his decision were wrong, the purchaser had a remedy by bringing a regular suit, the matter did not fall with s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code, so as to call for the interference of the High Court in revision. Shivanathaji v. Joma Kushinath (I. L. R., 7 Bom. 341) and Amir Hasan Khan v. Shao Baksh Singh (I. L. R., 12 Cal. 8) referred to.—Sundar Das v. Mansa Ram, I. L. R., 7 All. 407. [Dec. 15, 1884.] • •

HELD that the ownership of alluvial land which had accreted to a riparian village must rest upon the same title as that upon which the original village was held, and that as the riparian village was ancestral, the accreted property must be ancestral also.—Ram Prasad Rai v. Radha Prasad Singh, I. L. R., 7 All. 402. [Feb. 27, 1885.]

Powers of Collector when execution of decree is so transferred.

321. When the execution of a decree has been so transferred, the Collector may—

- (a) proceed as the Court would proceed under section 305 ; or
- (b) raise the amount of the decree by letting it, in perpetuity, or for a term, on payment of a premium, or by mortgaging, the whole or any part of the property ordered to be sold ; or
- (c) sell the property ordered to be sold, or so much thereof as may be necessary.

322. When the execution of a decree, not being a decree ordering the sale of immoveable property in pursuance of a contract specifically affecting the same, but being a decree for money in satisfaction of which the Court has ordered the sale of immoveable property, has been so transferred, the Collector, if, after such inquiry as he thinks necessary, he has reason to believe that all the liabilities of the judgment-debtor can be discharged without a sale of the whole of his available immoveable property, may proceed as hereinafter provided.

Procedure of Collector when execution of decree is so transferred.

322A. In the case mentioned in section 322, the Collector shall publish a notice calling upon—

(a) every person holding a decree for money against the judgment-debtor capable of execution by sale of his immoveable property, and which such decree-holder desires to have so executed, and every holder of a decree for money in execution of which proceedings for the sale of such property are pending, to produce before the Collector a copy of the decree, and a certificate from the Court which passed or is executing the same, declaring the amount recoverable thereunder :

(b) every person having any claim on the said property, to submit to the Collector a statement of such claim, and to produce the documents (if any) by which it is evidenced.

• Such notice shall be in the language of the district, and shall allow a period of sixty days from the date of its publication for compliance therewith. It shall be published by being posted in the Court-house of the Court which made the original order under section 304, and at such other places (if any) as the Collector thinks fit. Where the address of any such decree-holder or claimant is known, a copy of the notice shall be sent to him by post or otherwise.

322B. Upon the expiration of the said period, the Collector shall appoint a day for hearing any representations which the judgment-debtor and the decree-holders or claimants (if any) may desire to make, and for holding such inquiry as he may deem necessary for informing himself as to the nature and extent of such decrees and claims and of the judgment debtor's immoveable property, and may, from time to time, adjourn such hearing and inquiry.

If there be no dispute as to the fact or extent of the liability of the judgment-debtor to any of the decrees or claims of which the Collector is informed, or as to the relative priorities of such decrees or claims, or as to the liability of any such property for the satisfaction of such decrees or claims, the Collector shall draw up a statement, specifying the amount to be recovered for the discharge of such decrees, the order in which such decrees and claims are to be satisfied, and the immoveable property available for that purpose.

If any such dispute arises, the Collector shall refer the same, with a statement thereof and his own opinion thereon, to the Court which made the original order under section 304, and shall, pending the reference, stay proceedings relating to the subject thereof. The Court shall dispose of the dispute if the matter thereof be within its jurisdiction, or transmit the case to a competent Court for disposal, and the final decision shall be communicated to the Collector. The Collector shall then draw up a statement as above provided in accordance with such decision.

AN appeal from the decision of a dispute under s. 322B of the Civil Procedure Code falls directly within the exception of art. 11, sch. 2 of the Court Fees Act (VII. of 1870), and the memorandum of appeal should therefore be presented as for a decree in a suit upon an ad valorem stamp. Srinivasa Ayyangar v. Pira Tambi Nayahar (I. L. R., 4 Mad. 420) dissented from.—Ahmad Khan v. Madho Das, I. L. R., 7 All. 565. [Mar. 16, 1885.]

322C. The Collector may, instead of himself issuing the notices and holding the inquiry required by sections 322A and 322B, draw up a statement specifying the circumstances of the judgment-debtor and of his immoveable property, so far as they are known to the Collector or appear in the records of his office, and forward such statement to the District Court; and such Court shall thereupon issue the notices, hold the inquiry, and draw up the statement required by sections 322A and 322B, and transmit such statement to the Collector.

322D. The decision by the Court of any dispute arising under section 322B or section 322C shall, as between the parties thereto, have the force of, and be appealable as, a decree.

323. Whenever the amount to be recovered and the property available have been determined as provided in section 322B or 322C, the Collector may—

(1) if it appears that the amount cannot be recovered without the sale of the whole of the property available, proceed to sell such property; or if it appears that the amount with interest (if any) in accordance with the decree and, when not decreed, with interest (if any) at such rate as he thinks reasonable, may be recovered without such sale,

(2) raise such amount and interest (notwithstanding any order under section 304)

(a) by letting in perpetuity or for a term, on payment of a premium, the whole or any part of the said property; or

(b) by mortgaging the whole or any part of such property; or

(c) by selling part of such property; or

(d) by letting on farm, or managing by himself or another, the whole or any part of such property for any term not exceeding twenty years from the date of the order of sale; or

(e) partly by one of such modes, and partly by another or others of such modes.

(3) For the purpose of managing, under this section, the whole or any part of such property, the Collector may exercise all the powers of its owner.

(4) For the purpose of improving the saleable value of the property available or any part thereof, or rendering it more suitable for letting or managing or for preserving the property from sale in satisfaction of an incumbrance, the Collector may discharge the claim of any incumbrancer which has become payable, or compound the claim of any incumbrancer whether it has become payable or not, and for the purpose of providing funds to effect such discharge or composition, may mortgage, let, or sell any portion of the property which he deems sufficient. If any dispute arises as to the amount due on any incumbrance with which the Collector proposes to deal under this paragraph, he may institute a suit in the proper Court, either in his own name or the name of the judgment-debtor, to have an account taken, or he may agree to refer such dispute to the decision of two arbitrators, one to be chosen by each party, or of an umpire to be named by such arbitrators.

In proceeding under paragraphs (2), (3), and (4) of this section, the Collector shall be subject to such rules, consistent with this Act, as may, from time to time, be made in this behalf by the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority.

A SMALL Cause Court may issue a warrant for the arrest of a person residing in another district, but not if he resides within the same district in which the Court is situate, but outside its local jurisdiction.—Chunilál Subhárám v. Purbhudás Kusandás, I. L. R., 2 Bom. 560. [Mar. 26, 1878.]

324. If, on the expiration of the letting or management under section

Recovery of balance (if any) after letting or management.

323, the amount to be recovered has not been realized, the Collector shall notify the fact in writing to the judgment-debtor or his representative in interest, stating at the same time that, if the balance necessary to make up the said amount is not paid to the Collector within six weeks of the date of such notice, he will proceed to sell the whole or a sufficient part of the said property; and if, on the expiration of the said six weeks, the said balance is not so paid, the Collector shall sell such property or part accordingly.

324A. The Collector shall, from time to time, render to the Court which made the original order under section 304 an account of all moneys which come to his hands, and of all charges incurred by him in the exercise and performance of the powers and duties conferred and imposed on him under the provisions of this chapter, and shall hold the balance at the disposal of the Court.

Such charges shall include all debts and liabilities from time to time due to the Government in respect of the property or any part thereof, the rent (if any) from time to time due to a superior holder in respect of such property or part, and (if the Collector so directs) the expenses of witnesses summoned by him.

Application of balance.

Such balance shall be applied by the Court as follows :—

firstly, in providing for the maintenance of such members of the judgment-debtor's family (if any) as are entitled to be maintained out of the income of the property, to such amount in the case of each member as the Court thinks fit; and secondly, where the Collector has proceeded under section 321, in satisfaction of the original decree in execution of which the Court ordered the sale of immovable property, or otherwise as the Court may under section 295 direct; or thirdly, where the Collector has proceeded under section 322, in keeping down the interest on incumbrances on the property, and (when the judgment-debtor has no other sufficient means of subsistence) in providing for his subsistence to such amount as the Court thinks fit and in discharging rateably the claims of the original decree-holder and any other decree-holders who have complied with the said notice, and whose claims were included in the amount ordered to be recovered:

and no other holder of a decree for money shall be entitled to be paid out of such property or balance until the decree-holders who have obtained such order have been satisfied; and the residue (if any) shall be paid to the judgment-debtor or such other person (if any) as the Court directs.

325. When the Collector sells any property under this chapter, he shall

Sales how to be conducted. put it up to public auction, in one or more lots as he thinks fit, and may—

(a) fix a reasonable reserved price for each lot;

(b) adjourn the sale for a reasonable time, whenever he deems the adjournment necessary for the purpose of obtaining a fair price for the property, recording his reasons for such adjournment;

(c) buy in the property offered for sale, and re-sell the same by public auction or private contract, as he thinks fit.

325A. So long as the Collector can exercise or perform in respect of the Restrictions as to alienation by judgment-debtor or his representative, and prosecution of remedies by decree-holders.

judgment-debtor's immovable property, or any part thereof, any of the powers or duties conferred or imposed on him by sections 322 to 325 (both inclusive), the judgment-debtor or his representative in interest shall be incompetent to mortgage, charge, lease, or alienate such property or part except with the written permission of the Collector, nor shall any Civil Court issue any process against such property or part in execution of a decree for money.

During the same period no Civil Court shall issue any process of execution either against the judgment-debtor or his property in respect of any decree for the satisfaction whereof provision has been made by the Collector under section 323.

The same period shall be excluded in calculating the period of limitation applicable to the execution of any decree affected by the provisions of this section in respect of any remedy of which the decree-holder has thereby been temporarily deprived.

325B. When the property of which the sale has been ordered is situate in more districts than one, the powers and duties conferred and imposed on the Collector by sections 321 to 325 (both inclusive) shall, from time to time, be exercised and performed by such one of the Collectors of the said districts as the Local Government may, by general rule or special order, direct.

325C. In exercising the powers conferred on him by sections 322 to Powers of Collector to compel attendance of parties and witnesses and production of documents.

325 (both inclusive), the Collector shall have the powers of a Civil Court to compel the attendance of parties and witnesses and the production of documents.

326. When, in any local area in which no declaration under section

When Court may authorize Collector to stay public sale of land.

320 is in force, the property attached consists of land or of a share in land, and the Collector represents to the Court that the public sale of the land or share is objectionable, and that satisfaction of the decree may be made within a reasonable period by a temporary alienation or management of the land or share, the Court may authorize the Collector to provide for such satisfaction in the manner recommended by him, instead of proceeding to a sale of the land or share. In such case the provisions of sections 320, paragraph two, to 325C (both inclusive), shall apply, as far as they are applicable.

Act X. of 1877, s. 326, does not apply to a decree which directs the sale of land or of a share in land in pursuance of a contract specifically affecting the same. The Court, therefore, cannot authorize the Collector to stay the sale in such a case under s. 326.—Bhagwan Prasad v. Sheo Sahai, I. L. R., 2 All. 856. [April 28, 1880.]

WHERE the Collector has applied to the Court under s. 326 of the Civil Procedure Code, proposing a scheme for the payment of decretal money in order to avoid a sale of attached property, it is in the discretion of the Court to authorize the Collector or not, as it thinks fit, to provide for the satisfaction of the decree in the manner proposed; and the Court is bound to hear any objections which may be made by the decree-holder to the feasibility of the proposed scheme, and any evidence that may be offered in support of those objections; and if, after hearing the decree-holder's objections, and the evidence which may be offered in support of them, the Court is not fully satisfied that the proposal is feasible, or that it can, in all reasonable probability, be carried out within the specified period, the Court ought, in the exercise of its discretion, to refuse its sanction.—Huro Prosad Roy v. Kali Prosad Roy, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 290. [July 13, 1882.]

327. The Local Government may, from time to time, with the sanction of the Governor-General in Council, make special rules for any local area, imposing conditions in respect of sale of any class of interests in land in execution of decrees for money, where such interests are so uncertain or undetermined as in the opinion of the Local Government to make it impossible to fix their value;

Local rules as to sales of land in execution of decrees for money.

and if, when this Code comes into operation in any local area, any special rules as to sale of land in execution of decrees are in force therein, the Local Government may continue such rules in force, or may, from time to time, with the sanction of the Governor-General in Council, modify the same.

All rules so made or continued, and all such modifications of the same, shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

officer charged with the execution of the warrant is resisted or obstructed by any person, the decree-holder may complain to the Court at any time within one month from the time of such resistance or obstruction.

The Court shall fix a day for investigating the complaint, and shall summon the party against whom the complaint is made to answer the same.

WHERE a warrant for possession of land in execution of a decree was not executed owing to the resistance of the judgment-debtors in September 1880, and no complaint was made under s. 328 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1877, but a fresh warrant for possession was applied for by and granted to the decree-holders, and resistance was again made in January 1881, held that a complaint by the decree-holders as to the second obstruction made within thirty days of the second obstruction was not barred by reason of art. 167 of sch. 2 of the Limitation Act.—Rámasekara Pillai v. Dharmaraya Goundan, I. L. R., 5 Mad. 113. [Oct. 4, 1881.]

S. 328 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) does not make it obligatory on a decree-holder, who is obstructed in execution of the decree, to pursue his remedies under that section. Accordingly, the failure on the part of the plaintiff to avail himself of the remedy under that section did not prevent him from proceeding against the defendant by a regular suit.—Balvant Saptaram v. Babaji, 1 L. R., 8 Bom. 602. [July 12, 1884.]

329. If the Court is satisfied that the obstruction or resistance was occasioned by the judgment-debtor, or by some person at his instigation, the Court shall inquire into the matter of the complaint, and pass such order as it thinks fit.

Procedure in case of obstruction by judgment-debtor or at his instigation. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts (so far as relates to moveable property).

THE power given by s. 329 of the Civil Procedure Code to make such order as the Court shall see fit must be construed with regard to the circumstances in respect of which the power is to be exercised. An order under s. 329 should be the result of the fact that the defendant in the suit, who is precluded by the decree from disputing plaintiff's right, unjustly instigates a third party, who has no real interest in the property, to prevent the plaintiff from getting the benefit of his execution. A Court has no power under this section to determine, as between a judgment-creditor and a third party obstructing the execution of the decree, important questions on the merits which are wholly unconnected with, and cannot be affected by, the fact that the obstruction is made at the instigation of the defendant.—Govipda Nair v. Kesava, 1 L. R., 3 Mad. 81. [Oct. 27, 1880.]

330. If the Court is satisfied that the resistance or obstruction was without any just cause, and that the complainant is still resisted or obstructed in obtaining possession of the property by the judgment-debtor or some other person at his instigation, the Court may, at the instance of the decree-holder, and without prejudice to any penalty to which such judgment-debtor or other person may be liable under the Indian Penal Code or any other law for such resistance or obstruction, commit the judgment-debtor or such other person to jail for a term which may extend to thirty days, and direct that the decree-holder be put into the possession of the property.

Procedure when obstruction continues. Ditto.

331. If the resistance or obstruction has been occasioned by any person other than the judgment-debtor claiming in good faith to be in possession of the property on his own account or on account of some person other than the judgment-debtor, the claim shall be numbered and registered as a suit between the decree-holder as plaintiff and the claimant as defendant ;

Procedure in case of obstruction by claimant in good faith, other than judgment-debtor. Ditto.

and the Court shall, without prejudice to any proceedings to which the claimant may be liable under the Indian Penal Code or any other law for the punishment of such resistance or obstruction, proceed to investigate the claim in the same manner, and with the like power as if a suit for the property had been instituted by the decree-holder against the claimant under the provisions of Chapter V., and shall pass such order as it thinks fit for executing or staying execution of the decree.

Every such order shall have the same force as a decree, and shall be subject to the same conditions as to appeal or otherwise.

THE plaintiff obtained a decree against T, A, and J in a suit, the subject-matter of which exceeded Rs. 5,000, and, in part-execution thereof, attached property worth less than that amount. D having resisted the execution of the decree, the plaintiff's claim was numbered and registered as a suit under s. 229 of Act VIII. of 1859. Upon investigation the First-class Subordinate Judge made an order staying execution of the decree. The plaintiff appealed to the District Judge, who held that no appeal lay to him, as the subject-matter of the original suit, out of which the execution-suit arose, exceeded Rs. 5,000. The plaintiff appealed against this decision to the High Court. Held that the investigation of a claim under s. 229 of Act VIII. of 1859 is not to be regarded as a fresh suit, but is merely a continuation of the original suit, and that there was, therefore, no appeal against the order in question to the District Judge.—Rāvloji Tamāji v. Dhalāpā Rāghu, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 123. [Oct. 6, 1879.]

THE power given by s. 329 of the Civil Procedure Code to make such order as the Court shall see fit must be construed with regard to the circumstances in respect of which the power is to be exercised. An order under s. 329 should be the result of the fact that the defendant in the suit, who is precluded by the decree from disputing plaintiff's right, unjustly instigates a third party, who has no real interest in the property, to prevent the plaintiff from getting the benefit of his execution. A Court has no power under this section to determine, as between a judgment-creditor and a third party obstructing the execution of the decree, important questions on the merits which are wholly unconnected with, and cannot be affected by, the fact that the obstruction is made at the instigation of the defendant.—Govinda Nair v. Kēsava, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 81. [Oct. 27, 1880.]

AN investigation under s. 331 of the Civil Procedure Code (prior to the Amendment Act of 1879) is limited to the fact of possession, and is no bar to a subsequent suit brought to try the title to the land in dispute.—Chinnasāmi Pillai v. Krishna Pillai, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 104. [Jan. 25, 1881.]

APPEALS from orders under s. 331 of Act X. of 1877, as amended by s. 52 of Act XII. of 1879, are chargeable with the same court-fee as is required in the case of appeals from decrees.—Mahbubān and others v. Umrao Begum and others; Shayama Suuduri Dasi v. Robert Watson and Co., I. L. R., 8 Cal. 720. [April 7, 1882.]

IN a suit under s. 229 of Act VIII. of 1859 (s. 331 of Acts X. of 1877 and XIV. of 1882), the onus is on the plaintiff to establish a prima facie case of possession, and it is then incumbent on the claimant to answer that case, and show, if possible, a better title.—Rakhāl Churn Mundul v. Watson & Co., I. L. R., 10 Cal. 50. [July 3, 1883.]

A COURT executing a decree obtains, by virtue of s. 331 of the Code of Civil Procedure, a special jurisdiction which enables it to try a claim, of which the value of the subject-matter falls below the pecuniary limit of its ordinary jurisdiction. By virtue of s. 647 of the Code of Civil Procedure, a superior Court may, for sufficient cause, transfer a claim, registered under s. 331, to a Subordinate Court for trial.—Sithalakshmi v. Vythilinga, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 549. [Nov. 25 1884.]

IN a suit for partition a compromise was entered into by all the parties except S, and a decree obtained on the terms thereof. In execution S was dispossessed, and presented a petition to the Court, objecting that the decree was not binding on her. The petition was rejected. Held that the objection raised by S ought to have been investigated under s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and that S was entitled to appeal against the order rejecting the petition.—Sankaravammāl v. Kumarasāmya, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 473. [April 25 1885.]

332. If any person other than the judgment-debtor is dispossessed of any property in execution of a decree, and such person disputes the right of the decree holder to dispossess him of such property under the decree, on the ground that the property was bona fide in his possession on his own account or on account of some person other than the judgment-debtor, and that it was not comprised in the decree, or that, if it was comprised in the decree, he was not a party to the suit in which the decree was passed, he may apply to the Court.

If, after examining the applicant, it appears to the Court that there is probable cause for making the application, the Court shall proceed to investigate the matter in dispute; and if it finds that the ground mentioned in the first paragraph of this section exists, it shall make an order that the applicant recover possession of the property, and if it does not find as aforesaid, it shall dismiss the application.

In hearing applications under this section, the Court shall confine itself to the grounds of dispute above specified.

The party against whom an order is passed under this section may institute a suit to establish the right which he claims to the present possession of the property ; but, subject to the result of such suit (if any), the order shall be final.

A MORTGAGEE who is in possession of the mortgaged property under the mortgage is in possession "on his own account" within the meaning of Act VIII. of 1859, s. 230, and Act X. of 1877, s. 332. A person claiming under Act X. of 1877, s. 332, need not prove his title, but only the fact of possession.—Shafi-ud-din v. Lochan Singh, I. L. R., 2 All. 94. [Dec. 16, 1878.]

WHERE, in pursuance of an order made in the execution of a decree while Act VIII. of 1859 was in force, certain persons were dispossessed of certain property and that Act was repealed and Act X. of 1877 came into force, and such persons applied under Act X. of 1877, s. 332, to be restored to the possession of such property on certain of the grounds specified in that section, held that such persons were entitled to the benefit of that section.—Shafi-ud-din v. Lochan Singh, I. L. R., 2 All. 94. [Dec. 16, 1878.]

WHEN a person making a claim to certain property under s. 230 of Act VIII. of 1859 has been allowed to bring a suit under that section to try his right to the property, it is sufficient, in the first instance, for him to prove his possession, without proof of his title ; but if he takes this course, it is open to the defendant to show that although possession may be in the plaintiff, yet he has no good title to the property, and that he (the defendant) has a better title.—Dilbassee Koonwaree Mothee v. Gunga Pershad, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 278. [Mar. 31, 1879.]

AN investigation under s. 331 of the Civil Procedure Code (prior to the Amendment Act of 1879) is limited to the fact of possession, and is no bar to a subsequent suit brought to try the title to the land in dispute.—Chinnasami Pillai v. Krishna Pillai, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 104. [Jan. 25, 1881.]

WHERE an application was made under s. 332 of the Code of Civil Procedure for possession of property and rejected, and the applicant brought a suit to recover the property more than one year subsequent to the order rejecting the application, held that the suit was not barred either by art. 11 or art. 13 of sch. 2 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877.—Ayyasami v. Samiya, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 82. [July 30, 1884.]

IN a suit for partition a compromise was entered into by all the parties except S, and a decree obtained on the terms thereof. In execution S was dispossessed, and presented a petition to the Court, objecting that the decree was not binding on her. The petition was rejected. Held that the objection raised by S ought to have been investigated under s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and that S was entitled to appeal against the order rejecting the petition.—Sankaravammal v. Kumarsami, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 473. [April 25, 1885.]

Transfer of property by judgment-debtor after institution of suit.

333. Nothing in section 331 or 332 applies to a person to whom the judgment-debtor has transferred the property after the institution of the suit in which the decree is made.

Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts (so far as relates to moveable property).

334. If the purchaser of any immoveable property sold in execution of a decree be resisted or obstructed by the judgment-debtor or any one on his behalf in obtaining possession of the property, the provisions of this chapter relating to resistance or obstruction to a decree-holder in obtaining possession of the property adjudged to him shall be applicable.

Resisting or obstructing purchaser in obtaining possession of immoveable property.

A PURCHASER of immoveable property at a Court-sale, having been obstructed by the defendant, made an application to the Court, under s. 268 of Act VIII. of 1859, for the removal of the obstruction, but subsequently withdrew his application. The Court thereupon made an endorsement upon the application to the effect that as the applicant did not wish to proceed further, no investigation was made. Held that no such order had been made as was contemplated by s. 269 of Act VIII. of 1859, that section contemplating, at least, an order against one party or the other ; and that, therefore, the provisions contained in the same section, as to the time within which a suit must be brought, did not apply to the case of the plaintiff.—Bhikha v. Sakarlal, I. L. R., 5 Bom. 440. [Mar. 22, 1881.]

335. If the purchaser of any such property is resisted or obstructed by

Obstruction by claimant any person other than the judgment-debtor claiming other than judgment-debtor. in good faith a right to the present possession thereof, or if, in delivering possession thereof, any such person is dispossessed, the Court, on the complaint of the purchaser or the person so dispossessed, shall inquire into the matter of the resistance, obstruction, or dispossession, as the case may be, and pass such order thereon as it thinks fit.

The party against whom such order is passed may institute a suit to establish the right which he claims to the present possession of the property; but, subject to the result of such suit (if any), the order shall be final.

WHEN the defendant is in possession by virtue of an order under s. 269 of Act VIII. of 1859, the plaintiff can only succeed on the strength of his own title. K and R, two out of five undivided Hindu brothers, sued V (a purchaser at an execution-sale of the interest of one of the brothers other than K and R) for the recovery of certain land of which V had obtained possession under s. 269 of Act VIII. of 1859. The lower Courts awarded two-fifths of the land to K and R as being the amount of their share in the land. Held by the High Court that the decree could not be maintained, as K and R, being two of several co-parceners in undivided property, could not say that they were entitled to a specific share in any portion of that property. They might have sued for general partition, or for a decree declaring them entitled to joint possession with V. Babaji v. Vasudeo (I. L. R., 1 Bom. 95) followed. A purchaser at a Court's sale ought not to be put in exclusive possession of the whole undivided land by virtue of a decree against one co-parcener only.—Kallapa bin Girmallapa v. Venkatesh Vinayak, I. L. R., 2 Bom. 676. [April 24, 1878.]

AN order under s. 335 of the Civil Procedure Code is subject to revision by the High Court under s. 622 of that Code. Shiva Nathaji v. Joma Kashinath (I. L. R., 7 Bom. 340) followed.—Sheoraj Singh v. Banwari Das, I. L. R., 6 All. 172. [Jan. 22, 1884.]

IN 1870 B mortgaged to N with possession a certain piece of land. On 17th June 1871, M and T obtained a money-decree against B. On 9th March 1872, the defendants bought from B his equity of redemption. In July 1872, M and T attached the land in execution of the decree. The defendants objected to the attachment under s. 246 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act VIII. of 1859), but on investigation of their claim an order was made disallowing their claim, on the 23rd December 1872. In June 1873, the defendants paid off the mortgage-debt, and were put into possession by the mortgagee. In October 1873, M and T put up the land for sale in execution of their decree, and the plaintiff became the purchaser. On seeking to obtain possession, the plaintiff was resisted by the defendants, whose claim was allowed by the Subordinate Judge after inquiry. The plaintiff, therefore, brought this suit under s. 335 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882). The lower Courts rejected his claim. On appeal to the High Court, held that where, under s. 246 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act VIII. of 1859), or the corresponding sections (278 to 283) of the Civil Procedure Codes of 1877 and 1882, an order has been passed against any person making a claim to property under attachment, such person may bring a suit to establish his title to the property within one year from the date of such order, but, in default of his bringing such suit within the prescribed time, he is precluded from asserting his title against the auction-purchaser, whether as plaintiff or defendant. In the present case an order had been passed against the defendants under s. 246 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1859, on the 23rd December 1872; and as they had brought no suit within a year from that date, they could not now contest the plaintiff's title to the property. The defendants, however, having, since the date of the said order, paid off the mortgage, held that it would be contrary to justice, equity, and good conscience for the Court to assist the plaintiff in obtaining possession, unless he paid the defendants the amount paid by them to the mortgagee to free the property from the incumbrance.—Nilo Pandurang v. Rama Patloji, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 35. [July 31 1884.]

AN order having been passed on the 10th August 1877 under s. 269 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1859, cancelling delivery of possession of land brought to sale, and purchased by a decree-holder, no suit was brought by the decree-holder to establish his rights to the land until 1883. Held that the repeal of s. 269 of the said Code on 1st October 1877 did not deprive the order of the 10th August 1877 of the effect it possessed when passed, and therefore that the suit was barred by limitation. Koylash Chunder Paul Chowdhry v. Preenath Roy Chowdhry (I. L. R., 4 Cal 610) and Gopal Chunder Mitter v. Mohosh Chunder Boral (I. L. R., 9 Cal. 230) distinguished.—Venkatachala v. Appathorai, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 134. [Nov. 11, 1884.]

§ ATTACHED certain land and a house in execution of a decree against R. M put in a claim under s. 278 of the Code of Civil Procedure, alleging that he was in possession as purchaser from R. The claim was rejected. No suit was brought by M to contest this order. S purchased the said land and house in execution, and obtained a sale-certificate. In 1884 S sued M to recover possession of the land and house, alleging that in execution-proceedings in 1882 he had been put into possession of the land, but not of the house, which was found locked up by the Court amin, and that M prevented him from enjoying both the land and house. M pleaded that S had never been put into possession, and again set up his title as purchaser from R and possession under such title. The Munsif found that S had been put into formal or constructive possession of the land, but not of the house, and decreed the claim. On appeal the District Judge held that S was not to proceed according to the provisions of s. 335 of the Code of Civil Procedure to recover possession, and could not bring a separate suit. Held that, whether there had been a legal delivery or not, the suit was not barred.—Sevu v. Muttusami, I. L. R., 10 Madas. [Ser. 11, 1886.]

I.—Of Arrest and Imprisonment.

336. A judgment-debtor may be arrested in execution of a decree at any hour and on any day, and shall, as soon as practicable, be brought before the Court, and his imprisonment may be in the civil jail of the district in which the Court ordering the imprisonment is situate, or, when such jail does not afford suitable accommodation, in any other place which the Local Government may appoint for the confinement of persons ordered by the Courts of such district to be imprisoned :

Provided as follows :—

(a) for the purpose of making an arrest under this section, no dwelling-house shall be entered after sunset or before sunrise, and no outer door of a dwelling house shall be broken open. But, when the officer authorized to make the arrest has duly gained access to any dwelling-house, he may unfasten and open the door of any room in which he has reason to believe the judgment-debtor is to be found : Provided that, if the room be in the actual occupancy of a woman who is not the judgment-debtor, and who, according to the customs of the country, does not appear in public, the officer shall give notice to her that she is at liberty to withdraw ; and, after allowing a reasonable time for her to withdraw, and giving her every reasonable facility for withdrawing, he may enter such room for the purpose of making the arrest :

(b) when the decree in execution of which a judgment-debtor is arrested is a decree for money, and the judgment-debtor pays the amount of the decree and the costs of the arrest to the officer arresting him, such officer shall at once release him.

Proviso.

The Local Government may, by notification published in the official Gazette, direct that, whenever a judgment-debtor is arrested in execution of a decree for money, and brought before the Court under this section, the Court shall inform him that he may apply under Chapter XX. to be declared an insolvent, and that he will be discharged if he has not committed any act of bad faith regarding the subject of his application, and if he places all his property in possession of a receiver appointed by the Court.

If, after such publication, the judgment-debtor express his intention so to apply, and if he furnish sufficient security that he will appear when called upon, and that he will, within one month, apply under section 344 to be declared an insolvent, the Court shall release him from arrest :

But if he fails so to apply, the Court may either direct the security to be realized, or commit him to jail in execution of the decree.

In the case of a surety such security may be realized in manner provided by section 253.

ACT X. of 1877, s. 336, cl. 5, applies to Small Cause Court debtors, and such persons can obtain the benefit of chap. 20 of that Act by applying to a Court which has jurisdiction under that chapter.—Syed Moidin v. Sundaramuthia, I. L. R., 2 Mad. 9. [Sep. 20, 1878.]

It is not necessary that a special order of Court should be made, empowering an officer authorized to arrest a parda-nashin lady to enter the zanáná of the house in which she resides. Under s. 336 of the Civil Procedure Code, if the officer is able to enter the house, he may break into any room in the house, including the zanáná, in order to effect the arrest.—Kadumbinée Dósee (S. M.) v. Koylashkaminee Dósee (S. M.), I. L. R., 7 Cal. 19. [Mar. 21, 1881.]

WARRANT of arrest directed, notwithstanding previous proceedings in attachment, the Court being satisfied that the judgment-debtor was determined to evade, if possible, the payment of his debt.—Chena Pemáji v. Ghelábhái Nárándás, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 301. [Jan. 29, 1883.]

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR, having been arrested in execution of a decree of the High Court in its original civil jurisdiction, and brought before the Court under the provisions of s. 336 of the Code of Civil Procedure, claimed to be discharged on the ground that he intended to apply to the Court to be declared an insolvent either under the provisions of chap. 20 of the Code or of 11 & 12 Vic., c. 21. Held that the judgment-debtor, on expressing his intention to file a petition and schedule under 11 & 12 Vic., c. 21, and complying with the conditions of s. 336 of the Code of Civil Procedure, was entitled to be discharged.—Ex parte Pinsent, I. A SHERIFF'S officer, of his own motion, delivered over to the officer in charge of the Alipore Jail, a judgment-debtor who had been duly committed to the Presidency Jail. Held that the imprisonment was unlawful; that the delivery over to the officer in charge of the Alipore Jail amounted to a release; and that the prisoner was entitled, therefore, to be discharged.—Shamsonessa Begum v. Anne Love, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 527. [May 7, 1885.]

SS. 336 and 349 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, are applicable to judgment-debtors under arrest, but not committed to jail. A judgment-debtor committed to jail can only be discharged under s. 341.—In re Quarrie, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 503. [July 10, 1885.]

MARRIED women, against whom personal decrees for debt have been made, are not exempt from arrest or imprisonment in execution of such decrees under the Code of Civil Procedure.—Lakshmana v. Kullamma, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 99. [Oct. 23, 1885.]

A SHERIFF'S officer, of his own motion, delivered over to the officer in charge of the Alipore Jail, a judgment-debtor who had been duly committed to the Presidency Jail. Held that the imprisonment was unlawful; that the delivery over to the officer in charge of the Alipore Jail amounted to a release; and that the prisoner was entitled therefore to be discharged.—*Shamsonessa Begum v. Ditto.

339. No judgment-debtor shall be arrested in execution of a decree, unless and until the decree-holder pays into Court such sum as, having regard to the scales so fixed, the Judge thinks sufficient for the subsistence of the judgment-debtor from his arrest until he can be brought before the Court.

When a judgment-debtor is committed to jail in execution of a decree, the Court shall fix for his subsistence such monthly allowance as he may be entitled to according to the said scales, or, where no such scales have been fixed, as it considers sufficient with reference to the class to which he belongs.

The monthly allowance fixed by the Court shall be applied by the party on whose application the decree has been executed by monthly payments in advance before the first day of each month.

The first payment shall be made to the proper officer of the Court for such portion of the current month as remains unexpired before the judgment-debtor is committed to jail, and the subsequent payments (if any) shall be made to the officer in charge of the jail.

(f) when the term of his imprisonment, as limited by section 342, is fulfilled:

Provided that, in the second, third, and fifth cases mentioned in this section, the judgment-debtor shall not be discharged without the order of the Court.

A judgment-debtor discharged under this section is not thereby discharged from his debt; but he cannot be re-arrested under the decree in execution of which he was imprisoned.

THE decree in an administration-suit directed A, a party to the suit, to pay over a sum of money, which she admitted was in her hands, to her own attorney in the suit, to be applied by him as directed by the decree. A refused to pay over the money, and she was imprisoned for disobedience to the Court's order. After she had been in prison for six months, she applied to the Judge of the Court below, under Act X. of 1877, s. 341, to be discharged. This order was refused. THE, on appeal, that the proceeding under which A had been imprisoned was not in execution of a decree, but that she was imprisoned under process of contempt, and that the provisions of ss. 341 and 342 did not apply to the case.—*Martin v. IN the execution of a decree payable by instalment the judgment-debtor cannot be arrested and imprisoned separately for default in the payment of each instalment.—Damodar Shaligram v. Malhari, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 106. [Sep. 7, 1882.]

THE discharge of a judgment-debtor before imprisonment on account of the non-payment of the subsistence-money for the debtor is no bar to the debtor being re-arrested.—Subba v. Venkata, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 21. [Oct. 16, 1884.]

WHERE the warrant of committal to jail has been made out, the discharge of the defendant whilst in confinement in the Court-house, for non-payment of the instalment of subsistence allowance, is a discharge from jail within the meaning of s. 341 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882).—*Timapa Shambhog v. HELD by a majority of the Full Bench (Sargent and Bayley, JJ., dissenting) that a judgment-debtor, imprisoned in satisfaction of the decree against him under Act VIII. of 1859, is not entitled, under Act X. of 1877, to be released on the coming into operation of the latter Act, if he have then been imprisoned for more than six months but less than two years.—In the Matter of the Petition of Ratansi Kaliánji, 1. L. R., 2 Bom. 148. [Oct. 13, 1877.]

THE decree in an administration-suit directed A, a party to the suit, to pay over a sum of money, which she admitted was in her hands, to her own attorney in the suit, to be applied by him as directed by the decree. A refused to pay over the money, and she was imprisoned for disobedience to the Court's order. After she had been in prison for six months, she applied to the Judge of the Court below, under Act X. of 1877, s. 341, to be discharged. This order was refused. Held, on appeal, that the proceeding under which A had been imprisoned was not in execution of a decree, but that she was imprisoned under process of contempt, and that the provisions of ss. 341 and 342 did not apply to the case.—Martin v. Lawrence, 1. L. R., 4 Cal. 655. [Jan. 13, 1879.]

THE defendant was arrested before judgment, and, on the 5th February 1883, committed to jail under s. 481 of the Civil Procedure Code. On the 6th March following, a decree in the suit was passed against him. On the 28th July, the defendant being then still in jail under the order of the 5th February, the plaintiff took out a fresh warrant of arrest in execution of the decree, and sought to have the defendant further imprisoned for the full period of six months limited by s. 342 of the Code. Held that the defendant could be re-committed to jail, in execution of the decree, only for such a period as, together with the period of imprisonment that had elapsed since the passing of the decree, would complete a period of six months, and that, consequently, he would be entitled to be liberated on the 5th September 1883. Imprisonment under s. 581 becomes, after decree, imprisonment in execution of the decree, and the imprisonment suffered after that date must consequently be taken into consideration in calculating the period of six months, which, by s. 342 of the Code, is the limit allowed for an imprisonment in execution of a decree.—Ghanashamdas Goorsamull v. Johárinull Kedárináth, 1. L. R., 7 Bom. 431. [Aug. 31, 1883.]

343. The officer entrusted with the execution of the warrant shall en-

Endorsement of warrant.

Endorse thereupon the day on, and the manner in which it was executed, and, if the latest day specified in the warrant for the return thereof has been exceeded, the reason of the delay, or if it was not executed, the reason why it was not executed, and shall return the warrant with such endorsement to the Court.

If the endorsement is to the effect that such officer is unable to execute the warrant, the Court shall examine him on oath touching his alleged inability, and may, if it thinks fit, summon and examine witnesses as to such inability, and shall record the result.

WHEREA warrant issued by a Subordinate Court, directing the nazir to arrest a judgment-debtor in execution of a decree, was entrusted by the nazir to a subordinate for execution by endorsing his name upon it, held that there is nothing in the Civil Procedure Code to prohibit a nazir from authorizing a deputy to execute a warrant of arrest for him, and that his endorsement must be regarded as prima facie evidence of the authority of the person to whom the warrant is delivered to execute it. Held that it is most desirable, when the nazirs of the Subordinate Courts delegate the duty of executing warrants of arrest, that they should confer the authority in more clear and explicit terms than are expressed by a mere indorsement, and that they should be careful in selecting proper persons to discharge that duty, bearing in mind, as far as circumstances permit, the position and caste of the party to be arrested, so as to avoid, through the medium of Court-process, subjecting any such party to personal indignity or offence. Further, that it is important that the person chosen should be made acquainted with the contents of the warrant, in order that he may be able to inform the judgment-debtor at whose suit and for what amount he is being taken into custody. Where a warrant for the arrest of the judgment-debtor had been executed, and an indorsement thereon, professedly under s. 343 of the Civil Procedure Code, was irregularly made by the naib nazir, he not having been "the officer entrusted with the execution of the warrant," held that such irregularity did not invalidate the arrest.—Abdul Karim v. Bullen (J.), I. L. R., 6 All. 385. [May 21, 1884.]

CHAPTER XX.

OF INSOLVENT JUDGMENT-DEBTORS.

344. Any judgment-debtor arrested or imprisoned in execution of a decree for money, or against whose property an order of attachment has been made in execution of such a decree, may apply in writing to be declared an insolvent.

Any holder of a decree for money may apply in writing that the judgment-debtor may be declared an insolvent.

Every such application shall be made to the District Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the judgment-debtor resides or is in custody.

THE Deputy Commissioner of Akyah, sitting as District Judge, has power to entertain applications under Act X. of 1877, chap. 20. S. 6 (d) of that Act interposes no obstacle in the way of his dealing with such applications, nor does the exercise of such power in any way "affect the jurisdiction of the Recorder of Rangoon sitting as an Insolvent Court in Akyah" within the meaning of that section.—In re Abdul Hamed, I. L. R., 4 Cal. 94. [June 20, 1878.]

THE effect of Act X. of 1877, s. 5, coupled with sch. 2, is to render the whole of chap. 20 (relating to insolvent debtors) inapplicable to a Mufassal Small Cause Court, notwithstanding the words "any Court other than a District Court" and any Court situate within his district, which occur in that section. Consequently the Government Resolution of 3rd April 1878, investing the Judge of the Small Cause Court at Ahmednagar with powers, under the said chapter, to adjudicate in insolvency matters, is ultra vires and invalid.—Lallu Ganesh v. Ranchhod Kalandas, I. L. R., 2 Bom. 641. [July 2, 1878.]

A PERSON applying under Act X. of 1877, s. 344, must satisfy the Court that his case comes within the provisions of s. 351, and the burden of proof lies upon him. An order dismissing such an application is appealable under s. 588.—Mumtaz Hossein v. Brij Mohun Thakoor, I. L. R., 4 Cal. 888. [Dec. 4, 1878.] Followed in I. L. R., 6 Cal. 168. [Aug. 11, 1880.]

THERE is no appeal from an order made under Act X. of 1877, s. 351, refusing to grant an application to be made an insolvent. The appeal allowed under s. 588, cl. 17, so far as an order under s. 351 is concerned, is on behalf of the judgment-creditor only.—Juggutjeebun Gooptoo v. Haro Coomarr Pal, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 719. [Mar. 8, 1880.] Dissented from in I. L. R., 6 Cal. 168. [Aug. 11, 1880.]

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR, having been arrested in 1871, offered to place his estate at the disposal of the Court, and was examined on oath as to the particulars of the estate, and discharged from custody. His estate was never taken possession of, and part of it was subsequently disposed of by him to a stranger. Held that he was not liable to be arrested again in execution of the decree.—Venkatakrishna v. Coelho (P. G.), I. L. R., 6 Mad. 170. [Oct. 6, 1882.]

THE lower Court ordered the attachment of a house belonging to the judgment-debtor in execution of a money-decree passed against him by that Court. The judgment-debtor then applied to be declared an insolvent under s. 344 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877). Held that it could not entertain the application.—Purbhudās Velji v. Chugun Raichand, I. L. R., 8 Bom. 196. [Feb. 15, 1883.]

WHEN an application to be declared an insolvent, under s. 344 of the Civil Procedure Code, was preferred, the requirements of that section had not been fulfilled, as the applicant had not been arrested or imprisoned in execution of a decree for money, nor had his property been attached in execution of such a decree. Eleven days after the application had been preferred, the applicant's property was attached in execution of such a decree. One of the creditors subsequently objected to the application on the ground that when it was preferred the requirements of s. 344 had not been fulfilled. Held that the application should not on that ground have been dismissed.—Makhan Lal v. Gulzari Mal, I. L. R., 6 All. 289. [April 9, 1884.]

THE plaintiff Gangádhār obtained a decree against the defendant. In execution of that decree, certain property was attached on 5th March 1881. Although the judgment-debtor was not arrested in execution of that decree, nevertheless he, on the 18th October 1882, applied to the Court of the Subordinate Judge to be declared an insolvent under s. 344 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882). He was declared an insolvent under that section, and the nazir of the Court was appointed a receiver on 22nd December 1883. The receiver proceeded, under the direction of the Court, to convert the property of the insolvent into money under s. 356 (a) of the Code. Certain immovable property was purchased by the petitioner Tukárám for Rs. 1,032 on 4th December 1884. Tukárám, after some time, presented an application, in which he stated that, inasmuch as the insolvent had not been arrested in execution of the decree obtained by Gangádhār, the Court had no jurisdiction; and he prayed that, if such was the case, the sale should be set aside, and the money returned to him. No appeal was preferred by the judgment-creditor, or other creditors of the insolvent, against the order of insolvency made under s. 351 of the Code. The Subordinate Judge referred the following question to the High Court, viz., “whether a Court, which has declared the insolvency of a judgment-debtor, can direct the receiver to proceed under s. 356 of the Code and complete any sale, though the purchaser objects to the direction on the ground of want of jurisdiction in the Court; which objection seems to the Court to be valid, but too late.” Held that as the declaration of insolvency was ultra vires, the Subordinate Judge should take no further steps to give effect to it, but leave the parties concerned to take such measures as they may be advised.—Gangádhār Bhivráv v. Datto Krishnáji, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 368. [Feb. 26, 1885.]

THE decree-holder respondent in an appeal from an order refusing an application by the judgment-debtor for declaration of insolvency under s. 344 of the Civil Procedure Code, died, and the judgment-debtor, appellant, took no steps to have the legal representative of the deceased substituted as respondent in his place. Held that art. 171B., sch. 2 of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877), applied to the case, and that, as no one had been brought on the record to represent the deceased respondent within the period prescribed, the appeal must abate. Per Mahmood, J., that whatever the position of the parties might have been in the regular suit, in the insolvency-proceedings the judgment-debtor occupied a position analogous to that of a plaintiff, and the decree-holder occupied the position of a defendant. Narain Das v. Lajja Ram (I. L. R., 7 All. 693) distinguished.—Rameshar Singh v. Bisheshar Singh, I. L. R., 7 All. 734. [Mar. 30, 1885.]

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR arrested in execution of a decree for money, who has not, on his committal to jail, expressed his intention of applying to be declared an insolvent under chap. 20 of the Code of Civil Procedure, is nevertheless entitled during his imprisonment to make an application for that purpose; and the Court may, under s. 349, pending the hearing of such application, release him on his finding security to appear when called upon. The word “arrest” in s. 349 should be read as meaning “under detention” or “detained in custody.” In deciding whether or not a payment made to a particular creditor amounts to an unfair preference within the meaning of s. 351 of the Code, the Courts may fairly (where there is no other reason for impeaching the transaction as an unfair preference apart from the provisions of the Insolvent Act) refer to, and be guided by, the provisions of the Insolvent Act, which treats a transaction as an unfair preference only when it has occurred within a limited time before the insolvency-proceedings. Where the Legislature has provided two methods by which a debtor can obtain protection from arrest or other serious consequences, and if one of those methods, in any particular case, turns out to be more favourable to the debtor than the other, the Courts will not deprive him of that advantage.—In the Matter of Hastie, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 451. [April 8, 1885.]

345. The application, when made by the judgment-debtor, shall set forth—
Contents of application.

(a) the fact of his arrest or imprisonment, or that an order for the attachment of his property has been made, the Court by whose order he was arrested or imprisoned, or by which the order of attachment was made, and where he has been arrested or imprisoned, the place in which he is in custody;

(b) the amount, kind, and particulars of his property, and the value of any such property not consisting of money;

(c) the place or places in which such property is to be found;

(d) his willingness to put it at the disposal of the Court;

(e) the amount and particulars of all pecuniary claims against him; and

(f) the names and residences of his creditors, so far as they are known to, or can be ascertained by, him.

The application, when made by the holder of a decree for money, shall set forth the date of the decree, the Court by which it was passed, the amount remaining due thereunder, and the place where the judgment-debtor resides or is in custody.

346. The application shall be signed and verified by the applicant in Subscription and verification of application. manner hereinbefore prescribed for signing and verifying plaints.

347. The Court shall fix a day for hearing the application, and shall where the applicant is the judgment-debtor—on the holder of the decree in execution of which he was arrested or imprisoned or the order of attachment was made, or on the pleader of such decree-holder and on the other creditors (if any) mentioned in the application; where the applicant is the decree-holder—on the judgment-debtor or his pleader.

The Court may, if it thinks fit, publish, at the applicant's expense, the application in such official Gazettes and public newspapers as it thinks fit.

Where the applicant is the judgment-debtor, the Court may exempt him from any payments under this section if satisfied that he is unable to make them.

348. The Court may also, if it thinks fit, cause a like copy and notice

A SECURITY-BOND given under the provisions of s. 349 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, for the production of a judgment-debtor when called upon, cannot be enforced summarily.—Moidin v. Chandu, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 273. [Oct. 3, 1883.]

SS. 336 and 349 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, are applicable to judgment-debtors under arrest, but not committed to jail. A judgment-debtor committed to jail can only be discharged under s. 341.—In re Quarrie, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 503. [July 10, 1886.]

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR once arrested and imprisoned in execution of a decree cannot, under the Civil Procedure Code, be again arrested under a fresh writ of attachment on the same decree.—Secretary of State for India v. Council v. Judah, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 652. [April 1, 1886.]

350. On the day so fixed, or on any subsequent day to which the Court may adjourn the hearing, the Court shall examine the judgment-debtor, in the presence of the persons on whom such notice has been served or their pleaders, as to his then circumstances and as to his future means of payment, and shall hear the said decree-holder, the other creditors mentioned in the application, and the other persons (if any) alleging themselves to be creditors, in opposition to the judgment-debtor's discharge; and may, if it thinks fit, grant time to the said decree-holder and other creditors or persons to adduce evidence showing that the judgment-debtor is not entitled to be declared an insolvent.

Declaration of insolvency and appointment of Receiver.

351. If the Court is satisfied—

- (a) that the statements in the application are substantially true;
- (b) that the judgment-debtor has not, with intent to defraud his creditors, concealed, transferred, or removed any part of his property since the institution of the suit in which was passed the decree in execution of which he was arrested or imprisoned, or the order of attachment was made, or at any subsequent time;
- (c) that he has not, knowing himself to be unable to pay his debts in full, recklessly contracted debts, or given an unfair preference to any of his creditors by any payment or disposition of his property;
- (d) that he has not committed any other act of bad faith regarding the matter of the application;

the Court may declare him to be an insolvent, and may also, if it thinks fit, make an order appointing a receiver of his property, or, if it does not appoint such receiver, may discharge the insolvent.

If the Court is not so satisfied, it shall make an order rejecting the application.

A PERSON applying under Act X. of 1877, s. 344, must satisfy the Court that his case comes within the provisions of s. 351, and the burden of proof lies upon him. An order dismissing such an application is appealable under s. 588.—Murataz Hossein v. Brij Mohun Thakoor, I. L. R., 4 Cal. 888. [Dec. 4, 1878.] Followed in I. L. R., 6 Cal. 168. [Aug. 11, 1880.]

AN appeal lies against an order passed under s. 351 of Act X. of 1877, although it was an order refusing to declare petitioner an insolvent. The words used in cl. 2 of s. 351, "the matter of the application," embrace the insolvency, and all the facts and circumstances material to explain the insolvency. Acts of bad faith towards creditors just at the period at which the applicant was contemplating insolvency may be held to be part of the matter of the application. A Judge would not be exercising a right discretion under s. 351 if he refused relief in the case of persons who, although knowing that they had not the means of paying at the time the debt was contracted, yet honestly believed upon reasonable grounds that they would have the means of paying eventually.—Bavachi Packer v. Pierce, Leslie, & Co., I. L. R., 2 Mad. 219. [Mar. 31, 1879.]

AN order refusing to grant an application to be made an insolvent is appealable under cl. 17, s. 588 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Such an order must be considered to be one made under s. 351.—Nubbi Buksh v. Chasni, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 168. [Aug. 11, 1880.]

J, IN pursuance of a previous agreement with B, and on being pressed by B, who had a pecuniary claim against him, assigned to B the whole of his property by way of sale, in consideration in part of B's pecuniary claim against him. Held that by such assignment J did not give B an "undue preference" to his other creditors, within the meaning of s. 351 of Act X. of 1877.—Joakim v. Secretary of State for India, I. L. R., 3 All. 530. [Feb. 21, 1881.]

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR, having applied to be declared an insolvent under s. 344 of the Code of Civil Procedure, entered the name of A in the list of his creditors, together with the amount of the debt. No creditors appearing to oppose the application or prove their debts, the Court, without framing a schedule as required by s. 352, declared the judgment-debtor an insolvent under s. 351. In a suit brought by A to recover the debt, held that as the provisions of s. 352 had not been followed, the declaration under s. 351 could not operate as a decree between the insolvent and A, and that A was entitled to a decree.—Arunachala v. Ayyavu, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 318. [Mar. 3, 1884.]

BEFORE rejecting an application by a judgment-debtor for a declaration of insolvency with reference to the provisions of s. 351 (a) of the Civil Procedure Code, it is necessary that the Court should be satisfied that the applicant has wilfully made false statements: unintentional inaccuracies are not sufficient grounds for rejection.—Karim Bakhsh v. Misri Lal, I. L. R., 7 All. 295. [Jan. 23, 1885.]

THE plaintiff Gangadhar obtained a decree against the defendant. In execution of that decree, certain property was attached on 5th March 1881. Although the judgment-debtor was not arrested in execution of that decree, nevertheless he, on the 18th October 1882, applied to the Court of the Subordinate Judge to be declared an insolvent under s. 344 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882). He was declared an insolvent under that section, and the nazir of the Court was appointed a receiver on 23rd December 1883. The receiver proceeded, under the direction of the Court, to convert the property of the insolvent into money under s. 356 (a) of the Code. Certain immoveable property was purchased by the petitioner Tukaram for Rs. 1,032 on 4th December 1884. Tukaram, after some time, presented an application, in which he stated that, inasmuch as the insolvent had not been arrested in execution of the decree obtained by Gangadhar, the Court had no jurisdiction; and he prayed that, if such was the case, the sale should be set aside, and the money returned to him. No appeal was preferred by the judgment-creditor, or other creditors of the insolvent, against the order of insolvency made under s. 351 of the Code. The Subordinate Judge referred the following question to the High Court, viz., "whether a Court, which has declared the insolvency of a judgment-debtor, can direct the receiver to proceed under s. 356 of the Code and complete any sale, though the purchaser objects to the direction on the ground of want of jurisdiction in the Court, which objection seems to the Court to be valid, but too late." Held that as the declaration of insolvency was ultra vires, the Subordinate Judge should take no further steps to give effect to it, but leave the parties concerned to take such measures as they may be advised.—Gangadhar Bhivray v. Datto Krishnaji, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 368. [Feb. 26, 1885.]

S. 351 (b) of the Civil Procedure Code contemplates a case of active concealment, transfer, or removal of substantive property since the institution of the suit in which was passed the decree in execution of which the judgment-debtor was arrested or imprisoned, with intent to deprive the creditor or creditors of available assets for division; and it does not cover an omission by the judgment-debtor, in his application for a declaration of insolvency, of a statement as to his right to demand partition of ancestral estate in which he is a sharer, especially where there is no evidence of any intent to defraud.—Sukrit Narain Lal v. Raghunath Sahai, I. L. R., 7 All. 445. [Mar. 3, 1885.]

WHERE property has been made the subject of attachment under chap. 19 of the Civil Procedure Code, the right of an objector to assert his claim to be the true owner of the property under s. 278, and the jurisdiction of the Court to entertain the objection, are not ousted by the mere circumstances that the judgment-debtor has been declared an insolvent, and his property vested in a receiver under chap. 20. It is the judgment-debtor's property only, not that of the objector, that is thus vested.—Paras Ram v. Karam Singh, I. L. R., 9 All. 232. [Jan. 11, 1887.]

352. The creditors mentioned in the application, and the other persons

Creditors to prove their (if any) alleging themselves to be creditors of the debts.

insolvent, shall then produce evidence of the amount and particulars of their respective pecuniary claims against him; and the Court shall, by order, determine the persons who have proved themselves to be the insolvent's creditors and their respective debts; and shall frame a schedule of such persons and debts; and the declaration under section 351 shall be deemed to be a decree in favour of each of the said creditors for their said respective debts.

Schedule to be framed.

A copy of every such schedule shall be stuck up in the Court-house.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to entitle a partner in an insolvent firm, or, when he has died before the insolvency, his legal representative, to prove in competition with the creditors of the firm.

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR was declared an insolvent, and a receiver of his property appointed under s. 351 of the Civil Procedure Code, and his creditors were ordered to come forward and prove their claims within a certain time. No creditor came forward for that purpose within such time, and in consequence the case was struck off the file, and the order appointing a receiver cancelled, and no schedule was framed under s. 352. Subsequently a creditor applied to have his name entered in such schedule. Held that the applicant, notwithstanding no schedule had been framed, was an "unscheduled" creditor, and was therefore entitled, under s. 353 of the Civil Procedure Code, to make the application.—Madho Prasad v. Bhola Nath, I. L. R., 5 All. 268. [Jan. 11, 1883.]

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR, arrested and imprisoned in execution, applied to be declared an insolvent, and included a mortgage-debt in his application. Notice was issued to the mortgagee, who failed to appear and prove his claim, and was consequently omitted from the schedule prepared under s. 352 of the Code of Civil Procedure. A receiver was appointed under s. 354; the whole of the property of the insolvent was made over to the receiver, including the nine fields mortgaged, which the insolvent held as tenant of the mortgagee. The receiver sold one out of the nine fields to satisfy the creditors entered in the schedule, and ultimately restored the remaining eight fields to the judgment-debtor. The mortgagee then sued to eject the judgment-debtor for default in payment of rent. The latter pleaded his discharge under s. 355. Held that the discharge did not affect the mortgage-debt, and that a receiver is bound, as a condition of dealing with mortgaged property, in every case to pay off the mortgage, even when the mortgagee has not sought to be placed in the schedule—the position of the mortgagee being essentially different from that of the unsecured creditor. Case of Chotalal v. Nahansa (printed judgments for 1882, p. 80) distinguished.—Shridhar Narayan v. Atmaram Govind, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 455. [July 28, 1883.]

In July 1878, a person was declared an insolvent under the provisions of chap. 20 of the Civil Procedure Code. Only one creditor then proved his debt, and no schedule was framed. This creditor having applied for the sale of property belonging to the insolvent, another creditor, in May 1883, applied to prove his debt, and to have his name inserted in the schedule which the Court then ordered to be framed. Held that such application could not be treated as made under s. 353, as no schedule had been framed, but must be regarded as in the nature of a tender of proof of debt under s. 352; that it was governed by art. 178 of the Limitation Act, 1877; and that, the right to apply having accrued at the date of the declaration of insolvency, the application was beyond time.—Parshadi Lal v. Chitani Lal, I. L. R., 6 All. 142. [Dec. 21, 1883.]

353. Any creditor of the insolvent who is not mentioned in such

Applications by unscheduled creditors. schedule may apply to the Court for permission to produce evidence of the amount and particulars of his pecuniary claims against the insolvent, and, in case the applicant proves himself to be a creditor of the insolvent, for an order directing his name to be inserted in the schedule as a creditor for the debt so proved.

Any creditor mentioned in the schedule may apply to the Court for an order altering the schedule so far as regards the amount, nature, or particulars of his own debt, or to strike out the name of another creditor, or to alter the schedule so far as regards the amount, nature, or particulars of the debt of another creditor.

In the case of any application under this section, the Court, after causing such notices as it thinks fit to be served, at the applicant's expense, on the insolvent and the other creditors, and hearing their objections (if any), may comply with or reject the application.

354. Every order under section 351 shall be published in the local

Effect of order appointing official Gazette, and shall operate to vest in the receiver all the insolvent's property (except the particulars specified in the first proviso to section 266), whether set forth in his application or not.

355. The receiver so appointed shall give such security as the Court may direct, and shall possess himself of all such property, except as aforesaid; and on his certifying that the insolvent has placed him in possession thereof, or has done everything in his power for that purpose, the Court may discharge the insolvent upon such conditions (if any) as the Court thinks fit.

356. The receiver shall proceed under the direction of the Court—

- (a) to convert the property into money;
- (b) pay thereout debts, fines, and penalties (if any) due by the insolvent to Government;
- (c) to pay the said decree-holder's costs;
- (d) to discharge, according to their respective priorities, all debts secured by mortgage of the insolvent's property;
- (e) to distribute the balance among the scheduled creditors rateably according to the amounts of their respective debts and without any preference;

and such receiver may retain, as a remuneration for the performance of his duties, a commission, to be fixed by the Court, not exceeding the rate of five per centum upon the amount of the balance so distributed (the amount of the commission so retained being deemed a distribution), and shall deliver the surplus (if any) to the insolvent or his legal representative:

Provided that, in any local area in which a declaration has been made under section 320 and is in force, no sale of immoveable property paying revenue to Government, or held or let for agricultural purposes, shall be made by the receiver; but, after he has sold the other property of the insolvent, the Court shall ascertain (a) the amount required to satisfy the claims of the scheduled creditors after deducting the moneys already received, (b) the immoveable property of the insolvent remaining unsold, and (c) the incumbrances (if any) existing thereon, and shall forward a statement to the Collector containing the particulars aforesaid; and thereupon the Collector shall proceed to raise the amount so required by the exercise of such of the powers conferred on him by sections 322 to 325 (both inclusive) as he thinks fit, and subject to the provisions of those sections, so far as they may be applicable, and shall hold at the disposal of the Court all sums that may come to his hands by such exercise.

THE plaintiff Gangadhar obtained a decree against the defendant. In execution of that decree, certain property was attached on 5th March 1881. Although the judgment-debtor was not arrested in execution of that decree, nevertheless he, on the 18th October 1882, applied to the Court of the Subordinate Judge to be declared an insolvent under s. 344 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882). He was declared an insolvent under that section, and the nazir of the Court was appointed a receiver on 22nd December 1883. The receiver proceeded, under the direction of the Court, to convert the property of the insolvent into money under s. 356 (a) of the Code. Certain immoveable property was purchased by the petitioner Tukárám for Rs. 1,032 on 4th December 1884. Tukárám, after some time, presented an application, in which he stated that, inasmuch as the insolvent had not been arrested in execution of the decree obtained by Gangádhār, the Court had no jurisdiction; and he prayed that, if such was the case, the sale should be set aside, and the money returned to him. No appeal was preferred by the judgment-creditor, or other creditors of the insolvent, against the order of insolvency made under s. 351 of the Code. The Subordinate Judge referred the following question to the High Court, viz., "whether a Court, which has declared the insolvency of a judgment-debtor, can direct the receiver to proceed under s. 356 of the Code and complete any sale, though the purchaser objects to the direction on the ground of want of jurisdiction in the Court, which objection seems to the Court to be valid, but too late." Held that as the declaration of insolvency was ultra vires, the Subordinate Judge should take no further steps to give effect to it, but leave the parties concerned to take such measures as they may be advised.—Gangádhār Bhivráv v. Datto Krisnáji, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 368. [Feb. 26, 1885.]

357. An insolvent discharged under section 351 or section 355 shall not be arrested or imprisoned on account of any of the scheduled debts. But (subject to the provisions of section 358) his property, whether previously or subsequently acquired (except the particulars specified in the first proviso to section 266, and except the property vested in the receiver), shall, by order of the Court, be liable to attachment and sale until the debts due to the scheduled creditors are satisfied to the extent of one-third, or until the expiry of twelve years from the date of the order of discharge under section 351 or section 355.

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR once arrested and imprisoned in execution of a decree cannot, under the Civil Procedure Code, be again arrested under a fresh writ of attachment on the same decree.—Secretary of State for India in Council v. Judah, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 652. [April 1, 1886.]

358. If the aggregate amount of the scheduled debts is two hundred rupees or a less sum, the Court may, and in any case after the scheduled debts have been satisfied to the extent of one-third, or after the expiry of twelve years from the order of discharge, the Court shall, declare the insolvent, discharged as aforesaid, absolved from further liability in respect of such debts.

AN insolvent, who had procured, and taken, and acted on an insolvency order, which had been granted to him because of the withdrawal of the opposition of his creditors, by reason solely of his engagement to pay a certain sum monthly until the whole of his debts should be discharged, after his scheduled debts had been satisfied to the extent of one-third, applied under s. 358 of the Civil Procedure Code to be declared discharged from further liability in respect of his debts. Held that, under the circumstances, his application had been properly refused.—Downes v. Richmond, I. L. R., 5 All. 258. [Jan. 4, 1883.]

Procedure in case of dishonest applicant.

359. Whenever, at the hearing under section 350, it is proved that the applicant has—

(a) been guilty, in his application, of any concealment or of wilfully making any false statement as to the debts due by him, or respecting the property belonging to him, whether in possession or in expectancy, or held for him in trust;

(b) fraudulently concealed, transferred, or removed any property; or

(c) committed any other act of bad faith regarding the matter of the application, the Court shall, at the instance of any of his creditors, sentence him, by order in writing, to imprisonment for a term which may extend to one year from the date of committal.

Or the Court may, if it thinks fit, send him to the Magistrate to be dealt with according to law.

360. The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, Investment of other Courts with powers of District Courts. Transfer of cases. invest any Court other than a District Court with the powers conferred on District Courts by sections 344 to 359 (both inclusive), and the District Judge may transfer to any Court situate in his district, and so invested, any case instituted under section 344. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

Any Court so invested may entertain any application under section 344 by any person arrested in execution of a decree of such Court.*

UNDER s. 360 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the Local Government cannot in it a Mufassal Small Cause Court with the insolvency jurisdiction conferred on District Courts by chap. 20 of the said Code, inasmuch as, by reason of s. 5, chap. 20 does not extend to such Courts of Small Causes.—Séthu v. Venkatarám, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 112. [Oct. 3, 1885.]

PART II. OF INCIDENTAL PROCEEDINGS.

CHAPTER XXI.

OF THE DEATH, MARRIAGE, AND INSOLVENCY OF PARTIES.

361. The death of a plaintiff or defendant shall not cause the suit to abate if the right to sue survives. Ditto.

Illustrations.

(a.) A covenants with B and C to pay an annuity to B during C's life. B and C sue A to compel payment. B dies before the decree. The right to sue survives to C and the suit does not abate.

(b.) In the same case, all the parties die before decree. The right to sue survives to the representative of the survivor of B and C, and he may continue the suit against A's representative.

(c.) A sues B for libel. A dies. The right to sue does not survive, and the suit abates.

(d.) A, a member of a Hindu joint family under the Mitákshará law, institutes a suit for partition of the family-property. A dies leaving B, a minor son, his heir. The right to sue survives to B, and the suit does not abate.

362. If there be more plaintiffs or defendants than one, and any of them dies, and if the right to sue survives to the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs alone, or against the surviving defendant or defendants alone, the Court shall cause an entry to that effect to be made on the record, and the suit shall proceed at the instance of the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs, or against the surviving defendant or defendants. Ditto.

363. If there be more plaintiffs than one, and any of them dies, and if the right to sue does not survive to the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs alone, but survives to him or them and the legal representatives of the deceased plaintiff jointly, the Court may, on the application of such legal representative, enter his name on the Ditto.

record in the place of such deceased plaintiff, and the suit shall proceed at the instance of the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs and such legal representative.

THE provision of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877), sch. 2, art. 171, which gives a period of sixty days to a person claiming to be the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff under s. 363 or 365 of the Code of Civil Procedure, does not apply to the representative of a deceased judgment-creditor claiming admission to continue execution-proceedings commenced by him. The Code of Civil Procedure (Act X. of 1877) does not provide that applications for execution shall, like suits, abate by the death of the judgment-creditor; such a representative may, therefore, come in at any time, as his coming in is contemplated in art. 179, expl. 1 of sch. 2 of the Limitation Act, subject always to the same conditions as would apply to his principal.—Gulabdas v. Lakshman Narhar, I. L. R., 3 Bom. 221. [April 3, 1879.]

If a plaintiff dies after decree, his representatives are not bound to apply within 60 days to be made parties to the suit, but have the same time to file an appeal as the plaintiff would have had. The Civil Procedure Code, ss. 363—365, and the Limitation Act, sch. 2, art. 171, do not apply to the case of a plaintiff dying after decree.—Ramanada Sastri v. Minatchi Ammal, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 236. Court by any person claiming to be the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff, the suit shall proceed at the instance of the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs; and the legal representative (if any) of the deceased plaintiff shall be made a party, and shall be interested in, and bound by, the decree passed in the suit, in the same manner as if the suit had proceeded at his instance conjointly with the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs.

the Court may, where the right to sue survives, on the application of the legal representative of the deceased, enter his name in the place of such plaintiff on the record, and the suit shall thereupon proceed.

A SOLE plaintiff having died after decree, an application was made more than 60 days after his death, by his legal representative, for an order that his name might be substituted on the record for that of the original plaintiff, and that a sum of money to which the original plaintiff, if alive, would have been entitled, might be paid to him, the legal representative. Held that s. 372 of the Civil Procedure Code did not apply to the case, the section contemplating a proceeding before the determination of the suit; and, further, that the application was barred by Act XV. of 1877, sch. 2, art. 171. Held also that s. 232 had no application. S. 365 of the Civil Procedure Code (amended by Act XII. of 1879, s. 61) does not apply to the case of a sole plaintiff dying after decree, the right to sue being merged in the decree.—Cally Churn Mullick v. Bhuggobutty Churn Mullick 5 C. L. R. 108. [Sep. 9, 1879.]

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR applied that an execution-sale of property belonging to him should be set aside, as the decree-holder was dead when such sale took place, and such sale was in consequence invalid. This application was disposed of by the Court executing the decree in the presence of the judgment-debtor and purchaser. The Court held that the fact of such sale having taken place after the decree-holder's death was no ground for setting it aside, and disallowed such application, and made an order confirming such sale.

Held per Pearson, J., that the application for the execution of the decree abated on the death of the decree-holder, not having been prosecuted by his legal representative, and such sale was, under the circumstances, improper and invalid, and the order confirming it should be set aside. Per Spankie, J., that such sale was not invalid by reason of the decree-holder's death before it took place. The order confirming it, however, was improper, and should be reversed, and the case should be remanded to be dealt with under the provisions of ss. 365 and 366 of Act X. of 1877, as the Court executing the decree should have proceeded under those sections. Per Oldfield, J., and Straight, J., that the death of the decree-holder prior to such sale did not render it void. The provisions of ss. 365 and 366 of Act X. of 1877 could not be adapted to execution-proceedings. As such sale had been published and conducted according to law, it had properly been confirmed.—Dulari Mohan Singh, I. L. R., 9 All. 759. [April 21, 1881.]

If a plaintiff dies after decree, his representatives are not bound to apply in 60 days to be made parties to the suit, but have the same time to file an appeal as the plaintiff would have had. The Civil Procedure Code, ss. 363—365, and the Limitation Act, sch. 2, art. 171, do not apply to the case of a plaintiff dying after decree.—Rāmanāda Sāstri, v. Minatchi Ammal, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 236. [July 12, 1881.]

PER Mitter, J. (Garth, C.J. dubitante).—Notwithstanding that s. 582 of the Code of Civil Procedure does not expressly direct that the word 'plaintiff' occurring in s. 366 shall be held to include an 'appellant,' yet the power conferred by s. 366 on the Court of original jurisdiction to award costs against the estate of a deceased plaintiff may, by analogy, be taken to be conferred on the Appellate Court. Lakshmi Bai v. Balkrishna (I. L. R., 4 Bom. 654) followed.—Rajmonce Dabee v. Chunder Kant Sandel, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 440. [Dec. 21, 1881.]

The plaintiff died on the 28th August 1883, and in December 1884, letters of administration to his estate were granted to the Administrator-General. The defendant died in June 1884, leaving a widow and one son him surviving. By his will he appointed two executors. On the 3rd February 1885, the Administrator-General took out a summons to revive the suit. Held that, notwithstanding the provisions of s. 365 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) and of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877), it was competent for a Judge in chambers to revive the suit by making an order for abatement under s. 366 of the Code, coupled with an order under s. 371 setting aside the order for abatement.—Fulvahu v. Goculdas Vallabhdas, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 275. [Mar. 27, 1885.]

366. If, within the time limited by law, no such application be made to the Court by any person claiming to be the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff, the Court may pass an order that the suit shall abate, and shall, on the application of the defendant, award to the defendant the costs which he may have incurred in defending the suit, to be recovered from the estate of the deceased plaintiff; Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

Abatement where no application by representative of deceased plaintiff.

or the Court may, if it think proper, on the application of the defendant, and upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit, pass such other order as it thinks fit for bringing in the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff, or for proceeding with the suit in order to a final determination of the matter in dispute, or for both those purposes.

Explanation.—A certificate of heirship, or a certificate to collect debts, does not of itself constitute the person holding it the legal representative of the deceased. But when the person holding any such certificate obtains thereby property belonging to deceased, he may be treated as a legal representative liable in respect of such property.

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR applied that an execution-sale of property belonging to him should be set aside, as the decree-holder was dead when such sale took place, and such sale was in consequence invalid. This application was disposed of by the Court executing the decree in the presence of the judgment-debtor and purchaser. The Court held that the fact of such sale having taken place after the decree-holder's death was no ground for setting it aside, and disallowed such application, and made an order confirming such sale. Held per Pearson, J., that the application for the execution of the decree abated on the death of the decree-holder, not having been prosecuted by his legal representative, and such sale was under the circumstances improper and invalid, and the order confirming it should be set aside. Per Spankie, J., that such sale was not invalid by reason of the decree-holder's death before it took place. The order confirming it, however, was improper, and should be reversed, and the case should be remanded to be dealt with under the provisions of ss. 365 and 366 of Act X. of 1877, as the Court executing the decree should have proceeded under those sections. Per Oldfield, J., and Straight J., that the death of the decree-holder prior to such sale did not render it void. The provisions of ss. 365 and 366 of Act X. of 1877 could not be adapted to execution proceedings. As such sale had been published and conducted according to law, it had properly been confirmed.—Dulari v. Mohan Singh, I. L. R., 3 All. 759. [April 21, 1881.]

AN Appellate Court rejected the application of the legal representative of a deceased sole plaintiff-appellant to enter his name in the place of such appellant on the record, on the ground that such application had not been made within the time limited by law, and passed an order that the suit should abate. Held that the order of the Appellate Court, passed under the first paragraph of s. 366 of Act X. of 1877, not being appealable under cl. 18, s. 588, of that Act, nor being a decree within the terms of s. 2, from which a second appeal would lie, was not appealable.—Ahmad Ata v. Mata Badal Lal, I. L. R., 3 All. 844. [June 7, 1881.]

THE plaintiff died on the 28th August 1883, and in December 1884, letters of administration to his estate were granted to the Administrator-General. The defendant died in June 1884, leaving a widow and one son him surviving. By his will he appointed two executors. On the 3rd February 1885, the Administrator-General took out a summons to revive the suit. Held that, notwithstanding the provisions of s. 365 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) and of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877), it was competent for a Judge in chambers to revive the suit by making an order for abatement under s. 366 of the Code, coupled with an order under s. 371 setting aside the order for abatement.—Pulvahu v. Goculdas Vallabhdas, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 275. [Mar. 27, 1885.]

AN order made under s. 366 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), that a suit do abate, being virtually a decree within the meaning of s. 2, is appealable. The appellant's father having died during the pendency of an appeal lodged by him, a notice was served upon the appellant's two adult brothers; but they having failed to apply within sixty days, the appellant, who was a minor, applied, several months afterwards, to be put on the record in his deceased father's place as his legal representative, which was done. The Assistant Judge, who heard the appeal, was of opinion that, in consequence of the omission on the part of the brothers of the appellant to apply, the appeal abated, and he passed an order accordingly. Held that the application having been made by the minor son within the time limited by law, the order of abatement made by the Judge was wrong. Although the complete legal representation vested in the minor son and his two brothers, s. 366 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) only required an application to be made by a person claiming to be the legal representative, in order to prevent an order of abatement being made. If neither of the brothers was willing to have his name placed on the record, the respondent was entitled to have them made defendants, so that they might be bound by the decree. The minor son could then proceed alone with the appeal.—Bhikaji Ramchandra v. Purshotam, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 220. [July 30, 1885.]

C. Courts.

367. If any dispute arise as to who is the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff, the Court may either stay the suit until the fact has been determined in another suit, or decide at or before the hearing of the suit who shall be admitted to be such legal representative for the purpose of prosecuting the suit.

368. If there be more defendants than one, and any of them die before decree, and the right to sue does not survive against the surviving defendant or defendants alone,

Procedure in case of death of one of several defendants, fore decree, and the right to sue does not survive against the surviving defendant or defendants alone, or of sole, or sole surviving, defendant.

and also in case of the death of a sole defendant, or sole surviving defendant, where the right to sue survives, the plaintiff may make an application to the Court, specifying the name, description, and place of abode of any person whom he alleges to be the legal representative of the deceased defendant, and whom he desires to be made the defendant in his stead.

The Court shall thereupon enter the name of such representative on the record in the place of such defendant, and shall issue a summons to such representative to appear on a day to be therein mentioned to defend the suit; and the case shall thereupon proceed in the same manner as if such representative had originally been made a defendant, and had been a party to the former proceedings in the suit:

Provided that the person so made defendant may object that he is not the legal representative of the deceased defendant, or may make any defence appropriate to his character as such representative.

When the plaintiff fails to make such application within the period prescribed therefor, the suit shall abate, unless he satisfies the Court that he had sufficient cause for not making the application within such period.

PROCEDURE analogous to that laid down in Act X. of 1877, s. 368, in respect to the death of a defendant, must be applied in the case of the death of a respondent. Where, therefore, a respondent dies during the pendency of an appeal, it is for the appellant to take the initiative, and he is at liberty to select one or more persons to defend the appeal; and no person, other than the person so selected, has a right to force himself into the proceedings, and to claim to have his name entered as representative of the deceased respondent against the appellant's consent. Persons so introduced on the record may or may not be the real representatives of the deceased respondent, but the merits of their claim to be such, on the ground of any right or status, such as that of adoption, is immaterial to the determination of the appeal.—Lakshmibai v. Balkrishna, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 654. [Aug. 3, 1880.]

AN appeal having been declared to have abated on the 12th December-1881 under s. 368 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1877, because the appellant had not applied within sixty days of the date of the death of the respondent to bring in his representative, an application was made in January 1882 to set aside the order, and was held after the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, came into force. Held that the application must be disposed of under the Code of Civil Procedure as it stood at the date of the application, and, therefore, that it was not open to the appellant to satisfy the Court that he had sufficient cause for not making the application within the prescribed period. S. 371 of the Code of Civil Procedure does not apply to the case in which a defendant or respondent dies.—Suri v. Sitaráma, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 195. [Jan. 5, 1881.]

PER MITTER, J. (Garth, C.J., dubitante).—Notwithstanding that s. 582 of the Code of Civil Procedure does not expressly direct that the word 'plaintiff' occurring in s. 366 shall be held to include an 'appellant,' yet the power conferred by s. 366 on the Court of original jurisdiction to award costs against the estate of a deceased plaintiff may, by analogy, be taken to be conferred on the Appellate Court. Lakshmibai v. Balkrishna (I. L. R., 4 Bom. 654) followed.—Rajmonee Dabee v. Chunder Kant Sandel, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 440. [Dec. 21, 1881.]

IN a suit for the recovery of land against a sole defendant, the latter died before the hearing. Sixty-three days after the death of the defendant, the plaintiff applied to the Court to enter on the record the legal representative of the deceased defendant. On the 22nd of November 1880, the Court rejected the application under the provisions of Act XV. of 1877, sch. 2, cl. 171B, and ordered the suit to abate. On the same day the plaintiff applied to the Court to set aside the order directing the suit to abate, but this application was also rejected on the 20th of September 1881. On appeal to the High Court, held that no appeal lay against the order of the 20th of September 1881, and that an appeal against the order of the 22nd of November 1880 was out of time; but that the High Court would take cognizance of the case under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Held also that the application which was rejected on the 22nd of November 1880 was an application under s. 372, and not under s. 368 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and that the applicant was entitled to make the application within three years, as allowed by Act XV. of 1877, sch. 2, cl. 178. Gocool Chunder Gossamee v. Administrator-General of Bengal (I. L. R., 5 Cal. 726; S. C., 5 C. L. R. 109) referred to.—Bonode Mohini Chowdhraia v. Sharat Chunder Dey Chowdhry, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 837. [April 14, 1882.]

UNDER s. 368 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), a plaintiff may have the representatives of a deceased sole defendant placed on the record so that he may continue his suit against them, but there is no section which allows the representatives of a sole defendant, who has died, to be placed on the record at their own request. Consequently, s. 582 gives no authority to a Civil Court to place on the record, at their own request, the representatives of a deceased sole respondent. Such an application cannot be entertained.—Bai Javer v. Hathising Kesisinghi, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 56. [July 14, 1884.]

AT an auction-sale held in execution of a decree passed against one Ganpat Anandráv, certain property put up for sale was purchased by one Khán Mahomed, the husband of the opponent. Subsequently Krishnaráv Anandráv, the brother of Ganpat Anandráv, brought a suit against the opponent to establish his right to the property purchased by the opponent's husband. On the 17th February 1882, he obtained a decree declaring that he (Krishnaráv Anandráv) was entitled to a half-share of the property in dispute, and an order was made that he should have joint possession with the opponent of one moiety of the property. On the termination of the above suit, which had been brought by Krishnaráv in forma pauperis, he was required to pay the court-fees. For that purpose he procured an advance of Rs. 230 from the applicant of the security of the moiety of the property which was awarded to him by the decree. He passed a deed of sale to the applicant on the understanding that the property should be re-conveyed to him by the applicant on the re-payment of the advance with interest. In the meantime cross appeals were filed against the above-mentioned decree passed in favour of Krishnaráv, and at the hearing of the appeal the lower Appellate Court varied the decree of the Subordinate Judge, holding that Krishnaráv Anandráv was entitled to the possession of the property so sought for. From this decree the opponent preferred a second appeal to the High Court, which, at the time of this application, was still pending. Before the hearing of the appeal, Krishnaráv Anandráv died, and the applicant thereupon applied to have his name placed on the record as respondent. Held that the applicant was entitled to be made a party. The analogy of s. 368 is to be extended generally to appeals, and the party appealing may choose his own respondent as representative of deceased. The more specific rule prescribed in that section must prevail, in the cases to which it is exactly applicable, over the more general rule in s. 372. But the rule in s. 368 may well be intended for the case in which the death, and death only, of the defendant constitutes the change of circumstances for which it was thought necessary to provide; but where there has been, not only the death of the respondent, but an alleged prior conveyance to him of the property awarded by the decree appealed against, there is a fact in addition to the fact contemplated by s. 368, and the rule in s. 372, being alone sufficiently inclusive, must apply. An appellant may determine who shall be respondent, but not that any particular person shall not be a respondent. The choice of respondents made by the appellant may be defective through ignorance or fraud, and the real representative of the decree-holder cannot justly be refused an opportunity of maintaining the decision which it is sought to upset.—Rájaram Bhágvat v. Bibai, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 151. [Sep. 15, 1884.]

ALTHOUGH a Court is bound by s. 368 of the Code of Civil Procedure to place on the record the name of the person alleged by the appellant to be the legal representative of a deceased respondent, nevertheless, where a person, other than the person alleged by the appellant to be such representative, claims, on good prima facie grounds, to be the representative of the deceased respondent, and the interests of the person entitled to the estate of the deceased may be prejudiced, the Court should, under s. 32 of the Code of Civil Procedure, proceed to make such claimant also a party to the appeal.—Attiappa v. Ayanna, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 300. [Oct. 20, 1884.]

HELD by the Full Bench (Mahmood, J., dissenting), that s. 582 of the Civil Procedure Code does not make the provisions of chap. 21, relating to the death of a defendant in a suit, applicable to the death of a plaintiff-respondent in an appeal, so as to render it obligatory on the defendant-appellant to make an application to the Court praying that the legal representatives of the deceased be made parties to the appeal; and that, where there has been no such application, the appeal does not abate. Per Petheram, C.J.—The words, “so far as may be,” in the second clause of the first para. of s. 582, must be construed as meaning “so far as may be necessary to carry into effect the remedies contemplated by chap. 21.” Per Mahmood, J., contra, that the object of s. 582 of the Civil Procedure Code is to obviate the necessity of repeating the provisions of chap. 21 so as to make them applicable to appeals, and the words “appellant” and “respondent” as used in the section include both plaintiffs and defendants in an appeal; that the whole Code maintains the analogy between the position of a respondent and that of a defendant for the purposes of being impleaded and brought before the Court; that chap. 21 applies to cases where a plaintiff-respondent has died; and that, in such a case, and where no application has been made, within the period prescribed therefor, praying that the legal representatives of the deceased be made parties in his place, the appeal abates. Also per Mahmood, J.—The word “defendant” as used in art. 171B of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877) must be taken to include a respondent, whether plaintiff or defendant in the suit. Lakshmi Bai v. Balkrishna (I. L. R., 4 Bom. 654), Rajmonee Dabee v. Chandar Kant Sandel (I. L. R., 8 Cal. 440), and Bai Javer v. Hathising Keesising (I. L. R., 9 Bom. 56), referred to.—Narain Das v. Lajja Ram, I. L. R., 7 All. 693. [Feb. 21, 1885.]

ART. 171B, sch. 2, of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877), applies to applications to have the representative of a deceased defendant-respondent made a respondent.—Baldeo v. Bismillah Begam, I. L. R., 9 All. 118. [Nov. 25, 1886.]

369. The marriage of a female plaintiff or defendant shall not cause the suit to abate, but the suit may, notwithstanding, be proceeded with to judgment, and where the decree is against a female defendant, it may thereupon be executed against her alone. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

If the case is one in which the husband is by law liable for the debts of his wife, the decree may, with the permission of the Court, be executed against the husband also; and, in case of judgment for the wife, execution of the decree may, with such permission, be issued upon the application of the husband where the husband is by law entitled to the subject-matter of the decree.

370. The bankruptcy or insolvency of a plaintiff in any suit which his assignee or the receiver appointed under section 351 might maintain for the benefit of his creditors shall not bar the suit, unless such assignee or receiver declines to continue the suit and to give security for the costs thereof within such time as the Court may order.

Ditto.

If the assignee or receiver neglect or refuse to continue the suit and to give such security within the time so ordered, the defendant may apply for the dismissal of the suit on the ground of the plaintiff's bankruptcy or insolvency, and the Court may dismiss the suit and award to the defendant the costs which he has incurred in defending the same, to be proved as a debt against the plaintiff's estate.

Effect of abatement or dismissal.

371. When a suit abates or is dismissed under this chapter, no fresh suit shall be brought on the same cause of action.

Ditto.

But the person claiming to be the legal representative of the deceased or bankrupt or insolvent plaintiff may apply for an order to set aside the order for abatement or dismissal; and, if it be proved that he was prevented by any sufficient cause from continuing the suit, the Court shall set aside the abatement or dismissal upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit.

UPON the death of a sole plaintiff, if no application to revive is made within sixty days from the date of the plaintiff's death, the suit abates. But the Court may, under Act X. of 1877, s. 371, revive the suit on the application of the legal representative of the plaintiff within three years from the time when the right to apply accrues, if he can shew that he was prevented by sufficient cause from continuing the suit.—Bhojyub Dass Johurry v. Doman Thakoor, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 139. [May 12, 1879.]

WHERE a suit was declared abated in 1868 under s. 102 of Act VIII. of 1859 for non-prosecution by the representative of a deceased plaintiff, held that the Civil Procedure Code, s. 271, was no bar to a fresh suit instituted in 1880 on the same cause of action.—Palkunath Ramen Menon v. Mullankaji Sri Kumaran Nambudri, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 31. [April 8, 1881.]

THE defendants attached certain property, which, the plaintiffs alleged, belonged to them. The plaintiffs preferred a claim to the property under s. 246 of Act VIII. of 1859: this claim was disallowed on the 15th August 1877. In June 1878, the plaintiffs brought a suit to establish their title to the property attached, and for confirmation of possession. Pending this suit, the principal defendant died, and the plaintiffs applied for an order to substitute certain persons as defendants. The Court thereupon directed the issue of a summons on the defendants proposed by the plaintiffs to appear and defend the suit; but the plaintiffs failing to pay the costs of the service of this summons, the suit was dismissed on the 14th March 1879. On the 4th March 1880, the plaintiffs again brought a suit to establish their title to the same property, and for confirmation of possession. Held that the order of the 15th August 1877, not being an order passed under s. 283 of Act X. of 1877, art. 11 of sch. 2. of Act XV. of 1877 did not apply, but that art. 120 of sch. 2 was applicable; and that, as the first suit had not been dismissed upon the merits, the plaintiffs were entitled to maintain the second suit.—Bessessur Bhugut v. Murli Sahu, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 163. [July 22, 1882.]

THE plaintiff died on the 28th August 1883, and in December 1884, letters of administration to his estate were granted to the Administrator-General. The defendant died in June 1884, leaving a widow and one son him surviving. By his will he appointed two executors. On the 3rd February 1885, the Administrator-General took out a summons to revive the suit. Held that, notwithstanding the provisions of s. 365 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) and of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877), it was competent for a Judge in chambers to revive the suit by making an order for abatement under s. 366 of the Code, coupled with an order under s. 371 setting aside the order for abatement.—Fulvahu v. Goculdas Vallabhdas, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 275. [Mar. 27, 1885.]

372. In other cases of assignment, creation, or devolution of any interest pending the suit, the suit may, with the leave of the Court, given either with the consent of all parties or after service of notice in writing upon them, and hearing their objections (if any), be continued by or against the person to whom such interest has come, either in addition to, or in substitution for, the person from whom it has passed, as the case may require.

A SUIT was instituted by the trustee appointed under a will against the executrix for the purpose of having the trusts of the will carried into execution. A decree was made and certain directions were given for the purpose of having a scheme settled by which the trusts were to be carried out; but before the scheme was finally settled and approved, and while the proceedings were pending, the case was struck out of the board for want of prosecution. Subsequently both the plaintiff and defendant died. The heirs of the plaintiff then instituted a suit against the Administrator-General as representing the estate of the defendant for carrying the trusts into execution, and prayed that their suit might be considered as supplemental to the original one. Held that the original suit, though no longer upon the board, was capable of revival, and that, if no person were living whose consent might be obtained, or to whom notice might be given, the Court might give leave without any such consent or notice, and that the proper course to pursue was to allow the plaintiffs to amend their plaint by putting it in the form of a petition under Act X. of 1877, s. 372, the defendant being at liberty to put in any answer which he might have done, if the proceeding had been by petition in the first instance.—Gocool Chunder Gossamee v. Administrator-General of Bengal, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 726. [Feb. 5, 1880.]

THE words "pending the suit," in Act X. of 1877, s. 372, relate to a suit in which no final order has been made.—Gocool Chunder Gossamee v. Administrator-General of Bengal, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 726. [Feb. 5, 1880.]

AFTER a decree had been made in a suit, the case was, in 1875, struck out of the board for want of prosecution. No steps were taken to have it restored. In 1879, both the plaintiff and the defendant died. In the same year the heirs of the plaintiff instituted a suit against the administrator of the defendant for the purpose of having the decree in the original suit carried out. This suit was dismissed by the Court of first instance under Act X. of 1877, s. 13; but the Appellate Court, holding that the original suit was subsisting, and might be re-constituted, directed that the plaintiffs should be allowed to amend their plaint by putting it into the form of a petition under s. 372 of the same Act. On a petition by the plaintiffs praying that the original suit might be revived and restored to the board, held that the application was not barred under sch. 2, art. 178. Even if art. 178 was applicable, the application would not be barred, limitation running from the time when the suit was allowed to be re-constituted.—Govind Chunder Goswami v. Rungun Money, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 60. [Mar. 18, 1880.]

IN a suit for the recovery of land against a sole defendant, the latter died before the hearing. Sixty-three days after the death of the defendant, the plaintiff applied to the Court to enter on the record the legal representative of the deceased defendant. On the 22nd of November 1880, the Court rejected the application under the provisions of Act XV. of 1877, sch. 2, cl. 171B, and ordered the suit to abate. On the same day the plaintiff applied to the Court to set aside the order directing the suit to abate, but this application was also rejected on the 20th of September 1881. On appeal to the High Court, held that no appeal lay against the order of the 20th of September 1881, and that an appeal against the order of the 22nd of November 1880 was out of time; but that the High Court would take cognizance of the case under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Held also that the application which was rejected on the 22nd of November 1880 was an application under s. 372, and not under s. 368 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and that the applicant was entitled to make the application within three years, as allowed by Act XV. of 1877, sch. 2, cl. 178. Gocool Chunder Gossamee v. Administrator-General of Bengal (I. L. R., 5 Cal. 726; S.C., 5 C. L. R. 108) referred to.—Benode Mohini Chowdhraiy v. Sharat Chunder Dey Chowdhry and others, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 837. [April 14, 1882.]

THE "cases of assignment, creation, or devolution" of any interest pending a suit, contemplated by s. 372 of the Civil Procedure Code, are those in which "the person to whom such interest has come" is arrayed on the same side in the suit as "the person from whom it has passed." Held, therefore, that a compromise in a suit for land between the plaintiff and one of the defendants, whereby the latter consented to a decree being given to the former for half the land, was not a "case of assignment" of an interest in such land within the meaning of that section.—Radha Prasad Singh v. Rajendra Kisore Singh, I. L. R., 5 All. 209. [Sep. 14, 1882.]

AT an auction-sale held in execution of a decree passed against one Ganpat Anandráv certain property put up for sale was purchased by one Khán Mahomed, the husband of the opponent. Subsequently Krishnaráv Anandráv, the brother of Ganpat Anandráv, brought a suit against the opponent to establish his right to the property purchased by the opponent's husband. On the 17th February 1882, he obtained a decree declaring that he (Krishnaráv Anandráv) was entitled to a half-share of the property in dispute, and an order was made that he should have joint possession with the opponent of one moiety of the property. On the termination of the above suit, which had been brought by Krishnaráv in forma pauperis, he was required to pay the court-fees. For that purpose he procured an advance of Rs. 290 from the applicant on the security of the moiety of the property which was awarded to him by the decree. He passed a deed of sale to the applicant on the understanding that the property should be re-conveyed to him by the applicant on the repayment of the advance with interest. In the meantime cross appeals were filed against the above-mentioned decree passed in favour of Krishnaráv, and at the hearing of the appeal the lower Appellate Court varied the decree of the Subordinate Judge, holding that Krishnaráv Anandráv was entitled to the possession of the property as sought for. From this decree the opponent preferred a second appeal to the High Court, which, at the time of this application, was still pending. Before the hearing of the appeal, Krishnaráv Anandráv died, and the applicant thereupon applied to have his name placed on the record as respondent. Held that the applicant was entitled to be made a party. The analogy of s. 368 is to be extended generally to appeals, and the party appealing may choose his own respondent as representative of deceased. The more specific rule prescribed in that section must prevail, in the cases to which it is exactly applicable, over the more general rule in s. 372. But the rule in s. 368 may well be intended for the case in which the death, and death only, of the defendant constitutes the change of circumstances for which it was thought necessary to provide; but where there has been, not only the death of the respondent, but an alleged prior conveyance to him of the property awarded by the decree appealed against, there is a fact in addition to the fact contemplated by s. 368, and the rule in s. 372, being alone sufficiently inclusive, must apply. An appellant may determine who shall be respondent, but not that any particular person shall not be a respondent. The choice of respondents made by the appellant may be defective through ignorance or fraud, and the real representative of the decree-holder cannot justly be refused an opportunity of maintaining the decision which it is sought to upset.—Rajaram Bhagwat v. Jibai, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 151. [Sep. 15, 1884.]

OF THE WITHDRAWAL AND ADJUSTMENT OF SUITS.

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts,

373. If, at any time after the institution of the suit, the Court is satisfied,

Power to allow plaintiff to withdraw with liberty to bring fresh suit.

fied, on the application of the plaintiff, (a) that the suit must fail by reason of some formal defect, or (b) that there are sufficient grounds for permitting him to withdraw from the suit, or to abandon part of his claim with liberty to bring a fresh suit for the subject-matter of the suit or in respect of the part so abandoned, the Court may grant such permission on such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit.

If the plaintiff withdraw from the suit, or abandon part of his claim, without such permission, he shall be liable for such costs as the Court may award, and shall be precluded from bringing a fresh suit for the same matter or in respect of the same part.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize the Court to permit one of several plaintiffs to withdraw without the consent of the others.

THE plea that the plaintiff had improperly been permitted to withdraw from a former suit with liberty to bring the present one, which had not been taken in the lower Courts, and was not taken in the memorandum of second appeal, was not permitted to be urged at the hearing of the second appeal. Quere.—Whether under s. 373 of Act X. of 1877 the Court ought to permit the plaintiff to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit on the ground that the defence to the suit was such that the suit must fail if proceeded with?—Zahur-un-nissa v. Khuda Yar Khan, I. L. R., 3 All. 523. [Feb. 16, 1881.]

THE proviso in the 3rd clause of s. 373 of the Code of Civil Procedure does not deprive the Court of power to permit one of several co-plaintiffs to withdraw unconditionally from a suit, even though his co-plaintiffs do not consent to his withdrawal.—Mohamaya Chaudhrai v. Durga Churn Shaha, 9 C. L. R. 332. [Aug. 2, 1881.]

WHEN a plaintiff sues to recover possession of property on the allegation that he had purchased it with his own money, and the suit is dismissed in the Court of first instance, the Court of appeal is not justified in giving the plaintiff a decree for a portion of the property, on the ground that the whole was the property of a joint Hindu family in which the plaintiff was a co-sharer. A claim to attached property made under Act VIII. of 1859, s. 246, was dismissed, and the claimant, in the year 1875, instituted a regular suit against the decree-holder under the provisions of that section. The decree-holder then released the property from attachment, and the plaintiff withdrew his suit. The same property was afterwards, in the year 1878, attached again, and sold in execution of the same decree. Held that a subsequent suit for possession of the property against the purchaser at the execution-sale was not barred under s. 97 of Act VIII. of 1859. Eshen Chunder Singh v. Shama Churn Bhutto (11 Moore's I. A. 7) cited.—Mukhoda Soondury Dasi v. Ragn Churn Karmokary I. L. R., 8 Cal. 871. [May 5, 1882.]

THE Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882) does not allow of a plaint or memorandum of appeal being returned to the plaintiff or appellant after a case has been heard on its merits, and just as the plaintiff or appellant discovers that the Court is about to pronounce an adverse decision. There is no provision in the Code for the return of a plaint to a plaintiff after it has been admitted, and the court-fee stamps thereon cancelled. Even if the Code allowed the High Court to return a plaint after the court-fee stamps have been cancelled, the plaint could not be again legally presented in any Court without new stamps being affixed to it. The Executive Government alone have power to remit court-fees, and no Court or Judge has legal authority to admit a plaint which bears only cancelled stamps, or to direct a subordinate Court to admit such a document.—Jagjivan Javherdas Seth v. Magdum Ali, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 487. [Aug. 16, 1883.]

AN order under s. 373 of the Civil Procedure Code, permitting the withdrawal of a suit, with liberty to bring a fresh one, not being made appealable by s. 588, is being a "decree" within the meaning of s. 2, is not appealable. When the plaintiff in a suit applies for permission to withdraw it with liberty to bring a fresh one, such permission should not be granted without the defendant being served with notice to show cause why such permission should not be granted. L, claiming as heir to H, a deceased Hindu, sued K, his widow, and G, a minor, represented by his mother and guardian, B, to have the adoption by K of G set aside, and for certain other reliefs. The matters in difference in the suit were referred to arbitration, and an award was made in favour of the defendants. The plaintiff preferred objections to the award. Before those were disposed of, K died. The Court of first instance subsequently allowed the objections, and set aside the award. The minor defendant then applied to the High Court for revision of the order setting aside the award. This application was rejected on the ground that the order might be impugned on appeal from the decree in the suit. The plaintiff subsequently applied for permission to withdraw the suit, with liberty to bring a fresh one, on the ground that, K having died, he was entitled to possession of the immoveable property left by H. This permission was granted. The minor defendant applied to the High Court for revision. Held that it might have been a very good ground for allowing the plaintiff to withdraw the suit that K, the adoptive father of the minor defendant, had died pendente lite, had no arbitration-proceedings taken place in the course of the suit; but when the parties had referred their differences to arbitration, and an award had been made in favour of the defendant, and had been set aside, and an application for revision of the order setting it aside had been refused, on the ground that the matter could be made the subject of appeal from the final decree in the suit, permission to withdraw the suit and bring a fresh one should not have been granted. The minor defendant might be seriously prejudiced by such a course, and the suit had not abated against him by the death of K, while on the other hand a decree in the suit, if in his favour, would decide the litigation, and, if in favour of the plaintiff, would not prevent his bringing a suit for possession on the separate cause of action which had arisen. Stahlschmidt v. Walford (L. R., 4 Q. B. D. 217) referred to. The High Court refused to allow the plaint in the suit to be amended by the addition of a claim for possession of the property left by H.—Kalián Singh v. Lekhraj Singh, I. L. R., 6 All. 211. [Feb. 4, 1884.]

WHERE a Court has reason to believe that a suit is lawfully brought by a party who has a right to bring it on behalf of a minor, any withdrawal of the suit by that party would have precisely the same effect as the withdrawal of a suit by a person of full age. But where a person acting for a minor has fraudulently withdrawn the minor's suit under s. 97 of Act VIII. of 1859 (corresponding with s. 373 of Act XIV. of 1882), without obtaining leave to bring a fresh suit, and by such withdrawal an absolute statutory prohibition is imposed on the minor from bringing a fresh suit, it is open to the minor to relieve himself from the consequences of the fraud in one of three ways: viz., (1) by an application to the Court in the suit in which the withdrawal took place; (2) by a regular suit to set aside the judgment founded upon the withdrawal; or (3) by bringing a fresh suit for the same purpose, and setting up the fraud as an answer to the statutory bar.—Eshan Ghundra Safooi v. Nundamont Dassce, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 357. [Feb. 5, 1884.]

THE plaintiffs, who were an English joint-stock company registered under the English Companies' Act of 1862, sued the defendant, as a past member of the bank, upon a balance-order of the High Court of Justice in England, dated 24th February 1881, to recover the sum of £378-5. The balance-order recited that it was made upon the application of the official liquidator of the bank, and that there had been no appearance on behalf of the contributories. The defendant pleaded that he had not received notice that his name was about to be placed on the list of contributories, or notice of the application of the official liquidator recited in the balance-order, and he contended that he was not bound by, or liable under, that order. He further pleaded (and it was admitted) that the order for winding up the plaintiffs' bank was in July 1866; that he had filed his petition in insolvency on the 19th November 1866, and had obtained his discharge under s. 60 of the Indian Insolvent Act (Stat. 11 and 12 Vic., c. 21) on the 30th September 1867; and he contended that by that order he was discharged from liability. Held, upon the evidence, that service upon the defendant of the various notices was sufficiently proved. Held also that, although the defendant's insolvency and his discharge under s. 60 of the Indian Insolvent Act, which was subsequent to the order for the winding up of the bank, might have absolved him from further liability to the plaintiffs, and, if pleaded in the Court in England, might have prevented his being placed on the list of contributories, yet that the Court could not, in this suit, give effect to the defendant's discharge. The present suit was a suit upon a foreign judgment, and the defendant could not now be permitted to plead a defence which he had an opportunity of pleading in the foreign Court. In August 1882, the plaintiffs had filed a previous suit against the defendant to recover the said sum of £678-3. That suit was based upon a call-order, dated 11th November 1880, which it sought to enforce. By an order made in that suit on 7th April 1883, the plaintiffs were permitted to withdraw it, with liberty to bring a fresh suit for the same cause of action. The present suit, to enforce a balance-order dated the 24th February 1881, was filed on 11th February 1885. It was contended on behalf of the defendant that the present suit being based upon an order which was in existence at the date of the previous suit, the plaintiffs could not now sue upon it: that the plaintiffs could not abandon the title upon which they claimed in the first suit, and set up a different title in the second. Held that the plaintiffs were not precluded from bringing the second suit upon the balance-order, and that the suit was properly framed.—London, Bombay, and Mediterranean Bank v. Burjorji Soráji Lywála, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 346. [Mar. 31, 1885.]

WHERE, on appeal from a decree dismissing a suit, the Appellate Court, being of opinion that the plaint was informally drawn, and its allegations regarding the cause of action not sufficiently specific, gave the plaintiff permission, under s. 373 of the Civil Procedure Code, to withdraw the suit, with leave to institute a fresh one, held that the order of the Appellate Court was a "decree" within the meaning of the Civil Procedure Code, and afforded a proper ground of second appeal to a High Court. Per Straight, J., that, with reference to the terms of s. 582 of the Civil Procedure Code, the Appellate Court had power to avail itself of the provisions of s. 373, and, therefore, had a discretion to make the order allowing the plaintiff to withdraw the suit, and institute a fresh one. Gregory v. Doolee Chand Kandary Mull (14 W. R., O. J., 17) and Khatoon Koonwar v. Hurdoot Narain Singh (20 W. R. 163) referred to. Also per Straight, J., that it could not be said that the Appellate Court in this case had exercised its discretion so unreasonably or erroneously as to compel the interference of the High Court with it in appeal. Per Tyrrell, J., that it might be taken that the Appellate Court, though not so stating in express terms, meant to set aside, and did set aside, the decree of the Court of first instance, regarding it as a decree which could not have been rightly made, and must be set aside, by reason of the radical defect in the plaint, the basis of the suit and the decree; and that, in this view, there was no legal objection to the exercise by the Appellate Court of the discretionary power of chap. 22 of the Code.—Ganga Ram v. Data Ram, I. L. R., 8 All. 82. [Dec. 18, 1885.]

THE wording of s. 21 of the Specific Relief Act (I. of 1877) is wide enough to cover contracts to refer any matter which can legally be referred to arbitration, and one of such matters is a suit which is proceedings in Court. The parties to a suit, while it was pending, agreed to refer the matters in difference between them to arbitration, and for this purpose applied to the Court for an order of reference under s. 506 of the Civil Procedure Code. The application was granted, arbitrators were appointed, and it was ordered that they should make their award within one week. Before the week had expired, and before any award had been made, one of the parties made an ex parte application under s. 373 of the Code for leave to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit in respect of the same subject-matter. The application was granted, the suit struck off, and a fresh suit instituted in pursuance of the permission thus given by the Court. In defence to this suit it was pleaded that the suit was barred by s. 21 of the Specific Relief Act (I. of 1877). Held that the Court in the former proceedings had no power to revoke the order of reference prior to award except as provided by s. 519 of the Code; that consequently the Court's order under s. 373 was ultra vires if involving such revocation, or, if not involving it, left the order of reference still in force; that in either alternative the suit was barred by s. 21 of the Specific Relief Act; and that it was immaterial that the period within which the award was to be made expired before the bringing of the second action. Per Tyrrell, J., that the suit was barred by the second clause of s. 373, the Court having had no jurisdiction to pass the order under that section, or, having referred the suit to arbitration, to restore the suit to its file, and treat it as awaiting the Court's decision.—Sitgoamber v. Deodatt, I. L. R., 9 All. 168. [Dec. 17, 1886.]

On the 5th September 1874, R, a Hindu, and his sons, borrowed Rs. 5,000 from V, and mortgaged to him certain land, items 1, 2, and 3. On the 7th September 1874, V borrowed Rs. 5,000 from R N, and mortgaged his rights in items 1 and 2 and land of his own to R N. In 1877 R N bought, at a sale in execution of a decree against B, the share of R in the said items 1 and 2, subject to the mortgage created by R on 5th September 1874, and to another mortgage created by R on 11th January 1875. In 1880, R N sued V and the sons of R for arrears of interest due under his mortgage-bond. This suit was withdrawn with liberty to bring a fresh suit for the principal and interest due under the bond. In 1885, R N sued the sons of R and V to recover principal and interest due under his mortgage-bond. V pleaded that, as R N had bought V's share in items 1 and 2, subject to the mortgages created by him, R N's rights as mortgagee were merged in his rights as purchaser. R's sons pleaded, inter alia, that the suit was barred by the provisions of ss. 43 and 373 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Held that the claim of R N was neither merged nor barred.—Venkata v. Banga, I. L. R., 10 Mad. 160. [Jan. 11, 1887.]

In a suit brought in a District Munsif's Court to declare certain land liable to be sold in execution of a decree for more than Rs. 2,500, the defendants pleaded that the Court had no jurisdiction. The Munsif allowed the plaintiff to amend the plaint by stating that he abandoned his claim to execute the decree against the land for more than Rs. 2,500. On appeal, the District Judge held that the plaint could not be amended after the first hearing. Held, on appeal to the High Court, that the claim was not one which could be amended so as to bring the suit within the pecuniary jurisdiction of the District Munsif.—Anaji v. Rāmā Kūrup, I. L. R., 10 Mad. 152. [Jan. 19, 1887.]

374. In any fresh suit instituted on permission granted under the last preceding section, the plaintiff shall be bound by the law of limitation in the same manner as if the first suit had not been brought. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

THE rule laid down in s. 374 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act X. of 1877), that, where a suit is withdrawn with leave to bring a fresh suit, the plaintiff shall be bound by the law of limitation in the same manner as if the first suit had not been brought, applies to applications for execution; and, therefore, in counting the time of three years prescribed by the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877), sch. 2, art. 179, cl. 4, an application allowed to be withdrawn must be discarded as if it had never been presented. The rule created by s. 374 of the Code of Civil Procedure is, in such a case, not removed by s. 1 of the Limitation Act, as causes for which the withdrawal of a suit or application may be permitted are not causes "of a like nature" with defect of jurisdiction.—Pirjāde v. Pirjāde, I. L. R., 6 Bom. 681. [Sep. 5, 1882.]

THE holder of a decree for money, dated the 7th June 1879, applied, on the 20th July 1880, for execution thereof, but it appeared that in certain particulars the decree required correction, and it was therefore ordered, at the request of the pleader for the decree-holder, that the application should be dismissed, and the decree returned to him for amendment. The next application for execution of the decree was made by the decree-holder on the 19th February 1883. Held that the application of the 20th July 1880 having been put in and afterwards taken back by the decree-holder, the proceeding became, to all intents and purposes, as though no application had been made; that therefore it could have no effect as an application made in accordance with law for execution within the meaning of art. 179, sch. 2, of the Limitation Act; that applying the rule contained in s. 374 of the Civil Procedure Code, in accordance with s. 647, to the application for execution of the 19th February 1883, the question of limitation must be determined as if the first application had never been filed; and that the application now in question, was consequently barred by limitation. Rāmanandan v. Periatambi (I. L. R., 6 Mad. 250) dissented from. Pirjāde v. Pirjāde (I. L. R., 6 Bom. 681) referred to.—Kifayat Ali v. Ram Singh, I. L. R., 7 All. 369. [Jan. 24, 1885.]

THE plaintiff obtained a decree in 1874, and applied for its execution, first on the 4th of August 1875, then on the 6th of July 1878, and again on the 23rd of July 1880. The third application was withdrawn with permission to apply again. On the 30th November 1882, the plaintiff made his present application. Held that the present application was not time-barred. The rule laid down in s. 374 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882)—that where a suit is withdrawn with leave to bring a fresh suit, the plaintiff shall be bound by the law of limitation in the same manner as if the first suit had not been brought—does not apply to applications for execution.—Tarághand Megráj v. Káshináth Trimbak, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 62. [July 21, 1885.]

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

375. If a suit be adjusted wholly or in part by any lawful agreement or compromise, or if the defendant satisfy the plaintiff in respect to the whole or any part of the matter of the suit, such agreement, compromise, or satisfaction, shall be recorded, and the Court shall pass a decree in accordance therewith so far as it relates to the suit, and such decree shall be final, so far as relates to so much of the subject-matter of the suit as is dealt with by the agreement, compromise, or satisfaction.

AFTER the hearing of the suit had begun, the plaintiffs and defendants came to an agreement, by which they settled all the matters in dispute between them in the suit. The agreement was in writing, and dealt in one clause with the dispute, the subject-matter of the suit, and in a second clause with another dispute of long standing between the parties, with which the suit had nothing to do. The plaintiffs subsequently objecting to consent to a decree being taken in terms of the first clause of the agreement, the defendants took out a rule nisi, calling on the plaintiffs to show cause why the agreement should not be recorded in Court, and why the Court should not pass a decree in accordance therewith, under the provisions of s. 375 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882). The rule was argued on affidavits on either side, the plaintiffs objecting that the above section did not apply to such a case as this, and that, in any case, the matter could not be decided on affidavits, but evidence must be gone into. Held that s. 375 gave the Court the power to deal with such a case as this in the manner required, and that this was a proper case in which to exercise such a power; and that, in the circumstances of this case, no definite procedure having been enjoined by the Code, the matter might properly be decided on affidavits. Rule made absolute accordingly.—Ruttonsey Lálji v. Pooribái, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 304. [June 15, 1883.]

AFTER suit filed by the plaintiff against several defendants, one of whom was an infant a petition of compromise, entered into between the adult parties, was filed in Court. The petition stated the terms of arrangement, and also that an application would be made by the guardian of the minor praying the Court to allow the compromise to be carried out on his behalf. Ten days after the petition of compromise was filed, the first defendant and the plaintiff presented petitions to the Court withdrawing from the compromise, and praying that the suit should proceed. The second defendant presented a petition praying that the compromise should be recorded, and a decree passed according to its terms. The Court made a decree in accordance with the prayer of the second defendant's petition. The first defendant appealed. Held that an appeal lay, and that the lower Court was wrong in enforcing the compromise at the instance of the second defendant. Seemle, that s. 375 of the Code of Civil Procedure merely covers cases in which all parties consent to have the terms entered into carried out, and judgment entered up. Ruttonsey Lálji v. Pooribái (I. L. R., 7 Bom. 340) questioned. Hara Sundari Debi v. Kumar Dukhinessur Malia, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 250. [Jan. 26, 1885.]

By an agreement made in writing before the hearing, the parties to a suit entered into a compromise by which the plaintiff agreed, for consideration, to withdraw the suit. When the case came on for hearing, plaintiff refused to fulfil his promise. The defendant having produced the agreement, the Munsif held that it must be enforced, and dismissed the suit. On appeal, the District Judge held that the agreement could not be treated as a compromise, as the plaintiff did not consent, and remanded the suit. Held that the agreement could be enforced.—Ruttonsey Lálji v. Pooribái, (I. L. R., 7 Bom. 304) approved.—Karuppan and others v. Rámásámi, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 482. [April 17, 1885.]

THE parties to an appeal, in which an issue had been remitted for trial to the Lower Court, having presented a petition to the Lower Court, stating that the suit had been compromised and the terms of the compromise, requested the Lower Court to move the Appellate Court to pass a decree in accordance with such terms. Before a decree was passed, one of the parties objected to the compromise being accepted. Held that it was open to the Court, such objection notwithstanding, to pass a decree in accordance with the agreement. Ruttonjee Lalji v. Pooribai (I. L. R., 7 Bom. 304) and Karuppan v. Ramasami (I. L. R., 8 Mad. 482) followed; Hara Sundari Debi v. Kumar Dukhinessur Malia (I. L. R., 11 Cal. 250) observed upon. An oral agreement by the parties to a suit, that a decree be passed creating a charge on immoveable property above Rs. 100 in value, is not rendered inoperative by s. 59 of the Transfer of Property Act. The parties to an appeal applied to the Court to pass a decree in accordance with the terms of a compromise, and before decree was passed, one of the parties objected to such decree being passed on the ground that certain conditions precedent to be performed by the other party had not been performed. The Court (this being denied by the other party) called for affidavits in proof of the terms of the agreement of compromise, and, these being found not to be sufficiently conclusive, directed the Lower Court to take evidence on the point.—Appasami v. Mathuram I. L. R., 9 Mad. 103. [Sep. 28 1885.]

THE only compromise which a Court can in any case be bound under s. 375 of the Code of Civil Procedure to enforce, is one which adjusts, wholly or in part, the suit; matters going beyond the suit cannot, if included in a compromise, be so enforced. A Court refusing to grant a decree on a compromise going beyond the suit cannot, however grant a decree modifying the terms of the proposed compromise, but must leave the parties to proceed with the suit as they may be advised.—Fajaleh Ali Miah v. Kamarudden Bhuya. I. L. R., 13 Cal. 170. [July 10-1886.]

CHAPTER XXIII.

OF PAYMENT INTO COURT.

376. The defendant in any suit to recover a debt or damages may, at any stage of the suit, deposit in Court such sum of money as he considers a satisfaction in full of the claim. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

377. Notice in writing of the deposit shall be given through the Court by the defendant to the plaintiff, and the amount of the deposit shall (unless the Court otherwise directs) be paid to the plaintiff on his application. Ditto.

378. No interest shall be allowed to the plaintiff on any sum deposited by the defendant from the date of the receipt of such notice, whether the sum deposited be in full of the claim or fall short thereof. Ditto.

379. If the plaintiff accept such amount only as satisfaction in part of his claim, he may prosecute his suit for the balance; and if the Court decides that the deposit by the defendant was a full satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim, the plaintiff must pay the costs of the suit incurred after the deposit, and the costs incurred previous thereto, so far as they were caused by excess in the plaintiff's claim. Ditto.

If the plaintiff accept such amount as satisfaction in full of his claim, he shall present to the Court a statement to that effect, and such statement shall be filed, and the Court shall pass judgment accordingly, and, in directing by whom the costs of each party are to be paid, the Court shall consider which of the parties is most to blame for the litigation.

Illustrations.

(a.) A owes B Rs. 100. B sues A for the amount, having made no demand for payment, and having no reason to believe that the delay caused by making a demand would place him at a disadvantage. On the plaint being filed, A pays the money into Court. B accepts it in full satisfaction of his claim, but the Court should not allow him any costs, the litigation being presumably groundless on his part.

(b.) B sues A under the circumstances mentioned in illustration (a). On the plaint being filed, A disputes the claim. Afterwards A pays the money into Court. B accepts it in full satisfaction of his claim. The Court should also give B his costs of suit, A's conduct having shown that the litigation was necessary.

(c.) A owes B Rs. 100, and is willing to pay him that sum without suit. B claims Rs. 150, and sues A for that amount. On the plaint being filed, A pays Rs. 100 into Court, and disputes only his liability to pay the remaining Rs. 50. B accepts the Rs. 100 in full satisfaction of his claim. The Court should order him to pay A's costs.

CHAPTER XXIV.

OF REQUIRING SECURITY FOR COSTS.

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

380. If, at the institution or at any subsequent stage of a suit, it appears to the Court that a sole plaintiff is, or (when there are more plaintiffs than one) that all the plaintiffs are, residing out of British India, and that such plaintiff does not, or that no one of such plaintiff's does, possess any sufficient immoveable property within British India independent of the property in suit, the Court may, either of its own motion or on the application of any defendant, order the plaintiff or plaintiffs, within a time to be fixed by the order, to give security for the payment of all costs incurred and likely to be incurred by any defendant.

When security for costs may be required from plaintiff at any stage of suit.

THE meaning to be given to the word "residence" in legislative enactments depends upon the intention of the Legislature in framing the particular provision in which the word is used. The 'residence' intended in s. 380 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), is residence under such circumstances as will afford a reasonable probability that the plaintiff will be forthcoming when the suit is decided.—Mahomed Shuffi v. Laldin Abdula, I. L. R., 3 Bopn. 227. [July 30, 1878.]

HELD that a plaintiff, being a resident in Wadhwan, in Kathiwar, and possessed of immoveable property in the cantonment there, could not be required to give security for costs under s. 380 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), the cantonment of Wadhwan being within the limits of British India.—Triccam Panachand v. Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway Company, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 244. [Mar. 17, 1885.]

Ditto.

381. In the event of such security not being furnished within the time so fixed, the Court shall dismiss the suit, unless the plaintiff or plaintiffs be permitted to withdraw therefrom under the provisions of section 373.

Effect of failure to furnish security.

THE definition of "decree" in s. 2 of the Civil Procedure Code means that where the proceeding of the Court finally disposes of the suit, so long as it remains upon the record, it is a "decree." Held by the Full Bench that an order passed under s. 381 of the Civil Procedure Code, dismissing a suit for failure by the plaintiff to furnish security for costs as ordered, was the decree in the suit, and appealable as such, and consequently was not open to revision by the High Court under s. 622 of the Code.—Williams (J. R.) v. Brown (T. A.), I. L. R., 8 All. 108. [Jan. 23, 1886.]

Ditto

382. Whoever leaves British India under such circumstances as to afford reasonable probability that he will not be forthcoming whenever he may be called upon to pay costs shall be deemed to be residing out of British India within the meaning of section 380.

CHAPTER XXV.

OF COMMISSIONS.

A.—Commissions to examine Witnesses.

383. Any Court may, in any suit, issue a commission for the examination, on interrogatories or otherwise, of persons resident within the local limits of its jurisdiction, who are exempted under this Code from attending the Court, or who are, from sickness or infirmity, unable to attend.

Cases in which Court may issue commission to examine witness. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

384. Such order may be made by the Court either of its own motion, or on the application, supported by affidavit or otherwise, of any party to the suit, or of the witness to be examined.

Order for commission. Ditto.

385. The commission for the examination of a person who resides within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court issuing the same may be issued to any person whom the Court thinks fit to execute the same.

When witness resides within Court's jurisdiction. Ditto.

386. Any Court may, in any suit, issue a commission for the examination of—Persons for whose examination commission may issue. Ditto.

- (a) any person resident beyond the local limits of its jurisdiction ;
- (b) persons who are about to leave such limits before the date on which they are required to be examined in Court ; and
- (c) civil and military officers of Government, who cannot, in the opinion of the Judge, attend the Court without detriment to the public service.

Such commission may be issued to any Court, not being a High Court or the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such person resides, or to any pleader of a High Court whom the Court issuing the commission thinks fit to appoint.

The Court, on issuing any commission under this section, shall direct whether the commission shall be returned to itself or to any subordinate Court.

The issue of a commission for the examination of an absent witness, without notice to the opposite party, even if not illegal, is objectionable.—Tarucknath Mookerjee and others v. Gouree Churn Mookerjee, 3 W. R. 147. [July 20, 1865.]

TEMPORARY imprisonment beyond the jurisdiction of a Small Cause Court was held not to bar the jurisdiction of that Court in respect of defendants who formerly resided within its jurisdiction, and whose families continued to reside there, there being, moreover, nothing to show that the defendants had no intention of not returning to their former place of abode on the termination of their imprisonment. A Magistrate is not bound to execute a commission of a Small Cause Court directing him to take the evidence of prisoners in jail, in a case in which none of the circumstances existed authorizing that Court to issue the commission.—Gopal Chunder Sircar v. Kurnodhar Moochee and others, 7 W. R. 349. [April 6, 1867.]

A PARTY to a suit has a legal right to apply to a Court for a summons to a witness, or for a commission to examine a witness. The Court should grant the application as a matter of course, without considering whether the applicant can derive any advantage therefrom.—Huree Dass Bysack v. Meer Moazzum Hossein, 15 W. R. 447. [April 26, 1871.]

AN application for the issue of a commission should be supported by some reason other than the mere distance of place of residence of the witness. If the witness is a stranger, a commission will be right and reasonable ; but not if he is a servant of the party applying.—Amrith Nath Jha v. Dhunput Singh Bahadoor, 20 W. R. 253. [July 10, 1873.]

Extending to Provincial B.
C. Courts.

387. When any Court to which application is made for the issue of a commission for the examination of a person residing at any place not within British India is satisfied that his evidence is necessary, the Court may issue such commission.

UNDER s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure, interlocutory orders passed under s. 387 refusing applications for the issue of a commission to examine witnesses, or, under s. 130, directing the production of documents, cannot be revised.—In re Nizam of Hyderabad, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 256. [Feb. 22, 1886.]

Ditto.

Court to examine witness pursuant to commission.

388. Every Court receiving a commission for the examination of any person shall examine him pursuant thereto.

Ditto.

389. After the commission has been duly executed, it shall be returned, together with the evidence taken under it, to the Court out of which it issued, unless the order for issuing the commission has otherwise directed, in which case the commission shall be returned in terms of such order; and the commission and the return thereto, and the evidence taken under it, shall (subject to the provisions of the next following section) form part of the record of the suit.

Ditto.

390. Evidence taken under a commission shall not be read as evidence in the suit without the consent of the party against whom the same is offered, unless

(a) the person who gave the evidence is beyond the jurisdiction of the Court, or dead, or unable, from sickness or infirmity, to attend to be personally examined, or exempted from personal appearance in Court, or

(b) the Court, in its discretion, dispenses with the proof of any of the circumstances mentioned in the last preceding clause, and authorizes the evidence of any person being read as evidence in the suit, notwithstanding proof that the cause for taking such evidence by commission has ceased at the time of reading the same.

DOCUMENTS attached to the return of a commission, and identified with the documents referred to in the evidence, may be read at the hearing of the suit in which the commission issued, unless they have been objected to on being tendered in evidence before the commission. Objections to the admissibility of such documents cannot be taken at the hearing of the suit.—Struthers (G. M.) v. Wheeler (C. E.), 6 C. L. R. 109. [April 14, 1890.]

Ditto.

Provisions as to execution and return of commissions to apply to commissions issued by foreign Courts.

391. The provisions hereinbefore contained as to the execution and return of commissions shall apply to commissions issued by

(a) Courts situate beyond the limits of British India and established by the authority of Her Majesty or of the Governor-General in Council, or

(b) Courts situate in any part of the British Empire other than British India, or

(c) Courts of any foreign country for the time being in alliance with Her Majesty.

B.—Commissions for local Investigations.

Ditto.

392. In any suit or proceeding in which the Court deems a local investigation to be requisite or proper for the purpose of elucidating any matter in dispute, or of ascertaining the market-value of any property, or the amount of any means-profits or damages or annual net-profits, and the same cannot be conveniently conducted by the Judge in person, the Court may issue a commission to such person as it thinks fit, directing him to make such investigation and to report thereon to the Court :

Provided that, when the Local Government has made rules as to the persons to whom such commission shall be issued, the Court shall be bound by such rules.

393. The Commissioner, after such local inspection as he deems necessary, and after reducing to writing the evidence taken by him, shall return such evidence together with his report in writing, signed with his name, to the Court.

Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

The report of the Commissioner and the evidence taken by him (but not the evidence without the report) shall be evidence in the suit, and shall form part of the record ; but the Court, or, with the permission of the Court, any of the parties to the suit, may examine the Commissioner personally in open Court touching any of the matters referred to him or mentioned in his report, or as to the manner in which he has made the investigation.

C. — Commissions to examine Accounts.

Ditto.

394. In any suit in which an examination or adjustment of accounts is necessary, the Court may issue a commission to such person as it thinks fit, directing him to make such examination or adjustment.

THE effect of the proviso to s. 3 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1877 taken in connection with the definition of the word "decree" in s. 2 is, that in all suits pending when that Code came into force, the practice and procedure to be followed down to the final result of such suits (i. e., when nothing remains to be done, but to execute the decree or to appeal from it), are the same as previously existed, but that in all subsequent proceedings in execution of the decree or in appeal from it, the practice and procedure provided by the Civil Procedure Code of 1877 are to be observed. The word "decree" in s. 3 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1877 means an order final in its nature, and does not include an interlocutory order, such as an order of reference to take accounts, although such order may in general be properly termed a 'decree,' and, therefore, a suit which has been referred by the Court to the Commissioner to take accounts is still in a stage "prior to decree" within the meaning of s. 3 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1877. Hirji Jina v. Narain Mulji (12 Bom. H. C. R. 129) distinguished. The general nature of a certificate or report—whether general or separate—by the Commissioner for taking accounts, is, that it should, in the case of a general certificate, comprise the result of all the proceedings under the decree or order of reference, or, in the case of a separate certificate or report, that it should comprise the result of some or one of such proceedings, and the Court is not bound to consider a certificate granted by the Commissioner unless he has certified what may be regarded as the result either of the whole inquiry referred to him or some branch or part of it. The power of the Commissioner to grant certificates, and of the Court to deal with motions made with reference thereto, considered. Quære—Whether, where a suit has been referred to the Commissioner for the purpose of having accounts taken, such accounts, in the absence of any direction in the decree or order of reference that stated or settled accounts are not to be disturbed, should not be taken without regard to any previous accounts stated or settled between the parties?—Rustomji Burjorji v. Kessowji Naik, I. L. R., 3 Bom. 161. [Aug. 13, 1878.]

In a suit for an account against an agent, the plaintiff stated that the defendant had not submitted proper accounts of his agency, and prayed that the defendant might be ordered to produce certain papers, and that, on failure to submit the accounts, he might be decreed to pay the plaintiff Rs. 1,200 by way of damages. The plaintiff also alleged that, in consequence of the defendant's negligence and mismanagement, the plaintiff believed that he had sustained a loss of Rs. 5,000, and prayed for a decree for this sum. Held that no decree could be made for the sums mentioned, or any other sum, until an account had been taken, and the amount due from the defendant ascertained. Per Field, J.—It is the duty of an agent to render proper accounts to his employer irrespective of any contract to that effect. And he does not discharge that duty by merely delivering to his employer a set of written accounts without attending to explain them, and produce the vouchers by which the items of disbursements are supported. Method to be followed on taking accounts in the mufassal stated. If the taking of accounts by the Judge would occasion a waste of public time, he should resort to the provisions of ss. 394 and 395 of the Civil Procedure Code, and furnish the Commissioner with such part of the proceedings and such detailed instructions as may appear necessary. In order to enable an agent to prepare accounts to be furnished to his principal, he should be allowed to have reasonable access, at proper times and in the presence of responsible persons, to such books and papers in the principal's possession as may be necessary for the preparation of the accounts.—Annoda Persad Roy v. Dwarkanath Gangopadhyaya, 1 L. R., 6 Cal. 754. [Feb. 1, 1881.]

THE Code of Civil Procedure does not authorize the dismissal of a suit on refusal or failure of a party to deposit the amount ordered by the Court as remuneration to a Commissioner appointed under s. 394 to examine accounts. The remuneration of a Commissioner appointed by the Court to examine accounts should, as a rule, be a definite amount, and not at a monthly allowance.—Rājāva Chariār v. Vēdānta Chariār, 1 L. R., 3 Mad. 259. [Aug. 22, 1881.]

WHERE a Commissioner was appointed by a Court under s. 180 of Act VIII. of 1859 to take accounts at the request of the plaintiffs, and his costs were not prepaid under s. 182, and the defendant was, by the decree, ordered to pay the costs of the suit, but the costs of the Commissioner were not entered in the decree, held in a suit by the Commissioner against the plaintiffs for remuneration for his labour that the plaintiffs were liable.—Gopalaratnamayyar v. Bupala Narasimma Nayudu, 1 L. R., 4 Mad. 399. [Jan. 6, 1882.]

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

395. The Court shall furnish the Commissioner with such part of the proceedings and such detailed instructions as appear necessary, and the instructions shall distinctly specify whether the Commissioner is merely to transmit the proceedings which he may hold on the inquiry, or also to report his own opinion on the point referred for his examination.

The proceedings of the Commissioner shall be received in evidence in the suit, unless the Court has reason to be dissatisfied with them, in which case the Court shall direct such further inquiry as is requisite.

IN a suit for an account against an agent, the plaintiff stated that the defendant had not submitted proper accounts of his agency, and prayed that the defendant might be ordered to produce certain papers, and that, on failure to submit the accounts, he might be decreed to pay the plaintiff Rs. 1,200 by way of damages. The plaintiff also alleged that, in consequence of the defendant's negligence and mismanagement, the plaintiff believed that he had sustained a loss of Rs. 5,000, and prayed for this sum. Held that no decree could be made for the sums mentioned, or any other sum, until an account had been taken, and the amount due from the defendant ascertained. Per Field, J.—It is the duty of an agent to render proper accounts to his employer irrespective of any contract to that effect. And he does not discharge that duty by merely delivering to his employer a set of written accounts without attending to explain them, and produce the vouchers by which the items of disbursements are supported. Method to be followed on taking accounts in the mufassal stated. If the taking of accounts by the Judge would occasion a waste of public time, he should resort to the provisions of ss. 394 and 395 of the Civil Procedure Code, and furnish the Commissioner with such part of the proceedings and such detailed instructions as may appear necessary. In order to enable an agent to prepare accounts to be furnished to his principal, he should be allowed to have reasonable access, at proper times and in the presence of responsible persons, to such books and papers in the principal's possession as may be necessary for the preparation of the accounts.—Annoda Persad Roy v. Dwarkanath Gangopadhyaya, 1 L. R., 6 Cal. 754. [Feb. 1, 1881.]

IN a suit for an account by a principal against his agent, the plaintiff should ask in his plaint that a proper account may be taken. If the defendant is found liable to render such account for a certain period, the Court should make an interlocutory decree declaring that he is so liable, and direct him to file an account in Court within a fixed period. This decree may be enforced under s. 260 of the Civil Procedure Code. After an account has been filed, the plaintiff should be allowed reasonable time to examine it. If the objections are numerous, the procedure prescribed by ss. 394 and 395 and form 157 of sch. 4 to the Code should be followed. When the accounts have been taken, the Court must determine the amount due, and the final decree should be for the payment of this amount, and also, if necessary, for the delivery of any papers, vouchers, or other documents which have come into the hands of the agent in the course of his employment. In a suit for an account against A and B as agents, the plaintiff asked for an account as against A from 1265 (1858) to 1283 (1876), and as against B from 1281 (1874) to 1283 (1876). Held that there had been no misjoinder. The seven days within which a notice of objections to a decree by a respondent under s. 561 of the Code must be given is not a period to which the provisions of para. 2 of s. 5 of the Limitation Act can be extended, and the Court has no discretion to extend the period. Forms of keeping accounts of joint property in the mufassal considered.—Degamber Mouzunylar v. Kalyath Roy, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 654. [July 4, 1881.]

D.—Commission to make Partition.

396. In any suit in which the partition of immoveable property not paying revenue to Government appears to the Court to be necessary, the Court, after ascertaining the several parties interested in such property and their several rights therein, may issue a commission to such persons as it thinks fit to make a partition according to such rights. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

The Commissioners shall ascertain and inspect the property, and shall divide the same into as many shares as may be directed by the order under which the commission issues, and shall allot such shares to the parties, and may, if authorized thereto by the said order, award sums to be paid for the purpose of equalizing the value of the shares.

The Commissioners shall then prepare and sign a report, or (if they cannot agree) separate reports, appointing the share of each party, and distinguishing each share (if so directed by the said order) by metes and bounds. Such report or reports shall be annexed to the commission, and transmitted to the Court; and the Court, after hearing any objections which the parties may make to the report or reports, shall either quash the same and issue a new commission, or (where the Commissioners agree in their report) pass a decree in accordance therewith.

In a suit for partition, the Subordinate Judge appointed an amín under s. 396 of the Civil Procedure Code to effect a partition. The amín made his report, which was objected to on the merits by the defendant, but ultimately the report was confirmed, the defendant having acquiesced in the proceedings. On appeal to the District Judge, the defendant took an objection, that the appointment of the amín was irregular. Held that, having acquiesced in the proceedings so far, it was too late for the defendant to take the objection. Per Pontifex, J. (Field, J., doubting).—In a suit for partition, it is competent to the Court, in its preliminary decree, to appoint any one person whom it thinks fit to be a Commissioner to make the partition under s. 396 of the Civil Procedure Code. The section uses the word 'Commissioners,' but it is not necessary for the purposes of partition that there should be more than one Commissioner, and by force of the General Clauses Act, the word 'Commissioners' may be read in the singular number. The intention of s. 396 is, that upon the first hearing of a suit, the Court shall determine whether the plaintiff is entitled to a partition, and shall ascertain who the several persons entitled to the property are, and shall direct by a preliminary decree or order that Commissioners be appointed to make the partition.—Gayan Chunder Sen v. Durga Churu Sen, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 318. [April 7, 1881.]

has been filed, the plaintiff should be allowed reasonable time to examine it. If the objections are numerous, the procedure prescribed by ss. 394 and 395 and form 157 of sch. 4 to the Code should be followed. When the accounts have been taken, the Court must determine the amount due, and the final decree should be for the payment of this amount, and also, if necessary, for the delivery of any papers, vouchers, or other documents which have come into the hands of the agent in the course of his employment. In a suit for an account against A and B as agents, the plaintiff asked for an account as against A from 1265 (1858) to 1283 (1876), and as against B from 1281 (1874) to 1283 (1876). Held that there had been no misjoinder. The seven days within which a notice of objections to a decree by a respondent under s. 561 of the Code must be given is not a period to which the provisions of para. 2 of s. 5 of the Limitation Act can be extended, and the Court has no discretion to extend the period. Forum of keeping accounts of joint property in the mufassal considered.—Degamber Mozumdar v. Kallynath Roy, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 654. [July 4, 1881.]

WHERE in a suit for partition possession was sought of a definite share of a property consisting of a number of houses, held that the principle in such cases is that, if a property can be partitioned without destroying the intrinsic value of the whole property or of the shares, such partition ought to be made; but where partition cannot be made without destroying the intrinsic value of the property, then a money-compensation should be given.—Aslanullah v. Kali Kukur Kur, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 675. [April 17, 1884.]

AN order under s. 396 of the Code of Civil Procedure declaring the rights of the parties in a partition-suit, but leaving their shares to be determined in execution of the decree, is a "decree" within the meaning of s. 2 of the Code, and an appeal, therefore, lies from such order.—In the Matter of the Petition of Bhola Nath Dass; Bhola Nath Dass v. Sonamoni Dasi, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 273. [July 30, 1885.]

THE proceedings contemplated by s. 396 of Act XIV. of 1882 are proceedings in a suit before decree, and in order to enable the Court in that suit to determine exactly the terms of that decree. Where those proceedings, however, were left to be taken in execution of the decree, the High Court, treating it as an error in point of form, and without deciding whether or not an objection, if it had been taken, would have been fatal to the proceedings, dealt with the case in the same way as was done in Gyan Chunder Sen v. Durga Churn Sen (I. L. R., 7 Cal. 318) regarding the further proceedings taken after decree declaring the rights of the several parties as proceedings to obtain a decree on further consideration. Where in a partition-suit an order was made in the course of such proceedings by which the position of some of the parties to the suit was determined, but no declaration was made of the exact rights of each of the parties, held, it was a mere interlocutory order, and no appeal would lie from it. Seemle, such an order is not a decree within the terms of s. 2, Act XIV. of 1882. Bholanath Dass v. Sonamoni Dasi (I. L. R., 12 Cal. 272) distinguished.—Bhoobun Moyi Dabee v. Shurut Sandery Dabee, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 275. [Aug. 12, 1885.]

WHERE an Appeal Court made a decree or order directing a commission to issue directed to an amir to make a partition of certain property into certain specified shares, and to allot the shares to the parties to the suit, held that such order amounted to a decree within the meaning of s. 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and that, though called a decree, it was in fact an order in the terms of s. 396 of the Code, and was a proper order to make.—Bejin Behari Moduck v. Lal Mohun Chattopadhyay, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 209. [Aug. 31, 1885.]

E.—General Provisions.

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

397. Before issuing any commission under this chapter, the Court may order such sum (if any) at it thinks reasonable for the expenses of the commission to be, within a time to be fixed by the Court, paid into Court by the party at whose instance or for whose benefit the commission is issued.

Ditto.

Powers of Commissioners.

398. Any Commissioner appointed under this chapter may, unless otherwise directed by the order of appointment,

(a) examine the parties themselves and any witness whom they or any of them may produce, and any other person whom the Commissioner thinks proper to call upon to give evidence in the matter referred to him ;

(b) call for and examine documents and other things relevant to the subject of inquiry ;

(c) at any reasonable time enter upon or into any land or building mentioned in the order,

399. The provisions of this Code relating to the summoning, attendance, and examination of witnesses, and to the remuneration of, and penalties to be imposed upon, witnesses, shall apply to persons required to give evidence or to produce documents under this chapter, whether the commission in execution of which they are so required has been issued by a Court situated within, or by a Court situate beyond, the limits of British India. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

For the purposes of this section, the Commissioner shall be deemed to be a Court of Civil Judicature.

400. Whenever a commission is issued under this chapter, the Court shall direct that the parties to the suit shall appear before the Commissioner in person or by their agents or pleaders.

Ditto.

Procedure ex parte.

If the parties do not so appear, the Commissioner may proceed ex parte.

PART III.

OF SUITS IN PARTICULAR CASES.

CHAPTER XXVI.

SUITS BY PAUPERS.

Suits may be brought in forma pauperis.

401. Subject to the following rules, any suit may be brought by a pauper.

Ditto.

Explanation—A person is a “pauper” when he is not possessed of sufficient means to enable him to pay the fee prescribed by law for the plaint in such suit, or where no such fee is prescribed, when he is not entitled to property worth one hundred rupees other than his necessary wearing apparel and the subject-matter of the suit.

WHERE the representative of a pauper applies to bring a suit in forma pauperis, there is no necessity for the Court to inquire whether such representative is also a pauper, but the Court, if satisfied that he is the legal representative, should allow him to carry on the suit.—Bhagbut Doss v. Bularan Doss, 3 W. R. 20. [May 15, 1865.]

A NEXT friend, who is a pauper, can bring a suit on behalf of a pauper minor.—Golaupnounce Dossce v. Prosonomoyte Dossce, 11 B. L. R. 73. [July 14, 1873.]

WHERE a suit was brought on behalf of a pauper minor by a next friend who was also a pauper, it was held that the failure of such suit was no ground for saddling the costs on the next friend.—Brijessurce Doss v. Kishore Doss, 25 W. R. 316. [May 22, 1876.]

ALTHOUGH Chap. XXVI. of the Civil Procedure Code only provides for suits to be brought by a pauper, the Court has power to allow a defendant to defend in forma pauperis.—Doorga Churn Doss v. Nottokally Dossce, 1 L. R., 5 Cal. 819. [Mar. 15, 1880.]

THE rule of English practice which prevents a minor from instituting a suit in forma pauperis through his next friend, unless he gives proof not only that he is himself a pauper, but that the next friend is a pauper, and that he cannot get any substantial person to act as his next friend, is not to be found in, or deduced from the provisions of, the Civil Procedure Code.—Venkatanarasayya v. Achemna, 1 L. R., 3 Mad. 3. [Feb. 28, 1881.]

THE administrator of the estate of a deceased person may apply to sue in forma pauperis under the provisions of Chap. XXVI. of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882.—In re Bill, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 390. [Mar. 7, 1884.]

It is competent for the Court to allow a suit not originally instituted in forma pauperis to be continued in forma pauperis.—Revji Pátil v. Sahharám, I. L. R., 8 Bom. 615. [July 28, 1884.]

THE petitioners prayed to be allowed as paupers to sue the respondent for certain property specified in the schedule annexed to their petition. At the hearing of the petition under ss. 408 and 409 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) the respondent appeared and deposited in Court some of the articles claimed by the petitioners to which he admitted they were entitled. The value of the articles deposited was Rs. 100. The petitioners acknowledged that the articles were their property, but declined to take possession of them. Held that the petitioners were not paupers as defined by s. 401 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), being possessed of property worth Rs. 100 other than the subject-matter of the suit, and that they could not, therefore, be allowed to sue as paupers. The inquiry into pauperism under ss. 408 and 409 takes place before any suit is in existence, for, until an application to sue as a pauper is granted, there is no plaintiff and, consequently, no suit (see s. 410). Any property, therefore, found at such inquiry not to be really in dispute cannot be regarded as part of the "subject-matter of the suit," although it may be entered in the particulars of the application for leave to sue as a pauper. The ground for excluding the "subject-matter of the suit" under s. 401 is because such property is presumably out of the petitioner's reach, and cannot be made use of by him to carry on his litigation. In the present case the articles deposited in Court were freely at the disposal of the petitioners, and could not, therefore, be excluded from consideration.—Dwárákáth Náráyan v. Mádhavráv Vishvanáth, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 207. [Jan. 16, 1886.]

HELD that an order rejecting an application for permission to sue as a pauper, and striking the case off the Court's file, on the ground that the applicant had previously withdrawn the application and entered into a new contract with the defendants, was a "decree" within the meaning of s. 2 of the Civil Procedure Code, and appealable as such.—Baldeo v. Gula Kuar, I. L. R., 4 All. 129. [Dec. 6, 1884.]

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

402. No suit shall be brought by a pauper to recover compensation for loss of caste, libel, slander, abusive language, or assault.

What suits excepted.

Ditto.

403. The application for permission to sue by a pauper shall be in writing, and shall contain the particulars required by section 50 in regard to plaintiffs in suits: a schedule of any moveable or immovable property belonging to the petitioner, with the estimated value thereof, shall be annexed thereto; and it shall be signed and verified in the manner hereinbefore prescribed for the signing and verification of plaintiffs.

Application to be in writing.

Contents of application.

THE Code of Civil Procedure does not authorize the rejection of an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis for want of merits when the applicant is found to be a pauper and his allegations disclose a right to sue. When an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis is made, the Court should not go into evidence as to the merits of the claim.—Koka Ranganáyaka Ammal v. Koka Venkateshallapatináyudu, I. L. R., 4 Mad. 323. [Nov. 25, 1881.]

AN unsuccessful application of a wife to sue for dower in forma pauperis, though opposed by her husband in a counter-petition denying his liability, is not such a demand and refusal of the dower as to constitute a cause of action. The application merely expresses an intention to demand (if allowed to do so) in a particular way.—Ranee Khajooroonissa v. Ranee Ryecoonissa, L. R., 2 Ind. Ap. 235.

Ditto.

404. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 36, the application shall be presented to the Court by the applicant in person, unless he is exempted from appearing in Court under section 610 or section 611, in which case the application may be presented by a duly authorized agent, who can answer all material questions relating to the application, and who may be examined in the same manner as the party represented by him might have been examined had such party attended in person.

WHERE the pauper is not exempted from appearing in Court, it is imperative that he should present his application in person.—Ex-parte Devgirsirú Sumbhágir, 4 Bom. H. C. R. 91. [Feb. 7, 1867.]

WHERE the pauper is exempted from appearing in Court under ss. 640 and 641, and the application is presented by a duly authorized agent, it is not necessary that such agent should also be a pauper. Bhagbut Doss v. Buloram Doss (3 W. R. 20). But such agent may be a pleader. Kishore Mohun Bose v. Gour Monee Doss (15 W. R. 194). And such pleader must have a special power-of-attorney, not an ordinary shakálatnáma. —Mussamut Bhugobutty Koorer v. Gunesh Dutt, 21 W. R. 308. [Mar. 7, 1871.]

NO JUDGMENT or order passed in a suit to which a minor subject to the provisions of Act XL. of 1858 is a party will bind him on his attaining majority, unless he is represented in the suit by some person who has either taken out a certificate, or has obtained the permission of the Court to sue or defend on his behalf without a certificate. Permission granted to sue or defend on behalf of a minor under s. 3 of Act XL. of 1858 should be formally placed on the record. Chap. XXXI. of the Civil Procedure Code lays down the form in which a minor should appear as a party, and this form should be strictly followed. —Mrinamoyi Dabia v. Jugodishhuri Dabia, 1 L. R., 5 Cal. 450. [Dec. 5, 1879.]

405. If the application be not framed or presented in the manner prescribed by sections 403 and 404, the Court shall reject it. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

406. If the application be in proper form and duly presented, the Judge may, if he thinks fit, examine the petitioner, or his agent, when the applicant is allowed to appear by agent, regarding the merits of the claim and the property of the applicant. Ditto.

When the application is presented by an agent, the Court may, if it thinks fit, order that the applicant be examined by a commission in the manner in which the examination of an absent witness may be taken under the provisions of this Code.

UNDER the first clause the Judge himself must examine, and not delegate any other person to do so.—Reg. v. Mir Saheb Kussamia, 1 L. R., 1 Bom. 100. [Nov. 25, 1863.]

Rejection of application. 407. If it appear to the Court— Ditto.
 (a) that the applicant is not a pauper, or
 (b) that he has, within the two months next before the presentation of the application, disposed of any property fraudulently or with a view to obtain the benefit of this chapter, or
 (c) that his allegations do not show a right to sue in such Court, or
 (d) that he has entered into any agreement with reference to the subject-matter of the proposed suit under which any other person has obtained an interest in such subject-matter, the Court shall reject the application.

AN order rejecting an application under the above section is not appealable, nor can it be set aside under the Charter Act.—In the Matter of Shaikh Babur Ali, 24 W. R. 62. [May 12, 1875.]; Khojoodoonissa, 7 W. R. 486 [May 22, 1867].

IT is only the petitioner or his agent who is to be examined under this section, and not his witnesses.—In the Matter of Purkash Ojha, 25 W. R. 74. [Jan. 14, 1876.]

THE Code of Civil Procedure does not authorize the rejection of an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis for want of merits when the applicant is found to be a pauper and his allegations disclose a right to sue. When an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis is made, the Court should not go into evidence as to the merits of the claim.—Koka Rangsanáyaka Ammal v. Koka Venkatachellapati Náyudu, 1 L. R., 4 Mad. 323. [Nov. 25, 1881].

Two persons, being about to sue to redeem a certain jāghir village which they had mortgaged, applied for permission to sue as paupers. It appeared that they had entered into an agreement with a vakil to pay him, as remuneration for his services as vakil in the case, a lump sum of Rs. 1,500 as soon as the case was decided. In default of payment the vakil was authorized to recover the money out of the revenue of the said village. Held that such an agreement was within the scope of cl. d of s. 107 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), and their applications to sue as paupers were rejected.—Manohar Rāmachandra v. Lakshman Mahādev, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 371. [Feb. 26, 1885.]

WHERE an application for leave to sue as a pauper was rejected with reference to s. 407 (c) of the Civil Procedure Code on the ground that the claim was barred by limitation, and therefore the applicant had no right to sue, held by the Full Bench that the Court had acted within its powers, and that its jurisdiction not having been exercised illegally or with material irregularity, the High Court had no power of interference in revision under s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code. Amir Hassan Khan v. Sheo Baksh Singh (I. L. R., 11 Cal. 6) referred to. The terms of s. 107 (c) of the Code must not be read as limiting the Court's discretion to merely ascertaining whether the "right to sue" arose within its jurisdiction, but have a more extended meaning, namely, that an applicant must make out that he has a good subsisting cause of action, capable of enforcement in Court, and calling for an answer, and not barred by the law of limitation or any other law. Per Mahmood, J.—The word "case" as used in s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code should be understood in its broadest and most ordinary sense, including all adjudications which might constitute the subject of appeal subject to the rules governing the exercise of the appellate and revisional jurisdictions respectively; and it comprehends adjudications under s. 407, which fall under the same general category of adjudications as the rejection of an ordinary plaint under s. 53 or s. 54. Phul Singh v. Jafar Nath (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 39). Bhulachari Dut v. Bidadhis (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 69), and Sital Sahu v. Bichu Ram (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 92), referred to. Also per Mahmood, J.—The provisions of s. 107 must be interpreted strictly, inasmuch as they operate in derogation of the right possessed by every litigant to seek the aid of the Courts of Justice; and an exercise of jurisdiction under that section, when such exercise of jurisdiction is open to the objection of illegality or material irregularity, would form a proper subject of revision by the High Court. Har Prasad v. Jafar Ali (I. L. R., 7 All. 345) and Ammāl v. Nāyūān (I. L. R., 4 Mad. 323) referred to.—Chattarpal Singh v. Raja Ram, I. L. R., 7 All. 661. [April 8, 1885.]

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

408. If the Court sees no reason to refuse the application on any of the grounds stated in section 407, it shall fix a day (of which at least ten days' previous notice shall be given to the opposite party and the Government Pleader) for receiving such evidence as the applicant may adduce in proof of his pauperism, and for hearing any evidence which may be adduced in disproof thereof.

THE petitioners prayed to be allowed, as paupers, to sue the respondent for certain property specified in the schedule annexed to their petition. At the hearing of the petition under ss. 408 and 409 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) the respondent appeared and deposited in Court some of the articles claimed by the petitioners to which he admitted they were entitled. The value of the articles deposited was Rs. 100. The petitioners acknowledged that the articles were their property, but declined to take possession of them. Held that the petitioners were not paupers as defined by s. 401 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), being possessed of property worth Rs. 100 other than the subject-matter of the suit, and that they could not, therefore, be allowed to sue as paupers. The inquiry into pauperism under ss. 408 and 409 takes place before any suit is in existence, for, until an application to sue as a pauper is granted, there is no plaint and, consequently, no suit (see s. 410). Any property, therefore, found at such inquiry not to be really in dispute cannot be regarded as part of the "subject-matter of the suit," although it may be entered in the particulars of the application for leave to sue as a pauper. The ground for excluding the "subject-matter of the suit" under s. 401 is because such property is presumably out of the petitioner's reach, and cannot be made use of by him to carry on his litigation. In the present case the articles deposited in Court were freely at the disposal of the petitioners, and could not, therefore, be excluded from consideration.—Dwārkānāth Nārāyan v. Mādhavāy Vishvanāth, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 207. [Jan. 16, 1886.]

409. On the day so fixed, or as soon thereafter as may be convenient, the Court shall examine the witnesses (if any) produced by either party, and may cross-examine the applicant or his agent, and shall make a memorandum of the substance of their evidence. Extending to Provincial & C. Courts.

The Court shall also hear any argument which the parties may desire to offer on the question whether, on the face of the application and of the evidence (if any) taken by the Court as herein provided, the application is or is not subject to any of the prohibitions specified in section 407.

The Court shall then either allow or refuse to allow the applicant to sue as a pauper.

THE Judge must himself examine.—In the Matter of Eknáth bin Mádobá, 1 Bom. H. C. R. 102. [Dec. 2, 1863.]

How far a Court has power to review an order refusing a pauper's application to sue is a matter of doubt.—Mahomed Gasee Chowdry v. Doollub Beebee, 11 W. R. 22. [Jan. 8, 1869]; but see Khodejooissa, 7 W. R. 486. [May 22, 1867.]

WHERE an application was struck off for want of prosecution, it was held that it might be re-admitted.—In the Matter of Rani Umasundari Debi, 5 B. L. R. Ap. 29. [May 6, 1870.]

THE examination should extend to all matters referred to in s. 407, and not be limited to the question of pauperism alone.—In the Matter of Guuga Adhikaree, Petitioner, 14 W. R. 281. [Sep. 1, 1870.]; 11 B. L. R. Ap. 23 [May 8, 1873].

WHERE a party successfully opposed an application to sue as a pauper in a Subordinate Judge's Court on the ground of over-valuation, it was held that he could not afterwards object to the Munsif's jurisdiction.—Brehmo Moyee Dassia v. Anand Chunder Chatterjee, 22 W. R. 120. [May 22, 1874.]

AN order made under Act X. of 1877, s. 409, refusing leave to sue as a pauper, is subject to review under s. 638. The provisions of s. 413 do not affect the right of a person against whom such order has been made to obtain a review. A petitioner applying for such review must file a copy of the order of which he seeks a review, together with a memorandum of objections (ss. 541 and 625).—Adarji Edulji v. Manikji Edulji, 1. L. R., 4 Bom. 414. [July 12, 1880.]

THE petitioners prayed to be allowed as paupers to sue the respondent for certain property specified in the schedule annexed to their petition. At the hearing of the petition under ss. 408 and 409 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) the respondent appeared and deposited in Court some of the articles claimed by the petitioners, to which, he admitted, they were entitled. The value of the articles deposited was Rs. 100. The petitioners acknowledged that the articles were their property, but declined to take possession of them. Held that the petitioners were not paupers as defined by s. 401 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), being possessed of property worth Rs. 100 other than the subject-matter of the suit, and that they could not, therefore, be allowed to sue as paupers. The inquiry into pauperism under ss. 408 and 409 takes place before any suit is in existence, for, until an application to sue as a pauper is granted, there is no plaint and, consequently, no suit (see s. 410). Any property, therefore, found at such inquiry not to be really in dispute cannot be regarded as part of the "subject-matter of the suit," although it may be entered in the particulars of the application for leave to sue as a pauper. The ground for excluding the "subject-matter of the suit" under s. 401 is because such property is presumably out of the petitioner's reach, and cannot be made use of by him to carry on his litigation. In the present case the articles deposited in Court were freely at the disposal of the petitioners, and could not, therefore, be excluded from consideration.—Dwáránáth Náráyan v. Mádhavráv Vishvánáth, 1. L. R., 10 Bom. 207. [Jan. 16, 1886.]

WHERE no day was fixed, and the Judge, on default by non-appearance, struck off the application "for the present," it was held that, as there had been no refusal to allow the applicant to sue as a pauper, he might renew his application.—Rájah Bhoj Singh v. Ram Maha Koonwer, 3 Agra, Mis. 1.

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

410. If the application be granted, it shall be numbered and registered, and shall be deemed the plaint in the suit, and the suit shall proceed in all other respects as a suit instituted under Chapter V., except that the plaintiff shall not be liable to any court-fee (other than fees payable for service of process) in respect of any petition, appointment of a pleader, or other proceeding connected with the suit.

THE propriety of an order granting leave to sue as a pauper can be contested if the case is appealed. Where a Court gave leave to sue as a pauper (a previous application having been rejected), the suit was dismissed on appeal.—Baboo Bishessur Singh v. Maharaja Muhessu. Baksh Singh, S. D., N. W., 1864, p. 149.

A SUPERIOR Court has no power, on appeal or motion, to set aside an application granted under the above section. But if it appears, after the granting of the application, that the order has been improperly obtained, the proper course is to apply to the Court which granted the application.—In the Matter of Khodejoonissa, 7 W. R. 486. [May 22, 1867.]

THE petitioners prayed to be allowed as paupers to sue the respondent for certain property specified in the schedule annexed to their petition. At the hearing of the petition under ss. 408 and 409 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) the respondent appeared and deposited in Court some of the articles claimed by the petitioners, to which, he admitted, they were entitled. The value of the articles deposited was Rs. 100. The petitioners acknowledged that the articles were their property, but declined to take possession of them. Held that the petitioners were not paupers as defined by s. 401 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), being possessed of property worth Rs. 100 other than the subject-matter of the suit, and that they could not, therefore, be allowed to sue as paupers. The inquiry into pauperism under ss. 408 and 409 takes place before any suit is in existence, for, until an application to sue as a pauper is granted, there is no plaint and, consequently, no suit (see s. 410). Any property, therefore, found at such inquiry not to be really in dispute cannot be regarded as part of the "subject-matter of the suit," although it may be entered in the particulars of the application for leave to sue as a pauper. The ground for excluding the "subject-matter of the suit" under s. 401 is because such property is presumably out of the petitioner's reach, and cannot be made use of by him to carry on his litigation. In the present case the articles deposited in Court were freely at the disposal of the petitioners, and could not, therefore, be excluded from consideration.—Dwarkanáth Náráyan v. Mádhavrát Vishvanáth, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 207. [Jan. 16, 1886.]

Ditto.

411. If the plaintiff succeed in the suit, the Court shall calculate the amount of court-fees which would have been paid by the plaintiff if he had not been permitted to sue as a pauper; and such amount shall be a first charge on the subject-matter of the suit, and shall also be recoverable by the Government from any party ordered by the decree to pay the same, in the same manner as costs of suits are recoverable under this Code.

A PAUPER-SUIT for possession was decreed with mesue-profits to be ascertained in execution, costs being also awarded, including the value of stamps due to Government, which was to be paid by plaintiff and defendant in shares proportionate to their ultimate success when the amount of wasit was ascertained. As the parties did not choose to go into the inquiry as to the mesue-profits, the Court, on a motion by Government, called upon the parties to appear, and, on their refusing to do so, altered its original order with respect to the payment of the stamp-duty, and declared that it should be realized from both the parties jointly. Held that the Court had no authority to make the second order in favour of Government, and that the proceedings taken in execution thereof were without legal foundation.—Shostee Curn Roy v. Collector of Chittagong, 13 W. R. 156. [Feb. 9, 1870.]

WHERE Government, after attaching a pauper plaintiff's decree in order to recover the value of stamps, consents to the sale of the decree in execution of another decree against the pauper, and obtains an order by which, it secures the chance of any surplus arising from such sale, it cannot afterwards, when the sale is found to yield no surplus, be heard to say, as against the purchaser, that the decree was sold subject to its claim for stamps. The amount of stamps in a pauper case cannot be claimed as a lien or charge upon the decree in favour of Government, but is recoverable in the same manner as costs of suit; Government being, as regards its claim in such a case, in no higher position than an ordinary judgment-creditor.—Frankisto Roy v. Collector of Moorshedabad, 15 W. R. 206. [Feb. 28, 1871.]

A CLAIM for fees would be looked upon as a public claim, and is not subject to the ordinary rules for limitation in execution of decrees under Act XIV. of 1859.—Shami Mohammed v. Munshi Mohammed Ali Khan (2 B. L. R. Ap. 22); Collector of South Arcot v. Thatha Charry (8 Mad H. C. R. 40). In Bengal, however, it has been ruled that, under the new Limitation Act, the ordinary period for execution applies.—Collector of Beerbhoom v. Sreehurry Chuckerbutty, 22 W. R. 512. [Sep. 7, 1874.]

N was allowed to bring a suit as a pauper. His suit was dismissed, the decree directing that he should pay the costs of the defendants. On the defendants' application, certain immovable property belonging to N was attached in execution of this decree, and was sold. Held that the Crown was entitled to be paid first out of the proceeds of such sale the amount of the court-fees N would have had to pay if he had not been allowed to sue as a pauper. The principle of the ruling in Ganpat Putaya v. Collector of Canara (1 L. R., 1 Bom. 7) followed.—Gulzari Lal v. Collector of Bareilly 1 L. R., 1 All. 596. [Feb. 15, 1878.]

WITH a view to recover the amount of court-fees which J would have had to pay had he not been permitted to bring a suit as a pauper, the Government caused certain property belonging to B, the defendant in such suit, who had been ordered by the decree in such suit to pay such amount, to be attached. This property was subsequently attached by the holder of a decree against B, which declared a lien on the property created by a bond. The property was sold in the execution of this decree. Held that the Government was entitled to be paid first out of the proceeds of such sale the amount of the court-fees J would have had to pay had he not been allowed to sue as a pauper, the principle that the Government takes precedence of all other creditors not being liable to an exception in the case of lien-holders. The decision in Ganpat Putaya v. Collector of Canara (1 L. R., 1 Bom. 7) applied in this case.—Collector of Moradabad v. Muhammad Dain Khan, 1 L. R., 2 All. 196. [Mar. 20, 1879.]

GOVERNMENT is not entitled to any exemption from the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, relating to applications. Held, therefore, that an application by Government under s. 411 of the Code of Civil Procedure to recover the amount of court-fees from a party ordered by the decree to pay the same was subject to the provisions of art. 178 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877.—Appaya v. Collector of Vizagapatam, 1 L. R., 4 Mad. 155. [Sep. 13, 1881.]

HELD that a Collector applying on behalf of Government, under s. 411 of the Civil Procedure Code, for recovery of court-fees by attachment of a sum of money payable under a decree to a plaintiff suing in forma pauperis, might be deemed to have been a party to the suit in which the decree was passed, within the meaning of s. 244 (c) of the Code, and that an appeal would, therefore, lie from an order granting such application. A plaintiff suing in forma pauperis to recover property valued at Rs. 60,000 obtained a decree for Rs. 1,439. The Court, with reference to the provisions of s. 411 of the Civil Procedure Code, directed that the plaintiff should pay Rs. 1,196 as the amount of court-fees which would have been paid by him if he had not been permitted to sue as a pauper. The Collector having applied under s. 411 to recover this amount by attachment of the Rs. 1,439 payable to the plaintiff, the defendant objected that (i) certain costs payable to her by the plaintiff under the same decree, and (ii) a sum of money payable to her by the plaintiff under a decree which she had obtained in a cross-suit in the same Court, should be set-off against the Rs. 1,439 payable by her to him with reference to ss. 246 and 247 of the Code, and that thus nothing would remain due by her which the Government could recover. No application for execution was made by the plaintiff for his Rs. 1,439, or by the defendant for her costs. In appeal from an order allowing the Collector's application, it was contended that the "subject-matter of the suit" in s. 411 of the Code meant the sum which the successful pauper-plaintiff is entitled to get as a result of his success in the suit; but that in the suit and the cross-suit taken together, the plaintiff ultimately stood to lose a small sum, the defendant being the holder of the larger sum awarded altogether. Held that the contention had no force, as execution had not been taken out by the plaintiff or the defendant or both, and it could not be said that the Government had been trying to execute the plaintiff's decree, or was a representative of the plaintiff as holder of the decretal order in his favour for Rs. 1,439, so as to bring into operation the special rules of ss. 246 and 247 of the Code between him and the defendant. Held also that the plaintiff was one who, in the sense of s. 411, had succeeded in respect of part of the "subject-matter" of his suit, and on that part therefore a first charge was by law reserved and secured to the Government, which was justified in recovering it in these proceedings from the defendant, who was ordered by the decree to pay it in the same way as costs are ordinarily recoverable under the Code. Held that the decree in the suit and the cross-suit not having reached a stage in which the provisions of ss. 246 and 247 of the Code would come into play, no questions of set-off and consequent reduction or other modification of the "subject-matter" of the suit decreed against the defendant as payable by her to the plaintiff had arisen or could be entertained.—Janki v. Collector of Allahabad, I. L. R., 9 All. 64. [Nov. 15, 1886.]

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

412. If the plaintiff fails in the suit, or if he is dispaupered, or if the Procedure when pauper suit is dismissed under section 97 or 98, the Court fails, shall order the plaintiff, or any person made, under section 32, co-plaintiff to the suit, to pay the court-fees which would have been paid by the plaintiff if he had not been permitted to sue as a pauper; and if it find that the suit was frivolous or vexatious, it may also punish the plaintiff with fine not exceeding one hundred rupees, or with imprisonment for a term which may extend to a month, or with both.

Ditto.

413. An order of refusal made under section 409 to allow the applicant to sue as a pauper shall be a bar to any subsequent application of the like nature by him in respect of the same right to sue; but the applicant shall be at liberty to institute a suit in the ordinary manner in respect of such right, provided that he first pays the costs (if any) incurred by Government in opposing his application for leave to sue as a pauper.

WHERE a Court has not refused an application, but has simply returned it in order that the questions of pauperism may be tried by a Court of concurrent jurisdiction (Skinner v. Orde (I. L. R., 1 All. 230); or where a Court strikes off, "for the present," the application for non-appearance (Rajah Bhoj Singh v. Ram Maha Koonwer (3 Agra, Mis. 1); or where a Court dismisses the application for want of prosecution (In the Matter of Rani Umarsundari (5 B. L. R. Ap. 29)), the above section does not apply, but the application may be renewed. [May 6, 1870.]

AN order made under Act X. of 1877, s. 409, refusing leave to sue as a pauper, is subject to review under s. 623. The provisions of s. 413 do not affect the right of a person against whom such order has been made to obtain a review. A petitioner applying for such review must file a copy of the order of which he seeks a review, together with a memorandum of objections (ss. 541 and 625).—Adarji Edulji v. Manikji Edulji, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 414. [July 12, 1880.]

Ditto.

414. The Court may, on motion by the defendant, or by the Government Pleader, of which one week's notice in writing has been given to the plaintiff, order the plaintiff to be dispaupered—

- (a) if he is guilty of vexatious or improper conduct in the course of the suit;
- (b) if it appears that his means are such that he ought not to continue to sue as a pauper, or
- (c) if he has entered into any agreement with reference to the subject-matter of the suit, under which any other person has obtained an interest in such subject-matter.

THIS is a new section. In the matter of Khodejoonissa (7 W. R. 486) it was held that where it was discovered, after leave was granted to sue in forma pauperis, that the applicant should not be permitted to continue to carry on his suit as a pauper, the proper course was to proceed under this section, and not by motion or appeal in the superior Courts.

Ditto.

415. The costs of an application for permission to sue as a pauper and of an inquiry into pauperism are costs in the suit.

THE acts of a Government officer bind the Government only when he is acting in the discharge of a certain duty within the limits of his authority, or, if he exceed that authority, when the Government in fact or in law, directly or by implication, ratifies the excess.—Collector of Masulipatam v. Cavalry Vencata Narainapah, 2 W. R., P. C., 61. [Dec. 21, 1861.]

A SUIT will not lie in the High Court against the Collector of Madras, residing and carrying on business at Sydapet, in respect of matters arising in Chingleput, though his Deputy Collector carried on business within the local limits, and the orders and proceedings in reference to the matters in question were in his name of office as Collector of Madras.—Subbaraya Mudali v. Government and Cunliffe, 1 Mad. A SUIT against an agent to the Governor-General, on the part of Government, is substantially a suit against Government, and ought, under s. 9, Act XI. of 1865, to be brought in a Court having jurisdiction at the seat of Government.—Ropun Tewaree v. Buckle (W. B.), 10 W. R. 142. [July 11, 1868.]

THE Government is not bound by a contract entered into by an officer in the Public Works Department in excess of his authority.—Beer Kishore Sahoy v. Government of Bengal, 17 W. R. 497. [April 6, 1872.]

UNDER s. 521 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act X. of 1872), a First-class Magistrate in charge of a taluka made an order, declaring certain land to be part of a public thoroughfare, and directing the plaintiff to remove the obstruction caused by him to it. The plaintiff sued the Magistrate to establish his right to the land, alleging that it was his property, and that the Magistrate's order was wrong. The Assistant Judge, who tried the suit, dismissed it, holding that it did not lie against the Magistrate. On appeal to the High Court, it was held that the Assistant Judge might have properly permitted the plaintiff to amend the suit by striking out the name of the First-class Magistrate as defendant, and substituting in that capacity the Secretary of State for India in Council. The High Court, accordingly, reversed the decree of the Assistant Judge, and remanded the suit for re-trial on the merits, after making the amendment directed.—Nilkanthappa v. Magistrate of Sholapur, 1 L. R., 6 Bom. 670. [April 13, 1880.]

ON the 11th August 1879, the defendant, as a Magistrate in charge of a taluka, made an order under ss. 523 and 526 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act X. of 1872), directing the plaintiff to remove a certain ota, on the ground that it had been built upon a public thoroughfare. The plaintiff thereupon sued the Magistrate for a declaration that the ota and site belonged to him, and prayed for a reversal of the Magistrate's order. The Assistant Judge who tried the suit dismissed it, holding that it did not lie against the defendant. On appeal, the High Court, following the decision in Nilkanthappa Malkappa v. Magistrate (First Class) in charge of Sholapur Taluka (1 L. R., 6 Bom. 670), reversed the decree of the Assistant Judge, and remanded the case, in order that the plaintiff might amend his suit by striking out the name of the First-class Magistrate as defendant, and substituting in that capacity the Secretary of State for India in Council, and directing the lower Court to determine the suit upon its merits after the above amendment and due service of process.—Balarám Chatrukálá v. Magistrate of Igatpuri, 1 L. R., 6 Bom. 672. [June 20, 1882.]

A SUIT will lie against Government for any breach of contract.—Ross Johnson v. Secretary of State, 2 Hyde, 159.

UNDER s. 9, Act I., 1877, no suit will lie against Government for possession of immovable property without proof of title.

WHERE certain Government coolies let fall an iron funnel while carrying it from the Kidderpur Dockyard to a steamer in the river, and the noise startled a horse, which rushed over it, and injured itself, it was held that the Secretary of State was liable.—P. and O. C. Courts.

417. Persons being, ex officio or otherwise, authorized to act for Government in respect of any judicial proceeding, shall be deemed to be the recognized agents by whom appearances, acts, and applications under this Code, may be made or done on behalf of Government.

Ditto. 418. In suits by the Secretary of State for India in Council, instead of inserting in the plaint the name and description and place of abode of the plaintiff, it shall be sufficient to insert the words, "The Secretary of State for India in Council."

Ditto. 419. The Government Pleader in any Court shall be the agent of the Government for the purpose of receiving processes against the said Secretary of State in Council issuing out of such Court.

Ditto. 420. The Court, in fixing the day for the said Secretary of State in Council to answer to the plaint, shall allow a reasonable time for the necessary communication with the Government through the proper channels, and for the issue of instructions to the Government Pleader to appear and answer on behalf of the said Secretary of State in Council or the Government, and may extend the time at its discretion.

Ditto. 421. The Court may also, in any case in which the Government Pleader is not accompanied by any person on the part of the said Secretary of State in Council, who may be able to answer any material questions relating to the suit, direct the attendance of such a person.

Ditto. 422. Where the defendant is a public officer, the Court may send a copy of the summons to the head of the office in which the defendant is employed, for the purpose of being served on him, if it appear to the Court that the summons may be most conveniently so served.

Ditto. 423. If the public officer, on receiving the summons, considers proper to make a reference to the Government before answering to the plaint, he may apply to the Court to grant such extension of the time fixed in the summons as may be necessary to enable him to make such reference and to receive orders thereon through the proper channel ; and the Court, upon such application, may extend the time for so long as appears to be requisite.

Ditto. 424. No suit shall be instituted against the said Secretary of State in Council, or against a public officer in respect of an act purporting to be done by him in his official capacity, until the expiration of two months next after notice in writing has been, in the case of the Secretary of State in Council, delivered to, or left at the office of, a Secretary to the Local Government or the Collector of the District, and, in the case of a public officer, delivered to him or left at his office, stating the cause of action, and the name and place of abode of the intending plaintiff; and the plaint must contain a statement that such notice has been so delivered or left.

A COLLECTOR, when acting under s. 204 of Act XIX. of 1873 as the agent of the Court of Wards in respect of the estate of a disqualified person, is a public officer within the meaning of ss. 2 and 424 of Act X. of 1877, and consequently, when sued for acts done in that capacity, is entitled to the notice of suit required by the latter section.—Collector of Bijnor v. Munwar, I. L. R., 3 All. 20. [June 11, 1880.]

THE Official Trustee is a public officer within the definition given in s. 2 of the Civil Procedure Code. The cases in which a public officer is entitled to notice of suit under s. 424 of the Code are those in which he is sued for damages for some wrong inadvertently committed by him in the discharge of his official duties, and the object of giving notice is, that if a public body or officer entrusted with powers happens to commit an inadvertence, irregularity, or wrong before any one has a right to require payment in respect of that wrong, he shall have an opportunity of setting himself right, making amends, restoring what he has taken, or paying for the damages he has done. The Official Trustee, therefore, is not entitled to notice of suit, when the question to be decided relates to the rights of the cestius que trustent in respect of the trust-fund, and not to a wrong committed by him.—Shahebzadee Shahunshah Begum v. Fergusson, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 499. [Aug. 4, 1881.]

THE Secretary of State is not a necessary party to a suit to set aside a sale for arrears of revenue, but the Government has such interest as would, on their application, entitle them to be made a party. S. 424 of the Civil Procedure Code does not preclude a Court from adding the Secretary of State as a necessary party under s. 32 of the Code.—Bal Mokoond Lall v. Jirjudhum Roy, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 271. [June 23, 1882.]

Arrests in such suits.

425. No warrant of arrest shall be issued in such suit without the consent in writing of the District Judge. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

426. If the Government undertakes the defence of a suit against a public officer, the Government Pleader, upon being furnished with authority to appear and answer to the plaint, shall apply to the Court; and upon such application the Court shall cause a note of his authority to be entered in the register.

Ditto.

427. If such application is not made by the Government Pleader on or before the day fixed in the notice or the defendant to appear and answer to the plaint, the case shall proceed as in a suit between private parties, except that the defendant shall not be liable to arrest, nor his property to attachment, otherwise than in execution of a decree.

Ditto.

428. In a suit against a public officer in respect of such act as aforesaid, the Court shall exempt the defendant from appearing in person when he satisfies the Court that he cannot absent himself from his duty without detriment to the public service.

Ditto.

429. When the decree is against the said Secretary of State in Council or against a public officer in respect of such act as aforesaid, a time shall be specified in the decree within which it shall be satisfied; and, if the decree is not satisfied within the time so specified, the Court shall report the case for the orders of the Local Government.

Ditto.

Execution shall not issue on any such decree unless it remains unsatisfied for the period of three months computed from the date of the report.

Governor-General in Council, and alien friends, When aliens may sue. . . may sue in the Courts of British India as if they were subjects of Her Majesty.

No alien enemy residing in British India without such permission, or residing in a foreign country, shall sue in any of such Courts.

Explanation.—Every person residing in a foreign country, the Government of which is at war with the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and carrying on business in that country without a license in that behalf under the hand of one of Her Majesty's Secretaries of State or of a Secretary to the Government of India, shall, for the purpose of the second paragraph of this section, be deemed to be an alien enemy residing in a foreign country.

quest of any Sovereign Prince or ruling Chief, whether in subordinate alliance with the British Government or otherwise, and whether residing within or without British India, to prosecute or defend any suit on his behalf, shall be deemed to be the recognized agents by whom appearances, acts, and applications under this Code, may be made or done on behalf of such Prince or Chief.

S. 432 of the Civil Procedure Code does not prevent the institution by an independent prince of a suit in a Court in British India in his own name, and through a recognized agent other than one appointed under that section.—Beer Chunder Manikya v. Ishan Chunder Burdhun, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 136. [Sep. 10, 1883.]

THE desai of Pátadi, a talukdar of the fifth class in the province of Káthiáwár, in virtue of his being the proprietor of seven villages within the British Political Agency of Káthiáwár, is a ruling chief within the meaning of ss. 432 and 433 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882), and can only be sued with the consent of the Government in a competent Court not subordinate to the District Court.—Kámabhai Ajubhai v. Himatsangji Joravarangji, I. L. R., 3 Bom. 415. [May 9, 1884.]

THE "private rights" spoken of in s. 431 (cl. b.) of the Code of Civil Procedure do not mean individual rights as opposed to those of the body politic or State, but those private rights of the State which must be enforced in a Court of justice, as distinguished from its political or territorial rights, which must, from their very nature, be made the subject of arrangement between one State and another. They are rights which may be enforced by a foreign State against private individuals as distinguished from rights which one State in its political capacity may have as against another State in its political capacity. The Emperor of Austria v. Day (30 L. J. Ch. 690; 2 Giff. 628), United States of America v. Wagner L. R., 2 Ch. Ap. 582, approved of. There is nothing to prevent a foreign or feudatory State from holding immoveable property in British India, and to such property the rule of intestate succession laid down in s. 5 of the Succession Act (Act X. of 1865) does not apply. The State must be regarded as a quasi-corporation which continues to exist as a State so long as it is recognized as such by Her Majesty, whatever the rule of succession it may be, and whatever may be its form of Government. Case in which⁶ it was found on the facts that certain immoveable property situated in British India, which had formerly belonged to the State of Cherrapoonjee, having been granted by a former Raja of that State to the defendant, was still the property of the State, on the ground that the Raja was not competent to alienate it, and that the defendant's plea of adverse possession and limitation was not supported by the evidence.—Hajon Manick v. Bur Singh, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 17. [July 30, 1884.]

433. Any such Prince or Chief, and any ambassador or envoy of a Sovereign foreign State, may, with the consent of Government, certified by the signature of one of its Secretaries (but not without such consent), be sued in any competent Court not subordinate to a District Court. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts. (except first page.)

Such consent shall not be given unless—

(a) the Prince, Chief, ambassador, or envoy, has instituted a suit in such Court against the person desiring to sue him; or

(b) the Prince, Chief, ambassador, or envoy, by himself or another, trades within the local limits of the jurisdiction of such Court; or

(c) the subject-matter of the suit is immoveable property situate within the said local limits and in the possession of the Prince, Chief, ambassador, or envoy.

No such Prince, Chief, ambassador, or envoy, shall be arrested under this Sovereign Princes, &c., exempt from arrest.

When their property may be attached.

Code; and no decree shall be executed against the property of any such Prince, Chief, ambassador, or envoy, unless with consent of Government certified as aforesaid.

THE Rajah of Hill Tipperah is a Sovereign Prince within the meaning of Chapter XXVIII. of Act X. of 1877, and cannot be sued personally in the Courts of British India except under the conditions specified in s. 433 of that Act. The fact of a defendant not subject to the jurisdiction of a Court having waived his privilege in previous suits brought against him does not give the Court jurisdiction to entertain a suit against him in which he pleads that he is not subject to such jurisdiction. A suit for maintenance which seeks to have maintenance made a charge on immoveable property is not a suit for immoveable property within the meaning of cl. c, s. 433, Act X. of 1877, nor is it a suit for "benefits to arise out of land" within the meaning of the definition of the words "immoveable property" contained in Act I. of 1868, s. 2, cl. 5. A claim for maintenance is not a charge upon immoveable property. A member of the royal family of Hill Tipperah brought a suit against the Rajah to have it declared that with respect to certain land situate within British India, and forming portion of the possessions of the Rajah, he was entitled to the post of jubraj, and to succeed to such land on the death of the Rajah, and also claimed maintenance, and sought to have it declared that such maintenance should be a charge on the revenue of the land situate in British India. Held that the British Courts had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit, it not being one for immoveable property.—Beer Chunder Manikya v. Raj Coommar Nobodeep Chunder Deb Burmono, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 535. [Feb. 23, 1883.]

Execution in British India of decrees of Courts of Native States.

434. The Governor-General in Council may, from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

(a) declare that the decrees of any Civil or Revenue Courts situate in the territories of any Native Prince or State in alliance with Her Majesty, and not established by the authority of the Governor-General in Council, may be executed in British India, as if they had been made by the Courts of British India, and

(b) cancel any such declaration.

So long as such declaration remains in force, the said decrees may be executed accordingly.

No suit is maintainable in any Court in British India founded upon the judgment of a Court situate in a Native State. The Courts of British India cannot enforce the decrees of any Native Courts, except as provided by s. 434 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877). Under that section the decrees of certain Native Courts may be executed in British India, as if they had been made by the Courts of British India. A suit will not lie in the Courts of India upon the judgment of any Court in British India. The only exception to this rule is in the case of judgments of a Court of Small Causes on which suits are permitted to be brought in the High Court in order to obtain execution against immoveable property. A foreign judgment creates an obligation belonging to the class of implied contracts. A Court which entertains a suit on a foreign judgment cannot institute an inquiry into the merits of the original action or the propriety of the decision. Quere.—Whether suits on foreign judgments are maintainable in the Civil Courts of India?—Bhavanishankar Shevakram v. Pursadri Kálidás, 1. L. R., 6 Bom. 292. [Feb. 14, 1882.]

A SUIT cannot generally be maintained in any British Court upon the judgment of a Native Court. Quere.—Whether it could where there had been a notification by the Governor-General of India under s. 434 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882)?—Himmatlál v. Shivajiráv, 1. L. R., 8 Bom. 593. [July 16, 1884.]

SUITS BY AND AGAINST CORPORATIONS AND COMPANIES.

Provincial S.
C. Courts.

435. In suits by a Corporation, or by a Company authorized to sue and be sued in the name of an officer or of a trustee, the plaint may be subscribed and verified on behalf of the Corporation or Company, by any director, secretary, or other principal officer of the Corporation or Company, who is able to depose to the facts of the case.

Ditto.

436. When the suit is against a Corporation or against a Company authorized to sue and be sued in the name of an officer or of a trustee, the summons may be served—

- (a) by leaving it at the registered office (if any) of the Corporation or Company, or
- (b) by sending it by post in a letter addressed to such officer or trustee at the office (or, if there be more offices than one, at the principal office in British India) of the Corporation or Company, or
- (c) by giving it to any director, secretary, or other principal officer of the Corporation or Company :

And the Court may require the personal appearance of any director, secretary, or other principal officer of the Corporation or Company who may be able to answer material questions relating to the suit.

For the purposes of summons, a Railway Company must be deemed to dwell at its principal office. An executive engineer of such a Company is not an officer on whom service may be made under s. 436 of the above section.—Hanlon v. India Branch Railway Company, 1 Hyde, 197.

SUITS BY AND AGAINST TRUSTEES, EXECUTORS, AND ADMINISTRATORS.

437. In all suits concerning property vested in a trustee, executor, or administrator, when the contention is between the persons beneficially interested in such property and a third person, the trustee, executor, or administrator shall represent the persons so interested, and it shall not ordinarily be necessary to make them parties to the suits. But the Court may, if it thinks fit, order them or any of them to be made such parties.

THE will of a Pársi testator in Bombay affecting lands in the mofussil, made before the 1st January 1866, when the Indian Succession Act* (X. of 1865) came into force, and proved subsequently, viz., on the 25th day of January 1866, but before Act XXI V. of 1867 came into operation, is governed by Act XXVII. of 1860.* Held that such probate has the same effect as probate in respect of the property of British subjects, but for the purpose only of collecting debts. It did not confer a title on the executrix to represent the testator's estate, except for the above-mentioned limited purpose, or to exercise the usual powers of an executrix where the testator's intention, to be gathered from the whole of the will, was to vest his property, with the entire management of, and control over it, in a series of persons in succession as trustees, the first of whom was the executrix. It is also that, having regard to s. 437 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the persons acting as such trustees in succession under the said will adequately represented all persons beneficially interested in the estate in all suits relating to it.—Ardesir Jehángir v. Hirábái, I. L. R., 8 Bom. 474. [May 8, 1884.]

438. When there are several executors or administrators, they shall all be made parties to a suit against one or more of them : Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

Provided that executors who have not proved their testator's will, and executors and administrators beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court, need not be made parties.

439. Unless the Court directs otherwise, the husband of a married administratrix or executrix shall not be a party to a suit by or against her. Ditto.

CHAPTER XXXI.

SUITS BY AND AGAINST MINORS, AND PERSONS OF UNSOUND MIND.

440. Every suit by a minor shall be instituted in his name by an adult person, who, in such suit, shall be called the next friend of the minor, and may be ordered to pay any costs in the suit as if he were the plaintiff. Ditto.

Minor must sue by next friend.
Costs.

ACT XX. of 1864 is not superseded by Act X. of 1877. Where, therefore, a widow claimed to have charge of property in trust for her minor sons, it was held necessary, under a 2 of Act XX. of 1864, that she should obtain a certificate of administration, if the whole estate was of greater value than Rs. 250, and that it was competent to the Court, if there was any pressing necessity (owing to the operation of the law of limitation) that a suit should be brought at once, to accept the plaint and stay proceedings until the mother had obtained a certificate under Act XX. of 1864. Vijker v. Jijibhai (9 Bom. H. C. R. 310) followed.—Murlidhar v. Supdu, I. L. R., 3 Bom. 149. [Jan. 21, 1879.]

A VOLUNTEER guardian has no right to sue on behalf of a minor; the accord or refusal of permission to sue is a matter in the discretion of the Court. Where a suit is brought in violation of s. 440 of the Code of Civil Procedure, or of the provisions of Act XI. of 1858, the proper course for a Court to pursue is to return the plaint, in order that the error may be rectified.—Russick Das Bairagy v. Preonath Misree, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 102. [Sep. 6, 1883.]

THE effect of s. 3 of Act XI. of 1858 read with s. 440 of the Code of Civil Procedure is, that a minor plaintiff must not only always sue by his next friend, but when the suit relates to the minor's estate, the persons representing the minor must either hold a certificate under the Act, or must obtain the sanction of the Court for the suit to proceed. The mere admission of a plaint by the Court does not sufficiently indicate that sanction is accorded.—Durga Churn Shaha v. Nilmoney Dass, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 134. [Sep. 6, 1883.]

ALTHOUGH the proper and regular manner of giving permission to sue on behalf of a minor is by an order recorded in the order-sheet, there is, nevertheless, nothing in the nature of the sanction provided by the s. 3 of Act XL. of 1858 which takes it out of the general rule of evidence, that sanction may be proved by express words or by implication. Where, on a construction of the plaint and the pleadings it is found that the minor is the real plaintiff, the mere fact of his not having been properly described in accordance with s. 440 of the Civil Procedure Code is no ground for setting aside a decree passed in the suit.—Bhaba Pershad Khan v. Secretary of State for India, 1. L. R., 14 Cal. 159. [Aug. 14, 1886.]

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

441. Every application to the Court on behalf of a minor (other than an application under section 449) shall be made by his next friend, or his guardian for the suit.

Ditto.

442. If a plaint be filed by or on behalf of a minor without a next friend, the defendant may apply to have the plaint taken off the file, with costs to be paid by the pleader or other person by whom it was presented. Notice of such application shall be given to such person by the defendant; and the Court, after hearing his objections (if any), may make such order in the matter as it thinks fit.

S. 442 of the Civil Procedure Code refers to a case where the plaint on the face of it appears to have been filed by a person who was a minor. Where, in a suit, the plaintiffs described themselves as adults, and on the objection of the defendants an issue was raised and inquired into on the question of age, held that the order passed under the circumstances, although it professed to have been made under s. 442 of the Procedure Code, must be treated as one rejecting the plaint or dismissing the suit on the ground that the suit was instituted by persons who were established on the evidence to be minors, and was appealable as a decree within the meaning of s. 2 of the Code. The words, "rejecting the plaint," invs. 2, are not limited to the cases provided for in ss. 53, 54. Held also that the defendant, not having taken an objection to the suit on the ground of the minority of the plaintiffs, whilst it was pending in appeal to the High Court, were precluded from raising it on remand.—Behi Ram Bhutt v. Ram Lal Dhukri, 1. L. R., 18 Cal. 189. [Mar. 30, 1886.]

Ditto.

443. Where the defendant to a suit is a minor, the Court, on being satisfied of the fact of his minority, shall appoint a proper person to be guardian for the suit for such minor, to put in the defence for such minor, and generally to act on his behalf in the conduct of the case.

A guardian for the suit is not a guardian of person or property within the meaning of the Indian Majority Act, 1875, section 3.

If no friend or relative of a minor defendant is willing to take out a certificate under Act XL. of 1858, and appear as guardian for the infant, the Judge should appoint an officer of the Court, or some respectable nominee or nominees of the minor, guardian to defend the suit. Babujiban Kusaji v. Maruti (11 Bom. H. C. R. 182) and Dhoviha Lakshman v. Kusa (6 Bom. H. C. R. 219) cited and followed.—Issur Chunder Gupto v. Nobo Kristo Gupto, 7 C. L. R. 497. [Sep. 15, 1880.]

WHEREAS no administrator of the estate of a minor is appointed under Act XX. of 1864, there is no objection to the appointment of a guardian ad litem under s. 443 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) as amended by Act XII. of 1879 for the purpose of defending a suit against a minor. Act XX. of 1864, s. 2, has no bearing on the case of a next friend or guardian ad litem not claiming charge of the minor's estate. Neither Act XX. of 1864, nor the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) as amended by Act XII. of 1879, empowers any Court to appoint a person, against his or her will, to be a next friend, guardian ad litem, administrator of the estate, or guardian of the person of the minor. S. 458 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) is not, so far as regards payment or costs, applicable to any person appointed to act as guardian ad litem without his previous assent. S. 3, cl. b, of Act XV. of 1880, preserves jurisdiction to a Court to try a suit against a minor, notwithstanding the appointment of one of its officers to be the minor's guardian ad litem. The decision in Mohan Ishwar v. Haku Rupa (1. L. R., 4 Bom. 788) is superseded by Act XV. of 1880, s. 3, cl. b, in so far as that decision affected officers of the Court appointed guardians ad litem under s. 456 of Act X. of 1877 as amended by Act XII. of 1879. Inconvenience pointed out, of introducing into acts relating, and instituted as relating, to special jurisdiction only, provisions affecting civil procedure generally.—Jadow Mulji v. Chhagan Raichand, 1 L. R., 5 Bom. 306. [Mar. 8, 1881.]

A CHEQUE was indorsed in blank by a European British subject who, at that time, was under twenty years of age and was temporarily residing, and not domiciled, in British India. It was subsequently dishonoured, and a suit was then brought by the Bank which had cashed the cheque to recover the amount from the indorser and the drawer. The former alleged that the drawer had requested him to sign his name to the cheque, saying that it was a mere matter of form, and he would not be liable for the amount, and that the Bank would only cash the cheque when indorsed by him, and in consequence he consented to indorse it, but that he did so without any intention of incurring liability as indorser, that he received no consideration, and that his endorsement was in blank and not in favour of the Bank, and was converted into a special indorsement without his knowledge and consent. The Court held that at the time of indorsement the indorser was a minor under English law, and dismissed the suit on the ground of minority. Held that, if the Court was satisfied of the fact of the defendant's minority, it should have complied with the provisions of s. 443 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held that, assuming the indorser to have been sui juris, the indorsement, taken in conjunction with the facts proved, established a contract by which the indorser was bound to pay the cheque. Per Straight, Offg. C.J., and Duthoit, J., that it was by no means clear or certain that there was any rule of international law recognizing the lex loci contractus as governing the capacity of the person to contract; but that, assuming such a rule to be established, the specific limitation of the Indian Majority Act (IX. of 1875) to "domiciled persons" necessarily excluded its application to European British subjects not domiciled in British India; that s. 11 of the Contract Act must be interpreted as declaring that the capacity of a person in point of age to enter into a binding contract was to be determined by his own personal law, wherever such law was to be found; that this rule was not affected by the Majority Act, so far as concerned persons temporarily residing but not domiciled in British India, whose contractual capacity was still left to be governed by the personal law of their personal domicile; and that such law, in the case of European British subjects, was the common law of England, which recognized twenty-one as the age of majority. Per Oldfield, J., that by the rule of the jus gentium as hitherto understood and recognized in England, the lex loci would govern in respect to the capacity to contract, but that in framing the Indian Majority Act, which was the lex loci on the subject in India, the Legislature would appear not to have adopted that rule, but, by limiting the operation of the Act to persons domiciled in British India, to have intentionally excluded from its operation persons not domiciled there, and to have left such persons to be governed by the law of their domicile. Per Brodhurst, J., that Act IX. of 1875 was intended by the Legislature to be applicable, and in fact was applicable, only to European British subjects domiciled in those parts of India referred to in s. 1, and that to any other European British subject whose domicile was in England, but who was temporarily residing in any part of India above alluded to, the privileges and disabilities of minority attached until he had attained the age of twenty-one years.—Rohilkhand and Kumaon Bank v. Row, 1 L. R., 7 All. 490, [Aug. 16, 1884.]

IN a suit intended to be brought against some minors, the defendants were set out in the heading of the plaint as "Sharoda Sunderi Debye, widow of Chundra Kanta, Chuckerbutty, deceased, mother and guardian of the minors" (setting out their names). At the filing of the plaint, the plaintiff applied for and obtained an order, making Sharoda guardian of the minors for the purposes of the suit. She was not, however, guardian of the property and persons of the minors under Act XL. of 1858. Held that the minors were not parties to the suits; that the order making Sharoda guardian ad litem was not made in a suit in which the minors were defendants; and that the suit must be dismissed as against the minors. Held also that neither the Code of Civil Procedure, nor the proviso of s. 3 of Act XL. of 1858, gives a plaintiff any power to institute a suit against a person named by himself as guardian ad litem on behalf of a minor, nor do they give to the Court the power of transferring, by a mere order made ex parte, an irregular proceeding, such as the one above mentioned, into a suit against the minor.—Guru Churn Chuckerbutty v. Kali Kissen Tagore, 1 L. R., 11 Cal. 402. [Mar. 19, 1885.]

A SUIT was brought against a mother "for self and as guardian of A and B, minor sons of C, deceased," at a period when Act VIII. of 1869 was in force. The mother had not taken out a certificate under Act XL. of 1858, and no permission was recorded by the Court allowing the mother to defend on behalf of the infants under the provisions of s. 3 of that Act. A decree was made in the suit, and in execution thereof certain property belonging to A and B was sold and purchased by X, the decree-holder. Subsequently, on A's coming of age, A and B, by A as his next friend, instituted a suit against X and their mother to recover the property so purchased by X. Held that, under the provisions of Act VIII. of 1859, it was not necessary to formally record sanction to the mother to defend under s. 1 of Act XL. of 1858; and that the fact of sanction having been given might be presumed by the Court, and that on the facts of the case such presumption was warranted. Held also that, though A and B were not properly described in the previous suit, it was a mere defect in form, and did not affect the merits of the case, being in accordance with the prevailing practice at the time when the suit was brought, and that there is no authority for saying that, when minors have been really sued, though in a wrong form, a decree against them would not be valid.—Jogt Singh v. Kunj Behari Singh, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 509. [April 24, 1885.]

THE plaint in a suit described one of the defendants thus: "N C, guardian on behalf of her own minor son S C." Upon the presentation of the plaint the Court directed the plaintiff to produce an affidavit to the effect that the mother of the minor defendant was his guardian, and an affidavit having been made that the "minor defendant" was under the guardianship of the mother, ordered a suit to be registered and summons to be issued on the defendants. N C then filed a written statement, alleging that she held the land in suit on behalf of the minor. Held that, having regard to the orders of the Court and the allegations made in the plaint and written statement, the suit was substantially brought against the minor, and the error of description in the plaint being one of mere form, could not, without proof of prejudice, invalidate a decree against him in the suit. Held also that the want of a formal order appointing a guardian ad litem was not fatal to the suit, when it appeared on the face of the proceedings that the Court had sanctioned the appointment. Held (O'Kinealy, J., dissenting) that the fact that an order appointing a guardian ad litem at the instance of the plaintiff was made ex parte was not necessarily fatal to the suit, unless it could be shown that the minor had in any manner been prejudiced thereby. Per Mitter, J (Potheram, C.J., concurring), that, although the matter of the appointment of a guardian ad litem is left to the discretion of the Court, it is always desirable that the appointment at the instance of the plaintiff should not be made, unless the minor, or his friends and relatives in whose care he may be, failed to move the Court for that purpose within a reasonable time after receiving notice of the institution of the suit.—Suresh Chunder Wum Chowdhry v. Jugut Chunder Deb, I. L. R., 14 Cal. 204. [Aug. 14, 1880.]

- 454. A minor co-plaintiff, on coming of age, and desiring to repudiate the suit, must apply to have his name struck out as co-plaintiff; and the Court, if it finds that he is not a necessary party, shall dismiss him from the suit on such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit. Ditto.
- When minor co-plaintiff coming of age desires to repudiate suit.
- Notice of the application shall be served on the next friend, as well as on the defendant; and it must be proved by affidavit that the late minor has attained his full age. The costs of all parties of such application, and of all or any proceedings theretofore had in the suit, shall be paid by such persons as the Court directs.
- Costs.
- If the late minor be a necessary party to the suit, the Court may direct him to be made a defendant.
- 455. If any minor, on attaining majority, can prove, to the satisfaction of the Court, that a suit instituted in his name by a next friend was unreasonable or improper, he may, if a sole plaintiff, apply to have the suit dismissed. Ditto.
- When suit unreasonable or improper.

Notice of the application shall be served on all the parties concerned ; and the Court, upon being satisfied of such unreasonableness or impropriety, may grant the application, and order the next friend to pay the costs of all parties in respect of the application and of anything done in the suit.

456. An order for the appointment of a guardian for the suit may be obtained upon application in the name, and on behalf, of the minor or by the plaintiff. Such application must be supported by an affidavit verifying the fact that the proposed guardian has no interest in the matters in question in the suit adverse to that of the minor, and that he is a fit person to be so appointed.

Where there is no other person fit and willing to act as guardian for the suit, the Court may appoint any of its officers to be such guardian : Provided that he has no interest adverse to that of the minor.

A SUBORDINATE Judge, who, under Act X. of 1877, s. 456, as amended by Act XII. of 1879, s. 73, appoints the nazir or any other officer of his Court to act as guardian of a minor plaintiff or defendant in a suit in his Court, has no jurisdiction to hear it, and pass a decree against that officer as guardian ad litem of the minor.—Mohan Ishwar v. Haku Rupa, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 638. [July 13, 1880.] See the following ruling.

WHERE no administrator of the estate of a minor is appointed under Act XX. of 1864, there is no objection to the appointment of a guardian ad litem under s. 443 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), as amended by Act XII. of 1879, for the purpose of defending a suit against a minor. Act XX. of 1864, s. 2, has no bearing on the case of a next friend or guardian ad litem not claiming charge of the minor's estate. Neither Act XX. of 1864, nor the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) (as amended by Act XII. of 1879), empowers any Court to appoint a person, against his or her will, to be a next friend, guardian ad litem, administrator of the estate, or guardian of the person of the minor. S. 458 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) is not, so far as regards payment of costs, applicable to any person appointed to act as guardian ad litem without his previous assent. S. 3, cl. b of Act XV. of 1880, preserves jurisdiction to a Court to try a suit against a minor, notwithstanding the appointment of one of its officers to be the minor's guardian ad litem. The decision in Mohan Ishwar v. Haku Rupa (I. L. R., 8 Bom. 638) is superseded by Act XV. of 1880, s. 3, cl. b, in so far as that decision affected officers of the Court appointed guardians ad litem under s. 456 of Act X. of 1877 as amended by Act XII. of 1879. Inconvenience, pointed out, of introducing into Acts relating, and instituted as relating, to special jurisdiction only, provisions affecting civil procedure generally.—*Jadow Mulji v. 458. If the guardian for the suit of a minor defendant does not do his duty, or if other sufficient ground be made to appear, the Court may remove him, and may order him to pay such costs as may have been occasioned to any party by his breach of duty.

WHERE no administrator of the estate of a minor is appointed under Act XX. of 1864, there is no objection to the appointment of a guardian ad litem under s. 443 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), as amended by Act XII. of 1879, for the purpose of defending a suit against a minor. Act XX. of 1864, s. 2, has no bearing on the case of a next friend or guardian ad litem not claiming charge of the minor's estate. Neither Act XX. of 1864, nor the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), as amended by Act XII. of 1879, empowers any Court to appoint a person, against his or her will, to be a next friend, guardian ad litem, administrator of the estate, or guardian of the person of the minor. S. 458 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) is not, so far as regards payment of costs, applicable to any person appointed to act as guardian ad litem without his previous assent. S. 3, cl. b, of Act XV. of 1880, preserves jurisdiction to a Court to try a suit against a minor, notwithstanding the appointment of one of its officers to be the minor's guardian ad litem. THE Civil Procedure Code does not authorize a Court to decree costs against the guardian of a defendant except in the case referred to in s. 458.—Nardimha Rau v. Lakshmi-pati Rau, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 263. [Sep. 5, 1881.]

No sum of money or other thing shall be received or taken by a next friend or guardian ad litem not to receive money without leave of Court and give security. he, has first obtained the leave of the Court, and given security to its satisfaction that such money or other thing shall be duly accounted for to, and held for the benefit of, such minor.

Ditto.

462. No next friend or guardian for the suit shall, without the leave of the Court, enter into any agreement or compromise on behalf of a minor, with reference to the suit in which he acts as next friend or guardian.

Ditto.

Any such agreement or compromise entered into without the leave of the Court shall be voidable against all parties other than the minor.

THE conditions of s. 462 of the Civil Procedure Code, requiring the sanction of the Court to compromises entered into by the guardian ad litem of an infant suitor, are not sufficiently complied with by the Court passing a decree in the terms of a compromise presented by the guardian ad litem. A decree passed under such circumstances should be set aside.—Rajagopal Takkaya Naiker v. Muttupalem Chetti, J. L. R., 3 Mad. 108. [Jan. 14, 1881.]

463. The provisions contained in section 440 to 462 (both inclusive) shall, mutatis mutandis, apply in the case of persons of unsound mind, adjudged to be so under Act No. XXXV. of 1858, or under any other law for the time being in force.

Ditto.

A GUARDIAN ad litem cannot be appointed under Chap. XXXI. of the Code of Civil Procedure for a lunatic defendant to whom Act XXXV. of 1858 applies, until the defendant has been adjudged a lunatic under the provisions of the said Act.—Subbaya v. Buthaya, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 360. [Mar. 16, 1883.]

464. Nothing in sections 442 to 462 applies to any minor or person of unsound mind, for whose person or property a guardian or manager has been appointed by the Court of Wards, or by the Civil Court under any local law.

In a suit intended to be brought against some minors, the defendants were set out in the heading of the plaint as "Sharoda Sunderi Debya, widow of Chundra Kanta Chuckerbutty, deceased, mother and guardian of the minors" (setting out their names). At the filing of the plaint, the plaintiff applied for and obtained an order, making Sharoda guardian of the minors for the purposes of the suit. She was not, however, guardian of the property and persons of the minors under Act XL of 1858. Held that the minors were not parties to the suit; that the order making Sharoda guardian ad litem was not made in a suit in which the minors were defendants; and that the suit must be dismissed as against the minors. Held also that neither the Code of Civil Procedure, nor the proviso of s. 3 of Act XL of 1858, gives a plaintiff any power to institute a suit against a person named by himself as guardian ad litem on behalf of a minor, nor do they give the Court the power of transferring, by a mere order made ex parte, an irregular proceeding such as the one above mentioned into a suit against the minor.—Guru Churn Chuckerbutty v. Kali Kissen Tagore, 1. L. R., 11 Cal. 402. [Mar. 19, 1885.]

CHAPTER XXXII.

SUITS BY AND AGAINST MILITARY MEN.

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

465. When any officer or soldier actually serving the Government in a military capacity is a party to a suit, and cannot obtain leave of absence for the purpose of prosecuting or defending the suit in person, he may authorize any person to sue or defend in his stead.

The authority shall be in writing, and shall be signed by the officer or soldier in the presence of (a) his commanding officer, or the next subordinate officer, if the party be himself the commanding officer, or (b) where the officer or soldier is serving in military staff employment, the head or other superior officer of the office in which he is employed. Such commanding or other officer shall countersign the authority, which shall be filed in Court.

When so filed, the countersignature shall be sufficient proof that the authority was duly executed, and that the officer or soldier by whom it was granted could not obtain leave of absence for the purpose of prosecuting or defending the suit in person.

Explanation.—In this chapter the expression "commanding officer" means the officer in actual command for the time being of any regiment, corps, detachment, or depot to which the officer or soldier belongs.

Ditto.

466. Any person authorized by an officer or a soldier to prosecute or defend a suit in his stead may prosecute or defend it in person in the same manner as the officer or soldier could do if present; or he may appoint a pleader to prosecute or defend the suit on behalf of such officer or soldier.

Ditto.

467. Processes served upon any person authorized by an officer or a soldier, as in section 465, or upon any pleader appointed as aforesaid by such person to act for, or on behalf of, such officer or soldier, shall be as effectual as if they had been served on the party in person or on his pleader.

Ditto.

468. When an officer or a soldier is a defendant, the Court shall send a copy of the summons to his commanding officer for the purpose of being served on him.

The officer to whom such copy is sent, after causing it to be served on the person to whom it is addressed, if practicable, shall return it to the Court with the written acknowledgment of such person endorsed thereon.

If, from any cause, the copy cannot be so served, it shall be returned to the Court by which it was sent, with information of the cause which has prevented the service.

469. If, in the execution of a decree, a warrant of arrest or other process is to be executed within the limits of a cantonment, garrison, military station, or military bazar, the officer charged with the execution of such warrant or other process shall deliver the same to the commanding officer.

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

The commanding officer shall back the warrant or other process with his signature, and, in the case of a warrant of arrest, if the person named therein is within the limits of his command, shall cause him to be arrested and delivered to the officer so charged.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

INTERPLEADER.

470. When two or more persons claim adversely to one another the same payment or property from another person, whose only interest therein is that of a mere stakeholder, and who is ready to render it to the right owner, such stakeholder may institute a suit of interpleader against all the claimants for the purpose of obtaining a decision as to whom the payment or property should be made or delivered, and of obtaining indemnity for himself :

Ditto.

Provided that, if any suit is pending in which the rights of all parties can properly be decided, the stakeholder shall not institute a suit of interpleader.

Plaint in such suit.

471. In every suit of interpleader the plaintiff must, in addition to the other statements necessary for plaints, state—

Ditto.

- (a) that the plaintiff has no interest in the thing claimed otherwise than as a mere stakeholder ;
- (b) the claims made by the defendants severally ; and
- (c) that there is no collusion between the plaintiff and any of the defendants.

472 When the thing claimed is capable of being paid into Court or placed in the custody of the Court, the plaintiff must so pay or place it before he can be entitled to any order in the suit.

Ditto.

Procedure at first hearing.

473. At the first hearing the Court may—

Ditto.

(a) declare that the plaintiff is discharged from all liability to the defendants in respect of the thing claimed, award him his costs, and dismiss him from the suit ;

or, if it thinks that justice or convenience so require,

(b) retain all parties until the final disposal of the suit ;

and, if it finds that the admissions of the parties or other evidence enable it,

(c) adjudicate the title to the thing claimed : or else it may

(d) direct the defendants to interplead one another by filing statements and entering into evidence for the purpose of bringing their respective claims before the Court, and shall adjudicate on such claims.

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

474. Nothing in this chapter shall be taken to enable agents to sue their principals, or tenants to sue their landlords, for the purpose of compelling them to interplead with any persons other than persons making claim through such principals or landlords.

Illustrations.

(a.) A deposits a box of jewels with B as his agent. C alleges that the jewels were wrongfully obtained from him by A, and claims them from B. B cannot institute an interpleader-suit against A and C.

(b.) A deposits a box of jewels with B as his agent. He then writes to C for the purpose of making the jewels a security for a debt due from himself to C. A afterwards alleges that C's debt is satisfied, and C alleges the contrary. Both claim the jewels from B. B may institute an interpleader-suit against A and C.

Ditto.

475. When the suit is properly instituted, the Court may provide for the plaintiff's costs by giving him a charge on the thing claimed or in some other effectual way.

Ditto.

476. If any of the defendants in an interpleader-suit is actually suing the stakeholder in respect of the subject of such suit, the Court in which the suit against the stakeholder is pending shall, on being duly informed by the Court which passed the decree in the interpleader-suit in favour of the stakeholder that such decree has been passed, stay the proceedings as against him; and his costs in the suit so stayed may be provided for in such suit; but if, and so far as, they are not provided for in that suit, they may be added to his costs incurred in the interpleader-suit.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

OF ARREST AND ATTACHMENT BEFORE JUDGMENT.

A.—Arrest before Judgment.

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts
(except as regards immoveable property).

477. If at any stage of any suit, other than a suit for the possession of immoveable property, the plaintiff satisfies the Court by affidavit or otherwise—that the defendant, with intent to avoid or delay the plaintiff, or to avoid any process of the Court, or to obstruct or delay the execution of any decree that may be passed against him,

(a) has absconded or left the jurisdiction of the Court, or

(b) is about to abscond or to leave the jurisdiction of the Court, or

(c) has disposed of or removed from the jurisdiction of the Court his property or any part thereof, or that the defendant is about to leave British India under circumstances affording reasonable probability that the plaintiff will or may thereby be obstructed or delayed in the execution of any decree that may be passed against the defendant in the suit, the plaintiff may apply to the Court that security be taken for the appearance of the defendant to answer any decree that may be passed against him in the suit.

Order to bring up defendant to show cause why he should not give security.

478. If the Court, after examining the applicant, and making such further investigation as it thinks fit, is satisfied—that the defendant, with any such intent as aforesaid,

Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts (except as regards immoveable property).

(a) has absconded or left the jurisdiction of the Court, or

(b) is about to abscond or to leave the jurisdiction of the Court, or

(c) has disposed of or removed from the jurisdiction of the Court his property or any part thereof, or that the defendant is about to leave British India under the circumstances last aforesaid, the Court may issue a warrant to arrest the defendant and bring him before the Court to show cause why he should not give security for his appearance.

479. If the defendant fail to show such cause, the Court shall order him either to deposit in Court money or other property sufficient to answer the claim against him, or to give security for his appearance at any time when called upon while the suit is pending, and until execution or satisfaction of any decree that may be passed against him in the suit.

Ditto.

The surety shall bind himself, in default of such appearance, to pay any sum of money which the defendant may be ordered to pay in the suit.

Procedure in case of application by surety to be discharged.

480. The surety for the appearance of the defendant may at any time apply to the Court in which he became such surety to be discharged from his obligation.

Ditto.

On such application being made, the Court shall summon the defendant to appear, or, if it thinks fit, may issue a warrant for his arrest in the first instance.

On the appearance of the defendant pursuant to the summons or warrant, or on his voluntary surrender, the Court shall direct the surety to be discharged from his obligation, and shall call upon the defendant to find fresh security.

481. If the defendant fail to comply with any order under section 479 or section 480, the Court may commit him to jail until the decision of the suit, or, if judgment be given against the defendant, until the execution of the decree: Provided that no person shall be imprisoned under this section in any case for a longer period than six months, nor for a longer period than six weeks when the amount or value of the subject-matter of the suit does not exceed fifty rupees:

Ditto.

Provided that no person shall be detained in prison under this section after he has complied with such order:

THE defendant was arrested before judgment, and, on the 5th February 1883, committed to jail under s. 481 of the Civil Procedure Code. On the 6th March following, a decree in the suit was passed against him. On the 28th July, the defendant being then still in jail under the order of the 5th February, the plaintiff took out a fresh warrant of arrest in execution of the decree, and sought to have the defendant further imprisoned for the full period of six months limited by s. 342 of the Code. Held that the defendant could be re-committed to jail, in execution of the decree, only for such a period as, together with the period of imprisonment that had elapsed since the passing of the decree, would complete a period of six months, and that, consequently, he would be entitled to be liberated on the 5th September 1883. Imprisonment under s. 481 becomes, after decree, imprisonment in execution of the decree, and the imprisonment suffered after that date must consequently be taken into consideration in calculating the period of six months which, by s. 342 of the Code, is the limit allowed for an imprisonment in execution of a decree.—Ghanushamdás Goorsamull v. Johárimull Kedárináth, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 431. [Aug. 31, 1883.]

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts
(except as regards
immovable
property).

482. The provisions of section 339 as to allowances payable for the subsistence of defendants arrested; subsistence of judgment-debtors shall apply to all defendants arrested under this chapter.

B.—Attachment before Judgment.

Ditto.

Application before judgment for security from defendant to satisfy decree, and, in default, for attachment of property.

483. If at any stage of any suit, the plaintiff satisfies the Court by affidavit or otherwise that the defendant, with intent to obstruct or delay the execution of any decree that may be passed against him,

(a) is about to dispose of the whole or any part of his property, or to remove the same from the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit is pending, or

(b) has quitted the jurisdiction of the Court, leaving therein property belonging to him, the plaintiff may apply to the Court to call upon the defendant to furnish security to satisfy any decree that may be passed against him in such suit, and, on his failing to give such security, to direct that any portion of his property within the jurisdiction of the Court shall be attached until the further order of the Court.

The application shall, unless the Court otherwise directs, specify the property required to be attached, and the estimated value thereof.

A CREDITOR attached before judgment certain of his debtor's property. Between the date of attachment and the date of the decree subsequently obtained by the creditor, the property of the debtor became vested in the Official Assignee under a vesting order. The Official Assignee brought a suit to remove the attachment, and for an injunction restraining the sale of the property. The Court of first instance decreed the suit in favour of the Official Assignee. On the case coming up before a Full Bench, held (Per McDonnell, Tottenham, and Prinsep, JJ.) that, where there has been an attachment prior to decree, and the property of a judgment-debtor subsequently becomes vested in the Official Assignee in insolvency previous to the decree, the vesting order will prevent such an attaching creditor from executing his decree against the property. Per Garth, C.J., and Mitter, J., contra, that, under the 34th chapter of Act XIV. of 1882, the Court had no power to remove the attachment before judgment, or stay the sale at the instance of the Official Assignee.—Shib Kristo Shaha Chowdhry v. Miller (A. B.), I. L. R., 10 Cal. 150. [Sep. 13, 1883.]

UNDER the provisions of ss. 483 and 484 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, property of the defendant, which is not within the jurisdiction of the Court, cannot be attached before judgment.—Krishnasami v. Engel, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 20. [Nov. 7, 1884.]

Ditto.

484. If the Court, after examining the applicant, and making any further investigation which it thinks fit, is satisfied that the defendant is about to dispose of or remove his property with intent to obstruct or delay the execution of any decree that may be passed against him in the suit, or that he has, with such intent, quitted the jurisdiction of the Court, leaving therein property belonging to him, the Court may require him, within a time to be fixed by the Court, either to furnish security, in such sum as may be specified in the order, to produce and place at the disposal of the Court, when required, the said property or the value of the same, or such portion thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy the decree, or to appear and show cause why he should not furnish security.

The Court may also, in the order, direct the conditional attachment of the whole or any portion of the property specified in the application.

THE defendants were, on the 10th of March 1881, called upon, under s. 484 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), to furnish security for the satisfaction of a decree that the plaintiff might obtain, against them, or to show cause, on the 28th March 1881, why security should not be furnished. To this direction the order was appended, which is provided by the form at the end of the Code of Civil Procedure, for a provisional attachment, under s. 484. The defendants, to avoid the attachment, gave security, on the 28th March 1881, for satisfaction of the decree, and the attachment was not carried out. On the 28th March 1881, they showed cause why security should not be furnished; but the Subordinate Judge, as security had been furnished, thought the matter was at an end, and that he could not cancel the security-bond. Held that the Subordinate Judge was wrong; the security so given was really not the security expressly provided under s. 484, and did not preclude the defendants from showing cause why no security should be furnished.—Lotlikar v. Lotlikar, I. L. R., 5 Bom. 643. [July 26, 1881.]

UNDER the provisions of ss. 483 and 484 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, property of the defendant, which is not within the jurisdiction of the Court, cannot be attached before judgment.—Krishnasami v. Engel, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 20. [Nov. 7, 1884.]

485. If the defendant fail to show cause why he should not furnish property).

491. If, in any suit in which an arrest or attachment has been effected, it appears to the Court that such arrest or attachment was applied for on insufficient grounds, or if the suit of the plaintiff fails, and it appears to the Court that there was no probable ground for instituting the suit, the Court may, on the application of the defendant, award against the plaintiff in its decree such amount, not exceeding one thousand rupees, as it deems a reasonable compensation to the defendant for the expense or injury caused to him by the arrest or attachment:

Provided that the Court shall not award under this section a larger amount than it might decree in a suit for compensation.

An award under this section shall bar any suit for compensation in respect of such arrest or attachment.

CHAPTER XXXV.

OF TEMPORARY INJUNCTIONS AND INTERLOCUTORY ORDERS.

A—Temporary Injunctions.

Cases in which temporary injunction may be granted. 492. If, in any suit, it is proved by affidavit or otherwise—

(a) that any property in dispute in a suit is in danger of being wasted, damaged, or alienated by any party to the suit, or wrongfully sold in execution of a decree, or

(b) that the defendant threatens, or is about, to remove or dispose of his property with intent to defraud his creditors, the Court may, by order, grant a temporary injunction to restrain such act, or give such other order, for the purpose of staying and preventing the wasting, damaging, alienation, sale, removal, or disposition of the property, as the Court thinks fit, or refuse such injunction or other order.

WHERE a Court made an order granting a temporary injunction under s. 492 of the Civil Procedure Code, without directing notice of the application for injunction to be issued to the other side, and its order directing stay of sale of property in execution was passed ex parte, without the other side being given an opportunity to show cause, held that the order was irregular. Where ancestral property was attached in execution of a decree, and a son of the judgment-debtor instituted a suit to establish his right to the property, and made an application for a temporary injunction directing stay of sale pending the decision of the suit, held that, inasmuch as what was advertised to be sold was the rights and interests of the plaintiff's father in the property, and it could not be said that the property was being "wrongfully sold in execution of a decree" and the application on the face of it disclosed no sufficient ground to warrant an order under s. 492 of the Civil Procedure Code being made as prayed, the temporary injunction ought not to have been granted.—Amolak Ram v. Sahib Singh, I. L. R., 7 All. 550. [Feb. 27, 1885.]

A CLAIM by R to certain property which had been attached by B in the course of execution-proceedings in the Court of the First Subordinate Judge of Dacca having been rejected, R instituted a suit in the Court of the Second Subordinate Judge to establish his title to the property. In that suit he applied to the Court in which his suit was brought for an injunction under s. 492 of the Civil Procedure Code to stay the sale of the property attached by B in the execution-proceedings; but that application was rejected, and R thereupon applied for and obtained from the Court of the First Subordinate Judge an order staying the sale of the attached property until the hearing of the suit brought by him to establish his right to it. Held, in an application under s. 622 of the Code, to set the latter order aside, that s. 492 of the Code of 1882 has, and was intended to have, a wider application than s. 92 of Act VIII. of 1859 had, and provides a remedy where property is "in danger of being wrongfully sold;" if the circumstances justified it, an order could have been obtained under that section from the Court of the Second Subordinate Judge to stay the sale. There being this alteration in the law, and such a remedy provided, and no express provision in the Code for stay of execution by a Court executing a decree on the application of a third party, the order of the First Subordinate Judge was made without jurisdiction, and should be set aside.—In the Matter of the Petition of Brojendra Kumar Rai Chowdhuri; Brojendra Kumar Rai Chowdhuri v. Rup Lali Doss, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 515. [Feb. 1, 1886.]

In granting or withholding an injunction, a Court should exercise a judicial discretion, and should weigh the amount of substantial mischief done or threatened to the plaintiff, and compare it with that which the injunction, if granted, would inflict upon the defendant. There is no such broad proposition as that one co-owner is entitled to an injunction restraining another co-owner from exceeding his rights, absolutely and without reference to the amount of damage to be sustained by the one side or the other from the granting or withholding of the injunction.—Shamnugger Jute Factory Co. v. Ram Narain Chatterjee, I. L. R., 14 Cal. 189. [April 20, 1886.]

493. In any suit for restraining the defendant from committing a

Injunction to restrain re- breach of contract or other injury, whether competition or continuance of pensation be claimed in the suit or not, the plaintiff may, at any time after the commencement of the suit, and either before or after judgment, apply to the Court for a temporary injunction to restrain the defendant from committing the breach of contract or injury complained of, or any breach of contract or injury of a like kind arising out of the same contract or relating to the same property or right.

The Court may, by order, grant such injunction on such terms as to the duration of the injunction, keeping an account, giving security, or otherwise, as the Court thinks fit, or refuse the same.

In case of disobedience, an injunction granted under this section or section 492 may be enforced by the imprisonment of the defendant for a term not exceeding six months, or the attachment of his property, or both.

No attachment under this section shall remain in force for more than one year, at the end of which time, if the defendant has not obeyed the injunction, the property attached may be sold, and out of the proceeds the Court may award to the plaintiff such compensation as it thinks fit, and may pay the balance (if any) to the defendant.

494. The Court shall in all cases, except where it appears that the ob-to the opposite party.

WHERE a Court made an order granting a temporary injunction under s. 492 of the Civil Procedure Code, without directing notice of the application for injunction to be issued to the other side, and its order directing stay of sale of property in execution was passed ex parte, without the other side being given an opportunity to show cause, held that the order was irregular. Where ancestral property was attached in execution of a decree, and a son of the judgment-debtor instituted a suit to establish his right to the property, and made an application for a temporary injunction directing stay of sale pending the decision of the suit, held that inasmuch as what was advertised to be sold was the rights and interests of the plaintiff's father in the property, and it could not be said that the property was being "wrongfully sold in execution of a decree," and the application on the face of it disclosed no sufficient ground to warrant an order under s. 492 of the Civil Procedure Code being made as prayed, the temporary injunction ought not to have been granted.—Amolak Ram v. Sahib Singh, I. L. R., 7 All. 550. [Feb. 27, 1885.]

495. An injunction directed to a Corporation or public Company is binding not only on the Corporation or Company itself, but also on all members and officers of the Corporation or Company whose personal action it seeks to restrain.

Injunction to Corporation binding on its members and officers.

496. Any order for an injunction may be discharged, or varied, or set aside by the Court, on application made thereto by any party dissatisfied with such order.

Order for injunction may be discharged, varied, or set aside.

497. If it appears to the Court that an injunction which it has granted was applied for on insufficient grounds, or if, after the issue of the injunction, the suit is dismissed, or judgment is given against the plaintiff by default or otherwise, and it appears to the Court that there was no probable ground for instituting the suit, the Court may, on the application of the defendant, award against the plaintiff in its decree such sum, not exceeding one thousand rupees, as it deems a reasonable compensation to the defendant, for the expense or injury caused to him by the issue of the injunction :

Provido.

Provided that the Court shall not award under this section a larger amount than it might decree in a suit for compensation.

An award under this section shall bar any suit for compensation in respect of the issue of the injunction.

B.—Interlocutory Orders.

498. The Court may, on the application of any party to a suit, order the sale, by any person named in such order, and in such manner, and on such terms as it thinks fit, of any moveable property being the subject of such suit, which is subject to speedy and natural decay.

Power to order interim sale of perishable articles.

499. The Court may, on the application of any party to a suit, and on such terms as it thinks fit,

(a) make an order for the detention, preservation, or inspection of any property being the subject of such suit ;

(b) for all or any of the purposes aforesaid, authorize any person to enter upon or into any land or building in the possession of any other party to such suit, and

(c) for all or any of the purposes aforesaid, authorize any samples to be taken, or any observation to be made or experiment to be tried, which may seem necessary or expedient for the purpose of obtaining full information or evidence.

The provisions hereinbefore contained as to execution of process shall apply, mutatis mutandis, to persons authorized to enter under this section.

An application for an order under s. 499 of the Code of Civil Procedure can only be made by a plaintiff after summons has been served and after reasonable notice of the intention to apply for the order has been given in writing to the defendant.—Sengotha v. Rāmāsāmi, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 241. [Oct. 19, 1883.]

500. An application by the plaintiff for an order under section 498 or section 499 may be made after notice in writing to the defendant at any time after service of the summons.

An application by the defendant for a like order may be made after notice in writing to the plaintiff, and at any time after the applicant has appeared.

501. When land paying revenue to Government, or a tenure liable to sale, is the subject of a suit, if the party in possession of such land or tenure neglects to pay the Government-revenue or the rent due to the proprietor of the tenure, as the case may be, and such land or tenure is consequently ordered to be sold, any other party to the suit claiming to have an interest in such land or tenure may, upon payment of the revenue or rent due previously to the sale (and with or without security at the discretion of the Court), be put in immediate possession of the land or tenure ; and the Court in its decree may award against the defaulter the amount so paid, with interest thereupon at such rate as the Court thinks fit, or may charge the amount so paid, with interest thereupon at such rate as the Court orders, in any adjustment of accounts which may be directed in the decree passed in the suit.

502. When the subject-matter of a suit is money or some other thing capable of delivery, and any party thereto admits that he holds such money or other thing as a trustee for another party, or that it belongs or is due to another party, the Court may order the same to be deposited in Court or delivered to such last-named party, with or without security, subject to the further direction of the Court.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVERS.

503. Whenever it appears to the Court to be necessary for the realization, preservation, or better custody or management of any property, moveable or immoveable, the subject of a suit, or under attachment, the Court may, by order—

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

(a) appoint a Receiver of such property, and, if need be,

(b) remove the person in whose possession or custody the property may be from the possession or custody thereof ;

(c) commit the same to the custody or management of such Receiver ;

and
(d) grant to such Receiver such fee or commission on the rents and profits of the property by way of remuneration, and all such powers as to bringing and defending suits, and for the realization, management, protection, preservation, and improvement of the property, the collection of the rents and profits thereof, the application and disposal of such rents and profits, and the execution of instruments in writing, as the owner himself has, or such of those powers as the Court thinks fit.

Receiver's liabilities.

Every Receiver so appointed shall—

(e) give such security (if any) as the Court thinks fit duly to account for what he shall receive in respect of the property ;

(f) pass his accounts at such periods and in such form as the Court directs ;

(g) pay the balance due from him thereon as the Court directs ; and

(h) be responsible for any loss occasioned to the property by his wilful default or gross negligence.

Nothing in this section authorizes the Court to remove from the possession or custody of property under attachment any person whom the parties to the suit, or some or one of them, have or has not a present right so to remove.

By a decree in an administration-suit, A was appointed receiver "to manage the estate." A died, and by a subsequent order B was appointed receiver. One of the defendants in the suit applied to have B removed from the office of receiver on the ground of his alleged mismanagement of the estate. The application was refused. Held that the order of refusal was appealable, whether the former Code or the present Code of Civil Procedure was deemed to be applicable, being an order made in respect of a question arising between the parties to a suit relating to the execution of the decree.—Mithibai v. Limji Nowroji Banaji; Harrivullubhdas Calliandas v. Ardasar Framji Moss, I. L. R., 5 Bom. 45. [Dec. 3, 1880.]

No appeal lies from an order passed under s. 505 of the Civil Procedure Code by a Court subordinate to a District Court, submitting the name of a person sought to be appointed a receiver, together with the grounds for the nomination, such being only a preliminary order or expression of opinion, and not an order under s. 503. Nor does an appeal lie from the order of the District Court confirming such nomination, but the District Court ought, when the question is raised, to decide on the necessity for the appointment of a receiver, the words "or pass such other order as it thinks fit" in s. 505 being sufficient to include that question, and not merely to decide the fitness or otherwise of the person nominated to the office of receiver.—Birajan Kooer v. Ram Churn Lall Mahata, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 719. [July 20, 1881.]

A MANAGER appointed under s. 243 of the Act VIII. of 1859 is appointed merely to collect rent and other receipts and profits of the land, to carry on the existing state of affairs as the proprietor himself had been doing, and he has no power to issue notice of enhancement.—Khettr Mohun Dutt v. Wells, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 719. [April 4, 1882.]

A SERVANT of a firm, the business of which is being managed by a receiver appointed under s. 503 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1877, has no preferential claim over the attaching creditor, on the assets of the firm for wages due before the appointment of the receiver.—Short v. Pickering, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 138. [Dec. 8, 1882.]

AN order refusing to appoint a receiver under s. 503 of the Code of Civil Procedure is not appealable.—Subramanya v. Appasami, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 355. [April 18, 23, 1883.]

THE powers conferred by s. 503 of the Civil Procedure Code are not to be exercised as a matter of course, and it is not a reason for allowing an application for the appointment of a receiver, that it can do no harm to appoint one. The discretion given by that section is one that should be used with the greatest care and caution. Because a plaintiff in his plaint makes violent and wholesale charges of waste and malversation against a defendant in possession of property as executor under a will or as the tenant for life, and upon this basis applies for a receiver to be appointed, it is not a necessary consequence that such appointment should be made. Held in this case, where the sons of a Hindu widow, in possession of her husband's estate under a will, sued their mother, as reversioners under the will, for possession of the estate, on the ground of mismanagement and waste, and on the same grounds applied for the appointment of a receiver under s. 503 of the Civil Procedure Code, that a receiver had been appointed on insufficient grounds.—Srimati Prosonomoyi Devi v. Beni Madhab Rai, I. L. R., 5 All. 556. [May 16, 1883.]

In a suit brought in 1880 by the widow of a deceased partner, to wind up a partnership, the surviving partner was prohibited by the Court, at the instance of the plaintiff, from collecting debts due to the firm; but leave was given to apply for the recovery of debts which might become barred by limitation. After decree, on the application of the plaintiff, a receiver was appointed under s. 503 of the Code of Civil Procedure to collect outstanding debts for the purpose of executing the decree. The receiver having sued in 1883 to recover a debt which was due to the firm in 1879, the suit was dismissed (1) on the ground that the appointment of a receiver after decree was ultra vires; (2) because the debt was barred by limitation. Held (1) that the appointment of the receiver was valid; (2) that under s. 15 of the Limitation Act the suit was not barred.—Shunmugam v. Moidin, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 429. [Dec. 9, 1884.]

ALTHOUGH, having regard to the provisions of ss. 23 and 52 of Bengal Act VIII. of 1868, s. 503 of the Civil Procedure Code would not apply to a suit brought under Bengal Act VIII. of 1869 merely for arrears of rent, there is no provision in that Act which excludes the operation of s. 503 when a suit is brought for recovery of the tenure itself. When, therefore, a suit was brought under Bengal Act VIII. of 1869 for arrears of rent and for ejectment of the defendant, held that a receiver of the rents and profits of the tenure might properly be appointed under the provision of s. 503 of the Civil Procedure Code.—Kartie Nath Pandey v. Padmanund Singh, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 496. [Mar. 31, 1885.]

In 1879 a zamindár granted a lease of part of the zamindari for twenty years, reserving a rent of 18,000 rupees per annum. In 1881, the zamindári having been attached by a creditor, the zamindár granted a new lease in perpetuity in lieu of the former lease, reserving a rent of Rs. 12,000 a year. A receiver of the zamindari, having subsequently been appointed with full powers under the provisions of s. 503 of the Code of Civil Procedure, sued the lessee to recover rent at the rate reserved in the first lease from 1881. Held that the receiver was entitled to recover the rent claimed. The provisions of s. 503 of the Code of Civil Procedure were intended to declare that the receiver, in respect of all property which was or could be attached, had the powers of the owner as they existed at the time the property was brought under the orders of the Court by attachment, provided that they have not ceased by operation of law.—Gopálasámi v. Sankara, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 418. [Mar. 31, 1885.]

A ZAMINDARI was attached in execution of certain decrees against the zamindár, and the plaintiff was appointed receiver with full powers, under s. 503 of the Code of Civil Procedure, to manage the zamindari. Before the appointment of the receiver, the zamindár had expended certain sums at the defendants' request to repair a tank for the irrigation of lands held by them in common with him. This suit was brought to recover the sums so expended. It was objected that the receiver could not maintain the suit on the ground that the sum sued for was neither the subject of a suit against the zamindár, nor property attached in execution of a decree against him. Held that the receiver could maintain the suit. It was also contended that the suit, whether viewed as one for contribution or upon a contract, was barred by limitation in respect of all payments made by the zamindár more than three years before the suit; and, further, that the receiver could only sue the defendants severally for their proportionate shares of the sum claimed. Held that the suit being for work and labour done at their request was not barred by limitation, and that the defendants were jointly and severally liable for the sum sued for.—Sundaram v. Sankara, I. L. R., 9 Mad 334. [April 5, 1886.]

D WAS appointed receiver in a partition-suit pending in the High Court by an order which, amongst other things, gave him power to let and set the immoveable property, or any part thereof, as he should think fit, and to take and use all such lawful and equitable means and remedies for recovering, realising, and obtaining payment of the rents, issues, and profits of the said immoveable property, and of the outstanding debts and claims by action, suit, or otherwise, as should be expedient. D, without special leave of the Court, served a notice to quit on certain tenants of the estate, who claimed to hold a permanent lease, and afterwards instituted a suit to eject them, also without special leave of the Court. Held that the order appointing him did not give him power to serve such notice or to institute such suit without the special leave of the Court, and that as he was appointed under the provisions of s. 503 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and not vested with the general powers referred to in that section, but only with the power referred to in the order appointing him, and as a receiver is not otherwise authorised to institute such suits without special leave of the Court, the suit must be dismissed.—Drobomoyi Gupta v. C. T. Davis, I. L. R., 14 Cal. 323. [Jan. 24, 1887.]

When Collector may be appointed Receiver. land of which the revenue has been assigned or redeemed, and the Court considers that the interests of those concerned will be promoted by the management of the Collector, the Court may appoint the Collector to be receiver of such property.

No appeal lies from an order passed under s. 505 of the Civil Procedure Code by a Court subordinate to a District Court, submitting the name of a person sought to be appointed a receiver, together with the grounds for the nomination, such being only a preliminary order or expression of opinion, and not an order under s. 503. Nor does an appeal lie from the order of the District Court confirming such nomination, but the District Court ought, when the question is raised, to decide on the necessity for the appointment of a receiver, the words "or pass such other order as it thinks fit" in s. 505 being sufficient to include that question, and not merely to decide the fitness or otherwise of the person nominated to the office of receiver.—*Birajan Kooer v. High Courts and District Courts: Provided that, whenever the Judge of a Court subordinate to a District Court considers it expedient that a Receiver should be appointed in any suit before him, he shall nominate such person as he considers fit for such appointment, and submit such person's name, with the grounds for the nomination, to the District Court, and the District Court shall authorize such Judge to appoint the person so nominated, or pass such other order as it thinks fit.

PART V. OF SPECIAL PROCEEDINGS.

CHAPTER XXXVI. REFERENCE TO ARBITRATION.

Dicto.

506. If all the parties to a suit desire that any matter in difference between them in the suit be referred to arbitration, they may, at any time before judgment is pronounced, apply in person, or by their respective pleaders specially authorized in writing in this behalf, to the Court for an order of reference.

Every such application shall be in writing; and shall state the particular matter sought to be referred.

APPLICATION for reference to arbitration must be made to the Court in writing by parties in person or by pleaders specially authorized.—Ranee Roshun Jehan v. Syed Enayut Hossein and others, W. R. Sp. 41. [Sep. 9, 1862.]

A MERE agreement to refer to arbitration, if it contain no acknowledgment of the plaintiff's right or possession, does not save limitation; but the time during which the case was before the arbitrators, and the plaintiff was trying in another form to enforce the award, may be deducted from the period of limitation.—W. R. Sp. 283. (L. R. 65). [June 18, 1864.]

A REGULAR (and not a summary) appeal lies to set aside an award of arbitration passed under s. 313 of Act VIII. of 1859 (corresponding with s. 506, Act X. of 1877).—W. R. Sp. Mfs. 33. [July 20, 1864.] And should be on the full stamp.—Wolee Ali v. Bibee Misrun, 12 W. R. 50. [June 15, 1869.] See Lakh Ishuree Pershad and others v. Hur Bhunjun Tewaree and others, 15 W. R., F. B., 9. [May 23, 1871.]

A PLAINTIFF must show special authority to assent to an arbitration on behalf of another plaintiff.—Gour Chunder Puteefundo v. Joogul Chunder alias Shama Churn Ghose and others, 1 W. R. 80. [Sep. 7, 1864.]

THE Court cannot legally allow a case, as regards an absent plaintiff, to be decided by reference to arbitration.—Gour Chunder Puteefundo v. Joogul Chunder alias Shama Churn Ghose and others, 1 W. R. 80. [Sep. 7, 1864.]

A PARTY, by appearing before arbitrators appointed without his consent, and in spite of his repeated remonstrance, does not forfeit his right to question the validity of the award.—Sheonath alias Burray Kaka v. Ramnath alias Chotay Kaka, 5 W. R., P. C. 21. [Dec. 22, 1865.] (P. C. 616). See also Rash Beharee Roy and others v. Doorgabur Roy and others, 14 W. R. 211. [Aug. 8, 1870.]

BOTH the Code of Procedure and the Panjáb Code require the consent of the parties to a reference to, and the appointment of, arbitrators.—Sheonath alias Burray Kaka v. Ramnath alias Chotay Kaka, 5 W. R., P. C. 21. [Dec. 22, 1865.] (P. C. R. 616). See also Rash Beharee Roy and others v. Doorgabur Roy and others, 14 W. R. 211. [Aug. 8, 1870.]

WHERE the parties did not agree to an arbitration, the award is legal against those who did.—Ram Soondur Mookerjee and others v. Ram Shurm Mookerjee and others, 6 W. R. 25. [June 18, 1866.] See also Rash Beharee Roy and others v. Doorgabur Roy and others, 14 W. R. 211. [Aug. 8, 1870.] And cannot be converted into a final decree under Act VIII. of 1859, though it is evidence against any party who agreed to the reference.—Beejoy Chunder Banerjee v. Bhyrub Chunder Banerjee, 15 W. R. 427. [April 21, 1871.]

WHEN a case which has been referred in the Principal Sudder Amec's Court to arbitration is withdrawn by the Judge for trial in his own Court the Judge is not bound to refer it to arbitration.—Aboo Mahomed and others v. Kishen Mohun Surma and others, 6 W. R. 290. [Dec. 6, 1866.]

UNDER this section all parties materially interested must concur in the reference to arbitration.—Bykuntath Chatterjee v. Shaikh Nuzur-oddeen, 10 W. R. 171. [July 16, 1868.]

IT is very doubtful whether a Judge has power, under Act X. of 1859, to refer a case to arbitration.—Moonshee Gaze v. Hameed Buksh, 16 W. R. 160. [July 17, 1871.]

REFERENCE to arbitration cannot be made except on the recorded and expressed consent of both parties.—2 Hay 583 (Marshall 517). The consent of the pleaders is not sufficient.—Moonshee Gaze v. Hameed Buksh, 16 W. R. 160. [July 17, 1871.]

AN Appellate Court is competent to refer cases to arbitration.—Russool Bibee v. Shaikh Jan Ali Chowdry, 17 W. R. 31. [Dec. 1, 1871.] But see Sreemutty Hacıun Banoo and another v. Abdool Hakim and another, 19 W. R. 321. [Mar. 20, 1873.] Also Surjoo Pershad v. Kashee Rawut and another, 21 W. R. 121. [Dec. 22, 1873.]

A REFERENCE to arbitration made under an order of Court cannot be revoked at the instance of a party.—Nirmonee Bose v. Mohima Chunder Dutt, 17 W. R. 516. [April 12, 1872.]

NO presumption can be raised against a party to a suit from his refusal to withdraw from the determination and submit to arbitration.—Mohaboor Singh and others v. Dhujjoo Singh, 20 W. R. 172. [June 14, 1873.]

AN Appellate Court has no power to refer a case to arbitration, even on consent of the parties.—Juggosbur Dey v. Kiritartha Moyee Dossee, 21 W. R. 210. [Jan. 24, 1874.] But see Russool Bebee v. Shaikh Jan Ali Chowdry, 17 W. R. 31. [Dec. 1, 1871.]

NOR can the first Court, by consent of parties, refer so much of the matter in dispute which it has already determined, and which is pending in appeal.—Gossath Dowlut Geer v. Bissessur Geer, 22 W. R. 207. [June 12, 1874.]

AN Appellate Court, in remanding a case, cannot direct the first Court to call upon the parties to agree to arbitration, or on their failing to do so, to appoint arbitrators.—Puna Bibee v. Khoda Buksh Beparee, 22 W. R. 396. [July 30, 1874.]

WHERE an Appellate Court directed the first Court to call upon the parties to agree to arbitration, and the parties waived the irregularity, and consented to the matter being tried by arbitrators, held that they could not afterwards, on special appeal, object to the proceedings.—Puna Bibee v. Khoda Buksh Beparee, 22 W. R. 396. [July 30, 1874.]

WHERE, after a reference of certain suits to arbitration, the parties withdrew the first submission, and agreed to submit the same suits with other matters to arbitration, and before the arbitrators so appointed had arrived at a final conclusion, the parties by solehnamah compromised the whole of the subjects of dispute, and an award was drawn up according to this compromise, a decree corresponding with the award was at first made only in those suits which had been originally referred, and afterwards on the application of some of the parties, the effect of a decree was given to the remainder of the award, held that this application to give effect to the unenforced portion of the award ought to have been dismissed, but that as the parties concerned did not take steps to set the lower Courts right in this matter (inter alia), the High Court could not interfere, and that the effect of the lower Court's decision was to dispose of the award altogether, and not to divide it into two parts, of which one might form the foundation of a future judgment.—Nem Roy v. Bharut Roy and another, 22 W. R. 129. [May 26, 1876.]

UNDER ss. 523 and 525 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) parties to a suit as well as persons not engaged in litigation may agree to refer matters in dispute between them to private arbitration without the intervention of the Court, and may apply to have the agreement filed; and the mere fact that a suit is pending with respect to the matters in dispute is not of itself a sufficient reason to induce the Court to refuse to file the agreement.—Harivalabdas Kallindas y. Utam Chand, Maneek Chand, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 1. [Feb. 13, 1879.]

NOTWITHSTANDING that Chap. XXXVII. of Act X. of 1877 (in reference to arbitration) does not refer specially to suits brought under Act X. of 1859. Yet if both parties to a suit for a kabuliat brought under the latter Act agree to refer the matters in dispute between them to certain arbitrators named by them, and file a joint petition in the Court of the Deputy Collector, stating that they had so agreed, and praying that the case may be referred to such arbitrators, neither of them will be afterwards at liberty to object to a decree made, embodying the award of the arbitrators, on the ground that the reference to arbitration was irregular, and not warranted by any of the provisions of Act X. of 1877. When a case has been so referred, the arbitrators are at liberty to determine what appears to them to be a fair and equitable rate of rent, and notwithstanding the amount so found is less than that demanded by the plaintiff in his plaint, the Court out of which the reference issued is not at liberty on that ground to dismiss the suit, but is bound to order the defendant (with the alternative of eviction) to execute a kabuliat in favour of the plaintiff at the rate determined by the arbitrators to be fair and equitable.—Khemna Gowala v. Budoloo Khan, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 251. [July 8, 1880.]

THE Court has no power under the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure to sanction an order passed by the arbitrators to whom a matter has been referred, making the payment of their fees a condition precedent to their hearing the reference.—Roberts (H.) v. Steel (O.), 8 C. L. R. 439. [April 4, 1884.]

WHERE the parties agreed to refer a suit to arbitration, but no provision was made that a decision by the majority of arbitrators should be binding, and two of five arbitrators withdrew, held that a decision by the majority was invalid.—Gurupathappa v. Narasingappa, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 174. [Sep. 24, 1883.]

AN appeal was preferred against a decree of an Original Court dismissing a suit, and the Appellate Court sent the case back for the purpose of certain evidence being taken, and certified to it. Pending that being done the parties applied to the Appellate Court to refer the case to arbitration, and that Court referred that application to the Original

Court for disposal, although the case was still pending on its own file for disposal. Subsequently another application was made to the Original Court to refer the case to arbitration, and on the 10th May the record was sent to the arbitrator with directions to submit his award within seven days. On the 12th September, as the award had not been sent in, the Original Court passed an order recalling the record, and subsequently the award of the arbitrator, dated the 12th September, was filed. The Original Court thereupon forwarded the record to the Appellate Court for its decision. Objections were taken to the award, but overruled, and the Appellate Court passed an order directing the case to be sent back to the Original Court, with orders to pass a formal decree in accordance with the award of the arbitrator. Held that a second appeal lay against the last-mentioned order, inasmuch as it amounted to a decree under the provisions of s. 2 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held also that the award was bad in law, because the time within which it was directed to be made had never been enlarged, and the Court's order of the 12th September recalling the record could not be taken as an indication that the time was enlarged. Semble, an Appellate Court has the power to refer a case to arbitration at the instance of the parties under s. 582 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882. In re Sangaralingam Pillai (1. L. R., 3 Mad. 78) cited; Jugessur Day v. Kritarho Moyee Dossee (12 B. L. R. 266) cited and distinguished.—Bhugwan Dass Marwari v. Nund Lal Sein, 1. L. R., 12 Cal. 173. [Aug. 10, 1885.]

ON the 19th June 1884, an application for an order of reference was made, under s. 506 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) by both parties to a suit. It was signed by both defendants and by the plaintiff's pleader. As the plaintiff's pleader had not been "specially authorized in writing" to join in the application, the Court postponed making any order of the application till the 23rd idem. On that day the first defendant did not attend the Court, but the plaintiff's pleader produced the requisite authority, and the Court made an order referring the suit to the decision of the arbitrator nominated in the application of the 19th. On the 27th June, the first defendant made an application to the Court to revoke the authority of the arbitrator, and appoint a new arbitrator in his place, on the ground that, after signing the application of the 19th, he had become aware of certain circumstances connected with the arbitrator which showed that he was not worthy of the confidence reposed in him. No final order was made upon this application till after the submission of the award, when it was rejected, on the ground that the charges of misconduct and partiality imputed to the arbitrator were not made out. Held, first, that the first defendant not having objected to the appointment of the arbitrator on or before the 23rd June 1884, when the order of reference was made, must be taken to have tacitly acquiesced in the course adopted by the Court, and that such acquiescence amounted to a fresh submission. The objections raised by the first defendant could only be considered after the submission of the award, and then only to the extent permitted by s. 521 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882). When once a matter is referred to arbitration, it is not competent to the Court, under the second paragraph of s. 608 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882), to "deal with the matter in difference between the parties, except as provided in Chapter XXXVII. of the Code. There is no section of that chapter which authorizes the Court to revoke the authority conferred on an arbitrator, and to appoint a new one, except in cases falling strictly within the purview of s. 510 of the Code, where "the scope and object of the reference cannot be executed." It is only in those cases, apparently, that the authority conferred on arbitrators can be revoked "for good cause," the cause being such as is contemplated in that section, as where "an arbitrator refuses, or neglects, or becomes incapable to act, or leaves British India under circumstances showing that he will probably not return to India at an early date." The enactment of the second paragraph of s. 508 of the Code of 1882, which does not occur in the corresponding section (315) of Act VIII. of 1859, has the effect of rigidly restricting the Courts to the exact procedure laid down when dealing with cases in which the appointment of a new arbitrator becomes necessary.—Halimbhai Karimbhai v. Shankar Sai, 1. L. R., 10 Bom. 381. [Dec. 12, 1885.]

R M, PARTY to a suit, having authorized his agent to conduct the suit, the agent consented to the case being referred to arbitration by the Court. The arbitration was carried on to the knowledge and with the assent of R M. On an application by R M, under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure, to set aside the award made by the arbitrators on the ground (1) that his pleader had not been authorized in writing, as required by s. 506 of the Code, to apply for arbitration, and (2) that he himself had not consented to the reference, held that, under the circumstances, R M was not entitled to relief.—Unniraman v. Chathan, 1. L. R., 9 Mad. 451. [July 12, 1886.]

Nomination of arbitrator.

507. The arbitrator shall be nominated by the parties in such manner as may be agreed upon between them. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

If the parties cannot agree with respect to such nomination, or if the Court to nominate person whom they nominate refuses to accept the arbitrator. arbitration, and the parties desire that the nomination shall be made by the Court, the Court shall nominate the arbitrator.

BEFORE a Judge refers a case to arbitration, he should ascertain whether the parties nominated are willing to act: and till he has done so, any nomination of an arbitrator by him, without the approbation or consent of the parties, is illegal. But when a case has been referred to arbitration, after the preliminary steps have been properly taken, the Judge has the sole power of appointing fresh arbitrators in the room of such as refuse to act.—W. R. Sp. 338. [July 9, 1864.] [L. R. 113.]

WHERE both parties could not agree in nominating an arbitrator, and the Judge nominated one under the section, it must be inferred that he did so at their desire.—Suroop Ram Deb v. Gobind Ram Deb, 7 W. R. 13. [Jan. 4, 1867.]

S. 522 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1877, which provides that no appeal shall lie from a decree upon an award, except in so far as the decree is in excess of, or not in accordance with, the award, assumes that the award has been regularly and properly passed by arbitrators duly appointed. Where two of five arbitrators nominated by the parties to a suit, and appointed by the Court, had not consented before, and, after appointment, declined to act, and the Court appointed two arbitrators in their place against the consent of one of the parties to the suit, held that, under the circumstances, the appointment of the new arbitrators was not warranted by the provisions of s. 510 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and the order of reference to such arbitrators, the award made by them, and the decree passed upon the award, were illegal. Held also that the High Court could set aside the decree under the powers given by s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Pugardin v. Moidin, 1. L. R., 6 Mad. 414. [April 13, 1882.]

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

508. The Court shall, by order, refer to the arbitrator the matter in difference which he is required to determine, and shall fix such time as it thinks reasonable for the delivery of the award, and specify such time in the order.

When once a matter is referred to arbitration, the Court shall not deal with it in the same suit, except as hereinafter provided.

WHERE the reference fixes no time for the award to be made, either party may hasten the proceedings by giving notice to the arbitrators that the award must be made, and an umpire appointed, within a reasonable time; but when the time elapsing after the notice has been actively employed by the arbitrators, and the delay has been owing to necessity which they could not control, the parties cannot recede from their submission by reason of the notice.—Pestonjee Nusserwanjee v. D. Manockjee and Co., 10 W. R. 61 (P. C.). [July 17, 1868.]

WHERE a reference to arbitration fixes no time for the arbitrators to make the award, the award itself falls to the ground.—Gunga Gobind Naek and others v. Kalee Prosunno Naek and others, 10 W. R. 206. [July 23, 1868.]

AN award cannot be set aside by the Court on the mere surmise that the arbitrator has been partial. After the parties to a suit have agreed to refer to arbitration, and the order of reference has been made by the Court under s. 508 of the Civil Procedure Code, neither of them can arbitrarily and on no sufficient ground withdraw from the agreement. Pestonjee Nusserwanjee v. Manockjee & Co. (12 Moo. I. A. 130) followed.—Nainsukh Rai v. Umada, 1. L. R., 7 All. 273. [Dec. 22, 1884.]

ON the 19th June 1884, an application for an order of reference was made, under s. 506 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), by both parties to a suit. It was signed by both defendants and by the plaintiff's pleader. As the plaintiff's pleader had not been "specially authorized in writing" to join in the application, the Court postponed making any order of the application till the 23rd idem. On that day the first defendant did not attend the Court, but the plaintiff's pleader produced the requisite authority, and the Court made an order referring the suit to the decision of the arbitrator nominated in the application of the 19th. On the 27th June, the first defendant made an application to the Court to revoke the authority of the arbitrator, and appoint a new arbitrator in his place, on the ground that, after signing the application of the 19th, he had become aware of certain circumstances connected with the arbitrator which showed that he was not worthy of the confidence reposed in him. No final order was made upon this application till after the submission of the award, when it was rejected, on the ground that the charges of misconduct and partiality imputed to the arbitrator were not made out. Held, first, that the first defendant not having objected to the appointment of the arbitrator on or before the 23rd June 1884, when the order of reference was made, must be taken to have tacitly acquiesced in the course adopted by the Court, and that such acquiescence amounted to a fresh submission. The objections raised by the first defendant could only be considered after the submission of the award, and then only to the extent permitted by s. 521 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882). When once a matter is referred to arbitration, it is not competent to the Court, under the second paragraph of s. 508 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882), to "deal with the matter in difference between the parties, except as provided in Chapter XXXVII. of the Code." There is no section of that chapter which authorizes the Court to revoke the authority conferred on an arbitrator, and to appoint a new one, except in cases falling strictly within the purview of s. 510 c of the Code, where "the scope and object of the reference cannot be executed." It is only in those cases, apparently, that the authority conferred on arbitrators can be revoked "for good cause," the cause being such as is contemplated in that section, as where "an arbitrator refuses, or neglects, or becomes incapable to act, or leaves British India under circumstances showing, that he will probably not return to India at an early date." The enactment of the second paragraph of s. 508 of the Code of 1882, which does not occur in the corresponding section (375) of Act VIII. of 1859, has the effect of rigidly restricting the Courts to the exact procedure laid down when dealing with cases in which the appointment of a new arbitrator becomes necessary.—Halimbhai Karimbhai v. Shankar Sai, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 381. [Dec. 12, 1885.]

In an agreement to refer certain matters to arbitration, which was filed in Court under s. 523 of the Civil Procedure Code, and on which an order of reference was made by the Court, no provision was made for difference of opinion between the arbitrators, by appointing an umpire or otherwise. The arbitrators being unable to agree upon the matters referred, the Court, on the application of one of them, appointed an umpire, and directed that the award should be submitted on a particular date. An award was made by the umpire and one arbitrator, without the concurrence of the other arbitrator, and submitted to the Court, which passed a decree in accordance with its terms. On appeal by the defendant in the case, the District Judge reversed the decree. Held that an appeal would lie to the Judge from the decree of the first Court, where there had been no legal award such as the law contemplated. Lachman Dass v. Brijpal (I. L. R., 6 All. 174) referred to. Held that in the present case there had been no legal award such as the law contemplated, inasmuch as the agreement to refer gave the Court no power to appoint an umpire, and required that the award should be made by the arbitrators named by the parties. Held that s. 509 and other sections preceding s. 523 of the Civil Procedure Code, relating to the power of the Court to provide for difference of opinion among the arbitrators, were only made applicable to cases coming under s. 523, so far as their provisions were consistent with the agreement filed under that section. Held also that the defendant was not precluded from appealing to the Judge from the first Court's decree because he had not applied to set aside the award within the ten days allowed by art. 158, sch. ii. of the Limitation Act, inasmuch as that article applied to applications referred to in s. 522 of the Civil Procedure Code, i. e., applications to set aside an award on any of the grounds mentioned in s. 521, and the defendant did not contest the award on any of those grounds.—Muhammad Abid v. Muhammad Asghar, I. L. R., 8 All. 64. [Dec. 14, 1885.]

An order of reference to arbitration was made on 21st January. Six weeks' time was allowed for the return of the award. No application was made for extension of time. The award having been returned on 8th May, the Court refused to give judgment in accordance with it under s. 522 of the Code of Civil Procedure on the ground that it was not valid. The plaintiffs now petitioned the High Court under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Held that the award was invalid, and the Court had not failed to exercise jurisdiction within the meaning of s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Simson v. Venkatagopalam, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 475. [April 12, 1886.]

THE law contained in ss 508 and 514 of the Civil Procedure Code requires that there shall be an express order of the Court fixing the time for delivery of the award, or for extending or enlarging such time; and the mere fact that the Court has passed a decree in accordance with the award cannot be taken as affording a presumption that an extension of time was given. An award which is invalid under s. 521 of the Civil Procedure Code, because not made within the period allowed by the Court, is not an award upon which the Court can make a decree, and a decree passed in accordance with such an award is not a decree in accordance with an award from which no appeal lies with reference to the ruling of the Full Bench in Lachman Das v. Brijpal (I. L. R., 6 All. 174).

Where objection to the validity of the award on the ground that it was made beyond the time allowed was not taken by the defendant in the first Court, held that he was not thereby estopped from raising the objection for the first time, in appeal, inasmuch as it was not shown that in the first Court he was aware of the defect, or had done anything to imply consent to extension of the time.—Chuha Mal v. Hari Ram, 1 L. R., 8 All. 548. [July 9, 1886.]

When reference is to two or more, order to provide for difference of opinion.

509. If the reference be to two or more arbitrators, provision shall be made in the order for a difference of opinion among the arbitrators,

- (a) by the appointment of an umpire, or
- (b) by, declaring that the decision shall be with the majority, if the major part of the arbitrators agree, or
- (c) by empowering the arbitrators to appoint an umpire, or
- (d) otherwise, as may be agreed between the parties; or, if they cannot agree, as the Court determines.

If an umpire is appointed, the Court shall fix such time as it thinks reasonable for the delivery of his award in case he is required to act.

PARTIAL disagreement of two arbitrators does not nullify their award as a whole.—Sheik Ponacollah and others v. Sheikh Tumeezooddeen and others, 2 W. R. 32. [Jan. 10, 1865.]

AN ORDER of reference to arbitration should, as required by this section, provide for difference of opinion among the arbitrators and for decision by a majority.—Futteh Singh and others v. Gango, 4 W. R. 4. [Aug. 25, 1865.] See also Haradhun Dutt v. Radhanath Shaha and others, 10 W. R. 398 [Nov. 23, 1868]; Nem Roy v. Bharut Roy and another, 22 W. R. 129 [May 26, 1874].

WHERE parties do not agree to be bound by the act of the majority, the award must be unanimous.—Baboo Surubjeet Narain Singh v. Baboo Gouree Pershad Narain Singh and another, 7 W. R. 269 [Mar. 14, 1867]; Jungle Ram v. Ram Heet Sahoy, 19 W. R. 47 [Jan. 3, 1873]; Nem Roy v. Bharut Roy and another, 22 W. R. 129 [May 26, 1874].

A CASE cannot, in special appeal, be sent back to the arbitrators with a provision for difference of opinion, where the arbitrators having given in different awards, the case was tried anew by the first Court, whose decision has been affirmed by the lower Appellate Court.—Thakoor Dass Chuckerbutty v. Ram Jeebun Chuckerbutty, 14 W. R. 150. [July 19, 1870.]

WHEN a case is referred to the award of three arbitrators, an award signed by two is null and void, and ought not to be read as evidence in the case.—Sev. 479. See also Rash Beharee Roy and others v. Doorgabur Roy and others, 14 W. R. 211 [Aug. 8, 1870]; Nem Roy v. Bharut Roy and another, 22 W. R. 129 [May 26, 1874].

THE mere absence of a clause in the order of reference to arbitration, providing for a difference of opinion between the arbitrators, cannot vitiate the award where there is no such difference of opinion.—Gour Chunder Bhuttacharjee v. Soday Chunder Nundee and others, 17 W. R. 30. [Dec. 1, 1871.]

WHAT a party must do who contests the validity of an award on the ground that it was not completed within the time fixed by the Court.—Russobli Bibee v. Shaik Jan Ali Chowdhry, 17 W. R. 31. [Dec. 1, 1871.] But see Sreemutty Hachun Banoo and another v. Abdool Hakim and another, 19 W. R. 321. [Mar. 20, 1873.]

510. If the arbitrator, or, where there are more arbitrators than one, Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

Death, incapacity, &c., of any of the arbitrators, or the umpire, dies, or refuses, or neglects, or becomes incapable to act, or leaves British India under circumstances showing that he will probably not return at an early date, the Court may, in its discretion, either appoint a new arbitrator or umpire in the place of the person so dying, or refusing, or neglecting, or becoming incapable to act, or leaving British India, or make an order superseding the arbitration, and in such case shall proceed with the suit.

AN arbitrator has full powers to retract his resignation of office before it is accepted.—Maharajah Joy Mungul Singh v. Mohun Ram Marwarree, 15 W. R. 37. [Jan. 18, 1871.] Held by the Privy Council that an arbitrator who first tendered and then withdrew his resignation did not formally divest himself of his character of arbitrator, and was thereof not functus officio when he signed the award.—Maharajah Joymungul Singh Bahadoor v. Mohun Ram Marwarree, 23 W. R. 429 (P. C.). [Mar. 11, 1875.]

WHERE an arbitration failed, and the record came back to the Court, the Court was held to have no power to dismiss the suit without giving notice to the parties or fixing a date for the hearing of the suit.—Sookram Doss Mohunt and others v. Nund Kishore Doss Mohunt and others, 22 W. R. 21. [Mar. 16, 1874.]

S. 522 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1877, which provides that no appeal shall lie from a decree upon an award, except in so far as the decree is in excess of, or not in accordance with, the award, assumes that the award has been regularly and properly passed by arbitrators duly appointed. Where two or five arbitrators nominated by the parties to a suit, and appointed by the Court, had not consented before, and, after appointment, declined to act, and the Court appointed two arbitrators in their place against the consent of one of the parties to the suit, held that, under the circumstances, the appointment of the new arbitrators was not warranted by the provisions of s. 510 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and that the order of reference to such arbitrators, the award made by them, and the decree passed upon the award, were illegal. Held also that the High Court could set aside the decree under the powers given by s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Pugardin Bavutan v. Moidinsa Ravutan, 1. L. R., 6 Mad. 414. [April 13, 1882.]

It is an essential principle of the law of arbitration that the adjudication of disputes by arbitration should be the result of the free consent of the arbitrators to act; and the finality of the award is based entirely upon the principle that the arbitrators are judges chosen by the parties themselves, and that such judges are willing to settle the disputes referred to them. Where certain matters were referred to arbitrators who refused to act, and the Court of first instance passed an order directing them to proceed and to make an award, and they, on the passing of such order, made an award, held that all proceedings taken by the arbitrators in obedience to the order of the Court directing them to arbitrate against their will were null and void.—Shibcharan v. Batiram, 1. L. R., 7 All. 20. [July 17, 1884.]

A COURT of first instance to which issues have been remitted under s. 566 of the Civil Procedure Code by the Appellate Court has only jurisdiction to try the issues remitted, and is functus officio in other respects, and cannot make a reference of the case to arbitration, which is only within the jurisdiction of the Appellate Court. Gossain Dowlut Geer v. Bissessur Geer (22 W. R. 207) referred to. When a case has been referred to arbitration, the presence of all the arbitrators at all meetings, and, above all, at the last meeting when the final act of arbitration is done, is essential to the validity of the award.

Where a case was referred by a Court to the arbitration of three persons, and the parties to the reference agreed to be bound as to the matters in dispute by the decision of a majority of the arbitrators, and one of the arbitrators subsequently refused to act, and withdrew from the arbitration, held that the Court could not pass a decree on the award of the remaining arbitrators, and could only, under s. 510 of the Civil Procedure Code, appoint a new arbitrator, or supersede the arbitration, and proceed with the suit.—Kazee Syud Nasir Ali v. Musammal Tinoo Dossia (6 W. R. 95) and Rohikhand and Kumaun Bank v. Row (I. L. R., 6 All. 468) referred to.—Nand Ram v. Fakir Chaud, I. L. R., 7 All. 523. [Jan. 14, 1885.]

On the 19th June 1884, an application for an order of reference was made, under s. 506 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) by both parties to a suit. It was signed by both defendants and by the plaintiff's pleader. As the plaintiff's pleader had not been "specially authorized in writing" to join in the application, the Court postponed making any order of the application till the 23rd idem. On that day the first defendant did not attend the Court, but the plaintiff's pleader produced the requisite authority, and the Court made an order referring the suit to the decision of the arbitrator nominated in the application of the 19th. On the 27th June, the first defendant made an application to the Court to revoke the authority of the arbitrator, and appoint a new arbitrator in his place, on the ground that, after signing the application of the 19th, he had become aware of certain circumstances connected with the arbitrator which showed that he was not worthy of the confidence reposed in him. No final order was made upon this application till after the submission of the award, when it was rejected, on the ground that the charges of misconduct and partiality imputed to the arbitrator were not made out. Held, first, that the first defendant not having objected to the appointment of the arbitrator on or before the 23rd June 1884, when the order of reference was made, must be taken to have tacitly acquiesced in the course adopted by the Court, and that such acquiescence amounted to a fresh submission. The objections raised by the first defendant could only be considered after the submission of the award, and then only to the extent permitted by s. 521 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882). When once a matter is referred to arbitration, it is not competent to the Court, under the second paragraph of s. 508 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882), to "deal with the matter in difference between the parties, except as provided in Chapter XXXVII. of the Code. There is no section of that chapter which authorizes the Court to revoke the authority conferred on an arbitrator, and to appoint a new one, except in cases falling strictly within the purview of s. 510 of the Code, where "the scope and object of the reference cannot be executed." The enactment of the second paragraph of s. 508 of the Code of 1882, which does not occur in the corresponding section (315) of Act VIII. of 1859, has the effect of rigidly restricting the Courts to the exact procedure laid down when dealing with cases in which the appointment of a new arbitrator becomes necessary.—Halimbhai Karimbhai v. Shankar Soli, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 381. [Dec. 12, 1885.]

511. Where the arbitrators are empowered by the order of reference

Appointment of umpire by to appoint an umpire, and fail to do so, any of the Court.

parties may serve the arbitrators with a written notice to appoint an umpire, and if, within seven days after such notice has been served, or such further time as the Court may in each case allow, no umpire be appointed, the Court, upon the application of the party who has served such notice as aforesaid, may appoint an umpire.

THE appointment of an umpire under this section is required, where there are two or more arbitrators, to provide for any difference of opinion amongst them; but not where, with the consent of the Court, only one arbitrator has been appointed. Mahabur Misser and others v. Juggur Nath Misser and others, 25 W. R. 11. [Dec. 6, 1875.]

IN an agreement to refer certain matters to arbitration, which was filed in Court under s. 523 of the Civil Procedure Code, and on which an order of reference was made by the Court, no provision was made for difference of opinion between the arbitrators, by appointing an umpire or otherwise. The arbitrators being unable to agree upon the matters referred, the Court, on the application of one of them, appointed an umpire, and directed that the award should be submitted on a particular date. An award was made by the umpire and one arbitrator without the concurrence of the other arbitrator, and submitted to the Court, which passed a decree in accordance with its terms. On appeal by the defendant in the case, the District Judge reversed the decree. Held that an appeal would lie to the Judge from the decree of the first Court, where there had been no legal award such as the law contemplated. Lachman Das v. Brijpal (I. L. R., 6 All. 174) referred to. Held that in the present case there had been no legal award such as the law contemplated, inasmuch as the agreement to refer gave the Court no power to appoint an umpire, and required that the award should be made by the arbitrators named by the parties. Held that s. 509 and the other sections preceding s. 523 of the Civil Procedure Code, relating to the power of the Court to provide for difference of opinion among the arbitrators, were only made applicable to cases coming under s. 523, so far as their provisions were consistent with the agreement filed under that section. Held also that the defendant was not precluded from appealing to the Judge from the first Court's decree because he had not applied to set aside the award within the ten days allowed by art. 158, sch. ii. of the Limitation Act, inasmuch as that article applied to applications referred to in s. 522 of the Civil Procedure Code, i. e., applications to set aside an award on any of the grounds mentioned in s. 521, and the defendant did not contest the award on any of those grounds. — Muhammad Abid v. Muhammad Asghar, I. L. R., 8 All. 64. [Dec. 14, 1885.]

512. Every arbitrator or umpire appointed under section 509, section Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts. 510, or section 511, shall have the like powers as if his name had been inserted in the order of reference.

Powers of arbitrator or umpire appointed under sections 509, 510, 511.

513. The Court shall issue the same processes to the parties and witnesses whom the arbitrators or umpire desire or desire to examine, as the Court may issue in suits tried before it. Ditto.

Summoning witnesses.

Persons not attending in accordance with such process, or making any Punishment for default, other default, or refusing to give their evidence, or to. guilty of any contempt to the arbitrator or umpire during the investigation of the matters referred, shall be subject to the like disadvantages, penalties, and punishments, by order of the Court, on the representation of the arbitrator or umpire, as they would incur for the like offences in suits tried before the Court.

514. If, from the want of the necessary evidence or information, or from Ditto. Extension of time for any other cause, the arbitrators cannot complete the award within the period specified in the order, the Court may, if it thinks fit, either grant a further time, and from time to time enlarge the period for the delivery of the award, or make an order Supersession of arbitra- superseding the arbitration, and in such case shall tion. proceed with the suit.

UNDER this section the time for delivery of an award may be extended at the discretion of the Court without the consent of the parties.—Anund Mohun Paul Chowdhry v. Ram Kishen Paul Chowdhry and others, 2 W. R. 297. [April 28, 1865.]

APPLICATIONS for the extension of the period for the submission of an award and orders thereon should be made in writing and recorded. When a party has been prejudiced by having the time allowed for taking objections to an award curtailed by the Court, no appeal lies, but a review should be granted by the Court of first instance.—Monji Premji Set v. Maliyakel Koyassan Koya Haji, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 59. [Jan. 27, 1880.]

AN appeal was preferred against a decree of an Original Court dismissing a suit, and the Appellate Court sent the case back for the purpose of certain evidence being taken, and certified to it. Pending that being done, the parties applied to the Appellate Court to refer the case to arbitration, and that Court referred that application to the Original Court for disposal, although the case was still pending on its own file for disposal. Subsequently another application was made to the Original Court to refer the case to arbitration, and on the 10th May the record was sent to the arbitrator with directions to submit his award within seven days. On the 12th September, as the award had not been sent in, the Original Court passed an order, recalling the record, and subsequently the award of the arbitrator, dated the 12th September, was filed. The Original Court thereupon forwarded the record to the Appellate Court for its decision. Objections were taken to the award, but overruled, and the Appellate Court passed an order directing the case to be sent back to the Original Court, with orders to pass a formal decree in accordance with the award of the arbitrator. Held that a second appeal lay against the last-mentioned order, inasmuch as it amounted to a decree under the provisions of s. 2 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held also, that the award was bad in law, because the time within which it was directed to be made had never been enlarged, and the Court's order of the 12th September recalling the record could not be taken as an indication that the time was enlarged. Seemle, an Appellate Court has the power to refer a case to arbitration at the instance of the parties under s. 582 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882. In re Sagaralingam Pillai (I. L. R., 3 Mad. 78) cited; Jugessur Dey v. Kritartha Moyee Dorse, (12 B. L. R. 266) cited and distinguished.—Bhugwan Dass Marwari v. Nund Lal Sein, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 173. [Aug. 10, 1885.]

THE law contained in ss. 508 and 514 of the Civil Procedure Code requires that there shall be an express order of the Court fixing the time for delivery of the award, or for extending or enlarging such time; and the mere fact that the Court has passed a decree in accordance with the award cannot be taken as affording a presumption that an extension of time was given. An award which is in valid under s. 521 of the Civil Procedure Code, because not made within the period allowed by the Court, is not an award upon which the Court can make a decree, and a decree passed in accordance with such an award is not a decree in accordance with an award from which no appeal lies with reference to the ruling of the Full Bench in Lachman Das v. Brijpal (I. L. R., 6 All. 174). Where objection to the validity of the award on the ground that it was made beyond the time allowed was not taken by the defendant in the first Court, held that he was not thereby estopped from raising the objection for the first time in appeal, inasmuch as it was not shown that in the first Court he was aware of the defect, or had done anything to imply consent to extension of the time.—Chuha Mal v. Hari Ram, I. L. R., 8 All. 548. [July 9, 1886.]

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

When umpire may arbitrate in lieu of arbitrators.

515. When an umpire has been appointed, he may enter on the reference in the place of the arbitrators.

(a) if they have allowed the appointed time to expire without making an award, or

(b) when they have delivered to the Court or to the umpire a notice in writing, stating that they cannot agree.

AS IN the case of an arbitrator so in the case of an umpire a Court has power to extend the period within which the award is to be submitted. Where the parties prayed the Court to appoint two arbitrators and an umpire and to refer the case to them for decision, and undertook to abide by such decision as might be passed by them unanimously or by the majority of them, held that an award by the umpire alone, the arbitrators being unable to decide, was valid. Held also that the plaintiff, having appeared before the umpire, and taken no objection to the procedure of the umpire from March to August, was estopped from raising the objection, that an award of the umpire alone was invalid. The Court can extend the time allowed to an umpire under s. 509 of the Code.—Kupu Ráu v. Venkatarāmáyyar, I. L. R., 4 Mad. 311. [Oct 31, 1881.]

Ditto.

516. When an award in a suit has been made, the persons who made it shall sign it, and cause it to be filed in Court, together with any depositions and documents which have been taken and proved before them; and notice of the filing shall be given to the parties.

A CIVIL Court's judgment cannot affect the rights of parties as declared in an award.—Anund Mohun Paul Chowdhry v. Ram Kishen Paul Chowdhry and others, 2 W. R. 297. [April 28, 1865.]

A COURT cannot reserve permission to a plaintiff to bring a fresh suit for the matter of an arbitration award, except under s. 97, Act VI., 1859 (corresponding with ss. 373 and 514, Act XIV., 1882).—Anund Mohun Paul Chowdhry v. Ram Kishen Paul Chowdhry and others, 2 W. R. 297. [April 28, 1865.]

ARBITRATORS should give separate awards in a case referred to them by the Judge, and on other matters referred to them by the parties, instead of bringing them all up and giving a general award.—Roghoo Nundun Lall Sahoo v. Bunwaree Lall Sahoo, 3 W. R., Mis., 27. [Aug. 7, 1865.]

IN A suit pending before arbitrators, an appellant who is made a co-plaintiff on application, and makes no objection to the arbitration, is bound by the award.—Shitanath Biswas and others v. Kishen Mohun Mookerjee and others, 5 W. R. 130. [Mar. 6, 1866.]

AN arbitration-award cannot change the nature of the claim, and convert into a simple debt cognizable by a Civil Court a claim for moneys collected by defendant as tashildar.—Shitanath Biswas and others v. Kishen Mohun Mookerjee and others, 5 W. R. 130. [Mar. 6, 1866.]

AN arbitration-award is not legal if not signed by the arbitrators sitting together at one place and at the same time.—Maharajah Joy Mungul, In the Matter of, 11 W. R. 433 [May 5, 1869]; Maharajah Sir Joy Mungul Singh v. Mohun Ram Marwaree and another, 12 W. R. 397. [Sep. 14, 1869.]

A COURT may look into the whole of an arbitration-record, and set aside the award on reasonable presumption of misconduct (i.e., because it was in opposition to the testimony of witnesses whom the arbitrators accepted and believed).—Puresnath Dey and another v. Nobin Chunder Dutt, 12 W. R. 93. [June 28, 1869.] See Bykunt Nath Mookerjee v. Prionath Ghose, 22 W. R. 447. [Aug. 18, 1874.]

AN arbitration-award must be one single instrument complete in itself.—Maharajah Sir Joy Mungul Singh v. Mohun Ram Marwaree and another, 12 W. R. 397. [Sep. 14, 1869.]

AN arbitrator should not allow documents entrusted to him by the Court to be removed from the suites, but the award should, under this section, be accompanied by all the proceedings, depositions, and exhibits in the suit.—Maharajah Sir Joy Mungul Singh v. Mohun Ram Marwaree and others, 12 W. R. 397. [Sep. 14, 1869.]

A MUNSIF has no jurisdiction to entertain an application and pass an order on the enforcement of an arbitration-award relating to the determination of rent.—Altaf Hossein v. Grish Chunder Roy, 15 W. R. 556. [May 25, 1871.]

AN arbitration-award is not binding on an intervenor as a decree in a suit disposed of by a regular suit.—Haree Pershad Mundal and others v. Boishtub Doss Aga Bawajee and another, 17 W. R. 233. [Feb. 15, 1872.]

AN appeal lies when an arbitration-award is questioned on the ground of there having been no valid submission to arbitration.—Janglee Ram v. Ram Hest Sahoy, 19 W. R. 47. [Jan. 3, 1873.]

WHERE an arbitrator imported into his proceedings a previous inquiry alleged to have been made by him, and relied upon admissions made in the former proceedings, his award was held to be bad, and the decision based thereon set aside.—Kanhoye Chand Gossamee v. Ram Chunder Gossamee and others, 24 W. R. 81. [May 19, 1875.]

BOTH parties having agreed to the appointment of arbitrators to determine their rights in dispute according to the terms of a will, and it being contended by the appellant that it was miscarriage on the part of the arbitrators to make their award without having had the whole of the will before them, their Lordships came to the conclusion that, as the appellant, having a clear knowledge of the circumstances on which he might found an objection to the arbitrators proceeding to make their award, did submit to the arbitration going on, and allowed the arbitrators to deal with the case as it stood before them, taking his chance of the decision being more or less favourable to himself, it was too late for him, after the award had been made, and on the application to file the award, to insist on this objection to the filing of the award.—Chowdhry Murtaza Hossein v. Mussumat Bibi Bechunnissa, 26 W. R. 10^o (P.O.). [July 13, 1876.]

THE act of an arbitrator, in handing in an award to the proper officer of the Court, for the purpose of the award being filed, cannot be considered as an 'application' within the meaning of the Limitation Act.—Roberts v. Harrison, 1. L. R., 7 Cal. 333. [June 6, 1881.]

517. Upon any reference by an order of the Court, the arbitrators or umpire may, with the consent of the Court, state the award as to the whole or any part thereof in the form of a special case for the opinion of the Court; and the Court shall deliver its opinion thereon; and such opinion shall be added to, and form part of, the award.

Court may, on application, modify or correct award in certain cases.

518. The Court may, by order, modify or correct an award,

(a) where it appears that a part of the award is upon a matter not referred to arbitration, provided such part can be separated from the other part, and does not affect the decision on the matter referred, or

(b) where the award is imperfect in form, or contains any obvious error which can be amended without affecting such decision.

THE arbitrators to whom the matters in difference in two suits for money were referred to arbitration made an award for payment to the plaintiff of certain sums by the defendant, and further directed that these sums should be paid by certain instalments. The plaintiff preferred objections to the award, in so far as it directed payment by instalments; and the Court, holding that the arbitrators had no power to make such a direction, modified the award to that extent, under s. 518 of the Civil Procedure Code. On appeal, the District Judge, while allowing the power of the arbitrators to direct payment by instalments, reduced the number of instalments which had been fixed. Held that the decree of the first Court not being in accordance with the award, an appeal lay to the Judge, with reference to s. 522 of the Code. Held also that as it was clear that the reference to arbitration gave the arbitrators full powers, not only as to the amount to be paid, but also as to the manner of payment, the lower Appellate Court was wrong in reducing the number of instalments which had been fixed. Per Mahmood, J.—The word “award” used in the last sentence of s. 522 of the Code must be understood to mean an award as given by the arbitrators, and not as amended by the Court under s. 518. The words “in excess of, or not in accordance with, the award,” used in s. 522, were intended to enable the Court of appeal to check the improper use of the power conferred by s. 518.—Jawahar Singh v. Mul Raj, I. L. R., 8 All. 449. [May 5, 1886.]

arbitration to the reconsideration of the same arbitrators or umpire, upon such terms as it thinks fit,

(a) where the award has left undetermined any of the matters referred to arbitration, or where it determines any matter not referred to arbitration;

(b) where the award is so indefinite as to be incapable of execution;

(c) where an objection to the legality of the award is apparent upon the face of it.

S. 323, Act VIII., 1859 (corresponding with s. 520, Act XIV., 1882), authorizes a Court to remand a case to arbitrators for reconsideration when there are mistakes which it cannot amend; and if the arbitrators refuse to reconsider their award, it becomes null and void without proof of corruption or misconduct.—Mohun Kishen and others v. Bhoobun Shyam and others, 7 W. R. 406. [April 24, 1867.]

WHERE matters in dispute are referred to arbitration, and it is found that one question at issue is omitted from the reference, and that the award contains no decision thereon, the party interested should bring the omission to the notice of the Court; if he fails to do so, the Court may pass any order or come to any decision on that point.—Raj Narain Roy v. Juggessur Mookerjee and others, 14 W. R. 247. [Aug. 23, 1870.]

THIS section does not authorize a Court to remit a case to the arbitrators except as to matters in difference between the parties.—Taranath Chowdry v. Manick Chunder Doss, 14 W. R. 469. [Dec. 16, 1870.]

AN award of arbitrators on a matter not in difference between the parties, nor referred to them, is null and void for want of jurisdiction, notwithstanding that it has been confirmed by a judgment of Court passed in accordance therewith.—Moshahel Singh v. Konomutty Bawa and another, 15 W. R. 172. [Feb. 20, 1871.]

THE plaintiff in this suit sued the defendants to recover certain moneys presented to him on his marriage, which he alleged the defendants had received and appropriated to their own use. The defendants denied that they had received such moneys, but admitted that such moneys had been credited by the plaintiff's father to the firm in which they, the plaintiff, and the plaintiff's father were jointly interested, against a larger amount of moneys belonging to the firm which had been expended on the plaintiff's marriage. The parties agreed to refer the matter in dispute between them to arbitration, and to abide by the decision of the arbitrator. The arbitrator decided that the plaintiff could not recover the moneys he sued for, and which had been credited to the firm of which he was a partner, as a larger sum had been expended on his marriage out of the funds of the firm. The plaintiff obtained the opinions of certain pandits to the effect that, under Hindu law, gifts on marriage are regarded as separate acquisitions, and prayed that the Munsif would remit the award with these opinions to the arbitrator. The Munsif remitted the award with the opinions, requesting the arbitrator to consider them, and to return his opinion in writing within a certain period. The arbitrator having refused to act further, the Munsif proceeded to determine the suit, and gave the plaintiff a decree on the ground that, in a joint Hindu family, presents received on marriage do not fall into the common fund. Held (Pearson, J., dissenting) that there being no illegality apparent on the face of the award, the Munsif was not justified in remitting the award, or in setting the award aside and proceeding to determine the suit himself, but that he should have passed judgment in accordance with the award.—Nanak Chand v. Ram Narayan, 1 L. R., 2 All. 181. [Mar. 11, 1871.]

A COURT was held to have done right in refusing to permit the filing of an arbitration-award which was not complete in itself, and which, as a whole, the parties had not agreed to.—Raj Chunder Roy and others v. Brojendro Coomar Roy Chowdhry and others, 21 W. R. 182. [Dec. 17, 1873.]

WHERE, in a suit for the filing of an award made on a private reference to arbitration, the Court of first instance, holding that there was no reason to remit such award to the reconsideration of the arbitrator under the provisions of Act X. of 1877, s. 520, or to set it aside under s. 521, did not proceed to give judgment according to such award followed by a decree, but merely directed that such award should be filed, held that its order was not appealable as a decree or as an order.—Ramadhin v. Mahesh, 1 L. R., 2 All. 471. [Nov. 17, 1879.]

THE sharers of a joint undivided estate agreed in writing that such estate should be partitioned and the accounts thereof settled by arbitration, and named one of such sharers as arbitrator, and agreed that he should settle all the accounts, show the surplus at each sharer's credit, and prepare lots, after partition of the lands and houses comprehended in such estate, and have them drawn within one year from the completion of the partition. Subsequently one of such sharers applied, under s. 523 of Act X. of 1877, to have such agreement filed in Court. The other sharers not objecting to this course, such agreement was filed accordingly, and the case was referred to such arbitrator. The arbitrator made an award, whereby he partitioned such estate into lots, assigning some only of such lots by name, and wherein he stated that he had not been able to settle the accounts owing to the default of the parties, and that, considering that the partition should take effect without any delay, he did not ask for further time. He further stated that "all the parties state that they will adjust the accounts after renewing the agreement," and he requested that the unassigned lots might be drawn in Court. The Court made an order confirming the award, and, it being objected that the settlement of the accounts should not be postponed, but that they should be settled as agreed, directed that the arbitrator should settle the accounts, and gave him a year's time for that purpose, and, some of the parties not being willing to draw the unassigned lots, directed the distribution of such lots "in reference to the age and number" of the sharers. Held that such order was a "decree" within the meaning of ss. 2 and 522 of Act X. of 1877: that the arbitrator should himself have drawn such lots, or he should have made the parties draw them; but, inasmuch as it would not have strained the agreement to have such lots drawn in Court, and no objection had been taken to the arbitrator not having himself drawn them, it was not incumbent on the Court to have remitted the award in order that the arbitrator might have drawn them: that the Court, however, should not have distributed such lots in the manner it had done, but should have drawn a lot for each person, and in acting as it had done it had acted contrary to the award, and for that reason its decree could not be maintained; and that, in confirming the award before the accounts had been settled and an award made in respect thereof, the Court had acted erroneously, inasmuch as the award had left undetermined a very important matter, viz., the settlement of the accounts, and the Court should, under s. 520 of Act X. of 1877, have remitted the award for the reconsideration of the arbitrator, and, as it had power to remit it upon such terms as it thought fit, the Court could have allowed one year, if necessary, for the settlement of the accounts; and on this account, and also because the Court had made an order postponing the settlement of the accounts, and thereby made an order contrary to, and in excess of the award, its decree must be reversed.—Sadik Ali Khan v. Imdad Ali Khan, I. L. R., 3 All. 286. [Nov. 16, 1880.]

AN award was remitted under s. 520 of Act X. of 1877. The arbitrators refused to reconsider it, and the Court thereupon proceeded with the suit, and gave the plaintiffs a decree. The defendants appealed from such decree on the ground, amongst others, that the award had been improperly remitted under s. 520. Held that the question whether the award had been properly remitted under s. 520 or not could be entertained in such appeal. The worshippers at a public mosque can maintain a suit to restrain the superintendents of such mosque from using it or its appurtenant rooms for purposes other than those for which they were intended to be used, and from doing acts which are likely to obstruct worshippers in entering or leaving such mosque.—Abdul Rahman v. Yar Muhammad, I. L. R., 3 All. 636. [Mar. 14, 1881.]

THE plaintiff in a suit, which had been referred to arbitration, offered before the arbitrator to be bound by the evidence of the defendant given on a certain oath. With the arbitrator's consent the defendant accepted such offer, and gave evidence on such oath. The arbitrator made an award in accordance with the evidence so given. The plaintiff objected to the award, not on any of the grounds mentioned in ss. 520 and 521 of the Civil Procedure Code, but on the ground that the procedure of the arbitrator had been illegal. The Court disallowed this objection, and gave a judgment and decree in accordance with the award. Held by Straight, J., that such decree, being in accordance with the award, was not appealable. Held by Stuart, C.J., that the award not being open to objection on any of the grounds mentioned in ss. 520 and 521 of the Civil Procedure Code, and the decree being in accordance with the award, the decree was not appealable. Held by Oldfield, J., that the procedure adopted by the arbitrator being illegal, not being warranted by the Oaths Act, and there being in reality no award within the meaning of the Civil Procedure Code, the decree therefore was appealable. Per Stuart, C.J., that the procedure of the arbitrator did not require to be warranted by the Oaths Act, as he was entitled by virtue of his office to proceed as he did.—Bhagirath v. Ram Ghulam, I. L. R., 4 All. 283. [Feb. 8, 1882.]

WHERE an application was made to a Subordinate Judge to file an award, and an objection was taken that the arbitrators had made their award several months before the date of the one sought to be filed, thus impeaching the identity of the award, and the Subordinate Judge, after an inquiry with regard to the several objections, ordered the award to be filed, held that the order of the Subordinate Judge should be set aside, or the award be deemed not to have been filed. The only objections which the Court can inquire into under ss. 525 and 526 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) are those which are specified in ss. 520 and 521, and these relate to cases in which the reference and the award are accepted facts, but where the objection denies the factum of the particular award sought to be filed, and the objection does not seem to be frivolous, but one giving rise to inquiry into difficult questions of law and fact, it is not competent for the Court to deal with that objection under ss. 525 and 526. In such a case the Court should leave the applicant to a regular suit on the award as the basis of his cause of action wherein the party urging the objection will have the advantage of being defendant rather than a plaintiff, and of having an appeal open to him in the event of an unfavourable decision.—Samal Nathu v. Jaishankar Dalsukram, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 254. [Dec. 2, 1884.]

C. Courts.

521. An award remitted under section 520 becomes void on the reconsideration of the arbitrators or umpire to reconsider it.

But no award shall be set aside except on one of the following grounds (namely)—

(a) corruption or misconduct of the arbitrator or umpire ;

(b) either party having been guilty of fraudulent concealment of any matter which he ought to have disclosed, or of wilfully misleading or deceiving the arbitrator or umpire ;

(c) the award having been made after the issue of an order by the Court superseding the arbitration and restoring the suit ;

and no award shall be valid unless made within the period allowed by the Court.

AN award of arbitration can only be set aside for corruption or partiality, but not on the ground of inconsistency.—W. R. Sp. 153. [April 7, 1864.]

AN award is not reversible except under this section. An arbitrator is not bound by technical rules of Court. He is appointed to give an equitable award, and can decide a case upon a document whether stamped or unstamped.—Besdoy Kristo Muzoomdar v. Puddo Lochun Muzoomdar and others, 1 W. R. 12. [Aug. 11, 1864.]

AN arbitration-award as to division of property left to minor sons, though assented to by their guardian, was set aside so far as regarded those sons on proof that the partition was injurious to them.—Ramnarin Poramanick and others v. Sreemutty Dossee and another, 1 W. R. 280. [Dec. 7, 1864.]

THE refusal of arbitrators to amend a clearly bad award is misconduct on their part, within the meaning of this section, justifying its being set aside.—Deb Narain Singh and others v. Rajmonee Koonwur and others, 3 W. R. 168. [July 31, 1866.] See also Rum Bhunjun Bhuggut v. Shreekishen Bhuggut, 11 W. R. 140 [Feb. 18, 1869]; Lalla Ishuree Pershad and others v. Huro Moonee Dossia, 24 W. R. 188 [June 28, 1873].

AN award of arbitration will not be invalidated by reason of one of the persons interested having become a lunatic after the proceedings before the arbitrator were substantially concluded, and before the final publication of the award.—Goureenath and another v. Collector of Monghyr and another, 7 W. R. 5. [Jan. 5, 1867.]

THE neglect of some of the arbitrators is misconduct within the meaning of this section.—Sreenath Ghose v. Raj Chunder Paul and others, 8 W. R. 171. [July, 10, 1867.] See also Ram Guttee Mundul and others v. Thakoor Doss Mundul, 22 W. R. 418. [Aug. 6, 1874.]

A JUDGMENT passed within the time allowed by s. 324, Act VIII., 1859 (corresponding with s. 521, Act XIV., 1882), viz., 10 days after the submission of the award to the Court, is not a final judgment under s. 325 (corresponding with s. 522).—Puresnath Dey and another v. Nobin Chunder Dutt, 12 W. R. 93. [June 28, 1869.] See also Gunga Narain Ghose and others v. Ram Chand Ghose and others, 20 W. R. 311. [July 29, 1873.]

IF an arbitration-award is set aside, and the matter is tried as a suit, the arbitrator cannot be examined as a witness as to the grounds of his decision, but only to prove any admission which may have been made before him.—Nil Mouee Bose v. Mohima Chunder Dutt, 17 W. R. 516. [April 12, 1872.]

NOTHING which passes between the parties to suit in any attempt at arbitration or compromise should be allowed to effect the slightest prejudice to the merits of their case, as it eventually comes to be tried before the Court.—Mohabur Singh and others v. Dhujoo Singh, 20 W. R. 172. [June 14, 1873.]

AN order of a Civil Court setting aside an arbitration-award, being an interlocutory order, is not open to an appeal immediately ; but when the Court sets aside the award on the ground of misconduct on the part of the arbitrator, and after hearing the case on its merits, makes its decree in favour of the plaintiff, it is competent to the defendant to appeal against that decree.—Mothooranath Tewaree v. Brindaban Tewaree, 14 W. R. 327. [Aug. 6, 1874.] See also Ram Yad Singh and others v. Nirunjun Kober and another, 22 W. R. 420. [Sep. 16, 1870.]

A CASE was referred by consent to arbitration, and, after having been recalled into Court, was again referred. An award was made by the arbitrator, and filed in Court. The defendants then objected, on the ground that they had no notice after the second reference, and that they were not heard, and that the arbitrator had otherwise misconducted himself. These objections were disallowed by the Subordinate Judge, who gave a decree in the terms of the award. This decree was upheld by the Judge on appeal, who, however, found that the arbitrator had been guilty of misconduct. Held that, if the decree of the first Court was not final under s. 325, Act VIII. of 1859, all that the lower Appellate Court could do was to remand the case to be dealt with on its merits; but inasmuch as there had been an award and a decree thereon, which was final within the terms of that section, the lower Appellate Court had no jurisdiction to hear the appeal, or to express any opinion on what had passed in the first Court—Wazir Mahton v. Lulit Singh, 1. L. R., 7 Cal. 166. [Mar. 12, 1881.]

AN award was remitted under s. 520 of Act X. of 1877. The arbitrators refused to reconsider it, and the Court thereupon proceeded with the suit, and gave the plaintiffs a decree. The defendants appealed from such decree on the ground, amongst others, that the award had been improperly remitted under s. 520. Held that the question whether the award had been properly remitted under s. 520 or not could be entertained in such appeals. The worshippers at a public mosque can maintain a suit to restrain the superintendent of such mosque from using it or its appurtenant rooms for purposes other than those for which they were intended to be used, and from doing acts which are likely to obstruct worshippers in entering or leaving such mosque.—Abdul Rahman v. Yar Muhammad, 1. L. R., 3 All. 636. [Mar. 14, 1881.]

WHERE an application was made to Subordinate Judge to file an award, and an objection was taken that the arbitrators had made their award several months before the date of the one sought to be filed, thus impeaching the identity of the award, and the Subordinate Judge, after an inquiry with regard to the several objections, ordered the award to be filed, held that the order of the Subordinate Judge should be set aside, or the award be deemed not to have been filed. The only objections which the Court can inquire into under ss. 525 and 526 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) are those which are specified in ss. 520 and 521, and these relate to cases in which the reference and the award are accepted facts; but where the objection denies the factum of the particular award sought to be filed, and the objection does not seem to be frivolous, but one giving rise to inquiry into difficult questions of law and fact, it is not competent for the Court to deal with that objection under ss. 525 and 526. In such a case the Court should leave the applicant to a regular suit on the award as the basis of his cause of action wherein the party urging the objection will have the advantage of being defendant rather than a plaintiff, and of having an appeal open to him in the event of an unfavourable decision.—Sámal Nathu v. Jaishankar Dalsukram, 1. L. R., 9 Bom. 254. [Dec. 2, 1881.]

ALL matters in dispute in a suit were referred to arbitration. An award was duly made and filed, and a decree passed in accordance with the terms thereof. Subsequently, on the application of the plaintiff in the suit, the Court passed an order setting aside the decree and the award, and ordering the case to be set down for hearing upon the ground that the proceedings in connection with the arbitration had been taken, and the award had been filed, without notice to the plaintiff, and that, although the award was alleged to have been made with the consent of the parties, the plaintiff had not consented to it. Held that no appeal lay from such order. Howard v. Wilson (1. L. R., 4 Cal. 231) dissented from; Mathooranauth Tewaree v. Brindaban Tewaree (14 W. R. 327) followed.—Ambica Dasia v. Nadyar Chandpal, 1. L. R., 11 Cal. 172. [Feb. 3, 1885.]

AN award upon a question referred to arbitrators, on whose part no misconduct or mistake appears, concludes the parties who have submitted to the reference from afterwards contesting in a suit the question so referred and disposed of by the award. Two widows of a deceased Hindu referred generally to arbitrators the question of their rights, respectively, in the estate of their deceased husband, including the matter whether there was, or was not, any cause disentitling the widow, who afterwards brought this suit for her share in the estate against the other who had obtained possession of the whole. The arbitrators declared her to be disentitled to succeed to any portion of the estate, and awarded her maintenance only. Held, that, in the absence of mistake or misconduct on the part of the arbitrators, the award was binding on the parties.—Rani Bhagoti v. Rani Chandan, 1. L. R., 11 Cal. 386. [Feb. 7, 1885.]

ON the 19th June 1884, an application for an order of reference was made, under s. 506 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), by both parties to a suit. It was signed by both defendants and by the plaintiff's pleader. As the plaintiff's pleader had not been "specially authorized in writing" to join in the application, the Court postponed making any order of the application till the 23rd idem. On that day the first defendant did not attend the Court, but the plaintiff's pleader produced the requisite authority, and the Court made an order referring the suit to the decision of the arbitrator nominated in the application of the 10th. On the 27th June, the first defendant made an application to the Court to revoke the authority of the arbitrator, and appoint a new arbitrator in his place, on the ground that, after signing the application of the 19th, he had become aware of certain circumstances connected with the arbitrator which showed that he was not worthy of the confidence reposed in him. No final order was made upon this application till after the submission of the award, when it was rejected, on the ground that the charges of misconduct and partiality imputed to the arbitrator were not made out. Held, first, that the first defendant not having objected to the appointment of the arbitrator on or before the 23rd June 1884, when the order of reference was made, must be taken to have tacitly acquiesced in the course adopted by the Court, and that such acquiescence amounted to a fresh submission. The objections raised by the first defendant could only be considered after the submission of the award, and then only to the extent permitted by s. 521 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882). When once a matter is referred to arbitration, it is not competent to the Court, under the second paragraph of s. 508 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882), to "deal with the matter in difference between the parties, except as provided in Chapter XXXVII. of the Code. There is no section of that chapter which authorizes the Court to revoke the authority conferred on an arbitrator, and to appoint a new one, except in cases falling strictly within the purview of s. 510 of the Code, where "the scope and object of the reference cannot be executed." It is only in those cases, apparently, that the authority conferred on arbitrators can be revoked "for good cause," the cause being such as is contemplated in that section, as where "an arbitrator refuses, or neglects, or becomes incapable to act, or leaves British India under circumstances showing that he will probably not return to India at an early date." The enactment of the second paragraph of s. 508 of the Code of 1882, which does not occur in the corresponding section (315) of Act VIII. of 1859, has the effect of rigidly restricting the Courts to the exact procedure laid down when dealing with cases in which the appointment of a new arbitrator becomes necessary.—Halimbhai Karibhai v. Shankar Sai, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 381. [Dec. 12, 1885.]

AN order of reference to arbitration was made on 21st January. Six weeks' time was allowed for the return of the award. No application was made for extension of time. The award having been returned on 8th May, the Court refused to give judgment in accordance with it under s. 522 of the Code of Civil Procedure on the ground that it was not valid. The plaintiffs now petitioned the High Court under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Held that the award was invalid, and the Court had not failed to exercise jurisdiction within the meaning of s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Simson v. Venkatagopalām, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 475. [April 12, 1886.]

UNDER s. 521 of the Civil Procedure Code, the rule that no award shall be valid unless "made" within the period fixed by the Court, is equivalent to a rule that the award must be "delivered" within that period. Upon a reference to the arbitration of three persons, the Court ordered that the award made by them should be filed on the 19th September 1885. The award was not filed on that date, but was signed by two of the arbitrators on that date, and by the third arbitrator on the 20th September, on which day it was filed. It had been agreed that the opinion of the majority should carry the decision. Held that the award was not "made within the period fixed by the Court" within the meaning of s. 521 of the Civil Procedure Code.—Behari Das v. Kalian Das, I. L. R., 8 All. 543. [July 8, 1886.]

THE law contained in ss. 508 and 514 of the Civil Procedure Code requires that there shall be an express order of the Court fixing the time for delivery of the award, or for extending or enlarging such time; and the mere fact that the Court has passed a decree in accordance with the award cannot be taken as affording a presumption that an extension of time was given. An award which is invalid under s. 521 of the Civil Procedure Code, because not made within the period allowed by the Court, is not an award upon which the Court can make a decree, and a decree passed in accordance with such an award is not a decree in accordance with an award from which no appeal lies with reference to the ruling of the Full Bench in Lachman Das v. Brijpal (I. L. R., 6 All. 174). Where objection to the validity of the award on the ground that it was made beyond the time allowed was not taken by the defendant in the first Court, held that he was not thereby estopped from raising the objection for the first time in appeal, inasmuch as it was not shown that in the first Court he was aware of the defect, or had done anything to imply consent to extension of the time.—Chuha Mal v. Hari Ram, I. L. R., 8 All. 548. [July 9, 1886.]

THE word "misconduct" as used in s. 521 (cl. a) of the Civil Procedure Code should be interpreted in the sense in which it is used in English law with reference to arbitration-proceedings. It does not necessarily imply moral turpitude, but it includes neglect of the duties and responsibilities of the arbitrators, and of what Courts of justice expect from them before allowing finality to their awards. An arbitrator to whom the matters in difference in a suit were referred under s. 508 of the Civil Procedure Code, and who was directed by the order of reference to deliver his award by the 22nd September, applied on the 17th September for an extension of time, on the ground that a very full investigation was necessary, which it was not possible to make within the prescribed period. On the 20th September, without waiting for the order of the Court, he notified to the parties that he proposed to hold an inquiry in the case on the 24th, and it appeared that he did not expect this intimation to reach them before the 21st or 22nd. On the 23rd, he informed the plaintiff's pleader that a new date would be fixed for the inquiry, of which notice would be given to the parties. Notwithstanding this, on the 23rd, the arbitrator took evidence for the defendant in the absence of the plaintiff and his pleader. All these proceedings were held before the arbitrator received an order of the Court extending the time for delivery of the award up to the 26th October. On the 27th September he directed the parties to be informed that the investigation would be held on the 5th October. On the 4th October the plaintiff presented a petition praying the arbitrator to summon witnesses and to take documentary evidence, and upon this nothing definite was settled at the time; but, after the pleaders had left, the arbitrator passed an order rejecting the petition, on the ground that the evidence sought to be produced was unnecessary. On the same date, and on the 5th and 6th October, he took evidence for the defence in the absence of the plaintiff and his pleader. On the 10th he rejected a petition by the plaintiff praying for further time to produce evidence, and complaining of his having taken evidence in the plaintiff's absence, and having received in evidence a fabricated document. On the 25th October, the arbitrator delivered his award in favour of the defendant. Subsequently, upon objections made by the plaintiff, the Court set aside the award, and directed that the trial of the suit should proceed. Held that although no case of "corruption" within the meaning of s. 521 (cl. a) of the Civil Procedure Code had been made out against the arbitrator, the circumstances above stated amounted to "misconduct," and the award was therefore bad in law, and had rightly been set aside. Soobul Thakur Opu detain v. PUNCHUNUND TIKHA (S. D. A., L. P., 1848, p. 115), Reedoy Kristo Mujoondar v. Puddo Loehun Mujoondar (1 W. R. 12), Sada Ram v. Beharee (S. D. A., N. W. P., 1864, vol. 2, p. 399), *Parus Dass v. Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

522. If the Court sees no cause to remit the award or any of the Judgment to be according matters referred to arbitration for reconsideration to award. in manner aforesaid, and if no application has been made to set aside the award, or if the Court has refused such application, the Court shall, after the time for making such application has expired, proceed to give judgment according to the award, or, if the award has been submitted to it in the form of a special case, according to its own opinion on such case.

Upon the judgment so given a decree shall follow, and shall be enforced in manner provided in this Code for the execution of decrees. No appeal shall lie from such decree, except in so far as the decree is in excess of, or not in accordance with, the award.

Decree to follow.

S. 325, Act VIII., 1859 (corresponding with ss. 522, 588, Act XIV., 1882), is not applicable to private awards, and ought to be enforced under s. 327 (corresponding with ss. 525, 526, Act XIV., 1882); and an appeal will lie from the order of a Court directing its enforcement.—Awund Chunder Singh v. Gopal Chunder Dan, 3 W. R. 154. [July 21, 1865.] See Khoda Buksh v. Mowla Buksh, 14 W. R. 256 [Aug. 25, 1870]; Lalla Ishuree Pershad and others v. Hur Bhunjun Twaree and others, 15 W. R. F. B., 9 [May 28, 1871]; Raj Chunder Roy Chowdhry and others v. Brojendra Coomar Roy Chowdhry and others, 21 W. R. 182 [Dec. 17, 1873].

A JUDGMENT given on an arbitration is final under this section when it is according to the award, but not otherwise; an appeal will lie on the ground that it is contrary to the award.—Deb Narain Singh and others v. Rajmonee Koonwur and others, 8 W. R. 168. [July, 31, 1865.] See also Rum Bhunjun Bhuggut v. Sreekishen Bhuggut, 11 W. R. 140 [Feb. 18, 1869]; Lalla Ishuree Pershad and others v. Hur Bhunjun Tewaree and others, 15 W. R. F. B. 9 [May 23, 1871]; Maharajah Joymungul Singh Bahadoor v. Mohun Ram Marwaree, 23 W. R. 429 (P. C.) [Mar. 11, 1875]; Protap Chunder Roodro v. Huro Monee Dossia, 24 W. R. 188 [June 28, 1875].

IN appealing to set aside an award as not binding upon the appellant, he is not bound to appeal against every interlocutory order.—Sheonath alias Burray Kaka v. Ramnath alias Chotay Kaka, 5 W. R. 21 (P. C.). [Dec. 22, 1865.] (P. C. R. 616).

A PLAINTIFF'S allegation in a former suit having been overruled in arbitration, he is not estopped from bringing a fresh suit on the finding of the arbitrators.—Ram Chunder Dey v. Kishen Mohun Shaha, 6 W. R. 68. [July 3, 1866.]

A JUDGMENT of a Court, given in accordance with an award of arbitration, is final under s. 325, Act VIII., 1859 (corresponding with ss. 522, 588, Act XIV., 1882), even if there has been corruption and misconduct on the part of the arbitrators.—Ramonogra Chobey v. Mussamut Putmoorta Chobayan, 7 W. R. 205 [Feb. 27, 1867]; Sreenath Ghose v. Raj Chunder Paul and others, 8 W. R. 171 [July 10, 1867].

SUBMISSION to arbitration is revocable before award made.—Baboo Surubjeet Narain Singh v. Baboo Gourde Pershad Narain Singh and another, 7 W. R. 269. [Mar. 14, 1867]. Not arbitrarily, but for good cause; the fact of one of the parties to the agreement revoking his submission is not a sufficient cause within the meaning of s. 326, Act VIII., 1859 (corresponding with ss. 523, 524, Act XIV., 1882).—Pestonjee Nusserwanjee v. D. Manockjee and Co., 10 W. R. 51 (P. C.) [July 17, 1868]; Mussamut Ablakhee Koorer and another v. Oodun Singh and others, 15 W. R. 331 [Mar. 29, 1871]; Ram Coomar Shaha v. Kala Chand Shaha and others, 21 W. R. 395 [Mar. 25, 1874]; Radha Mohun Roy and others v. Raj Chunder Shah and another, 22 W. R. 522 [Sep. 10, 1874].

WHERE the order of the Court which made the reference to arbitration declining to pass judgment according to the award is reversed in appeal, the lower Appellate Court's order is open to special appeal, the above section applying only to the Court by which a case is referred to arbitration.—Puresnath Dey and another v. Nobin Chunder Dutt, 12 W. R. 93. [June 28, 1869.] See Bykunt Nath Mookerjee v. Prionath Chose, 22 W. R. 447. [Aug. 18, 1874.]

ALTHOUGH no appeal will lie under this section against a judgment passed according to the award as prescribed in s. 327 (corresponding with s. 525), an appeal will lie, under s. 11, Act XXIII. of 1861, against an order made in execution-proceedings taken upon that judgment.—Himutoolah Chowdhry v. Bibee Hurun, 13 W. R. 62. [Jan. 4, 1870.]

WHERE a suit has been referred to arbitration by an order of Court, and the Court afterwards gives judgment according to the award made upon such reference, such judgment is final, and no appeal lies therefrom.—1 Hay. 566 (Marshall 163); Shaikh Elahee Buksh and others v. Shaikh Hajoo and another, 14 W. R. 33 [June 7, 1870]; Gour Chunder Bhattacharjee v. Sodoy Chunder Nundee and others, 17 W. R. 30 [Dec. 1, 1871]; Maharajah Joymungul Singh Bahadoor v. Mohun Ram Marwaree, (P. C.) 23 W. R. 429 [Mar. 11, 1875]. See Lalla Ishuree Pershad and others v. Her Bhunjun Tewaree and others, 15 W. R. F. B. 9. [May 23, 1871.]

THE addition, in a judgment according to an award, of a trifling direction upon a matter not referred to the arbitrators, which was quite separable from the other parts of the award, and did not affect the decision on the matter referred, was held not to affect the finality of the judgment.—Hiro Soonduree Debee and others v. Sreedhur Bhattacharjee and others, 17 W. R. 352. [Feb. 21, 1872.]

A DECREE was held to be in accordance with the award, and therefore final under this section, although it did not embody a suggestion of two out of three arbitrators, which suggestion the first Court dealt with as mere surplusage.—Surboree Kant Bhattacharjee v. Anadya Kant Bhattacharjee, 20 W. R. 226. [June 24, 1873.]

As long as the order of a Munsif quashing an arbitration-award subsists in full form, the award cannot be said to exist as a binding award between the parties.—Fitzpatrick (D.) v. Macnaghten (E.), 21 W. R. 261. [Feb. 11, 1874.]

THE term "judicial proceeding," as used in Act X. of 1877, s. 2, must be understood to mean a judicial proceeding of the same nature as a suit, or such proceedings as are referred to in ss. 333, 522, 526, and 531. The definition given in Act X. of 1872 is not applicable.—Dalpatbhái Bhagubhái v. Amarsang Yhemá Bhái, 1. L. R., 2 Bom. 553. [Mar. 20, 1878.]

THE sharers of a joint undivided estate agreed in writing that such estate should be partitioned and the accounts thereof settled by arbitration, and named one of such sharers as arbitrator, and agreed that he should settle all the accounts, show the surplus at each sharer's credit, and prepare lots, after partition of the lands and houses comprehended in such estate, and have them drawn within one year from the completion of the partition. Subsequently one of such sharers applied, under s. 523 of Act X. of 1877, to have such agreement filed in Court. The other sharers not objecting to this course, such agreement was filed accordingly, and the case was referred to such arbitrator. The arbitrator made an award, whereby the partitioned such estate into lots, assigning some only of such lots by name, and wherein he stated that he had not been able to settle the accounts owing to the default of the parties, and that, considering that the partition should take effect without any delay, he did not ask for further time. He further stated that "all the parties state that they will adjust the accounts after renewing the agreement," and he requested that the unassigned lots might be drawn in Court. The Court made an order confirming the award, and, it being objected that the settlement of the accounts should not be postponed, but that they should be settled as agreed, directed that the arbitrator should settle the accounts, and gave him a year's time for that purpose, and, some of the parties not being willing to draw the unassigned lots, directed the distribution of such lots "in reference to the age and number" of the sharers. Held that such order was a "decree" within the meaning of ss. 2 and 522 of Act X. of 1877: that the arbitrator should himself have drawn such lots, or he should have made the parties draw them; but, inasmuch as it would not have strained the agreement to have such lots drawn in Court, and no objection had been taken to the arbitrator not having himself drawn them, it was not incumbent on the Court to have remitted the award in order that the arbitrator might have drawn them; that the Court, however, should not have distributed such lots in the manner it had done, but should have drawn a lot for each person, and in acting as it had done it had acted contrary to the award, and for that reason its decree could not be maintained: and that, in confirming the award before the account had been settled and an award made in respect thereof, the Court had acted erroneously, inasmuch as the award had left undetermined a very important matter, viz., the settlement of the accounts, and the Court should, under s. 520 of Act X. of 1877, have remitted the award for the reconsideration of the arbitrator, and, as it had power to remit it upon such terms as it thought fit, the Court could have allowed one year, if necessary, for the settlement of the accounts; and on this account, and also because the Court had made an order postponing the settlement of the accounts, and thereby made an order contrary to and in excess of the award, its decree must be reversed.—Sadik Ali Khan v. Imdad Ali Khan, I. L. R., 3 All. 286. [Nov. 16, 1880.]

THE power to file an award includes the power to inquire if there was a submission to arbitration, and this question is concluded by the decree, which is final under ss. 526 and 522 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Michayya Gúruvu v. Sadasiva Parama Gúruvu, I. L. R., 4 Mad. 319. [Dec. 3, 1881.]

S. 522 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1877, which provides that no appeal shall lie from a decree upon an award, except in so far as the decree is in excess of, or not in accordance with, the award, assumes that the award has been regularly and properly passed by arbitrators duly appointed. Where two of five arbitrators nominated by the parties to a suit, and appointed by the Court, had not consented before, and, after appointment, declined to act, and the Court appointed two arbitrators in their place against the consent of one of the parties to the suit, held that, under the circumstances, the appointment of the new arbitrators was not warranted by the provisions of s. 510 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and the order of reference to such arbitrators, the award made by them, and decree passed upon the award, were illegal. Held also that the High Court could set aside the decree under the power given by s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Pugardin v. Moidid, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 414. [April 13, 1882.]

A CASE was referred to the arbitration of five persons, with a proviso that, in the event of any two of the arbitrators being absent, the arbitration should be continued by the other three. Two of the arbitrators named were the pleaders on either side, and these two, with the consent of the parties, ceased to act as arbitrators, but argued the matter before the other arbitrators. Held that the award made by the other three arbitrators named was a valid award.—Dobendra Nath Shaw v. Aubhoy Churn Bagchi, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 905. [May 14, 1883.]

HELD that an appeal lies from a decree passed in accordance with an award when such decree is impugned on the ground that there is no award in law or in fact, upon which judgment and decree could follow under s. 522, Civil Procedure Code. Joymungul

Singh Bahadoor v. Mohun Ram Murwaroo (3 Sntb. P. C. C. 145; S. C., 23 W. R. 429), and Bhagirath v. Ram Ghulam (I. L. R., 4 All. 283) observed on.—Lachman Dās v. Brijpal, I. L. R., 6 All. 74. [Jan. 22, 1884.]

THE question whether, under s. 522 of the Code of Civil Procedure, an appeal will lie against a decree given in accordance with an award, depends upon whether the award upon which the decree is based is a valid and legal award. A plaintiff and some of the defendants to a suit applied to refer the suit to arbitration (certain other of the defendants not having joined in the application); an award was passed, and a decree made in accordance with such award. The plaintiffs objected to the validity of the award on the ground that all the parties to the suit had not joined in referring the suit to arbitration; the object of the suit was dismissed, and judgment given in accordance with the award. Held that an appeal would lie from a decree dismissing the objection and confirming the award; but that, under the special circumstances of the case, justice was so clearly in favour of the view that the award was good, that the Court, although not entirely approving of certain decisions of the High Court (Shinath Biswas v. Kishen Mohun Mookerjee (5 W. R., 130), Ram Soonder Mookerjee v. Ram Shurun Mookerjee (6 W. R. 25), Doorga Churn Thakoor v. Kally Doss Hazrah (10 W. R. 463), Bishoka Dasia v. Annuto Lall Pain (4 C. L. R. 65), which laid down that such an award is good, notwithstanding that some of the parties to the suit may not have joined in the reference to arbitration, did not think fit to differ from those decisions on that occasion.—Joy Prokish Lall v. Sheo Gohari Singh, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 37. [Sep. 12, 1884.]

THE arbitrators to whom the matters in difference in two suits for money were referred to arbitration made an award for payment to the plaintiff of certain sums by the defendant, and further directed that these sums should be paid by certain instalments. The plaintiff preferred objections to the award, in so far as it directed payment by instalments; and the Court, holding that the arbitrators had no power to make such a direction, modified the award to that extent, under s. 518 of the Civil Procedure Code. On appeal, the District Judge, while allowing the power of the arbitrators to direct payment by instalments, reduced the number of instalments which had been fixed. Held that the decree of the first Court not being in accordance with the award, an appeal lay to the Judge, with reference to s. 522 of the Code. Held also that as it was clear that the reference to arbitration gave the arbitrators full powers, not only as to the amount to be paid, but also as to the manner of payment, the lower Appellate Court was wrong in reducing the number of instalments which had been fixed. Per Mahmood, J.—The word "award" used in the last sentence of s. 522 of the Code must be understood to mean an award as given by the arbitrators, and not as amended by the Court under s. 518. The words "in excess of, or not in accordance with, the award," used in s. 522, were intended to enable the Court of appeal to check the improper use of the power conferred by s. 518.—Jawahar Singh v. Mul Raj, I. L. R., 8 All. 449. [May 5, 1886.]

UNDER Act X. of 1877, ss. 523 and 525, parties to a suit, as well as persons not engaged in litigation, may agree to refer matters in dispute between them to private arbitration without the intervention of the Court, and may apply to have the agreement filed; and the mere fact that the suit is pending with respect to the matters in dispute is not of itself a sufficient reason to induce the Court to refuse to file the agreement.—Harivalabdas Kallianadas v. Utamchand Maneckchand, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 16 [Feb. 13, 1879.] See also Khemna Gowala v. Buddoo Khan, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 251. [July 8, 1880.]

THE sharers of a joint undivided estate agreed in writing that such estate should be partitioned and the accounts thereof settled by arbitration, and named one of such sharers as arbitrator, and agreed that he should settle all the accounts, show the surplus at each sharer's credit, and prepare lots, after partition of the lands and houses comprehended in such estate, and have them drawn within one year from the completion of the partition. Subsequently one of such sharers applied, under s. 523 of Act X. of 1877, to have such agreement filed in Court. The other sharers not objecting to this course, such agreement was filed accordingly, and the case was referred to such arbitrator. The arbitrator made an award, whereby he partitioned such estate into lots, assigning some only of such lots by name, and wherein he stated that he had not been able to settle the accounts owing to the default of the parties, and that, considering that the partition should take effect without any delay, he did not ask for further time. He further stated that "all the parties state that they will adjust the accounts after renewing the agreement," and he requested that the unassigned lots might be drawn in Court. The Court made an order confirming the award, and, it being objected that the settlement of the accounts should not be postponed, but that they should be settled as agreed, directed that the arbitrator should settle the accounts, and gave him a year's time for that purpose, and, some of the parties not being willing to draw the unassigned lots, directed the distribution of such lots "in reference to the age and number" of the sharers. Held that such order was a "decree" within the meaning of ss. 2 and 522 of Act X. of 1877: that the arbitrator should himself have drawn such lots, or he should have made the parties draw them; but, inasmuch as it would not have strained the agreement to have such lots drawn in Court, and no objection had been taken to the arbitrator not having himself drawn them, it was not incumbent on the Court to have remitted the award in order that the arbitrator might have drawn them: that the Court, however, should not have distributed such lots in the manner it had done, but should have drawn a lot for each person, and in acting as it had done it had acted contrary to the award, and for that reason its decree could not be maintained: and that, in confirming the award before the accounts had been settled and an award made in respect thereof, the Court had acted erroneously, inasmuch as the award had left undetermined a very important matter, viz., the settlement of the accounts, and the Court should, under s. 520 of Act X. of 1877, have remitted the award for the reconsideration of the arbitrator, and, as it had power to remit it upon such terms as it thought fit, the Court could have allowed one year, if necessary, for the settlement of the accounts; and on this account, and also because the Court had made an order postponing the settlement of the accounts, and thereby made an order contrary to and in excess of the award, its decree must be reversed.—Sadik Ali Khan v. Imdad Ali Khan, I. L. R., 3 All. 286. [Nov. 16, 1880.]

IN an agreement to submit to arbitration, which was filed in Court under the provisions of s. 523 of the Code of Civil Procedure, it was stipulated that the decision of the arbitrator should be accepted as final, and that no appeal therefrom should be made by either party. Held that this stipulation did not prevent the Court from setting aside the award on the ground of misconduct on the part of the arbitrator.—Burla Ranga v. Kalapalli Reddi Sithaya, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 368. [Feb. 13, 1883.]

HELD by the Full Bench (Oldfield, J., dissenting).—That an order refusing to file in Court an agreement to refer to arbitration is not appealable. Per Oldfield, J.—That such an order is appealable, and the court-fee payable on the memorandum of appeal is an ad-valorem fee computed on the value of the subject-matter in dispute in the appeal. Janki Tewari v. Gayan Tewari (I. L. R., 3 All. 427) distinguished by Stuart, C.J., and followed by Oldfield, J.—Daya Nand v. Bakhtawar Singh, I. L. R., 5 All. 333. [Feb. 16, 1883.]

IN an agreement to refer certain matters to arbitration, which was filed in Court under s. 523 of the Civil Procedure Code, and on which an order of reference was made by the Court, no provision was made for difference of opinion between the arbitrators, by appointing an umpire or otherwise. The arbitrators being unable to agree upon the matters referred, the Court, on the application of one of them, appointed an umpire, and directed that the award should be submitted on a particular date. An award was made by the umpire and one arbitrator without the concurrence of the other arbitrator, and submitted to the Court, which passed a decree in accordance with its terms. On appeal by the defendant in the case, the District Judge reversed the decree. Held that an appeal would lie to the Judge from the decree of the first Court, where there had been no legal award such as the law contemplated. Iachman Das v. Brijpal (I. L. R., 6 All. 174) referred to. Held that in the present case there had been no legal award such as the law contemplated, inasmuch as the agreement to refer gave the Court no power to appoint an umpire, and required that the award should be made by the arbitrators named by the parties. Held that s. 509 and the other sections preceding s. 523 of the Civil Procedure Code, relating to the power of the Court to provide for difference of opinion among the arbitrators, were only made applicable to cases coming under s. 523, so far as their provisions were consistent with the agreement filed under that section. Held also that the defendant was not precluded from appealing to the Judge from the first Court's decree because he had not applied to set aside the award within the ten days allowed by art. 123, sch. II. of the Limitation Act, inasmuch as that article applied to applications referred to in s. 522 of the Civil Procedure Code, i. e., applications to set aside an award on any of the grounds mentioned in s. 521, and the defendant did not contest the award on any of those grounds.—Muhammad Abid v. Muhammad Asghar, I. L. R., 8 All. 64. Dec. 14, 1885.]

524. The foregoing provisions of this chapter, so far as they are consistent with any agreement so filed, shall be applicable to all proceedings under an order of reference made by the Court under section 523, and to the award of arbitration and to the enforcement of the decree founded thereupon.

Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

Provisions of chapter applicable to proceedings under order of reference.

WHERE the partner of a firm in their partnership-deed agreed to refer their disputes to arbitration, and the reference made in pursuance of this agreement gave the arbitrators a power to make partition, but omitted a power to sell, held, on the award being made a rule of Court, that the Court had no power, under s. 326, Act VIII. of 1859, to order the sale of certain property of which the arbitrators were unable to make partition, and the sale of which they recommended on that ground.—Chumimoney Dossie and another v. Nistarinee Dossie, 3 C. L. R. 357. [May 30, 1878.]

THE sharers of a joint undivided estate agreed in writing that such estate should be partitioned and the accounts thereof settled by arbitration, and named one of such sharers as arbitrator, and agreed that he should settle all the accounts, show the surplus at each sharer's credit, and prepare lots, after partition of the lands and houses comprehended in such estate, and have them drawn within one year from the completion of the partition. Subsequently one of such sharers applied, under s. 523 of Act X. of 1877, to have such agreement filed in Court. The other sharers not objecting to this course, such agreement was filed accordingly, and the case was referred to such arbitrator. The arbitrator made an award, whereby he partitioned such estate into lots, assigning some only of such lots by name, and wherein he stated that he had not been able to settle the accounts owing to the default of the parties, and that, considering that the partition should take effect without any delay, he did not ask for further time. He further stated that "all the parties state that they will adjust the accounts after renewing the agreement," and he requested that the unassigned lots might be drawn in Court. The Court made an order confirming the award, and, it being objected that the settlement of the accounts should not be postponed, but that they should be settled as agreed, directed that the arbitrator should settle the accounts, and gave him a year's time for that purpose, and, some of the parties not being willing to draw the unassigned lots, directed the distribution of such lots "in reference to the age and number" of the sharers. Held that such order was a "decree" within the meaning of ss. 2 and 522 of Act X. of 1877: that the arbitrator should himself have drawn such lots, or he should have made the parties draw them; but, inasmuch as it would not have strained the agreement to have such lots drawn in Court, and no objection had been taken to the arbitrator, not having himself drawn them, it was not incumbent on the Court to have remitted the award in order that the arbitrator might have drawn them: that the Court, however, should not have distributed such lots in the manner it had done, but should have drawn a lot for each person, and in acting as it had done it had acted contrary to the award, and for that reason its decree could not be maintained: and that, in confirming the award before the accounts had been settled and an award made in respect thereof, the Court had acted erroneously, inasmuch as the award had left undetermined a very important matter, viz., the settlement of the accounts, and the Court should, under s. 520 of Act X. of 1877, have remitted the award for the reconsideration of the arbitrator, and, as it had power to remit it upon such terms as it thought fit, the Court could have allowed one year, if necessary, for the settlement of the accounts; and on this account, and also because the Court had made an order postponing the settlements of the accounts, and thereby made an order contrary to and in excess of the award, its decree must be reversed.—Sadiq Ali Khan v. Imdad Ali Khan, L. R., 3 All. 286. Nov. 16, 1880.]

C. Courts.

525. When any matter has been referred to arbitration without the intervention of a Court of Justice, and an award has been made thereon, any person interested in the award may apply to the Court of the lowest grade having jurisdiction over the matter to which the award relates that the award be filed in Court.

The application shall be in writing, and shall be numbered and registered as a suit between the applicant as plaintiff and the other parties as defendants.

The Court shall direct notice to be given to the parties to the arbitration, other than the applicant, requiring them to show cause, within a time specified, why the award should not be filed.

THERE is no appeal from an order refusing to file an award under this section.—Vaithalinga Pillai v. Rathvam Pillai, 4 Ind. Jur. 392.

EXCEPT in the cases mentioned in the Act, there is no appeal from a decree which is passed in terms of an award.—Manji Premji Shet v. Maliyakai Royapen Korja Kaji, 4 Ind. Jur. 396.

A SUBMISSION to private arbitration need not be put in writing to be valid, and a private award made in pursuance thereof will be respected by the Courts if duly performed. Both submission and award may be proved without ikrarnamah.—W. R., Sp. 76. [Feb. 19, 1864.] See also Mudhoo Manjse v. Rajah Nilmonsee Singh Deo, 18 W. R. 533. [Dec. 9, 1872.]

THERE is nothing in Act VIII of 1859 to prevent parties, who have a suit pending in Court, to submit the subject-matter of that suit and other matters in dispute to arbitration under this section.—W. R. Sp., Mis., 21. [April 19, 1864.]

AWARD should be filed in Court. Effect of not filing as laid down in s. 327, Act VIII. 1859 (corresponding with ss. 525, 526, Act XIV. 1882).—Soophul Sing and others v. Methoo Sing and others, 1 W. R. 163. [Sep. 22, 1865.] See also Lalla Mewa Lal v. Sree Mahato, 25 W. R. 152. [Feb. 25, 1876.]

THE benefit of this section will be lost if the application for enforcement of an award of private arbitration be not made within 6 months.—Bhyrub Jha v. Humsoman Mutt and others, 5 W. R. 123. [Feb. 28, 1866.]

AN appeal, on the allegation of want of consent of parties, lies from the order of a lower Court under s. 327, Act VIII., 1859 (corresponding with s. 525, Act XIV., 1882), directing a private award of arbitration to be filed and enforced.—Hulodhur Sungiree v. Gunesh Santhal and others, 6 W. R. 60. [June 30, 1866.] See also Lalla Ishuree Pershad and others v. Hur Bhunjun Tewaree and others, 15 W. R. F. B. 9 [May 23, 1871]; Protap Chunder Roodro v. Huro Monsee Dossia, 24 W. R. 188 [July 28, 1875].

POSSESSION under a private award of arbitration would suffice to make the award valid, under cl. 3, s. 3, Reg. VI. of 1813, without the intervention of the Court.—Mohesh Chunder Moiter and others v. Bularam Moiter and others, 6 W. R. 91. [July 17, 1866.]

AN order rejecting an application to file an award under this section is not a decree, and is therefore not appealable.—Baboo Chintaman Singh v. Roopa Kocer, 6 W. R. Mis., 83 [Aug. 31, 1866]; Digamburee Dossee v. Proornanund Beyer and others, 7 W. R. 401 [April 24, 1867]; Raj Coomarr Singh v. Kulce Churn Singh and others, 11 W. R. 57 [Jan. 23, 1869]; Mudhoo Soodum Dars v. Odoito Churn Dars, 12 W. R. 85 [June 26, 1869]. But see Khoda Buksh v. Mowla Buksh, 14 W. R. 255 [Aug. 23, 1870]; Lalla Ishuree Pershad and others v. Hur Bhunjun Tewaree and others, 15 W. R. F. B. 9 [May 23, 1871]; Musamut Syudoonissa v. Fida Hossein and others, 12 W. R. 182; [July 16, 1869]. Even though the order award costs.—Preonath Chowdhry v. handhan and others, 11 W. R. 104. [Feb. 8, 1869.]

A PRIVATE award may be valid and binding, though no proceedings under s. 327, Act VIII., 1859 (corresponding with ss. 525, 526, Act XIV., 1882), have been taken to enforce it.—Baboo Sufubjeet Narain Singh v. Baboo Gourree Pershad Narain Singh and another, 7 W. R. 269. [Mar. 14, 1867.] See also Rampad Sahoo v. Doolar Sahoo, 9 W. R. 441 [April 3, 1868]; Nursingh Gariwan v. Puttoo Ostagur, 20 W. R. 420 [Sep. 5, 1873.]

A SMALL Cause Court has jurisdiction, under this section, to entertain an application to file a private arbitration-award relating to a debt not exceeding the amount cognizable by such Court if the defendant resides within its jurisdiction.—Elnah Puramanick v. Sefatullah Sheikh, 10 W. R. 85. [June 27, 1868.] See Mussamut Banoo v. Narain Sahoo, 13 W. R. 233. [Feb. 25, 1870.]

AN application to enforce an arbitration-award under this section may be made without any valuation of the suit.—Khoda Buksh v. Mowla Buksh, 14 W. R. 255. [Aug. 28, 1870.]

THE above section incorporates the provision of s. 522 as to the finality of the judgment given according to the award, and puts the award filed under s. 525 in the same position as the award filed under s. 522. Where a Court files an arbitration-award, and passes a decree, that decree is final.—Sreenath Chatterjee v. Kylash Chunder Chatterjee, 21 W. R. 248. [Feb. 10, 1874.]

WHEN a private award between parties is filed in a Court under this section, the prescribed course is for the Court to give judgment and pass a decree, and not to order execution before such decree has been passed.—Sahib Ram Jha v. Kushee Nath Jha and others, 21 W. R. 295. [Feb. 25, 1874.]

ON an application under this section to have an award filed in Court, it was held that the word "award" as used in the plaint must be taken to include the whole document which is scheduled to the plaint, i.e., the formal judgment as well as the decree.—Chowdhry Murtaza Hossein v. Mussamut Bibi Bechunnissa, 26 W. R. 10 (P. C.). [July 13, 1876.]

It was decided by the Full Bench in Lala Ishuri Pershad v. Hur Bhunjun Tewaree (15 W. R. F. B. 9) that the question of the existence of a legal award is one which is open to appeal, but that when the existence of the award has been finally determined, and judgment is given in accordance with the award, then there is no appeal.—Bahur Meah v. Jumun Meah, 2 C. L. R. 302. [April 3, 1878.]

UNDER Act X. of 1877, ss. 523 and 525, parties to a suit, as well as persons not engaged in litigation, may agree to refer matters in dispute between them to private arbitration without the intervention of the Court, and may apply to have the agreement filed; and the mere fact that the suit is pending with respect to the matters in dispute is not of itself a sufficient reason to induce the Court to refuse to file the agreement.—Harivalabdas Kallindas v. Utanchand Maneckchand, 1. L. R., 4 Bom. 1. [Feb. 13, 1879.] See also Khemna Gowala v. Budoloo Khan, 1. L. R., 6 Cal. 251. [July 8, 1880.]

WHERE an arbitration-bond provides that the matters in dispute referred to the arbitrators may be taken up and dealt with serialim, and the award delivered bit by bit (khurd khurd), it is not necessary under s. 327 of Act VIII. of 1859 (corresponding with ss. 525, 526, Act XIV., 1882) that all the matters referred to should have been decided before the first portion of the award dealing with some only of the subjects in dispute can be filed.—Srimoti Shoshemukhi Dabir v. Nabin Chunder Roy, 4 C. L. R. 92. [Feb. 17, 1879.]

A SUBORDINATE Judge, although invested with the jurisdiction of a Small Cause Court Judge, does not, on that account, become a Small Cause Court Judge, nor his Court such a Court within the meaning of Act X. of 1877. He therefore has power, within the limits of his ordinary pecuniary jurisdiction, to receive and file awards of arbitrators under s. 525 of that Act.—Balkrishna v. Lakshman, 1. L. R., 3 Bom. 219. [April 3, 1879.]

WHEN a Court has refused to file an award upon an application under s. 525, Civil Procedure Code, no appeal lies against such decision, which is an order, and not a decree; but the High Court can interfere under s. 622. An award made under s. 525, which is partly within and partly exceeds the terms of the submission to arbitration, cannot be enforced by summary procedure under s. 526, as to such portion as does not exceed those terms. To refer to arbitration questions arising on the construction of the award and questions left undecided by it is a matter beyond the scope of an agreement to submit to a scheme for the future management of a devasam as regards conduct of suits, granting of demises, custody of property, collection of rents, appointment and removal of servants, and defrayment of current expenditure.—R. Ry. Mana Vikrama Zamorin, Maharaja Bahadur of Calicut v. Mallichery Kristnan Nambudri, 1. L. R., 3 Mad. 68. [July 26, 1880.]

Per SPANKIE, J.—An order refusing an application to file a private award in Court is appealable as a decree. Jokhun Rai v. Bucho Rai (N. W. P. H. C. R. 1868, p. 353) and Hussaini Bibi v. Mohsin Khan (I. L. R., 1 All. 156) impugned and distinguished: Vishnu Bhaui Joshi v. Ravji Bhaui Joshi (I. L. R., 3 Bom. 18) distinguished. Per Stuart, C.J.—An order refusing an application to file a private award in Court on grounds not mentioned in ss. 520 and 521 is a decree, and appealable as such.—Janki Tewari v. Gayan Tewari and another, I. L. R., 3 All. 427. [Jan. 11, 1881.]

By the amendment of the plaint, a case under s. 525 of Act X. of 1877 was taken out of the scope of chap. 37 of that Act. Held that this being so, the decree of the Court of first instance was appealable. Held also, where a private award determined a matter not referred to arbitration, that a claim under s. 525 of Act X. of 1877, that such award should be filed in Court, was properly dismissed.—Jarla Singh and another v. Narain Das, I. L. R., 3 All. 541. [Mar. 4, 1881.]

MATTERS in dispute were referred to arbitration without the intervention of the Court. An award was made, and upon an application under s. 525 of the Civil Procedure Code to file the award, one of the parties showed cause why the award should not be filed, and the Subordinate Judge held the objection to be good. Held that no appeal lay.—Sree Ram Chowdhry v. Deubundhoo Chowdhry, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 490. [May 25, 1881.]

THE term "to show cause" in ss. 525 and 526 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act X. of 1877) does not mean merely to allege cause, nor even to make out that there is room for argument, but both to allege cause and to prove it to the satisfaction of the Court. Matters in dispute between the parties were referred to seven arbitrators without the intervention of a Court. The arbitrators, or so many of them as could be got together, held sittings extending over some months, and at each sitting they came to a decision, either unanimously or by a majority, on different questions submitted to them. These decisions were entered on the minutes of their proceedings; and at their last sitting the arbitrators all agreed, and informed the parties, that the decisions so arrived at constituted the final award, and gave directions for embodying those decisions in the shape of a formal document, which was drawn up on a subsequent day, but was signed by four only out of the seven arbitrators. The remaining arbitrators not being asked to sign it, they never did sign it. Held that the actual award was an oral award made by all the arbitrators on the last day of their joint sittings, and the drawing up of the formal award was a purely ministerial act to give effect to the previously completed judicial act. The omission to take the signature of the minority of the arbitrators to the document, which formed the record of the award, was not fatal to the award. Amongst other matters the arbitrators were asked to make a division of certain fields to which the parties were equally entitled. The arbitrators decided the other matters, but as regards the fields said that it was inconvenient to do so in consequence of the rains, and ordered the parties "to receive the profits half and half, and to pay the assessment half and half." Held that the award left undetermined one of the principal subjects of dispute; and as the Court had no power to remit the award to the arbitrators, the applicant was entitled to a judgment setting aside the order for filing the award.—Dandekars v. Dandekars, I. L. R., 6 Bom. 663. [Aug. 14, 1882.]

WHERE an award was made and signed by the arbitrators on the 5th of August 1881, but was not delivered to the parties till the 13th September following, semble that an application to file the award, made on the 25th of February 1882, under the provisions of s. 525 of the Code of Civil Procedure, was not barred by limitation. It is clearly the intention of the Legislature that a party to an arbitration should have six months to enforce the award, under s. 525 of the Code of Civil Procedure, from the time when he is in a position to enforce it. Under ss. 525 and 526 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the Court has full power to enter into the question of the sufficiency of the cause shown against the filing in Court of an award. Dandekars v. Dandekars (I. L. R., 6 Bom. 663) followed; Ichamoyee Chowdhraee v. Prosunno Nath Chowdhry (I. L. R., 9 Cal. 557) dissented from. After an award has been made and handed to the parties, the function of the arbitrators ceases. They have no power afterwards to deal with an application for review of their decision. — In the Matter of the Petition of Datto Singh; Datto Singh v. Dosad Bahadur Singh, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 575. [Jan. 17, 1883.]

NO APPEAL lies from an order upon an application to file an award under s. 525 of the Civil Procedure Code. Upon an application to file an award under s. 525 of the Civil Procedure Code, the Court to which the application is made has no jurisdiction to enquire whether the defendant has agreed to the terms of the instrument referring the matter to arbitration, or whether the terms were obtained by fraud. When such objections are made, it is the duty of the Court to reject the application under s. 525, and refer the parties to a regular suit. The proper court-fee upon an application to file an award under s. 525 is the court-fee prescribed for applications, and not the court-fee upon a plaint.—Bijadur Bhagut v. Monohur Bhagut, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 11. [June 1, 1883.]

WHERE an application is made under s. 525 of the Code of Civil Procedure to have an award filed in Court, and it appears to the Court, on cause shown why the award should not be filed, that there is a reasonable dispute between the parties on any of the grounds mentioned in s. 520 or 521, the application should be dismissed. Under s. 520 of the Code of Civil Procedure, sufficient cause may be shown by affidavit or verified petition. Sree Ram Chowdhry v. Denoonndhoo Chowdhry (I. L. R., 7 Cal. 450) and Sashti Charan Chatterjee v. Tarak Chandra Chatterjee (8 B. L. R. 315) referred to.—Ichamoyee Chowdhranee v. Prasunno Nath Chowdhri, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 557. [July 31, 1883.]

WHEN an application is made to a Court to file an award under s. 525 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and an objection is made to the filing of it upon any of the grounds mentioned in s. 520 or 521, the proper course for the Court to pursue is to dismiss the application, and to leave the applicant to bring a regular suit to enforce the award, in which all the objections to its validity may be properly tried and determined. Where no such ground of objection is made to the filing of the award, and the Court consequently orders it to be filed, no appeal lies against that order.—Hurronath Chowdhry v. Nistarini Chowdrani, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 74. [June 23, 1883.]

WHERE a matter has been referred to arbitration, without the intervention of a Court of Justice, by parties one of whom is an agriculturist, and an award has been made thereon, any person interested in the award may, without obtaining the conciliator's certificate, apply for the filing of the award under s. 525 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the provisions of which are not superseded by s. 47 of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act, 1879.—Gangadhar Sakharam v. Mahadu Santaji, I. L. R., 8 Bom. 20. [Sep. 27, 1883.]

HELD (Oldfield, J., dissenting) that an appeal does not lie from an order disallowing an application to file an award under s. 525 of the Civil Procedure Code. Janki Tewari v. Gayan Tewari (I. L. R., 3 All. 427) distinguished by Stuart, C.J. The same case followed by Oldfield, J.—Bhola v. Gobind Dayal, I. L. R., 6 All. 186. [Jan. 25, 1884.]

WHERE an application was made to a Subordinate Judge to file an award, and an objection was taken that the arbitrators had made their award several months before the date of the one sought to be filed, thus impeaching the identity of the award, and the Subordinate Judge, after an inquiry with regard to the several objections, ordered the award to be filed, held that the order of the Subordinate Judge should be set aside, or the award be deemed not to have been filed. The only objections which the Court can inquire into under ss. 525 and 526 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) are those which are specified in ss. 520 and 521, and these relate to cases in which the reference and the award are accepted facts; but where the objection denies the factum of the particular award sought to be filed, and the objection does not seem to be frivolous, but one giving rise to inquiry into difficult questions of law and fact, it is not competent for the Court to deal with that objection under ss. 525 and 526. In such a case the Court should leave the applicant to a regular suit on the award as the basis of his cause of action wherein the party urging the objection will have the advantage of being defendant rather than a plaintiff, and of having an appeal open to him in the event of an unfavourable decision.—Samal Nathu v. Jaishankar Dalsukram, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 254. [Dec. 2, 1884.]

A DOCUMENT, although headed as an "award," and signed by the arbitrator, which merely recommends a solution of the questions referred to arbitration, will not be treated by the Court as an award on an application made under s. 525 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Nundololl Mookerjee v. Chunder Kant Mookerjee, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 356. [Mar. 26, 1885.]

THE three parties to a deed of partnership agreed that in case of any dispute or difference, the matter should be referred to the arbitration of persons chosen by each party to such dispute, and that in case any such party should refuse or fail to nominate an arbitrator, then the arbitrator named by the other party should nominate another arbitrator, and the two should nominate a third person as umpire. Certain differences having arisen among the three partners, two of them called upon the executors of the third to nominate an arbitrator under the terms of the deed, but they refused to do so. The first-mentioned partners then nominated an arbitrator, who in his turn nominated another, and these, having appointed an umpire, made an award. One of the partners at whose instance the matter in dispute had been referred to arbitration presented an application under s. 525 of the Civil Procedure Code praying that the award might be filed in Court. This application was opposed by the executors of the third partner, who appeared and lodged verified petitions disclosing grounds of objection within the meaning of s. 521 of the Code. Held that the word "parties" as used in s. 525 should not be confined to persons who are actually before the arbitrators; that if persons by an agreement have undertaken between themselves that, in the event of a certain state of things happening, a particular procedure shall be followed which, under one state of circumstances, may be adopted in futuro, they should, for the purposes of s. 525, be regarded as parties to that arbitration; and that there was sufficient reason to show that the defendants in the present case were prima facie bound by the arbitration, so as to bring them within the terms of s. 525 as parties thereto who should be called on to show cause why the award should not be filed. Willcox v. Stock (L. R., 1 C. P. 671) and Re Newton and Hetherington (19 C. B., N. S., 342) referred to. Held also that ss. 525 and 526 of the Code, read together, mean that the party coming forward to oppose the filing of the award must show cause, that is, must establish by argument, or proof, or both, reasonable grounds to warrant the Court in arriving at the conclusion that the award is open to any of the objections mentioned in s. 520 or s. 521, and it is not sufficient, when it is sought to make the award a rule of Court, for the defeated party to come and merely say upon a verified petition that this or that ground referred to in ss. 520 and 521 existed against the filing. Sree Ram Chowdhry v. Denobundhoo Chowdhry (I. L. R., 7 Cal. 490) and Jehamoyee Chowdhralee v. Prasunno Nath Chowdhry (I. L. R., 9 Cal. 557) dissented from. Dutto Singh v. Dosad Bahadur Singh (I. L. R., 9 Cal. 575), Dandekar v. Dandekar (I. L. R., 6 Bom. 663), and Chowdhry Murtaza Hossein v. D. Chunnissa (L. R., 3 Ind. Ap. 209), referred to.—Jones v. Ledgeard, I. L. R., 8 All. 340. [May 9, 1886.]

526. If no ground, such as is mentioned or referred to in section 520 or section 521, be shown against the award, the Court shall order it to be filed, and such award shall then take effect as an award made under the provisions of this chapter.

UNDER the law previous to Act VIII. of 1859, the summary refusal to enforce an arbitration-award did not bar the use of the award as the basis of a regular suit.—W. R. Sp. 283 (L. R. 65). [June 18, 1864.]

A PLAINTIFF cannot sue for moveables by a suit to enforce an award. He may sue for damages and losses sustained with regard to his share of ancestral property under his general rights of inheritance, whether adjudicated upon by a previous award of arbitration or not; and as regards lands, he may sue either for enforcement of the award or upon his rights.—Ram Coomarr Singh v. Dewan Ram Jeebun Singh and others, 5 W. R. 165. [Mar. 19, 1866.]

WHEN sufficient cause is shown against a private award, the Court may refuse to enforce it under this section.—Nader Ali and others v. Majoo, 21 W. R. 377. [Mar. 23, 1874.]

WHEN a Court has refused to file an award upon an application under s. 525, Civil Procedure Code, no appeal lies against such decision, which is an order, and not a decree; but the High Court can interfere under s. 622. An award made under s. 255, which is partly within and partly excluded by the terms of the submission to arbitration, cannot be enforced by summary procedure under s. 526 as to such portion as does not exceed those terms. To refer to arbitration questions arising on the construction of the award and questions beyond the scope of an agreement to submit to a scheme of arbitration as regards conduct of suits, granting of demises, for the future management of a demised property, appointment and removal of servants, and defrayment of current expenditure. R. Budri, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 68. [July 28, 1880.]

Per SPANKIE, J.—An order refusing an application to file a private award in Court is appealable as a decree. Jokun Rai v. Bucho Rai (N. W. P. H. C. R. 1868, p. 353) and Hussaini Bibi v. Mohsin Khan (L. R., 1 All. 156) impugned and distinguished: Eshi (I. L. R., 3 Bom. 18) distinguished. Per Stuart, C.J.—An order refusing an application to file a private award in Court on grounds not mentioned in ss. 520 and 521 is a decree, and appealable as such.—Janki Tewari and others v. Gayan Tewari and another, I. L. R., 3 All. 427. [Jan. 11, 1881.]

HELD by Melvill and Paine, JJ.—Before effect can be given to an award by execution-proceedings, there must be judgment according to the award and a decree following thereon. A judgment-debtor, against whom an order for execution has been obtained behind his back, is not estopped from afterwards contending that there exists no decree which can be executed.—Ishwardás Jagjivandás v. Dosibái, I. L. R., 1 Bom. 316. [May 3, 1882.]

WHERE an award was made and signed by the arbitrators on the 5th August 1881, but was not delivered to the parties till the 13th of September following, semble that an application to file the award, made on the 25th of February 1882, under the provisions of s. 525 of the Code of Civil Procedure, was not barred by limitation. It is clearly the intention of the Legislature that a party to an arbitration should have six months to enforce an award, under s. 525 of the Code of Civil Procedure, from time to time when he is in position to enforce it. Under ss. 525 and 526 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the Court has full power to enter into the question of the sufficiency of the cause shown against the filing in Court of an award. Dandekar v. Dandekars (I. L. R., 6 Bom. 663) followed; Ichamoyee Chowdhraee v. Prosunno Nath Chowdhri (I. L. R., 9 Cal. 557) dissented from. After an award has been made and handed to the parties, the functions of the arbitrators cease. They have no power afterwards to deal with an application for review of their decision.—In the Matter of the Petition of Datto Singh; Datto Singh v. Dosad Bahadur Singh, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 575. [Jan. 17, 1883.]

WHERE an application is made under s. 525 of the Code of Civil Procedure to have an award filed in Court, and it appears to the Court, on cause shown why the award should not be filed, that there is a reasonable dispute between the parties on any of the grounds mentioned in s. 520 or 521, the application should be dismissed. Under s. 525 of the Code of Civil Procedure, sufficient cause may be shown by affidavit or verified petition. Sree Ram Chowdhry v. Denobundhoo Chowdhry (I. L. R., 7 Cal. 490) and Sashti Charan Chatterjee v. Tarak Chandra Chatterjee (8 B. L. R. 315) referred to.—Ichamoyee Chowdhraee v. Prosunno Nath Chowdhri, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 557. [July 31, 1883.]

THE parties to a suit having referred the matters in dispute between them to arbitration, the arbitrators, without being specially authorized to decide the question of costs, included in the award a direction that the defendant should pay the costs of the plaintiff. On the application of the plaintiff, the Subordinate Judge, under s. 526 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), ordered the award to be filed, holding that the arbitrators had, as such, an implied power to deal with the costs. The defendant applied to the High Court, under its extraordinary jurisdiction, praying that the record of the case might be sent for, and the order of the Subordinate Judge set aside. Held that the arbitrators had no implied power to deal with the question of costs, and that, on the defendant's objection, the Subordinate Judge should have refused to file the award. Under the circumstances, the High Court, instead of setting aside the order to file the award, directed the award to stand good, except so far as it awarded costs, and that the decree should be drawn in accordance with it, as it would be if it contained no direction as to costs. In any case, where there is a disregard of the law amounting to an excess of jurisdiction or a perversion of the purposes of the Legislature, the High Court will interfere under its extraordinary jurisdiction where no other remedy is available.—Dagdusa Tilakchand v. Bhukan Govind Shet, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 82. [Sep. 15, 1884.]

WHERE an application was made to a Subordinate Judge to file an award, and an objection was taken that the arbitrators had made their award several months before the date of the one sought to be filed, thus impeaching the identity of the award, and the Subordinate Judge, after an inquiry with regard to the several objections, ordered the award to be filed, held that the order of the Subordinate Judge should be set aside, or the award be deemed not to have been filed. The only objections which the Court can inquire into under ss. 525 and 526 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) are those which are specified in ss. 520 and 521, and these relate to cases in which the reference and the award are accepted facts; but where the objection denies the factum of the particular award sought to be filed, and the objection does not seem to be frivolous, but one giving rise to inquiry into difficult questions of law and fact, it is not competent for the Court to deal with the objection under ss. 525 and 526. In such a case the Court should leave the applicant to a regular suit on the award as the basis of his cause of action wherein the party urging the objection will have the advantage of being defendant rather than a plaintiff, and of having an appeal open to him in the event of an unfavourable decision.—Sámal Nathu v. Jaishankar Dalsukram, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 254. [Dec. 2, 1884.]

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

OF PROCEEDINGS ON AGREEMENT OF PARTIES.

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

527. Parties claiming to be interested in the decision of any question of fact or law may enter into an agreement in writing, stating such question in the form of a case for the opinion of the Court, and providing that, upon the finding of the Court with respect to such question,

(a) a sum of money fixed by the parties, or to be determined by the Court, shall be paid by one of the parties to the other of them; or

(b) some property, moveable or immoveable, specified in the agreement, shall be delivered by one of the parties to the other of them; or

(c) one or more of the parties shall do, or refrain from doing, some other particular act specified in the agreement.

Every case stated under this section shall be divided into consecutively numbered paragraphs, and shall concisely state such facts and documents as may be necessary to enable the Court to decide the question raised thereby.

528. If the agreement is for the delivery of any property, or for the doing, or the refraining from doing, any particular act, the estimated value of the property to be delivered, or to which the act specified has reference, shall be stated in the agreement.

529. The agreement, if framed in accordance with the rules hereinbefore contained, may be filed in the Court which would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit, the amount or value of the subject-matter of which is the same as the amount or value of the subject-matter of the agreement.

The agreement, when so filed, shall be numbered and registered as a suit between one or more of the parties claiming to be interested as plaintiff or plaintiffs, and the other or others of them as defendant or defendants; and notice shall be given to all the parties to the agreement, other than the party or parties by whom it was presented.

530. When the agreement has been filed, the parties to it shall be subject to the jurisdiction of the Court, and shall be bound by the statements contained therein.

531. The case shall be set down for hearing as a suit instituted under Chapter V., the provisions of which shall apply to such suit so far as the same are applicable.

If the Court is satisfied, after an examination of the parties, or after taking such evidence as it thinks fit,

(a) that the agreement was duly executed by them, and

(b) that they have a bona fide interest in the question stated therein, and

(c) that the same is fit to be decided,

it shall proceed to pronounce judgment thereon, in the same way as in an ordinary suit, and upon the judgment so given a decree shall follow, and shall be enforced in the manner provided in this Code for the execution of decrees.

THE term "judicial proceeding," as used in Act X. of 1877, s. 2, must be understood to mean a judicial proceeding of the same nature as a suit or such proceedings as are referred to in ss. 323, 522, 523, and 531. The definition given in Act X. of 1872 is not applicable.—Dalpatbhai Bhagubhai v. Amarsang Khema Bhai, I. L. R., 2 Bom. 553. [Mar. 20, 1878.]

CHAPTER XXXIX.

OF SUMMARY PROCEDURE ON NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS.

532. In any Court to which this section applies, all suits upon bills of exchange, hundis, or promissory notes, may, in case the plaintiff desires to proceed under this chapter, be instituted by presenting a plaint in the form prescribed by this Code; but the summons shall be in the form contained in the fourth schedule hereto annexed, No. 172, or in such other form as the High Court may, from time to time, prescribe.

In any case in which the plaint and summons are in such forms respectively, the defendant shall not appear or defend the suit, unless he obtains leave from a Judge, as hereinafter mentioned, so to appear and defend; and in default of his obtaining such leave, or of appearance and defence in pursuance thereof, the plaintiff shall be entitled to a decree for any sum not exceeding the sum mentioned in the summons, together with interest at the rate specified (if any) to the date of the decree, and a sum for costs to be fixed by a rule of the High Court, unless the plaintiff claims more than such fixed sum, in which case the costs shall be ascertained in the ordinary way, and such decree may be enforced forthwith.

The defendant shall not be required to pay into Court the sum mentioned in the summons, or to give security therefor, unless the Court thinks his defence not to be prima facie sustainable, or feels reasonable doubt as to its good faith.

Explanation.—This section is not confined to cases in which the bill, hundi, or note sued upon, together with mere lapse of time, is sufficient to establish a prima facie right to recover.

THE High Court has power to extend the time within which a defendant in a suit brought under chap. 39 (summary procedure on negotiable instruments) of the Civil Procedure Code can come in and obtain leave to defend; therefore, in a suit in which it appeared that the defendant resided at Peshawar, the time for the defendant to obtain leave from the Court to appear and defend was extended to 28 days.—Groom and another v. Wilson, I. L. R., 3 Cal. 539. [April 8, 1878.]

533. The Court shall, upon application by the defendant, give leave to appear and to defend the suit, upon the defendant paying into Court the sum mentioned in the summons, or upon affidavits satisfactory to the Court, which disclose a defence or such facts as would make it incumbent on the holder to prove consideration, or such other facts as the Court may deem sufficient to support the application, and on such terms as to security, framing and recording issues, or otherwise, as the Court thinks fit.

534. After decree, the Court may, under special circumstances, set aside the decree, and, if necessary, stay or set aside execution, and may give leave to appear to the summons and to defend the suit, if it seem reasonable to the Court so to do, and on such terms as the Court thinks fit.

No appeal lies under Act X. of 1877 from an order made under that Act rejecting an application for an order setting aside a decree made ex parte against a defendant.—Gulab Singh v. Lachman Das, I. L. R., 1 All. 748. [July 16, 1878.]

535. In any proceeding under this chapter the Court may order the bill, hundi, or note on which the suit is founded, to be forthwith deposited with an officer of the Court, and may further order that all proceedings shall be stayed until the plaintiff gives security for the costs thereof.

536. The holder of every dishonoured bill of exchange or promissory note shall have the same remedies for the recovery of the expenses incurred in noting the same for non-acceptance or non-payment, or otherwise, by reason of such dishonour, as he has under this chapter for the recovery of the amount of such bill or note.

537. Except as provided by sections 532 to 536 (both inclusive), the procedure in suits under this chapter shall be the same as the procedure in suits instituted under Chapter V.

538. Sections 532 to 537 (both inclusive) apply only to—

- (a) the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras, and Bombay;
- (b) the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon;
- (c) the Courts of Small Causes in Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay;
- (d) the Court of the Judge of Karachi; and
- (e) any other Court having ordinary original civil jurisdiction, to which the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, apply them.

In case of such application the Local Government may direct by whom any of the powers and duties incident to the provisions so applied shall be exercised and performed, and make any rules which it thinks requisite for carrying into operation the provisions so applied.

Within one month after such notification has been published, such provisions shall apply accordingly, and the rules so made shall have the force of law.

The Local Government may, from time to time, alter or cancel any such notification.

CHAPTER XL

OF SUITS RELATING TO PUBLIC CHARITIES.

539. In case of any alleged breach of any express or constructive trusts created for public charitable or religious purposes, or whenever the direction of the Court is deemed necessary for the administration of any such trust, the Advocate-General acting ex officio, or two or more persons having a direct interest in the trust, and having obtained the consent in writing of the Advocate-General, may institute a suit in the High Court or the District Court within the local limits of whose civil jurisdiction the whole or any part of the subject-matter of the trust is situate, to obtain a decree—

- (a) appointing new trustees under the trust;
 - (b) vesting any property in the trustees under the trust;
 - (c) declaring the proportions in which its objects are entitled;
 - (d) authorizing the whole or any part of its property to be let, sold, mortgaged, or exchanged;
 - (e) settling a scheme for its management;
- or granting such further or other relief as the nature of the case may require.

The powers conferred by this section on the Advocate-General may, outside the Presidency-towns, be, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, exercised also by the Collector or by such officer as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf.

Act No. X. of 1840, section two, is hereby repealed.

WORSHIPPERS or devotees of an idol are entitled to bring a suit, concerning of a breach of trust, with reference to the funds or property belonging to the idol or appendant to its temple.—Quere. Whether, if the suit had been brought after Act X. of 1877 came into force, s. 539 of that Act could be held applicable to the devasthan of an idol or temple, dedicated merely to the purposes of such idol or temple?—Rádhabái Kom Chim-páji Sáli v. Chinnáji bin Áámji Sáli, I. L. R., 3 Bom. 27. [Aug. 14, 1878.]

IN a suit by two of the worshippers at a certain mosque, instituted after having obtained the sanction of the Advocate-General under s. 539 of the Civil Procedure Code, against the mutawalli of the mosque, and two other persons to whom the mutawalli had mortgaged part of the endowed property to secure the repayment of a loan, it appeared that one of the mortgagees had sold some of the waqf property in execution of a decree which he had obtained upon his mortgage, and the property had been purchased by the other mortgagee. The plaintiffs prayed that the property purchased might be declared to be waqf; that the sale in execution might be declared to be invalid; that a mutawalli might be appointed by the Court; and that the costs of doing the acts of waqf might be defrayed from the profits of the property belonging to the endowment. Held that, so far as regarded that portion of the prayer as fell within the provisions of s. 539 of the Code, the plaintiffs were not entitled to sue, as they were not "persons having a direct interest in the trust" within the meaning of the section, and that the suit should have been instituted under s. 14 of Act XX. of 1863 after sanction obtained under s. 18. Held also that though the plaintiffs might possibly have obtained leave to sue under s. 30 of the Code on behalf of themselves and the other persons attending the mosque, they not having obtained such leave were not entitled to institute the suit for the purpose of obtaining the relief asked for in the other prayers of the plaint. The words "trustee, manager, or superintendent of a mosque," &c., mentioned in Act XX. of 1863, mean the trustee, manager, or superintendent of a mosque, &c., to which the provisions of the Act are applicable, not the trustee, &c., of any mosque. And such persons are those to whom the provisions of Reg. XIX. of 1810 were applicable. The mosque, &c., to which the provisions of that Regulation were applicable, were mosques for the support of which endowments had been granted in land by the Government of the country or by individuals, and the mosques, &c., to which the provisions of Act XX. of 1863 apply are, not any mosques, &c., but any mosques for the support of which endowments in land have been made by the Government or private individual.—Jan Ali v. Ram Nath Mundul, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 32. [Aug. 12, 1881.]

S. 539 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1877, does not apply to the case of an endowment for purposes religious as well as charitable.—Thanga Karuppa Nádan v. Arumága Nádan, I. L. R., 5 Mad. 383. [Aug. 23, 1882.]

CERTAIN Mahomedans sued to set aside a mortgage of endowed property belonging to a mosque, the decree enforcing the mortgage, and the sale of the mortgaged property in execution of that decree, and for the demolition of buildings erected by the purchaser, and the ejectment of the purchaser. Held that the plaintiffs, as Mahomedans entitled to frequent the mosque and to use the other religious buildings connected with the endowment, could maintain the suit, and s. 539 of the Civil Procedure Code had no application to the case, the endowment being a religious institution within the meaning of s. 24 of Act VI. of 1871, and therefore governed by Mahomedan law.—Zafaryab Ali v. Bakhtawar Singh, I. L. R., 5 All. 497. [Mar. 27, 1883.]

IN or about the year 1839 a temple to the god Shri Anantnájhi was erected in Bombay by the Dossa Oswal Barja caste, the religion of which caste is the Jain religion. A large portion of the funds required for building the temple was advanced by one Nursey Náthá, at that time the leading man in the caste; the rest was obtained from the caste by subscription. The firm of Nursey Náthá acted as the bankers to the caste and to the temple, received all the gifts and offerings made by the worshippers, and for many years administered all the affairs of the temple. The sums advanced by Nursey Náthá were gradually, but entirely, repaid to him out of the gifts and offerings. There were three separate funds, of which separate accounts were kept in the books, viz., (1) the darása fund, which was devoted to the temple purposes, such as maintenance of priests, repairs,

&c., and gifts to poorer temples; (2) the sadāran fund, which was more extended in its objects, but still limited to religious and charitable purposes, such as payments to poor devotees irrespective of their caste, &c.; and (3) the mahājan fund, which was devoted to caste purposes, such as purchase of caste utensils, &c. All three funds were collected at the temple. Gifts and offerings were made by all worshippers at the temple, whether members of the caste or not. Subscriptions were made only by members of the caste. All the regular subscriptions came from the caste exclusively, and the great bulk of the gifts and offerings came from the caste also. Only about Rs. 12,000 had been given by outsiders up to the date of the suit, while nearly 6 lakhs had been given by the caste. Nursey Nāth died in 1842, and his adopted son Virji Nursey became head of the firm, which continued to manage the funds of the temple under the name of Virji Nursey & Co. Virji Nursey died in 1852, and Hurbhum Nursey (defendant No. 1) succeeded him. The firm meanwhile had invested the funds of the temple in eight lots of immovable property. In 1867 the caste determined to appoint trustees of the temple-property, and in September 1867 a trust-deed was executed, whereby Hurbhum Nursey, Kessowji Nāik, Ghelābhoy Puddumsey (defendants Nos. 1, 2, and 3), together with three others who were dead at the time of this suit, viz., Jewraj Ruttonsey, Triumji Wellji, and Madan Tejsey, were appointed trustees of all the immovable property belonging to the temple. The deed set forth the objects to which the income of the property should be applied, and provided that the surplus should be invested in Government securities, in corporation shares, or in landed property, but in no other shares of any description whatsoever. It also authorized the trustees to invest surplus moneys in the firm of Virji Nursey. It was admitted that, subsequently to June 1869, the trustees managed the temple, and not only the immovable property, but all the funds. A debt of Rs. 2,40,000 was due from the firm of Virji Nursey & Co. to the temple and caste when the trustees took over the management. In 1870 the firm of Virji Nursey & Co. became insolvent, and in their schedule the trustees were entered as creditors in respect of darāsa account, Rs. 1,57,649; on mahājan account, Rs. 68,017; on sadāran account, Rs. 22,597. It was admitted that the trustees knew of this entry in the said schedule. They, however, received no dividend, although other creditors, including Kessowji Nāik (defendant No. 2), were paid two annas in the rupee. This sum of Rs. 2,40,000 due to the temple was wholly lost. In April 1867, Rs. 15,000 of the temple-funds were invested—it did not appear by whom—in the name of Ghelābhoy Puddumsey (defendant No. 3), and in August 1868 a sum of Rs. 15,000 was advanced to one Jairaj Pirbhoy. In 1869 a sum of Rs. 10,000 was advanced by the trustees to Nursey Kessowji & Co., which was never repaid, nor was any interest received upon it. It was lost on the failure of that firm in 1879. The principal partner of that firm (Nursey Kessowji) was the only son of Kessowji Nāik (defendant No. 2), who also had an interest in it. In 1877-78 various loans were made by the trustees to three mills, in which one or more of the trustees was interested. Of Rs. 55,000 lent to the mills and to Nursey Kessowji & Co. Rs. 42,000 were lost. Half a lakh of outstanding gifts to the temple remained uncollected owing to the negligence of the trustees. Two suits brought by another caste against the trustees were defended out of the temple-funds. All the defendants (trustees), with the exception of Kessowji Nāik, were in needy circumstances. In 1880 a hundred members of the caste protested against the management of caste and temple affairs by the defendants. The plaintiffs, six in number, took part in the protest, and filed the present suit in 1881. Thereupon there was a caste agitation in favour of the defendants, who were all shettis of the caste. A meeting of the caste was held, and a series of resolutions, supporting the defendants' management, and approving of their conduct, was passed, and a document to that effect was signed by 1,468 persons—the whole caste in Bombay numbering only 1,500. The plaintiffs sought to make the defendants liable in respect of the moneys lost to the caste and temple-funds, and prayed for the appointment of new trustees and for the settlement of a scheme. The defendants denied the charges of negligence, and pleaded that the suit was not properly constituted, not having been brought under s. 30 or 539 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1877, and that it was in contravention of Reg. II. of 1827, ch. 2, s. 21. They relied upon the fact that the caste had approved of their conduct, and had allowed them to defend this suit at the expense of the caste. They contended that under these circumstances the plaintiffs were not entitled to maintain the suit, and that the Court would not interfere with, or control the decision of the majority of, the caste in matters relating to the internal management of its affairs. Held that s. 30 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) did not apply. If the plaintiffs had any right of action, it was a complete right of action vested in each of them, and not a mere joint right shared with others, and incomplete unless they united themselves with others. They sued as subscribers to the temple and devotees of the idol, and, as such, each had a right to complain of maladministration. They were entitled to sue in their own right and in their own name without permission of the Court or notice to other parties interested. Held also (following Thanga Karuppa v. Arumuga

Nadan (I. L. R., 5 Mad. 383), that s. 539 of Act X. of 1877 did not apply. The three funds administered by the defendants were different in character. The mahajan fund was a purely secular fund; the other two funds were religious and charitable funds. Even if the case came under the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), s. 539 would not apply, that section being permissive or directory, and not mandatory. Any person interested in the proper observance of a religious endowment may sue in his own name to have the trust properly administered. The section does not prohibit a private suit, and does not make the sanction of the Advocate-General a condition precedent. The gifts to the temple comprised in the darasa and sadaran funds were irrevocably dedicated to public charity, and, therefore, the approval, by the caste, of the conduct of the trustees, was no bar to the suit. They were also dedicated to the idol, who was a public, not a mere private household divinity. The ideal personality of such an idol is well recognized, and in case of misappropriation of the property he is entitled to the protection of the public authorities, on the ground that it has been devoted to public religious purposes, and must not be wasted even by the donors. The management of the temple belonged to the Dasa Oswal Bania caste, and not to the whole Jain community. Although the donations were irrevocably dedicated to public purposes, the donors had never lost the right, which was attached to the caste from the beginning, of managing the temple which they had founded, and their management could only be interfered with as a public charitable trust on proof of maladministration. On the evidence, held that the defendants were not liable for losses prior to 1867. It was not clearly proved that they were managers of the temple-funds before that date. Held also that the defendants were liable for the losses incurred subsequently to 1867. They assumed the management on the execution of the trust-deed in that year, and ought to have taken steps to recover the money which had been improperly advanced on loan or otherwise negligently invested. Not having done so, they were guilty of wilful neglect, and were liable to refund the moneys which had been lost. The liability was, however, confined to the first three defendants, it not being proved that the remaining defendants had ever acted as trustees. The negligence of the trustees in not taking steps to recover the Rs. 2,40,000 due from the firm of Virji Nursey & Co. was a clear breach of trust. The evidence showed that although the whole sum could not have been recovered at any time during the trusteeship of the defendants, yet that some portion of the money might have been obtained if due diligence had been used, and that other creditors of the firm had actually been paid two annas in the rupee. The first three defendants were, therefore, liable to refund two annas in the rupee of such portion of the Rs. 2,40,000 as belonged to the darasa and sadaran funds. As to the mahajan fund, it belonged to the caste, and the caste had condoned its misapplication, which it had power to do. The defendants were also held liable to refund such other sums as had come into their hands, and had been lost in consequence of their negligence. Held also that, under the provision of s. 10 of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877), the suit was not barred. The property became vested in the defendants for specific purposes; and, although it was no longer in their hands, the suit fell within the section, inasmuch as the money could be traced to the hands of the trustees, and the losses were caused by their misconduct and improper dealing with it. The Court removed the defendants from the trusteeship, and ordered a scheme to be settled.—Thackersey Dewraj v. Hurbhum Nursey, I. L. R., 8 Bom. 432. [June 20, 1884.]

THE plaintiff sued to recover possession as mutwali of certain parcels of land, alleging that they were dedicated as waqf, and that the profits were "applied to the feeding of wayfarers and travellers, to lighting the mosque and shrine in the evening, and to meeting the expenses of repeating prayers on the occasion of Id and Bakrid, and that the said profits were never spent for personal purposes." The plaintiff based her right to sue upon the fact that her deceased husband had been mutwali, and she prayed that the property in suit might be declared waqf, and that certain alienations made by her step-son since her husband's death might be set aside. Held that the trust to which the suit related was, one partly for charitable and partly for religious purposes. As far as it related to the former, it was governed by s. 539 of the Civil Procedure Code, and if viewed in the light of the latter, by Act XX. of 1863; and that the suit, not being properly framed in compliance with the provisions of either of those enactments, was not maintainable. Held, further, that even supposing the endowment alleged was neither a public charity within the meaning of s. 539 of the Civil Procedure Code, nor a religious endowment to which Act XX. of 1863 applied, the plaintiff was not entitled to sue alone, as it was clear upon the face of the plaint that she was not alone interested in the subject-matter of the suit, and therefore that she could only sue on behalf of all who were so interested, having first obtained the leave of the Court and otherwise complied with the provisions of s. 30 of the Civil Procedure Code.—Lutifunissa Bibi v. Nazirun Bibi, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 33. [Aug. 29, 1884.]

right and title asserted by them to such properties was implicitly recognised by such decree, the defendants were entitled to appeal from it.—Behari Bhagat v. Begam Bibi, I. L. R., 3 All. 75. [July 19, 1880.]

M SUEB K and J to enforce a right of pre-emption in respect of property which he alleged K had sold to J. K denied that she had sold such property to J. J set up as a defence that M had waived his right of pre-emption. The Court of first instance dismissed the suit on the ground that the alleged sale had not taken place. J appealed, making M and K respondents. The lower Appellate Court dismissed the appeal, also holding that the alleged sale had not taken place. J then appealed to the High Court, making K the respondent. Held that neither the appeal from the original decree in suit, nor the appeal from the appellate decree therein, was admissible. Held also that the finding as to the alleged sale was one between the plaintiff and defendants in the suit, and not between the defendant-vendor and the defendant-vendee who were litigating, and would not bar adjudication of the matter in issue between them in a suit brought by the latter for the establishment of the sale.—Jumna Singh and another v. Kamar-un-nisa, I. L. R., 3 All. 152 (F. B.). [Aug. 12, 1880.]

NOTHING remained to be done in a suit except to hear arguments, for which a time had been appointed. Neither the plaintiff nor his pleader appeared at the appointed time. The Court consequently dismissed the suit. Held that its decree was appealable under s. 540 of Act X. of 1877, and the lower Appellate Court should have entertained the appeal and disposed of it with reference to the provisions of s. 565, and ss. 102 and 103 were not applicable to the circumstances.—Raichand v. Mathura Prasad, I. L. R., 3 All. 292. [Nov. 25, 1880.]

By a decree in an administration-suit, A was appointed receiver "to manage the estate." A died, and by a subsequent order B was appointed receiver. One of the defendants in the suit applied to have B removed from the office of receiver on the ground of his alleged mismanagement of the estate. The application was refused. Held that the order of refusal was appealable, whether the former Code or the present Code of Civil Procedure was deemed to be applicable, being an order made in respect of a question arising between the parties to a suit relating to the execution of the decree.—Mithibai v. Limji Nowroji Banaji ; Harivallubhdas Callandas v. Ardasar Framji Moos, I. L. R., 5 Bom. 457. [Dec. 3, 1880.]

AN order under s. 556 of Act X. of 1877, dismissing an appeal for the appellant's default, is not a "decree" within the meaning of s. 2, and is not appealable.—Mukhi v. Fakir, I. L. R., 3 All. 382. [Dec. 22, 1880.]

Per Spankie, J.—An order refusing an application to file a private award in Court is appealable as a decree. Jokhum Rai v. Bucho Rai (N. W. P. H. C. R. 1868, p. 353) and Hussaini Bibi v. Mohsin Khan (I. L. R., 1 All. 156) impugned and distinguished: Vishun Bhau Joshi v. Ravji Bhau Joshi (I. L. R., 3 Bom. 18) distinguished. Per Stuart, C.J.—An order refusing an application to file a private award in Court on grounds not mentioned in ss. 520 and 521 is a decree, and appealable as such.—Janaki Tewari v. Gayan Tewari, I. L. R., 3 All. 427. [Jan. 11, 1881.]

THE lower Appellate Court (Subordinate Judge) decided on appeal by the defendant from the decree of the Court of first instance (Munsif) that the Court of first instance had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit, as the value of the subject-matter of the suit exceeded the pecuniary limits of its jurisdiction; and ordered that "the appellant's appeal be decreed, the decision of the Munsif be reversed, and the record of the case be sent to the Munsif to return the plaint to the plaintiff for presentation to the proper Court." The plaintiff appealed to the High Court from such order as an order returning a plaint to be presented to the proper Court. Held that such order could not be regarded as one to which art. 6 of s. 588, Act X. of 1877, was applicable. That relates to orders returning plaints for amendment or to be presented to the proper Court passed by a Court of first instance, and not to an order by an Appellate Court upon an appeal to it from the decree of a Court of first instance on general grounds. The plaintiff's proper course was to have preferred a second appeal.—Bindeshri Chaubey and others v. Nanda, I. L. R., 3 All. 456. [Jan. 28, 1881.]

WHEREA a Judge, after the defendant's written statement was put in, framed certain preliminary issues, and decided them, directing part of plaintiff's claim to be dismissed, and part to be tried on the merits (which trial might necessitate the taking of an account from defendant), held that no appeal lies from such an order either on the part of the plaintiff because the Civil Procedure Code only allows an appeal against a portion of the decision when there has been a decision relating to the disposal of the entire suit, or on the part of defendant inasmuch as there had been no final order to take an account.—Udri Rájah Rája Velugoti Kumára Yáohama Náýadu Bahadur, Panch Hazar Munsubdár Rája of Venkatagiri v. Mahommed Rahimtulla Sahib, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 13. [Mar. 28, 1881.]

AN order made under s. 37, Bengal Rent Act (Beng. Act VIII. of 1869), is a decree within the meaning of the definition contained in the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), and an appeal lies therefrom under the provisions of s. 540.—Brojendro Coomar Roy v. Krishno Coomar Ghosa, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 684. [July 25, 1881.]

UNDER s. 540 of the Civil Procedure Code an appeal lies from decrees passed ex parte. If a defendant appears at the first hearing, and files a written statement, he should not be placed ex parte.—Anantharáma Patter v. Madhava Paniker, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 264. [Sep. 8, 1881.]

AT the hearing of a suit, a party, though he had sufficient warning of what was necessary, did not take the proper steps to cause the production of the documentary, and only admissible evidence of a material fact which had to be proved by him; and the decision was against him. The record of another proceeding would, it was said, have supplied this evidence; and an application had been previously made, on which the order of the Judge was that "the matter would be decided when the case was tried, and the record would be sent for, if necessary." No further application to the Court was made, and no attempt to supply this evidence. Held that if there had been, as there might have been, an oversight by the party in not calling the attention of the Judge to the above order, and in not tendering the evidence, there had been no omission on the Judge's part affording ground for appeal.—Chandi Churn Shashmal v. Durga Churn Mirdua, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 260. [Mar. 17, 1882.]

HELD by Stuart, C.J., and Straight and Tyrrell, JJ. (Oldfield and Brodhurst, JJ., dissenting), that a defendant against whom a decree has been passed ex parte, and who has not adopted the remedy provided by s. 108 of the Civil Procedure Code, cannot appeal from such decree under the general provisions of s. 540.—Lal Singh v. Kunjan, I. L. R., 4 All. 387. [April 27, 1882.]

PER Oldfield, J.—When an original decree is amended under s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code, it, as amended, is the decree in the suit; and an appeal, therefore, lies from it under the provisions of s. 540, when the validity of the amendment can be questioned. The matter of amending a decree under s. 206 does not by itself constitute a "case" within the meaning of s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code, but forms part of the proceedings in the suit in which the decree is made. Held therefore, per Oldfield, J., that, where an original decree, which was appealable, was amended by the Court of first instance, under s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code, the High Court had no power to revise such amendment under s. 622 of the Code. Per Mahmood, J.—An order passed under s. 206 amending a decree is a separate adjudication, and is not merely a part of the original decree, and cannot alter its date, and such an order is not appealable under s. 588 of the Code. Such an order, therefore, can be revised by the High Court under s. 622.—Raghunath Bas v. Raj Kumar, I. L. R., 7 All. 276. [Dec. 22, 1884.]

IN a suit to obtain possession of certain property, and to set aside a deed called a deed of endowment (waqf nama), on the ground that the defendant had fraudulently obtained its execution, the defendant pleaded (i) that the deed was a valid one, and (ii) that she was in possession of the property in satisfaction of a dower-debt, and her possession could not be disturbed so long as the debt remained unsatisfied. The Court of first instance held that the deed was invalid, but that the defendant was entitled to remain in possession of the property till her dower-debt was satisfied, and the Court passed a decree which merely dismissed the suit, without embodying the finding as to the deed. On appeal by the plaintiff to the District Judge, the defendant filed objections under s. 561 of the Civil Procedure Code in regard to the first Court's decision that the deed of endowment was invalid. The Judge dismissed the plaintiff's appeal, affirming the finding as to dower, and, refusing to decide the question of the validity of the deed, as being unnecessary for disposal of the claim, disallowed the defendant's objections. The defendant appealed to the High Court. Held by the Full Bench (Oldfield and Mahmood, JJ., dissenting) that if a decree is, upon the face of it, entirely in favour of a party to a suit, such decree being the thing which by law is made appealable, and nothing else, that party has no right of appeal therefrom. If, in the judgment of which such decree is the formal expression, findings have been recorded upon some issues against that party, and he desires to have formal effect given to them by the decree, so as to allow of his filing objections thereto under s. 561 of the Civil Procedure Code, or of appealing therefrom under s. 540, he must take steps under s. 206 to have the decree properly brought into conformity with the judgment, so that there may be matter on the face of it to show that something has been decided against him; but if he fails to take this course, the decree, though in general terms, will stand good as finally deciding the issues raised by the pleadings upon which the ultimate determination of the cause and the decree itself rested. The findings in a judgment upon matters which subsequently turn out to be immaterial to the grounds upon which a suit is finally disposed of, as to the plaintiff's right to any portion of the relief sought by him as declared by the decree, amount to no more than obiter dicta, and do not constitute a final decision of the kind contemplated by s. 13 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held also that, in the present case, the Judge was right in holding that the question as to the validity or otherwise of the deed of endowment was wholly immaterial. The judgment of Straight, J., in Lachman Singh v. Mohan (I. L. R., 2 All. 497), approved and followed. Per Oldfield, J., contra, that the decree, to agree with the judgment and fulfil the requirements of s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code, should contain the material points for determination arising out of the claim and material for the decision thereon; that if this has not been done, the defect is a good ground of appeal, notwithstanding that the decree, on its face, may be altogether in favour of the appellant, and notwithstanding that he may not have applied for amendment of the decree under s. 206, or for review of judgment; and that, in the present case, the defect in the decree would afford a good ground of appeal. Per Mahmood, J., that inasmuch as the provisions of s. 13 of the Civil Procedure Code relate as well as to the trial of issues as to the trial of suits, and in the present case the validity of the deed was a matter directly and substantially in issue between the parties, and was adjudicated upon, the finding of the first Court upon that issue was not a mere obiter dictum, but would be binding upon the defendant as res judicata, notwithstanding the fact that the suit against her was dismissed on the ground that she held possession of the property in lieu of dower; that whatever has the force of res judicata is necessarily appealable; that the word "from" as used in s. 540 or s. 584, and the expression "objection to the decree" in s. 561, refer not only to matters existing, upon the face of the decree, but also to those which should have existed, but do not exist there; and that the defendant in the present case was aggrieved or injured by the omission in the decree of the first Court, and was therefore entitled to file objections to it, and, for the same reason, to appeal to the High Court from the decree of the lower Appellate Court. Also per Mahmood, J., that it was doubtful whether the reliefs contemplated by ss. 206 and 623 were open to the defendant; but that, even conceding that she ought to have sought her remedy under either of those sections, her neglect to do so did not make her incapable of obtaining the same result by the exercise of her right of appeal. Anusuyabai v. Sakkaram Pandurang (I. L. R., 7 Bom. 484), Man Singh v. Narayan Das (I. L. R., 1 All. 480), Mohau Lal v. Ram Dayal (I. L. R., 2 All. 849), Mumtaz Khan v. Phadu Buldia (I. L. R., 6 Cal. 319), and Pan Kuar v. Bhagwant Kumar (N. W. P., H. C. R., 1874, p. 19), referred to.—Jamaitunnissa v. Lutfunnissa, I. L. R., 7 All. 606. [Feb. 21, 1885.]

THE plaintiff's claim to redeem certain lands was rejected by a subordinate Judge on 21st December 1882. On the 1st February 1883, the plaintiff, who was an agriculturist, presented an application for review to the Special Judge appointed under the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act. His application was rejected by that Judge, who was of opinion that the plaintiff's remedy lay in an appeal to the District Judge. The plaintiff was not informed of the result of his application to the Special Judge until the following May, at which time the Court of the District Judge was closed for vacation. On the 3rd June 1883, he presented an appeal on the opening of the District Court. The District Judge dismissed the appeal as barred by limitation. On appeal to the High Court, a preliminary objection being taken that a second appeal would not lie, held that the order of the District Judge, having the force of a decree within the meaning of s. 2 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), was appealable under s. 540 of the Code. Order discharged under the circumstances, the District Judge having given no reasons for making the order.—Raghu Nath Gopal v. Nilu Nathaji, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 452. [Mar. 31, 1885.]

POVERTY is not "sufficient cause," within the meaning of s. 5 of the Limitation Act, (XV. of 1877), for admitting an appeal after the ordinary period of limitation prescribed therefor has expired.—Moshaulah v. Ahmedullah, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 78. [Feb. 11, 1886.]

Held by the Full Bench (Straight, Offg. C.J., and Tyrrell, J., expressing no opinion), that a respondent in whose absence the appeal has been heard ex parte, and against whom judgment has been given, may prefer a second appeal from the decree under the provisions of s. 584 of the Civil Procedure Code, and his remedy is not limited to an application under s. 560 to the Court which passed the decree to re-hear the appeal. Ramjas v. Baijnath (I. L. R., 2 All. 567) approved. Per Oldfield, J.—There is a distinction between the case of a defendant in a Court of first instance and that of a respondent in an Appellate Court not appearing with reference to ss. 108 and 560 of the Code. Lal Singh v. Kunjan (I. L. R., 4 All. 387) and Ramshet Bachaset v. Balkishna Ababhat (6 Bom. H. C. R., 161) referred to. Per Mahmood, J.—The distinction is one of detail merely, and not of principle. Lal Singh v. Kunjan (I. L. R., 4 All. 387) dissented from. Zain-ul-ab-din Khan v. Ahmad Raza Khan (I. L. R., 2 All. 67; I. L. R. 5. Ind. Ap. 233), Jamait-un-nissa v. Luft-un-nissa (I. L. R., 7. All. 606), Askruft-un-nissa v. Leliareaux (I. L. R., 8 Cal. 272), Luckhmidas Vitthaladas v. Ebrahim Oosman (I. L. R., 2 Bom. 644), Anantharama v. Madhava Penikar (I. L. R., 3 Mad. 264), and Modahatta's Case (I. L. R., 2 Mad. 767) referred to. Also per Mahmood, J.—Where two procedures or two remedies are provided by statute, one of them must not be taken as operating in derogation of the other.—Ajudhin Prasad v. Bahmukand, I. L. R., 8 All. 354. [May-10, 1886.]

S. 5 of the Limitation Act gives a discretion to a Court to admit an appeal filed out of time. A valued his suit at Rs. 18,000, which was reduced to less than Rs. 5,000 by the Court of first instance at Rajshahye. A decree, dated the 20th December 1883, was given against the defendant, who applied for copies on the 3rd of February, and the decree was ready on the 7th. The defendant was apparently under the impression that the appeal would lie to the High Court; but on the 16th of March a letter was despatched by his Calcutta agent informing him that he was mistaken, and that the appeal lay to the District Judge. This letter reached Rajshahye on the 17th, and the appeal was filed on the 23rd of March. Held that, under the circumstances, the Court might admit the appeal in the exercise of its discretion under s. 5 of the Limitation Act.—Huro Chunder Roy v. Surnamoyi, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 266. [May 31, 1886.]

AN appeal from the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon to the High Court is an appeal under the Civil Procedure Code, and must be made within the time prescribed by art. 156, sch. ii. of the Limitation Act.—Aza Mahomed Humadani v. Cohen, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 221. [July 22, 1886.]

THE proviso in s. 49 of the Burma Courts Act amounts to an express declaration that it is a condition precedent to the right of appeal from the Recorder's Court that the suit shall be one which has an amount or value capable of being estimated in money, and that that amount or value must fall within certain specified limits. A suit for the restitution of conjugal rights is incapable of being valued, and no appeal therefore in such a suit will lie under the Burma Courts Act from a decision of the Recorder of Rangoon.—Golam Rahman v. Fatima Bibi, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 232. [July 26, 1886.]

541. The appeal shall be made in the form of a memorandum in writing

Form of appeal.	presented by the appellant, and shall be accompanied by a copy of the decree appealed against and (unless the Appellate Court dispenses therewith) of the judgment on which it is founded.
What to accompany memorandum.

Such memorandum shall set forth, concisely and under distinct heads,	the grounds of objection to the decree appealed against, without any argument or narrative; and such grounds shall be numbered consecutively.

AN order made under Act X. of 1877, s. 409, refusing leave to sue as a pauper, is subject to review under s. 623. The provisions of s. 413 do not affect the right of a person against whom such order has been made to obtain a review. A petitioner applying for such review must file a copy of the order of which he seeks a review, together with a memorandum of objections (ss. 541 and 625).—Adarji Edulji v. Manikji Edulji, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 414. [July 12, 1880.]

542. The appellant shall not, without the leave of the Court, urge or

Appellant confined to grounds set out.	be heard in support of any other ground of objections; but the Court, in deciding the appeal, shall not be confined to the grounds set forth by the appellant:

Provided that the Court shall not rest its decision on any ground not set forth by the appellant, unless the respondent has had sufficient opportunity of contesting the case on that ground.

NOT only may the plea of res judicata, though not taken in the memorandum of appeal, be entertained in second appeal, under the provisions of s. 542 of Act X. of 1877, but even when such plea has not been urged in either of the lower Courts or in the memorandum of appeal, if raised in the second appeal, it must be considered and determined either upon the record as it stands, or after a remand for finding of fact.—Muhammad Ismail v. Chatter Singh, I. L. R., 4 All. 69, [July 11, 1881.]

Held by Pearson, J., and Straight, J. (Spankie, J., dissenting), as follows: That, in disposing of a second appeal, the High Court is competent, under s. 542 of Act X. of 1877, to consider the question whether the plaintiff has any cause of action or not, although such question has not been raised by the defendant-appellant in the Courts below or in his memorandum of second appeal, but is raised for the first time at the hearing of such appeal. That the cause of action of a person claiming the right of pre-emption in the case of a conditional sale arises when the conditional sale takes place, and not when it becomes absolute; and therefore, where a conditional sale took place in 1867, and it had become absolute a person sued to enforce his right of pre-emption in respect of the property sold, basing his claim upon a special agreement made in the interval between the date of the conditional sale and the date that it became absolute, and alleging that his cause of action arose on the latter date, that the suit was not maintainable, the plaintiff having no right of pre-emption at the time of the conditional sale.—Lachman Prasad v. Bahadur Singh, I. L. R., 2 All. 384. [May 7, 1883.]

543. If the memorandum of appeal be not drawn up in the manner

Rejection of amendment of memorandum. hereinbefore prescribed, it may be rejected, or be returned to the appellant for the purpose of being amended within a time to be fixed by the Court, or be amended then and there.

When the Court rejects under this section any memorandum, it shall record the reasons for such rejection.

When a memorandum of appeal is amended under this section, the Judge, or such officer as he appoints in this behalf, shall attest the amendment by his signature.

544. Where there are more plaintiffs or more defendants than one in

One of several plaintiffs or defendants may obtain reversal of whole decree if it proceed on ground common to all. a suit, and the decree appealed against proceeds on any ground common to all the plaintiffs or to all the defendants, any one of the plaintiffs or of the defendants may appeal against the whole decree, and thereupon the Appellate Court may reverse or modify the decree in favour of all the plaintiffs or defendants, as the case may be.

THE Court of Appeal has power under Act VIII. of 1859, s. 337 (corresponding with Act X. of 1877, s. 544), to draw up what would be a fair decree as regards all the parties to a suit, although some of them may not have appealed.—Joykisto Cowar v. Nittyanund Nundy, I. L. R., 3 Cal. 738. [May 8, 1878.] But see 2 P. C. R. 766 (Mussamat Mul-leeka v. Mussamat Jumeela, 11 B. L. R. 375; I. L. R. I. A. Sup. 135). [Dec. 21, 1872.]

S having mortgaged land to K as security for a debt, sold it to V, who undertook to pay the debt. K alleging that C had undertaken either to make V pay the debt or to execute a mortgage of his own land to secure its repayment, and that V had dispossessed him, sued S, V, and C to recover the debt by sale of the land mortgaged, mesne-profits from V, and costs from S, V, and C. The District Munsif decreed payment against S; mesne-profits, and, in default of payment by S, a sale of the land against V; and costs against S, V, and C. V and C appealed against this decree. The Subordinate Judge found that the debt had been paid, and held that, even if the debt had not been paid, K had no cause of action against V or S, but, if at all, against C, and dismissed the suit as against V. The Subordinate Judge also held that he had no jurisdiction to interfere with the decree against S, and saw no reason to interfere with the decree against C. S appealed against this decree. Held that, even if S was not entitled to appeal in order to have the decree against him set aside, the error of the Subordinate Judge could be corrected under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure by a direction to exercise the discretionary power given by s. 544 of the said Code.—Seshadri v. Krishnan, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 192. [Nov. 17, 1884.]

*Of Staying and Executing Decrees under Appeal.545. Execution of a decree shall not be stayed by reason only of an Execution of decree not stayed solely by reason of appeal. . . . appeal having been preferred against the decree ; but the Appellate Court may, for sufficient cause, order the execution to be stayed :

If an application be made for stay of execution of an appealable decree

Stay of execution of appealable decree before time for appealing has expired. . . . before the expiry of the time allowed for appealing therefrom, the Court which passed the decree may, for sufficient cause, order the execution to be stayed :

Provided that no order shall be made under this section unless the Court making it is satisfied—

(a) that substantial loss may result to the party applying for stay of execution unless the order is made :

(b) that the application has been made without unreasonable delay ; and

(c) that security has been given by the applicant for the due performance of such decree or order as may ultimately be binding upon him.

THE present applicant having taken out execution of a decree held by him, and the judgment-debtor having appealed to the District Court, the two opponents became sureties, under s. 338 of Act VIII. of 1859, that the judgment-debtor would "obey and fulfil all such orders and decrees as should be given against him in appeal," and, in default of his so doing, they bound themselves "to pay jointly and severally, at the order of the Court, all such sums as the Court should, to the extent of Rs. 812-8-0, adjudge." Held that the obligation of the sureties to fulfil the decree of the Appellate Court was not confined to the first decree of that Court, but extended to the final decree which it passed upon the case being remanded by the High Court in special appeal.—Shivlál Khubchand v. Apáji Bhivráv, I. L. R., 2 Bom. 654. [July 11, 1878.]

S. 283 does not constitute an exception to the procedure laid down by s. 545. Where property has been released from attachment under s. 280, and subsequently declared liable to attachment by a decree against which an appeal is pending, a sale of such property before the final result of the appeal is not illegal by virtue of the provisions of s. 283.—Fathula v. Muniyappa, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 98. [Oct. 13, 1882.]

THE Court which passed a certain decree ordered execution thereof to be stayed pending appeal, on the debtor's furnishing security to the amount of Rs. 70,000, under the provisions of s. 545 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The debtor objected to the amount of security required, and appealed to the High Court on that ground. The decree-holder contended that no appeal lay. Held that the order was appealable. Held also on the facts that the security required was excessive.—Udayadeta Deb v. Gregson, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 624. [Feb. 16, 1886.]

S. 253 of the Civil Procedure Code contemplates a suit pending at the time security is given for performance of the decree, and does not apply to a case where the litigation in the Courts of first instance and of first appeal has ended, and no second appeal has been instituted in the High Court when security is given. The holder of a decree affirmed on appeal by the District Court took out execution to recover costs awarded. Costs were deposited by the judgment-debtor and paid to the decree-holder, and a surety gave a bond by which he undertook to refund the amount to the judgment-debtor in the event of the latter succeeding in appeal to the High Court and of the decree-holder failing to repay him. The judgment-debtor subsequently filed an appeal to the High Court, and was successful ; and he then applied in the execution-department to recover the amount from the surety. Held that the Court executing the High Court's decree had no jurisdiction to execute it against the surety.—Hardeo Das v. Zaman Khan, I. L. R., 8 All. 639. [Aug. 3, 1886.]

546. If an order is made for the execution of a decree against which

Security in case of order for execution of decree appealed against. . . . an appeal is pending, the Court which passed the decree shall, on sufficient cause being shown by the appellant, require security to be given for the restitution of any property which may be taken in execution of the decree, or for the payment of the value of such property, and for the due performance of the decree or order of the Appellate Court, or the Appellate Court may, for like cause, direct the Court which passed the decree to take such security.

And when an order has been passed for the sale of immoveable property in execution of a decree for money, and an appeal is pending against such decree, the sale shall, on the application of the judgment-debtor, be stayed until the appeal is disposed of, on such terms as to giving security or otherwise as the Court which passed the decree thinks fit.

WHERE an order, requiring the decree-holder to give security within three days is made under s. 546 by the Judge of the Court in which the decree was passed, and in which the execution is pending, such order is appealable as a decree under the provisions of s. 2, and s. 244, cl. c.—Luchmoeput Singh v. Sitanath Doss, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 477. [Mar. 8, 1882.]

S. 253 of the Civil Procedure Code contemplates a suit pending at the time security is given for performance of the decree, and does not apply to a case where the litigation in the Courts of first instance and of first appeal has ended, and no second appeal has been instituted in the High Court when security is given. The holder of a decree affirmed on appeal by the District Court took out execution to recover costs awarded. Costs were deposited by the judgment-debtor and paid to the decree-holder, and a surety gave a bond by which he undertook to refund the amount to the judgment-debtor in the event of the latter succeeding in appeal to the High Court and of the decree-holder failing to repay him. The judgment-debtor subsequently filed an appeal to the High Court, and was successful: and he then applied in the execution-department to recover the amount from the surety. Held that the Court executing the High Court's decree had no jurisdiction to execute it against the surety.—Hardeo Das v. Zaman Khan, I. L. R., 8 All. 639. [Aug. 3, 1886.]

547. No such security as is mentioned in sections 545 and 546 shall be required from the Secretary of State for India in Council, or (when Government has undertaken the defence of the suit) from any public officer sued in respect of an act alleged to be done by him in his official capacity.

Registry of memorandum of appeal? Court or the proper officer of that Court shall endorse thereon the date of presentation, and shall register the appeal in a book to be kept for the purpose.

Such book shall be called the Register of Register of Appeals. Appeals.

549. The Appellate Court may, at its discretion, either before the re-

Appellate Court may require appellant to give security for costs. spondent is called upon to appear and answer, or afterwards on the application of the respondent, demand from the appellant security for the costs of the appeal, or of the original suit, or of both:

Provided that the Court shall demand such security in all cases in which

When appellant resides out of British India. the appellant is residing out of British India, and is not possessed of any sufficient immoveable property within British India independent of the property (if any) to which the appeal relates.

If such security be not furnished within such time as the Court orders, the Court shall reject the appeal.

S. 549 of the Civil Procedure Code applies to all appeals, including appeals in forma pauperis.—Seshayyagár v. Jain-ul-awadín, 4 Ind. Jur. 507.

WHERE the Appellate Court demands from an appellant security for costs, the Court may extend the time within which it orders such security to be furnished: but if no application is made for such extension of time, and such security is not paid within the time entered, it is imperative on the Court, under Act X. of 1877, s. 549, to reject the appeal.—Haidri Bai v. East India Railway Company, I. L. R., 1 All. 687. [June 27, 1878.]

A SUITOR in forma pauperis may be called on to give security for costs under s. 549 of the Civil Procedure Code, but very special grounds must be shown to support such an application.—Nusseruddeen Biswas v. Ujjal Biswas (17 Sutr. W.R. 68) dissented from.—Seshayyaugár and another v. Jainulavadin and another, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 66. [April 21, 1880.]

S. 549 of the Civil Procedure Code contemplates an order by which some ascertained amount of security is required. The last paragraph of the section seems to contemplate that, on failure to furnish security within the time fixed, an order for rejecting the appeal should be obtained from the Court that gave the order to furnish security. Upon the application of the respondent in a second appeal pending before the High Court, an order was passed requiring the appellant to furnish security for the costs of the appeal, and to lodge such security at any time before the hearing. This order purported to be made under s. 549 of the Civil Procedure Code, but neither the application nor the order stated the amount of the security required. At the hearing of the appeal, no security having been lodged, the respondent objected that, with reference to the terms of s. 549, the Court had no option but to dismiss the appeal. Held that the objection had no force, no such order as was contemplated by s. 549 having been made. Held also that the proper course was to have applied to the Judge who passed the order for security, at any time before the case came on for hearing for the rejection of the appeal, and that it was too late at the hearing to ask the Court to reject the appeal.—Thakur Das v. Kishori Lal, I. L. R., 9 All. 164. [Dec. 16, 1884.]

THE proper construction of s. 549 of the Civil Procedure Code is that, where an appellant has been ordered to furnish security within a certain time, and that order has not been complied with, and no application has been made to extend the time within the period allowed, the Court is bound to reject the appeal.—Budri Narain v. Sheo Koer, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 716. [June 2, 1885.]

HELD by the Full Bench (Tytrell, J., dubitante), without laying down any general rule by which the exercise of the discretion conferred by s. 549 of the Civil Procedure Code should be governed, that the mere fact of the poverty of an appellant, standing by itself, and without reference to any general facts of the case under appeal, ought not to be considered sufficient alone to warrant his being required to furnish security for costs.—Jiwai Ali Beg v. Basa Mal, I. L. R., 8 All. 203. [Feb. 13, 1886.]

AN appeal, although it may have been rejected by the Appellate Court under s. 549 of the Code of Civil Procedure, upon failure by the appellant to furnish security demanded under that section, may be restored, on sufficient grounds, at the Court's discretion. The High Court having apparently treated an appeal as though, after rejection of it under the above section, a petition tendering security to the amount demanded, and asking restoration of the appeal, was not entertainable, and could not be considered, held by the Judicial Committee that restoration was within the Court's discretion, and that there were grounds for it, upon the appellant's giving approved security within such time as the Court might fix.—Balwant Singh v. Daulat Singh, I. L. R., 8 All. 315. [Feb. 17, 1886.]

Appellate Court to give notice to Court whose decree appealed against.

550. When the memorandum of appeal is registered, the Appellate Court shall send notice of the appeal to the Court against whose decree the appeal is made.

If the appeal be from a Court the records of which are not deposited in the Appellate Court, the Court receiving such notice shall send, with all practicable despatch, all material papers in the suit, or such papers as may be specially called for by the Appellate Court.

Either party may apply in writing to the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, specifying any of such papers in such Court of which he requires copies to be made; and copies of such papers shall be made at the expense of the applicant, and shall be deposited accordingly.

Copies of exhibits in Court whose decree appealed against.

551. The Appellate Court may, if he thinks fit, after fixing a time for hearing the appellant or his pleader, and hearing him accordingly if he appears at such time, confirm the decision of the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, without sending notice of the appeal to such Court, and without serving notice on the respondent or his pleader; but in such case the confirmation shall be notified to the same Court.

Power to confirm decision of lower Court without sending it notice. The plaintiff sued to recover possession of certain immoveable property sold to him by the first defendant, a Hindu widow. The second defendant answered that his father and the first defendant's husband were undivided brothers, and that, as a childless widow, she has no right to sell the property. Both the lower Courts upheld the sale as absolute, on the ground that she was competent to make it as widow of a separate Hindu. The District Judge heard the appeal ex parte under Act X. of 1877, s. 551. Held that the decrees of the lower Courts were unsustainable, as they did not contain the limitation pointed out above; and remanded the case for the trial of the issue whether there were any such special circumstances as would justify the absolute sale by the first defendant to the plaintiff; and that the District Judge ought not to have disposed of the appeal ex parte under Act X. of 1877, s. 551.—Gurunāth Nilkanth v. Krishnāji Govind, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 462. [Feb. 16, 1880.]

On an appeal from a decision, in a civil suit, of the Assistant Commissioner of Ajmere to the Commissioner of Ajmere, the latter, feeling doubtful on a question of the nature specified in s. 17 of the Ajmere Court's Reg. I. of 1877, referred such question, under s. 36 of that Regulation, to the Chief Commissioner of Ajmere and Mairwara. The Chief Commissioner dealt with the case as prescribed in s. 37 of that Regulation, and returned it to the Commissioner, who dismissed the suit in accordance with the Chief Commissioner's judgment. The plaintiff preferred an appeal to the Chief Commissioner from the Commissioner's decision. The Chief Commissioner did not make any order on the memorandum of appeal admitting it, or directing that it should be registered, or that the respondent should be summoned, or that the appellant should appear on a certain day under s. 551, Act X. of 1877, but issued a notice to the appellant's counsel to appear on a certain day. The appellant's counsel appeared on that day, and the Chief Commissioner intimated that he was acting under Act X. of 1877, s. 551. The appellant's counsel then proceeded to address the Chief Commissioner, and was heard for some time, and then stopped, in consequence of the Chief Commissioner resolving to refer to the High Court the question whether the appeal from the Commissioner's decision lay to him or to Her Majesty in Council. The Chief Commissioner subsequently referred such a question to the High Court. Held by the Full Bench, on a reference by a Division Bench before which the Chief Commissioner's reference came, that such question arose "in the trial of an appeal" within the meaning of the Ajmere Court's Reg. I. of 1877, s. 21, and was properly referred to the High Court. Held by the Division Bench that the appeal from the Commissioner's decision lay, in this particular case, not to the Chief Commissioner, but to her Majesty in Council.—Thakur of Masuda v. Widows of the Thakur of Nandwara, I. L. R., 2 All. 819 (F. B.). [April 5, 1880.]

THE order of adjudication made under s. 551 of the Civil Procedure Code is a decree, and the procedure authorized under that section does not dispense with the necessity of drawing up a judgment.—Royal Reddi v. Linga Reddi, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 1. [Feb. 23, 1881.]

552. The Appellate Court, unless where it confirms, under section 551, the decision of the lower Court, shall fix a day for hearing the appeal.

Such day shall be fixed with reference to the current business of the Court, the place of residence of the respondent, and the time necessary for the service of the notice of appeal, so as to allow the respondent sufficient time to appear and answer the appeal on such day.

553. Notice of the day so fixed shall be stuck up in the appellate Court-house, and a like notice shall be sent by the Appellate Court to the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, and shall be served on the respondent or on his pleader in the Appellate Court in the manner provided in Publication and service of notice of day for hearing appeal.

Hearing appeal ex parte

If the appellant attends, and the respondent does not attend, the appeal shall be heard ex parte in his absence.

WHERE a suit has been instituted under Act VIII. of 1859, but decided at a time when Act X. of 1877 had come into operation, and an appeal is presented against such decision, s. 3 of the latter Act distinctly indicates that such an appeal is to be governed by the law of procedure in force at the date of the presentation of the appeal. Where, therefore, an appeal, presented when Act X. of 1877 was in force, has been dismissed under s. 556 of that Act, the appellant may apply for its re-admission under s. 558; and if such re-admission is refused, he is entitled to an appeal under s. 558.—Elahi Buksh v. Marachow, I. L. R., 4 Cal. 825. [Feb. 19, 1879.]

WHEN an appeal is dismissed, under Act X. of 1877, s. 556, for the appellant's default, the order dismissing it is not appealable.—Ahmad Buksh v. Gobindi, I. L. R., 2 All. 216. [Mar. 27, 1879.]

AN order under s. 556 of Act X. of 1877, dismissing an appeal for the appellant's default, is not a "decree" within the meaning of s. 2, and is not appealable.—Mukhi v. Fakir, I. L. R., 3 All. 382. [Dec. 22, 1880.]

AN Appellate Court, the appellant not attending in person or by his pleader, instead of dismissing the appeal for default, as provided by s. 556 of Act X. of 1877, proceeded, in contravention of the provisions of that law, to dispose of the appeal on the merits, and dismissed it. The appellant preferred a second appeal to the High Court, contending that the Appellate Court had acted contrary to law. Held that the Appellate Court had so acted, and its decision could only be treated as a dismissal for default, and that, so treating it, the proper and only course open to the appellant was to have applied under s. 558 for the re-admission of his appeal, and under these circumstances the second appeal would not lie. Nand Ram v. Muhammad Baksh (I. L. R., 2 All. 616) followed.—Kanahi Lal and others v. Naulat Rai, I. L. R., 3 All. 519. [Feb. 10, 1881.]

WHERE, when an appeal is called on, the pleader is not absent, but is unprepared to go on with the case, the dismissal is a dismissal for default within s. 556 of Act XIV. of 1882, and the appeal can therefore be re-admitted under s. 558. Buldeo Misser v. Ahmed Hossein (15 W. B. 143) followed.—Shibendra Narain Chowdhuri v. Kinoo Ram Dass, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 605. [Jan. 19, 1886.]

IN an appeal before an Appellate Court, the appellant did not attend in person or by pleader, and the Court, instead of dismissing the appeal for default, tried and dismissed it upon the merits. Subsequently, the appellant applied to the Court, under s. 558 of the Civil Procedure Code, to re-admit the appeal, explaining her absence when the appeal was called on for hearing. The Court rejected the application, on the ground that the appeal had been decided on the merits, and reasons had been recorded for its dismissal which there were no apparent grounds for setting aside. Held that the Court should have dismissed the appeal for default, and it was illegal to try it on the merits, and the judgment was consequently a nullity, the existence of which was no bar to the re-admission of the appeal.—Zainab Begam v. Manawar Husain Khan, I. L. R., 8 All. 272. [April 27, 1886.]

557. If, on the day so fixed, or any other day, to which the hearing may be adjourned, it is found that the notice to the respondent has not been served in consequence of the failure of the appellant to deposit, within the period fixed by the Court, the sum required to defray the costs of issuing the notice, the Court may order that the appeal be dismissed :

Provided that no such order shall be passed, although the notice has not been served upon the respondent, if on the day fixed for hearing the appeal the respondent appears in person, or by a pleader, or by a duly authorized agent.

558. If an appeal be dismissed under section 556 or section 557, the appellant may apply to the Appellate Court for the re-admission of the appeal ; and if it be proved that he was prevented by any sufficient cause from attending when the appeal was called on for hearing or from depositing the sum so required, the Court may re-admit the appeal on such terms as to costs or otherwise as the Court thinks fit to impose upon him.

WHERE a suit has been instituted under Act VIII. of 1859, but decided at a time when Act X. of 1877 had come into operation, and an appeal is presented against such decision, s. 3 of the latter Act distinctly indicates that such an appeal is to be governed by the law of procedure in force at the date of the presentation of the appeal. Marachow*, I. L. R., 4 Cal. 825. [Feb. 19, 1879.]

AN order under s. 556 of Act X. of 1877, dismissing an appeal for the appellant's default, is not a "decree" within the meaning of s. 2, and is not appealable.—Mukhi v. Fakir, I. L. R., 3 All. 382. [Dec. 22, 1880.]

AN Appellate Court, the appellant not attending, in person or by his pleader, instead of dismissing the appeal for default, as provided by s. 556 of Act X. of 1877, proceeded, in contravention of the provision of that law, to dispose of the appeal on the merits, and dismissed it. The appellant preferred a second appeal in the High Court, contending that the Appellate Court had acted contrary to law. Held that the Appellate Court had so acted, and its decision could only be treated as a dismissal for default, and that, so treating it, the proper and only course open to the appellant was to have applied under s. 558 for the re-admission of his appeal, and under these circumstances the second appeal would not lie. *Nand Ram v. ON an application under s. 558 of the Code of Civil Procedure for the re-admission of an appeal which had been decided ex parte against the applicant, it appeared that he had been misled by reason of the appeal having been transferred from the file of one Court to another, no notice of the transfer having been given to him by the pleaders in the case. Held that, under the circumstances, the applicant was entitled to have the appeal re-admitted.—Narain Singh v. Bherab Churun Panda and another, 8 O. L. R. 350. [Mar. 3, 1881.]

WHERE, when an appeal is called on, the pleader is not absent, but is unprepared to go on with the case, the dismissal is a dismissal for default within s. 556 of Act XIV. of 1882, and the appeal can therefore be re-admitted under s. 558. *Buldeo Misser v. 559. If it appear to the Court at the hearing that any person who was a party to the suit in the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, but who has not been made a party to the appeal, is interested in the result of the appeal, the Court may adjourn the hearing to a future day to be fixed by the Court, and direct that such person be made a respondent.

Power to adjourn hearing, and direct persons appearing interested to be made respondents.

THE discretionary power of directing a person to be made a respondent, conferred on the Appellate Court by s. 559 of the Civil Procedure Code, is not limited by any provision in the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877)—Manickya Moyee v. Boroda Prosad Mookerjee, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 355. [July 31, 1882.]

THE Court of first instance gave the plaintiff in a suit for money a decree against the defendant B, exempting the defendants A and H. B appealed, making the plaintiff the respondent to the appeal. The plaintiff did not appeal from the decree of the Court of first instance in respect of the exemption of A and H. The Appellate Court made A a respondent to the appeal under s. 559 of the Civil Procedure Code, and, exempting B, gave the plaintiff a decree against A. Held that, inasmuch as s. 559 does not empower an Appellate Court virtually to make an appeal for an appellant, who has refrained from availing himself of his privileges under the law, by introducing for him other respondents than those he has included in his petition of appeal, and it could not be said that A was "interested in the result of the appeal," as, having the unappealed decree of the Court of first instance behind him, his position was secure, the Appellate Court had improperly made A a respondent to the appeal, and given a decree against him.—Atma Ram v. Balkishev, I. L. R., 5 All. 266. [Jan. 16, 1883.]

560. When an appeal is heard ex parte in the absence of the respondent, and judgment is given against him, he may apply to the Appellate Court to re-hear the appeal; and if he satisfies the Court that the notice was not duly served, or that he was prevented by sufficient cause from attending when the appeal was called on for hearing, the Court may re-hear the appeal on such terms as to costs or otherwise as the Court thinks fit to impose upon him.

Re-hearing on application of respondent against whom ex parte decree made.

A SECOND appeal does lie from an ex parte judgment without requiring the appellant to resort to a re-hearing under s. 560. S. 119 of the old Code prohibited an appeal from an ex parte judgment; but there is no corresponding section to it in the new Code. It is true that s. 560 enables a respondent to move for a re-hearing when the appeal is heard ex parte, provided he can satisfactorily account for his omission to appear at the hearing; but this section is permissive, not mandatory. The new Code seems to leave it to the party concerned to decide whether he ought to seek a re-hearing or prefer a second appeal.—Medalatha Kunhi Kanna Kurup, 3 Ind. Jur. 167.

AN appeal was heard ex parte in the absence of the respondent (defendant), and the judgment was given against him. He applied to the Appellate Court to re-hear the appeal, and the Appellate Court refused to re-hear it. He then appealed, not from the order refusing to re-hear the appeal, but from the decree of the Appellate Court. Held that he was not debarred, by reason that he had not appealed from the order refusing to re-hear the appeal, from appealing from the decree of the Appellate Court.—Ramdas v. Baij Nath, I. L. R., 2 All. 567. [Dec. 16, 1879.]

AN applicant, presenting a petition for the re-hearing of an appeal decided ex parte, must, at the time of making such application, be prepared to satisfy the Court that the notice of appeal was not duly served upon him, or that he was prevented by sufficient cause from attending when the appeal was called on for hearing.—Anunda Shaha Biswas alias Nyomuddin Sha Biswas v. Kema Bebee, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 548. [Dec. 10, 1880.]

WHEN an appeal has been heard ex parte, a re-hearing cannot be granted by the Court on an application under s. 560 of the Civil Procedure Code, except upon legal evidence produced by the respondent of the facts necessary to entitle him to such re-hearing.—Mahomed Khan v. Dinomolee Dashya and another, 8 C. L. R. 112. [Jan. 6, 1881.]

Held by the Full Bench (Straight, Offg. C.J., and Tyrrell, J., expressing no opinion), that a respondent in whose absence the appeal has been heard ex parte, and against whom judgment has been given, may prefer a second appeal from the decree under the provisions of s. 584 of the Civil Procedure Code, and his remedy is not limited to an application under s. 560 to the Court which passed the decree to rehear the appeal. Ramji v. Baijnath (I. L. R., 2 All. 567) approved. Per Oldfield, J.—There is a distinction between the case of a defendant in a Court of first instance and that of a respondent in an appellate Court not appearing with reference to ss. 108 and 560 of the Code. Lal Singh v. Kunjan (I. L. R., 4 All. 387) and Ramshet Bachaset v. Balkishna Ababbat (6 Bom. H. C. R. 161) referred to. Per Mahmood, J.—The distinction is one of detail merely and not of principle. Lal Singh v. Kunjan (I. L. R., 4 All. 387) dissented from. *Zain-ul-ab-din Khan v. AN appeal having been filed on the 10th April 1879, and the date for hearing fixed for May 1879, a memorandum for objections under s. 524 of the Civil Procedure Code was filed by the respondent on the 18th September 1879, before the actual hearing which took place in July 1880. Held that the memorandum of objections under s. 561 of the Code of Civil Procedure as amended by s. 86 of Act XII. of 1879 ought to have been filed not less than seven days before the date fixed for hearing, and was therefore inadmissible. On an application for review, held (per Maclean, J., distinguishing the case of Ratansi Hullanji (I. L. R., 2 Bom. 184) that nothing having been done, and no proceeding having been commenced by the respondent up to 31st May 1879 under the Procedure Code as it existed prior to that date, the filing of the memorandum was governed by the present Code as amended, and therefore inadmissible. Held (per Mitter, J.,) that the appeal, having been filed before Act XII. of 1879 was passed, was a proceeding within the meaning of s. 6 of the General Clauses Act (I. of 1868), and that the new Act therefore did not affect the appeal.—*Ram Gobind Jugodeb v. WHERE the time for filing objections under s. 561 of the Civil Procedure Code expired on a day when the Court was closed, and objections were filed on the day the Court re-opened, held that such objections were filed within time. On the 16th March 1874, L. gave M a mortgage on certain land for Rs. 24,000 for a term of ten years, by which it was provided, inter alia, that the mortgagee should take the profits of the land in lieu of interest; that the mortgagee should grant a lease of the land to the mortgagor, the latter paying the former the profits of the land every harvest in lieu of interest; that, if the

mortgagor failed to pay the mortgagee the profits of the land by the end of any year, he should pay interest on the principal amount of the mortgage at the rate of 1 per cent. calculated from the date of the mortgage, and in such case the mortgagee should have no claim to the profits; and that, if the mortgagor failed to pay the mortgagee the profits by the end of any year, the mortgagee should be at liberty to cancel the lease, and to enter on the land, and collect the rents thereof, and apply the same to payment of interest. On the 21st March 1874, M gave L a lease of the land, under which Rs. 1,980 was the sum agreed to be payable annually as profits in lieu of interest. In 1879, M, who had not been paid any profits, sought to enforce in the Revenue Courts the condition as to entry on the land, but was successfully resisted by L's widow. On the 16th January 1880, M sued L's widow for interest on the principal amount of the mortgage at the rate of one per cent. calculated from the date of the mortgage to the date of the suit, claiming the same by virtue of the provisions of the mortgage, on the ground that he had not been paid any profits. Held that the mortgage and lease-transactions must be regarded as one and indivisible, and the questions at issue between the parties be dealt with quod mortgagor and mortgagee; that, so regarding such transactions, and dealing with such questions, M and L did not stand in the position of "landholder" and "tenant," and the proceedings of 1879 in the Revenue Courts were had without jurisdiction; also that, although, looking at the terms of the contract of mortgage, it was the intention of the parties that, on the mortgagor failing to pay the mortgagee the profits by the end of any year, the latter should, in the first place, seek possession of the land, yet as M had never obtained possession, but on the contrary had been resisted when he ought to obtain it, his present claim for interest was maintainable. The Court directed that so much of the interest as was due at L's death should be recoverable from such property of his as had come into his widow's hands; and as to the rest, which related to the period during which the widow had been in possession and in receipt of the profits, that it should be recoverable from her personally.—Baghelin v. Mathura Prasad, I. L. R., 4 All. 430. [April 1, 1882.]

THE plaintiff sued the defendants for compensation for the wrongful taking of the fruit on a tree which he alleged belonged to him. The defendants set up as a defence that the fruit on such tree had not been removed, and that such tree belonged to them. The Court of first instance dismissed the suit on the ground that the fruit on such tree had not been removed, but found incidentally that such tree belonged to the plaintiff. The plaintiff appealed from the decree of the Court of first instance; and the defendants objected to the decree, contending that such tree belonged to them. Held that, inasmuch as the Court of first instance did not, in deciding that such tree belonged to the plaintiff, decide a question substantially in issue, it did not decide in this matter "against the defendants" within the meaning of s. 561 of the Civil Procedure Code, and, as the decree was limited to dismissing the suit, the defendants as respondents were not qualified to take an objection which they could not have taken by way of appeal, and therefore the Appellate Court was not warranted by law in entertaining the objection taken by the defendants.—Balak Tewari v. Kausil Misr, I. L. R., 4 All. 491. [June 15, 1882.]

A NOTICE of objection under s. 561 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882) must be filed not less than seven days before the date (if any) fixed for the hearing of the appeal in the notice served upon the respondent. S. 5 of Act XV. of 1877 does not apply to an objection under s. 561 of the Procedure Code.—Kally Prosunno Biswas v. Mungala Dasse, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 631. [Feb. 1, 1883.]

A OBTAINED a decree for possession of land against B and for costs against B, C, D, and others, defendants in the suit. C and other defendants appealed against this decree so far as it awarded costs against them, making A and D respondents to the appeal. Under s. 561 D objected to that part of the decree which awarded possession of the land to A. Held on appeal that it was open to D, although improperly made a party to the appeal by C against A, to take objection to the rest of the decree.—Timmaya v. Lakshmy, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 215. [Nov. 12, 1883.]

THE Court of first instance found for the defendants on the merits, and passed a decree in their favour without costs. The defendants appealed against that part of the decree which disallowed them their costs. The plaintiff filed a notice of objections to the decree on the merits as required by s. 561 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882). The lower Court of Appeal varied the decree by allowing the defendants their costs of suit, and held that the plaintiff was not entitled to file any objections. Held that the Court of Appeal was in error in holding that the plaintiff's objections could not be entertained. S. 561 of the Code gives the respondent the power of taking any objection to the decree at the hearing of an appeal which he could have taken by way of appeal, provided he has filed a notice of his objections not less than seven days before the date fixed for the hearing of the appeal; and this power is independent of whether an appeal lies on a mere question of costs. Held also that a finding, unaccompanied by the reasons for it, as required by s. 204 of the Code, is not a conclusive finding of fact binding on a Court of second appeal.—Kámat v. Kámat, I. L. R., 8 Bom. 368. [Mar. 24, 1884.]

AN appellant finding, after the hearing had commenced, that his appeal was hopeless, claimed the right of withdrawing the appeal, in order to prevent the objections filed, under s. 561 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), by the respondent against the decree from being heard. Held that, after the hearing of an appeal has commenced, the Appeal Court is seized of the respondent's objections, and that the appeal cannot be withdrawn so as to prevent the objections from being heard and determined.—Dhondi Jagannáth v. Collector of Salt Revenue, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 28. [June 27, 1884.]

OBJECTIONS to a decree under s. 561 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) need not necessarily be filed seven days before the day originally fixed for hearing the appeal. When the hearing is postponed, it is sufficient if the objections are filed seven days before the day fixed for the postponed hearing, the object of s. 561 being merely to give the appellant timely intimation of proposed objections.—Rangildás v. Báí Girja, I. L. R., 8 Bom. 559. [July 14, 1884.]

WHERE an appeal was dismissed upon the application of the appellant himself, made before the hearing, held that the respondents, who had filed objections to the decree of the Court of first instance under s. 561 of the Civil Procedure Code, had no claim to have their objections heard, notwithstanding the dismissal of the appeal. Coomar Puresh Narain Roy v. Watson and Co. (23 W. R. 229) and Dhondi Jagannáth v. Collector of Salt Revenue (I. L. R., 9 Bom. 28) referred to.—Maktab Beg v. Hasan Ali, I. L. R., 8 All. 551. [July 22, 1886.]

562. If the Court against whose decree the appeal is made has dismissed the case by Appeal Court. proposed of the suit upon a preliminary point so as to exclude any evidence of fact which appears to the Appellate Court essential to the determination of the rights of the parties, and the decree upon such preliminary point is reversed in appeal, the Appellate Court may, if it thinks fit, by order remand the case, together with a copy of the order in appeal, to the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, with directions to re-admit the suit under its original number in the register, and proceed to investigate the suit on the merits.

The Appellate Court may, if it thinks fit, direct what issue or issues shall be tried in any case so remanded.

UPON an appeal, under s. 558 cl. (w) of the Civil Procedure Code, from an order of an Appellate Court under s. 562, remanding a case which has been disposed of upon a preliminary point in the Court of first instance, the High Court may enter into the merits of the adjudication by the Court of first instance on the preliminary point, and may, if it finds the order of the lower Appellate Court defective, allow the party, who had the benefit of a decree in the first Court, to retain that benefit. The purchaser of the rights and interests of a judgment-debtor who is a member of a joint family, at a sale in execution of a decree, does not acquire any title to the rights and interests of the other members of the family, unless it is clear that the judgment-debtor was sued in a representative capacity. Muddan Thakur v. Kantoo Lall (I. L. R., 2 Cal. 379) distinguished.—Loki Mahto v. Aghoree Ajail Lall, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 144. [May 8, 1879.]

BY the amendment of the plaint a suit for the restoration of a pond, which it was alleged the defendants were wrongfully filling up, to its original condition, was altered into one for the protection of the plaintiffs from any infringement of, or for a declaration of, their right to a share in the produce, and the use of the water, by way of easement. Held that the alteration in the plaint was a material one; and that an Appellate Court is not empowered by Act X. of 1877 to order or allow a plaint to be amended, or to remand a case under s. 562 of that Act for the purpose of such amendment.—Farzand Ali v. Yusuf Ali, I. L. R., 2 All. 669. [Feb. 5, 1880.]

As the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877) shortens the period of limitation in the case of promissory notes payable on demand, the period of limitation in respect of such notes executed prior to 1st October 1877 is governed by the provisions of s. 2 of the Act. When a Court of first instance, after taking evidence, dismisses a suit upon a preliminary objection without giving a decision upon the merits of the case, and the decree is reversed on appeal, the Court of Appeal, if it considers the evidence on record sufficient, may decide the case, and is not bound to remand it for trial under s. 562 of the Civil Procedure Code.—Bandi Subbayya v. Madalapalli Subanna, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 96. [Dec. 15, 1880.]

AN appeal from an order on appeal remanding a suit for re-trial is not to be confined to the question whether the remand has been made contrary to the provisions of s. 562 of Act X. of 1877 or not; but the question whether the decision of the Appellate Court on the preliminary point is correct or not may also be raised and determined in such an appeal.—Badam v. Imrat, I. L. R., 3 All. 675. [April 4, 1881.]

A COURT of first instance dismissed a suit upon a preliminary point. On appeal by the plaintiff against the decree of such Court the then Judge of the Appellate Court, Mr. B, reversed the decree upon such preliminary point, and remanded the suit under s. 562 of Act X. of 1877 for the trial of a certain issue. The Court of first instance tried such issue, and made a decree in accordance with its finding thereon. On appeal against the decree of the Court of first instance the defendant again raised such preliminary point. The then Judge of the Appellate Court, Mr. K, dismissed the suit upon such preliminary point. Held that, as, although Mr. B had irregularly remanded the suit under s. 562 of Act X. of 1877, his decision disposed of such preliminary point, and only left open for trial the issue which he had directed to be tried, Mr. K was not competent to re-try and decide such preliminary point.—Suraj Din v. Chatter, I. L. R., 3 All. 755. [April 19, 1881.]

THE Court of first instance made an order returning the plaint in a suit to be presented to the proper Court, on the ground that it was not competent to try such suit. On appeal from such order the Appellate Court, holding that the Court of first instance was competent to try such suit, made an order "decreeing the appeal." It subsequently made an additional order directing that the case "should be returned for re-trial." On appeal to the High Court from such additional order, held that the appeal would not lie, as it was in reality one from an order passed in appeal from an order returning a plaint, which, under the last clause of s. 588 of Act X. of 1877, was final, and not an appeal from an order remanding a case under s. 562, the character of the original order of the Appellate Court not being altered by the passing of the additional order.—Kishna Ram v. Narsingh Sevak Singh, I. L. R., 3 All. 855. [June 20, 1881.]

ON an appeal from an order under s. 562 of the Civil Procedure Code remanding the case, the High Court cannot consider the facts on which the lower Appellate Court passed the order of remand. All that it can do under s. 588, cl. 28, is to consider whether, on the findings of fact by the lower Appellate Court, that Court was right in remanding the case.—Noimollah Pramanick v. Grish Narain Moonshee, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 674. [Jan. 26, 1882.]

AN Appellate Court has no power to remand a case except under the provisions of s. 562 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Mudun Mohun Poddar v. Bhoggomanto Poddar, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 923. [April 13, 1882.]

S. 26 of the Code of Civil Procedure does not authorize the joinder of plaintiffs with antagonistic claims arising out of distinct causes of action. Where one of two widows of a deceased Hindu and her adopted son sued as co-plaintiffs, claiming in the alternative either to recover the whole family-estate for the latter, if the adoption was valid, or, if the adoption was invalid, one-half of the estate for the former, held that the suit was bad for misjoinder. Held also that when such misjoinder had been allowed, and the suit decided, and an appeal brought, the Court of Appeal should dispose of the suit in the mode in which the lower Court ought to have disposed of it, by returning the plaint for amendment. Farzand Ali v. Yusuf Ali (I. L. R., 2 All. 669) dissented from.—Lingammal v. Venkattammal, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 239. [Dec. 22, 1882.]

THE right of appeal given by ss. 588 and 589 of Act X. of 1877 from an order of remand as contemplated by s. 562, is not taken away by s. 586. Chaudhri Ranjit Singh v. Jafar Ali Khan (I. L. R., 3 All. 18) followed.—Mahadev Narsingh v. Ragho Keshav, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 292. [April 19, 1883.]

A COURT in the exercise of appellate jurisdiction passed an order under s. 562 of the Civil Procedure Code, remanding a case of the Small Cause Court class as described in s. 586. Held that, under the express words of the second portion of s. 589 of the Code, an appeal does lie to the High Court from such an order.—Kirte Mohaldar v. Ramjan Mohaldar, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 523. [Mar. 6, 1884.]

WHERE a lower Appellate Court, instead of remanding a suit under s. 566 of the Civil Procedure Code, erroneously remands it under s. 562, and the party aggrieved by its order appeals to the High Court, under cl. 28, s. 588, the High Court cannot deal with the case as if it were a first appeal from a decree. All that the High Court can do is to rectify the procedure of the lower Appellate Court and to direct that it decide the case, itself on the merits. Badam v. Imrat (I. L. R., 3 All. 675) distinguished. Ramnarain v. Bhanwanidin (2 Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 104) and Shooamber Singh v. Lallu Singh (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 158) referred to.—Sohan Lal v. Aziz-un-nissa Begam, I. L. R., 7 All. 186. [Nov. 4, 1884.]

IN a case where neither of the parties desired to have a local investigation, though suggested by the Court, the lower Court dealt with the case on the materials before it, and made a decree. On appeal the Appellate Court remanded the case for the purpose of a local investigation being held at the cost, in the first instance, of the plaintiff. The lower Court thereupon made an order that the plaintiff should deposit the costs of the local investigation, and on default being made by the plaintiff, it dismissed the suit. The order of remand was found to be invalid as made without jurisdiction. Held that all proceedings taken by the Court of first instance, after the remand, and pending the hearing of the appeal against the remand order, were null and void, inasmuch as the jurisdiction of that Court to hear the case upon remand depended upon the validity of the remand order. An appeal, therefore, lay from the order of remand, notwithstanding the Court of first instance had subsequently made what purported to be a final decree in the case.—Jatindra Valley Tea Company v. Cifera Tea Company, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 45. [June 19, 1885.]

IN a suit for pre-emption, based on the wajib-ul-arz of a village, the Court of first instance dismissed the claim on the ground that no right of pre-emption had been proved to exist in the village. The lower Appellate Court, dissenting from this opinion, reversed the first Court's decree, and remanded the case under s. 562 of the Civil Procedure Code for a decision on the remaining question of fact, viz., the amount of the consideration for the sale. In appeal from the order of remand, the High Court, on the 3rd January 1884, observed that it was not disposed to interfere with the finding of fact that the plaintiff had a right of pre-emption, and accordingly dismissed the appeal, but added that the Judge was in error in remanding the case under s. 562 of the Code; that his order must so far be set aside; and that he should proceed under s. 565 or s. 566 as might be applicable. The Judge, on receipt of this order, replaced the case on his file, remitted an issue to the Court of first instance under s. 566 as to the amount of consideration, and, accepting the first Court's finding upon that issue, decreed the plaintiff's claim. In second appeal by the defendants the High Court was of opinion that the Judge had disposed of the case upon a condition of things which the plaintiffs had never asserted, inasmuch as he had treated the right of pre-emption which was in issue as one arising from custom, and not, as alleged by the plaintiffs, as arising from a contract between the ancestors of the parties. All the evidence necessary to the determination of the case was on the record. Held, by the Full Bench, that the defendants were not prevented by the operation of the High Court's order of the 3rd January 1884 from disputing the right of pre-emption, inasmuch as that order was a decision of a merely interlocutory character passed in the same suit, and the questions of fact involved therein were decided only so far as was necessary for the purpose of passing the order, and it could not be regarded as determining the main question in the suit, which was still open, and must be decided in the final decree in the suit. Per Straight, J., that the jurisdiction of the High Court in appeal under s. 588 of the Code from the Judge's order of remand was, like the jurisdiction of the Judge in passing the order, limited by the terms of s. 562; and hence the remark made in the High Court's order dealing with the plaintiffs' right of pre-emption could only be regarded as an obiter dictum, and not as determining any question as to the pre-emptive right. Held per Petherick, C.J., and Oldfield and Tyrrell, J.J., that the High Court was competent, in second appeal from the Judge's decree, to look into the evidence already on the record for the purpose of finding whether a right of pre-emption existed, in fact, in the village, if the evidence for answering this question was already on the record, and that, in such a case, the question need not be referred to the Court of first appeal. Bal Kishen v. Jasoda Kuar (I. L. R., 7 All. 765) referred to. Per Straight and Brodhurst, J.J., contra. Bal Kishen v. Jasoda Kuar (I. L. R., 7 All. 765) referred to.—Deekishen v. Bansi, I. L. R., 8 All. 172. [Jan. 22, 1886.]

WHERE a Court of first appeal remanded a case to the Court of first instance for the addition of all necessary parties, and at the same time decided an issue as to the merits, and it appeared that the Court of first instance had not disposed of the case "on a preliminary point, so as to exclude any evidence of fact which appeared to the Appellate Court essential to the determination of the rights of the parties," held, first, that, on an appeal from the order of remand, the decision on the merits, on which the order of remand was based, was not before the High Court on appeal; and, further, that the order of remand was unsustainable under ss. 562 and 564 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), which are strictly binding on all Courts of first appeal. The proper course for the lower Appellate Court would have been to join the parties whom it found to be necessary, and then to raise the proper issues as between the plaintiff and those parties, and, if necessary, to refer the issues to the Court of first instance for trial under s. 566.—Ganesh Bhikaji Juvekar v. Bhikaji Krishna Juvekar, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 398. [Feb. 10, 1886.]

A DISTRICT Munsif, having taken all the evidence offered on the issues in a suit, disposed of the suit upon his finding on one of the issues without deciding the rest. On appeal the District Judge reversed the decree, and remanded the suit for the trial of the issues left untried. Held that, under s. 562 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the order of remand was illegal.—Amma v. Kunhunni, I. L. R., 9 Mad 355. [Mar. 17, 1886.]

563. When a case is remanded with directions to take any evidence so excluded, the Court to which the case is remanded shall not take any other evidence on the case, except evidence tendered to contradict the evidence so taken.

564. The Appellate Court shall not remand a case for a second decision, except as provided in section 562.

S. 26 of the Code of Civil Procedure does not authorize the joinder of plaintiffs with antagonistic claims arising out of distinct causes of action. Where one of two widows of a deceased Hindu and her adopted son sued as co-plaintiffs, claiming in the alternative either to recover the whole family-estate for the latter, if the adoption was valid, or, if the adoption was invalid, one-half of the estate for the former, held that the suit was bad for misjoinder. Held also that, when such misjoinder had been allowed, and the suit decided, and an appeal brought, the Court of Appeal should dispose of the suit in the mode in which the lower Court ought to have disposed of it, by returning the plaint for amendment. Farzand Ali v. Yusuf Ali (I. L. R., 2 All. 669) dissented from.—Lingammal v. Venkatammal, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 239. [Dec. 22, 1882.]

WHERE a lower Appellate Court, instead of remanding a suit under s. 566 of the Civil Procedure Code, erroneously remands it under s. 562, and the party aggrieved by its order appeals to the High Court under cl. 28, s. 588, the High Court cannot deal with the case as if it were a first appeal from a decree. All that the High Court can do is to rectify the procedure of the lower Appellate Court, and to direct that it decide the case itself on the merits. Badam v. Imrat (I. L. R., 3 All. 675) distinguished. Ramnarain v. Bhanuvidin (2 Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 104) and Shekamber Singh v. Lallu Singh (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 168) referred to.—Sohan Lal v. Aziz-un-nissa Begam, I. L. R., 7 All. 136. [Nov. 4, 1884.]

WHERE a Court of first appeal remanded a case to the Court of first instance for the addition of all necessary parties, and at the same time decided an issue as to the merits, and it appeared that the Court of first instance had not disposed of the case "on a preliminary point," so as to exclude any evidence of fact which appeared to the Appellate Court essential to the determination of the rights of the parties," held, first, that, on an appeal from the order of remand, the decision on the merits, on which the order of remand was not based, was not before the High Court on appeal; and, further, that the order of remand was unsustainable under ss. 562 and 564 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), which are strictly binding on all Courts of first appeal. The proper course for the lower Appellate Court would have been to join the parties whom it found to be necessary, and then to raise the proper issues as between the plaintiff and those parties, and, if necessary, to refer the issues to the Court of first instance for trial under s. 566.—Ganesh Bhikaji Juvekar v. Bhikaji Krishna Juvekar, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 399. [Feb. 10, 1886.]

AN order for the transfer of a suit from one Court to another, under s. 25 of the Code of Civil Procedure, cannot be made unless the suit has been brought in a Court having jurisdiction. The judgment in Peary Lal Mozoomdar v. Komal Kishore Dassia (I. L. R., 6 Cal. 30) entirely approved. When a suit has been tried by a Court having no jurisdiction over the matter, the parties cannot, by their mutual consent, convert the proceedings into a judicial process: although, when the merits have been submitted to a Court, it may result that, having themselves constituted it their arbitrator, the parties may be bound by its decision. On the other hand, in a suit tried by a competent Court, the parties having without objection joined issue, and gone to trial upon the merits, cannot subsequently dispute the jurisdiction on the ground of irregularities in the initial procedure, which, if objected to at the time, would have led to the dismissal of the suit. A suit, having been instituted in a Court not of competent jurisdiction, was transferred, with the consent of parties, to a Court which was competent; but the defence of jurisdiction was set up before the issues were fixed, and was afterwards insisted on throughout. Held that in the single fact that the defendant had personally concurred in the transfer, there had been no waiver of the right to maintain in this defence, and that the suit must be dismissed on the ground that it was not competently brought. A Court of appeal, having set aside the whole of the proceedings including the plaint, directed that a new plaint be presented in the proper Court. Held that this order, equivalent to directing the plaintiff to institute a new suit, was wrong; and that, with only the alternative of having leave to withdraw the suit and bring a new one, his suit should have been dismissed.—Ledgard v. Bull, 1. L. R., 9 All. 191. [July 21, 1886.]

565. When the evidence upon the record is sufficient to enable the Appellate Court to pronounce judgment, the Appellate Court shall, after re-setting the issues, if necessary, finally determine the case, notwithstanding that the judgment of the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, has proceeded wholly upon some ground other than that on which the Appellate Court proceeds.

WHERE a Court of first appeal omits to determine a material issue of fact, the High Court as a Court of second appeal is not competent, under s. 565 of the Civil Procedure Code, to determine such itself, but should refer it for determination to the Court of first appeal—Sheo Ratan v. Lappu Kuar, 1. L. R., 5 All. 14. [July 19, 1882.]

Held by the Full Bench (Tyrrell, J., dissenting), that the findings upon issues remanded by the High Court in second appeal cannot be challenged upon the evidence as in first appeals, but objections to these findings must be restricted to the limits within which the original pleas in second appeal are confined. Nivath Singh v. Bhikki Singh (1. L. R., 7 All. 649) referred to. Per Potheram, C.J., and Tyrrell, J. (Straight, J., dissenting).—Ss. 565 and 566 of the Civil Procedure Code are, as far as may be, incorporated in chap. 42 of the Code relating to second appeals, and when the evidence for disposing of the real issues in the case has been taken and exists on the record, it is the duty of the High Court, on the hearing of a second appeal, to itself fix and determine such issues on the evidence on the record, and not to put the parties to the expense and delay involved by a remand. Per Straight, J.—S. 587 of the Civil Procedure Code does not mean that the provisions of chap. 41 relating to first appeals are to be applied indiscriminately or in their entirety to second appeals, and implies no warrant for the decision by the High Court of questions of fact in any shape or at any stage of a second appeal. Ramnarin v. Bhawanidin (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 104) and Sheoambar Singh v. Lallu Singh (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 158) referred to. Per Tyrrell, J.—The jurisdiction of Courts of second appeal in respect of questions of fact is restricted, inasmuch as the appeal may not be entertained on “grounds” of fact; but, under the circumstances of s. 566 of the Code, no less than under the abnormal circumstances contemplated by the ruling of the Full Bench in Nivath Singh v. Bhikki Singh (1. L. R., 7 All. 649), the High Court may take cognizance of omitted issues of fact, and must determine them if there be evidence upon the record sufficient for that purpose. An issue to be tried in this way will, with all the evidence bearing upon it, be open to consideration from any point of view that may be present to the Court on the evidence and otherwise. In cases where the Court, still acting under s. 566, has been obliged, in the absence of evidence on the record, to supplement the defect through the agency of the Court below, its jurisdiction in respect of such evidence does not become limited thereby or by reason only of the circumstance that the evidence is accompanied by a “finding” of the inferior Court—the term “finding” being used in s. 566 in its restricted sense of an answer to the proposition referred for inquiry, and not of an award or decision of the issue before the Court.—Balkishen v. Jasoda Kuar, 1. L. R., 7 All. 765. [June 4, 1885.]

AFTER the trial of issues raising the question whether the plaintiff was, or the defendants were, entitled to zemindari rights in certain mehals, a decree was made affirming the title of the plaintiff, the evidence in support of the defendants’ case being discredited, and the latter were declared by the decree to be the “plaintiff’s under-tenure holders of the said mehals.” This was modified on appeal by the declaration that “the defendants are putnidars of the same mauzas.” Held that it was unnecessary on this appeal to consider whether the Appellate Court was right in its conclusion that the defendants were putnidars; because, upon the case which had been set up for the defendants, and upon the issues framed and tried in the lower Court, the Appellate Court could not properly make such a declaration; the defendants could not be in a better position than they would have been in had they claimed to be putnidars, in which case an issue as to that title would have been framed and tried. S. 565 of Act X. of 1877 does not enable an Appellate Court to declare a right in favour of one of the parties, where no issue has been fixed on the point, and the right has not been set up in the lower Court. Official Trustees of Beugal v. Krishna Chandra Mozuundar, 1. L. R., 12 Cal. 230. [June 27, 1885.]

In a suit for pre-emption, based on the wajib-ul-arz of a village, the Court of first instance dismissed the claim on the ground that no right of pre-emption had been proved to exist in the village. The lower Appellate Court, dissenting from this opinion, reversed the first Court's decree, and remanded the case under s. 562 of the Civil Procedure Code for a decision on the remaining question of fact, viz., the amount of the consideration for the sale. On appeal from the order of remand, the High Court, on the 3rd January 1884, observed that it was not disposed to interfere with the finding of fact that the plaintiff had a right of pre-emption, and accordingly dismissed the appeal, but added that the Judge was in error in remanding the case under s. 562 of the Code; that his order must so far be set aside; and that he should proceed under s. 565 or 566 as might be applicable. The Judge, on receipt of this order, replaced the case on his file, remitted an issue to the Court of first instance under s. 566 as to the amount of consideration, and, accepting the first Court's finding upon that issue, decreed the plaintiff's claim. In second appeal by the defendants the High Court was of opinion that the Judge had disposed of the case upon a condition of things which the plaintiffs had never asserted, inasmuch as he had treated the right of pre-emption which was in issue as one arising from custom, and not, as alleged by the plaintiffs, as arising from a contract between the ancestors of the parties. All the evidence necessary to the determination of the case was on the record. Held, by the Full Bench, that the defendants were not prevented by the operation of the High Court's order of the 3rd January 1884 from disputing the right of pre-emption, inasmuch as that order was a decision of a merely interlocutory character passed in the same suit, and the questions of fact involved therein were decided only so far as was necessary for the purpose of passing the order, and it could not be regarded as determining the main question in the suit, which was still open, and must be decided in the final decree in the suit. Per Straight, J., that the jurisdiction of the High Court in appeal under s. 588 of the Code from the Judge's order of remand was, like the jurisdiction of the Judge in passing the order, limited by the terms of s. 562; and hence the remark made in the High Court's order dealing with the plaintiffs' right of pre-emption could only be regarded as an obiter dictum, and not as determining any question as to the pre-emptive right. Held per Petheram, C.J., and Oldfield and Tyrrell, J.J., that the High Court was competent, in second appeal from the Judge's decree, to look into the evidence already on the record for the purpose of finding whether a right of pre-emption existed, in fact, in the village, if the evidence for answering this question was already on the record, and that, in such a case, the question need not be referred to the Court of first appeal. Bal Kishen v. Jasoda Kuar (I. L. R., 7 All. 765) referred to. Per Straight and Brodhurst, J.J., contra. Bal Krishen v. Jasoda Kuar (I. L. R., 7. All. 765) referred to.—Deekishen v. Bansi, I. L. R., 8 All. 172. [Jan. 22, 1886.]

A District Munsif, having taken all the evidence offered on the issues in a suit, disposed of the suit upon his finding on one of the issues without deciding the rest. On appeal the District Judge reversed the decree and remanded the suit for the trial of the issues left untried. Held that, under s. 562 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the order of remand was illegal.—Amma v. Kunhuani, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 355. [Mar. 17, 1886.]

HELD by the Full Bench that s. 587 of the Civil Procedure Code does not make ss. 565 and 566 applicable to second appeals, so as to enable the High Court, in cases where the lower Appellate Court has omitted to frame or try any issue or to determine any essential question of fact, to itself determine the same upon the evidence on the record; but the High Court in such cases must remit issues for trial to the lower appellate Court. Bal Kishen v. Jasoda Kuar (I. L. R., 7 All. 765) and Deekishen v. Bansi (I. L. R., 8 All. 172) overruled on this point.—Girdhari Lal v. Crawford (W.), I. L. R., 9 All 147. [Dec. 10, 1886.]

566. If the Court against whose decree the appeal is made has omitted to frame or try any issue, or to determine any question of fact, which appears to the Appellate Court essential to the right decision of the suit upon the merits, and the evidence upon the record is not sufficient to enable the Appellate Court to determine such issues or question, the Appellate Court may frame issues for trial, and may refer the same for trial to the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, and in such case shall direct such Court to take the additional evidence required; and such Court shall proceed to try such issues, and shall return to the Appellate Court its finding thereon, together with the evidence.

WHERE an Appellate Court, under Act VIII. of 1859, s. 354, refers to a lower Court issues for trial, and fixes a time within which, after the return of the finding, either party to the appeal may file a memorandum of objections to the same, neither party is entitled, without the leave of the Court, to take any objection to the finding, orally or otherwise, after the expiry of the period so fixed, without his having filed such memorandum.—Ratan Singh v. Wazir, I. L. R., 1 All. 165. [April 24, 1876.]

IN a suit for negligence, where it is possible that the Court may take one or more different views as to the proper measure of damages, the plaintiff must come prepared with evidence as to the amount of damages according to whichever view the Court may adopt: and if the evidence produced is applicable to one view only, the Court cannot give the plaintiff a retrial, and allow him to remodel his case with fresh evidence under Act X. of 1877, s. 566. That section is intended to provide for cases where some point has come to light in the Appellate Court, which has not been raised, or the importance of which has not occurred to the parties or to the Judge in the Court below.—Anundo Lal Das v. Boycaunt Ram Roy, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 283. [July 11, 1879.]

ASSUMING that an Appellate Court, in deciding a case in a manner inconsistent with, and opposed to, the finding returned to it by the Court of first instance under Act X. of 1877, s. 566, in the absence of objections, acted irregularly, its decree could not be reversed or the case remanded on account of such irregularity, such irregularity not affecting the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court.—Akbari Begam v. Wilayat Ali, I. L. R., 2 All. 908. [May 31, 1880.]

As the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877) shortens the period of limitation in the case of promissory notes payable on demand, the period of limitation in respect of such notes executed prior to 1st October 1877 is governed by the provisions of s. 2 of the Act. When a Court of first instance, after taking evidence, dismisses a suit upon a preliminary objection without giving a decision upon the merits of the case, and the decree is reversed on appeal, the Court of Appeal, if it considers the evidence on record sufficient, may decide the case, and is not bound to remand it for trial under s. 562 of the Civil Procedure Code.—Bandi Subbaya v. Madalanalli Subanna, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 96. [Dec. 15, 1880.]

H sued B for arrears of rent, alleging that the annual rent payable by the latter was Rs. 212-1-0. The Court of first instance gave H a decree based on the finding that the annual rent payable by B was Rs. 94. H appealed, and the lower Appellate Court gave him a decree based on the finding that the annual rent payable by B was Rs. 128-12-0. B appealed to the High Court from the lower Appellate Court's decree. H did not appeal from that decree, neither did he take any objections thereto under s. 561 of Act X. of 1877. Stuart, C.J., and Oldfield, J., before whom such appeal came on for hearing, remanded the case to the lower Appellate Court for a fresh determination of the question as to the amount of the annual rent payable by B. The lower Appellate Court then found that the annual rent payable by B was Rs. 212-1-0. Held by Stuart, C.J. (Oldfield, J., dissenting), that such second finding of the lower Appellate Court should be accepted, and the amount awarded by its decree be enlarged accordingly, notwithstanding H had not appealed from that decree, or preferred objections thereto.—Bikramjit Singh v. Husaini Begam, I. L. R., 3 All. 643. [Mar. 18, 1881.]

THE plaintiff sued to recover from the defendant Rs. 71-3-3, alleging that the defendant had illegally levied the money on the plaintiff's land on account of enhanced summary settlement and local fund cess. The defendant, being a minor, was represented by the Collector as his administrator. The Assistant Judge who tried the suit awarded the plaintiff's claim. The District Judge in appeal reduced the amount of the plaintiff's claim to Rs. 38-4-9, but upheld the decree of the first Court in other respects. The defendant thereupon filed a second appeal in the High Court. Held that under the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), s. 566, no second appeal lay, as the suit was one cognizable by a Small Cause Court. Act X. of 1876, s. 15, removes suits to which the Collector is a party from the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court; but the nature of the suit remains unaltered.—Musa Miya Sahab v. Sayad Gulam Husein Mahamad, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 100. [July 26, 1882.]

WHERE the lower Appellate Court omits to give reasons for its decision, the High Court will retain the case in second appeal, and either require the Judge to state his reasons, or, in the event of his absence, refer the questions to his successor for fresh trial.—Assanullah v. Hafiz Mahomed Ali, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 932. [June 30, 1884.]

appeals to the High Court, under cl. 28, s. 588, the High Court cannot deal with the case as if it were a first appeal from a decree. All that the High Court can do is to rectify the procedure of the lower appellate Court, and to direct that it decide the case itself on the merits. Badam v. Imrat (I. L. R., 3 All. 675) distinguished. Rafanarain v. Bhanidin (2 Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 104) and Sheombar Singh v. Lallu Singh (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 158), referred to.—Sohan Lal v. Aziz-ud-nissa Begam, I. L. R., 7 All. 136. [Nov. 4, 1884.]

A COURT of first instance to which issues have been remitted under s. 566 of the Civil Procedure Code by the Appellate Court has only jurisdiction to try the issues remitted, and is functus officio in other respects, and cannot make a reference of the case to arbitration, which is only within the jurisdiction of the Appellate Court. Gossain Dowlut Geor v. Bissessar Geor (22 W. R. 207) referred to. When a case has been referred to arbitration, the presence of all the arbitrators at all meetings, and, above all, at the last meeting when the final act of arbitration is done, is essential to the validity of the award. Where a case was referred by a Court to the arbitration of three persons, and the parties to the reference agreed to be bound as to the matters in dispute by the decision of a majority of the arbitrators, and one of the arbitrators subsequently refused to act, and withdrew from the arbitration, held that the Court could not pass a decree on the award of the remaining arbitrators, and could only, under s. 510 of the Civil Procedure Code, appoint a new arbitrator, or supersede the arbitration, and proceed with the suit.—Kazee Syud Nair Ali v. Musammat Tinoo Dossia (6 W. R. 95) and Rohilkhand and Kumaun Bank v. Row (I. L. R., 6 All. 468) referred to.—Nand Ram v. Fakir Chand, I. L. R., 7 All. 523. [Jan. 14, 1885.]

IF, on second appeal, it is found that certain material facts, having an important bearing upon a question at issue in the suit, have been omitted to be considered by the lower Appellate Court, the High Court will interfere with the decision of the lower Appellate Court, even though it be on a question of fact.—Dena Nath Banerjee v. Hari Dasi, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 479. [April 10, 1885.]

Held by the Full Bench (Tyrrell, J., dissenting), that the findings upon issues remanded by the High Court in second appeal cannot be challenged upon the evidence as in first appeals, but objections to these findings must be restricted to the limits within which the original pleas in second appeal are confined. Nivath Singh v. Bhikki Singh (I. L. R., 7 All. 649) referred to. Per Petherum, C.J., and Tyrrell, J. (Straight, J., dissenting).—Ss. 565 and 566 of the Civil Procedure Code are, as far as may be incorporated in chap. 42 of the Code relating to second appeals, and when the evidence for disposing of the real issues in the case has been taken and exists on the record, it is the duty of the High Court, on the hearing of a second appeal, to itself fix and determine such issues on the evidence on the record, and not to put the parties to the expense and delay involved by a remand. Per Straight, J.—S. 537 of the Civil Procedure Code does not mean that the provisions of chap. 41 relating to first appeals are to be applied indiscriminately or in their entirety to second appeals, and implies no warrant for the decision by the High Court of questions of fact in any shape or at any stage of a second appeal. Ramanarain v. Bhanidin (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 104) and Sheombar Singh v. Lallu Singh (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 158) referred to. Per Tyrrell, J.—The jurisdiction of Courts of second appeal in respect of questions of fact is restricted, inasmuch as the appeal may not be entertained on “grounds” of fact; but, under the circumstances of s. 566 of the Code, no less than under the abnormal circumstances contemplated by the ruling of the Full Bench in Nivath Singh v. Bhikki Singh (I. L. R., 7 All. 649), the High Court may take cognizance of omitted issues of fact, and must determine them if there be evidence upon the record sufficient for that purpose. An issue to be tried in this way will, with all the evidence bearing upon it, be open to consideration from any point of view that may be present to the Court on the evidence and otherwise. In cases where the Court, still acting under s. 566, has been obliged, in the absence of evidence on the record, to supplement the defect through the agency of the Court below, its jurisdiction in respect of such evidence does not become limited thereby or by reason only of the circumstance that the evidence is accompanied by a “finding” of the inferior Court—the term “finding” being used in s. 566 in its restricted sense of an answer to the proposition referred for inquiry, and not of an award or decision of the issue before the Court.—Bal Kishen v. Jasoda Kuar, I. L. R., 7 All. 765. [June 4, 1885.]

IN a suit for pre-emption, based on the wajib-ul-arz of a village, the Court of first instance dismissed the claim on the ground that no right of pre-emption had been proved to exist in the village. The lower Appellate Court, dissenting from this opinion, reversed the first Court's decree, and remanded the case under s. 562 of the Civil Procedure Code for a decision on the remaining question of fact viz., the amount of the consideration for the sale. In appeal from the order of remand, the High Court, on the 3rd January 1884, observed that it was not disposed to interfere with the finding of fact that the plaintiff had a right of pre-emption, and accordingly dismissed the appeal, but added that the Judge was in error in remanding the case under s. 562 of the Code; that his order must so far be set aside; and that he should proceed under s. 565 or s. 566 as might be applicable. The Judge, on receipt of this order, replaced the case on his file, remitted an issue to the Court of first instance under s. 566 as to the amount of consideration, and, accepting the first Court's finding upon that issue, decreed the plaintiff's claim. In second appeal by the defendants the High Court was of opinion that the Judge had disposed of the case upon a condition of things which the plaintiffs had never asserted, inasmuch as he has treated the right of pre-emption which was in issue as one arising from custom, and not, as alleged by the plaintiffs, as arising from a contract between the ancestors of the parties. All the evidence necessary to the determination of the case was on the record. Held, by the Full Bench, that the defendants were not prevented by the operation of the High Court's order of the 3rd January 1884 from disputing the right of pre-emption, inasmuch as that order was a decision of a merely interlocutory character passed in the same suit, and the questions of fact involved therein were decided only so far as was necessary for the purpose of passing the order, and it could not be regarded as determining the main question in the suit, which was still open, and must be decided in the final decree in the suit. Per Straight, J., that the jurisdiction of the High Court in appeal under s. 588 of the Code from the Judge's order of remand was, like the jurisdiction of the Judge in passing the order, limited by the terms of s. 562; and hence the remark made in the High Court's order dealing with the plaintiffs' right of pre-emption could only be regarded as an obiter dictum, and not as determining any question as to the pre-emptive right. Held per Petheram, C.J., and Oldfield and Tyrrell, J.J., that the High Court was competent, in second appeal from the Judge's decree, to look into the evidence already on the record for the purpose of finding whether a right of pre-emption existed, in fact, in the village, if the evidence for answering this question was already on the record, and that, in such a case, the question need not be referred to the Court of first appeal. Bal Kishen v. Jasoda Kuar (I. L. R., 7 All. 765) referred to. Per Straight and Brodhurst, J.J., contra. Bal Kishen v. Jasoda Kuar (I. L. R., 7 All. 765) referred to.—Deokishen v. Bansī, I. L. R., 8 All. 172. * [Jan. 22, 1886.]

WHERE a Court of first appeal remanded a case to the Court of first instance for the addition of all necessary parties, and at the same time decided an issue as to the merits, and it appeared that the Court of first instance had not disposed of the case "on a preliminary point so as to exclude any evidence of fact which appeared to the Appellate Court essential to the determination of the rights of the parties," held, first, that on an appeal from the order of remand, the decision on the merits, on which the order of remand was not based, was not before the High Court on appeal, and, further, that the order of remand was unsustainable under ss. 562 and 564 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), which are strictly binding on all Courts of first appeal. The proper course for the lower Appellate Court would have been to join the parties whom it found to be necessary, and then, to raise the proper issues as between the plaintiff and those parties, and, if necessary, to refer the issues to the Court of first instance for trial under s. 566.—Ganesh Bhikaji Juvekar v. Bhikaji Krishna Juvekar, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 398. [Feb. 10, 1886.]

A DISTRICT Munsif, having taken all the evidence offered on the issues in a suit, disposed of the suit upon his finding on one of the issues without deciding the rest. On appeal the District Judge reversed the decree, and remanded the suit for the trial of the issues left untried. Held that, under s. 562 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the order of remand was illegal.—Amjina v. Kunhunni, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 365. [Mar. 17, 1886.]

HELD by the Full Bench that s. 587 of the Civil Procedure Code does not make ss. 565 and 566 applicable to second appeals, so as to enable the High Court, in cases where the lower Appellate Court has omitted to frame or try any issue or to determine any essential question of fact, to itself determine the same upon the evidence on the record; but the High Court in such cases must remit issues for trial to the lower Appellate Court. Balkishen v. Jasoda Kuar (I. L. R., 7 All. 765) and Deokishen v. Bansī (I. L. R., 8 All. 172) overruled on this point.—Girdhari Lal v. Crawford (W.), I. L. R., 9 All. 147. [Dec. 10, 1886.]

567. Such finding and evidence shall become part of the record in the Finding and evidence to be put on record.

Objections to finding.

suit; and either party may, within a time to be fixed by the Appellate Court, present a memorandum of objections to the finding.

After the expiration of the period fixed for presenting such memorandum the Appellate Court shall proceed to determine the appeal.

WHERE a first Appellate Court has remanded a case to the Court of first instance for the trial of issues, and where, on the return of the findings on these issues, no objections have been preferred under s. 567 of the Civil Procedure Code, the Appellate Court, after the period fixed for presenting objections, may, at its discretion, receive or decline to receive any written objection, but is, in any case, bound to consider the findings of the lower Court on the merits, and is not precluded from hearing arguments for and against the findings at the hearing of the appeal. Akbari Begam v. Wilayat Ali (I. L. R., 2 All. 908) followed. The imperative provisions of s. 574 of the Civil Procedure Code apply alike to cases remanded by the first Appellate Court for the trial of issues and to those in which no such remand has taken place.—Umed Ali v. Salima Bibi, I. L. R., 6 All. 383. [May 19, 1884.]

WHERE a first Appellate Court has remanded a case to the Court of first instance for the trial of issues, and where, on the return of findings on these issues, objections under s. 567 of the Civil Procedure Code have not been filed until after the expiration of the prescribed period, the Appellate Court, though not bound to entertain the objections, should nevertheless, upon the hearing of the remand, allow the party filing them to be heard with regard to them. Ratan Singh v. Wazir (I. L. R., 1 All. 165) and Akbari Begam v. Wilayat Ali (I. L. R., 2 All. 908) referred to. An Appellate Court, because it remands issues, does not therefore, in the absence of subsequent objection by either or both of the parties to the findings when returned, divest itself of its power to exercise its judicial mind as to the propriety of such findings; but, apart from any objection by the parties, it should examine and test them to see whether or not they ought to be accepted. Akbari Begam v. Wilayat Ali (I. L. R., 2 All. 908) followed. Umed Ali v. Salima Bibi (I. L. R., 6 All. 383) referred to.—Mumtaz Begam v. Fateh Husain, I. L. R., 6 All. 391. [May 23, 1884.]

568. The parties to an appeal shall not be entitled to produce additional Production of additional evidence, whether oral or documentary, in the evidence in Appellate Court. Appellate Court. But if

(a) the Court against whose decree the appeal is made refuses to admit evidence which ought to have been admitted, or

(b) the Appellate Court requires any document to be produced for any witness to be examined to enable it to pronounce judgment, or for any other substantial cause, the Appellate Court may allow such evidence to be produced, or document to be received, or witness to be examined.

Whenever additional evidence is admitted by an Appellate Court, the Court shall record on its proceedings the reason for such admission.

WHERE the lower Appellate Court allows additional evidence to be taken, though it is not satisfied that the evidence is necessary under cl. a or cl. b of s. 568 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the High Court will interfere, but where this does not appear to be the case, and there is simply an omission on the part of the Appellate Court to record its reasons for allowing additional evidence to be taken, the High Court will not interfere.—Hafiz Abdul Kurrim v. Sri Kissen Rai, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 139. [Nov. 25, 1884.]

Held by the Full Bench (Tyrrell, J., dissenting), that the findings upon issues remanded by the High Court in second appeal cannot be challenged upon the evidence as in first appeals, but objections to these findings must be restricted to the limits within which the original pleas in second appeal are confined. Nivath Singh v. Bhikki Singh (I. L. R., 7 All. 649) referred to. Per Petheram, C. J., and Tyrrell, J. (Straight, J., dissenting).—Ss. 565 and 566 of the Civil Procedure Code are, as far as may be incorporated in chap. 42 of the Code relating to second appeals, and when the evidence for disposing of the real issues in the case has been taken and exists on the record, it is the duty of the High Court, on the hearing of a second appeal, to itself fix and determine such issues on the evidence on the record, and not to put the parties to the expense and delay involved by a remand. Per Straight, J.—S. 587 of the Civil Procedure Code does not mean that the provisions of chap. 41 relating to first appeals are to be applied indiscriminately or in their entirety to second appeals, and implies no warrant for the decision by the High Court of questions of fact in any shape or at any stage of a second appeal. Ramnarain v. Bhawanidin (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 104) and Sheoambar Singh v. Lallu Singh (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 158) referred to. Per Tyrrell, J.—The jurisdiction of Courts of second appeal in respect of questions of fact is restricted, inasmuch as the appeal may not be entertained on “grounds” of fact, but, under the circumstances of s. 566 of the Code, no less than under the abnormal circumstances contemplated by the ruling of the Full Bench in Niyath Singh v. Bhikki Singh (I. L. R., 7 All. 640), the Court may take cognizance of omitted issues of fact, and must determine them if there be evidence upon the record sufficient for that purpose. An issue to be tried in this way will, with all the evidence bearing upon it, be open to consideration from any point of view that may be present to the Court on the evidence and otherwise. In cases where the Court, still acting under s. 566, has been obliged, in the absence of evidence on the record, to supplement the defect through the agency of the Court below, its jurisdiction in respect of such evidence does not become limited thereby, or by reason only of the circumstance that the evidence is accompanied by a “finding” of the inferior Court—the term “finding” being used in s. 566 in its restricted sense of an answer to the proposition referred for inquiry, and not of an award or decision of the issue before the Court.—Balkishen v. Jasoda Kuar, I. L. R., 7 All. 765. [June 4, 1885.]

THE provision in s. 568 of Act XIV. of 1882 as to an Appellate Court recording its reasons for admitting additional evidence is directory merely, and not imperative. Where the first Court of Appeal has admitted additional evidence, the hearing in the second Court of Appeal will not be treated as a first appeal, so as to allow the pleaders to go into the facts.—Gopal Singh v. Jhakri Rai and others, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 37. [Aug. 7, 1885.]

569. Whenever additional evidence is allowed to be received, the Appellate Court may either take such evidence or direct the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, or any other subordinate Court, to take such evidence, and to send it, when taken, to the Appellate Court.

570. In all cases where additional evidence is directed or allowed to be taken, the Appellate Court shall specify the points to which the evidence is to be confined, and record on its proceedings the points so specified.

Of the Judgment in Appeal.

571. The Appellate Court, after hearing the parties or their pleaders, and referring to any part of the proceedings, whether on appeal or in the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, to which reference may be considered necessary, shall pronounce judgment in open Court, either at once or on some future day, of which notice shall be given to the parties or their pleaders.

572. The judgment shall be written in English; provided that, if English is not the mother-tongue of the Judge, and he is not able to write an intelligible judgment in English, the judgment shall be written in his mother-tongue or in the language of the Court.

573. When the language in which the judgment is written is not the language of the Court, the judgment shall, if any party so require, be translated into such language, and the translation, after it has been ascertained to be correct, shall be signed by the Judge or such officer as he appoints in this behalf.

574. The judgment of the Appellate Court shall state—

- (a) the points for determination;
- (b) the decision thereupon;
- (c) the reasons for the decision; and,

(d) when the decree appealed against is reversed or varied, the relief to which the appellant is entitled;

and shall, at the time that it is pronounced, be signed and dated

Date and signature. by the Judge or by the Judges concurring therein.

THE order of adjudication made under s. 551 of the Civil Procedure Code is a decree, and the procedure authorized under that section does not dispense with the necessity of drawing up a judgment.—Royal Reddi v. Linga Reddi, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 1. [Feb. 23, 1881.]

WHERE the lower Appellate Court omits to give reasons for its decision, the High Court will retain the case in second appeal, and either require the Judge to state his reasons, or, in the event of his absence, refer the questions to his successor for fresh trial.—Assanullah v. Hafiz Mahomed Ali, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 932. [June 30, 1884.]

THE judgment of a lower Appellate Court, after setting forth the claim, the defence, the nature of the decree of the first Court, and the effect of the pleas in appeal, concluded, with general observations, as follows: "The point to be determined on appeal is whether or not the decision is consistent with the merits of the case. This Court, having considered the evidence on the record and the judgment of the Munsif, which is explicit enough, concurs with the lower Court . . . The finding arrived at by the Munsif, that the plaintiff's claim is established, is correct and consistent with the evidence. The pleas urged in appeal are therefore undeserving of consideration." Held that this was in law no judgment at all, inasmuch as it did not satisfy the requirements of s. 574 of the Civil Procedure Code, and that the decree of the lower Appellate Court must therefore be set aside, and the record returned to that Court for a proper adjudication, in accordance with the provisions of that section.—Mahadeo Prasad v. Surju Prasad (I. L. R., 8 All. 614) referred to. Observations by Mahmood, J., upon the distinction between the duties of the Courts of first appeal and those of the Courts of second appeal in connection with the provisions of ss. 574 and 578 of the Civil Procedure Code, and with the remand of cases for trial de novo. Ram Narian v. Bhawanidin (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 140; see I. L. R., 9 All. p. 29, foot-note) and Shedamber Singh v. Lalla Singh (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 158; see I. L. R., 9 All. p. 30, foot-note) referred to.—Sohawan and another v. Babu Nand and another, I. L. R., 9 All. 26. [Aug. 6, 1886.]

THE intention of the Legislature as expressed in s. 633 of the Civil Procedure Code was that the High Court might frame rules as to how its judgments should be given, whether orally or in writing, or according to any mode which might appear to it best in the interests of justice. The section does not merely give the High Court power to direct that judgments shall be recorded in a particular book, or with a particular seal. Rule 9 of the rules made under s. 633 in March 1885 is therefore not ultra vires of the Court, and it modifies the provisions of s. 574 in their application to judgments of the High Court. With reference to the terms of rule 9, it is not necessary, in a case where the High Court substantially adopts the whole judgment of the Court below, to go through the formality of re-stating the points at issue, the decision upon each point, and the reasons for the decision. Per Edge, C.J.—Apart from rule 9, it never was intended that s. 574 of the Code should apply to cases where the High Court, having heard the judgment of the Court below and arguments thereon, comes to the conclusion that both the judgment and the reasons which it gives are completely satisfactory and such as the High Court itself would have given. Assuming the provisions of s. 574 to be applicable, a judgment of the High Court stating merely that the appeal must be dismissed with costs and the judgment of the first Court affirmed, and that it was unnecessary to say more than that the Court agreed with the Judge's reasons, is a substantial compliance with those provisions. The judgment of the High Court in a first appeal was as follows: "This appeal must, in my opinion, be dismissed with costs, and the judgment of the first Court affirmed; and I do not think it necessary to say more than that we agree with the Judge's reasons." The appellant applied for leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council on the ground that the requirements of s. 574 of the Civil Procedure Code had not been complied with. Held by the Full Bench that the objection involved no substantial question of law, and that the application for leave to appeal must therefore be rejected.—Sundar Bibi v. Bisheshar Nath and others, I. L. R., 9 All. 93. [Nov. 15, 1886.]

575. When the appeal is heard by a Bench of two or more Judges, Decision when appeal heard by two or more Judges.

the appeal shall be decided in accordance with the opinion of such Judges or of the majority (if any) of such Judges.

If there be no such majority which concurs in a judgment varying or reversing the decree appealed against, such decree shall be affirmed :

Provided that, if the Bench hearing the appeal is composed of two Judges belonging to a Court consisting of more than two Judges, and the Judges composing the Bench differ in opinion on a point of law, the appeal may be referred to one or more of the other Judges of the same Court, and shall be decided according to the opinion of the majority (if any) of all the Judges who have heard the appeal, including those who first heard it.

When there is no such majority which concurs in a judgment varying or reversing the decree appealed against, such decree shall be affirmed.

The High Court may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Code to regulate references under this section.

THE provisions of the Letters Patent of 1865, cl. 36, that when the Judges of a Division Bench are equally divided in opinion, the opinion of the Senior Judge shall prevail, has been superseded by Act X. of 1877, s. 575 (which is extended to miscellaneous proceedings of the nature of appeals by s. 647 of that Act), so far as regards cases to which s. 575 is applicable.—Appaji Bhivráv v. Shivlál Khubchand, I. L. R., 3 Bom. 204 (F. B.). [Mar. 31, 1879.]

THE only Bench which can legally deal with an appeal which has been referred under the provisions of s. 575 of the Civil Procedure Code is one which includes the Judges who first heard the appeal, and whose difference in opinion on a point of law necessitated the reference. Khelut Chunder Ghose v. Tara Churn Koondo Chowdhry (6 W. R. 289), Mahomed Akil v. Asad-un-nissa Bibi (5 Wynn's Rep. 69), and Brand v. Hammersmith and City Railway Company (36 L. J. Q. B. 137), referred to. The word "judgment" as used in Rule II. of the Rules made by the High Court, North-Western Provinces, to regulate references under s. 575 of the Civil Procedure Code, must not be understood in its strict sense, but merely as an expression of opinion containing reasons for a contemplated or proposed judgment.—Rohilkhand and Kumaon Bank, Limited, v. Row, I. L. R., 6 All. 468. [May 5, 1884.]

S. 575 of Act XIV. of 1882 does not take away the right of appeal which is given by cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. When the judgment of a lower Court has been confirmed under s. 575 of the Code of Civil Procedure by reason of one of the Judges of the Appeal Court agreeing upon the facts with the Court below, an appeal will lie against such judgment, notwithstanding the terms of s. 575. Appaji Bhivráv v. Shivlál Khubchand (I. L. R., 3 Bom. 204) approved.—Sri Gridharaji Maharaj Tickait v. Purushottam Gossami, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 814. [June 5, 1884.]

M sued K and J to enforce a right of pre-emption in respect of property which he alleged K had sold to J. K denied that she had sold such property to J. J set up as a defence that M had waived his right of pre-emption. The Court of first instance dismissed the suit on the ground that the alleged sale had not taken place. J appealed, making M and K respondents. The lower Appellate Court dismissed the appeal, also holding that the alleged sale had not taken place. J then appealed to the High Court, making K the respondent. Held that neither the appeal from the original decree in the suit, nor the appeal from the appellate decree therein, was admissible. Held also that the finding as to the alleged sale was one between the plaintiff and defendants in the suit, and not between the defendant-vendor and the defendant-vendee who were litigating, and would not bar adjudication of the matter in issue between them in a suit brought by the latter for the establishment of the sale.—Jumna Singh and another v. Kamar-un-nissa, I. L. R., 3 All. 152 (F. B.). [Aug. 12, 1880.]

case be remanded, in appeal, on account of any error, defect, or irregularity, whether in the decision or in any order passed in the suit, or otherwise, not affecting the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court.

In June 1875, L executed a bond in favour of S, in which he mortgaged, amongst other property, a village called Chand Khera as security for the payment of certain moneys. He subsequently sold such village to A, concealing the fact that it had been mortgaged to S. On this fact coming to the knowledge of A, he threatened L with a criminal prosecution, whereupon L proposed to S, in writing, that the security of a share in a village called Kelsa, which he alleged was his property, should be substituted for the security of Chand Khera. S accepted this proposal by a letter in which he referred to L's proposal in terms. It subsequently appeared that the share in Kelsa did not belong to L, but to another person. S having sued upon his bond, claiming to enforce thereunder a lien upon Chand Khera A set up as a defence to the suit that S had agreed to substitute Kelsa for Chand Khera in the bond, producing S's letter as evidence of the agreement. Held that such letter operated as a release, and should therefore have been stamped and registered. Held also that an objection may properly be taken in a Court of first appeal to an unstamped document, and such Court is bound to entertain the objection, and may direct that the document be stamped and the penalty imposed. Held also that L's fraud vitiated S's agreement to substitute the security of Kelsa for the security of Chand Khera in the bond, and S was entitled, notwithstanding A might have purchased the latter property in good faith, to the enforcement of the lien created thereon by the bond. Mark Biddell Currie v. S. V. Mutu Ramen Chetty (3 B. L. R. 126) discussed.—Safdar Ali Khan v. Lachman Das and others, I. L. R., 2 All. 554. [Dec. 11, 1879.]

THE refusal of a plaintiff-respondent to make good a deficiency in court-fees in respect of his plaint when called upon to do so by the Appellate Court is not a ground upon which the Appellate Court should reverse the decree of the Court of first instance and dismiss the suit.—Mehdi Husain v. Madar Bakshi and others, I. L. R., 2 All. 889. [May 7, 1880.]

In a suit to recover possession of certain immoveable property alleged to have been purchased by the plaintiff from a Hindu widow, who claimed to have held the same as heir of her husband, the defendant, who was the mother of the husband, contended, inter alia, that the alleged purchase and sale were invalid, by reason that she herself was entitled to maintenance out of the property. The first Court gave the plaintiff a decree, and this decree was affirmed on appeal by the District Judge, who, however, gave no reason of his own for his judgment, but merely adopted those of the lower Court. Held that, having regard to the nature of the case and the simplicity of the point for determination, the fact of the District Judge having omitted to state his reasons did not amount to such an error of law within the meaning of s. 578 of the Code of Civil Procedure as affected the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court.—Rohimoui Dabi v. Zemirundin and others, 8 C. L. R. 597. [Mar. 4, 1881.]

A SUIT was instituted and tried on the merits in the Court of a Subordinate Judge without any objection being taken, either by the defendants or by the Court, that the plaint was insufficiently stamped. The defendants appealed on the merits, and the District Judge, being of opinion that the stamp on the plaint was inadequate, called upon the plaintiff to pay the additional fee which would have been payable had the objection been taken and the question rightly decided in the Court of first instance. Held, on second appeal, that the order of the Judge was properly made under s. 12, cl. 2, of the Court Fees (Act VII. of 1870).—Shama Soondary v. Hurne Soondary, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 348. [May 10, 1881.]

THE defendants in a suit on a bond admitted the execution of the bond, but denied that they had received, as the bond recited they had, at the time of its execution, the consideration for it. The Court of first instance, instead of calling on the defendants to establish the fact that they had not received the consideration for the bond, as it ought to have done under the circumstances, irregularly allowed the plaintiff to produce witnesses to prove that the consideration for the bond had been paid at the time of its execution. The evidence of these witnesses proved that the consideration of the bond had not been paid at the time of execution, and that, if it had been paid at all, it had been paid at some subsequent time. The plaintiff did not give any further evidence to establish such payment, and the Court of first instance, without calling on the defendants to establish their defence, dismissed the suit. The lower Appellate Court held that the defendants should have been required to begin under the circumstances, and reversed the decree of the Court of first instance, and gave the plaintiff a decree. Held that, although the plaintiff ought not to have begun, yet as he had done so, and his witnesses had proved that the consideration for the bond had not been paid as admitted in the bond, a new case was opened up, in which the onus was shifted back to the plaintiff to establish that he had, not at the time alleged in the bond, but at some subsequent time, paid to the defendant the consideration for the bond. Also that it was doubtful, having regard to the provisions of s. 578 of Act X. of 1877, whether it was competent for the lower Appellate Court to reverse the decision of the Court of first instance; but even if it were, the lower Appellate Court should not have ignored what had taken place, but should have dealt with the case in appeal in the shape it came before it.—Makund and others v. Bahori Lal, I. L. R., 3 All. 824. [May 26, 1881.]

THE sons of R and of K and of S possessed proprietary rights in two mahals of a certain mauza. P possessed proprietary rights in one of those mahals. In April 1873, the sons of R sold their proprietary rights in both mahals to G. In August 1879, the sons of K sold their proprietary rights in both mahals to G. Later in the same month the sons of S sold their proprietary rights in both mahals to N. G sued N to enforce a right of pre-emption in respect of the sale to the latter, and obtained a decree. P then sued to enforce a right of pre-emption in respect of the three sales mentioned above, so far as they related to the mahal of which he was a co-sharer, joining as defendants G and N and the vendors to them. G alone objected in the Court of first instance to the frame of the suit. That Court overruled the objection, and gave P a decree. The lower Appellate Court reversed this decree on the ground of misjoinder. Held that in respect of G there was no misjoinder, but that in respect of the other defendants there was misjoinder of both causes of action and parties. Inasmuch as, however, G alone objected to the frame of the suit, and the defect did not affect the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court, the lower Appellate Court ought not, regard being had to s. 578 of Act X. of 1877, to have reversed the decree of the Court of first instance by reason of such defect.—Kalian Singh v. Gur Dayal, I. L. R., 4 All. 163. [Dec. 14, 1881.]

THE plaintiffs in this suit, alleging that they were co-sharers of a certain village, that certain land situate in such village was the property of the co-sharers, and that such land had been improperly sold by the persons occupying it to one of the co-sharers, sued the vendors and the purchaser and the other co-sharers for possession of their share of such land and the setting aside of the sale so far as their share was concerned, and valued the suit according to their share. Held that the error in the frame and valuation of the suit, inasmuch as it did not affect the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit was instituted or the merits of the case, was not, under s. 578 of the Civil Procedure Code, a ground on which the Appellate Court should have reversed the decree of the Court of first instance. Unnoda Persad Roy v. Erskin (12 B. L. R. 370) distinguished.—Param and others v. Achal, I. L. R., 4 All. 230. [Feb. 10, 1882.]

SUIT by payee against drawer upon a hundi drawn in British India upon a person at Colombo. The hundi was not stamped when drawn. Objection taken to its admission in evidence by defendant was allowed by the Munsif, but plaintiff was permitted to sue for the amount due upon the original consideration. The suit was dismissed on the ground that no consideration was proved. Upon appeal the District Judge held that the hundi did not require a stamp as it was not intended to operate in British India, and admitted the hundi in evidence as a business-letter admitting responsibility, and found that there was consideration. Held upon second appeal that the hundi having been admitted in evidence, though contrary to law, by the District Judge, no objection could be taken to the decree in second appeal upon that account.—Ramasami Chetti v. Ramasami Chetti and another, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 220. [April 19, 1882.]

A MAHOMEDAN residing at Zanzibar let a house situated there to the defendant, to be held by the latter as long as he pleased, under a lease in which he (the lessor) stipulated never to remove the lessee. The plaintiff subsequently, with full knowledge of the lease, purchased the same house from the lessor, and as such purchaser sued to eject the defendant. The plaintiff tendered evidence to show that by the custom of Zanzibar the defendant's tenancy was determined upon the sale by the landlord. This evidence was refused. Held that the alleged custom, even if proved, was invalid. It was unreasonable, as enabling a man, after having granted a lease, to deprive the lessee of the entire benefit of his lease. The exclusion of evidence in the lower Court is not sufficient ground for reversing that Court's decree, unless the Appeal Court comes to the conclusion that the evidence refused, if it had been received, ought to have varied the decision.—DeSouza (C. R.) v. Pestanji, I. L. R., 8 Bom. 408. [April 29, 1884.]

Per Petheram, C.J., and Brodhurst, Mahmood, and Duthoit, JJ.—The object of ss. 19 and 20 of the Bengal Civil Courts Act, 1871, was to create in the District Judge, Subordinate Judge, and Munsif, concurrent jurisdiction up to Rs. 1,000. Per Petheram, C.J.—S. 15 of the Civil Procedure Code is a proviso to those sections. The word “shall” in that section is imperative on the seitor. The word is used for the purpose of protecting the Courts. The suitor shall be obliged to bring his suit in the Court of the lowest grade competent to try it. The object of the Legislature is that the Court of the higher grade shall not be overcrowded with suits. Whenever an Act confers a benefit, the donee may exercise the same or not at his pleasure. The proviso is for the benefit of the Court of the higher grade, and it is not bound to take advantage of it. If it does not wish to try the suit, it may refuse to entertain it. If it wishes to retain the suit in its Court, it may do so; it is not bound to refuse to entertain it. Per Duthoit, J.—The words in s. 57 of the Civil Procedure Code “shall be” are an instruction which the Court is bound to follow; and they are, therefore, a restraint upon jurisdiction. The effect, therefore, of the concurrent jurisdiction of Subordinate Judge and Munsifs is not to allow to a Subordinate Judge discretion as to accepting or not accepting for trial by himself suits cognizable by the inferior tribunal. Brodhurst and Mahmood, JJ.—S. 15 of the Civil Procedure Code is a rule of procedure, not of jurisdiction; and whilst it lays down that a suit shall be instituted in the Court of the lowest grade, it does not oust the jurisdiction of the Courts of higher grades. Russick Chunder Mohunt v. Ram Lal Shaha (22 W. R. 301), Sircar v. Begum Bibi (25 W. R. 219), followed. Per Oldfield, J.—S. 15 of the Civil Procedure Code is a provision entirely of procedure as distinct from jurisdiction, and its effect on s. 19 of the Bengal Civil Courts Act is that the jurisdiction of the District Judge and Subordinate Judge extends to all original suits cognizable by the Civil Court, subject in its exercise to a certain procedure, namely, that the suits be instituted in the Court of the lowest grade competent to try them. Held, therefore, by Petheram, C.J., and Oldfield, Brodhurst, and Mahmood, JJ., where a Subordinate Judge had tried a suit which a Munsif, a Court of a lower grade, might have tried, that the Subordinate Judge had not acted without jurisdiction. The plaint in such suit had been in the first instance presented to the Munsif, who had returned it to be presented to the Subordinate Judge. Per Duthoit, J.—The decree of the Subordinate Judge would not be liable to be reversed in appeal for want of jurisdiction, for the jurisdiction was there, though it ought not to have been exercised. This view of the matter was consistent with the received canon of construction, that unless the Legislature uses negative words, or words showing an intention to treat the observance of a rule of procedure as essential, the rule will ordinarily be treated as a direction only. Under the circumstances, therefore, the District Judge had, in appeal, correctly refused to entertain the plea of defect in jurisdiction. Per Mahmood, J.—The institution of a suit in a Court of higher grade than the Court which is competent to try it is not a question either as to the jurisdiction or affecting the merits of the case. It is a question of the kind provided for by s. 578 of the Civil Procedure Code, and the irregularity is not one which affects “the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court” within the meaning of the section. The plea of want of jurisdiction can be entertained for the first time at any stage of a suit, provided there is on the record sufficient material to substantiate it.—Nidhi Lal v. Mazhar Husain, I. L. R., 7 All. 230. [Dec. 18, 1894.]

A suit brought against K, the widow of R, a Hindu, by the representatives of R's brothers, H and P, for possession of his estate, ended in a compromise by which the defendant recognized the plaintiffs' rights, and conceded that the family was joint. After K's death, M, a daughter of R, brought a suit on her own behalf against the above-mentioned plaintiffs for possession of her father's estate, but afterwards withdrew her claim. Subsequently, S, M's son, who had been born after K's compromise, brought a suit against M and the representatives of H and P to recover possession of the estate, on the allegation that, the family being a divided one, he was entitled, under the Hindu law, to succeed to such estate, and that both the compromise entered into by K and the withdrawal of the former suit by M were in fraud of his succession and did not affect his rights. The Court of first instance found that the plaintiff was entitled to succeed to the estate, but that, his mother being still alive, he was entitled to possession after her death only, and, upon these findings, gave him a decree declaring his right to possession on M's death. The lower Appellate Court reversed the decree, holding that the compromise entered into by K was conclusive against the plaintiff's claim, and also that, during his mother's lifetime, he had no locus standi to maintain the suit. Per Mahmood, J., that the plaintiff's rights as a daughter's son (which were not affected by his birth having taken place after his maternal grandfather's death) did not entitle him, under ordinary circumstances, to succeed to his maternal grandfather's estate in a divided Hindu family during the existence of a daughter, whether she were his own mother or his maternal aunt; and that the claim for possession was therefore rightly dismissed. Amirtolal Bose v. Rajoneekant Mitter (15 B. L. R. 10; L. R., 2 Ind. Ap. 118), Sibta v. Badri Prasad (I. L. R., 3 All. 184), and Baij Nath v. Mahabir (I. L. R., 1 All. 608), referred to. Also that the prayer in the plaint was wide enough to include a prayer for declaratory relief such as the first Court had given. Also that the rule whereby decrees obtained against a Hindu widow succeeding to her husband's estate as heir are binding by way of res judicata against all who in the order of succession come after her, and in that sense may be dealt with as her representatives, was limited to decrees fairly obtained against the widow in a contested and bona-fide litigation, and would not apply to the compromise effected by K, which could scarcely be regarded as on a higher footing than an alienation which the widow in possession of her husband's divided estate might have made, and which the plaintiff distinctly alleged had not been fairly obtained. Bani Anand Kunwar v. Court of Wards (I. L. R., 6 Cal. 764; L. R., 8 Ind. Ap. 14), Nand Kumar v. Radha Kuari (I. L. R., 1 All. 282), and Katam Natchiar's Case (I. L. R., 1 A. 543), referred to. Also that M's withdrawal of her suit was not a bar to the suit of the plaintiff. Also that it could not be said that a daughter's son was not, under any condition, competent to maintain a declaratory suit of this nature during the lifetime of his mother or maternal aunt, in respect of his maternal grandfather's property, to the full ownership of which he had a reversionary right. Also that the awarding of declaratory relief as regulated by s. 42 of the Specific Relief Act is a discretionary power which Courts of equity are empowered to exercise with reference to the circumstances of each case and the nature of the facts stated in the plaint and the prayer of the plaintiff; that so long as a Court of first instance possesses jurisdiction to entertain a declaratory suit, and, entering into the merits of the case, arrives at right conclusions, and awards a declaratory decree, such a decree cannot be reversed in appeal simply because the discretion has been improperly exercised; and that such improper exercise of discretion under s. 42 of the Specific Relief Act has no higher footing than that of an error, defect, or irregularity not affecting the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court within the meaning of s. 578 of the Civil Procedure Code. This does not imply that, even in cases where the discretionary power to award declaratory relief has been exercised wholly arbitrarily and in a manner grossly inconsistent with judicial principles, the Court of appeal would have no power to interfere. Ram Kanaye Chuckerbutty v. Prosunno Coomar Sein (13 W. R. 175), Sadut Ali Khan v. Khajeh Abdool Gunney (11 B. L. R. 203; L. R., Ind. Ap. Sup. Vol. 165), Sheo Singh Rai v. Dakho (I. L. R., 1 All. 688; L. R., 6 Ind. Ap. 37), and Damoodar Surmah v. Mohes Kant Surmah (21 W. R. 54) referred to.—Sant Kumar v. Deo Saran, I. L. R., 8 All. 365. [May 12, 1886.]

A SUIT was brought by the Political Agent, Southern Marátha Country, as administrator of the estate of the Chief of Mudhol, who was described in the plaint as being nineteen years of age, to eject the defendants from certain lands, belonging to the Chief, situated in the Sátára District. The defendants raised a preliminary objection to the institution of the suit by the Political Agent, on the ground that he was neither a certificated guardian of the Chief under the Bombay Minors Act (XX. of 1864), nor a recognized agent within the meaning of s. 37 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held that the appointment, by Government, of the Political Agent to manage the estate of the Chief of Mudhol during a certain period could not give him the position contemplated by the Bombay Minors Act (XX. of 1864). With regard to property in British India, he had no authority to sue on behalf of the minor, without obtaining a certificate of administration under the Act. Held also that the Political Agent was not a "recognized agent" of the Chief of Mudhol within the meaning of s. 37, cl. c of the Code of Civil Procedure. Held also that the irregularity of the Political Agent's suing for the Chief, without authority, was one affecting the merits of the case, though not the jurisdiction of the Court. If the Political Agent was not properly representing the Chief, he had no merits, no right as against the defendants. The District Judge was, therefore, right in reversing the decrees of the first Court, s. 578 of the Code of Civil Procedure having no application to the present case.—Venkatráv Ráje Ghorpáde v. Mádhavá Rámchandrá, I. L. R., 11 Bom. 58. [July 28, 1886.]

ALTHOUGH the proper and regular manner of giving permission to sue on behalf of a minor is by an order recorded in the order-sheet, there is, nevertheless, nothing in the nature of the sanction provided by the s. 3 of Act XL. of 1858 which takes it out of the general rule of evidence that sanction may be proved by express words or by implication. Where on a construction of the plaint and the pleadings it is found that the minor is the real plaintiff, the mere fact of his not having been properly described in accordance with s. 440 of the Civil Procedure Code is no ground for setting aside a decree passed in the suit.—Bhaba Pershad Khan v. Secretary of State for India, I. L. R., 14 Cal. 129. [Aug. 14, 1886.]

Of the Decree in Appeal.

Date and contents of decree.

579. The decree of the Appellate Court shall bear date the day on which the judgment was pronounced.

The decree shall contain the number of the appeal, and the memorandum of appeal, including the names and description of the appellant and respondent, and shall specify clearly the relief granted or other determination of the appeal.

The decree shall also state the amount of costs incurred in the appeal, and by what parties and in what proportions such costs and the costs in the suit are to be paid.

The decree shall be signed and dated by the Judge or Judges who passed it :

Provided that where there are more Judges than one, if there be a difference of opinion among them, it shall not be necessary for any Judge dissenting from the judgment of the Court to sign the decree.

Judge dissenting from judgment need not sign decree.

THE order of adjudication made under s. 551 of the Civil Procedure Code is a decree, and the procedure authorized under that section does not dispense with the necessity of drawing up a judgment.—Royal Reddi v. Linga Reddi, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 1. [Feb. 23, 1881.]

On a second appeal the High Court awarded the plaintiff's claim with costs throughout; but the claim, as stated in the paper-book of appeal, differed from the claim as it had been stated in the plaint. Held that the award of the claim was to be understood as referring to the claim as stated in the plaint, and not as described in the paper-book. Ss. 579 and 587 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) do not require the claim to be stated in the decree, so as to make such statement a part of the decree itself.—Soude Shrinivasapu v. Krishnappa Hegde, I. L. R., 11 Bom. 177. [Sep. 21, 1886.]

Copies of judgment and decree to be furnished to parties.

580. Certified copies of the judgment and decree in appeal shall be furnished to the parties on application to the Court and at their expense.

581. A copy of the judgment and of the decree, certified by the Appellate Court or such officer as it appoints in this behalf, shall be sent to the Court which passed the decree appealed against, and shall be filed with the original proceedings in the suit, and an entry of the judgment of the Appellate Court shall be made in the register of civil suits.

Certified copy of decree to be sent to Court whose decree appealed against.

582. The Appellate Court shall have, in appeals under this chapter, the same powers, and shall perform, as nearly as may be, the same duties, as are conferred and imposed by this Code on Courts of original jurisdiction in respect of suits instituted under Chapter V.; and in Chapter XXI., so far as may be, the words "plaintiff," "defendant," and "suit," shall be held to include an appellant, a respondent, and an appeal, respectively, in proceedings arising out of the death, marriage, or insolvency of parties to an appeal.

The provisions hereinbefore contained shall apply to appeals under this chapter, so far as such provisions are applicable.

UNDER s. 582 of the Civil Procedure Code, a Court of Appeal has the power, with the consent of the parties, of referring to arbitration matters in dispute in an appeal. Juguesur Day v. Kritartho Moyses Dossee (12 B. L. R. 266) dissented from.—Sangaralingam Pillai, In re, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 78. [Oct. 7, 1880.]

Per Mitter, J. (Garth, C.J., dubitante).—Notwithstanding that s. 582, Civil Procedure Code, does not expressly direct that the word “plaintiff” occurring in s. 366 shall be held to include an “appellant,” yet the power conferred by s. 366 on the Court of original jurisdiction to award costs against the estate of a deceased plaintiff may, by analogy, be taken to be conferred on the Appellate Court. Lakshmi Bai v. Balkrishna (I. L. R., 4 Bom. 654) followed. Rajmonee Dabee v. Chunder Kant Sanda (I. L. R., 8 Cal. 440). [Dec. 21, 1882.]

AN order rejecting a memorandum of appeal as barred by limitation is a “decree” within the meaning of s. 2 of the Civil Procedure Code; it is therefore appealable, and not open to revision by the High Court under s. 622 of the Code. Gajraj Singh v. Bhagwant Singh and Dianatullah (Weekly Notes, 1883, p. 255) and Rog. v. Wajid Ali Shah (I. L. R., 6 All. 438) distinguished. Gulab Rai v. Mangli Lal (I. L. R., 7 All. 42). [June 29, 1884.]

UNDER s. 368 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), a plaintiff may have the representatives of a deceased sole defendant placed on the record so that he may continue his suit against them, but there is no section which allows the representatives of a sole defendant, who has died, to be placed on the record at their own request. Consequently, s. 582 gives no authority to a Civil Court to place on the record, at their own request, the representatives of a deceased sole respondent. Such an application cannot be entertained. Bai Javer v. Hathising Kesrisingh, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 56. [July 14, 1884.]

HAVING regard to s. 3 of Act XIV. of 1882, it is clear that the word “Code” in sch. 2, art. 171B of Act XV. of 1877, applies to the present Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882), and that, therefore, the word “defendant” in s. 368 of that Code, when read with s. 582, must be held to include “respondent.”—In the Matter of the Petition of Soshi Bhusan Chand; Soshi Bhusan Chand v. Grish Chandor Talukdar, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 694. [Jan. 27, 1885.]

HELD by the Full Bench (Mahmood, J., dissenting), that s. 582 of the Civil Procedure Code does not make the provisions of chap. 21, relating to the death of a defendant in a suit, applicable to the death of a plaintiff-respondent in an appeal, so as to render it obligatory on the defendant-appellant to make an application to the Court praying that the legal representatives of the deceased be made parties to the appeal; and that, where there has been no such application, the appeal does not abate. Per Petheram, C.J.—The words, “so far as may be,” in the second clause of the first para. of s. 582, must be construed as meaning “so far as may be necessary to carry into effect the remedies contemplated by chap. 21.” Per Mahmood, J., contra, that the object of s. 582 of the Civil Procedure Code is to obviate the necessity of repeating the provisions of chap. 21 so as to make them applicable to appeals, and the words “appellant” and “respondent” as used in the section include both plaintiffs and defendants in an appeal; that the whole Code maintains the analogy between the position of a respondent and that of a defendant for the purposes of being impleaded and brought before the Court; that chap. 21 applies to cases where a plaintiff-respondent has died; and that, in such a case, and where no application has been made, within the period prescribed therefor, praying that the legal representatives of the deceased be made parties in his place, the appeal abates. Also per Mahmood, J.—The word “defendant” as used in art. 171B of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877) must be taken to include a respondent, whether plaintiff or defendant in the suit. Lakshmi Bai v. Balkrishna (I. L. R., 4 Bom. 654), Rajmonee Dabee v. Chaudar Kant Sanda (I. L. R., 8 Cal. 440), and Bai Javer v. Hathising Kesrisingh (I. L. R., 9 Bom. 56), referred to.—Narain Das v. Lajja Ram, I. L. R., 7 All. 603. [Feb. 21, 1885.]

Per Curiam (Kerran, J., dissenting).—An application by an appellant to make the representative of a deceased respondent party to the appeal does not fall under art. 171B, but under art. 178 of sch. 2 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1871.—Lakshmi v. Sri Devi, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 1. [May 2, 1886.]

AN appeal was preferred against a decree of an Original Court dismissing a suit, and the Appellate Court sent the case back for the purpose of certain evidence being taken, and certified to it. Pending that being done, the parties applied to the Appellate Court to refer the case to arbitration, and that Court referred that application to the Original Court for disposal, although the case was still pending on its own file for disposal. Subsequently another application was made to the Original Court to refer the case to arbitration, and on the 10th May the record was sent to the arbitrator with directions to submit his award within seven days. On the 12th September, as the award had not been sent in, the Original Court passed an order recalling the record, and subsequently the award of the arbitrator, dated the 12th September, was filed. The Original Court thereupon forwarded the record to the Appellate Court for its decision. Objections were taken to the award, but overruled, and the Appellate Court passed an order directing the case to be sent back to the Original Court, with orders to pass a formal decree in accordance with the award of the arbitrator. Held that a second appeal lay against the last-mentioned order, inasmuch as it amounted to a decree under the provisions of s. 2 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held also that the award was bad in law, because the time within which it was directed to be made had never been enlarged, and the Court's order of the 12th September recalling the record could not be taken as an indication that the time was enlarged. Semble, an Appellate Court has the power to refer a case to arbitration at the instance of the parties under s. 582 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882. In re Sangaralingam Pillai (I. L. R., 3 Mad. 78) cited; Jugessur Dey v. Kritartho Moyee Dossee (12 B. L. R., 266) cited and distinguished.—Bhugwan Dass Marwari v. Nund Lall Sein, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 178. [Aug. 10, 1885.]

THERE is no power, in the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882) to make a party to the suit a co-appellant. Ss. 32 and 582 of the Code give to an Appellate Court power only to strike out the name of a party, or to direct new parties to be added to the suit, whether as plaintiffs or defendants.—Vásudev Bákrishna v. Sálubái, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 227. [Sep. 7, 1885.]

WHERE, on appeal from a decree dismissing a suit, the Appellate Court, being of opinion that the plaint was informally drawn, and its allegations regarding the cause of action not sufficiently specific, gave the plaintiff permission, under s. 373 of the Civil Procedure Code, to withdraw the suit, with leave to institute a fresh one, held the order of the Appellate Court was a "decree" within the meaning of the Civil Procedure Code, and afforded a proper ground of second appeal to the High Court. Per Straight, J., that, with reference to the terms of s. 582 of the Civil Procedure Code, the Appellate Court had power to avail itself of the provisions of s. 373, and, therefore, had a discretion to make the order allowing the plaintiff to withdraw the suit and institute a fresh one. Gregory v. Doolee Chand Kandary Mull (14 W. R., O. J., 17) and Khatoon Kunwar v. Hurdoot Narain Singh (20 W. R. 163) referred to. Also per Straight, J., that it could not be said that the Appellate Court in this case had exercised its discretion so unreasonably or erroneously as to compel the interference of the High Court with it in appeal. Per Tyrrell, J., that it might be taken that the Appellate Court, though not so stating in express terms, meant to set aside, and did set aside, the decree of the Court of first instance, regarding it as a decree which could not have been rightly made, and must be set aside, by reason of the radical defect in the plaint, the basis of the suit and the decree; and that, in this view, there was no legal objection to the exercise by the Appellate Court of the discretionary power of chap. 22 of the Code:—Ganga Ram v. Data Ram, I. L. R., 8 All. 82. [Dec. 18, 1885.]

THE plaintiff's claim to redeem certain lands was rejected by a Subordinate Judge on 21st December 1882. On the 1st February 1883, the plaintiff, who was an agriculturist, presented an application for review to the Special Judge appointed under the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act. His application was rejected by that Judge, who was of opinion that the plaintiff's remedy lay in an appeal to the District Judge. The plaintiff was not informed of the result of his application to the Special Judge until the following May, at which time the Court of the District Judge was closed for vacation. On the 3rd June 1883, he presented an appeal on the opening of the District Court. The District Judge dismissed the appeal as barred by limitation. On appeal to the High Court a preliminary objection being taken that a second appeal would not lie, held that the order of the District Judge, having the force of a decree within the meaning of s. 2 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), was appealable under s. 540 of the Code. Order discharged under the circumstances, the District Judge having given no reasons for making the order.—Raghunáth Gopal v. Nilu Nátháji, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 452. [Mar. 31, 1886.]

ART. 171B, sch. 2, of the Limitation Act (XV. of 1877), applies to applications to have the representative of a deceased defendant-respondent made a respondent.—Baldeo v. Bismihan Begam, I. L. R., 9 All. 118. [Nov. 25, 1886.]

583. When a party entitled to any benefit (by way of restitution or otherwise) under a decree passed in an appeal under this chapter desires to obtain execution of the same, he shall apply to the Court which passed the decree against which the appeal was preferred; and such Court shall proceed to execute the decree passed in appeal, according to the rules hereinbefore prescribed for the execution of decrees in suits.

A DECREE for pre-emption was passed conditionally upon payment by the decree-holder of Rs. 1,139, and in July 1880 the plaintiff paid this amount into Court, and it was drawn out by the defendant in August 1881. Meanwhile, in July 1881, the High Court in second appeal raised the amount to be paid by the plaintiff to Rs. 2,400, but the plaintiff allowed the time limited for payment of the excess difference to elapse without paying it, and the decree for pre-emption thereupon became dead. In May 1883, the plaintiff applied in the execution department for the refund of the deposit which had been drawn and retained by the defendant. This application was granted, and the defendant ordered to refund; and this order was confirmed on appeal in January 1885, and by the High Court in second appeal in May 1885. Meanwhile the first Court had suspended execution of the order pending the result of the appeal, and in December 1884 removed the application temporarily from the "pending" list. In February 1885, the plaintiff applied for restitution of the amount deposited, asking for attachment and sale of property belonging to the defendant. This application was dismissed as barred by limitation. Held that this application was only a revival of the application of May 1883, which was within time. Held also that the plaintiff was, in the sense of s. 583 of the Civil Procedure Code, "a party entitled to a benefit by way of restitution under the decree" of the High Court of July 1881; that it was a necessary incident of that decree that he was entitled to restitution of the sum which he had paid as the sufficient price under the decree of the lower Appellate Court; that he was competent under s. 583 to move the local Court to execute the appellate decree in this respect in his favour "according to the rules prescribed for the execution of decree in suits;" that he did this in May 1883 by an application made according to law in the proper Court in the sense of art. 179 of the Limitation Act; and that his present application to the same effect, being within three years from that application, was within time.—Nand Ram v. Sita Ram, I. L. R., 8 All. 545. [July 8, 1886.]

WHERE a review of judgment has been applied for and, after notice to the other side, refused, the period during which such application was pending cannot be excluded in computing the period of limitation for execution of the decree under art. 179 (3) of sch. 2 of the Indian Limitation Act. See Simla.—An application for refund of moneys levied in execution of a decree subsequently reversed on appeal is not governed by art. 179, but by art. 178 of sch. 2 of the Limitation Act.—Kurupam Zamindar v. Sadasiva, I. L. R., 10 Mad. 66. [Sep. 25, 1886.]

CHAPTER XLII.

OF APPEALS FROM APPELLATE DECREES.

584. Unless when otherwise provided by this Code or by any other law, from all decrees passed in appeal by any Court subordinate to a High Court, an appeal shall lie to the High Court on any of the following grounds (namely)—

- (a) the decision being contrary to some specified law or usage having the force of law;
- (b) the decision having failed to determine some material issue of law or usage having the force of law;
- (c) a substantial error or defect in the procedure as prescribed by this Code or any other law, which may possibly have produced error or defect in the decision of the case upon the merits.

A SUIT to redeem a usufructuary mortgage of certain lands was instituted in the Munsif's Court. After the suit had been admitted, and the parties called on to produce evidence, the Munsif ordered the plaint in the suit to be returned to the plaintiff for presentation in the proper Court, on the ground that the suit should have been instituted in the Court of the Subordinate Judge, the value of the property in the suit being beyond the jurisdiction of a Munsif. Held that, under Act VII. of 1858, the Munsif's order was appealable to the lower Appellate Court, and, under Act X. of 1877, the lower Appellate Court's order to High Court. Where the question in dispute in such a suit is not only whether the property has been redeemed out of the usufruct, but whether the property and the right to redeem belongs to the plaintiff, and the value of the property exceeds Rs. 1,000, such suit is not cognisable by a Munsif.—Kalian Dass v. Naval Singh, I. L. R., 1 All. 620. [Mar. 7, 1878.]

THE holder of a decree for money applied for the attachment, in the execution of decree, of certain moneys deposited in Court to the credit of the judgment-debtor. On 4th June 1877, the Court of first instance refused the attachment on the ground that the decree directed the sale of certain immoveable property for its satisfaction, and awarded no other relief. The order of the Court of first instance was affirmed by the lower Appellate Court on the 4th August 1877. Act X. of 1877, repealing Act VIII. of 1859 and Act XXIII. of 1865, came into force on 1st October 1877. On 13th November 1877, the decree-holder applied to the High Court for the admission of a second appeal from the order of the lower Appellate Court, on the ground that the decree had been misconstrued. Held that an appeal under the repealed Act VIII. of 1859 was admissible under Act I. of 1868, s. 6, and that the order of the lower Appellate Court was appealable under Act X. of 1877, s. 584.—Thakur Prasad v. Ashan Ali, I. L. R., 1 All. 668. [May 27, 1878.] See also Rufjit Singh and others v. Meherban Koer, I. L. R., 3 Cal. 662 [May 14, 1878]; Murli Dhar v. Parsotam Dass and another, I. L. R., 2 All. 91 [Nov. 28, 1878]; Hurbuns Sahai and others v. Bhairu Pershad Singh and others, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 259 [Feb. 19, 1879]. But see Uda Begam v. Isam-ud-din, I. L. R., 2 All. 74. [Nov. 6, 1878.]

A DEFENDANT who obtains a judgment in his favour in the Court of first instance, and who, on appeal by the plaintiff, does not appear at the hearing of the appeal, or present a petition for a re-hearing, may, under Act X. of 1877, s. 584, present a second appeal against the decree of the lower Appellate Court.—Modaltha ex parte, I. L. R., 2 Mad. 75. [Nov. 27, 1878.]

AN appellant, who has obtained a decree setting aside the decision of the Court of first instance, is not entitled to a further appeal to the High Court, on the ground that he is dissatisfied with some of the findings recorded in the judgment of the lower Appellate Court, an appeal from an appellate decree under s. 584 being strictly restricted to matters contained in the decree alone.—Koylash Chunder Koosari v. Ram Lal Nag, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 206. [May 20, 1880.]

AN order on appeal from a decree in an original suit of the nature cognizable in Mufassal Courts of Small Causes, under s. 562 of Act X. of 1877, remanding the suit for re-trial, is appealable, s. 586 of Act X. of 1877 notwithstanding, as that section applies to appeals from appellate decrees, and not to appeals from orders.—Collector of Bijoor v. Jufar Ali Khan, I. L. R., 3 All. 18. [June 11, 1880.]

M SUE D K and J to enforce a right of pre-emption in respect of property which he alleged K had sold to J. K denied that she had sold such property to J. J set up as a defence that M had waived his right of pre-emption. The Court of first instance dismissed the suit on the ground that the alleged sale had not taken place. J appealed, making M and K respondents. The lower Appellate Court dismissed the appeal, also holding that the alleged sale had not taken place. J then appealed to the High Court, making K the respondent. Held that neither the appeal from the original decree in the suit, nor the appeal from the appellate decree therein, was admissible. Held also that the finding as to the alleged sale was one between the plaintiff and defendants in the suit, and not between the defendant-vendor and the defendant-vendee who were litigating, and would not bar adjudication of the matter in issue between them in a suit brought by the latter for the establishment of the sale.—Jumna Singh and another v. Kamar-un-nissa, I. L. R., 3 All. 152 (F. B.). [Aug. 12, 1880.]

WHEN the decree of a subordinate Court is under appeal to the High Court, it is open to the High Court to vary it, either in points in which it is erroneous, or in respect of matters occurring subsequently to the date of such decree which are admitted. The plaintiff obtained a decree in a partition-suit in the Subordinate Judge's Court for his share in certain joint family property.

THE plaintiff, at the hearing of the second appeal, claimed a larger share in the family-property than he had been awarded by the decree of the Courts below. Held that the plaintiff was entitled to a share in that of the co-parcener who died pendente lite, and that the decree appealed from ought to be varied accordingly. Joy Narain Giri v. Girish Chunder Myte (I. L. R., 4 Cal. 484) distinguished. A decree for partition does not operate as a severance so long as it remains under appeal.—Sakharam Mahadev Dange v. Hari Krishna Dange, I. L. R., 6 Bom. 113. [Oct. 4, 1881.]

WHERE the lower Appellate Court has clearly misapprehended what the evidence before it was, and has thus been led to discard or not give sufficient weight to important evidence, and to give weight to other evidence to which it is not entitled, and has thus been led, not into any mere incidental mistake, but totally to misconceive the case, the High Court will interfere in second appeal, though it is not the ordinary course of procedure for it to interfere in such cases with any findings of facts which have been arrived at by the lower Appellate Court. In a suit on a mortgage-bond the plaintiffs are entitled to recover the agreed rate of interest without any deduction.—Futtehma Begum and others v. Mohamed Ausur, 1 L. R., 9 Cal. 309. [Aug. 1, 1882.]

WHERE a lower Appellate Court, instead of remanding a suit under s. 566 of the Civil Procedure Code, erroneously remands it under s. 562, and the party aggrieved by its order appeals to the High Court under cl. 28, s. 588, the High Court cannot deal with the case as if it were a first appeal from a decree. All that the High Court can do is to rectify the procedure of the lower Appellate Court, and to direct that it decide the case itself on the merits. Badam v. Imrat (I. L. R., 3 All. 675) distinguished. Ramnarain v. Bhananidin (2 Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 104) and Shecumber Singh v. Lallu Singh (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 158) referred to.—Sohan Lal v. Aziz-un-nissa Begam, I. L. R., 7 All. 136. [Nov. 4, 1884.]

A JUDGE, after disposing of an appeal on the 1st March 1883, again took it up, and, on the 21st March 1883, directed the appellant to pay additional court-fees on her memorandum of appeal. On the 2nd May 1883, the appellant paid the additional court-fees under protest, and a decree was then prepared, bearing date the 1st March 1883, but it referred to, and carried into effect, the subsequent order of the 21st March and the 2nd May. Per Mahmood, J., that as soon as the Judge had passed the decree of the 1st March 1883, he ceased to have any power over it, and was not competent to introduce new matters not dealt with by the judgment; that the order of the 21st March and the deposit of the 2nd May, whether right or wrong, were not proceedings to which effect could be given in the antecedent decree of the 1st March 1883; and that the decree was ultra vires to that extent, and was, therefore, liable to correction in second appeal under s. 584 of the Civil Procedure Code. The powers conferred by ss. 54 (a) and (c) and 55, read with s. 582 of the Civil Procedure Code, or by s. 12 of the Court-fees Act (VII. of 1870) read with cl. 2 of s. 10, are intended to be exercised before the disposal of the case, and not after it has been decided finally, so far as the Court is concerned. The powers conferred by s. 28 of the Court-fees Act cannot be exercised by an order passed after the decision of the case to which the question of the payment of court-fees relates, and, even assuming that they can be so exercised, such an order, though it may be subject to such rules as to appeal or revision as the law may provide, cannot be given effect to by making insertions in an antecedent decree. Per Oldfield, J.—That the Court had power to make the order it did, inasmuch as the collection of court-fees was no part of a Judge's functions in the trial of a suit which could be said to have ceased with its determination; and the provisions of the Court-fees Act fixed no time within which the presiding Judge could exercise his power of ordering documents to be stamped, and seemed, on the other hand, to contemplate the exercise of that power at any time subsequent to the receipt, filing, or use of a document, and to make the validity of the document and the proceedings relative thereto dependent on the document being properly stamped.—Mahadei v. Ram Kishen Das, I. L. R., 7 All. 523. [Jan. 15, 1885.]

IN a suit to obtain possession of certain property and to set aside a deed called a deed of endowment (wakfnama), on the ground that the defendant had fraudulently obtained its execution, the defendant pleaded (i) that the deed was a valid one, and (ii) that she was in possession of the property in satisfaction of a dower-debt, and her possession could not be disturbed so long as the debt remained unsatisfied. The Court of first instance held that the deed was invalid, but the defendant was entitled to remain in possession of the property till her dower-debt was satisfied, and the Court passed a decree which merely dismissed the suit, without embodying the finding as to the deed. On appeal by the plaintiff to the District Judge, the defendant filed objections under s. 561 of the Civil Procedure Code in regard to the first Court's decision that the deed of endowment was invalid. The Judge dismissed the plaintiff's appeal, affirming the finding as to dower, and, refusing to decide the question of the validity of the deed as being unnecessary for disposal of the claim, disallowed the defendant's objections. The defendant appealed to the High Court. Held by the full Bench (Oldfield and Mahmood, J.J., dissenting) that if a decree is, upon the face of it, entirely in favour of a party to a suit, such decree being the thing which by law is made appealable, and nothing else, that party has no right of appeal therefrom. If, in the judgment, of which such decree is the formal expression, findings have been recorded upon some issues against that party, and he desires to have formal effect given to them by the decree, so as to allow of his filing objections thereto under s. 561 of the Civil Procedure Code, or of appealing therefrom under s. 540, he must take steps under s. 206 to have the decree properly brought into conformity with the judgment, so that there may be matters on the face of it to show that something has been decided against him; but if he fails to take this course, the decree, though in general terms, will stand good as finally deciding the issues raised by the pleadings upon which the ultimate determination of the cause and the decree itself rested. The findings in a judgment upon matters which subsequently turn out to be immaterial to the grounds upon which a suit is finally disposed of, as to the plaintiff's right to any portion of the relief sought by him as declared by the decree, amount to no more than obiter dicta, and do not constitute a final decision of the kind contemplated by s. 13 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held also that, in the present case, the Judge was right in holding that the question as to the validity or otherwise of the deed of endowment was wholly immaterial. The judgment of Straight, J., in Lachman Singh v. Mohan (I. L. R., 2 All. 497), approved and followed. Per Oldfield, J., contra, that the decree, to agree with the judgment, and fulfil the requirements of s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code, should contain the material points for determination arising out of the claim, and material for the decision thereon; that, if this has not been done, the defect is a good ground of appeal, notwithstanding that the decree, on its face, may be altogether in favour of the appellant, and notwithstanding that he may not have applied for amendment of the decree under s. 206, or for review of judgment; and that, in the present case, the defect in the decree would afford a good ground of appeal. Per Mahmood, J., that inasmuch as the provisions of s. 13 of the Civil Procedure Code relate as well to the trial of issues as to the trial of suits, and in the present case the validity or otherwise of the deed was a matter directly and substantially in issue between the parties, and was adjudicated upon, the finding of the first Court upon that issue was not a mere obiter dictum, but would be binding upon the defendant as res judicata, notwithstanding the fact that the suit against her was dismissed on the ground that she held possession of the property in lieu of dower; that whatever has the force of res judicata is necessarily appealable; that the word "from" as used in s. 540 or s. 584, and the expression "objection to the decree" in s. 561, refer not only to matters existing upon the face of the decree, but also to those which should have existed, but do not exist there; and, that the defendant in the present case was aggrieved or injured by the omission in the decree of the first Court, and was therefore entitled to file objections to it, and for the same reason, to appeal to the High Court from the decree of the lower Appellate Court. Also per Mahmood, J., that it was doubtful whether the reliefs contemplated by ss. 206 and 623 were open to the defendant; but that, even conceding that she ought to have sought her remedy under either of those sections, her neglect to do so did not make her incapable of obtaining the same result by the exercise of her right of appeal. Anusuyabai v. Sakkaram Pandurang (I. L. R., 7 Bom. 484), Man Singh v. Narayan Das (I. L. R., 1 All. 480), Mohan Lal v. Ram Dayal (I. L. R., 2 All. 843), Niamat Khan v. Phadu Buldia (I. L. R., 6 Cal. 319), and Pan Kuar v. Bhagwant Kuar (N. W. P., H. C. R., 1874, p. 19), referred to.—Jama-tunniisa v. Lutfunniisa, I. L. R., 7 All. 606. [Feb. 21, 1885.]

WHEN a question of costs is purely in the discretion of the lower Court, no appeal will lie, but when a matter of principle is involved an appeal will lie. Where A was sued upon the allegation that he had instigated his co-defendant B to refuse to deliver up a document, for the recovery of which the suit was brought, and where no relief was prayed as against A, but the lower Courts awarded a decree in favour of the plaintiff directing A to pay half the costs of suit, held that the question was one of principle, and that a second appeal lay to the High Court against the decree directing A to pay such costs.—Bunwari Lal v. Chowdhry Drup Nath Sing, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 179. [Aug. 5, 1885.]

Second appeal on no other grounds.

585. No second appeal shall lie except on the grounds mentioned in section 584.

586. No second appeal shall lie in any suit of the nature cognizable in Courts of Small Causes, when the amount or value of the subject-matter of the original suit does not exceed five hundred rupees.

In applications for review of judgments of Courts of Small Causes constituted under Act XI. of 1865, the procedure laid down in the rules contained in chap. 42 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act X. of 1877) is to be strictly followed, without reference to the procedure relating to new trials under s. 21 of Act XI. of 1865.—Isban Chander Banerjee v. Lochun Gope, 5 C. L. R. 569. [Jan. 29, 1880.]

AN order on appeal from a decree in an original suit of the nature cognizable in Mufassal Courts of Small Causes, under s. 562 of Act X. of 1877, remanding the suit for re-trial, is appealable, s. 586 of Act X. of 1877 notwithstanding, as that section applies to appeals from appellate decrees, and not to appeals from orders.—Collector of Bijnor v. Jafar Ali Khan, I. L. R., 3 All. 18. [June 11, 1880.]

A SUIT by a landholder against a tenant for Rs. 180, being the value of a moiety of the produce of a grove of mango trees held by such tenant, such amount being claimed in virtue of an agreement recorded in the wajib-ul-ars, and not in virtue of any custom or right, is not cognizable in the Revenue Court, but is cognizable in a Court of Small Causes, and consequently no second appeal in the suit will lie.—Sarnam Tewari v. Sakina Bibi, I. L. R., 3 All. 37. [June 15, 1880.]

A SUIT by one decree-holder against another for the money received by the latter on a division between them of the proceeds of an execution-sale as his share of such proceeds, under the order of the Court executing the decree, is a suit of the nature cognizable in a Court of Small Causes, and consequently, where the amount of such money does not exceed five hundred rupees, no second appeal lies in such suit.—Mata Parsad v. Gauri, I. L. R., 3 All. 69. [June 22, 1880.]

ON the death of K a dispute arose among her heirs as to the succession to the share of which she was the recorded proprietor. In January 1874, V, who was not one of her heirs, and who was not a shareholder of such village, was recorded in the revenue-register as lambardar in respect of her share, and was so recorded until February 1878, when his name was expunged, and the name of B, who was one of the heirs, was recorded as the proprietor of such share. N subsequently sued B to recover Rs. 70-13-4, being the amount which he had paid on account of revenue in respect of such share during the period between January 1874 and February 1878, instituting such suit in a Civil Court (Munsif). Held that the suit was not one cognizable in a Revenue Court under s. 93 (g) of Act XVIII. of 1873, but one cognizable in a Civil Court. Held also that the suit was one for damages under s. 70 of Act IX. of 1872 within the meaning of s. 6 of Act XI. of 1865, and accordingly of the nature cognizable in a Court of Small Causes, and no second appeal in the suit would lie.—Nath Prasad v. Baij Nath, I. L. R., 3 All. 66. [June 30, 1880.]

A SUIT for money due on a contract within the meaning of Act XI. of 1865, s. 6, is none the less cognizable by a Small Cause Court, because it may be necessary to go into the accounts of both parties to see whether the amount claimed is really due or not. Dyebukee Nundun Sen and another v. Mudhoo Mutty Goopta and another (I. L. R., 1 Cal. 123; 24 W. R. 478). And therefore no second appeal lies in such a suit under Act X. of 1877, s. 586.—Asman Singh v. Doorga Roy, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 284. [July 14, 1880.]

A WAS the proprietor of nine annas of a mauza, B and his family of one anna, and C and others of the remaining six annas. B and his family having occupied and enjoyed, to the exclusion of their co-shareholders, fifty-four bighas of the mauza, failed to pay any rent in respect of such occupation. A instituted a suit against them (making C and the other holders of the six annas share defendants to the suit) to recover the sum of Rs. 412-8 as the sum justly due to him after making all proper deductions, including as well as the share of the rent of the forty-four bighas to which the six-annas shareholders were entitled to retain as proprietors of a one-anna share. Held that the facts showed an implied contract on the part of B and his family to pay to their co-shareholders whatever, upon taking an account, should appear to be due to them; and that, inasmuch as the total amount sought to be recovered in the suit by A did not exceed 500 rupees, the suit was one which might have been brought in a Small Cause Court, and therefore the plaintiff had no right of second appeal to the High Court under s. 586 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Asman Singh v. Doorga Roy, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 284. [July 14, 1880.]

THE jurisdiction of a Small Cause Court is not ousted in a suit for damages for carrying away the produce of certain land when the defendant sets up title to the land in answer to the claim. S. 586 of the Code of Civil Procedure precludes a second appeal in a suit for damages under Rs. 500, although the suit has been instituted in the District Munsif's Court and not in a Court of Small Causes, and although a question of title has been raised by the defendant and decided. Per Turner, C.J.—When a suit is brought in a form in which it is cognizable by a Small Cause Court under Act XI. of 1865, the Court cannot decline jurisdiction if it appears that incidentally a question of title is raised which it has not jurisdiction to determine for any other purpose than the decision of the suit before it. Under such circumstances, the Court may, however, properly grant a reasonable adjournment that the question may be litigated and determined by the proper tribunal. Per Muttusami Ayyar, J.—The question, what is a suit of the nature cognizable in Courts of Small Causes within the meaning of s. 586 of the Civil Procedure Code, has reference to the mode of adjudication and not to the forum, and the fact that the suit is instituted in the District Munsiff's Court and not in a Court of summary jurisdiction makes no difference for the purposes of that section. If the matter adjudicated on in a suit is only incidentally in issue or cognizable, the adjudication is final, whether by a Court of concurrent or limited jurisdiction, only for the purpose and object of that suit. Per Innes, J.—The decree of a Small Cause Court in a case where a question of title is raised incidentally is no bar to a suit upon the title under s. 13, expl. 2, of the Civil Procedure Code, because the Small Cause Court is not competent to pass a decree upon the title.—Manappa Mudali v. McCarthy (S. T.), I. L. R., 8 Mad. 192. [April 29, 1891.]

THE plaintiff sued to recover from the defendant Rs. 71-3-3, alleging that the defendant had illegally levied the money on the plaintiff's land on account of enhanced summary settlement and local-fund cess. The defendant, being a minor, was represented by the Collector as his administrator. The Assistant Judge who tried the suit awarded the plaintiff's claim. The District Judge, in appeal, reduced the amount of the plaintiff's claim to Rs. 38-4-9, but upheld the decree of the first Court in other respects. The defendant thereupon filed a second appeal in the High Court. Held that under the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), s. 586, no second appeal lay, as the suit was one cognizable by a Small Cause Court. Act X. of 1876, s. 15, removes suits to which the Collector is a party from the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court; but the nature of the suit remains unaltered.—Musa Miya Saheb v. Syad Gulam Husein, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 100. [July 26, 1882.]

THE right of appeal given by ss. 588 and 589 of Act X. of 1877 from an order of remand, as contemplated by s. 562, is not taken away by s. 586. Chaudhri Ranjit Singh v. Jafar Ali Khan (I. L. R., 3 All. 18) followed.—Mahadev Narsinh v. Ragho Keshav, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 292. [April 19, 1883.]

WHERE a suit is brought for property wrongfully taken by the defendant praying for restoration of such property either to the plaintiff directly or to some other person wholly or partly as agent for the plaintiff, it is a "suit for property" within the meaning of the Small Cause Court Act (XI. of 1865); and if the property is moveable and of less than Rs. 500 in value, the suit is then a small cause. Accordingly, where the plaintiffs, who were co-members with the defendants of a division of a caste, and, as such, tenants-in-common with them of certain cooking vessels of less than rupees five hundred in value, were excluded by the defendants from possession and common use of the vessels, and sought for a declaration that the plaintiffs and the defendants were equally entitled to the use of the said vessels, and for restoration of the same to some third person, who should hold them to the use of the plaintiffs and defendants. Held that the suit was not a suit for a declaratory decree, but for the recovery of property within the meaning of the Small Cause Court Act (XI. of 1865), and, as such, was exclusively triable by a Small Cause Court. It was contended for the plaintiffs that, though actually a small cause, the suit having been instituted and dealt with in the ordinary Civil Court, a second appeal to the High Court would lie. Held that no second appeal would lie. A small cause is such wherever it is instituted, and the nature of the cause not being variable in any way according to the Court in which it is brought, the circumstance that it has been instituted in an ordinary Civil Court, and dealt with there, would not, for that reason, admit of a second appeal, which in such a case is expressly excluded by s. 586 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882). The proceedings of the lower Courts were pronounced null, and the plaint directed to be returned for presentation in the proper Court.—Kalián Dayál v. Kalián Narer, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 259. [Dec. 3, 1884.]

AN objection involving a point of law as well as of fact, if not taken in the Court below, cannot be entertained in second appeal.—Vasanji Haribhái v. Lallu Akhu, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 285. [Jan. 7, 1885.]

587. The provisions contained in Chapter XLI. shall apply, as far as Provisions as to second appeal. may be, to appeals under this chapter, and to the execution of decrees passed in such appeals.

WHERE the lower Appellate Court omits to give reasons for its decision, the High Court will retain the case in second appeal, and either require the Judge to state his reasons, or, in the event of his absence, refer the questions to his successor for fresh trial.—Assanullah v. Hafiz Mahomed Ali, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 932. [June 30, 1884.]

HELD by the Full Bench (Tyrrrell, J., dissenting), that the findings upon issues remanded by the High Court in second appeal cannot be challenged upon the evidence as in first appeals, but objections to these findings must be restricted to the limits within which the original pleas in second appeal are confined. Nivath Singh v. Bhikki Singh (I. L. R., 7 All. 649) referred to. Per Petheram, C.J., and Tyrrell, J. (Straight, J., dissenting).—Ss. 565 and 566 of the Civil Procedure Code are, as far as may be, incorporated in chap. 42 of the Code relating to second appeals, and when the evidence for disposing of the real issues in the case has been taken and exists on the record, it is the duty of the High Court, on the hearing of a second appeal, to itself fix and determine such issues on the evidence on the record, and not to put the parties to the expense and delay involved by a remand. Per Straight, J.—S. 587, of the Civil Procedure Code does not mean that the provisions of chap. 41 relating to first appeals are to be applied indiscriminately or in their entirety to second appeals, and implies no warrant for the decision by the High Court of questions of fact in any shape or at any stage of a second appeal. Ramnarain v. Bhawanidin (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 104) and Sheoambar Singh v. Lallu Singh (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 158) referred to. Per Tyrrell, J.—The jurisdiction of Courts of second appeal in respect of questions of fact is restricted, inasmuch as the appeal may not be entertained on “grounds” of fact, but, under the circumstances of s. 566 of the Code, no less than under the abnormal circumstances contemplated by the ruling of the Full Bench in Nivath Singh v. Bhikki Singh (I. L. R., 7 All. 649), the High Court may take cognizance of omitted issues of fact, and must determine them if there be evidence upon the record sufficient for that purpose. An issue to be tried in this way will, with all the evidence bearing upon it, be open to consideration from any point of view that may be present to the Court on the evidence and otherwise. In cases where the Court, still acting under s. 566, has been obliged, in the absence of evidence on the record, to supplement the defect through the agency of the Court below, its jurisdiction in respect of such evidence does not become limited thereby, or by reason only of the circumstance that the evidence is accompanied by a “finding” of the inferior Court—the term “finding” being used in s. 566 in its restricted sense of an answer to the proposition referred for inquiry, and not of an award or decision of the issue before the Court.—Balkishen v. Jasoda Kuar, I. L. R., 7 All. 765. [June 4, 1885.]

On a second appeal the High Court awarded the plaintiff's claim with costs throughout; but the claim, as stated in the paper-book of appeal, differed from the claim as it had been stated in the plaint. Held that the award of the claim was to be understood as referring to the claim as stated in the plaint, and not as described in the paper-book. Ss. 579 and 587 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882) do not require the claim to be stated in the decree, so as to make such statement a part of the decree itself.—Soude Shrinivasapa v. Krishnapa Hegde, I. L. R., 11 Bom. 177. [Sep. 21, 1886.]

Held by the Full Bench that s. 587 of the Civil Procedure Code does not make ss. 565 and 566 applicable to second appeals, so as to enable the High Court, in cases where the lower Appellate Court has omitted to frame or try any issue or to determine any essential question of fact, to itself determine the same upon the evidence on the record; but the High Court in such cases must remit issues for trial to the lower Appellate Court. Balkishen v. Jasoda Kuar (I. L. R., 7 All. 765) and Dookishen v. Bansi (I. L. R., 8 All. 172) overruled on this point.—Girdhari Lal v. Crawford (W.), I. L. R., 9 All. 147. [Dec. 10, 1886.]

CHAPTER XLIII.

OF APPEALS FROM ORDERS.

Orders appealable.

588. An appeal shall lie from the following orders under this Code, and from no other such orders:—

- (1) orders under section 20, staying proceedings in a suit;
- (2) orders under section 32, striking out or adding the name of any person as plaintiff or defendant;
- (3) orders under section 36 or section 66, directing that a party shall appear in person;
- (4) orders under section 44, adding a cause of action;
- (5) orders under section 47, excluding a cause of action;
- (6) orders returning plaints for amendment or to be presented to the proper Court;

(7) orders under section 111, setting-off, or refusing to set-off, one debt against another ;

(8) orders rejecting applications under section 103 (in cases open to appeal) for an order to set aside the dismissal of a suit ;

(9) orders rejecting applications under section 108, or an order to set aside a decree ex parte ;

(10) orders under sections 113, 120, and 177 ;

(11) orders under section 116 or section 245, rejecting, or returning for amendment, written statements or applications for execution of decrees ;

(12) orders under sections 143 and 145, directing any thing to be impounded ;

(13) orders under section 162, for the attachment and sale of moveable property ;

(14) orders under section 168, for attachment of property, and orders under section 170, for the sale of attached property ;

(15) orders under section 261, as to objections to draft-conveyances or draft-endorsements ;

(16) orders under section 294, the first paragraph of section 312, or section 313, for confirming, or setting aside, or refusing to set aside, a sale of immoveable property ;

(17) orders in insolvency-matters, under section 351, section 352, section 353, or section 357 ;

(18) orders under section 366, paragraph two, section 367, or section 368 ;

(19) orders rejecting applications under section 370 for dismissal of a suit ;

(20) orders under section 371, refusing to set aside the abatement or dismissal of a suit ;

(21) orders disallowing objections under section 372 ;

(22) orders under section 454, section 455, or section 458, directing a next friend or guardian for the suit to pay costs ;

(23) orders in interpleader-suits under section 473, clause (a), (b), or (d), section 475, or section 476 ;

(24) orders under section 479, section 480, section 485, section 492, section 493, section 496, section 497, section 502, or section 503 ;

(25) orders under section 514, superseding an arbitration ;

(26) orders under section 518, modifying an award ;

(27) orders of refusal under section 558 to re-admit, or under section 560 to re-hear, an appeal ;

(28) orders under section 562, remanding a case ;

(29) orders under any of the provisions of this Code, imposing fines, or for the arrest or imprisonment of any person, except when such imprisonment is in execution of a decree.

The orders passed in appeals under this section shall be final.

WHERE a suit has been referred to arbitration by an order of Court, and the Court afterwards gives judgment according to the award made upon such reference, such judgment is final, and no appeal lies therefrom.—1 Hay 365 (Marshall 163) ; Shaikh Elahie Buksh and others v. Shaikh Hajoo and another, 14 W. R. 33 [June 7, 1870] ; Gour Chunder Bhattacharjee v. Sodooy Chunder Nundee and others, 17 W. R. 30 [Dec. 1, 1871] ; Maharajah Joymungul Singh Bahadoor v. Mohun Ram Marwaree, 23 W. R. 420 (P.C.) [March 11, 1876]. See Lalla Ishuree Pershad and others v. Hur Bhunjun Tewaree and others, 15 W. R. 9. [May 23, 1871.]

evidence, the Munsif ordered the plaint in the suit to be returned to the plaintiff for presentation in the proper Court on the ground that the suit should have been instituted in the Court of the Subordinate Judge, the value of the property in suit being beyond the jurisdiction of a Munsif. Held that, under Act VIII. of 1859, the Munsif's order was appealable to the lower Appellate Court, and under Act X. of 1877, the lower Appellate Court's order to the High Court.—Kalish Das v. Nawal Singh, 1 L. R., 1 All. 620. [Mar. 7, 1878.]

WHERE an application was made for the issue of execution of decree, and the District Munsif made an order refusing execution, the decree being one passed not in a regular suit, and governed by the one-year limitation, and the Subordinate Judge on appeal reversed the Munsif's order, applying the three years' limitation, held by the High Court that, as Act X. of 1877, s. 588, provided that orders passed in appeal from orders under s. 244 should be final, no second appeal lay, and that the High Court could not interfere under s. 622, as the Subordinate Judge had jurisdiction to hear the appeal.—Suryaprasada F. v. Vaisya Sannyasi Razu, 1 L. R., 1 Mad. 401. [Sep. 16, 1878.]

A PERSON applying under Act X. of 1877, s. 344, must satisfy the Court that his case comes within the provisions of s. 351, and the burden of proof lies upon him. An order dismissing such an application is appealable under s. 588.—Mumtaz Hossein z. Brij Mohun Tagore, 1 L. R., 4 Cal. 888. [Dec. 4, 1878.] Followed in Nubbi Buksh v. Chasni, 1 L. R., 6 Cal. 168. [Aug. 11, 1880.]

A SUIT was instituted in September 1877, when Act VIII. of 1859 was in operation, and a decree was passed on the 2nd February 1878, after the repeal of that Act. An appeal was preferred, but, on coming on for hearing, was dismissed for default on the 31st of May, neither the appellants nor their pleader having appeared. On the 21st June, the appellants applied, under s. 558 of Act X. of 1877, to have the appeal restored, on the ground that the pleader whom they had engaged was a lunatic, and that, having engaged a pleader, they had thought it unnecessary to appear in person. The Judge rejected the application, and the applicants now appealed against the order rejecting this application. Held that the order of the 21st of June was made under Act X. of 1877, and was therefore open to appeal under s. 588 of that Act. Ranjit Singh v. Meharban Koer (2 C. L. R. 391) and Burkut Hossein v. Majidoun Nissa (3 C. L. R. 208) cited and distinguished.—Sheikh Elahi Buksh v. Mussamut Morachoo, 3 C. L. R. 593. [Feb. 19, 1879.]

A DECISION of a Judge directing a penalty to be enforced under the Stamp Act, the case being afterwards proceeded with, is not appealable as a decree, as it cannot be said to be a decree affecting the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court. Nor can such a decision be said to be "an order as to a fine" within the meaning of Act VIII. of 1859, s. 365 (corresponding with Act X. of 1877, s. 588, cl. 29), which is not intended to apply to penalties under the Stamp Act, but only to fines which may be levied under the Code itself.—Sonaka Chowdrain v. Bhoobunjoy Shaha, 1 L. R., 5 Cal. 311. [May 5, 1879.]

ALTHOUGH the auction-purchaser may not apply under Act X. of 1877, s. 311, to have a sale set aside, he may be a party to the proceedings after an application has been made under that section, and then, if an order is made against him, he can appeal from such order under s. 588.—Kanthi Ram v. Bankey Lal, 1 L. R., 2 All. 306. [June 11, 1879.]

ALTHOUGH Act X. of 1877, s. 57, contemplates the return of the plaint, should error be patent when it is first presented, yet there is nothing in the wording of that section which forbids the return of the plaint at a later stage in the suit. Where, therefore, after the issues in a suit were framed, the Court decided that it had no jurisdiction, and returned the plaint to be presented in the proper Court, held that in so doing the Court acted under s. 57; and its decision, not coming within the definition of a "decree" in Act XII. of 1879, s. 2, was not appealable as such, but was appealable under Act X. of 1877, s. 588, as an order.—Abdul Samad v. Rajindro Kishore Singh, 1 L. R., 2 All. 357. [Aug. 15, 1879.]

WHERE, in a suit for the filing of an award made on a private reference to arbitration, the Court of first instance, holding that there was no reason to remit such award to the re-consideration of the arbitrator under the provisions of s. 520 of Act X. of 1877, or to set it aside under s. 521 of that Act, did not proceed to give judgment according to such award followed by a decree, but merely directed that such award should be filed, held that its order was not appealable as a decree or as an order.—Ramadhin v. Mahesh, 1 L. R., 2 All. 471. [Nov. 17, 1879.]

A DECREE-HOLDER, having assigned a share of her decree, applied several times jointly with such assignee for execution. On a subsequent application made by the original decree-holder alone, the Court, while granting the application, directed that the proceeds arising from such execution only should be paid over to the co-decree-holders jointly. Held that the question in dispute being one between co-decree-holders, and not between the parties to the suit or their representatives as contemplated by art. 5, s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code, no appeal would lie from such order.—Gyamonee v. Kadha Romon, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 592. [Dec. 4, 1879.]

WHERE an appeal is dismissed, under s. 556 of Act X. of 1877, for the appellant's default, the order dismissing it is not appealable.—Nand Ram v. Muhammad Bakhsh, I. L. R., 2 All. 616. [Jan. 7, 1880.]

AN order made by a lower Court, directing a suit to be re-admitted and registered on the file of the Court, is not appealable. Second appeals to the High Court must either come within chap. 42 or ss. 588 and 591 of Act X. of 1877.—Hirdhamun Jha v. Jinhooor Jha, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 111. [Mar. 18, 1880.]

ON the 25th June 1879, a Subordinate Judge made an order setting aside the sale of immovable property in the execution of a decree, from which an appeal was preferred, under Act X. of 1877, to the District Court on the 25th July 1879, before Act XII. of 1879 came into force. Held that, as the appeal would not have lain at all had Act XII. of 1879 been in force on the date of its institution, s. 102 of that Act did not apply; but as the appeal lay to the District Court under the law in force on that date, it was competent to dispose of it under the provisions of s. 6 of Act I. of 1868.—Durga Prasad v. Ram Charan, I. L. R., 2 All. 785. [Mar. 24, 1880.]

AN order made by a Subordinate Judge, dismissing an application under s. 503 for the appointment of a receiver in a suit pending before him, or declining to nominate a receiver, is an order under that section, and not under s. 505, and is therefore appealable under s. 588 of the Civil Procedure Code, as amended by Act XII. of 1879. A Subordinate Judge, if he has good grounds, may decline to appoint a receiver even after he has received the necessary authority from the District Judge under s. 505 to do so.—Gossain Dulmir Puri v. Tekait Hetnarain, 6 C. L. R. 467. [April 4, 1880.]

AN order refusing an application, under s. 32 of Act X. of 1877, by a person to be added as a defendant in a suit, is not appealable.—Karman Bibi v. Misri Lal, I. L. R., 2 All. 904. [May 27, 1880.]

AN appeal lies against an order rejecting a plaint on the ground of its being insufficiently stamped.—Ajoodhya Pershad v. Gunga Pershad, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 249. [June 10, 1880.]

AN order on appeal from a decree in an original suit of the nature cognizable in Mufassal Courts of Small Causes, under s. 562 of Act X. of 1877, remanding the suit for re-trial, is appealable, s. 586 of Act X. of 1877 notwithstanding, as that section applies to appeals from appellate decrees, and not to appeals from orders.—Collector of Bijoor v. Jafar Ali Khan, I. L. R., 3 All. 18. [June 11, 1880.]

AN order refusing to grant an application to be made an insolvent is appealable under cl. 17, s. 588 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Such an order must be considered to be one made under s. 531. Juggutjeeban Goopto v. Harcooomar Pal (I. L. R., 5 Cal. 719) dissented from.—Nubbi Buksh v. Chasni, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 168. [Aug. 11, 1880.]

THERE is no appeal from an order made under Act X. of 1877, s. 351, refusing to grant an application to be made an insolvent. The appeal allowed under s. 585, cl. 17, so far as an order under s. 351 is concerned, is on behalf of the judgment-creditor only.—Juggutjeeban Gooptoo v. Haro Coomar Pal, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 719. [Mar. 8, 1880.] Dissented from in Nubbi Buksh v. Chasni, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 168. [Aug. 11, 1880.]

By a decree in an administration-suit, A was appointed receiver "to manage the estate." A died, and by a subsequent order B was appointed receiver. One of the defendants in the suit applied to have B removed from the office of receiver on the ground of his alleged mismanagement of the estate. The application was refused. Held that the order of refusal was appealable, whether the former Code or the present Code of Civil Procedure was deemed to be applicable, being an order made in respect of a question arising between the parties to a suit relating to the execution of the decree.—Mithibai v. Luvji Nowroji Banaji; Harrivallubhdas Calliandás v. Ardasar Framji Moos, I. L. R., 5 Bom. 45. [Dec. 3, 1880.]

THE lower Appellate Court (Subordinate Judge) decided on appeal by the defendants from the decree of the Court of first instance (Munsif) that the Court of first instance had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit, as the value of the subject-matter of the suit exceeded the pecuniary limits of its jurisdiction; and ordered that "the appellant's appeal be decreed, the decision of the Munsif be reversed, and the record of the case be sent to the Munsif to return the plaint to the plaintiff for presentation to the proper Court." The plaintiff appealed to the High Court from such order as an order returning a plaint to be presented to the proper Court. Held that such order could not be regarded as one to which art. 6, s. 588 of Act X. of 1877, was applicable. That relates to orders returning plaints for amendment or to be presented to the proper Court passed by a Court of first instance, and to an order by an Appellate Court upon an appeal to it from the decree of a Court of first instance on general grounds. The plaintiff's proper course was to have preferred a second appeal.—Bindeshri Chaubey v. Nandu, I. L. R., 3 All. 456. [Jan. 28, 1881.]

MATTERS in dispute were referred to arbitration without the intervention of the Court. An award was made, and upon an application under s. 525 of the Civil Procedure Code to file the award, one of the parties showed cause why the award should not be filed, and the Subordinate Judge held the objection to be good. Held that no appeal lay. —Sree Ram Chowdhry v. Denobundhoo Chowdhry, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 490. [May 25, 1881.]

AN Appellate Court rejected the application of the legal representative of a deceased sole plaintiff-appellant to enter his name in the place of such appellant on the record, on the ground that such application had not been made within the time limited by law, and passed an order that the suit should abate. Held that the order of the Appellate Court, passed under the first paragraph of s. 366 of Act X. of 1877, not being appealable under cl. 18, s. 588, of that Act, nor being a decree within the terms of s. 2, from which a second appeal would lie, was not appealable.—Ahmad Ata v. Mata Badal Lal, I. L. R., 3 All. 844. [June 7, 1881.]

THE Court of first instance made an order returning the plaint in a suit to be presented to the proper Court, on the ground that it was not competent to try such suit. On appeal from such order the Appellate Court, holding that the Court of first instance was competent to try such suit, made an order "decreeing the appeal." It subsequently made an additional order directing that the case "should be returned for re-trial." On appeal to the High Court from such additional order, held that the appeal would not lie, as it was in reality one from an order passed in appeal from an order returning a plaint, which, under the last clause of s. 588 of Act X. of 1877, was final, and not an appeal from an order remanding a case under s. 562, the character of the original order of the Appellate Court not being altered by the passing of the additional order.—Kishna Ram v. Narsingh Sevak Singh, I. L. R., 3 All. 855. [June 20, 1881.]

AN order for attachment and sale of property in execution of a decree is an order "of the same nature with" an order made in the course of a suit for attachment of the debtor's property. The latter order is appealable under s. 588, cl. 7, of the Code of Civil Procedure. It follows that an order for attachment and sale in execution of a decree is (according to the requirement of s. 588, cl. 7) "of the same nature with appealable orders made in the course of a suit," and therefore is appealable under that section.—Polokdhari Rai v. Radha Persad Singh, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 28. [June 23, 1881.]

AN allottee, under a private partition, sued to stay subsequent partition proceedings brought under Reg. XIX. of 1814, and to have his possession confirmed. The defendants objected to the valuation of the suit, and to the suit being heard by the Civil Courts, no proceedings having first been instituted before the Revenue Authorities. Held that such a suit should be considered to be one for a declaratory decree, or for something in the nature of an injunction, and that, therefore, the plaint should not be stamped according to the value of the entire estate. That the question, whether the Collector would have brought the lands to partition, depended upon whether they were held "in common tenancy;" if they were not so held, the Collector would be only competent to make an assignment of the revenue in proportion to the several portions of the land held by the shareholders. That a private partition is no bar to proceedings in the Revenue Courts under s. 30 of Reg. XIX. of 1814. A Munsif dismissed a suit, on the ground that, if it had been properly valued, it would not have come within his jurisdiction. The District Judge affirmed the Munsif's judgment, and directed the plaint to be returned for presentation to the proper Court under s. 57 of the Civil Procedure Code. This was not done. Held that a second appeal would lie. Ajoodhia Lal v. Gumani Lal (2 C. L. R. 134) approved. Ajoodhya Pershad v. Kristo Dyal (15 W. R. 165) dissented from.—Jaynath Roy v. Lal Bahadoor Singh, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 128. [Aug. 19, 1881.]

AFTER a decree had been made ex parte, the defendant applied to have it set aside. The Subordinate Judge refused the application, but his order was reversed by the District Judge. Held that the order of the District Judge was final under s. 588, and that no second appeal would lie; nor would the Court interfere under s. 622 of the Code.—Aubinaah Chunder Mookerjee v. Martin, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 882. [April 13, 1882.]

A DISTRICT Court transferred for trial a suit instituted in a Court subordinate to it to another Court subordinate to it. The Court in which the suit was instituted was not the one in which the suit should have been instituted, and consequently the Court to which it was transferred made an order dismissing it, and directing the return of the plaint for presentation to the proper Court. Held that such order must be taken to have been passed under s. 57 of the Civil Procedure Code, and was therefore appealable under s. 588 (6); and that the defect of jurisdiction arising out of the institution of the suit in the wrong Court was not cured by the transfer of the suit.—Fachaoni Awasthi v. Ilah Bakhsh, I. L. R., 4 All. 478. [May 30, 1882.]

AN order under s. 97 of the Civil Procedure Code, dismissing a suit, on its being found that the summons has not been served on the defendant, in consequence of the failure of the plaintiff to pay the court-fee leviable for such service, is not appealable.—Lucky Churn Chowdhry v. Budurrunnissa, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 627. [Aug. 15, 1882.]

S. 588, Act X. of 1877, restricting appeals against orders, does not apply to prevent an appeal to the High Court from the order of a Judge of that Court.—Hurriah Chunder Chowdhry v. Kalisunderi Sibi, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 482. [Nov. 16, 1882.]

THE right of appeal given by ss. 588 and 589 of Act X. of 1877 from an order of remand, as contemplated by s. 562, is not taken away by s. 586. Onaudhri Ranjit Singh v. Jafar Ali Khan (I. L. R., 3 All. 18) followed.—Manadev Narsingh v. Ragho Keshav, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 292. [April 19, 1883.]

WHERE a lower Appellate Court, instead of remanding a suit under s. 566 of the Civil Procedure Code, erroneously remands it under s. 562, and the party aggrieved by its order appeals to the High Court, under cl. 28, s. 588, the High Court cannot deal with the case as if it were a first appeal from a decree. All that the High Court can do is to rectify the procedure of the lower Appellate Court, and to direct that it decide the case itself on the merits. Badam v. Imrat (I. L. R., 3 All. 675) distinguished. Ramnarain v. Bhawanidin (2 Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 104) and Sheoamber Singh v. Lallu Singh (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 158) referred to.—Sohan Lal v. Aziz-un-nissa Begam, I. L. R., 7 All. 136. [Nov. 4, 1884.]

Per Petheram, C.J., and Oldfield, Brodhurst, and Duthoit, JJ.—An order passed under the first clause of s. 312 of the Civil Procedure Code, after an objection made under the provisions of s. 311 has been disallowed, is appealable under art. 16 of s. 588. Per Mahmood, J.—An application made under s. 311 can be disposed of only under s. 312, and if the Court rejects the objection to the sale, the order must be regarded as an order “refusing to set aside a sale of immoveable property” under the 1st para. of s. 312, and therefore appealable as falling under the purview of art. 16 of s. 588. Lalman v. Russu Lal (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 117) and Rajan Kumar v. Lalto Prasad (Weekly Notes, 1883, p. 178) dissented from by Mahmood, J.—Tota Ram v. Khub Chand, I. L. R., 7 All. 253. [Dec. 13, 1884.]

IN a case where neither of the parties desired to have a local investigation, though suggested by the Court, the lower Court dealt with the case on the materials before it, and made a decree. On appeal the Appellate Court remanded the case for the purpose of a local investigation being held at the cost, in the first instance, of the plaintiff. The lower Court thereupon made an order that the plaintiff should deposit the costs of the local investigation, and on default being made by the plaintiff, it dismissed the suit. The order of remand was found to be invalid as made without jurisdiction. Held that all proceedings taken by the Court of first instance, after the remand, and pending the hearing of the appeal against the remand order, were null and void, inasmuch as the jurisdiction of that Court to hear the case upon remand depended upon the validity of the remand order. An appeal, therefore, lay from the order of remand, notwithstanding the Court of first instance had subsequently made what purported to be a final decree in the case.—Jatinga Valley Tea Company v. Chera Tea Company, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 45. [June 19, 1885.]

S. 547 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882), when read with cl. 9 of s. 588, does not give a right of appeal to a judgment-debtor whose application to set aside a sale of his property has been dismissed under s. 102, and whose application to set the dismissal aside has been refused under s. 103. S. 547 is not intended to confer any rights of appeal not expressly given elsewhere by the Code.—Ningappa v. Gangawa, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 433. [Nov. 26, 1885.]

IN a suit for pre-emption, based on the wajid-ul-arz of a village, the Court of first instance dismissed the claim on the ground that no right of pre-emption had been proved to exist in the village. The lower Appellate Court, dissenting from this opinion, reversed the first Court's decree, and remanded the case under s. 562 of the Civil Procedure Code for a decision on the remaining question of fact, viz., the amount of the consideration for the sale. In appeal from the order of remand, the High Court, on the 3rd January 1884, observed that it was not disposed to interfere with the finding of fact that the plaintiff had a right of pre-emption, and accordingly dismissed the appeal, but added that the Judge was in error in remanding the case under s. 562 of the Code; that his order must so far be set aside; and that he should proceed under s. 565 or s. 566 as might be applicable. The Judge, on receipt of this order, replaced the case on his file, remitted an issue to the Court of first instance under s. 566 as to the amount of consideration, and, accepting the first Court's finding upon that issue, decreed the plaintiff's claim. In second appeal by the defendants the High Court was of opinion that the Judge had disposed of the case upon a condition of things which the plaintiffs had never asserted, inasmuch as he had treated the right of pre-emption which was in issue as one arising from custom, and not, as alleged by the plaintiffs, as arising from a contract between the ancestors of the parties. All the evidence necessary to the determination of the case was on the record. Held, by the Full Bench, that the defendants were not prevented by the operation of the High Court's order of the 3rd January 1884 from disputing the right of pre-emption, inasmuch as that order was a decision of a merely interlocutory character passed in the same suit, and the questions of fact involved therein were decided only so far as was necessary for the purpose of passing the order, and it could not be regarded as determining the main question in the suit, which was still open, and must be decided in the final decree in the suit. Per Straight, J., that the jurisdiction of the High Court in appeal under s. 588 of the Code from the Judge's order of remand was, like the jurisdiction of the Judge in passing the order, limited by the terms of s. 562; and hence the remark made in the High Court's order dealing with the plaintiffs' right of pre-emption could only be regarded as an obiter dictum, and not as determining any question as to the pre-emptive right. Held per Potheram, C.J., and Oldfield and Tyrrell, JJ., that the High Court was competent, in second appeal from the Judge's decree, to look into the evidence already on the record for the purpose of finding whether a right of pre-emption existed, in fact, in the village, if the evidence for answering this question was already on the record, and that, in such a case, the question need not be referred to the Court of first appeal. Bal Kishen v. Jasoda Kuar (I. L. R., 7 All. 765) referred to. Per Straight and Brodhurst, JJ., contra. Bal Kishen v. Jasoda Kuar (I. L. R., 7 All. 765) referred to.—Deokishen v. Bansu, I. L. R., 8 All. 172. [Jan. 22, 1886.]

THE Court which passed a certain decree ordered execution thereof to be stayed pending appeal, on the debtor's furnishing security to the amount of Rs. 70,000, under the provisions of s. 545 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The debtor objected to the amount of security required, and appealed to the High Court on that ground. The decree-holder contended that no appeal lay. Held that the order was appealable. Held also on the facts that the security required was excessive.—Udayadeta Deb v. Grogson, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 624. [Feb. 16, 1886.]

No appeal lies under any of the provisions of s. 588 of the Civil Procedure Code from an order under s. 44, rule a, rejecting an application for leave to join another cause of action with a suit for the recovery of immoveable property. In a plaint filed in the Court of a Subordinate Judge the plaintiff claimed to recover possession of a house, together with some grain which was stored in it. The plaintiff applied to the Subordinate Judge for leave under s. 44, rule a of the Civil Procedure Code, to join the claim for grain with the claim for possession of the house. The Subordinate Judge refused leave, and returned the plaint, with directions that the plaintiff should institute two suits for recovery of the house and the grain, respectively, in the Court of the Munsif. Held that the Subordinate Judge's order was substantially an order rejecting the plaint, on the ground that the plaintiff had joined a cause of action with a suit for recovery of immoveable property; that although this might have been a misapplication of s. 44, rule a of the Code, its effect was to reject the plaint; that such an order was a decree with reference to the definition in s. 2, and was appealable as such to the District Judge; and that therefore a second appeal lay in the case to the High Court, and that Court was not competent to interfere in revision under s. 622.—Bandhan Singh v. Solhu, I. L. R., 8 All. 191. [Feb. 18, 1886.]

AN order rejecting an application under s. 32 of the Civil Procedure Code to be made a party to a suit is not appealable under cl. 2, s. 588.—Abirunissa Khatoon v. Komurunnissa Khatoon, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 100. [April 13, 1886.]

S. 15 of the Letters Patent of the High Court at Madras being controlled by s. 588 of the Code of Civil Procedure, no appeal lies from the order of a single Judge of the High Court made under s. 592 of the Code of Civil Procedure rejecting an application for leave to appeal in forma pauperis.—In re Rajagopal, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 447. [Aug. 8, 1886.]

What Courts to hear appeals.

589. An appeal from any order specified in section 588, clauses (15), (16), and (17), shall lie to the High Court.

When an appeal from any other order is allowed by this chapter, it shall lie to the Court to which an appeal would lie from the decree in the suit in relation to which such order was made, or, when such order is passed by a Court (not being a High Court) in the exercise of appellate jurisdiction, then to the High Court.

An order on appeal from a decree in an original suit of the nature cognizable in Mufassal Courts of Small Causes, under s. 562 of Act X. of 1877, demanding the suit for re-trial, is appealable, s. 586 of Act X. of 1877 notwithstanding, as that section applies to appeals from appellate decrees, and not to appeals from orders.—Collector of Bijnor v. Jafar Ali Khan, I. L. R., 3 All. 18. [June 11, 1880.]

590. The procedure prescribed in Chapter XLI shall, so far as may be, apply to appeals from orders under this Code, or under any special or local law in which a different procedure is not provided.

WHERE a lower Appellate Court, instead of remanding a suit under s. 566 of the Civil Procedure Code, erroneously remands it under s. 562, and the party aggrieved by its order appeals to the High Court under cl. 28, s. 588, the High Court cannot deal with the case as if it were a first appeal from a decree. All that the High Court can do is to rectify the procedure of the lower Appellate Court, and to direct that it decide the case itself on the merits. Badam v. Tinarat (I. L. R., 3 All. 675) distinguished. Ramnarain v. Bhawanidin (2 Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 104) and Sheoamher Singh v. Lallu Singh (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 158) referred to.—Sohan Lal v. Aziz-un-nissa Begam, I. L. R., 7 All. 136. [Nov. 4, 1884.]

591. Except as provided in this chapter, no appeal shall lie from any order passed by any Court in the exercise of its original or appellate jurisdiction; but if any decree be appealed against, any error, defect, or irregularity in any such order, affecting the decision of the case, may be set forth as a ground of objection in the memorandum of appeal.

An order made by a lower Court, directing a suit to be re-admitted and registered on the file of the Court, is not appealable. Second appeals to the High Court must either come within Act X. of 1877, chap. 12, or ss. 588 and 591.—Hirdhamun Jha v. Singhoor Jha, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 711. [Mar. 18, 1880.]

In a suit for rent, where the defendant alleged that a person not on the record had a joint interest with the plaintiff in the property in respect of which the rent was due, held, where the plaintiff disputed this, and objected to such course being taken, that it was improper to add such person as co-plaintiff, and that, if added at all, it should be as defendant, in order that the issue between him and the plaintiff might be properly tried. Held also that if such a case an appeal lies under s. 591 of the Civil Procedure Code.—Googlee Sahop v. Premilal Sahoe, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 148. [April 21, 1881.]

THE High Courts in India possess the power of enforcing obedience to their orders by attachment for contempt. An order for attachment for contempt is not an order in exercise of the High Court's civil jurisdiction, and, therefore, does not come within the provision of s. 591 of the Civil Procedure Code. Contempts are in the nature of offences, and, therefore, under s. 15 of the Letters Patent, 1865, an appeal lies from an order of commitment for contempt. In dealing with an appeal from such an order, the Appellate Court will not go behind the order the disobedience to which constitutes the contempt.—Navivahoo v. Narotamdas, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 5. [Sep. 28, 1882.]

UNDER s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure, interlocutory orders passed under s. 387 refusing applications for the issue of a commission to examine witnesses, or, under s. 180, directing the production of documents, cannot be revised.—In re Nizam of Hyderabad, I. L. R., 2 Mad. 256. [Feb. 22, 1886.]

CHAPTER XLIV.

OF PAUPER APPEALS.

592. Any person entitled under this Code or any other law to prefer an appeal, who is unable to pay the fee required for the petition of appeal, may, on presenting an application accompanied by a memorandum of appeal, be allowed to appeal as a pauper, subject to the rules contained in Chapters XXVI, XLI, XLII, and XLIII, in so far as those rules are applicable.

Provided that the Court shall reject the application, unless, upon a perusal thereof, and of the judgment and decree against which the appeal is made, it sees reason to think that the decree appealed against is contrary to law or to some usage having the force of law, or is otherwise erroneous or unjust.

No appeal lies under Act X. of 1877 from an order made under that Act rejecting an application for permission to sue as a pauper.—Collis v. Manohar Das, I. L. R., 1 All. 745 (F.B.). [July 16, 1878.]

AN application for permission to appeal as a pauper was presented, not by the applicant personally, but by his pleader, and was on that ground rejected. Held, on an application to the High Court for revision, that s. 622 of Act X. of 1877 did not apply to a proceeding of so purely an interlocutory a character as mentioned in s. 592, and such application, therefore, could not be entertained.—Harsaran Singh v. Muhammad Raza, I. L. R., 4 All. 91. [Aug. 1, 1881.]

AN application for leave to appeal in formâ pauperis, under s. 592 of the Code of Civil Procedure, must be made by the party in person, subject to the exemption contained in s. 404 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—In re Narisi, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 504. [May 1, 1885.]

S. 15 of the Letters Patent of the High Court at Madras being controlled by s. 588 of the Code of Civil Procedure, no appeal lies from the order of a single Judge of the High Court made under s. 592 of the Code of Civil Procedure rejecting an application for leave to appeal in formâ pauperis.—In re Rajagopal, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 447. [Aug. 3, 1886.]

A PLAINTIFF who has obtained leave to sue in formâ pauperis, and has been successful in obtaining a decree for a portion of his claim, but has failed as to the other portion, is not entitled on an appeal by the defendant to be heard in formâ pauperis on cross appeal as to the portion of his claim decided against him in the lower Court.—In the Matter of Brojeswari Dasi v. Guru Churn Das, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 735. [Aug. 28, 1885.]

593. The inquiry into the pauperism of the applicant may be made either by the Appellate Court or by the Court against whose decision the appeal is made under the orders of the Appellate Court:

Provided that, if the applicant was allowed to sue or appeal as a pauper in the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, no further inquiry in respect of his pauperism shall be necessary, unless the Appellate Court sees special cause to direct such inquiry.

CHAPTER XLV.

OF APPEALS TO THE QUEEN IN COUNCIL.

594. In this chapter, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context, the expression "decree" includes "Decree" defined. also judgment and order.

Held that the High Court has not any power, under Act X. of 1877, or cl. 31 of the Letters Patent, to grant leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council from an order of the Court remanding a suit for re-trial: The provisions of cl. 31 of the Letters Patent are repealed by the Code, and Act VI. of 1874 which preceded it.—Tatley v. Jai Shankar, I. L. R., 1 All. 726. [June 14, 1878.]

595. Subject to such rules as may, from time to time, be made by Her Majesty in Council regarding appeals from the Courts of British India, and to the provisions hereinafter contained, an appeal shall lie to Her Majesty in Council—

(a) from any final decree passed on appeal by a High Court or any other Court of final appellate jurisdiction;

(b) from any final decree passed by a High Court in the exercise of original civil jurisdiction, and

(c) from any decree, when the case, as hereinafter provided, is certified to be a fit one for appeal to Her Majesty in Council.

AN order of the High Court directing execution to proceed is not a "final" decree, judgment, or order within the meaning of cl. a, s. 595 of the Code of Civil Procedure, Act X. of 1877.—Jogessur Sahai v. Mussamut Muracko Koor, 1 C. L. R. 354. [Dec. 21, 1877.]

THE High Court has not any power, under Act X. of 1877, or cl. 31 of the Letters Patent (which is repealed by Acts VI. of 1874 and X. of 1877), to grant leave to appeal to the Privy Council from an order of the Court remanding a suit for re-trial.—Tatley v. Jai Shankar, I. L. R., 1 All. 726. [June 14, 1878.]

THE District Judge of Gházipur re-called to his own file the proceedings in the execution of a decree which were pending in the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Shahabad, and disallowed an application for the execution of the decree which had been preferred to that Judge. The High Court, on appeal from the order of the District Judge, annulled his order as void for want of jurisdiction, and remitted the case in order that the application might be disposed of on its merits, directing that the record of the case should be returned to the Subordinate Judge of Shahabad. On an application for leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council from the order of the High Court, held that such order was in the nature of an interlocutory order, and was not one from which the High Court could or ought to grant leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council.—Palak Dhari Rai v. Badha Prasad Singh, I. L. R., 2 All. 65. [Nov. 21, 1878.]

CERTAIN persons interested in an award applied under s. 525 of the Civil Procedure Code to have it filed in Court. The Court made an order under s. 526 "that the claim of the plaintiffs be decreed." The defendants appealed to the High Court from this "decree." The High Court held that the appeal would not lie; and suggested to the plaintiffs to apply to the lower Court to give judgment according to the award, and a decree to follow it. Thereupon the plaintiffs made an application to the lower Court of the nature suggested, but styled it one for review of judgment. The lower Court granted the so-called review of judgment. The defendants appealed from the order of the lower Court, contending that the "review of judgment" had been improperly granted. On the 23rd June 1880, the High Court held that the order of the lower Court was not appealable, not being one passed on review of judgment, but on application to give judgment and decree in accordance with an award which had been filed in Court. The defendants applied for leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council from the order of the High Court on the 23rd June 1880. Held that such order was not a "final decree" within the meaning of s. 595 (a) of the Civil Procedure Code, and therefore it was not appealable to Her Majesty in Council.—Ramadhin Mahton v. Ganes, I. L. R., 4 All. 288. [Jan. 30, 1882.]

A CANDIDATE at an examination for pleaderships, a mistake in the computation of his marks having been made, was erroneously declared qualified for admission as a vakil of the High Court by a Government Notification. The mistake having been discovered, such Notification was, so far as he was concerned, cancelled. He then petitioned the High Court in the matter, and was informed by it that his name must be excluded from such Notification, as he had not qualified by obtaining the requisite number of marks. The candidate having applied for leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council, held that chap. 45 of the Civil Procedure Code had no application, and the matter was not one in which the High Court was concerned to grant or refuse leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council.—In the Matter of the Petition of Sukh Nandan Lal, I. L. R., 9 All. 163. [Jan. 17, 1884.]

AN order passed on appeal by a High Court determining a question mentioned in s. 244 of Act X. of 1877 is a final "decree" within the meaning of s. 595 of that Act. Held, therefore, where such an order involved a claim or question relating to property of the value of upwards of ten thousand rupees, and reversed the decisions of the lower Courts, that notwithstanding the value of the subject-matter of the suit in which the decree was made in the Court of first instance was less than that amount, such order was appealable to Her Majesty in Council.—Ram K. rpal Shukul v. Rup Kuar, I. L. R., 3 All. 633. [Mar. 14, 1884.]

WHERE the High Court reverses the decree of the Court below, and remands the case for retrial on the merits, and for a new decree to be passed by the Court below, no appeal lies as a matter of right, under s. 595 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882), to the Privy Council, albeit the value of the subject-matter admittedly exceeds Rs. 10,000, as such a decree of the High Court is not a final, but an interlocutory, decree. In such a case a certificate should first be obtained under cl. c of the section that the case is a fit one for appeal to Her Majesty in Council.—Mahant v. Caudásama, I. L. R., 8 Bom. 548. [1884.]

LEAVE to appeal to Her Majesty in Council granted in one of six suits directed to be heard together, although the amount involved in such suit was under the appealable value; there being an important question of law, which did not arise in the five other suits, the suit, however, involving other questions of law common to all the six suits; such suits having been, by agreement of counsel, heard upon the same evidence, and concluded by the same judgment; five of such suits being appealable as of right, and the aggregate amount in the six suits being considerably more than the appealable value.—Byjnath v. Graham, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 740. [Aug. 31, 1885.]

Value of subject-matter.

596. In each of the cases mentioned in clauses

(a) and (b) of section 595, the amount or value of the subject-matter of the suit in the Court of first instance must be ten thousand rupees or upwards, and the amount or value of the matter in dispute on appeal to Her Majesty in Council must be the same sum or upwards;

or the decree must involve, directly or indirectly, some claim or question to, or respecting, property of like amount or value;

and where the decree appealed from affirms the decision of the Court immediately below the Court passing such decree, the appeal must involve some substantial question of law.

A and B purchased the same properties, deriving the title through different persons. The value of the properties with mesne-profits was over Rs. 10,000. B granted two partition-decrees of the properties to different persons. A was, therefore, obliged to bring two suits for the recovery of the properties, and the value of the subject-matter in each suit was less than Rs. 10,000. Held that an appeal would lie to the Privy Council.—Joogul Kishore v. Jotondro Mohun Tagore, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 210. [Jan. 4, 1882.]

AN order passed on appeal by a High Court determining a question mentioned in s. 244 of Act X. of 1877 is a final "decree" within the meaning of s. 595 of that Act. Held, therefore, where such an order involved a claim or question relating to property of the value of upwards of ten thousand rupees, and reversed the decisions of the lower Courts, that notwithstanding the value of the subject-matter of the suit in which the decree was made in the Court of first instance was less than that amount, such order was appealable to Her Majesty in Council.—Ram K. rpal Shukul v. Rup Kuar, I. L. R., 3 All. 633. [Jan. 17, 1884.]

LEAVE to appeal to Her Majesty in Council granted in one of six suits directed to be heard together, although the amount involved in such suit was under the appealable value; there being an important question of law, which did not arise in the five other suits, the suit, however, involving other questions of law common to all the six suits; such suits having been, by agreement of counsel, heard upon the same evidence, and concluded by the same judgment; five of such suits being appealable as of right, and the aggregate amount in the six suits being considerably more than the appealable value.—Byjnath v. Graham, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 740. [Aug. 31, 1885.]

THE intention of the Legislature as expressed in s. 633 of the Civil Procedure Code was that the High Court might frame rules as to how its judgments should be given, whether orally or in writing, or according to any mode which might appear to it best in the interests of justice. The section does not merely give the High Court power to direct that judgments shall be recorded in a particular book, or with a particular seal. Rule 9 of the rules made under s. 633 in March 1885 is therefore not ultra vires of the Court, and it modifies the provisions of s. 574 in their application to judgments of the High Court. With reference to the terms of rule 9, it is not necessary, in a case where the High Court substantially adopts the whole judgment of the Court below, to go through the formality of re-stating the points at issue, the decision upon each point, and the reasons for the decision. Per Edge, C.J.—Apart from rule 9, it never was intended that s. 574 of the Code should apply to cases where the High Court, having heard the judgment of the Court below and arguments thereon, comes to the conclusion that both the judgment and the reasons, which it gives are completely satisfactory and such as the High Court itself would have given. Assuming the provisions of s. 574 to be applicable, a judgment of the High Court stating merely that the appeal must be dismissed with costs and the judgment of the first Court affirmed, and that it was unnecessary to say more than that the Court agreed with the Judge's reasons, is a substantial compliance with those provisions. The judgment of the High Court in a first appeal was as follows: "This appeal must, in my opinion, be dismissed with costs, and the judgment of the first Court affirmed; and I do not think it necessary to say more than that we agree with the Judge's reasons." The appellant applied for leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council on the ground that the requirements of s. 574 of the Civil Procedure Code had not been complied with. Held by the Full Bench that the objection involved no substantial question of law, and that the application for leave to appeal must therefore be rejected.—Sundar Bibi v. Bisheshar Nath, I. L. R., 9 All. 93. [Nov. 15, 1886.]

Bar of certain appeals.

597. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 595, no appeal shall lie to Her Majesty in Council from the judgment of one Judge of a High Court established under the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Victoria, chapter 104, of one Judge of a Division Court, or of two or more Judges of such High Court, or of a Division Court constituted by two or more Judges of such High Court, wherever such Judges are equally divided in opinion, and do not amount in number to a majority of the whole of the Judges of the High Court at the time being ;

and no appeal shall lie to Her Majesty in Council from any decree which, under section 586, is final.

598. Whoever desires to appeal under this chapter to Her Majesty in Application to Court Council must apply by petition to the Court whose whose decree complained of. decree is complained of.

A on the 8th September 1885 filed his petition of appeal to Her Majesty in Council against a decree obtained against him by B on the 19th May 1885. On the 11th September 1885 A's attorney received for approval from the Registrar the usual draft notice calling upon B to show cause why the case was not a fit and proper one for appeal to Her Majesty in Council ; this draft notice was never returned as approved or otherwise to the Registrar, and no further steps were taken to prosecute the appeal. On the 1st April 1886 B applied to have the appeal struck off for want of prosecution. Held that he was entitled to the order.—Moorajee Poonja v. Visranjee Visenjee, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 658. [April 14, 1886.]

Time within which application must be made.

599. Such application must ordinarily be made within six months from the date of such decree.

But if that period expires when the Court is closed, the application may be made on the day that the Court re-opens.

[April 14, 1886.]

600. Every petition under section 598 must state the grounds of appeal, Certificate as to value or fitness. amount or value and nature, the case fulfils the requirements of section 596, or that it is otherwise a fit one for appeal, to Her Majesty in Council.

Upon receipt of such petition, the Court may direct notice to be served on the opposite party to, show cause why the said certificate should not be granted.

LEAVE to appeal to Her Majesty in Council granted in one of six suits directed to be heard together, although the amount involved in such suit was under the appealable value there being an important question of law, which did not arise in the five other suits, the suit, however, involving other questions of law common to all the six suits; such suits having been, by agreement of counsel, heard upon the same evidence, and concluded by the same judgment; five of such suits being appealable as of right, and the aggregate amount in the six suits being considerably more than the appealable value.—*Byjnath v. [April 14, 1886.]

Effect or refusal of certificate.

601. If such certificate be refused, the petition shall be dismissed:

Provided that, if the decree complained of be a final decree passed by a Court other than a High Court, the order refusing the certificate shall be appealable, within thirty days from the date of the order, to the High Court, to which the former Court is subordinate.

602. If the certificate be granted, the applicant shall, within six months

Security and deposit required on grant of certificate. from the date or the decree complained of or within six weeks from the grant of the certificate, whichever is the later date,

(a) give security for the costs of the respondent, and

(b) deposit the amount required to defray the expense of translating, transcribing, indexing, and transmitting to Her Majesty in Council a correct copy of the whole record of the suit, except

(1) formal documents directed to be excluded by any order of Her Majesty in Council in force for the time being;

(2) papers which the parties agree to exclude;

(3) accounts or portions of accounts, which the officer empowered by the Court for that purpose considers unnecessary, and which the parties have not specifically asked to be included, and

(4) such other documents as the High Court may direct to be excluded; and when the applicant prefers to print in India the copy of the record, except as aforesaid, he shall also, within the time mentioned in the first clause of this section, deposit the amount required to defray the expense of printing such copy.

COSTS of printing and translation, certified by the Deputy Registrar of the High Court, are a necessary part of the costs of an appeal to the Privy Council. The amount of such costs is left to be ascertained by the High Court, and is not assessed by the Privy Council Office.—Ram Coomar Ghose v. Prosunno Coomar Sanayal, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 106. [Aug. 31, 1883.]

THE words in s. 602 of Act X. of 1877, relating to the time within which security is to be given, are directory only; and although they are not to be departed from without cogent reason, the Court from which the appeal is preferred has the right of extending the time. In this case, a satisfactory explanation having been given of delay in giving security until after the time limited by the above section had expired, held that the Court had rightly exercised discretion in extending the time. In the Matter of the Petition of Soorj mukhi Koer (I. L. R., 5 Cal. 2) approved. The paternal grandmother of a deceased village-shareholder claiming to inherit in preference to his male collateral relations, the issue was fixed with; the assent of the pleaders on both sides, whether the plaintiff, as a female, was excluded from inheriting by the custom of the family or tribe. Held that this was substantially a question of fact, and that on the evidence, which included the village wajib-ul-arz, the customary exclusion of females was not proved.—Burjore and Bhawani v. Bhagana, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 557. [Nov. 23, 1883.]

THE time allowed by s. 602 of the Civil Procedure Code for giving the security and making the deposit required by that section may be extended.—Fazul-un-nissa Begam v. Mulo, I. L. R., 6 All. 256. [Mar. 17, 1884.]

A PLAINTIFF, having preferred an appeal to Her Majesty in Council, was called upon to furnish security. Thereupon A, on behalf of appellant, executed a security-bond for the costs of the respondent. The appeal was dismissed with costs by Her Majesty in Council. On an application (by the respondent in the appeal) for execution to issue against the estate of A, the surety (who had died in the meantime), held that the liability of the surety under the security-bond could not be enforced in execution of the decree of Her Majesty in Council. Bans Bahadur Singh v. Mughla Begum (I. L. R., 3 Mad. 107) dissented from.—Radha Pershad Singh v. Phuljuri Koer, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 402. [July 3, 1885.]

603. When such security has been completed and deposit made to the satisfaction of the Court, the Court may

- (a) declare the appeal admitted, and
- (b) give notice thereof to the respondent, and shall then
- (c) transmit to Her Majesty in Council, under the seal of the Court, a correct copy of the said record, except as aforesaid, and
- (d) give to either party one or more authenticated copies of any of the papers in the suit on his applying therefor and paying the reasonable expenses incurred in preparing them.

A PLAINTIFF, having preferred an appeal to Her Majesty in Council, was called upon to furnish security. Thereupon A, on behalf of appellant, executed a security-bond for the costs of the respondent. The appeal was dismissed with costs by Her Majesty in Council. On an application (by the respondent in the appeal) for execution to issue against the estate of A, the surety (who had died in the meantime), held that the liability of the surety under the security-bond could not be enforced in execution of the decree of Her Majesty in Council. Bans Bahadur Singh v. Mughla Begum (I. L. R., 3 Mad. 107) dissented from.—Radha Pershad Singh v. Phuljuri Koer, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 402. [July 3, 1885.]

604. At any time before the admission of the appeal, the Court may, upon cause shown, revoke the acceptance of any such security, and make further directions thereon.

605. If at any time after the admission of the appeal, but before the transmission of the copy of the record, except as aforesaid, to Her Majesty in Council, such security appears inadequate, or further payment is required for the purpose of translating, transcribing, printing, indexing, or transmitting the copy of the record, except as aforesaid, the Court may order the appellant to furnish, within a time to be fixed by the Court, other and sufficient security, or to make, within like time, the required payment.

Effect of failure to comply with order. 606. If the appellant fail to comply with such order, the proceedings shall be stayed, and the appeal shall not proceed without an order in this behalf of Her Majesty in Council, and in the meantime execution of the decree appealed against shall not be stayed.

607. When the copy of the record, except as aforesaid, has been transmitted to Her Majesty in Council, the appellant may obtain a refund of the balance (if any) of the amount which he has deposited under section 602.

608. Notwithstanding the admission of any appeal under this chapter, Powers of Court pending appeal. the decree appealed against shall be unconditionally enforced, unless the Court admitting the appeal otherwise directs.

But the Court may, if it thinks fit, on any special cause shown by any party interested in the suit, or otherwise appearing to the Court,

(a) impound any moveable property in dispute or any part thereof, or
(b) allow the decree appealed against to be enforced, taking such security from the respondent as the Court thinks fit for the due performance of any order which Her Majesty in Council may make on the appeal, or

(c) stay the execution of the decree appealed against, taking such security from the appellant as the Court thinks fit for the due performance of the decree appealed against, or of any order which Her Majesty in Council may make on the appeal, or

(d) place any party seeking the assistance of the Court under such conditions, or give such other direction respecting the subject-matter of the appeal, as it thinks fit.

THREE different plaintiffs, claiming through the same original title to be the owner of a certain mahál, sued the same defendant in separate suits for possession and for the mesne-profits of their respective shares. The defence raised being the same in each case, the suits were heard together, the result being that in both the lower Courts and in the High Court the plaintiffs obtained a decree for their claims. The aggregate value of the three suits amounted to more than Rs. 10,000, though the value of each suit was under that sum. The defendant applied to be allowed to appeal in each case to Her Majesty in Council. Held that he was entitled to have each of the three cases admitted under the second clause of s. 596 of Act X. of 1877, as the decree in each case involved indirectly a question of title to property of the amount or value of Rs. 10,000. The Court has power under s. 608 to stay execution of a decree of the High Court in a suit subsequently appealed to Her Majesty in Council. Quære.—Whether the Court has power to order restitution of possession of property already taken in execution of its own decree pending an appeal to the Privy Council?—Khajjah Ashanullah v. Karoonah Moyi Chowdhry; Rohini Chowdhraim v. Kishen Gobind Das, 4 O. L. R. 125. [Mar. 28, 1879.]

A PARTY to a suit in an Appellate Court, who had obtained leave to appeal from its decree to Her Majesty in Council, petitioned for the order of the latter staying execution of interlocutory orders made in execution of such decree, and directing payment by the petitioner to the opposite party of large sums without security taken for their repayment in the event of the decree being reversed. This accompanied a petition for special leave to appeal against those orders. The latter was granted, but it not being competent to the Judicial Committee to make any order as to the stay of execution, an intimation was made by it to the Court below that it appeared to be the reasonable course that the opposite party should not, pending the appeal, be put into possession of the large sums in dispute. That intimation being made, the petitioner might apply to the Court below for the due security of all money paid into the treasury in obedience to the decree. Sidhee Nazur Ali Khan v. Oojoodhyaram Khan (10 Moore's I. A. 322), and Zerattool Batool v. Hosseinee Begum (10 Moore's I. A. 196), referred to.—Indur Kumari v. Jajpal Kumari, I. L. R., 14 Cal. 290. [Nov. 13, 1886.]

609. If, at any time during the pendency of the appeal, the security furnished by either party appears inadequate, the Court may, on the application of the other party, require further security.

In default of such further security being furnished as required by the Court, if the original security was furnished by the appellant, the Court may, on the application of the respondent, issue execution of the decree appealed against as if the appellant had furnished no such security.

And if the original security was furnished by the respondent, the Court shall, so far as may be practicable, stay all further execution of the decree, and restore the parties to the position in which they respectively were when the security which appears inadequate was furnished, or give such direction respecting the subject-matter of the appeal as it thinks fit.

610. Whoever desires to enforce or to obtain execution of any order of Her Majesty in Council shall apply by petition, accompanied by a certified copy of the decree or order made in appeal and sought to be enforced or executed, to the Court from which the appeal to Her Majesty was preferred.

Such Court shall transmit the order of Her Majesty to the Court which made the first decree appealed from, or to such other Court as Her Majesty by her said order may direct, and shall (upon the application of either party) give such directions as may be required for the enforcement or execution of the same; and the Court to which the said order is so transmitted shall enforce or execute it accordingly, in the manner and according to the rules applicable to the execution of its original decrees.

When any moneys expressed to be payable in British currency are payable in India under such order, the amount so payable shall be estimated according to the rate of exchange for the time being fixed by the Secretary of State for India in Council, with the concurrence of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, for the adjustment of financial transactions between the Imperial and the Indian Governments.

BEFORE a decree-holder in the District Court can obtain execution of a decree which has been affirmed by the Privy Council, he must produce, on the application for execution, a certified copy of the order passed by Her Majesty in Council.—Juggernath Sahoo v. Jundoo Bey Singh, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 329. [May 2, 1879.]

An appeal was preferred to the Privy Council from a final decree passed upon appeal by the High Court, and B and certain other persons on behalf of the appellant gave security for the costs of the respondent. The Privy Council dismissed the appeal, and ordered the appellant to pay the costs of the respondent. The respondent applied to the Court of first instance for the execution of that order against B and the other persons as sureties. Held that under Act X. of 1877, ss. 610 and 253, such order could be executed against the sureties.—Bans Bahadur Singh v. Mughla Begam, I. L. R., 2 All. 604 (F. B.). [Jan. 8, 1880.]

A DECREE obtained on appeal of certain defendants in the High Court was appealed to the Privy Council by one only of the two plaintiffs to the suit, and the decision of the High Court was reversed; the plaintiff who had appealed assigned her share in the order of the Privy Council to one of the defendants, and delivered him the certified copy of the decree made in the Privy Council. The plaintiff who had not appealed to the Privy Council applied to the High Court for leave to transmit the order to the Court of first instance for execution of the share decreed to him, but, on account of the assignment above-mentioned, was unable to produce the certified copy of the decree of the Privy Council. The Judge presiding over the Privy Council Department in the High Court held that the production of a certified copy of the order of the Privy Council was excusable under the circumstances, but refused the application, on the ground that the decree of the Court of first instance, which was affirmed by the Privy Council, could only be executed as a whole, and not partly by one of the plaintiffs. Held on appeal per Garth, C.J.—That the duties of a Judge in dealing with the meaning of decrees of the Privy Council are purely ministerial, and that any order made in such ministerial capacity could not be considered a judgment, and could not, therefore, be made the subject of an appeal to a Bench of the High Court under s. 15 of the Charter. Per White and Mitter, JJ.—An order of a Judge presiding over the Privy Council Department in the High Court, rejecting an application for execution, is a final order, and is a judgment within the meaning of s. 15 of the Charter, and is therefore appealable.—In the Matter of the Petition of Kally Soondery Dabia; Kally Soondery Dabia v. Hurrish Chunder Chowdhry, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 594. [June-13, 1881.]

The provisions of Act X. of 1877, s. 610, are not to be construed as restricting the only admissible evidence of an order of Her Majesty in Council to a certified copy, or an application for execution made under that section. They must be read as directory, having the object that proper information regarding the order shall be supplied to the Courts in India. Where the original order (given, according to the practice in England, to the successful party or to one of such parties) had not been filed in the High Court, so as to enable the proper officer to supply a certified copy, held that a copy, though not certified by him, might accompany a petition for execution under s. 610.—Hurrish Chunder Chowdhry v. Kalsunderi Debi, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 482. [Nov. 16, 1882.]

A PLAINTIFF, having preferred an appeal to Her Majesty in Council, was called upon to furnish security. Thereupon A, on behalf of appellant, executed a security-bond for the costs of the respondent. The appeal was dismissed with costs by Her Majesty in Council. On an application (by the respondent in the appeal) for execution to issue against the estate of A, the surety (who had died in the meantime), held that the liability of the surety under the security-bond could not be enforced in execution of the decree of Her Majesty in Council. Bans Bahadur Singh v. Mughla Begum (I. L. R., 3 Mad. 107) dissented from.—Radha Pershad Singh v. Phuljari Koer, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 402. [July 3, 1885.]

UNDER the last paragraph of s. 613 of the Civil Procedure Code, the amount payable must be estimated at the rate of exchange “for the time being fixed by the Secretary of State for India in Council,” and the words “for the time being” mean the year in which the amount is realized or paid or execution taken out, and not the year in which the decree was passed. The decree-holders, under a decree passed by Her Majesty in Council, having taken out execution for a sum of £119-11 under s. 610 of the Civil Procedure Code, held that, the rate of exchange being fixed yearly by the Secretary of State for India in Council, the rate of exchange on the date of the application for execution was the proper rate of exchange the decree-holders were entitled to.—Param Sukh v. Ram Dayal, I. L. R., 8 All. 650. [Aug. 12, 1886.]

611. The orders made by the Court which enforces or executes the order of Her Majesty in Council, relating to such enforcement or execution, shall be appealable in the same manner and subject to the same rules as the orders of such Court relating to the enforcement or execution of its own decrees.

Power to make rules.

612. The High Court may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act to regulate—

- (a) the service of notices under section 600;
 - (b) the grant or refusal of certificates, under sections 601 and 602, by Courts of final appellate jurisdiction subordinate to the High Court;
 - (c) the amount and nature of the security required under sections 602, 605, and 609;
 - (d) the testing of such security;
 - (e) the estimate of the cost of transcribing the record;

All such rules shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law in the High Court and the Courts of final appellate jurisdiction subordinate thereto.

Publication of rules.

613. All rules heretofore made and published by any High Court relating to appeals to Her Majesty in Council, and in force immediately before the passing of this Act, shall, so far as they are consistent with this Act, be deemed to have been made and published hereunder.

Legalization of existing rules.

614. In sections 595 and 612, the expression "High Court" shall be deemed to include also the Recorder of Rangoon, but not so as to empower him to make rules binding on Courts other than his own Court.

Recorded of Rangoon.

615. The rules and restrictions referred to in Bengal Regulation III. of 1828, section IV., clause fifth, shall be deemed to be the rules and restrictions applicable to appeals under this Code from the decisions of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

Construction of Bengal Regulation III. of 1828, section 4, clause 5.

616. Nothing herein contained shall be understood—

Saving of Her Majesty's pleasure,

(a) to bar the full and unqualified exercise of Her Majesty's pleasure in receiving or rejecting appeals to Her Majesty in Council, or otherwise howsoever, or

(b) to interfere with any rules made by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, and for the time being in force, for the presentation of appeals to Her Majesty in Council or their conduct before the said Judicial Committee.

and of rules for conduct of business before Judicial Committee.

And nothing in this chapter applies to any matter of criminal or admiralty or vice-admiralty jurisdiction, or to appeals from orders and decrees of Prize Courts.

PART VII.

CHAPTER XLVI.

OF REFERENCE TO AND REVISION BY THE HIGH COURT.

Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

617. If, before or on the hearing of a suit or an appeal in which the decree is final, or if, in the execution of any such decree, any question of law or usage having the force of law, or the construction of a document, which construction may affect the merits, arises, on which the Court trying the suit or appeal, or executing the decree, entertains reasonable doubt, the Court may, either of its own motion or on the application of any of the parties, draw up a statement of the facts of the case and the point on which doubt is entertained, and refer such statement with its own opinion on the point for the decision of the High Court.

WHEREAS A, under the terms of a will, although not expressly appointed an executor, was directed to receive and pay the testator's debts, and to get in and distribute his personal estate, held that A must be taken to have been appointed under the will an executor by implication. In the Goods of Baylis (L. R. 1 P. M. 21) followed. The order made by a District Judge on an application for probate, not being a final order, cannot be referred for the opinion of the High Court under s. 617 of the Code of Civil Procedure. But the Court will, under certain circumstances, entertain such an application, as a Court of concurrent jurisdiction, under s. 244 of the Indian Succession Act.—In the Matter of Monohur Mookerjee, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 750. [May 7, 1880.]

THE High Court has no power to review a judgment passed by it on a reference from a Subordinate Judge with Small Cause Court powers. Cl. c of s. 623 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882) allows of a review of judgment on a reference only from a Court of Small Causes. The judgment of the High Court in such a case is not a decree or order within the meaning of cl. b of the section, but is simply a statement of the grounds, in conformity with which the lower Court is to dispose of the case, as provided by s. 619.—Rámchandra Bábjí v. Sitáram Vináyak, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 68. [July 23, 1885.]

ON the 22nd March 1886, the applicant presented an application to a Subordinate Judge, praying that the adjustment of certain decrees, dated the 20th March 1867, and 11th July 1871, might be certified, and a sanction granted to a sankhat, dated 18th March 1880, passed to him by the defendant in satisfaction of the said decrees and in substitution of two bonds dated February 1870. The Subordinate Judge, being of opinion that the application could not be granted, inasmuch as the execution of the decrees was then barred by limitation, referred the case to the High Court under s. 617 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882). Held that the question could not be referred under s. 617 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882), as the order applied for to the Subordinate Judge was appealable under s. 2 of the Code. The question raised by the application related to the satisfaction of the decree within the meaning of s. 244 of the Code.—Rangji v. Harjivan, I. L. R., 11 Bom. 57. [July 22, 1886.]

Court may pass decree contingent upon opinion of High Court.

gent upon the opinion of

but no execution shall be issued, property sold, or person imprisoned in any case in which such reference is made until the receipt of a copy of the judgment of the High Court upon such reference.

618. The Court may either stay the proceedings or proceed in the case notwithstanding such reference, and may pass a decree or order contingent upon the opinion of the High Court on the point referred ;

Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

619. The High Court shall hear the parties to the case in which the reference is made, in person or by their respective pleaders, and shall decide the point so referred, and shall transmit a copy of its judgment, under the signature of the Registrar, to the Court by which the reference was made ; and such Court shall, on the receipt thereof, proceed to dispose of the case in conformity with the decision of the High Court.

THE High Court has no power to review a judgment passed by it on a reference from a Subordinate Judge with Small Cause Court powers. Cl. c of s. 623 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882) allows of a review of judgment on a reference only from a Court of Small Causes. The judgment of the High Court in such a case is not a decree or order within the meaning of cl. b of the section, but is simply a statement of the grounds, in conformity with which the lower Court is to dispose of the case, as provided by s. 619.—Rámchandra Bábjí v. Sitáram Vináyak, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 68. [July 23, 1885.]

Costs of reference to High Court.

620. Costs (if any) consequent on a reference for the opinion of the High Court shall be costs in the case.

Ditto.

621. When a case is referred to the High Court under this chapter, the High Court may return the case for amendment, and may alter, cancel, or set aside any decree or order which the High Court making the reference has passed in the case out of which the reference arose, and make such order as it thinks fit.

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

622. The High Court may call for the record of any case in which no appeal lies to the High Court, if the Court by which the case was decided appears to have exercised a jurisdiction not vested in it by law, or to have failed to exercise a jurisdiction so vested, or to have acted in the exercise of its jurisdiction "illegally or" * with material irregularity; and may pass such order in the case as the High Court thinks fit.

WHERE an application was made for the issue of execution of decree, and the District Munsif made an order refusing execution, the decree being one passed not in a regular suit, and governed by the one-year limitation, and the Subordinate Judge on appeal reversed the Munsif's order, applying the three years' limitation, held by the High Court that, as Act X. of 1877, s. 588, provided that orders passed in appeal from orders under s. 244 should be final, no second appeal lay; and that the High Court could not interfere under s. 622, as the Subordinate Judge had jurisdiction to hear the appeal.—Suryaprakasa Ráu v. Vaisya Sannyási, Dzu, I. L. R., 1 Mad. 401. [Sep. 16, 1877.]

THE purchaser at a sale by public auction did, by the exercise of fraud and collusion with the agent of the execution-creditor (though without the creditor's personal knowledge), succeed in becoming the purchaser at a depreciated value. There was no material irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale. Held that the Court which ordered the sale had jurisdiction to refuse to confirm the sale on the ground of the fraud practised by the agent of the execution-creditor and the purchaser. Held also that the High Court had power under s. 622 of Act X. of 1877 to rescind the order made by the Court of first instance confirming the sale. Held by Kernan, J.—That the party defrauded out not to be referred to bring a regular suit. The question ought to be decided at once on motion in the original cause. Held by Muttasami Ayyar, J., that fraud was a valid ground of relief on petition when it related to the mode in which the auction was held, and the purchaser was a party to it, but it was doubtful whether fraud was a ground of relief on petition when it was a remote cause of the sale. — Subbaji Ráu v. Srinivása Ráu and Pulliah, I. L. R., 2 Mad. 264. [Jan. 19, 1880.]

AN application to sue as a pauper having been refused on the ground that the suit was barred by limitation, the High Court, on revision, permitted the applicant to renew his application to the Court below. The Subordinate Judge verbally rejected this second application, stating that he would deliver a written judgment. Before the written judgment was delivered, the applicant offered to pay the usual court-fees (although not actually tendering them at the time), and asked that the petition might be taken as a plaint filed on the date of the first application. This offer was mentioned and refused in the written judgment. Held, on the case coming up to the High Court under Act X. of 1877, s. 622, that the circumstances of the case were not such as would justify the Court in interfering under that section.—Ramahai Sing v. Maniram, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 807. [Feb. 18, 1880.]

CERTAIN immoveable property was, on the 15th February 1879, notified for sale under a decree of a Civil Court on the 15th March following, so that only 29, instead of 30, days elapsed between the day of the sale and the notification. The sale having taken place, the execution-debtor applied to the Deputy Commissioner to set it aside upon the ground that the sale was illegal, the requirements of Act X. of 1877, s. 290, being essential to its validity. Upon that ground the sale was set aside as illegal by the Deputy Commissioner. On appeal, the Judicial Commissioner reversed this decision, on the ground that the fact of the sale having taken place 29 instead of 30 days after the notification was merely an irregularity, and that, as the execution-debtor had not shown that he had suffered any damage from the irregularity, the sale ought to be confirmed. An application was then

* S. 622, in its application to the territories to which the Panjab Courts Act (XVIII. of 1884) extends, shall be read as if the words "illegally or" were omitted, and for the purposes of that section no appeal shall be deemed to lie from the appellate decree of a Divisional Court to the Chief Court when the case does not fall under cl. A, cl. B, or cl. C of s. 40, and an application under cl. D of that section has been refused.—Panjab Courts Act (XVIII. of 1884), s. 70. If the Court, on an application under s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code, on which a fee has been paid under the last preceding section, sets aside or modifies the decree or order of a Subordinate Court, or remands the case for a fresh decision, it may grant to the applicant a certificate authorizing him to receive back from the Collector the full amount of fee paid on the application, or any smaller amount which, with regard to the circumstance of the case, it may think proper to order to be refunded.—Panjab Courts Act (XVIII. of 1884), s. 72.

made to a division Bench of the High Court to set aside the order of the Judicial Commissioner confirming the sale, upon the ground that it was manifestly erroneous, and the Division Bench referred the question to a Full Bench: Whether, assuming the requirements of s. 290 to be essential to the validity of a sale, the High Court had any power, either under 24 and 25 Vic., c. 105, s. 15, or Act X. of 1877, s. 622, as amended, to set aside the Judicial Commissioner's order. Held by the Full Bench, without answering the question referred, that, assuming the requirements of s. 290 to be essential, the High Court had a right, under its summary powers, to set aside the sale itself, notwithstanding (and apart from the question whether it would set aside) the order of the Judicial Commissioner.—In re Bhokraji Keori, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 878. [April 5, 1880.]

WHEN a Court has refused to file an award upon an application under s. 525, Civil Procedure Code, no appeal lies against such decision, which is an order, and not a decree; but the High Court can interfere under s. 622. An award made under s. 525, which is partly within and partly exceeds the terms of the submission to arbitration, cannot be enforced by summary procedure under s. 526 as to such portion as does not exceed those terms. To refer to arbitration questions arising on the construction of the award and questions left undecided by it is a matter beyond the scope of an agreement to submit to a scheme for the future management of a dévasan as regards conduct of suits, granting of demises, custody of property, collection of rents, appointment and removal of servants, and defrayment of current expenditure.—R. Ry. Māna Vikrama, Zamorin, Mahārāja Bahadur of Calicut v. Mallichery Kristnan Nambūdiri, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 68. [July 26, 1880.]

Per Pearson, J., Oldfield, J., and Straight, J.—When, under s. 622 of Act X. of 1877, the High Court has called for the record of a case in which no appeal lies to it, it may, under that section, pass any order in such case which it might pass if it dealt with the case as a second appeal under chap. 42 of the Act. Per Stuart, C.J.—The High Court may, under that section, pass in such case any order, whether in regard to fact or law, as it thinks proper. Where, in a case of the execution of a decree in which no second appeal lay to the High Court, the Appellate Court held, on the construction of the decree, that it awarded interest on the principal amount of the decree, the High Court, under s. 622 of Act X. of 1877, holding that the Appellate Court has misconstrued the decree, and that the decree did not award such interest, modified the order of the Appellate Court accordingly.—In the Matter of the Petition of Moulvi Muhammad v. Syed Husain, I. L. R., 3 All. 203 (F. B.). [Aug. 18, 1880.]

It is only on the application of a party interested that the High Court can act as a Court of Revision under s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code. Accordingly, where a Munsif, considering that the Subordinate Judge had acted without jurisdiction in sitting aside, on appeal, certain orders made by him, brought the matter to the knowledge of the District Judge, who took the same view, and the latter referred the case to the High Court under that section, it was held that the Court had no power to interfere.—Mahomed Foyez Chowdhry, 7 C. L. R. 191. [Aug. 20, 1880.]

S INSTITUTED a suit against T in the Court of the Assistant Collector of the first class, who dismissed the suit. On appeal by S the District Court gave her a decree. On second appeal by T the High Court held that, as the suit was one of the nature cognizable in a Court of Small Causes, a second appeal would not lie in the case, and dismissed it. T thereupon applied to the High Court to set aside, under the provisions of s. 622 of Act X. of 1877, the proceedings of both the lower Courts, on the ground that both those Courts had exercised a jurisdiction not vested in them by law. Held that the High Court was competent to entertain such application, and to quash the proceedings of both the lower Courts under the provisions of s. 622 of Act X. of 1877, and the proceedings of both those Courts should be quashed. Observations by Stuart, C.J., on the powers of revision of the High Court under s. 622 of Act X. of 1877.—Sarnam Tewari v. Sakina Bibi, I. L. R., 3 All. 417. [Jan. 4, 1881.]

THE discretionary power of a Civil Court, before or against which an offence mentioned in s. 468 or 469 of Act X. of 1872 is alleged to have been committed, to grant or withhold sanction to the prosecution for such offence, is not subject to revision by the High Court under s. 622 of Act X. of 1877.—In the Matter of the Petition of Madho Prasad, I. L. R., 3 All. 508. [Feb. 1, 1881.]

THE rule of English practice which prevents a minor from instituting a suit in forma pauperis through his next friend, unless he gives proof not only that he is himself a pauper, but that the next friend is a pauper, and that he cannot get any substantial person to act as his next friend, is not to be found in, or deduced from, the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code.—Venkatanarasayya v. Achemma, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 8. [Feb. 28, 1881.]

AFTER a mortgage had been foreclosed under the provisions of Regulation XVII. of 1806, the representative of the mortgagor deposited the mortgage-money in Court. The District Judge ordered that the money should be paid to the mortgagor on the ground that the mortgagor had not been personally served with the notice required by §. 8 of that Regulation, and that it did not appear that she had been aware of the foreclosure-proceedings. The District Judge subsequently ordered the mortgagee, who was in possession of the mortgaged property under the term of the mortgage, to surrender the property. The mortgagee applied to the High Court to revise these orders under s. 622 of Act X. of 1877. Held that the application was entertainable under the provisions of that section, and that the orders of the District Judge were made without jurisdiction, and should be set aside.—Hazari Lal v. Kheru Bai, I. L. R., 3 All. 576. [Mar. 25, 1881.]

A AND B, both of whom set up a claim to certain land, brought separate rent-suits against the tenants. In none of these suits did the amount claimed exceed Rs. 100. Subsequently to the institution of the rent-suit, A sued B to establish his title to the land in dispute. The District Judge, before whom the rent-suit came on appeal, allowed them to stand over until the decision in the suit between A and B. That suit was decided in favour of B, and the Judge then decided the rent-suits instituted by B in his favour, and dismissed the suits instituted by A. Held that no second appeal would lie in the rent-suits, as no question of title between parties having conflicting claims was decided in them. Held also that there was no such irregularity on the part of the District Judge in the course which he pursued, of making his decision in the rent-suit depend upon the decision in the suit to establish title, as would justify the Court in interfering under s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code. S. 102 of Beng. Act VIII. of 1865 was enacted in order to protect parties in the position of raiyat-defendants, and to prevent their being dragged up to the High Court in cases where the decree or demand is under Rs. 100. In such cases the decree is intended to have the same effect as that of the Small Cause Court.—Doorga Narain Sen v. Ram Lal Chhutar, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 330. [May 10, 1881.]

NO Court, other than a Court of Appeal or a High Court acting under s. 622, can discharge an order of attachment issued by another Court. Where a claimant to property attached in execution of a decree intervenes, but fails to get the order of attachment set aside, and is compelled to bring a suit to establish his right, the discharge of the order of attachment cannot properly be asked for in such suit. The intervenor, having established his title by declaratory decree or otherwise, should then carry the decree to the Court by which the order of attachment was issued, and such Court is bound to recognize the adjudication, and govern itself accordingly. Narayanray Damedar v. Balkrishna Mahadev Gadre (I. L. R., 4 Bom. 529) followed.—Kolashheri Illath Narainan and another v. Kolashheri Illath Nilakandan Nambudri and another, I. L. R., 4 Mad. 131. [Sep. 2, 1881.]

S. 9 of the Specific Relief Act does not prohibit a rehearing under s. 105 of the Code of Civil Procedure. A rehearing differs widely from a review. A High Court can interfere under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure without an application made to it by a party to a suit.—Andrew Anthony v. Rev. J. M. Dupont, I. L. R., 4 Mad. 217. [Sep. 30, 1881.]

WHERE an auction-purchaser applied to the High Court to set aside, in the exercise of its powers under s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code, an order setting aside a sale of immoveable property in execution of a decree, on the ground that such order was illegal, such application being made nearly seventeen months after the date of such order, the Court, having regard to the time that had elapsed before such application was made, refused to interfere.—In the Matter of the Petition of Durga Prasad v. Sheo Charan Lal, I. L. R., 4 All. 154. [Dec. 7, 1881.]

WHERE a Court improperly refused to amend a decree, which was at variance with the judgment, held that in so acting the Court had acted in the exercise of its jurisdiction illegally and with material irregularity within the meaning of s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code, and its order was consequently subject to revision under that section. On the question whether the High Court should refrain from exercising its powers under s. 622 by reason of the long time which had elapsed from the date of the decree, held that the petitioner was not fairly chargeable with laches.—Balmakund v. Sheo Jatan Lal, I. L. R., 6 All. 125. [Mar. 15, 1882.]

AFTER a decree had been made ex parte, the defendant applied to have it set aside. The Subordinate Judge refused the application, but his order was reversed by the District Judge. Held that the order of the District Judge was final under s. 588, and that no second appeal would lie; nor would the Court interfere under s. 622 of the Code.—Auburn Chunder Mookerjee v. Martin, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 832. [April 13, 1882.]

S. 522 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1877, which provides that no appeal shall lie from a decree upon an award, except in so far as the decree is in excess of, or not in accordance with, the award, assumes that the award has been regularly and properly passed by arbitrators duly appointed. Where two of five arbitrators nominated by the parties to a suit and appointed by the Court had not consented before, and, after appointment, declined to act, and the Court appointed two arbitrators in their place against the consent of one of the parties to the suit, held that, under the circumstances, the appointment of the new arbitrators was not warranted by the provisions of s. 510 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and the order of reference to such arbitrators, the award made by them, and the decrees passed upon the award, were illegal. Held also that the High Court could set aside the decree under the powers given by s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Pugardin v. Moidin, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 414. [April 13, 1882.]

A PERSON claiming to be a co-sharer in certain undivided immoveable property, a share of which had been sold in execution of a decree, objected to the confirmation of the sale in favour of the person recorded as the auction-purchaser, and prayed that it might be confirmed in his favour, with reference to the provisions of s. 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure Code. The Court disallowed the objection, and confirmed the sale in favour of the auction-purchaser. The objector thereupon applied to the High Court for revision of the order of the lower Court under s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held that, having been allowed to object to the confirmation of the sale, and treated as a party to the proceeding held therein, it was competent for him to make such application, notwithstanding that he was not one of the persons mentioned in s. 311 of the Code; that there being no appeal in the case, so far as he was concerned, the High Court was competent to entertain the application under s. 622 of the Code; but that, as he was not one of the persons who was competent to avail himself of the provisions of s. 311, he had no locus standi to justify his application to the lower Court, and the application for revision must therefore be dismissed.—Bisheshwar Kuar v. Hari Singh, I. L. R., 5 All. 42. [July 18, 1882.]

AN order under s. 251 of the Civil Procedure Code, setting aside an award, made on a reference to arbitration in the course of a suit, under chap. 37 of the Code, on the ground of the arbitrator's misconduct, is not subject to revision by the High Court in the exercise of the powers conferred on it by s. 622 of the Code.—Chattar Singh v. Lekhraj Singh, I. L. R., 5 All. 293. [Feb. 1, 1883.]

A Division Bench (Pinhey and Nánabhai Haridas, JJ.) of the High Court referred the following question for the determination of the Full Bench: "Whether the High Court should exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure, or otherwise, on behalf of persons who feel themselves aggrieved by orders passed by Courts below in cases in which it appears the law has specifically prescribed another remedy by suit or otherwise?" Held that the question did not admit of a precise categorical reply; that the High Court could not impose on itself limitations without regard to circumstances; but that the general principles governing the exercise, by the High Court, of its visitatorial or superintending powers to be deduced from a general survey of the authorities on the subject might be reduced to the form of the following seven propositions, the fifth of which would ordinarily govern in the class of cases alluded to in the question:—(1.) The visitatorial or superintending power of the High Court is so necessary, and almost indispensable, that it is not to be wholly excluded even by a clause in a Statute withdrawing cases under the Statute from its control. When such a Statute has been made a mere pretext, or has been wholly misapplied, the case will be treated as one not really arising under the Statute, but on an evasion or perversion of the Statute, and, as such, subject to the general control of the Court. (2.) The Court, having called up the record or proceedings of a subordinate Court, will itself investigate the facts on which a jurisdiction has been assumed or declined; on which it depends whether the subordinate Court could or could not legally deal with the matter in question, either at all or on the principle to which it has referred the case; or according to which its mode of inquiry or of action may or may not have been in contradiction rather than obedience to the rules or procedure, or the principles implied in them, to such a material extent as to defeat the purpose of the law. (3.) If the Court finds that the external conditions of jurisdiction, of investigation, and of command, have been satisfied by the inferior Court, it will not substitute its own appreciation of evidence, or its own judgment thereon, for the determination of the inferior Court, in any matter committed by the Legislature to the discretion of such Court. (4.) Where an appeal is provided, the Court will not interfere by any peremptory order with the ordinary course of adjudication, save in cases wherein a defeat of the law and a grave wrong are manifest, and are irremediable by the regular procedure. (5.) Where a decree or order of a subordinate Court is declared by the law to be, for its own purposes, final or conclusive, though in its nature provisional, as subject to displacement by the decree in another more formal suit; the Court will have regard to the intention of the Legislature that promptness and certainty should, in such cases, be in some measure accepted instead of judicial perfection: It will rectify the proceedings of the inferior Court where the extrinsic conditions of its legal activity have plainly been infringed; but where the alleged or apparent error consists in a misapprehension of evidence, or a misconstruction of the law, intrinsic to the inquiry and decision, it will respect the intended finality and will intervene peremptorily only when it is manifest that by the ordinary and prescribed method an adequate remedy, or the intended remedy, cannot be had. (6.) The Court will, in all cases, regard its exercise of the extraordinary jurisdiction as discretionary, and subject to considerations of the importance of the particular case, or of the principle involved in it, of delay on the part of an applicant, and of his merits with respect to the case in which the interference of the Court is sought. Should other special causes appear for or against the Court's intervention, due weight is to be given to them, regard being always had to the principles already enunciated. (7.) The Court will "sedulously abstain" from making any order or refusing to make it on grounds the appreciation of which is exclusively assigned by law to some other authority, provided the legal competence be exercised in good faith on matters that may reasonably be understood as within its lawful range.—Shivá Natháji v. Jomá Kashinath, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 341. [July 6, 1883.]

AN order under s. 335 of the Civil Procedure Code is subject to revision by the High Court under s. 622 of that Code. Shiva Nathaji v. Joma Kashinath (I. L. R., 7 Bom. 341) followed.—Sheoráj Singh v. Banwári Dás, I. L. R., 6 All. 172. [Jan. 22, 1884.]

AN order under s. 25 of the Civil Procedure Code, transferring a suit in which an appeal would lie from the decree made therein, is not subject to revision by the High Court under s. 622.—Farid Ahmad v. Dulari Bibi, I. L. R., 6 All. 233. [Feb. 19, 1884.]

A COURT that has decided a suit over which it had jurisdiction cannot, only on the ground that it has arrived at wrong decision, be said to have exercised its jurisdiction illegally, or with material irregularity, within the meaning of s. 622 of Act X. of 1877, as amended by s. 92 of Act XII. of 1879.—Anfir Hassan Khan v. Sheo Baksh Singh, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 6. [June 20, 1884.]

AN order rejecting a memorandum of appeal as barred by limitation is a "decree" within the meaning of s. 2 of the Civil Procedure Code; it is therefore appealable, and not open to revision by the High Court under s. 622 of the Code. Gajraj Singh v. Bhagwant Singh and Dianatullah (Weekly Notes, 1883, p. 255) and Reg. v. Wajid Ali Shahi (I. L. R., 6 All. 438) distinguished.—Gulab Rai v. Mangli Lal, I. L. R., 7 All. 42. [June 29, 1884.]

IN 1862 a suit for mesne-profits was brought against certain persons as being the heirs of one Romanath Lahiry, deceased, among whom were his widow and two infant sons. During the pendency of this suit the two infant sons died; and the widow was made a defendant as representing the estate of her deceased sons. The suit was decreed in favour of the plaintiffs in 1875; and on the plaintiffs applying for execution the widow objected that 5-16th of the properties against which execution was sought, was the property of her adopted son whom she alleged to have adopted in 1874; the adopted son was not made a party to the suit; this objection was overruled, but the same objection was taken by the adopted son through his natural father as his guardian and next friend, and the Court released the 5-16th share from attachment, and allowed the objection. Against this order some of the plaintiffs appealed, but pending the appeal another of the plaintiffs applied to the High Court under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure to have the order set aside. The Court, whilst refusing to interfere with the order, inasmuch as there appeared to be no material irregularity therein, pointed out to the lower Court that the decree of 1875 having been obtained on account of a debt of Romanath Lahiry's, and being against the widow as representing her husband's (Romanath's) estate, the estate would be answerable for the debt, whether the widow or the adopted son represented the estate, supposing the decree to have been properly obtained. The principle in Ishan Chunder Mitter v. Buksh Ali Soudagur (Marsh. 614) followed.—Sotish Chunder Lahiry v. Nil Comul Lahiry, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 45. [Sep. 10, 1884.]

IN any case where there is a disregard of the law amounting to an excess of jurisdiction, or a perversion of the purposes of the Legislature, the High Court will interfere under its extraordinary jurisdiction where no other remedy is available.—Dagdusá Tilakchand v. Bhukan Govind Shet, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 82. [Sep. 15, 1884.]

THE opponents had obtained a decree for the possession of certain land against the brother and father of the applicants in the Court of the Mamlatdár at Karád, in the Sátára District. The applicants were not parties to the suit. The decree was executed, and the opponents were put into possession. Thereupon the applicants, on the 19th May 1884, presented a petition in the Mámlatdár's Court, under s. 4 of Bombay Act III. of 1878, alleging that they had been in actual possession of the lands, and had been ousted from them in execution of the decree, and praying that they might be again put into possession. The Mámlatdár was of opinion that the matter was res judicata, and dismissed the petition. He relied on a circular of the Executive Government as his authority. The applicants applied to the High Court under its extraordinary jurisdiction. Held that it was not a case for the exercise of the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court. The Mámlatdár was, no doubt, guilty of a formal error. In the exercise of his judicial functions he was bound to be governed by the law as he understood it, or as it had been expounded by superior judicial authority, not as it was understood or expounded by 'unjudicial persons. This, however, was merely an irregularity on the part of the Mámlatdár not apparently involving an injustice to the applicants, who might bring a suit on their title if they had a title.—Naná Bayáji v. Pándurang Vámadev, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 77. [Sep. 16, 1884.]

S, HAVING mortgaged land to K as security for a debt, sold it to V, who undertook to pay the debt. K, alleging that C had undertaken either to make V pay the debt or to execute a mortgage of his own land to secure its repayment, and that V had dispossessed him, sued S, V, and C to recover the debt by sale of the land mortgaged, mesne-profits from V, and costs from S, V, and C. The District Munsif decreed payment against S; mesne-profits, and in default of payment by S, a sale of the land against V; and costs against S, V, and C. V and C appealed against this decree. The Subordinate Judge found that the debt had been paid, and held that, even if the debt had not been paid, K had no cause of action against V or S, but, if at all, against C, and dismissed the suit as against V. The Subordinate Judge also held that he had no jurisdiction to interfere with the decree against S, and saw no reason to interfere with the decree against C. S appealed against this decree. Held that, even if S was not entitled to appeal in order to have the decree against him set aside, the error of the Subordinate Judge could be corrected under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure by a direction to exercise the discretionary power given by s. 544 of the said Code.—Seshadri v. Krishnan, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 192. [Nov. 17, 1884.]

A DECREE passed by a Subordinate Judge upon a bond, in which certain immoveable property was mortgaged, was, in accordance with the rules made by the Local Government under s. 320 of the Civil Procedure Code, transferred to the Collector for execution. A sale in execution took place, and the Collector gave the purchaser a certificate of the sale. Upon this certificate the purchaser applied to the Subordinate Judge to give him possession of a larger amount of property than that specified in the certificate, and, upon the refusal of the Court to do so, applied to the Collector to amend the certificate. The amendment having been made as desired, the purchaser again applied to the Subordinate Judge for possession of the amount claimed by him, and the Subordinate Judge again rejected the application, holding that only the lesser amount had been sold in execution of the decree. Held that, with reference to the second paragraph of rule 19 of the rules framed by the Local Government under s. 320 of the Civil Procedure Code, regarding the transmission, execution, and retransmission of decrees, and published in the N.-W. P. and Oudh Gazette of the 4th September 1880, the matter of delivery to the purchaser was within the jurisdiction of the Subordinate Judge, notwithstanding the terms of s. 320, and notwithstanding the ruling of the Full Bench in Mudho Prasad v. Hansa Kaur (I. L. R., 5 All. 314). Held also that, inasmuch as the Subordinate Judge had jurisdiction to decide the question, and inasmuch as, even if his decision were wrong, the purchaser had a remedy by bringing a regular suit, the matter did not fall with s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code, so as to call for the interference of the High Court in revision. Shivanathaji v. Jona Kashinath (I. L. R., 7 Bom 341) and Amir Hassan Khan v. Shoo Baksh Singh (I. L. R., 11 Cal. 6) referred to.—Sundar Das v. Mansa Ram, I. L. R., 7 All. 407. [Dec. 16, 1884.]

PER Oldfield, J.—When an original decree is amended under s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code, it, as amended, is the decree in the suit; and an appeal, therefore, lies from it under the provisions of s. 540, when the validity of the amendment can be questioned. The matter of amending a decree under s. 206 does not by itself constitute a "case" within the meaning of s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code, but forms part of the proceedings in the suit in which the decree is made. Held, therefore, per Oldfield, J., that, where an original decree, which was appealable, was amended by the Court of first instance, under s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code, the High Court had no power to revise such amendment under s. 622 of the Code. Per Mahmood, J.—An order passed under s. 206 amending a decree is a separate adjudication, and is not merely a part of the original decree, and cannot alter its date; and such an order is not appealable under s. 588 of the Code. Such an order, therefore, can be revised by the High Court under s. 622.—Raghunath Das v. Raj Kumar, I. L. R., 7 All. 276. [Dec. 22, 1884.]

A DISTRICT Judge, by an order passed under s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code, altered a decree passed by his predecessor in the terms, "I dismiss the appeal," to read "I accept the appeal," on the ground that his predecessor had obviously meant to say that he accepted the appeal, and that the decree as it stood failed to give effect to the judgment. Per Oldfield, J.—That the order passed by the Judge under s. 206 could not be made the subject of revision by the High Court under s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code, because there was an appeal from the amended decree, which became the decree in the suit, and superseded the original decree. Per Mahmood, J.—That an order passed under s. 206 of the Civil Procedure Code constituted an adjudication separate from that concluded by a decree under the Code passed after the parties had been heard and evidence taken, and that the order in the present case was therefore a separate adjudication, and was not appealable under s. 588. Also that, in saying "but by "dismissed," his predecessor meant "decree," the Judge had altered the decree in a manner not warranted by the terms of s. 206, that he had, therefore, exercised his jurisdiction "illegally and with material irregularity," within the meaning of s. 622 of the Code, and that the Court was consequently competent to revise his order. Raghunath Das v. Raj Kumar (I. L. R., 7 All. 276) referred to.—Surtia v. Ganga, I. L. R., 7 All. 411. [Jan. 14, 1885.]

THE plaintiff brought a suit in the Calcutta Court of Small Causes to recover damages for trespass to certain immovable property of which he proved he was in possession. The defendant contended that such a suit was one for the determination of a right to, or interest in, immovable property, and was therefore not maintainable in the Small Cause Court. Held the Court had jurisdiction to entertain such a suit.—Peary Mohun Ghosaul v. Harrau Chunder Gangooly, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 204. [Mar. 2, 1885.]

A WRONG decision on a question of res judicata is not a subject for the interference of the High Court under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882).—Hari Bhikaji v. Naro Vishvanath, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 432. [Mar. 18, 1885.]

WHERE an application for leave to sue as a pauper was rejected with reference to s. 407 (c) of the Civil Procedure Code on the ground that the claim was barred by limitation, and therefore the applicant had no right to sue, held by the Full Bench that the Court had acted within its powers, and that its jurisdiction not having been exercised illegally or with material irregularity the High Court had no power of interference in revision under s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code. Amir Hassan Khan v. Sheo Baksh Singh (I. L. R., 11 Cal. 3) referred to. The terms of s. 407 (c) of the Code must not be read as limiting the Court's discretion to merely ascertaining whether the "right to sue" arose within its jurisdiction, but have a more extended meaning, namely, that an applicant must make out that he has a good subsisting cause of action, capable of enforcement in Court, and calling for an answer, and not barred by the law of limitation or any other law. Per Mahmood, J.—The word "case" as used in s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code should be understood in its broadest and most ordinary sense, including all adjudications which might constitute the subject of appeal subject to the rules governing the exercise of the appellate and revisional jurisdictions respectively; and it comprehends adjudications under s. 407, which fall under the same general category of adjudications as the rejection of an ordinary plaint under s. 53 or s. 54. Phul Singh v. Jagan Nath (Weekly Notes, 1883, p. 39), Bhulnethri Dutt v. Bidiudhis (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 69), and Sital Sahu v. Bachu Ram (Weekly Notes, 1882, p. 92), referred to. Also per Mahmood, J.—The provisions of s. 407 must be interpreted strictly, inasmuch as they operate in derogation of the right possessed by every litigant to seek the aid of the Courts of Justice; and an exercise of jurisdiction under that section, when such exercise of jurisdiction is open to the objection of illegality or material irregularity, would form a proper subject of revision by the High Court. Har Prasad v. Jafar Ali (I. L. R., 7 All. 345) and Ammal v. Nayudu (I. L. R., 4 Mad. 323) referred to.—Chittarpal Singh v. Raja Ram, I. L. R., 7 All. 661. [April 8, 1885.]

IN A suit between A and B, heard on the 29th January 1883, a certain conveyance was filed with the plaint, but up to the hearing this conveyance had been protected from discovery. B's counsel had, however, had a copy thereof delivered to him at the time B's written statement was being drawn, and a copy briefed to him at the hearing. At the hearing A's counsel stated that the effect of the conveyance was to vest the entirety of a certain property in A; this view was accepted by B's counsel, who did not read the conveyance. The only issue in the case was "who was in possession of the property," and the Court decided this issue on the 5th February in favour of the plaintiff. On the 26th February, B brought a suit against A to set aside this conveyance on the ground of fraud. And in certain proceedings in this case taken on the 31st March, B's counsel discovered, as he alleged for the first time, that under the conveyance, a moiety of a seven-twenty-fourth share remained in B. On that day instructions were given to B's counsel to draw up a petition of review of the judgment of the 5th February. This petition, owing to the Easter Vacation, was not, and could not have been, presented till the 9th April. Held that the words "sufficient reason" in s. 623 of the Code should receive a liberal construction, and should be construed so as to do substantial justice to the parties; that as in this case it appeared to the Court that the construction placed upon the conveyance by B's counsel was the correct one, "sufficient reason" had been shown for making the application. In deciding whether B had shown "sufficient cause" within the meaning of s. 5 of the Limitation Act for not making the application within the time allowed by law, the Court, following the principles laid down by Bowen, L.J., In re Manchester Economic Building Society (L. R., 21 Ch. 488), in its discretion, held that "sufficient cause" had been shown by B. Anderson v. Corporation of the Town of Calcutta (I. L. R., 10 Cal. 445) distinguished.—In the Matter of the Petition of Solomon; Gopal Chunder Lahiry v. Solomon, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 767. [July 16, 1885.]

In computing the period of eighty-nine days from the date of decree, within which an application for review of judgment may be presented on payment of half the fee leviable on the plaint or memorandum of appeal (under art. 5 of sch. I. of the Court Fees Act, 1870), the time during which the Court is closed for vacation cannot be excluded.—In re Kow, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 134. [July 28, 1885.]

WHERE a Court, professing to act under s. 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure, set aside a sale in execution of a decree without proof of substantial injury having been suffered by the applicant, held that such order was passed without jurisdiction within the meaning of s. 622 of the said Code.—Lakshmana v. Najimudin, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 145. [Aug. 28, 1885.]

THE plaintiffs obtained a decree in the Court of a Second-class Subordinate Judge for a sum less than Rs. 5,000, which, with accumulations of interest, subsequently exceeded Rs. 5,000. The plaintiffs applied in execution to recover the total amount. The application was rejected by the Subordinate Judge, on the ground that the Court had no jurisdiction under s. 24 of Act XIV. of 1869. On appeal, the District Judge made an order confirming the decision of the Subordinate Judge. The plaintiffs filed a second appeal in the High Court. Held that no second appeal lay to the High Court from such an order; but, as the Subordinate Judge was wrong in refusing to exercise his jurisdiction, the High Court would give relief under the extraordinary jurisdiction conferred by s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882). The subject-matter of the suit was within the jurisdiction of the Subordinate Judge, and his jurisdiction continued, whatever might be the result of the suit, in all such matters in the suit as were within his cognizance, amongst which were matters in execution in the suit. The mere circumstance that the amount actually due by process of accumulation exceeded Rs. 5,000 could not oust him from the jurisdiction he hitherto had over the suit.—Shamráv Páudoji v. Niloji Rámaji, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 200. [Sep. 7, 1885.]

THE definition of "decree" in s. 2 of the Civil Procedure Code means that where the proceeding of the Court finally disposes of the suit, so long as it remains upon the record, it is a "decree." Held by the Full Bench that an order passed under s. 381 of the Civil Procedure Code, dismissing a suit for failure by the plaintiff to furnish security for costs as ordered, was the decree in the suit, and appealable as such, and consequently was not open to revision by the High Court under s. 622 of the Code.—Williams (J. B.) v. Brown (T. A.), I. L. R., 8 All. 108. [Jan. 23, 1886.]

A SUIT was instituted in the Court of a Munsif to recover from the defendants a sum of Rs. 49, being the amount due under a bond, and which the plaintiff alleged had been recovered on her account by one of the defendants from the obligor. The Munsif, being of opinion that the determination of the plaintiff's right to the bond involved the question of her heirship to the estate of a certain deceased person, and that consequently the case before him raised a question affecting the title to property exceeding Rs. 1,000 in value, held that he had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit, and accordingly returned the plaint for presentation to the proper Court under s. 57 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held by the Full Bench that the Munsif had acted upon an erroneous view, as the only subject-matter of the suit was the Rs. 49; that he had consequently failed to exercise a jurisdiction vested in him, and the High Court was therefore competent to revise his order under s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code. The result of Amir Hassan v. Sheo Baksh Singh (I. L. R., 11 Cal. 6) and Magni Ram v. Jiwa Lal (I. L. R., 7 All. 336) is that the questions to which s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code applies are questions of jurisdiction only. The meaning of the decision of the Privy Council in the former case is that, if the Court has jurisdiction to hear and determine a suit, it has jurisdiction to hear and determine all questions which arise in it, either of fact or law, and that the High Court has no jurisdiction under s. 622 to inquire into the correctness of its view of the law, or the soundness of its findings as to facts; but that, when no appeal is provided, its decision on questions of both kinds is final. Per Straight and Tyrrell, JJ.—Clauses (a) and (b) of s. 584, specifying the grounds on which a second appeal lies to the High Court, embody what s. 622 refers to in the word “illegally;” that is to say, to cases where the Court below has, in the exercise of its jurisdiction, come to a decision which is contrary to some specified law of usage having the force of law, or failed to determine some material issue of law of usage. Clause (c) of s. 584 indicates the meaning of the words “material irregularity” in s. 622, i.e., some material irregularity in procedure, “which may possibly have produced error or defect in the decision of the case upon the merits.” Moulvi Muhammad v. Syed Husain (I. L. R., 3 All. 203) referred to.—Badami Kvar v. Dinu Rai, I. L. R., 8 All. 111. [Jan. 27, 1886.]

A CLAIM by R to certain property which had been attached by B in the course of execution-proceedings in the Court of the First Subordinate Judge of Dacca having been rejected, R instituted a suit in the Court of the Second Subordinate Judge to establish his title to the property. In that suit he applied to the Court in which his suit was brought for an injunction under s. 492 of the Civil Procedure Code to stay the sale of the property attached by B in the execution-proceedings; but that application was rejected, and R thereupon applied for and obtained from the Court of the First Subordinate Judge an order staying the sale of the attached property until the hearing of the suit brought by him to establish his right to it. Held, in an application under s. 622 of the Code, to set the latter order aside, that s. 492 of the Code of 1882 has, and was intended to have, a wider application than s. 92 of Act VIII. of 1859 had, and provides a remedy where property is “in danger of being wrongfully sold;” if the circumstances justified it, an order could have been obtained under that section from the Court of the Second Subordinate Judge to stay the sale. There being this alteration in the law, and such a remedy provided, and no express provision in the Code for stay of execution by a Court executing a decree on the application of a third party, the order of the First Subordinate Judge was made without jurisdiction, and should be set aside.—In the Matter of the Petition of Brojendra Kumar Rai Chowdhuri; Brojendra Kumar Rai Chowdhuri v. Rup Lall Dass, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 515. [Feb. 1, 1886.]

UNDER s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure, interlocutory orders passed under s. 387 refusing applications for the issue of a commission to examine witnesses, or, under s. 130, directing the production of documents, cannot be revised.—In re Nizam of Hyderabad, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 256. [Feb. 22, 1886.]

A SALE of the tenants' interest in certain land having taken place under ss. 39 and 40 of the Rent Recovery Act, the Deputy Collector refused to issue a sale-certificate to the purchaser on the ground that the sale had been irregularly conducted. Held that under s. 35 of the Rent Recovery Act the purchaser was entitled to a sale-certificate. Held further that the High Court had no power to review the proceedings of the Deputy Collector under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Velli Periya Mira v. Moidin Padsha, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 332. [Feb. 27, 1886.]

A MERELY erroneous construction of the provisions of an Act is not a ground for relief under s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code. M J instituted an interpleader suit against two rival claimants, N and A, in respect of a sum of Rs. 20,000. R subsequently claimed a portion of the money, and applied to be made a party to the suit; but was opposed by M J and N. The Subordinate Judge refused the application on the ground that, though it was probably made under s. 32 of the Civil Procedure Code, R's right or claim not having been admitted by the plaintiff, nor asserted to his knowledge, she was not a necessary party under the special provisions of ch. 33 of the Civil Procedure Code, and referred her to a regular suit. Held that the order, though based upon an erroneous construction of the provisions of s. 32 of the Code, did not come within the scope of s. 622, inasmuch as it could not be said that the Subordinate Judge had failed to exercise a jurisdiction vested in him by law.—Rabbaba Khanum v. Noor Jehan Begum, alias Darlim Shahiba, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 90. [Mar. 12, 1886.]

THE Legal Practitioners' Act does not debar a pleader from recovering a fee from his client when no contract in writing is made. A Small Cause Court having dismissed a suit brought by a pleader to recover from his client a fee claimed for the conduct of a suit, on the ground that such a suit would not lie, because it was based on an oral contract, and such contract could not be enforced by reason of the provisions of the Legal Practitioners' Act, the High Court, under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure, reversed the decree of the Small Cause Court.—Bámi v. Kunji, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 375. [April 8, 1886.]

AN order of reference to arbitration was made on 21st January. Six weeks' time was allowed for the return of the award. No application was made for extension of time. The award having been returned on 8th May, the Court refused to give judgment in accordance with it under s. 522 of the Code of Civil Procedure on the ground that it was not valid. The plaintiffs now petitioned the High Court under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Held that the award was invalid, and the Court had not failed to exercise jurisdiction within the meaning of s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Simson v. Venkatagopalam, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 475. [April 12, 1886.]

WHERE an order was passed under s. 315 of the Code of Civil Procedure directing refund to a purchaser in execution of a decree in a suit in which a second appeal lay to the High Court, held that, under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the High Court could set aside the order because, the judgment-debtor having been found to have a saleable interest, the Lower Court had no power to order a refund.—Kunhamod v. Chathu, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 437. [April 16, 1886.]

R M, party to a suit, having authorised his agent to conduct the suit, the agent consented to the case being referred to arbitration by the Court. The arbitration was carried on to the knowledge and with the assent of R M. On an application by R M under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure, to set aside the award made by the arbitrators on the ground (1) that his pleader had not been authorised in writing, as required by s. 506 of the Code, to apply for arbitration, and (2) that he himself had not consented to the reference. Held that, under the circumstances, R M was not entitled to relief.—Unniraman v. Chathan, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 451. [July 12, 1886.]

The words, "a material irregularity," in s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure, include an irregularity of procedure materially affecting the merits of the case. An application of a section of the Code to a case to which it does not apply is a material irregularity within the meaning of the section. Magui Ram v. Jiwa Lal (I. L. R., 7 All. 336) observed on.—Sew Bux Bogla v. Shib Chunder Sen, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 225. [July 30, 1886.]

THE words of s. 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure, "assets realized by sale or otherwise in execution of a decree," provide only for a case where, by the process of the Court in execution of a decree, property has become available for distribution amongst judgment-creditors. The words "by sale or otherwise" should be construed as meaning by sale or by other process of execution provided for by the Civil Procedure Code.—Sew Bux Bogla v. Shib Chunder Sen, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 225. [July 30, 1886.]

A, AND subsequently, B, obtained decrees against X, in execution of which the same land was attached, and B obtained an order for rateable distribution. Neither decree was satisfied. A then applied for attachment of other property, and the sale was fixed for 28th September. On 26th September B filed a petition for further attachment under ss. 250, 274, and also a petition for rateable distribution under s. 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The District Judge rejected the application for execution as being too late, and then the application under s. 295, because no application for execution was pending. Held, on appeal, that the petition for execution was wrongly rejected, but that the High Court could not, under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure, revise the order rejecting the application under s. 295 for rateable distribution.—Venkataraman v. Mahalingayyan, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 508. [Aug. 4, 1886.]

APPLICATIONS to the Court under s. 206 of the Code of Civil Procedure are not governed by the Limitation Act. A Small Cause Court rejected an application made under s. 206 of the Code of Civil Procedure to bring a decree into conformity with the judgment, on the ground that a former application had been dismissed for default, and the petitioner was bound to apply within one month from the date of dismissal, and was now too late. On an application to the High Court under s. 622 of the Code to set aside this order, held that the High Court could not interfere.—Jivraji v. Bragji, I. L. R., 10 Mad. 51. [Sep. 24, 1886.]

WHERE a District Court, purporting to act under s. 4 of Act XIX, of 1841, directed an inventory of the estate of a deceased person to be taken without conforming to the requirements of s. 3 of that Act, the High Court set aside the order under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure as made without jurisdiction.—Abdul Rahiman v. Kutti Ahmed, I. L. R., 10 Mad. 438. [Oct. 1, 1886.]

HELD by Edge, C.J., and Oldfield and Brodhurst, J.J., that under s. 15 of 24 and 25 Vic., c. 194, it is competent to the High Court, in the exercise of its power of superintendence, to direct a Subordinate Court to do its duty or to abstain from taking action in matters of which it has no cognizance; but the High Court is not competent, in the exercise of this authority, to interfere with and set right the orders of a Subordinate Court on the ground that the order of the Subordinate Court has proceeded on an error of law or an error of fact. The High Court's power to direct a Subordinate Judge to do his duty is not limited to cases in which such Judge declines to hear or determine a suit or application within his jurisdiction. Held by Straight and Tyrrell, J.J., that the word "superintendence" used in s. 15 of the Charter Act contemplated and now includes powers of a judicial or quasi-judicial character, apart from those conferred on the Court by s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code; but that the last mentioned provision may properly be accepted as indicating the extent to which the Court should ordinarily interfere with the findings of such subordinate tribunals as are invested with exclusive jurisdiction to try and determine all questions of law and fact arising in suits within their exclusive cognizance, and in which their decisions are declared by law to be final. Tej Bam v. Harsukh (I. L. R., 1 All. 101, at I. L. R., 1 All. 104-105), Girdhari Singh v. Hurdeo Narain Singh (L. R., 3 Ind. App. 230), and in the Matter of the Petition of Mathra Parshad (I. L. R., 1 All. 296), referred to. The judgment of Petheram, C.J., in Badami Kuar v. Dina Rai (I. L. R., 8 All. 111) explained.—Muhammad Suleman Khan v. Fatima, I. L. R., 9 All. 104. [Nov. 17, 1886.]

AN order passed under s. 18 of Act XX. of 1863, refusing leave to sue, is not appealable, nor, if the Judge has exercised his discretion, liable to revision under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—In re Venkateswaru, I. L. R., 19 Mad. 98. [Nov. 25, 1886.]

THE deposit under s. 174 of the Tenancy Act must be of such a nature as to be at once payable to the parties, and a Court has no power to set aside a sale under that section unless the judgment-debtor has complied strictly with its provisions.—Rahim Bux v. Nundo Lal Goswami, I. L. R., 14 Cal. 321. [Feb. 2, 1887.]^a

A JUDGE has no jurisdiction to pass, in a contested suit, a decree adverse to the defendant where there is no evidence or admission before him to support the decree, and where the burden of proof is not or has not continued to be upon the defendant. If he passes such a decree, it is liable to be set aside in revision under s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code. Maulvi Muhammad v. Syed Hicain (I. L. R., 3 All. 203) and Sarnam Tewari v. Sakina Bibi (I. L. R., 3 All. 417) referred to. S hired a horse from W, and while it was in his custody it died from rupture of the diaphragm, which was proved to have been caused by over-exertion on a full stomach. In a suit by W against S to recover the value of the horse, the defendant gave evidence to the effect that the horse became restive and plunged about, that he might then have touched it with his riding cane, that it shortly afterwards again became excited, bolted for two miles, and at last fell down and died. This evidence was not contradicted on any point, nor was any other evidence offered as to how the horse came to run away. There was evidence that the horse was a quiet one, that for some time previously it had done hardly any work, that it was fed immediately before it was let out for hire, and that rupture of the diaphragm was a likely result of the horse running away while its stomach was distended with food. The Court of first instance held that the defendant was bound to prove that he had taken such care of the horse as a man of ordinary prudence would under similar circumstances have taken of his own property, that he must have used his whip freely, or done something else which caused the horse to bolt, and that in so doing he had acted without reasonable care, and had thus caused the animal's death. The Court accordingly decreed the claim. Held by Edge, C.J., that if the burden of proof was originally upon the defendant, it was shifted by the explanation which he gave, and which was neither contradicted nor prima facie improbable; and that the decree of the lower Court, being unsupported by any proof, and based on speculation and assumption, was one which that Court had no jurisdiction to pass, and should consequently be set aside in revision under s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code. Per Brodhurst, J., that as the decree was not only unsupported by proof, but opposed to the evidence on the record, the lower Court had "acted in the exercise of its jurisdiction illegally," within the meaning of s. 622. Colligs v. Bennett (46 New York Reports), Byrne v. Ruddle (2 H. and C. 722; 33 L. J. Each 18), Gee v. Metropolitan Railway Company (L. R., 82 B. 161; 42 L. J., 2 B. 105), Scott v. London Dock Company (3 H. and C. 596; 34 L. J. Each 220), Manzoni v. Douglas (6 Q. B. D. 145), Cotton v. Wood (8 C. B., N. S., 569; 29 L. J. C. P. 333), Day v. London and South-Western Railway Company (12 Q. B. D. 70), and Hammack v. White (11 O. B. N. S. 588; 31 L. J. C. P. 129), referred to.—Shields v. Wilkinson, I. L. R., 9 All. 398. [Feb. 16, 1887.]

THE question of the burden of proof in cases of accidental injury to goods bailed depends upon the particular circumstances of each case. In some cases, from the nature of the accident, it lies upon the bailee to account for its occurrence, and thus to show that it has not been caused by his negligence. In such cases it is for him to give a prima facie explanation in order to shift the burden of proof to the person who seeks to make him liable. If he gives an explanation which is uncontradicted by reasonable evidence of negligence, and is not prima facie improbable, the Court is bound in law to find in his favour, and the mere happening of the accident is not sufficient proof of negligence. S hired a horse from W, and while it was in his custody it died from rupture of the diaphragm, which was proved to have been caused by over-exertion on a full stomach. In a suit by W against S to recover the value of the horse, the defendant gave evidence to the effect that the horse became restive and plunged about, that he might then have touched it with his riding-cane, that it shortly afterwards again became excited, bolted for two miles, and at last fell down and died. This evidence was not contradicted on any point, nor was any other evidence offered as to how the horse came to run away. There was evidence that the horse was a quiet one, that for some time previously it had done hardly any work, that it was fed immediately before it was let out for hire, and that rupture of the diaphragm was a likely result of the horse running away while its stomach was distended with food. The Court of first instance held that the defendant was bound to prove that he had taken such care of the horse as a man of ordinary prudence would under similar circumstances have taken of his own property, that he must have used his whip freely, or done something else which caused the horse to bolt, and that in so doing he had acted without reasonable care, and had thus caused the animal's death. The Court accordingly decreed the claim. Held by Edge, C.J., that if the burden of proof was originally upon the defendant, it was shifted by the explanation which he gave, and which was neither contradicted nor prima facie improbable; and that the decree of the lower Court, being unsupported by any proof, and based on speculation and assumption, was one which that Court had no jurisdiction to pass, and should consequently be set aside in revision under s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code. Per Brodhurst, J., that as the decree was not only unsupported by proof, but opposed to the evidence on the record, the lower Court had "acted in the exercise of its jurisdiction illegally," within the meaning of s. 622.—Shields v. Wilkinson, I. L. R., 9 All. 398. [Feb. 10, 1887.]

PART VIII.

CHAPTER XLVII.

OF REVIEW OF JUDGMENT.

Application for review of judgment. 623. Any person considering himself aggrieved— Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

(a) by a decree or order from which an appeal is hereby allowed, but from which no appeal has been preferred;

(b) by a decree or order from which no appeal is hereby allowed; or

(c) by a judgment on a reference from a Court of Small Causes, and who, from the discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence, was not within his knowledge, or could not be produced by him at the time when the decree was passed or order made, or on account of some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record, or for any other sufficient reason, desires to obtain a review of the decree passed or order made against him, may apply for a review of judgment to the Court which passed the decree or made the order, or to the Court (if any) to which the business of the former Court has been transferred.

A party who is not appealing from a decree may apply for a review of judgment notwithstanding the pendency of an appeal by some other party, except when the ground of such appeal is common to the applicant and the appellant, or when, being a respondent, he can present to the Appellate Court the case on which he applies for the review.

WHERE a Judge allowed a review of his predecessor's judgment on the sole ground that it appeared to him that the judgment of his predecessor had done injustice, held by the High Court (Morgan, C.J., and Innes, J.) that though the generality of the terms used in the sections of the Procedure Code, Act VIII. of 1859, relating to review of judgment, viz., "other good and sufficient reason" (see 376) and "otherwise requisite for the ends of justice" (see 378), confers a wide jurisdiction, this jurisdiction could not be held to authorize a Judge to revise and reverse his predecessor's decree on the ground above-mentioned. If the review is asked for in reference to the conclusions of fact drawn from the evidence, it should not be granted simply upon the same evidence. Reasut Hossein v. Hadjee Abdoolah (I. L. R., 2 Cal. 131, P. C.) discussed.—Ranfin v. Karunatha Tharakan, I. L. R., 2 Mad. 10. [Oct. 11, 1878.]

THE order passed under the above section can be reviewed under Act X. of 1877, s. 623.—Smith Eliza v. Secretary of State, I. L. R., 3 Cal. 340. [Mar. 4, 1878.]

THE absence of a formal finding on an issue tried and decided by a High Court of first instance is not an error calling for review of judgment in the High Court. A party who not only had an opportunity of raising a question, but who did raise it in appeal, and on argument abandoned it, cannot, under ordinary circumstances, be allowed to agitate the question on review.—Sabápathi v. Subráya and Rámanátha, I. L. R., 2 Mad. 58. [Oct. 16, 1878.]

APPLICATIONS for the extension of the period for the submission of an award, and orders thereon, should be made in writing and recorded. When a party has been prejudiced by having the time allowed for taking objections to an award curtailed by the Court, no appeal lies, but a review should be granted by the Court of first instance.—Monji Premji Set v. Maliyakel Koyassan Koya Ifaji, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 59. [Jan. 27, 1880.]

THE notice-clause in s. 21, Act XI. of 1865, is applicable only to those cases where a new trial cannot be applied for within seven days after the judgment, in consequence of there being no sitting of the Court. Where the application is made within seven days, the notice is unnecessary. If the grounds upon which the new trial is moved are proper grounds for granting a review, the applicant is entitled to proceed under s. 623 of the Code of Civil Procedure without resorting to Act XI. of 1865.—Ratan Krishen Poddar v. Raghuo Nath Shaha, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 287. [Dec. 8, 1881.]

THE term "made" in s. 624 of the Civil Procedure Code does not mean "presented," but means and includes the hearing and determination of the application for review of judgment. Held, therefore, where an application for a review of judgment on the ground, not of the discovery of new and important matter or evidence as mentioned in s. 623 of the Civil Procedure Code, or of a clerical error apparent on the face of the decree, but on other grounds, was presented to the District Judge who delivered the judgment, and such Judge was transferred before he could entertain such application, that his successor was not competent to entertain it.—Pancham v. Jhinguri and another, I. L. R., 4 All. 278. [Feb. 4, 1882.]

A DIVISIONAL Bench of the High Court sitting as a Court of second appeal, being of opinion that the Court of first appeal had omitted to determine a certain issue of fact, determined such issue itself, and decided the appeal in accordance with its determination of such issue. An application for review of judgment was made on two grounds, viz., (i.) that the Bench was wrong in thinking that such issue had not been determined by the Court of first appeal, and (ii.) that the Bench sitting as a Court of second appeal was not empowered to determine an issue of fact which the Court of first appeal had omitted to determine, but should have referred such issue to that Court for determination under s. 566 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held that, looking to the provisions of that Code relating to review of judgment, such application ought not to be allowed on the grounds mentioned, which virtually disclosed reasons for appeal from the judgment.—Sheo Ratan Bai v. Lappu Knar, I. L. R., 5 All. 14. [July 19, 1882.]

HAVING regard to the decisions in Nánabhái v. Náthábhái (9 Bom. H. C. R. 89) and Naráyan v. Dávuđbhái (9 Bom. H. C. R. 238), and the uniform practice in accordance with them which had since obtained, and the practical similarity on this point of Act X. of 1877, s. 623, and Act VIII. of 1859, s. 373 (on which the cases above-mentioned were decided), the High Court allowed the appellant to withdraw his second appeal, after it had been argued, though not decided, in order that he might apply to the lower Court for a review of its judgment on the ground of the discovery of new evidence. The appellant to pay the respondent's costs of appeal.—Pandu v. Devji, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 287. [Mar. 8, 1883.]

IT is competent to a party against whom an ex-parte decree has been made to apply for review of judgment.—Bibi Mutto v. Ilahi Begam, I. L. R., 6 All. 65. [Aug. 17, 1883.]

ALTHOUGH the discovery of a new ruling may not entitle a party to a review of judgment, yet when a Court is satisfied that this judgment has proceeded upon an erroneous view of the law, the provisions of s. 623 of the Code of Civil Procedure allow a review of judgment. Where a decree-holder applied to the Court to transmit the decree to another Court for execution, and on a subsequent date paid into Court postage-stamps for the transmission of the records. Held that if when the postage-stamps were paid into Court an application was made to take some step in aid of execution, such application would be sufficient to give a new period of limitation.—Vellaya v. Jaganatha, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 307. [Dec. 14, 1883.]

A LOWER Court admitted a review of judgment on the ground that the decision of a Divisional Bench of the High Court, which it had followed in that judgment, had subsequently been overruled by the Full Bench. Held that the lower Court was not authorized to admit a review of judgment on such ground.—Amrit Lal v. Madho Das, I. L. R., 6 All. 292. [April 17, 1884.]

FOR the purpose of setting aside a decree passed in pursuance of a compromise come to out of Court, there are two available modes of procedure: (1) by suit; (2) by a review of the judgment sought to be set aside; the latter being the more regular mode of procedure. Lalji Sahu v. Collector of Tirhoot (6 B. L. R. 649), Mewah Lal Thakur v. Bhujun Jia (13 B. L. R. Ap. 11), Gilbert v. Endean (I. R. 9 Ch. D. 259) followed.—Aushootsh Chandra v. Taraprasanna Roy, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 612. [April 24, 1884.]

S. 624 of the Code of Civil Procedure must be read as a proviso to s. 623. Held, therefore, that, when a Court had been abolished, and its business transferred to a Court presided over by another Judge, such Judge should not entertain an application for review of judgment except in the case provided for by s. 624.—Sarangapani v. Narayanasami, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 567. [April 17, 1885.]

THE High Court has no power to review a judgment passed by it on a reference from a Subordinate Judge with Small Cause Court powers. Cl. c of s. 623 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882) allows of a review of judgment on a reference only from a Court of Small Causes. The judgment of the High Court in such a case is not a decree or order within the meaning of cl. b of the section, but is simply a statement of the grounds, in conformity with which the lower Court is to dispose of the case, as provided by s. 619.—Ramchandra Babaji v. Sitaram Vinayak, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 68. [July 23, 1885.]

ON 4th June 1879, one Ambaram obtained a Small Cause Court decree against Bai Dhiraj, the widow of the opponent's separated brother, and on the 17th November 1881 assigned it to the applicant. Immediately after the assignment the applicant applied to the Court for execution, which was ordered under s. 232 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882)—neither Ambaram nor Bai Dhiraj having appeared to object to it, though notice of the applicant's application was given to them. The applicant, accordingly, on 6th February 1882, recovered Rs. 10 from Bai Dhiraj in execution. Shortly afterwards, Bai Dhiraj died, and the applicant applied for further execution of the decree against the opponent as her legal representative. The opponent admitted that he was her heir, but objected to the execution, on two grounds, viz.: (1) that the decree had already been satisfied, and (2) that the transfer of the decree was fraudulent and collusive. The lower Court rejected the application for execution, holding, as to the alleged satisfaction, that it could not be recognized, as it was made out of Court; but, as to the second objection, that though the sale was duly effected, there was fraud and collusion in the assignment of the decree. The applicant thereupon applied to the High Court. Held that the applicant was entitled to execution. As to the first objection, the decision of the lower Court was right. As to the second objection, there was no evidence of fraud or collusion; and the Court having found that the sale was duly effected, the applicant had the same right to execute the decree as the transferor Ambaram had. If the judgment-debtor had been alive, she could not have resisted the execution, and, as her legal representative, the opponent did not stand in any better position. The Court was bound to execute its own decree, it being unreversed and in full force.—Mulchand Ranchoddas v. Chhagan Naran, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 74. [Aug. 6, 1885.]

Per CURIAM.—Held on the facts that there was no "sufficient cause" for not making an application for review within the time limited by s. 5 of the Limitation Act, 1877.—Gopal Chandra Lahiri v. Solomon, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 62. [Feb. 26, 1886.]

S. 647 of the Civil Procedure Code provides for the procedure to be followed in miscellaneous matters other than suits and appeals, and its provisions, read with ss. 545 and 546, give no power to the Court or a Judge, after the passing of a final unappealable decree, and before the granting of an application for review of judgment, to order a stay of execution of the decree. No such power exists under the Code. S. 622 gives a more extensive right of review than existed in England, where a review could only be obtained by showing that there was apparent on the record error in law, or that new and relevant matter had been discovered after the judgment which could not possibly have been used when the judgment was given, or that judgment was obtained by fraud. The words "or for any other sufficient reason" mean that the reason must be one sufficient to the Court or Judge to whom the application for review is made, and they cannot be held to be limited to the discovery of new and important matter or evidence, or the occurring of a mistake or error apparent on the record. Whether or not there is in such cases "any other sufficient reason" may depend on a question of law or a question of fact, or a mixed question of law and fact. Peasat Hosein v. Hadjee Abdoolah (I. L. R., 3 Ind. Ap. 221) referred to. In cases where a stay of execution or an injunction is granted on an ex-parte application, liberty to apply to the Judge to vary or set aside his order must be implied, if not expressed. Fritz v. Hobson (L. R., 14 Ch. Div. 542) referred to. On the 29th July 1886, an application was made by a party against whom the High Court, on second appeal, had passed a decree, dated the 18th March 1886, for review of judgment. On the 28th August, the applicant made a further application that execution of the decree might be stayed pending the determination of the application for review, and an order was passed ex parte granting this application. Subsequently, the opposite party applied under s. 623 of the Civil Procedure Code for a review of the ex-parte order on the grounds (i) that the Court had no jurisdiction to make it, and (ii) that the application of the 29th July was beyond time, and therefore there could be no review of judgment, and no order for stay of execution pending such review. Held that the Court had power, under s. 623 of the Code, to review the ex parte order of the 28th August, and that such order had been made without jurisdiction, and ought to be reviewed. Held that the decree of the 18th March being final and unappealable, and no application for review of judgment having been granted within the meaning of s. 630 of the Code, the application for stay of execution did not fall within s. 545 or 546, nor did s. 647 apply to it, nor any other provision of the Code. Held that, having regard to the circumstances that the order of the 28th August was made without jurisdiction, and upon an ex-parte application, of which the opposite party had no notice, and interfered perhaps indefinitely with his right to obtain the money in Court under the final and unappealable decree in his favour, as to which no application for review had been granted, and that the application for review of judgment was made after the statutory period of ninety days had expired, and contained no explanation of the delay, sufficient reason for reviewing the order of the 28th August had been shown.—Amir Hasan v. Ahmed Ali, I. L. R., 9 All. 36. [Sep. 13, 1886.]

An appeal which was referred to the Full Bench for disposal was heard and determined by the Full Bench, and judgment given in favour of the appellant in the absence of the respondent. Subsequently the respondent applied for a review of judgment, and proved that his absence at the hearing before the Full Bench was due to a mistake which had been made in not serving him with notice of the reference. Held by the Full Bench that, under the circumstances, the applicant's absence at the hearing came within the words "any other sufficient reason" in s. 623 of the Civil Procedure Code, and the review should be granted and the appeal re-heard. Upon the hearing of an application for review of judgment, upon which an order has been passed directing the opposite party to show cause why the application should not be granted, counsel for the opposite party should begin.—Ghansham Singh v. Lal Singh, I. L. R., 9 All. 61. [Nov. 15, 1886.]

Per GAETH, C.J.—Although it is difficult and perhaps undesirable to attempt to define precisely the meaning of the words "any other sufficient reason" in s. 623 of the Civil Procedure Code, yet from the earlier part of the clause it is clear that a point which might have been, but which was not, discovered at the trial by the exercise of due diligence, was not intended by the section to afford any sufficient reason for review. Per Wilson, J.—Serp. 2.—If at a trial all parties, counsel on both sides, and the Judge, are under a misapprehension as to the contents of a document, or, even if the Judge alone is misled on such a point, and in consequence a wrong decree is made, the mistake ought to be corrected on review.—Gopal Chundra Lahiri v. Solomon, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 62. [Feb. 26, 1887.]

624. Except upon the ground of the discovery of such new and important

To whom applications for any matter or evidence as aforesaid, or of some review may be made. clerical error apparent on the face of the decree, no application for a review of judgment, other than that of a High Court, shall be made to any Judge other than the Judge who delivered it.

A JUDGE of a Mufassal Small Cause Court has jurisdiction to direct a new trial of a case tried by his predecessor, s. 21 of Act XI. of 1865 not having been repealed by the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877). Per Garth, C.J.—The Judge, however, in dealing with applications for new trial under s. 21, should have regard to the rule laid down in s. 624 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Shumsher Ally v. Kurkut Shah, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 286. [July 19, 1880.]

THE term “made” in s. 624 of the Civil Procedure Code does not mean “presented,” but means and includes the hearing and determination of the application for review of judgment. Held, therefore, where an application for a review of judgment on the ground, not of the discovery of new and important matter or evidence as mentioned in s. 623 of the Civil Procedure Code, or of a clerical error apparent on the face of the decree, but on other grounds, was presented to the District Judge who delivered the judgment, and such Judge was transferred before he could entertain such application, that his successor was not competent to entertain it.—Pancham v. Jhinguri and another, I. L. R., 4 All. 78. [Feb. 4, 1882.]

AN application for review of judgment, upon a ground other than those mentioned in s. 624 of the Civil Procedure Code, if presented to the Judge who delivered it, and who thereupon directs notice to be given to the opposite party, may be heard and disposed of by his successor, Pancham v. Jhinguri (I. L. R., 4 All. 278, supra), dissented from.—Karoo Singh v. Deo Narain Singh, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 80. [Aug. 15, 1883.]

No second appeal lies against an order passed under s. 629 of the Civil Procedure Code. An application was made by a plaintiff for review of a judgment dismissing his suit as against all the defendants, which application was granted. Against that order the defendant appealed, and the lower Appellate Court confirmed the lower Court's order granting the review as against one of the defendants, but set it aside as against the other defendants. Held that no second appeal lay against such order.—Than Singh v. Chundun Singh, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 269. [Feb. 11, 1885.]

S. 624 of the Code of Civil Procedure must be read as a proviso to s. 633. Held, therefore, that, when a Court had been abolished, and its business transferred to a Court presided over by another Judge, such Judge should not entertain an application for review of judgment except in the case provided for by s. 624.—Sarangapani v. Narayanasami, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 567. [April 17, 1885.]

WHEN an application for review is presented to the Judge who made the decree, and he thereupon issues notice to the other side, the application is “made” to him within the meaning of s. 624 of the Civil Procedure Code, and may be heard and disposed of by his successor in office. Karoo Singh v. Deo Narain Singh (I. L. R., 10 Cal. 80) followed.—Fazel Biswas v. Jamadar Sheikh, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 231. [June 24, 1886.]

625. The rules hereinbefore contained as to the form of making

Form of applications for re- appeals shall apply, mutatis mutandis, to applications for review.

AN order made under Act X. of 1877, s. 409, refusing leave to sue as a pauper, is subject to review under s. 623. The provisions of s. 413 do not affect the right of a person against whom such order has been made to obtain a review. A petitioner applying for such review must file a copy of the order of which he seeks a review, together with a memorandum of objections (ss. 541 and 625).—Adarji Edulji v. Manikji Edulji, I. L. R., 4 Bom. 414. [July 12, 1880.]

Application when rejected.

626. If it appears to the Court that there is not sufficient ground for a review, it shall reject the application. Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

If the Court be of opinion that the application for the review should be granted, it shall grant the same, and the Judge shall record with his own hand his reasons for such opinion :

Application when granted.

Proviso.

Provided that—

(a) no such application shall be granted without previous notice to the opposite party to enable him to appear and be heard in support of the decree a review of which is applied for ; and

(b) no such application shall be granted on the ground of discovery of new matter or evidence which the applicant alleges was not within his knowledge, or could not be adduced by him, when the decree or order was passed, without strict proof of such allegation.

THE JUDGE of a Mufassal Small Cause Court may grant an application for a review of judgment under Act X. of 1877.—Isan Chunder Banerjee v. Luchun Gope, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 699. [Jan. 28, 1880.]

AN application under s. 311 of Act X. of 1877 to set aside a sale in execution of a decree having been made by the judgment-debtor, the Court executing the decree (Subordinate Judge) disallowed the objections, and passed an order confirming such sale. The judgment-debtor subsequently applied to the Subordinate Judge for a review of judgment. The Subordinate Judge, without recording his reasons for granting such application, irregularly proceeded at once to pass an order setting aside such sale, without cancelling the previous order confirming it. The auction-purchaser appealed to the District Judge. That officer, treating the appeal as one from an order granting an application for review of judgment, entertained it, and set aside the Subordinate Judge's second order. Held that the District Judge was not justified in entertaining such appeal, such order not being one granting an application for review, but one setting aside a sale, and as such not appealable. Before a review of judgment is granted, an order granting the application for review, and the reasons for granting the same, should be recorded.—Bhairon Din Singh v. Ram Sahai, I. L. R., 3 All. 316. [Nov. 9, 1880.]

No second appeal lies against an order passed under s. 629 of the Civil Procedure Code. An application was made by a plaintiff for review of a judgment dismissing his suit as against all the defendants, which application was granted. Against that order the defendant appealed, and the lower Appellate Court confirmed the lower Court's order granting the review as against one of the defendants, but set it aside as against the other defendants. Held that no second appeal lay against such order.—Than Singh v. Chundun Singh, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 296. [Feb. 11, 1885.]

627. If the Judge or Judges, or any one of the Judges, who passed the decree or order, a review of which is applied for, continues or continue attached to the Court at the time when the application for a review is presented, and is not or are not precluded by absence or other cause, for a period of six months next after the application, from considering the decree or order to which the application refers, such Judge or Judges, or any of them, shall hear the application, and no other Judge or Judges of the Court shall hear the same.

628. If the application for a review be heard by more than one Judge, and the Court be equally divided, the application shall be rejected.

If there be a majority, the decision shall be according to the opinion of the majority.

629. An order of the Court for rejecting the application shall be final ; but whenever such application is admitted, the admission may be objected to, on the ground that it was—

- (a) in contravention of the provisions of section 624,
- (b) in contravention of the provisions of section 626, or
- (c) after the expiration of the period of limitation prescribed therefor and without sufficient cause.

Such objection may be made at once by an appeal against the order granting the application, or may be taken in any appeal against the final decree or order made in the suit.

Where the application has been rejected in consequence of the failure of the applicant to appear, he may apply for an order to have the rejected application restored to the file, and, if it be proved to the satisfaction of the Court that he was prevented by any sufficient cause from appearing when such application was called on for hearing, the Court may order it to be restored to the file upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit; and shall appoint a day for hearing the same.

No order shall be made under this section unless the applicant has served the opposite party with notice in writing of the latter application.

No application to review an order passed on review or on an application for a review shall be entertained.

An application under s. 311 of Act X. of 1877 to set aside a sale in execution of decree having been made by the judgment-debtor, the Court executing the decree (Subordinate Judge) disallowed the objections, and passed an order confirming such sale. The judgment-debtor subsequently applied to the Subordinate Judge for a review of judgment. The Subordinate Judge, without recording his reasons for granting such application, irregularly proceeded at once to pass an order setting aside such sale, without cancelling the previous order confirming it. The auction-purchaser appealed to the District Judge. That officer, treating the appeal as one from an order granting an application for review of judgment, entertained it, and set aside the Subordinate Judge's second order. Held that the District Judge was not justified in entertaining such appeal, such order not being one granting an application for review, but one setting aside a sale, and as such not appealable. Before a review of judgment is granted, an order granting the application for review and the reasons for granting the same should be recorded.—Bhairon Din Singh v. Ram Sahai, I. L. R., 3 All. 316. [Nov. 9, 1880.]

No second appeal lies against an order passed under s. 629 of the Civil Procedure Code. An application was made by a plaintiff for review of a judgment dismissing his suit as against all the defendants, which application was granted. Against that order the defendant appealed, and the lower Appellate Court confirmed the lower Court's order granting the review as against one of the defendants, but set it aside as against the other defendants. Held, that no second appeal lay against such order.—Than Singh v. Chundun Singh I. L. R., 11 Cal. 296. [Feb. 11, 1885.]

S. 15 of the Letters Patent for the High Court of Judicature at Madras which allows an appeal to the High Court from the judgment of one Judge of that Court, is controlled by s. 629 of the Code of Civil Procedure, which provides that an order of a Civil Court rejecting an application for review of judgment shall be final.—Achaya v. Ratnavelu, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 253. [Oct. 27, 1885.]

630. When an application for a review is granted, a note thereof shall be made in the register, and the Court may at once re-hear the case, or make such order in regard to the re-hearing as it thinks fit.

Registry of application granted, and order for re-hearing.

Extending to Provincial S. C. Courts.

WHERE a review of judgment is granted on a particular ground, the Court is not bound to re-hear the whole case under s. 630 of the Civil Procedure Code; it is in the discretion of the Court to re-hear the whole case, or only the particular point on which the review has been granted.—Hurkans Sahye v. Thakoor Purshad, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 209. [Mar. 2, 1882.]

CHAPTER XLVIII.

SPECIAL RULES RELATING TO THE CHARTERED HIGH COURTS.

631. This chapter applies only to High Courts which are or may here-

Application of Code to High Courts.

632. Except as provided in this chapter, the provisions of this Code apply to such High Courts.

S. 15 of the Letters Patent for the High Court of Judicature at Madras, which allows an appeal to the High Court from the judgment of one Judge of that Court, is controlled by s. 629 of the Code of Civil Procedure, which provides that an order of a Civil Court rejecting an application for review of judgment shall be final.—Achaya v. Ratnaveluxi, L. R., 9 Mad. 253. [Oct. 27, 1885.]

THE intention of the Legislature as expressed in s. 633 of the Civil Procedure Code was that the High Court might frame rules as to how its judgments should be given, whether orally or in writing, or according to any mode which might appear to it best in the interests of justice. The section does not merely give the High Court power to direct that judgments shall be recorded in a particular book, or with a particular seal. Rule 9 of the rules made under s. 633 in March 1885 is therefore not ultra vires of the Court, and it modifies the provisions of s. 574 in their application to judgments of the High Court. With reference to the terms of rule 9, it is not necessary in a case where the High Court substantially adopts the whole judgment of the Court below to go through the formality of re-stating the points at issue, the decision upon each point, and the reasons for the decision. Per Edge, C.J.—“Apart from rule 9, it never was intended that s. 574 of the Code should apply to cases where the High Court having heard the judgment of the Court below, and arguments thereon, comes to the conclusion that both the judgment and the reasons which it gives are completely satisfactory, and such as the High Court itself would have given. Assuming the provisions of s. 574 to be applicable, a judgment of the High Court stating merely that the appeal must be dismissed with costs and the judgment of the first Court affirmed, and that it was unnecessary to say more than that the Court agreed with the Judge's reasons, is a substantial compliance with those provisions. The judgment of the High Court in a first appeal was as follows: “This appeal must, in my opinion, be dismissed with costs, and the judgment of the first Court affirmed; and I do not think it necessary to say more than that we agree with the Judge's reasons.” The appellant applied for leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council on the ground that the requirements of s. 574 of the Civil Procedure Code had not been complied with. Held by the Full Bench that the objection involved no substantial question of law, and that the application for leave to appeal must therefore be rejected.—Sundar Bibi v. Bisheshar Nath, I. L. R., 9 All. 93. [Nov. 15, 1886.]

High Court to record judgments according to its own rules.

633. The High Court shall take evidence, and record judgments and orders, in such manner as it by rule from time to time directs.

THE intention of the Legislature as expressed in s. 633 of the Civil Procedure Code was that the High Court might frame rules as to how its judgments should be given, whether orally or in writing, or according to any mode which might appear to it best in the interests of justice. The section does not merely give the High Court power to direct that judgments shall be recorded in a particular book, or with a particular seal. Rule 9 of the rules made under s. 633 in March 1885 is therefore not ultra vires of the Court, and it modifies the provisions of s. 574 in their application to judgments of the High Court. With reference to the terms of rule 9, it is not necessary, in a case where the High Court substantially adopts the whole judgment of the Court below, to go through the formality of re-stating the points at issue, the decision upon each point, and the reasons for the decision. Per Edge C.J.—“Apart from rule 9, it never was intended that s. 574 of the Code should apply to cases where the High Court having heard the judgment of the Court below, and arguments thereon, comes to the conclusion that both the judgment and the reasons which it gives are completely satisfactory, and such as the High Court itself would have given. R., 9 All. 93. [Nov. 15, 1886.]

634. Whenever a High Court considers it necessary that a decree made in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction should be enforced before the amount of the costs incurred in the suit can be ascertained by taxation, the Court may order that the decree shall be executed forthwith, except as to so much thereof as relates to the costs; and, as to so much thereof as relates to the costs, that the decree may be executed as soon as the amount of the costs shall be ascertained by taxation.

635. Nothing in this Code shall be deemed to authorize any person on behalf of another to address the Court in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction, or to examine witnesses, except when the Court shall have, in the exercise of the power conferred by its charter, authorized him so to do, or to interfere with the power of the High Court to make rules concerning advocates, vakils, and attorneys.

636. Notice to produce documents, summonses to witnesses, and every other judicial process, issued in the exercise of the ordinary or extraordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court, and of its matrimonial, testamentary, and intestate jurisdictions, except summonses to defendants issued under section 64, writs of execution, and notices under section 553, may be served by the attorneys in the suit, or by persons employed by them, or by such other persons as the High Court by any rules or order from time to time directs.

637. Any non-judicial or quasi-judicial act which this Code requires to be done by a Judge, and any act which may be done by a Registrar, may be done by a Commissioner appointed to examine and adjust accounts under section 394, may be done by the Registrar of the Court, or by such other officer of the Court as the Court may direct to do such act. The High Court may, from time to time, by rule declare what shall be deemed to be non-judicial and quasi-judicial acts within the meaning of this section.

638. The following portions of this Code shall not apply to the High Court in the exercise of its ordinary or extraordinary original civil jurisdiction, namely, sections 16, 17, and 19, sections 54, clauses (a) and (b), 57, 119, 160, 182 to 185 (both inclusive), 187, 189, 190, 191, 192 (so far as relates to the manner of taking evidence), 198 to 206 (both inclusive), and so much of section 409 as relates to the making of a memorandum; and section 579 shall not apply to the High Court in the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction.

Code not to affect High Court in exercise of insolvent jurisdiction.

Nothing in this Code shall extend or apply to any Judge of a High Court in the exercise of jurisdiction as an Insolvent Court.

A JUDGMENT-DEBTOR having been arrested in execution of a decree of the High Court in its Original Civil Jurisdiction, and brought before the Court under the provisions of s. 336 of the Code of Civil Procedure, claimed to be discharged on the ground that he intended to apply to the Court to be declared an insolvent either under the provisions of chap. 20 of the Code or of 11 & 12 Vic., c. 21. Held that the judgment-debtor, on expressing his intention to file a petition and schedule under 11 & 12 Vic., c. 21, and complying with the conditions of s. 336 of the Code of Civil Procedure, was entitled to be discharged.—Ex parte Pinsent, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 276. [Feb. 6, 1885.]

639. The High Court may, from time to time, frame forms for any proceeding in such Court, and may make rules as to the books, entries, and accounts to be kept by its officers.

PART X.

CHAPTER XLIX.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Courts.

640. Women, who, according to the customs and manners of the country, ought not to be compelled to appear in public, shall be exempt from personal appearance in Court.

But nothing herein contained shall be deemed to exempt such women from arrest in execution of civil process.

It is not necessary that a special order of Court should be made empowering an officer authorized to arrest a purda-nashin lady to enter the zanānā of the house in which she resides. Under s. 336 of the Civil Procedure Code, if the officer is able to enter the house, he may break into any room in the house, including the zanānā, in order to effect the arrest.—Kadumbinee Dossee (S. M.) v. Koylash-kaminee Dossee (S. M.), I. L. R., 7 Cal. 19. [Max. 21, 1881.]

Ditto.

641. The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, exempt from personal appearance in Court any person whose rank, in the opinion of such Government, entitles him to the privilege of exemption, and may, by like notification, withdraw such privilege.

The names and residences of the person so exempted shall, from time to time, be forwarded to the High Court by the Local Government, and a list of such persons shall be kept in such Court, and a list of such persons as reside within the local limits of the jurisdiction of each Court subordinate to the High Court shall be kept in such subordinate Court.

When any person so exempted claims the privilege of such exemption, and it is consequently necessary to examine him by commission, he shall pay the costs of that commission, unless the party requiring his evidence pays such costs.

Costs of commission rendered necessary by claiming privilege.

Ditto.

642. No Judge, Magistrate, or other judicial officer, shall be liable to arrest under civil process while going to, presiding in, or returning from his Court.

And, except as provided in sections 256 and 643, where any matter is pending before a tribunal having jurisdiction therein, or believing in good faith that it has such jurisdiction, the parties thereto, their pleaders, mukhtars, revenue-agents, and recognized agents, and their witnesses acting in obedience to a summons, shall be exempt from arrest under civil process while going to or attending such tribunal for the purpose of such matter, and while returning from such tribunal.

The general rule that a party to a suit is protected from arrest upon any civil process while going to the place of trial, while attending there for the purpose of the cause, and while returning home, applies to a defendant to a suit under the summary-procedure sections of Act X. of 1877, who has not obtained leave to appear and defend, and who, therefore, cannot be heard at the trial. Questions as to the privilege of exemption from arrest, in the case of persons arrested under writs issued from the Small Cause Court in Calcutta, must be governed by the English law, and not by s. 642 of the above Act. It is not a deviation sufficient to forfeit the privilege if the shortest road home is deviated from, and a less crowded and more convenient road adopted. In re Soorendro Nath Ray Chowdhry, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 106. [April 9, 1879.]

WHERE a defendant in a suit in the High Court was arrested in execution of a decree of the Calcutta Court of Small Causes, while attending before an arbitrator appointed by the High Court to take a reference in the suit, it was held that he was privileged from such arrest while so attending, and that the High Court had power to direct his release from custody. Small Cause Courts in the presidency towns are subject to the order and control of the High Court. In the Matter of Omirtolal Dey (I. L. R., I C. 78) followed.—In the Matter of Jugessur Roy, 5 C. L. R. 170. [Sep. 23, 1879.]

A REVENUE COURT is a "Court of Civil Judicature" within the meaning of s. 651 of the Code of Civil Procedure. A person, therefore, who escapes from custody under the process of a Revenue Court is punishable under that section. S. 642 of the Civil Procedure Code only protects an accused person while he is attending a Criminal Court from arrest "under that Code." Held, therefore, where a person, who had been convicted by a Magistrate, and had been fined, was arrested in execution of the process of a Revenue Court while waiting in Court until the money to pay such fine was brought, that such person was not protected from such arrest by the provisions of that section, and that, having escaped from custody under such arrest, such person had properly been convicted under s. 651 for escaping from "lawful custody."—Empress v. Harakh Nath Singh, I. L. R., 4 All. 27. [July 13, 1881.]

WHERE a native of Patna came from Calcutta to Madras on 24th October on account of a suit pending, in which he was plaintiff, and, the case having been adjourned on 27th October for seven weeks, remained in Madras on account of the suit, and was arrested on 10th November, held that he was privileged under s. 642 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—In the Matter of Siva Bux Sevuntharai, L. R., 4, Mal. 317. [Nov. 11, 1881.]

643. When, in a case pending before any Court, there appears to the Court sufficient ground for sending for investigation to the Magistrate a charge of any such offence as is described in section 193, section 196, section 199, section 200, section 205, section 206, section 207, section 208, section 209, section 210, section 263, section 471, section 474, section 475, section 476, or section 477, of the Indian Penal Code, which may be made in the course of any other suit or proceeding, or with respect to any document offered in evidence in the case, the Court may cause the person accused to be detained till the rising of the Court, and may then send him in custody to the Magistrate, or take sufficient bail for his appearance before the Magistrate. Extending to Provincial S. C. Court.

The Court shall send to the Magistrate the evidence and documents relevant to the charge, and may bind over any person to appear and give evidence before such Magistrate.

The Magistrate shall receive such charge, and proceed with it according to law.

WHERE the provisions of s. 258 of the Code of Civil Procedure have not been complied with, a Civil Court is not debarred from admitting evidence that the decree has been satisfied out of Court, for the purpose of an investigation with a view to sending the judgment-creditor to a Magistrate under s. 643 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Queen v. Mutturaman Chetti, I. L. R., 1 Mad. 325. [Dec. 5, 1881.]

644. Subject to the power conferred on the High Court by section 639 and by the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Victoria, chapter 104, section 15, the forms set forth in the fourth schedule hereto annexed, with such variation as the circumstances of each case require, shall be used for the respective purposes therein mentioned.

Ditto.

Extending to Provincial
C. Court.

645. The language (which, when this Code comes into force, is the language of any Court subordinate to a High Court, shall continue to be the language of such subordinate Court until the Local Government otherwise orders ;

but it shall be lawful for the Local Government from time to time, to declare what language shall be the language of every such Court.

Ditto.

645A. In any Admiralty or Vice-Admiralty cause of salvage, towage, or collision, the Court, whether it be exercising its original or its appellate jurisdiction, may if it thinks fit, and upon request of either party to such cause shall, summon to its assistance, in such manner as the Court may, by rule, from time to time, direct, two competent assessors ; and such assessors shall attend and assist accordingly.

Every such assessor shall receive such fees for his attendance as the Court by rule prescribes. Such fees shall be paid by such of the parties as the Court in each may direct.

Ditto.

646. Whenever the Registrar of a Court of Small Causes has any doubt upon any question of law or usage having the force of law, or as to the construction of a document, which construction may affect the merits of the decision, he may state a case for the opinion of the Judge ; and all the provisions herein contained relative to the stating of a case by the Judge shall apply, mutatis mutandis, to the stating of a case by the Registrar.

Ditto.

647. The procedure herein prescribed shall be followed, as far as it can be made applicable, in all proceedings in any Court of civil jurisdiction other than suits and appeals.

The High Court may, from time to time, make rules to provide for the admission, in such proceedings, of affidavits as evidence of the matters to which such affidavits respectively relate ; and such rules, on being published in the local official Gazette, shall have the force of law.

THE provisions of the Letters Patent of 1865, cl. 36, that when the Judges of a Division Bench are equally divided in opinion, the opinion of the senior Judge shall prevail, has been superseded by Act X. of 1877 (which is extended to miscellaneous proceedings of the nature of appeals by s. 647 of that Act), so far as regards cases to which s. 575 is applicable.—Appaji Bhivrao v. Shivlal Khatibchand, I. L. R., 3 Bom. 204 (F. B.). [Mar. 31, 1879.]

AN appeal lies under s. 647 of the Code of Civil Procedure against an order of a District Court under s. 5, Act XX. of 1863.—Sultan Ackwai Sahib v. Shaik Bawa Malimiya, I. L. R., 4 Mad. 295. [Oct. 3, 1879.]

FAILURE to comply with the provisions of ss. 182 and 183 of Act X. of 1877 (Civil Procedure Code) in a judicial proceeding is an informality which renders the deposition of an accused inadmissible in evidence on a charge of giving false evidence based on such deposition ; and under s. 91 of Act I. of 1872 (Indian Evidence Act), no other evidence of such deposition is admissible.—In the Matter of the Petition of Mayadeb Goswami ; Empress v. Mayadeb Goswami, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 762. [Feb. 22, 1881.]

THE procedure to be followed upon the sale of an under-tenure is that prescribed by the Civil Procedure Code. S. 311 does not apply only to sales made under chap. 19 of the Code, and the sale of an under-tenure may be set aside upon any of the grounds mentioned in that section.—Azizoonnessu Khatoon v. Gora Chand Dass, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 163. [Mar. 18, 1881.]

Ss. 25 and 647 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877) are both applicable to Courts of Small Causes in the Mufassal, and the former section is extended by the latter to execution-proceedings in such Courts. Under s. 25 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X. of 1877), the District Judge has power to withdraw an application for execution of a decree from a subordinate Court (such as a Mufassal Court of Small Causes) and to dispose of it himself, or to transfer it to another subordinate Court competent to deal with it. The distinction made for the purposes of limitation between suits, appeals, and applications by the Limitation Acts, has no bearing upon a question of jurisdiction—Balaji Ranchoddas, Applicant, I. L. R., 5 Bom. 680. [Aug. 30, 1881.]

WHERE a judgment-debtor, pending the execution-proceedings, was granted permission to examine the state of the accounts, but failed to do so, and then made a fresh application to the Court for the same purpose after the execution-proceedings had been struck off, and the decree declared to be satisfied. Held that the question must be determined with reference to the provisions of s. 647 of the Civil Procedure Code, and the only course open to the judgment-debtor would have been to apply for a review of the order which declared the decree to be satisfied and struck off the execution-proceedings.—Fakruddin Mahomed Absan v. Official Trustee of Bengal, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 538. [Feb. 21, 1881.]

THE holder of a decree for money, dated the 7th June 1879, applied, on the 20th July 1880, for execution thereof, but it appeared that in certain particulars the decree required correction, and it was therefore ordered, at the request of the pleader for the decree-holder, that the application should be dismissed, and the decree returned to him for amendment. The next application for execution of the decree was made by the decree-holder on the 19th February 1883. Held that the application of the 20th July 1880 having been put in and afterwards taken back by the decree-holder, the proceeding became, to all intents and purposes, as though no application had been made; that therefore it could have no effect as an application made in accordance with law for execution within the meaning of art. 179, sch. 2, of the Limitation Act; that applying the rule contained in s. 374 of the Civil Procedure Code, in accordance with s. 647, to the application for execution of the 19th February 1883, the question of limitation must be determined as if the first application had never been filed; and that the application now in question was consequently barred by limitation. Ramanandan v. Periatambi (I. L. R., 6 Mad. 250) dissented from. Pirjade v. Pirjade (I. L. R., 6 Mad. 681), referred to.—Kifayat Ali v. Ram Singh, I. L. R., 7 All. 359. [Jan. 24, 1885.]

S. 647 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882), when read with cl. 8 of s. 588, does not give a right of appeal to a judgment-debtor whose application to set aside a sale of his property has been dismissed under s. 102, and whose application to set the dismissal aside has been refused under s. 103. S. 647 is not intended to confer any rights of appeal not expressly given elsewhere by the Code.—Ningappa v. Gangawá, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 433. [Nov. 26, 1885.]

THERE is nothing in the Indian Companies Act (VI. of 1882), or the High Courts Act (24 and 25 Vic., c. 104), or the Letters Patent, which prevents the High Court from calling for the record of the proceedings in the winding up of a company under the Companies Act, and transferring those proceedings to its own file. Such a power is given to the High Court by s. 647 read with s. 23 of the Civil Procedure Code. Where, in the proceedings in the winding up of a company under Act VI. of 1882, an order was passed admitting the proof of a particular creditor of the company before any liquidator had been appointed, held that this was an irregularity which by itself would justify the High Court in sending for the record. Where the District Judge conducting the proceedings in the winding up of a company under Act VI. of 1882 had, after receiving notice of the admission by the High Court of a petition for transfer of those proceedings to its own file, drafted and placed upon the record an order which it might have been difficult for him to reconsider if the matter again came before him, and where the case appeared to be one in which serious questions of law were likely to arise which it would probably be difficult to discuss adequately in the District Court, in the absence of the authorities upon the subject and of any rules framed by the High Court for dealing with windings-up under the Act, and the case was of a kind which would probably come before the High Court in a variety of appeals from orders brought by one side, or the other, held that, under those circumstances, the case was a proper one for the exercise of the High Court's jurisdiction by calling up the winding-up proceedings to its own file. A person who has been appointed liquidator of a company ought not, after such appointment, to continue to act as vakil of a creditor whose right to prove against the company is in dispute in the liquidation.—In the Matter of the West Hoptown Tea Company, Limited, I. L. R., 9 All. 180. [Dec. 1, 1886.]

648. Where any Court desires that any person shall be arrested, or that any property shall be attached, under any provision of this Code not relating to the execution of decrees, and such person resides or property is Procedure when person to be arrested or property to be attached is outside district.

Extending to Provincial S. C. Court.

situate outside the local limits of its jurisdiction, the Court may, in its discretion, issue a warrant of arrest or make an order of attachment, and send to the District Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such person or property resides or is situate a copy of the warrant or order, together with the probable amount of the costs of the arrest or attachment.

The District Court shall, on receipt of such copy and amount, cause the arrest or attachment to be made by its own officers, or by a Court subordinate to itself, and shall inform the Court which issued or made such warrant or order of the arrest or attachment :

and the Court making any arrest under this section shall send the person arrested to the Court by which the warrant of arrest was issued, unless he furnishes sufficient security for his appearance before that Court, or (where the case is one under Chapter XXXIV.) for satisfying any decree that may be passed against him by such Court, in either of which cases the Court making the arrest shall release him.

ACT X. of 1877, s. 223, does not apply to a Small Causes Court, and s. 648 does not apply to a case in which the defendant resides within the same district in which the Court issuing a warrant is situate. Consequently, a Small Cause Court may issue a warrant for the arrest of a person residing in another district, but not if he resides within the same district in which the Court is situate, but outside its local jurisdiction.—Chunilal Sobharam v. Purbhudas Kursandás, I. L. R., 2 Bom. 560. [Mar. 26, 1878.]

A DECREE of a Small Cause Court can be executed by it at any place within the local limits of the District Court to which it is subordinate, as defined by Act X. of 1877, s. 2, without having recourse to the procedure under s. 648, which applies only to cases in which a decree passed in one district has to be executed in another district.—Badan Behajra v. Kala Chand Behajra, I. L. R., 4 Cal. 823. [Mar. 24, 1879.]

WHERE an officer proceeding from Burmah to England on leave resided a few days in Madras on the way, held that such residence was sufficient, for the purpose of s. 648 of the Code of Civil Procedure, to render him liable to arrest before judgment.—Everet v. Tree, I. L. R., 8 Mad. 205. [Jan. 30, 1885.]

Extending to
Provincial S.
C. Court.

649. The rules contained in Chapter XIX, shall apply to the execution of any judicial process for the arrest of a person or the sale of property or payment of money, which may be desired or ordered by a Civil Court in any civil proceeding.

Rules applicable to all civil process for arrest, sale, or payment.

In the same chapter, the expression "Court which passed a decree," or words to that effect, shall, unless there is something repugnant in the context, be deemed to include, where the decree to be executed is passed in appeal, the Court which passed the decree against which the appeal was preferred, and, where the Court which passed the decree to be executed has ceased to exist or to have jurisdiction to execute it, the Court which, if the suit wherein the decree was passed were instituted at the time of making application for execution of the decree, would have jurisdiction to try such suit.

ALTHOUGH the High Court, in its appellate side, does not, as a general rule, execute its own decrees or orders, yet this circumstance in no way affects the vitality of its jurisdiction in this respect, and it cannot therefore be included among Courts which have ceased to have jurisdiction to execute decrees as specified under s. 649 of the Code of Civil Procedure.—Humro Pershad Roy v. Bhupendro Narain Dutt, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 201. [June 23, 1880.]

Per GARTH, C.J.—S. 649 of the Civil Procedure Code as amended by Act XII. of 1879, which explains the meaning of the expression, the "Court which passed the decree," does not exclude the Court which originally passed the decree as being a Court in which an application for execution should be made, but merely includes another Court. When, therefore, a Court which has passed a decree has ceased to have jurisdiction to execute it, the application for execution may be made either to that Court, although it has ceased to have jurisdiction to execute the decree, or to the Court which (if the suit wherein the decree was passed, were instituted at the time of making application to execute it) would have jurisdiction to try the suit. Per Field, J.—A Court does not cease to be “the Court which passed the decree” merely by reason that the head-quarters of such Court are removed to another place, or merely because the local limits of the jurisdiction of such Court are altered. An application for the transfer of a decree under the provisions of s. 223 and the following section of Act X. of 1877 is a step in aid of the execution of the decree within the meaning of cl. 4, art. 179, sch. 2. of Act XV. of 1877.—Latchman Pundeh v. Maddan Mohun Shye, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 513. [Dec. 10, 1880.]

A IN 1839 obtained a decree against B, a sardár in the Court of the Agent for Sardárs. The decree was executed in the Agent's Court until B's death in 1868. B's status as a sardár under exclusive jurisdiction of the Agent did not descend to his sons, and the decree was transferred to the Court of the First-class Subordinate Judge at Ahmednagar for execution. Various objections were taken to the execution of the decree by that Court, but none on the ground that the Agent's decree could not be executed by a mere transfer to an ordinary Civil Court. The case went up twice to the High Court, under whose orders the execution was for several years continued in favour of A's representatives against the estate of B's sons. In 1885 one of A's representatives assigned his interest under the decree to C and D. Thereupon the transferees, C and D, applied to the First-class Subordinate Judge at Ahmednagar to have their names substituted in the place of the transferor in the execution-proceedings. The Subordinate Judge rejected this application, on the ground that he could not recognize the transfer of the decree either under s. 372 or s. 232 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV. of 1882). He also found that execution had been going on for several years contrary to the ruling in Khusna v. Sakháram Rámchandra (12 Bom. H. R. 212), which laid down that the Agent's decree could not be executed by a mere transfer to an ordinary Court—the remedy in such cases being by a suit on the decree. On this ground, also, he refused to recognize the transfer of the decree. Held, reversing the order of the lower Court, that the assignment of the decree-holder's rights to execution in this case was one approved by the law as contained in s. 232 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV. of 1882). The transferee of a decree gains by the transfer the right of the transferor. Held also that though the execution-proceedings in this case had been for many years irregularly conducted by a mere transfer of the Agent's decree to an ordinary Civil Court, still as the Court which carried on the execution had jurisdiction to grant the same relief if a suit had been brought upon the decree, the irregularity, having been acquiesced in, did not vitiate the former proceedings in execution. Where jurisdiction over the subject-matter exists, requiring only to be invoked in the right way, the party who has invited or allowed the Court to exercise it in a wrong way cannot afterwards challenge the legality of the proceedings due to his own invitation or negligence. But if there is no jurisdiction over the subject-matter, the acquiescence of the parties concerned cannot create it. Where a decree—one of continuous operation, taking effect as each year furnishes proceeds for its satisfaction, it must be executed each year according to the law of procedure then in force.—Vishnu Sakháram Nagarkar v. Krishnarao Malhar, I. L. R., 11. Bom. 153. [July 29, 1886.]

650. The provisions of Chapters XIV. and XV., relating to witnesses, Extending to

Application of rules as to witnesses shall apply to all persons required to give evidence or to produce documents in any proceeding under this Code. Provincial S. C. Courts.

The Governor-General in Council may, by like notification, cancel any notification made under this section, but not so as to invalidate the service of any summons served previous to such cancellation.

651.* Whoever offers any resistance or illegal obstruction to the lawful apprehension of himself under this Code, or under the warrant of any Civil or Revenue Court, or escapes or attempts to escape from any custody in which he is lawfully detained under this Code or under such warrant, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both.

A REVENUE COURT is a "Court of Civil Judicature" within the meaning of s. 651 of the Code of Civil Procedure. A person, therefore, who escapes from custody under the process of a Revenue Court is punishable under that section. S. 642 of the Civil Procedure Code only protects an accused person while he is attending a Criminal Court from arrest "under that Code." Held, therefore, where a person, who had been convicted by a Magistrate, and had been fined, was arrested in execution of the process of a Revenue Court while waiting in Court until the money to pay such fine was brought, that such person was not protected from such arrest by the provisions of that section, and that, having escaped from custody under such arrest, such person had properly been convicted under s. 651 for escaping from "lawful custody."—Empress v. Harakh Nath Singh, I. L. R., 4 All. 27. [July 13, 1881.]

THE apprehension of a judgment-debtor in execution of a decree without the officer making the apprehension having the warrant of the Court executing the decree in his possession at the time of making the apprehension is illegal; and, therefore, in such a case the judgment-debtor does not render himself liable to punishment under s. 651 of the Civil Procedure Code, if he escapes from the custody of the officer making the apprehension. Quære.—Whether a person convicted under s. 651 of the Civil Procedure Code of escaping from lawful custody, who is sentenced to one month's imprisonment only, can, under s. 588 (29) of that Code, appeal?—Empress v. Amar Nath, I. L. R., 5 All. 318. [Feb. 1, 1883.]

652. The High Court may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Code to regulate any matter connected with its own procedure or the procedure of the Courts of Civil Judicature subject to its superintendence. All such rules shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

* This section has been repealed by Act X. of 1886, s. 24, and the same provision has been inserted in the Penal Code as s. 225B.

Written Statement of the Defendant.

In the Court, &c.

C. D., the above-named defendant, states as follows:—

1. The defendant made the note sued upon under the following circumstances: The plaintiff and defendant had for some years been in partnership as indigo manufacturers, and it had been agreed between them that they should dissolve partnership, that the plaintiff should retire from the business, and that the defendant should take over the whole of the partnership-assets and liabilities, and should pay the plaintiff the value of his share in the assets after deducting the liabilities.

2. The plaintiff thereupon undertook to examine the partnership-books, and inquire into the state of the partnership-assets and liabilities; and he did accordingly examine the said books and make the said inquiries, and he thereupon represented to the defendant that the assets of the firm exceeded Rs. 1,00,000, and that the liabilities of the firm were less than Rs. 30,000, whereas the fact was that the assets of the firm were less than Rs. 50,000, and the liabilities of the firm largely exceeded the assets.

3. The misrepresentations mentioned in the second paragraph of this statement induced the defendant to make the note now sued on, and there never was any other consideration for the making of such note.
